ON WITH THE WORK FOR GOOD ROADS.

GREENVILLE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE COMMITTEE ACTIVE.

What Citizens of Ayden Say About Good Roads—Other Sections Will be Heard From.

Mr. Whit J. Hardy, member of the good roads committee appointed by the Chamber of Commerce, to visit the various sections of the county and interest the people in good roads, made a trip to Ayden Tuesday and following are some of the expressions of Ayden's business men, in regard to good roads:

Dr. Joseph Dixon, "I favor good roads, bonds if necessary to get them. I want some of the good things in life, not after I die."

Mr. Richard Wingate, "I favor good roads on the township plan."

Mr. W. H. Phillips, "All of us favor good roads."

Mr. E. Turnage, of E. Turnage & Sons, "We realize the necessity of good roads, no real progress can be attained without them. It is a question of what is the best method. The main thing is to get the people together and discuss the question."

Mr. E. L. Turnage, "I feel that the township plan should be adopted and am strongly in favor of good roads."

Mr. J. R. Turnage, "Nothing could be better for us than good roads."

Mr. J. W. Quinerly, "I strongly favor good roads. It is only a question of the best methods. If I was a good speaker, I would come to your meeting and make a speech."

Mr. W. B. Quinerly, "We ought to have them by all means."

Mr. E. T. Phillips, "I favor good roads and will do all I can to bring that about."

Mr. Edward L. Brown, "Only indication of true progress."

Mr. J. R. Smith, "Favor good roads by special tax, the cost being paid each year. Our present tax is eight cents. It ought to be increased at least three-fold."

Mr. R. W. Smith, "If there is any chance to build good roads, I am with you."

We will give full expression of the people on all sides, if short sentences are sent us.

A GREAT HELP TO GREENVILLE.

Appreciated Expression From Business Man in Another State.

A prominent business man in another State who feels an interest in Greenville and is a regular reader of this paper, sends us a letter which contains the following much appreciated expression:

"I notice the change in The Reflector, and it makes a very handsome appearance. The people of Greenville ought to appreciate your's and The Reflector's work, for I cannot imagine anything that has ever done more for any town than The Reflector and The Reflector man have for Greenville."

FORM SUICIDE PACT.

Man's Nerve Failed After Shooting the Woman.

By Wire to The Reflector.
New York, July 13.—In carrying out a suicide pact they had entered into, Casimir Molzski shot Mrs. Antonio Shora three times today. The man then tried to shoot himself, but either lost his nerve or the cartridges would not explode, and he ran away. The woman tried to shield the man until she found out that he had not killed himself, then admitted that they had agreed to die together. The woman has a husband.

SENATOR ALDRICH FEELS STRIKE

Workmen on His Residence Demand Increased Wages.

By Wire to The Reflector.
Warwick, Neck, N. J., July 13.—A strike is on today among the laborers on the country estate of Senator Aldrich, where his great stone residence is being erected. The strikers are demanding $1.75 per day, an increase of 15 cents. They declare that the high cost of living makes it impossible for them to get along on less wages.

ANOTHER FLYING MACHINE FATAL DISASTER.

FIVE OCCUPANTS DASHED TO INSTANT DEATH.

Balloon Plunges From Great Height and Falls With Rapid Speed—Heavy Gale Responsible.

By Cable to The Reflector.
Berlin, July 13.—The giant passenger carrying balloon, Erbstock, designed by the aviator of that name, was dashed to the ground today in a heavy gale near Cologne. All five occupants were killed.

Eberstock was piloting the machine between Cologne and Dusseldorf when the disaster occurred. The balloon plunged from a great height, falling with startling speed. All the occupants were caught in the wreckage and their bodies so crushed and mangled that they were identified with much difficulty.

This is the worst aerial disaster in a decade, and is a harder blow to the new sport and science than the recent wrecking of Count Zeppelin's machine.

SIX PERSONS BADLY HURT.

And Hundreds of Others Injured in Wreck.

