Burnett and Nichols Placed on Trial For Their Lives For the Murder of Henry Belcher

Brilliant Array of Attorneys to Engage in Legal Duel Over Fate of the Two Accused Men.

JURY COMPLETED AFTER THREE HOURS OF EXAMINATION

- Belcher Murder Case Jury. O. C. Nobles, Ayden. W. K. Clark, Belvoir Township. A. L. James, Carolina Township. C. H. Forbes, Greenville. W. R. Bowers, Bethel Township. J. J. Moore, Bethel Township. M. N. Ewell, Swift Creek township. W. B. Wingate, Ayden. J. R. Mobley, Chicod Township. W. A. Taylor, Bethel. L. Y. Holliday, Grimesland. T. J. Daniel, Pactolus. State's Counsel. Lawyers—Moore, Long, Dunn, Cox, assisting Solicitor Abernethy. For the Defense. Lawyers—Ward, Skinner, Woodward, James, Pierce and Harding. Tried before His Honor Judge Justice.

Interest centers now around the Belcher murder case in the court house, the accused, Knapp Burnett and "Bill" Nichols having been directly charged with the crime, on resumption of activities after the midday recess yesterday. Both men were brought over from the jail and were at once surrounded by near relatives who had come to be near and comfort them in their hour of trial.

There are many interesting aspects in this case and those that are supposed to be "on the inside" declare that the state has a clear cut case of murder with a probable motive.

It will be recalled how Belcher was shot in Marlboro, near Farmville, dying the following day, after making a confession, in which he directly accused Burnett of the shooting. Much has been said about the affair that would tend to show the whole thing was a little more than a drunken brawl, the fact having been established by some, that the accused men knew something which might be given as the motive for the crime. However, as we are to hear the evidence probably today, to comment along this line would not be to the point. The actual fact is that Belcher was murdered and that everything tends to show that Burnett and Nichols, either of them committed the crime and that a great struggle will take place in the court house between state and defense to convict or acquit the men.

For over three hours yesterday, the task of selecting a jury went on with the drag attending such action when lives are in the balance. The utmost care was exercised by both state and defense and not after the time mentioned had elapsed was the jury box filled.

The taking of evidence began this morning.

Negroes Sentenced To Pen.

Cora and Will Smith and Will Harper Brought Before Judge Justice This Morning and Sentenced to the Penitentiary for Long Terms.

The three negroes found guilty of second degree murder, Willie Smith, his wife Cora, and her brother Will Harper were sentenced by His Honor Judge Justice to terms of 21 years for the couple and 7 years for Harper.

Lawyer Wooten pleaded before his Honor passed sentence and introduced new features which had not been brought to light during the trial. Mr. Abernethy also addressed the court, but evidently the jury's verdict in the case held, therefore the sentences.

Before imposing sentence His Honor paid a high compliment to the counsel for the defense saying that they had conducted it in an excellent manner. That he felt everything possible had been done by Mr. Wooten and his associates in the case, Messrs. Clark and Gilliam, and that their efforts towards their charge were to be commended.

All that is needed is enough regular advertising to justify an eight page paper. It pays the business men to use this paper and they are coming to realize its advertising value more and more.

Half an Hour

after the jury trying the Smith case entered the court room and announced its verdict of second degree murder, His Honor Judge Justice read it in The Reflector. When something really does happen The Reflector tells you about it and tells it to you in quick order. The Reflector gives the news. It cannot invent them.

This Proves That

The Reflector is a Live Newspaper, giving you the news, and not all about a fellow who walked around the world and employed thirty years on his undertaking. That is not news; that's history.

The Excellency

of its plant enables The Reflector to tell you what happens when it happens, therefore it does not need to resort to ready print plate to fill its columns. What it says is respectfully "fresh".

A Guaranteed Circulation

insures Reflector advertisers of results. It is not enough to claim a circulation. The newspaper must have it and be willing to prove it has it, as The Reflector is willing to do. Circulation means many readers; it means much attention to what the paper with circulation says; it means customers for the advertiser who appreciates these facts.

Durham Youth Cleared of Charge

Everett Crouch Was Apprehended a Few Days After the Hillsboro Bank Robbery and Held as Being Connected With Daring Safe-breaking.

DURHAM, April 26.—Everett Crouch the young white man who has been in the Durham County jail for safe keeping on the charge of robbing the vaults of the Bank of Orange at Hillsboro on the night of April 11, was discharged by Squire J. A. Harris this morning.

Crouch proved a complete alibi by Raymond Hall, township constable of Durham; Deputy Sheriff Morgan of this county; three negroes at work at the Southern Railway coal chute in east Durham and by Sina Forsythe. All the witnesses testified of seeing the young white man and another white hobo at the coal chute the night on which the robbery was reported to have occurred. The officers told the two tramps that they would have to move out of the city or go to work. The negroes testified that the men had slept at the chute from 9 p. m., until between 2 and 3 o'clock, when they left to catch the eastbound train. There was much interest in the case.

