SUPPORT OF A WIFE

A Recent Important Legal Decision Affects Matrimonial Rights

The crude common law notions of the matrimonial relation, which often resulted in great injustice to the wife, have gradually given place to more enlightened theories. The modification of the law in this respect has been brought about chiefly by statute, but to some extent also by judicial decision. An important case, recently decided, which marks another step in this progress, is De Brauwere vs. De Brauwere (69 Misc. 472), where the late Justice Whitney held that an abandoned wife who has expended her own money for necessities for herself and the children of the marriage may recover the amount so expended in an action directly against the husband. This decision seems to have been a novel one.

It is, however, only the logical extension of doctrines long recognized by the law, namely, that one who has supplied a wife with necessities which the husband has failed to provide may recover the reasonable value thereof from the husband, on the theory of an agency implied in law, or, to put it otherwise, that the wife has the irrecoverable right to pledge her husband's credit for necessities in case he fails to supply her therewith; and further, that she may in such case even borrow money on his credit and expend it for necessities, and that the lender may recover the amount so lent and expended from the husband, on the theory that he is subrogated to the rights of those who have furnished the necessities purchased with the money so loaned.

These rules were, however, inadequate to meet the needs of the wife in many cases, because oftentimes the delinquent husband had no credit which she could pledge, and even if he had credit, or she could procure assistance from friends, she was placed in the position of a suppliant for favor. The De Brauwere case by extending the doctrine of subrogation to the wife herself has placed her in a position of independence, where she can draw upon her own resources if she has such, for necessities, or purchase them with her own earnings, and compel the husband to reimburse her.

The doctrine of subrogation is certainly sufficient to support the decision, but Justice Whitney suggested a ground even more satisfactory from a legal point of view—although he expressly refrained from deciding the case on that ground—namely, that the right of the wife to recover "is based upon an absolute right to support from her husband; that at common law she could not directly enforce this right because of her disability to sue; that therefore she was restrained to her authority as his agent to order necessities; * * * that since her disabilities have been

AN ANCIENT CITY OF ARIZONA.

Buildings of Sandstone Found Beneath Prairie Dust.

Still another "oldest city in the world" has been discovered. When T. Hewitt Myring found vases in Peru in ruins which were said to be 7,000 years old it was imagined that the remains of early civilization had been pushed as far into antiquity as they would ever go.

But A. Lafave, a mining engineer, has found the relics of a town in an Arizona tableland near Phoenix which he insists are at least 10,000 years old. The buildings are on a level stretch of country where neither slit nor wash was possible; and yet the ruins were covered with ten feet of prairie dust, which the discoverer claims required ages to accumulate.

The buildings of sandstone show great architectural skill, and in the walls were found a box of cotton balls and a sealed jar of corn, both well preserved. The Arizona climate does not permit the growth of cotton in the present age, so Mr. Lafave assumes that sufficient time must have elapsed since the cotton which he found was grown to have wrought a complete change in the character of the country. This period he also gauges as something like 10,000 years.

He is satisfied that the ruins are older than those of Ninevah or Babylon. He believes that the race which built this town was possessed of a high civilization from the abundance of artistically wrought pottery and that it subsequently was broken by internal dissension and possibly degenerated into the cliff dwelling tribes.—Chicago Tribune.

Church Attendance.

It is astonishing how few members of the church realize the obligation they are under to attend the services of the church. We do not know how it is generally but the carelessness of Christians in this matter is the bane of the church work in Piedmont North Carolina. We would perhaps not miss the mark very far if we said that not fifty per cent of the members of the Baptist church of Thomasville attended its services with anything like regularity.

And this is a good church. It is loyal and liberal. It sands by its pastor, and meets its pledges promptly and fully. The members, or a large proportion of them simply do not feel that they are under the slightest obligation to contribute their presence as well as their money when the doors of the Lord's houses are opened for the public service.

We take it that this church is not peculiar in this respect. It is generally true of this section, and, we fear it is painfully true of other sections of our state. The old time loyalty to the worship on the Sabbath day is largely a thing of the past. A skit of a cloud or a drop of rain is considered a good and sufficient reason for staying away from church but such trifling things would never keep them away from a play, a party or a picture show.