By Wire to The Reflector.
New York, July 13.—Six persons were severely injured and more than a hundred others badly shaken up and bruised when an express train on the Staten Island Rapid Transit Railroad ran into an open switch today. Officials of the road believe the switch was opened by some one with the intent of causing a wreck.

Grudger in Tenth District.

By Wire to The Reflector.
Asheville, N. C., July 13.—At one o'clock this morning, after being in session since the afternoon of yesterday, the tenth district congressional convention nominated J. M. Grudger, Jr., on the fifth ballot, by majority.

TOO MUCH RAIN THROUGHOUT THE COTTON BELT.

BAD WEATHER CAUSES GENERAL DETERIORATION.

Prospect for Very Short Crop—Pitt County Crop Poorest on Record, With Small Plant and Bad Stand.

In its issue of July 11th, the New Orleans Times-Democrat gives a report of the condition of the cotton crop, based upon correspondence throughout the cotton belt, from which the following summary is taken: "The reports indicate favorable progress in the States of Oklahoma and Texas and distinct deterioration throughout the remainder of the belt." "In the west, the field, as a rule, are clean and well worked. A general rain would prove beneficial."

"East of the Mississippi river, and in the States of Louisiana and Arkansas, continuous rainfall has multiplied the farmer's difficulties, resulting in deterioration over large areas, and greatly increasing the importance of reasonable weather henceforth and of a late frost."

"There has been some abandonment of cotton acreage, but insect activity appears to have been largely confined to previously infested districts."

The Greenville correspondent in the Times-Democrat made the following report for Pitt county:

"Greenville, N. C., July 7.—Since the June report there has been a deterioration of about 25 per cent. in the cotton crop in Pitt county. The character of the season so far has been extremely bad, the cold weather and rains causing small plants, poor stand and low condition generally. No boll weevils have appeared in this section but there is a small insect, supposed to be the root louse, that has caused many plants to die. The condition of the crop is the poorest this section has ever had for the time of year, with the plants smaller than ever known for the first week in July."

Waste Paper.

With the gradual but ever increasing price of all qualities of paper, the nation is confronted with a problem that means saving the forests, if waste paper is collected and used to advantage. There is no more needless extravagance than that involved in scattering waste paper. This paper if gathered together may be used in making more paper, or may be used to commercial advantage. Many cities are beginning to realize this great waste which may be avoided and saved to the advantage of the city. The gathering of waste and baling the same has been profitable to a number of cities and would be worth a trial in Winston-Salem. The country is being flooded with pamphlets which go straight to the waste basket. Save this waste paper and you will help the great conservation problem.—Winston Salem Journal.

WITH MISS NOVELLA HIGGS MOYE

Entertains in Honor of Misses Adams and Gold.

On Monday evening from eight to ten o'clock, Miss Novella Higgs Moye delightfully entertained her little friends at a porch party in honor of Miss Mattie Moye Adams, of Durham and Misses Margaret and Julia Gold, of Raleigh.

Punch was served by Misses Helen Laughinghouse and Douglass Arthur. Flinch and other games were played.

Misses Gold and Adams received the guests prizes and Miss Minnie E. Sugg, the player's prize.

Delicious refreshments were served and with the many regrets that the evening was over each little guest bade the charming little hostess good night.

A Smart Local Dog.

Mr. Milton Johnston, The Reflector pressman, has a dog that is as smart as anybody's dog. As a trainer, Mr. Johnston is hard to beat, and has taught his dog to do many marvelous tricks. In his yard he has erected a high stand to which the dog climbs by means of a ladder, and takes a high dive as skillfully as did the high diving dog that was here with the carnival some weeks ago.

Miss Helen Forbes left this morning to visit friends in Henderson.

PERSONAL BRIEFS.

The People Who Come and go on Our Trains.

D. D. Haskett, and left this morning for Washington.

Miss Olivia Berry, of Ayden, is visiting Miss Nancye Coward.