"Square Deal" Comes up Again As T.R. Tries to Show President Did Not Keep Promises

BEEN DISLOYAL TO EVERY CANNON OF ORDINARY DECENCY

WORCESTER, Mass., April 26.—Denunciation of President Taft was Colonel Roosevelt's reply tonight to the President's attacks upon him yesterday. Some of Colonel Roosevelt's assertions were:

That President Taft had not given the people of the country a "square deal," but that owing to a "quality of feebleness," he had "yielded to the bosses and the great privileged interests."

That one part of the President's attacks upon him was "the crookedest kind of a deal," and deliberate misrepresentation.

That the President "has not merely in thought, word and deed been disloyal to our past friendship, but has been disloyal to every canon of ordinary decency and fair dealing such as should obtain even in dealing with a man's bitterest opponents."

That the President's statement regarding the influence of federal officeholders in the campaign was "not only an untruth, but it is an absurd untruth."

That Mr. Taft, convicted himself of insincerity when he signed the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill.

That in speaking of Colonel Roosevelt's position in regard to the trust problem, President Taft "is himself guilty of a crooked deal."

Colonel Roosevelt took up President Taft's attack on him point by point, flaying the President in one scalping sentence after another.

Commoner Is Out Against Underwood

SPEAKS IN FAVOR OF WOODROW WILSON

TAMPA Fla., April 26.—Declaring that he believed the result of the Taft-Roosevelt fight would be the nomination of a third man by the Republicans, W. J. Bryan in a speech here this morning used the alleged words of each against the other as evidence of the unfitness of both.

"Indeed," said Mr. Bryan, "I am daily apprehending the suggesting that I be nominated as a compromise Republican candidate on the declaration of Roosevelt that I am more progressive than Taft, and of Taft that I am less dangerous than Roosevelt."

Mr. Bryn in denouncing Underwood as "the candidate of Wall street," explained that he was not necessarily against a southern man, but that if the nomination of a southern man was desired, "why not a real southern James or Charles Culberson?" He retained that he had no preference like Hoke Smith, Ollie erence between progressives, but that the Democratic party should not throw away this greatest of its opportunities by nominating a reactionary.

BAVARIA'S MAD KING

MUNICH, April 27.—King Otto of Baravia entered upon his sixtieth year today and Munich, with other Baravian towns, in honor of the occasion displayed flags and bunting, sang Te Deums, had a review of troops and perfunctorily drank to the health of the king who remains shut up in the castle of Fuerstenried, hopelessly insane and carefully guarded. All these celebrations are merely a matter of form and in accordance with monarchial traditions. The Baravians care but little for their king, whom many have never seen. He was insane when he succeeded to the throne of Baravia after the death of his brother Ludwig II., who had been disposed of on account of his madness and drowned himself in Starnberg Lake two days later, June 10, 1886. Even then Otto was confined at Castle Fuerstenried, while Prince Luitpold, appointed Regent for the mad Ludwig, continued as Regent for the even madger Otto.

Baravia had not cause to complain for under the wise and conservative rule of the faithful Regent the country prospered beyond all exceptions. While the late King Ludwig had spent many millions building castles and had saddled a tremendous debt upon his country, Luitpold enforced strict economy in all government expenditures and not only settled the debts of the former king, but accumulated a large surplus.

Otto Wilhelm Leopold Adalbert, the present nominal ruler of Baravia, was born in Munich, on April 27, 1848. His father was Maximilian II., and his mother a Princess Marie of Prussia. It is on his father's side of the house that Otto inherited his insanity, a taint of which disease was latent in quite a number of scions of the ancient house of Wittelsbach.