Another thing: Children are allowed and encouraged to leave as soon as the Sunday School is over, and spend the hour they should be hearing a gospel sermon, at home. We cannot understand how parents can be so careless of the highest interests of their little ones. It is folly to say the children grow tired of a two hours service. They did not grow tired so soon in other days, and they do not suffer now from weariness in the day school. How can we hope that they will acquire the habit of going to church if they do not form it in their early days?—Charity and Children.

GRIFTON GETTING READY.

That Town Enthusiastic Over Base Ball.

The editor spent Friday afternoon down at Grifton and found the town wide awake over the prospect of base ball this season in the Coast Line League, composed of teams of Kingston, Grifton, Ayden and Greenville. Grifton has already laid off the diamond, a good one, too, and has commenced work on the enclosure and grand stand. That town is going to have a team that will put others in the league on their metal.

A game took place there Friday afternoon between kid teams of Ayden and Grifton, resulting in a score of 4 to 2 in favor of Ayden. The boys put up a good game and a crowd turned out to witness it.

Grifton is as good a town for business as it is enthusiastic over base balls, and things are moving along down there.

TWO OTHER HORRIBLE MINE DISASTERS

SIXTY SEVEN IN MINES PERISH.

Cause of Disaster Unknown, as The Was Thought Safe.

By Wire to The Reflector.
Scranton, Pa., April 8.—Thirty-four dead miners were found piled in one heap in the fire swept vein of the Raincoast mine today. Thirty-three had previously been recovered, making a total of 67, and it is believed the death list will exceed seventy. Fifty-two have been identified. The cause of the disaster is unknown. The mine was regarded as a model and was equipped with all safety appliances. Fire started in the engine room seven hundred feet below the surface.

One In Alabama.

Birmingham, Ala., April 8.—More than one hundred men, possibly two hundred, were trapped by an explosion in Bonner mine, 20 miles from here at 6 o'clock this morning. Three hours later it was reported to the state mine inspector that 15 bodies had been taken from the mine.

Birmingham, Ala., April 8.—Most of the miners are state convicts, about half white and half negroes. Requests for physicians, nurses and medical supplies were sent to this city and a special relief train was made up. The mine is operated by Pratt Consolidated Coal Company, one of the biggest independent companies in the South.

Birmingham, Ala., April 8.—A message at eleven o'clock from the scene of the mine disaster stated that 170 men were dead.

CARTER APPOINTED.

To Succeed Judge J. S. Adams, Deceased.

By Wire to The Reflector.
Raleigh, N. C., April 8.—Governor Kitchin today appointed Frank Carter, of Asheville, judge of fifteenth district to succeed Judge Joseph S. Adams, who died last Sunday at Warrenton, where he was holding court. Judge Carter was candidate for police justice at Asheville, the race being on at present.

UPRISING IN SPAIN.

By Cable to The Reflector.
Lisbon, April 8.—Naval officers and men made an unsuccessful attempt to seize the arsenal today and to assassinate the minister of Marine. Loyalist troops surprised the uprising and ring leaders were arrested. The uprising was one of a series of monarchist plots directed against the new republic.

New Cotton Insect In Texas.

Houston, Tex., April 7.—A new species of cotton insect has been discovered in cotton fields in the vicinity of Berclair, near Houston, which is causing the entomologist department of the state mixed concern and pleasure. Although the mission of the new insect has not been definitely determined, experts declare it is the latest enemy to the dreaded boll weevil, against which an united campaign will be made throughout the cotton states this season.

The new cotton insect is described as a "long double worm, that hops." Investigation has been made in other fields widely separated from the Berclair plantations, but no traces of the worm can be found. From the time of its discovery near Berclair it has thrived rapidly and appears to outgrow the weevil.

Some of the state entomologist are uncertain as to the friendliness of the worm, which they brand a new pest. Recent investigations, however, have shown the worms destroy the larvae of the boll weevil, although they do not attack the insects themselves. In this event weevils propagated in the warm weather of the spring months will thrive this year, but if the deductions of the state experts are correct, the destruction of the weevil will begin with the laying of the larvae.

THE PUBLIC LIBRARY.