Miss Lucy Haskett, of Kinston, spent last night here with her uncle, Mrs. A. L. Blow left this morning to visit her daughter, Mrs. Fulford, in Washington.

Misses Ruth Cobb, Rubells Forbes and Lelia Higgs went to Scotland Neck Tuesday evening.

County Superintendent W. H. Ragsdale, and Mr. C. C. Pierce, returned Tuesday evening from the meeting of the National Educational Association in Boston, and a trip over in Canada.

F. G. James, H. W. Whedbee, H. A. White, E. G. Flanagan, C. C. Vines, F. D. Foxhall, L. W. Tucker, R. W. King and Dr. J. E. Nobles, left this morning for Charlotte, to attend the State convention.

MISS CRITCHER ENTERTAINS.

Complimentary to Her Guests, Misses Barahill and Cobb.

After the stormy afternoon, Monday, the stars shone more brightly in keeping with the merry crowd at the home of Miss Hilda Critcher, who entertained from 9 to 12 in honor of Misses Maude Barahill, of Bethel, and Emma Cobb, of Conetoe.

On arrival the guests were met by the hostess with Mr. Oscar Greene and were introduced to the guests of honor. Progressive conversation was then greatly enjoyed by all present.

In the midst of the conversations an interesting contest was held. Miss Lillian Burch and Mr. Willie Wilson showed their ability in the contest, and cut for the prize. Luck was with the young gentleman, who was awarded a gold bar pin. In an appropriate speech, he presented it to the guests of honor. The cards declared Miss Cobb the owner of the pin.

At the conclusion of the contest, ices and cakes were served by Misses Gertrude Critcher and Lillian Lanier.

STEAMER DESTROYED BY VOLCANIC ERUPTION AT SEA.

HEAVED HIGH ON CREST OF GIANTIC WAVE.

Vessel Broke Open and Quickly Filled—Crew Taken Off by a Passing Steamer.

By Cable to The Reflector.
London, July 13.—A volcanic eruption in mid sea totally destroyed the German steamer Atlika, on July 6th, according to dispatches received here today. The steamer was suddenly heaved high on the crest of a wave which broke her open and caused her to quickly fill with water. The crew took to the life boats and were later picked up by a passing French steamer and all of them were saved.

Explosion Shatters Fire Works Plant.

By Wire to The Reflector.
Everett, Mass., July 13.—A terrific explosion which occurred today shattered the plant of the East Everett Fire Works Co. The loss is $15,000.

HAS CONFERENCE WITH STATE TREASURER LACY.

EX-GOVERNOR JARVIS TALKS TO HIM ABOUT FUNDS.

He Also Discusses The Success of The East Carolina Teachers' Training School During Its First Year.

As the chairman of the executive committee of the board of trustees of the East Carolina Teachers' Training School, ex-Governor T. J. Jarvis, of Greenville, arrived in the city yesterday, to confer with State Treasurer Lacy about funds for the school.

In speaking of the school, Governor Jarvis said: "The school has been a success unparalleled in the history of the State. It has been only two years since we broke the ground for the first building and since then six beautiful buildings have been erected, including the administration building, two dormitories, the refectory, the infirmary and the electric power plant, for lighting and heating the entire institution. The buildings are equipped with up-to-date and modern conveniences and are furnished with substantial and comfortable furniture."

"The first session of the school opened October 5th, and closed on May 20th, with an enrollment of 172 pupils. On May 24th, the ten week's summer session opened for persons actively engaged in teaching. This is not a teachers' picnic, but actual study and class work for teachers on the subjects taught in the common schools. The enrollment in the summer school is 310. It is really interesting" said Governor Jarvis, "to visit the school and see the earnest enthusiasm pervading the whole school; and the work now being done there will tell in the better preparation of the teachers for their work when they return to take up teaching in the common schools this fall."