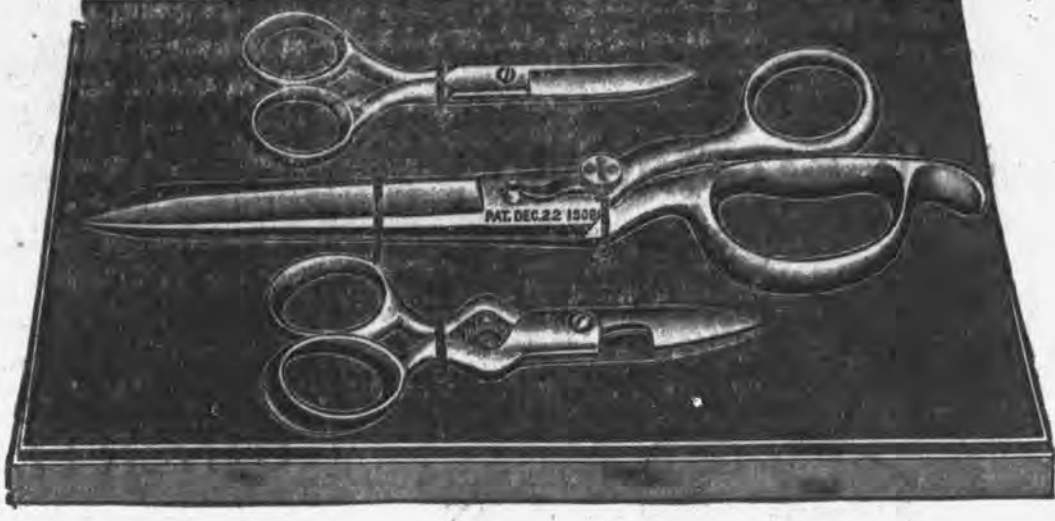

When Ludwig II., succeeded his father Maximilian II., upon the throne of Baravia, the disease which finally incapacitated him from reigning and made the appointment of a regent necessary, manifested itself merely in eccentricity. But when Ludwig died on June 10, 1886 without leaving an heir to the throne, his younger brother Otto, who succeeded to the throne under the Baravian constitution, was already insane. This fact precluded his actual accession and while he was nominally recognized as the lawful king and his head was tamped upon the coins of the realm, Prince Luitpold continued as regent, to the complete satisfaction of the Baravian people.

Otto's insanity first manifested itself during the Franco-Prussian war, when the Prince, then only twenty-two years of age, held a commission in the German army. His actions were so peculiar and unreasonable that it was considered best to call the young Prince to staff headquarters, decorate him for his services and send him back home under escort. In the hope that his condition would improve, he was sent to the castle of Fuerstenried, where he was kept under strict surveillance and careful observation.

But the poor madman's condition did not improve. His disease progressed and developed through its various stages and when Otto succeeded to the throne he was so far advanced in his disease that the learned specialists pronounced it as incurable. Since he was first taken to castle Fuerstenried, Otto has never left the enclosure of the beautiful estate except for occasional drives during the first few days of his confinement. As the disease progressed and the paroxysms of violence to which the king was subject became more frequent and less controllable, these drives had to be abandoned, as it was considered undesirable to let the people witness such violent outbreaks.

Surrounded by faithful attendants and treated with all the deference due to his exalted rank by doctors and humored in every possible way, the insane monarch spends his days at the secluded castle. From year to year his mental condition grew worse while his physical condition, thanks to the excellent care of his physicians and attendants, steadily improved. Mentally a complete imbecile, unable to recognize even his nearest relations, he has grown, physically, to a fine specimen of manhood. He is a giant in figure, possessed of tremendous strength and in his abnormal way of living, perfectly healthy. His condition varies from periods of utter indifference or spells of great dejection to paroxysms of uncontrollable fury, extremely trying to his attendants, as they are not permitted even for a moment to forget that under no condition force may be used against the king. The king has killed several of his attendants in his fury, but it is believed that in the last stage of the disease, which Otto seems now to have reached, these attacks will gradually cease.

POLITICAL NEWS FROM WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 27.—Less government money for battle-ships and useless political navy yards and more for the improvement of the public roads.

Every day the wisdom of this proposal is becoming more apparent to the national law makers. The agitation for road improvement is becoming more and more pronounced and it is generally conceded among the members of Congress that it will be only a question of time—and a very short time—until this agitation finds expression in legislation.

The champions of road improvements do not want and do not demand that any new expense be saddled onto the government. Their program is the essence of simplicity and reasonableness, for all they ask is that the government use money which is being wasted to give the nation better highways.

Up along the Maine coast there is a navy yard which cost the government twelve million dollars. The only useful purpose it ever served was to create a lot of fat jobs for the political friends of former Senator Hale. No battleship ever entered this navy yard for the simple reason that the Atlantic ocean at that point is not deep enough to float a battleship.

The good roads men demand that instead of building useless navy yards for the political benefit of Senators, the money be spent on the roads, so that land, now of little value because of poor roads, may become valuable and useful.

The good roads idea is gradually becoming of greater political significance and therein lies the hope of the friends of the movement, because whatever action is taken, must have its source in Congress.

CHRISTMAN'S OINTMENT.
The following extract from a recent letter will be of interest to all sufferers from skin diseases:
802 W. 181st St., New York, N. Y.
"I would like to see it (Christman's Ointment) sent to all parts of the world and if I were a young woman I would do all I could to introduce it everywhere, but I have just passed my 69th birthday and am very weak yet from the terrible disease that developed on my face and neck during the fearful heat of July last and which your ointment cured me after five months of great suffering. Nothing sold here or recommended by doctors equals Christmans Ointment. I have sent some friends in New Jersey and California your address."
Yours truly,
CAROLINE DONNER

Fads and Fancies

NEW YORK, April 27.—The long expected has happened and the draped skirt in the panier style and its various modifications, has arrived. So far the new style finds its expression principally in evening gowns of a more or less elaborate nature and the models show no exaggerated effects in drapery. However the season has only just begun and there is no doubt that before the season has reached its climax there will be seen models carrying the style to absurd and ridiculous extremes.

When one gets away from the picturesque evening frocks, one finds fewer extreme draperies, but all the skirts in soft materials show considerable fullness and the tucked up drapery in one form or another is being widely exploited. Whether it will be accepted by either the fastidious women or the crowd remains to be seen, but some of the versions are really delightful. Not every material is suitable for this effect. In taffeta, this kind of skirt is decidedly bouffant in the upper section, full and straight and limp below, and is rather too extreme to tempt by but the radicals and the adventurous. But in the softer stuffs it is less extreme, and when well made has cachet and charm.