It Needs The Encouragement of The People.

The Sans Souci Club has recently turned over to the library the sum of $40, which its members generously agreed to donate to aid in maintaining a library in the town of Greenville.

This club has always been heartily interested in this work, giving their books each year to the library, and also presenting several handsome sets of books to the one burned last year.

The library committee desires to return thanks for this timely aid, that of the Masons, the Civic League, and the generous individuals, who helped make it possible to re-establish a library after the fire. If the other clubs and organizations in Greenville would co-operate and each send a representative who would form a part of the library committee helping to control its affairs, and if the people generally would subscribe to it at only $1 per year, we could soon have a library here of which every citizen would be proud.

The Masons have not only given a room to be used for this purpose, but have also furnished it attractively.

The library committee endeavors to get some of the best of the modern fictions each month, and is adding gradually to the number of standard works, histories, and reference books generally; but to run a library successfully there must be a settled fund to draw from each year. Until we have this, it must perforce be a thing of very gradual growth, unless the other organizations and the citizens generally will help us.

We know Greenville people need and want a public library and, if they will only want it enough to feel they would like to have a part in helping to maintain one, we should soon have a free public library, open every day, a reading room, the best of the magazines and newspapers and everything needful.

We have made the start by the help of the organizations mentioned. Come to our assistance and help us to have a library worthy of the growing town of Greenville. Take an interest in this matter; come up and see what we are trying to do and lend a helping hand. All suggestions for the improvement of the library will be thankfully received.

It is situated up stairs in the front of the Winslow building, corner of Fifth and Washington streets, and is open at present for two hours on each Monday, Wednesday and Friday, from 3:30 to 5:30 p. m.

MRS. W. A. BOWEN.

"LEST WE FORGET."

During the heavy rain storm, which enveloped New York at the time 80,000 working people marched in line, April 5th, as mourners of the 143 fellow workers killed in the great Washington Place halocaust, March 25th, and were sympathetically viewed by 250,000 people. The New York World has the following to say of this great demonstration:

There was more than grief in the long procession of working men and women that yesterday followed the bodies of the Asch fire victims through the drenched streets of New York. It was a tribute and it was a protest.

A patient people have felt in this disaster a sense of personal outrage. They have grown used to hard toil whose returns seem ever less adequate to measure against the bare necessities of life. They have learned to accept with little complaint cramped homes and the cruel fatigue of many stairways and thronged street cars and the lack of space for their children's play as inevitable conditions of the congested growth of a great city.

But they do feel intolerably wronged that no one knows how many thousands of their number must serve the common need in their long hours of toil under daily constant peril of being burned alive. Against the locked door and the narrow, winding stair and the flimsy fire-scape that bends under their weight; against the tinder partition and the permitted cigarette and the sharp eye upon "materials" that is blind to the danger of men; against official neglect and out worn laws, this was their demonstration.

It was an impressive one, serious, silent, heightened in effect by the lowering clouds and rain that fell. No one who saw it will soon forget the spectacle. Neither let us forget the need it meant, the just demand it makes upon those in authority and upon all the people.

When a newspaper grows, it shows there is something doing around the town that backs it. Because of increased demand by business men for space in its columns, the Concord Tribune has grown from six to seven columns to the page.

That women are becoming the equal of men in most endeavors is again shown in the Kansas City woman who stole $100,000 worth of securities from a safe deposit box in a bank, and got the money on them.

Make War on Vote Buying.

The purchase of votes can be stopped, and should be stopped at any cost, however great it may be. In most cases where both the seller and purchaser are indictable it is next to impossible to convict.

There is another way to break up vote buying and that is for the good people who oppose vote buying to make continual warfare on this method of corruption in politics. We have in mind a county in North Carolina where twenty years ago the disgraceful habit of vote buying was practiced in almost every township. The best people said they were going to put a stop to it. The leading men of the county decided they would make vote buying so disgraceful that no decent man would stand for it. A persistent campaign was made against the practice from year's end. To-day there is not a vote for sale in the county. Few others hear the best of county. Few votes would be sold were it not that men of superior intelligence encourage the ignorant and vicious to sell their great privilege of suffrage.—Asheboro Courier.