"I repeat that to have accomplished all this in two years surpasses anything ever before done in any educational institution in the State. We are always glad to have anybody visit the school who will do so, and we look forward to a still greater work for the session which opens September 12."—Raleigh News and Observer.

HANRAHAN ITEMS.

But This Time The Items Are About Good Roads.

Hanrahan, N. C., July 13, 1910.
Once upon a time, a domocidie, for about six years in a cottage located in a quaint old town, in the eastern portion of this State. The town is built on a peninsular of sand that must reach to China or some other lower region. It was there that an event happened that entirely revolutionized our life, and in so doing, opened our eyes to the necessity of good roads.

Mr. Editor: Will you indulge us for this once and let us tell of this event in our own simple way? We'll risk it.

It was on a most lovely day, On a historic tenth of May, Flowers were blooming everywhere, Their sweet fragrance filled the air. Birds were singing their sweet caral, Coming angels they seemed to call, Yet, life's breezes wafted in the tide With winged boats, hither and thither did glide

It was said by the great briny deep, There into our home an angel did creep, And gave to us a precious pearl, He whispered on departing, its a girl.

When we beheld her twinkling eyes We thought twin stars had fallen from the skies.

Then it was that we felt the responsibility that only a loving father can feel. It was then that we determined that the earliest and most lasting impressions that must be made upon the mind and heart of this precious one, given unto our keeping; should not left to a superstitious colored nurse, (as alas, too many are in these days,) and as its mother was sick for nearly a year, the care of the little one devolved upon its father. So we hustled around and got enough little neck clams, (that is the currency used down there) together in exchange for services rendered, to buy a baby carriage. It was a fairly nice one, some of the city people who come down to enjoy the breezes would let their baby ride in it. It was at this junction that we got our practical lessons in the great need of up-to-date roads. Day after day, in our wanderings through that old town, we would push that carriage with the precious little one, that she might get sunshine and fresh air, God's best gifts to man, and even better for babies. Through that sand; oh, how it did drench our clothes, not with the spray from the sea but with the constant oozing from the pores of our skin, and then we wondered why that town had stood there for 200 years and those people had never thought to build a shell road and pave their streets with the shells right at their hands. On looking about and upon further investigation, we found that we were the only people in that town that had even rolled a baby carriage. And the poor horses, they never thought about their comfort, forsaken and gave out, they only had to go to their work. Then we thought, is there nothing that we can do that will open their eyes to this great need. So we watched to see what paper had the largest circulation in that town and we saw that at that time it was The Raleigh Post. So we wrote that paper an article advocating a shell road and paved streets, and it opened its columns to us. Then they called us the sea side correspondent to the Post.

In less than twelve months after this, those people of that town had built a shell road and there was one road leading out of town. In three years they had paved their important streets with shells, and now you can look on almost any of the streets of that town at early morn or late in the afternoon and see them dotted with baby carriages and, too, the father will be pushing the carriage with his wife walking beside him. Yes, they could push ten babies now with more ease than we pushed one then. People of Pitt county and of North Carolina, in the name of humanity, build good roads. Are we like the old negro going through the streets of Goldsboro, with a heavy load of wood and beating his ox for every step, when a kind old lady said to him: "Have you got any mercy?" he said "no ma'am, I hain't got nuthin' but wood."

Uncle Tommy's Letter.

Rochdale, N. C., July 13, 1910.
C. D. Smith, J. R. Smith, Mark and David Smith, went to Greenville Thursday to see the Bloomer girls play the Greenville boys a game of base ball.

Misses Nannie and Carrie Belle Smith, and others of our section attended the picnic at Allen's school house Friday, and report an enjoyable time and a plenty of good dinner. We had very nice Sunday schools at Arthur and at Smith's school house Sunday.

We have been having it very dry for several days, but we had a very nice rain Monday evening, which was a pleasure to the farmers.

Prayer meeting in the churches tonight.

Mr. and Mrs. Ned Laughinghouse and child, went to New Bern today.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 13, 1910.

Keep your ear to the wire for news from Charlotte.