A very handsome frock shown in one of the shops was of very soft sheer creamy lingerie material over an underskirt of black satin—or at least with the skirt of black satin below the tucked up puffs of the lingerie overskirt. This puff fell quite limply but very full and followed a slightly slanting line downward from front to back. From under the tucked up edge fell a soft plaited frill of very fine cream lace. There was a full frilled fichu on the simple lingerie bodice and narrow plaited frills finished the long slim transparent little sleeves. The girdle was of black.

Another charming model with the tucked up drapery had its underskirt of finest cut work embroidery flouncing with a little plain batiste showing above the deep embroidery. The bodice and tucked up overskirt were of soft flowered silk in Louis XVI design of rose and blue and straw color and there was a flat fichu of the cut work embroidery covering almost the entire bodice above a girdle of old blue. A method of skirt drapery which merely gives a little movement to the skirt lines without introducing any extreme lines or actual bouffancy consists in placing a group of tiny horizontal plaits on one side of a skirt that would otherwise hang in slightly full folds—the fullness of course more pronounced in back and sides than in front.

But not all the new frocks are draped. Indeed drapery, so far, is the exception and it is only because it sounds a new note that the drapery idea is the thing most clearly defined in one's mind, after a study of the new models. Most skirts in soft materials have considerable fullness, but this fullness is very likely to be hed in by some transverse trimming, or, at least, to be dragged down into straight clinging lines.

Occasionally one finds a skirt with smooth fitting upper section and the lower part in a plaited flounce which falls perfectly straight and soft, flaring not at all toward the bottom. For the woman who considers a broken skirt line unbecoming, there are plenty of models with full length plain front panes, or merely full length button trimming. A full length line is more often interrupted at the waist by a girdle or belt than it was a year ago, and often only the full skirt length has the feature, but even this adds height to a figure.

The belted blouse with straight basque figures among the smart frocks, and though it cuts the height when in material contrasting with the skirt or when trimmed around the bottom by contrasting material, it is much less trying when it is continued by the line of the skirt without any definite line or band of separation. Some extremely pretty models on this order are made in various soft materials and are particularly becoming to youthful wearers.

The striped chiffons, radiums, voils and other sheer stuffs make up most attractively and a good deal is done with plain silk and stripe in combination. The primly flowered Jouy silks too are often made up with plain one-tone silk, as are the Jouy marquises and chiffons.

CENTENNIAL ANNIVERSARY OF GERMANY'S GREAT MANUFACTURES

Kings at Krupp Centenary.

BERLIN, April 26.—Today marked the centennial anniversary of the birth of Alfred Krupp who while he was not actual founder of the great Krupp gun works, was the one who gave the works their international character and at the time of his death was Germany's greatest manufacturer. The father of Alfred Krupp was a small blacksmith at Essen. Alfred inherited the family iron forge, employing three men and which had been in operation since 1810 and he at once set about enlarging the business but had no money or powerful friends and his progress was slow. He saw, however, the possibilities of the great exposition to open in London in 1851 and decided to take advantage of it. He had made important discoveries in the casting of large masses of Bessemer steel, which had been an insurmountable task previous to his time. The exhibition he sent to the London exposition fairly astonished the world, being a block weighing forty-five German quintals. It at once established his reputation.

The making of heavy ordnance, which made the name of Krupp famous the world over, was at first not a prominent part of the business. But soon general foundry work and the making of small arms began to take second place at Essen, as heavy steel siege guns and armour plate demanded more and more attention. During the past century Krupp ordnance has roared all over the world. The huge guns with which the Germans poured shells into Paris during the siege were made at Essen. Some of the guns that fired at Dewey's squadron at Manila came from there. All European nations purchased guns there, France alone exception, for since the Franco-Prussian war the Krupps have refused to make guns for France.

As the business grew collateral industries developed and Essen, which had been a tiny village, expanded into a large city. Statistics published for the past year show that the firm employed nearly 70,000 officials, clerks and workmen. The coal and coke consumption for the year amounted to 2,491,406 tons. The number of steam engines in the plant was 569. The firm owns its own enormous electrical workers and gas works and maintains an independent telegraph and telephone system with upwards of 400 stations. The cast steel works alone require 87 miles of railway, 52 locomotives and about 3,000 cars. In the development of its industry the firm has bought its own coal mines, coke ovens, iron mines, steamships and railroads.

Alfred Krupp died in 1887 and was succeeded in command of the works by his son Friedrich A. Krupp. Under the latter's management the works continued to prosper and expand. At the time of his death in 1902 he was by far the richest man in Germany. He left the bulk of his wealth, including the great steel and gun works at Essen, the shipyards at Kiel, the gun and armor works at Madgeburg and the coal and iron mines, to his daughter, Bertha, who in 1906 was married to Herr Von Bohlen und Halback, who has since taken a prominent part in the management of the great concern. Fra Bertha von Bohlen und Halback is popularly called the Empress of Essen—the richest woman in the world—the most powerful.

Was Sick Thirty Years.