Need to Visit Washington.

It is the opinion of the Philadelphia Press, and quite a correct one, that the man who expects to be a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination will probably find it necessary to be in Washington at least occasionally during the extra session of congress. Governor Harmon, Colonel Bryan and Speaker Champ Clark have already realized the importance of the extra session in its bearing on the next Democratic nomination. The speaker will have the advantage of a steady job right on the ground, and yet occupying the center of the stage all the time has its perils. The Democrats have not yet selected their candidate, and as the extra session and one regular session of congress will convene before the nomination is made it is possible there may not be so many candidates a year hence as there appear to be now. All the same the expectants will be looked to to drift into Washington occasionally and take an interest in things and hand out advice, and get their measures taken.—Charlotte Chronicle.

RADIANT HAIR.

Any Woman Can Have It by Using Parisian Sage.

Madam: If your hair isn't just what you would like it to be why don't you use Parisian Sage?

If it does not put life and luster into the hair and cause it to grow abundantly you can have your money back from Coward & Wooten.

"I cannot say enough in its favor. Two years ago I lost all my hair. I saw Parisian Sage advertised and thought I would try it. Before I had finished using the first bottle my hair had stopped falling and my head was covered with new hair; also removed all dandruff, and to-day I have a lovely head of hair.

I think Parisian Sage the best hair restorer and dandruff cure in the world today. It also makes the hair clean, fluffy, and silky, and I would recommend it to every one who wishes a hair restorer and beautifier."—Miss Mary E. Dickson, 287 South Ave., Bridgeton, N. J., 1910.

For men, women and children, there is no hair preparation that equals Parisian Sage; it never disappoints; it does just what the American makers advertise it to do. MY DOCTOR MIGHTY FINE

Mrs. Hattie Cain of Carrsville: Thinks all the More of Her Doctor Since He Advised Her to Take Cardui.

Carrsville, Ky.—"My doctor," writes Mrs. Hattie Cain, "who advised me to take Cardui, for my troubles, is a mighty fine doctor, and I say God bless Cardui and the people who make it.

"Before I took Cardui, I suffered with female troubles for sixteen years. I would have to send for a doctor every three months, and oh! how dreadfully I suffered!

"I would cramp and have convulsions and it looked like I would die. At last I took Cardui and oh! what a surprise! I found it was the medicine for me!

"From the first bottle, I began to mend and now I am well, can do more work, can walk and go where I please and it don't hurt me, and I owe it all to Cardui."

Cardui helps sick women back to health. It has been doing this for over 50 years. It is not a laxative, or a heart or kidney medicine—it is a woman's medicine.

If you are a woman, try it.

Enforce the Neutrality Laws.

One of the first duties of the United States is to see that citizens of this country do not supply revolutionists with munitions of war. The cupid-ty of Americans leads them to take great risks in all revolutions in Latin America. The insurrection in Cuba could not have been carried on without the aid of filibusters from the United States who furnished arms and ammunition to the insurgents.

Mexico offers a better opportunity for gain by Americans who defy and evade the laws of the United States in respect to neutrality than any other country. Revolutionists in Mexico are able to pay well not only for war supplies but also for men to enlist with their forces. Thousands of nondescripts living in states and territories bordering on Mexico are willing to become recruits for the revolution when they are furnished rifles, food and clothing and a little money.

Before the United States can insist that peace and tranquillity be preserved by the Mexican government or by any of the other southern republics it must enforce the neutrality laws and prevent freebooters under the protection of American citizenship from stirring up and encouraging strife among people only too ready to revolt against any authority.—Uncle Sam on Police Duty.

Navy Not a Reformatory.

Notwithstanding a number of such experiences, committing magistrates and judges are constantly making the mistake of assuming that the naval service is a sort of reformatory and that it is better to give young men the option of enlisting in the navy than of sending them to jail for delinquencies or minor crimes.

The judges that entertain such ideas no doubt honestly believe that life in the navy would have a tendency to reform youthful delinquents, but they utterly fail to realize that no man can be enlisted in any of the military services who is not of good, moral character. It is true that recruiting officers sometimes do not inquire as strictly into the antecedents of applicants for enlistment as they might, but whenever they are informed that the candidate is not of good character they promptly reject him as a matter of course.