For one, we haven't got a hankering for a flying machine.

Sluggo Johnson is in danger of talking himself to death.

People getting killed by air ships is no more than might be expected.

Next time the mayor of Newark may be careful in trying to keep the law.

Roosevelt has finished his rest and now gets out to work in politics.

They are on to the State convention in Charlotte, and may stay there a few days.

With such a prospect of a poor crop cotton certainly should bring a good price next fall.

When you can but won't pay what you owe, you hinder from paying the man who would but can't.

Man certainly gets bread by the sweat of his brow in this kind of weather, if he does any work at all.

The man who leaves his horse tied out in the sun without water in this torrid weather, is not the man that he ought to be.

The result of the conference was that Leob will run as Republican candidate for governor of New York. This will likely gain Roosevelt's support.

From now until the first Monday in August every man in Pitt county should talk the good roads convention which meets in Greenville on that day. It is going to be a big day for Pitt county and the folks are all going to be here.

Among other things Greenville should not overlook the necessity for factories. The town needs them. There will be no trouble in getting people to locate here if the town has the means for giving them employment. Enough factories to give employment to a thousand laborers would double the population of the town in a short while. We have the school facilities of which people want to take advantage in educating their children, but the heads of families must be able to find employment if they move here.

Something for Nothing.

Each year as the summer time approaches, the peddler and the cheap auction men are around in all their glory. They tell you the smooth story about bankrupt stock that must be sold; but be not deceived. Remember that your home dealer is here to make every promise good, and that he can always give you a better stock to select from. It is a characteristic of the American people to try to get something for nothing, but the time when they can do this has not yet come, nor is it likely to come this summer. Our merchants do not promise to give you something for nothing, but can give you as much for the money as you can get anywhere else, and are showing an immense lot of reliable goods.—Morehead City Enterprise.

SOUTHERN OPPORTUNITIES.

People who have not kept in touch with the progress of developments in most of the southern states will be surprised to find how much is really being accomplished, even at this time when business is supposed to be moving along at a rather slow rate. The only feature of southern enterprise which appears to be at all below normal is cotton manufacturing. The railroads are generally gaining ground. There is active building in the traction field to connect cities by electrical lines. A single project of suburban construction extended from Anderson, S. C., to Durham, N. C., involves an expenditure of $30,000,000.

Probably the most encouraging feature in the whole field of southern industry is the extent to which local capital and labor is finding its way into the smaller enterprises. These have arisen to meet the needs of limited markets in which a much larger demand has been created by the increase in the buying capacity of farmers and the employes of the mills. Among these are wood-working establishments, foundries, implement factories, ice-making plants, machinery and repairing; construction of vehicles and the building of flour and feed mills. To these might be added vegetable canning establishments, many of which take up an increasing part of the fruits and vegetables grown in the south.

Growth in industries such as these has helped to transform the entire range of southern agriculture. One of the changes is seen in the tendency to concentrate the employment of labor and capital upon a smaller acreage. Parallel with this has come the wise policy of providing for that variety of crops which makes farming something nearer to a self-sufficing industry. A third change is the gradual adjustment of farm produce to the needs of the towns and cities, with special regard to the current demands of the mill population for food supplies. This has given a fresh impulse to dairying, the production of live stock for meat supplies and the growth of orchard products conveniently marketable from the point of production.

The changes have called for banks, for insurance companies, for building organizations and for various other forms of the utilization of surplus resources, which come with departure from a purely agricultural to a rapidly growing industrial and commercial organization of the community. With these have come the evolution of a variety of talent among the people, evident in the capacity with which these enterprises and institutions have in the main been conducted. The field of opportunity for business talent in the South has become one of the most inviting among the many afforded by a country of manifold opportunities.—Wall Street Journal.

Tobacco.