BOWIE, Tex.—The remarkable case of Mrs. S. J. Embry who lives near here is attracting attention, on account of her restoration to health after many years of suffering. She tells of it in a letter as follows:

"During the past thirty years I have suffered greatly from nervous troubles and my health was badly run down. Lately I learned of your cod liver and iron tonic, Vinol and began taking it.

"I have used several bottles and improved so fast that I at once recommended it to two friends who were in poor health. My case was complicated but Vinol did wonders for me. Every woman who suffers from nervousness and weakness should take Vinol and recover her health."

It is plain that a remedy that will overcome a chronic rundown condition like this is just what weak and sickly men, women and children everywhere need. If you want to be strong and healthy again, take Vinol, on our positive promise to give back your money if you are not satisfied. Moyer's Pharmacy, Greenville, N. C.

NEWS FORECAST FOR THE COMING WEEK

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 27.—Massachusetts promise to furnish the most interesting political news of the coming week. Presidential preference primaries will be held there to select all delegates to the coming national political convention. The primaries in the Bay state will offer a test of sentiment different from any that has gone before, inasmuch as they will not be complicated with local fights of any kind. They are called for the sole purpose of electing delegates to the national conventions and they will not affect a single hate or county office. They will not even be indicative of sentiment affecting the governorship, or national issues, for that matter, for the State convention is eliminated and the Massachusetts delegates to Chicago and Baltimore will not be governed by even a platform.

The names of Taft, LaFollette and Roosevelt will appear on the Republican ballot in Massachusetts. Both Taft and Roosevelt have visited the state several times during the past two months and it is generally admitted that the race between them will be close. On the Democratic ballot will appear the names of Clark and Wilson, though it is understood that the Massachusetts delegates at Baltimore will vote for Governor Foss on the first ballot. The primary results will determine who is to be second choice of the Massachusetts Democrats.

Both Taft and Roosevelt are fighting for the New Hampshire delegates, who are to be selected by the Republican State convention which will meet Tuesday in Concord.

Pennsylvania Republicans are to meet in State convention at Harrisburg Wednesday to nominate the candidates for Auditor General, State Treasurer and four Congressmen—large and to select twelve delegates to the national convention. Encouraged by their success in the recent primaries the Roosevelt followers are laying plans so that their control of the convention may be unquestioned and also with a view of overthrowing Senator Penrose and completely wrecking his political machine.

Other events on the Republican calendar for the week will include the State convention in Tennessee and the state convention in West Virginia. Tennessee is claimed by the Taft managers, while Roosevelt seems to have the lead in West Virginia.

The Democrats will be even busier during the week than the Republicans. In addition to the presidential preference primaries in Massachusetts, there will be similar primaries for the Democrats in Georgia and Florida and state conventions in Colorado and Connecticut and Delaware.

The contest in the Florida primaries will be confined to Woodrow Wilson and Oscar W. Underwood and the situation is believed to be virtually the same in Georgia. Connecticut Democrats are expected to instruct for Governor Simeon E. Baldwin, while Harmon, Wilton and Clark will fight it out in Colorado. If Delaware instructs it will probably be for Wilson.

Events of the week outside the field of politics will include President W. H. Taft's visit to Georgia, the celebration of the Louisiana centennial at New Orleans, the great parade of woman suffragists in New York, the unveiling of a statue of Archbishop Carroll at Georgetown University, and the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, which is to assemble in Minneapolis Wednesday.

THE HONEY BEE IS AN HONEST WORKER.

By Arthur Brisbane

and reprinted with his permission.

An individual who has studied bees trying to find out facts about them rather than to build fanciful yarns, gives us the interesting information that a honey bee makes in one day about twenty trips to and from the hive and that he visits in all probably twelve thousand different flowers.

It is a pleasure to watch an earnest bee-traveling back and forth buzzing, feeling his importance, enjoying himself, accumulating the honey that will carry him and others in the hive through the winter.

Everybody admits that the bee is a good worker and that he works hard enough.

But the bee does all his work in about four hours.

During the rest of the time he sits about, polishes up his legs and his body and reflects with satisfaction upon what a fine thing it is to be a hard working bee.

He enjoys the sunlight, he enjoys all the activities and all the co-operation to the hive.

Kindly notice, dear reader, that he is well able to get all the honey that he and the other bees and the young bees and even the drones need by working four hours a day.

Why is he able to do this gentle reader?

He is able to do it because he and his fellow bees all working together get all the honey that labor brings back to the hive.

They haven't got among the bees any collection of polite gentlemen in silk hats and large fat automobiles standing at the edge of the hive, or running a business office in one corner of the hive and taking for themselves so much out of every load of honey that the bees bring home.

The bees have learned to co-operate, they have learned to work together, they have solved the problem of helping one another.

And they get for themselves all that they produce.

And therefore, dearly beloved, they are able to produce all they need by working four hours a day. They are able to devote twenty hours out of twentyfour to whatever they choose, sleeping, thinking, gossiping, examining the young bees, et cetera.

When men, in proportion to their intelligence, shall be as far advanced as are the honey bees now you will have a condition in the human hive that you ought to have.