Without doubt navy discipline has a tendency to correct youthful exuberance, or even vicious habits, but the law demands that the country's soldiers and sailors should be respectable citizens, and no man of questionable moral character can or should be accepted.—New Orleans Picayune.

A good listener may never become a good talker that way, but there is a chance for him to learn to be a thinker.

Too many political platforms are made up of gang planks.

Stocks.

New York, April 8.—Missouri Pacific ruled the weakest feature in an extremely dull stock market today, moving down from 49 to 48 1-2, its low price for the year. With but one or two exceptions, the entire market was quoting declines at the opening. American Can was up 3-4; Steel 1-8; Canadian Pacific, unchanged.

Grain

Chicago, April 8.—Firm cables and light northwest receipts caused firm market at the opening of wheat today with prices for May 1-2 to 5-8 cent higher, and 1-4 cent for distant months. Corn opened a fraction higher, but was quiet in early trading. Oats were a shade higher; provisions steady.

AYDEN IS LOOKING FOR A BRICK HOTEL

ALSO A NEW BANKING BUILDING

Interesting Matters Reported by Our Correspondent.

Ayden, N. C., April 8.—Mr. Marshall A. Hudson, founder of the Baraca movement in the United States, arrived Friday, p. m., and lectured in the M. E. Church at night. His lecture was exceedingly inspiring. There will be many stars in his crown for his instrumentality in leading souls to the Master.

Prof. E. C. Brooks, of Durham, lectured here Thursday night in the Baptist church, (not on school bonds), but on the necessity of properly educating our boys and girls for the great duties and responsibility of life and in doing so the utmost care should be taken. Place before them the very best environments and food for thought. His lecture will be long remembered.

Mr. J. M. Dixon is treating his house to a new coat of paint. The porticos are supported by colonial columns. He also has had electric lights re-installed.

A gentleman of means was here last Tuesday prospecting with a view of building a nice three-story brick hotel. Hurrah! Let him come. Now Mr. Property Owner, don't let real estate get too high and run him off, as such is done in many instances, for such progress as this requires concerted co-operation.

Robt. Dawson, colored, who has been sick for some time with pneumonia, died last Wednesday and was buried by the colored Masons and Odd Fellows. Robert was far above the average negro for truth, sobriety and asserted a good influence, endeavoring to lead his people to a higher life and citizenship. He was quiet, modest and very polite to all the white race, and was fairly educated.

The Bank of Ayden held its annual meeting last Tuesday and declared a dividend of 20 per cent. Mr. John R. Spier was elected president and Mr. Stancill Hodges cashier. There is such a move on foot, if a suitable lot can be obtained, to erect a suitable and up-to-date banking house this summer that will be a credit to the town.

Work will be started next week on the base ball park in front of Mr. John E. Hart's.

Hardware of most any kind, sheep shears, mule shears and clippers. See us. J. R. Smith & Bro.

Mr. L. L. Kittrell has purchased Winfield Park near the graded school and will build a handsome residence on same.

Prof. A. J. Barwick, of Raleigh, is visiting his brother, Mayor Barwick. Allen has many friends here who always give him a hearty welcome.

Divorce in the Sudan.

Little is known of divorce among primitive peoples; consequently an article contributed by a writer in a French review on the traditional rules for divorce practiced among the Boudouma people, dwelling about Lake Chad, is of interest. If the husband demands divorce we learn that he has to generally renounce the dot. This is always the case if he be a prodigal. A wife demanding divorce without good reasons must restore to her husband double the value of his settlement upon her. If she cannot do so she must wait until she again marries, and the new husband has to take this liability. If the wife has good grounds for divorce she retains the dot.—London Globe.

The Tragic Tale of One Grasshopper
A live grasshopper will eat a dead grasshopper, and The Anthony Bulletin tells of a farmer who mixed Paris green and bran together and let a grasshopper eat it. He died, and twenty grasshoppers ate it up, and they died. Four hundred ate those twenty, and they died. Eight thousand ate those four hundred, and died.
A hundred and sixty thousand ate those eight thousand, and died, and the farmer was troubled no more.—