Tobacco is one of our superfluities, but it is also one of the poor man's cheapest luxuries. Personal expenditure on tobacco is probably from 25 per cent. to 40 per cent. greater per individual user than it was even ten years ago. Not only do we consume more tobacco, but the quality demanded is higher. The once contented smoker of 5 cent cigars now buys those retailed at 10 cents, or two for a quarter. It is often forgotten that the consumer, both of luxuries and necessities, has become increasingly self-indulgent with prosperity, and forgets to omit that fact in his balance sheet exposing the high cost of living.

It is doubtful if the British consumer has acquired more expensive tastes at the same rate as we have. The constant growth of the tobacco manufacturing industry proves at least in this direction. Taste in tobacco varies widely in this country and in Europe, but if the average quality of the cigar smoked has been raised, it is fair that there has been some movement to suppose that the price paid has advanced faster, even although it is admitted that large combinations of capital can turn out a better article than the small manufacturer with a larger margin of profit to themselves.

There is no active speculation worth the name in tobacco shares here, and very little in London. The students of economics would be inclined to watch such concerns narrowly for the first indications of a contraction in business, sufficiently severe to demand a curtailment of the expenditure on luxuries.—Wall Street Journal.

You have the work and the Reflector has the facilities for doing the work. Let's get together.

A SINGULAR CASE

Where Circumstantial Evidence
Played Justice False.

HANGED AN INNOCENT MAN.

Every Incident in the Remarkable Sequence of Events Seemed to Point Conclusively to the Guilt of Harry Blake, Who Was Accused of Murder.

It began in the Blue Horse tavern, on the highway leading to Albany.

Toward the close of an autumn day a half dozen men sat in the old bar-room discussing events which then were leading to the outbreak of the American Revolution. At such a time arguments were very likely to be rather more rigorous than ordinarily would be the case. And this was no exception. Fearing that trouble might result, one of the men exclaimed: "Come, Wickliffe, stop this. Such a dispute is nonsense."

Wickliffe was an ugly looking fellow, short and stout, with a dark, sallow face, black eyes, low, wrinkled forehead and lips that bared his teeth on occasions like a dog preparing to bite.

"My quarrel is with Harry Blake," he snarled. "It is none of your affair." "Well, Wickliffe," Blake cried good naturedly, "if you will quarrel, I won't. I'll say no more."

Evidently Wickliffe was bent on trouble, for he muttered something which brought a cry of "Shame!" from every one in the room. Blake's face became deadly pale. "Wickliffe," he said steadily, "I didn't hear what you said, but I dare you to repeat it. If you do and there's one improper word in it, this hour will be the bitterest of your life."

Once more the offensive words were flung at him, and in an instant Blake had seized Wickliffe and thrown him across the room. For a moment he lay stunned, but presently, his face dark with hatred, he rose and, shaking his fist at Blake, exclaimed: "You may take your measure for a coffin. You will need one."

"Not before you," was Blake's reply. Shortly after the quarrel Wickliffe left the Blue Horse for his home. Blake, whose road lay in the same direction, followed soon. Ten minutes later two more of the loiterers, also going over the highway taken by Wickliffe and Blake, started on their homeward way.

The last two travelers had ridden several miles, talking earnestly of the stirring events which then engaged men's minds, when a loud cry was heard at a little distance. In a moment it was repeated.

"Mercy!" the voice pleaded, and then, "Oh, Harry!"

"Can Blake be settling scores with Wickliffe?" exclaimed Grayson, one of the two riders.

In a moment they had galloped around a cove of trees at a bend in the road. Within twenty yards of them, on his back in the dust, lay Wickliffe dead. Bending over him stood Blake, grasping a knife driven to the haft in his bosom.

"Taken red handed," Grayson cried, while Walton, his companion, himself a magistrate, sprang from his horse, exclaiming, "Blake, I charge you with murder."

"Why, I didn't kill him," Blake said earnestly. "You are mad. I found Wickliffe lying dead and was about to pull this knife from the wound when you came up."

Grayson shook his head. "I wish I could believe you, Harry," he said, "but as I hope to be saved I saw you stab him. I did."