You will have the mass of workers all educated and intelligent, which they are not now.

You will have selfishness, meanness and self-seeking eliminated. You will have all working for all.

Civilized man in the future will be as far above his present state in contentment, happiness and true brotherhood as the organized honey bee in his hive is far above the isolated individual bee that can be found in Iceland.

Here and there in Iceland you will find scattered samples of the bee that gathers honey. But it is cold in Iceland, the flowers are few. The bees are selfish and disorganized. They do not gather in hives or work together. They work hard all day long for very little, and the only thing about them that suggests the intelligent honey bee is the sting.

Human beings working in our civilization today are like the isolated honey bee in Iceland. The human bees work separated, isolated, each one fighting the others. And about each of us the sting, the hatred and the bitterness of competition is the most conspicuous thing.

The day is coming when men will be organized as well as the bees are organized, but in a very different way.

They will not live in hives or lose their individuality. But they will work together, a few hours of labor for those that want to work, aided by machinery, will supply plenty for all.

The vile mechanical drudgery that makes life dull will be replaced by intellectual activity.

For every man now working twelve or fourteen hours a day or ten hours painfully we shall have men working the same number of hours intellectually and joyfully.

We shall have those less addicted to material labor engaged in the arts and the higher sciences.

The idle class that takes part of the honey that the workers produce will have disappeared.

The average of intelligence in that day to come will be far above the highest intelligence of today.

And that will be civilization's beginning.

Meanwhile, please notice that bees, with their slight intelligence, with no machinery but their honey gathering apparatus and their marvelous mathematical capacity for fixing their cells and their instinct of brotherhood, are able to do for themselves, with four hours per day, a great deal more than stupid humanity is able to do by working not only the grown men and women, but children themselves throughout all hours of daylight.

On next Saturday, May 14th, a new series of shares will open in The Home Building and Loan Association and the number of shares taken should be large. That date will be the sixth anniversary of the association and in a few months its first series of shares will mature. Then something like $46,000 in cash and cancelled mortgages will be distributed among the holders of these first series shares. This will be followed by the maturing every six months of another successive series. So the time is now near when the benefit of the association will be shown in other ways than by helping people to own their homes and lending them money. There is not a wage earner, man or boy, in the community but who should take some shares in the association, even if only one or two, for besides being a good investment there is nothing that better fosters the saving habit.

According to figures given out by the Charlotte Observer, more than two-thirds of the people of that city occupy houses erected through the agency of building and loan associations. The Home Building and Loan Association of Greenville, being only six years old, has not done that much for Greenville, yet, but is striking out in that direction. In these years it has made loans for home building approximating $80,000 and its sphere of beneficence will increase as it grows older. There are people here who own homes and others who have money saved, who never would have possessed either but for the assistance of the association.

As badly divided as is the Republican household, it looks like the Democrats should find it easy to come in control of government affairs at the next election.

The county that gets good roads must do something to get them. The good roads will not come without an effort in that direction.

The Pension Steal

Herbert Bruce Fuller has an interesting and illuminating article in the May Lippincott's on that greatest of all steals from the public treasury, the pension system. The pension figures are staggering and yet the democratic house has passed a bill that would add many more millions annually to the already too large amount. This is the one great blunder that the democrats have made. It is a blunder for two reasons, first because it is not right, and second, because they voted for it as an act of policy, in the hope of catching northern votes. It is best to stick to the right and it is the best policy to stick to principle. That the democrats did not do in this matter.

While one will not begrudge a liberal pension to any veteran or surviving dependent of a soldier wounded in the service of his country, it seems intolerable that forty-six years after the close of the civil war the enormous sum of $153,682,000 should be spent in a single year for pensions. In 1909 the pension list cost $164,826,287.

Since 1900, says Mr. Fuller, our pension appropriations have been in excess of $100,000,000 annually, and since 1908 in excess of $150,000,000. If the so-called Sherwood bill becomes a law, more than $225,000,000 will be necessary to meet our pension budget for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1913. These figures are the more impressive when we consider the military pension appropriations of various European countries. In 1910 our pension expenditures amounted to $162,631,729.94. For the same year England expended $29,397,268; France expended $31,805,607; the German empire, $40,805,814; Austria, $20,531,668; Hungary, $6,498,737. The total expenditures of these five European nations for that year combined were $129,194,094, or $33,000,000 less than those of the United States alone. For 1911, the survivors of the civil war on the union side drew pensions aggregating $148,231,665, while in the southern states the survivors of the Confederate side drew but $5,780,833. In Virginia the union veterans in that year drew $1,489,553, while the Confederate veterans drew but $450,990. In Louisiana the sum of $1,024,613 was disbursed among union veterans, and but $175,000 among the Confederate veterans. Not the least objectionable feature of our pension system is the fact that from twenty-five or thirty per cent of our pensioners enjoy an annual net income of more than $1,000. In the southern states the pension roll is based primarily upon need. Yet despite the liberality, the extravagance of our general pension system, the sixty-first congress, which adjourned March 4, 1911, enacted 9649 bills granting original or increased pensions by special act.

In 1872 President Garfield, then a member of the house of representatives, said: "We may reasonably expect that the expenditures for pensions will hereafter steadily decrease, unless our legislation should be unaccountably extravagant."

The pension list for 1872 amounted to $30,703,999. In 1912, forty years later, we are devoting $153,682,000, to this item—fives times that amount. Our pension appropriations from 1866 to 1911 have amounted to the staggering total of $4,254,816,147, or almost a billion dollars more than the total expenditures of the government during the years of war. And despite the enormous expenditures the house of representatives has within the past few months passed a general pension bill calling for an additional annual appropriation of $75,000,000, at a conservative estimate. This bill is now pending in the senate.

Our largest single expenditure is for pensions. Twenty-three cents of every dollar spent by the government goes for this purpose. This is a charge of $8.60 against every family in the United States. Is it not time to take some action to protect the treasury of the nation?—Raleigh Times.

Opponents may say what they please as to the effectiveness or non-effectiveness of the prohibition law, but evidences continue to multiply all over the state that conditions are far better than when we had no prohibition law. And this condition will continue to improve as the law is more rigidly enforced. Of course there are instances here and there of flagrant violations, but they will continue to grow less. Public sentiment grows stronger and stronger for the enforcement of the law.

Social and Personal

Some Day

I know not when the day shall be,
I know not when our eyes may meet;
What welcome you may give to me,
Or will your words be sad or sweet.
It may not be till years have passed,
Till eyes are dim and tresses gray;
The World is wide, but, love, at last,
Our hands, our hearts must meet some day.

I know not, are you far or near,
Or are you dead or do you live;
I know not who the blame should bear,
Or who should plead or who forgive,
But when we meet, some day, some day,
Eyes clearer grown the truth may see,
And every cloud shall roll away
That darkens, love, twixt you and me.

—Hugh Conway.

The cotton buying season is practically over.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Methodist church will meet with Mrs. Charles Laughinghouse Monday afternoon at 3:30.

Strawberries Already.

Mr. W. L. Hall says he was ahead of the game on strawberries this season as he commenced picking them from his patch a week ago. He says he sees no reason why the berries cannot be raised as early here as further south.

Big Sale.

There was a regular rush at Gorn-to's today to take advantage of the fire sale of shoes. At the low prices there is no reason everybody needing them cannot get supplied with shoes.

It is Fine Property.

Somebody is going to miss an opportunity in purchasing some of the property on Dickinson avenue which Mr. W. H. Allen is offering for sale. We learn that a number of persons are considering it. The property is certainly desirable.

Improving Church.

The work of remodeling the choir gallery of Memorial Baptist church in readiness for the pipe organ has begun. In addition to the change in the gallery, the baptismal pool will be moved to one side of the pulpit where it will be in better view of the congregation. The changes will add much to the interior appearance of the church. The organ builders advise that the pipe organ will be ready for shipment by the middle of May and installation completed by the first Sunday in June.

Send Them in.

Those who have promised to help The Reflector man in the News and Observer automobile contest will find the next few days a good time to put in their subscriptions. There is another bonus vote period on which will close May 2nd and in that time is a good opportunity to pile up votes for him.

REAL ESTATE! REAL ESTATE!

A Bargain Today--A Fortune Tomorrow!

A GREENVILLE KLONDIK

"Opportunity," so it is said, "knocks at every man's door once in a life time."

There are men in Greenville today, who can buy many broad acres because they heeded the knock of cheap real estate a few years ago. They had foresight enough to buy where others were afraid. The present price of all real estate seems high; it looked that same way ten years ago. You have only ten years longer to learn that the opportunities in real estate at present prices mean a fortune to you. In the past, right now, and in the future, some one has sung and will continue to sing the old tune about "at such and such a time I could have bought it for one-fourth its present value."

Real estate itself must have an opportunity. The broad acres of a swamp miles away from the steam whistle and thoroughfares of life, have but poor show to advance in valuation. Purchase real estate that stands along the highway of travel, or where men come and go, and there is hardly anything under the sun to hold the price down. A piece of good property in a live spot, is like a rolling snow-ball—the oftener it changes hands, the bigger it gets. Have you never noted the fact that the more readily a piece of property can be sold the more valuable it is? And it is always worth more in ready cash in the hands of the last holder than in the first.

Right here in Greenville, there is some of this class of real estate, some that has not got to wait for Greenville to grow. It matters not what you pay for it, it is always worth just a little more than you gave. Old Father Time is a great auctioneer and while he takes the bid slow, he never goes backward.

I have right in the heart of the town, on Dickinson avenue, an opportunity that knocked at my door and I bought it. This property lies within a very short distance of the Norfolk Southern depot, and only about two blocks from Five Points. It is far too good a parcel of land to stand undeveloped. It should today be speaking for the material improvement of the town and remunerating some investor with dividends. I have not the money to hold or improve it. On the other hand, I am not forced

New N. C. Industries.