It would be hard to imagine a situation more likely to convince a jury of the prisoner's guilt. Conan Doyle in his wildest fancies in deduction never presented more damning evidence to Sherlock Holmes and Dr. Watson—the quarrel in the Blue Horse tavern, the ophthor resented, the counter-threat of death, the departure of both while their temper yet was warm and then the terrible tableau on the highway.

What might a man expect even now with the thousand loopholes that the law provides for escape? There could be only one conclusion now, as then, and that conclusion the jury reached without leaving the courtroom. Blake's protestations were vain. He died on the scaffold declaring his innocence.

Three months after the execution the judge who presided at the trial was summoned to Albany to see a prisoner under sentence of death. Grayson, whose testimony chiefly had convicted Blake, also was summoned. Much in wonder, they entered the cell together. "You," the prisoner said to the judge, "presided at the trial of Harry Blake."

"I did."

"And you," turning to Grayson, "swore you saw him stab Wickliffe. On your testimony he was hung."

"I saw Blake, stab him," Grayson said.

"You did not," the prisoner sneered, "for I killed Wickliffe. I sprang into the wood at Blake's approach. His story was true."

The confession was so clear and full that it left no doubt in the judge's mind that a fearful wrong had been done Blake. As for Grayson, the chief witness, he committed suicide. The records contain many instances of the law's mistakes, but few so pathetic as the case of Harry Blake.—Kansas City Star.

Method is like packing things in a box. A good packer will get in half as much again as a bad one.—Cecll.

CRYING FOR HELP.
Lots of it in Greenville, But Daily Growing Less.

The kidneys cry for help. Not an organ in the whole body so delicately constructed. Not one so important to health. The kidneys are the filters of the blood.

When they fail the blood becomes foul and poisonous. There can be no health where there is poisoned blood.

Backache is one of the first indications of kidney trouble.

It is the kidney's cry for help. Heed it.

Doan's Kidney Pills is what is wanted.

Are just what overworked kidneys need. They strengthen and invigorate the kidneys; help them to do their work; never fail to cure any case of kidney disease.

Mrs. B. Pittman, Walnut street, Tarboro, N. C., says: "For some time I had not been feeling well and thought that my kidneys might be disordered, as my back was very weak and the passages of the kidney secretions were irregular. My husband got me a box of Doan's Kidney Pills and since using them, my back has become stronger and my kidneys have become normal. I am now feeling much better in every way and therefore am willing to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

GATHERING PRUNES.

The Fruit is Never Picked, but is Allowed to Fall to the Ground.

A peculiarity of prunes is that they are never picked from the trees, but are allowed to fall to the ground. The reason is that a prune must be dead ripe, with all its sugar developed, or it will not cure properly. Therefore the ground under the trees is carefully prepared and leveled to make a soft, smooth bed for the falling fruit. Gathering the fallen prunes is a staple industry in August and September. Boys and girls and often entire families are employed in it, camping in the orchards.

Being gathered, the prunes are rolled down troughs full of tiny needles that prick their skins. They are then dipped in a hot solution containing lye, which cleanses them, and rinsed in cold water. Next they are put in broad, shallow wooden trays and laid in the sun for two or three weeks. This sun drying practically converts them into the staple prunes of commerce and of boarding house jokes. At the packing house they are assorted as to size by a machine which shakes them over a huge sieve. The farther the prune travels over the sieve the larger the holes, and when it comes to a hole a little bigger than itself it drops through into the proper bin. It is then run through a vat containing hot water and finally rolls down a chute into a wooden packing box—the same box that you see at the grocer's. When the prunes pour from the chute, however, there is a removable frame about three inches high on top of the box. Box and frame go under a press, which promptly stamps down the contents so that they are no higher than the top of the box. The frame is lifted off, the cover is nailed on the box, and the prunes are ready to ship.—Will Payne in Saturday Evening Post.

More Serious.

"Mathilde Browne was very rude to an overdressed old woman she met on the street car the other day."

"I know the story. The old woman turned out to be Mathilde's very rich aunt, and now she's going to give all her money to a hospital for decrepit dogs."

"Nothing of the sort. In fact, it's worse. The old woman was the Brownes' new cook, and now they haven't any."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Mecca of the Buddhists.

Tibet lies between the latitude of Rome and Cairo, yet, owing to the fact that it is nearly all one series of lofty tablelands, its climate is purely arctic. There is hardly any rain, and biting dry winds send dust or dry snowstorms forever raging across its inhospitable uplands.

Lassa, its capital, is the Mecca of the Buddhist world, and pious Buddhists gain much merit by making the pilgrimage.

Expurgating It.

"Elfedda, what did your father say when he heard that I had been here calling on you?"

"He said you were a numskull, a mollycoddle and a jolterhead."

"Is that all?"

"That's all. Guy—except the adjectives."—Chicago Tribune.

ARE YOU SURE

That the ice cream you buy is strictly PURE?

Do you know that the makers' hands were clean, flies excluded from the factory, and freezers and other utensils kept in Sanitary Condition?

Why take any chance where your health is concerned? Why not MAKE AND FREEZE YOUR OWN ICE CREAM IN 10 MINUTES FOR 1c A PLATE with Jell-O ICE CREAM Powder

It is so easy. Simply stir contents of one 13c. package into a quart of milk and freeze, without cooking, heating or the addition of anything else. This makes two quarts of ice cream, clean, pure and wholesome. A good ice cream freezer can be bought for a dollar or two which will last for years, and will soon save its cost.

Chicago, July 13.—There was a firm opening in wheat, about 3/4 higher. Corn and oats also higher. Provisions were easier, with a tendency to lower prices. Opening: Wheat, July, $1.06; corn, September, 59%; oats, December, 39%; pork September, $21.55.

New York, July 13.—There was some urgent covering of shorts at the start of the stock market, and all prices rose from fractions to nearly two points. Trade in Western Union was brisk. Southern Pacific, Reading, B. & O. and N. Y. Central gained one point each, and the Northern Pacific 1 1/2. Tone strong.

New York, July 13.—Poor cables were disregarded by the cotton market and the first prices showed two points decline to two points advance, most of the list being higher. Opening July, 15.43; August, 14.63; September, 13.28 offered; October, 12.64; June, 12.43.

TWAIN'S FIRST LECTURE.

Bret Harte Headed the Clique, but the Audience Swamped Them.

Mr. Clemens prepared a lecture for his San Francisco audience, giving a most extravagant account of what he had seen among the south sea islands. When Bret Harte and some other of his friends were told of his platform intention they agreed to go in a body to the old Mechanics' hall, where Twain was to deliver himself, and form a big clique that would insure the success of the affair.

Mark wrote his own handbills, which set the town agog with anticipation. One particularly inviting phrase printed at the bottom of the announcement was, "The trouble will begin at 8 p. m."

The hall was crowded, and the claque was uproarious when Clemens appeared upon the platform. The lecture was delivered with manifest effort in a slow, deliberate, drawing manner, and the lecturer paid no heed whatever to the incoherent demands of "Faster, faster! We can't stay here all night!" and other urgent calls.

Although Harte tried to steer the claqueurs, they insisted upon applauding and laughing in the wrong places, which may or may not have been intended as a joke on Twain, but at last the audience, which began to catch on to the unique style of the man and to appreciate his quaintly whimsical utterances, overwhelmed the claque and had things its own way.

An old timer who attended the lecture says of the effect of Twain upon his first audience: "His slow drawl, the anxious and perturbed expression of his visage, the apparently painful effort with which he framed his sentences and, above all, the surprise that spread over his face when the audience roared with delight or rapturously applauded the finer passages were unlike anything of the kind they had ever known. The lecture was a great success."—Bailey Millard in Hampton's Magazine.