For the week ending April 24, the Chattanooga Tradesman reports the following new North Carolina industries:
Ahoskie (R. D. Union)—$125,000 development company.
Asheville—$25,000 construction company.
Brevard—Amusement company.
Concord—$10,000 telephone company.
Charlotte—$25,000 brick plant.
Ellerbe—$20,000 bank.
High Point—$50,000 veneer and panel company; $50,000 amusement company.
Henderson—$50,000 cotton fibre and mattress company.
Kittrell—$5,000 bank.
Kinston—$25,000 railroad company.
Mebane—$25,000 drug company.
Norlina—$50,000 bank.
Slma—$10,000 development company.
Southport—$100,000 lumber company.

ed to sell it. But it is entirely too good to remain in my hands, undeveloped. There are people in Greenville and Pitt county, who need it, and need it badly. I will not stand in the way of progress and yet I cannot give it away. The property is known as the John Corey land and runs along nearly the entire length of the new street recently opened from Dickinson avenue, with its paved street and side-walks. I will take pleasure in showing it to anyone.

If money is scarce with you, I will sell for one-fourth cash and the balance on easy terms. Somebody will buy it; it may be you or your neighbor. If it be your neighbor, no doubt, in a few years, you will be telling your children, "Why, I could have bought that property in 1912 for one-third what it is worth today."

This offer will not last long. It is too good to go a begging.

New York News

NEW YORK, April 27.—The sinking of the Titanic and the loss of many hundreds of precious lives resulting from it have cast a deep gloom over the city and it will probably be some time before the people will recover completely from the shock. It is true, business goes on without interruption and even the places of amusement are frequented as ever, but the sympathies of the people are deeply stirred, nevertheless. The wave of hysteria which always follows in the wake of a great calamity has not yet subsided and the mental equilibrium of the masses is not yet completely restored. Time will gradually subdue the nervous strain from which everyone seems to be suffering and things will return to their normal condition, but at present the nervous excitement is still great and manifests itself in hysterical efforts, well meant, but utterly impracticable and abortive.

The wreck of the giant liner, the scene on board as described so graphically by some of the survivors, the heroism displayed by many of the men in the moments of supreme danger still form an inexhaustible topic of discussion at the fireside, in the offices, shops, in fact, in all public places. The soul-stirring tragedy of the sea has plunged the whole nation in grief and aroused even among the most callous and indifferent the best thoughts and deepest sympathies they are capable of. The generous manner in which rich and poor alike are contributing to the fund for the relief of those survivors of the catastrophe who lost in the wreck all but their lives, shows how deeply the masses have been stirred. What can be done to prevent a repetition of such a disaster in the future is not quite clear, but it is expected that the future will eventually bring some solution to the problem.

The new lighthouse which the government had built on Richmond Heights, Staten Island, to guide ships entering New York harbor through Ambrose channel, has been placed in commission and, every night its fixed white ray of 300,000 candle power will blaze out to the sea, visible, in fair weather, for thirty-five miles. As the lighthouse occupies one of the most commanding positions on the crests of the hills, it will be clearly seen in daytime for a great distance. The tower, which is of red brick and rests on a base of white limestone, rises to a height of 100 feet from the ground thus placing the light 231 feet above mean low water. The light is furnished by oil vapor and is condensed by a powerful lens.

The new lighthouse stands about 18 miles north of the Ambrose Lightship yet the light from the shore can be seen farther out than that of the light ship. Owing to the fact that the new light is fixed, it will be easily distinguished at sea from the famous light of the Highlands of Navesink, which flashes out its great white ray at intervals of several seconds.

The recent death under intensely dramatic circumstances, of a prosperous Italian merchant in this city clearly shows that the Black Hand is still active and as dangerous as ever. About one month ago, Filippo Lemano, a wealthy grocer, received a Black Hand letter couched in the usual terms and demanding from him a sum of $1,000. Lemano paid no attention to the letter and did not even notify the police authorities. Two weeks later he received a second letter from the Black Hand, in which he was threatened with death should he fail to leave $1,000 in a tin receptacle on the steps of his store at a certain time. Lemano considered the matter as a hoax and in a spirit of fun arranged a frowly dinner for a few of his friends for the evening fixed by the Black Hand for the delivery of the money.

It was after eight o'clock and Lemano and his friends were at the supper table, when Lemano was called down to the store. When he entered the store, anticipating no danger, he was attacked by several men who had been waiting for him. Several shots were fired at him and when his wife hastened downstairs she stumbled over the body of her husband. Two men were at the moment running out of the store. Lemano died a few moments later and his murderers escaped, leaving no clue of their identity.

The automatic alarm in the central office of the Holmes' Electric Protective Company rang the other evening and the indicator showed that the alarm came from a jewelry store on Grand Street. The only man available at the time to be sent to investigate was a young man of slight build and undersized. Armed only with an electric torch he went to the building whence the alarm came, let himself in with a pass key and ascended the stairs so quietly that the two burglars who were still busy trying to break into the jeweler's shop were completely surprised when he turned his electric torch on them and commanded "hands up." The burglars obeyed and, having vainly tried to bribe their captor, marched in front of him to the office of the Protective Company. Later they were turned over to the police.
