President Taft Lied Wilfully According to Theo. Roosevelt

In Baltimore Speech Chief Executive Knew that He Was Telling An Untrue ... "Annanias Member"

HOT-SHOT REPLY FROM THE MIGHTY AFRICAN HUNTER

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., May 5.—In a statement issued tonight by Colonel Roosevelt in reply to President Taft's speech in Baltimore last night, the Colonel asserts that Mr. Taft knew he was making an untrue statement when he said that the former president expressed the opinion that the anti-trust law ought to be repealed. He also again contradicts the President in regard to the "harvester trust" case, saying that at a cabinet meeting and in private conversation with him, Mr. Taft "repeatedly and emphatically approved the course actually taken."

Colonel Roosevelt's statement follows:
"With Mr. Taft's personal opinion about me I have no concern beyond pointing out the sufficiently obvious fact that he never discovered that I was dangerous to the people until I had been obliged to come to the conclusion that he was useless to the people. But his specific statements as to the trusts, the crookedness in selecting delegates and the Lorimer incident I shall once again answer, although I have already answered them specifically in Massachusetts and although after Mr. Taft's repetition of them now is incompatible with sincerity of purpose or conviction on his part."

"Mr. Taft knew all the facts about the Harvester trust decision and he was present at a cabinet meeting where they were all discussed and at that meeting and also in private conversation with me, he repeatedly and emphatically approved the course actually taken just as he emphatically approved the course taken in regards the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company. He was absent from the country when Mr. Smith was reporting to me and consulting with Mr. Bonaparte but after his return in January, the matter came up again and it appeared that Mr. Bonaparte had not understood that my judgment was that the course advocated by Mr. Smith was the proper one to follow."

"Accordingly the matter was gone over at length in the cabinet meeting. Mr. Bonaparte was the only member who was inclined to believe that the suits should be continued without regard to Mr. Smith's investigation. Mr. Taft emphatically took the opposite ground and it is utterly impossible that he should now have forgotten that he did this, as a member of my cabinet, take the opposite ground."

New Series in B. & L. Opened Saturday

The new series opened Saturday in The Home Building and Loan Association was the largest intermediate series since the association was organized six years ago. Secretary White says he wrote some over five hundred shares in this series and yet has a few more applications in hand to be written. This gives an idea of what the association is doing and the estimation the people of the community place upon it. It is doing a great work.

William J. Bryan Pays Washington a Visit

WASHINGTON, May 4.—William Jennings Bryan, just returning from the South, visited the capitol today, conferred with Speaker Champ Clark and with other Democratic leaders and was called "Satan" by Former Speaker Cannon.

Mr. Bryan, disclaiming that he was on any political mission announced that he had discussed with Democratic leaders the bill to provide for direct election of United States senators which has been in conference since last summer.

"Mr. Bryan prefers the direct election bills passed by the house," said Representative Rucker of Missouri, in charge of the bill in the house, "but since we cannot have that bill on account of the persistent opposition in the senate, Mr. Bryan is willing, like the rest of us, to accept the situation and take the senate amendment."

The senate amendment provides that the federal government shall have the supervision of the time, manner and place of holding senatorial elections in the various states. House conferees agreed to accept it after sixteen conferences. Mr. Rucker will present the conference report in the house and ask its adoption next week. While Mr. Bryan was conferring in the lobby, Former Speaker Cannon entered, unaware of the Nebraskan's presence. He had just referred to Mr. Bryan in remarks on the floor and as the latter rose to greet him, the former speaker shook his hand and exclaimed: "Well well, talk about Satan and he shows up."

ALLEGED FENCE-CUTTERS MUST FACE THE LAW

MEN AND NOT HORSES AND BUGGIES ARE CAUGHT BY OFFICERS THIS TIME

The successful crusade the sheriff is waging against the destroyers of the stock law fence, took another aspect last Saturday night.

Men who are on the look out for such malefactors as have already done a great deal of damage to the fence in question came upon some of these people busy at their self appointed job. Everything at least tends to show that the men arrested and brought to Greenville Saturday night were engaged in the destruction of the stock law fence.

The alleged cutters, Erastus Cannon and his son were quietly apprehended and brought to town, where they were later released under bond. Their case was to have been heard this morning but for some reason or another it was continued over to next week.

Kitchin Delivers Educational Address

Governor of State Speaks at Close of School in Granville. Appealed for Higher and Richer Life Through Better School Organizations.

OXFORD, May 5.—Saturday afternoon Governor Kitchin delivered an educational address at the close of the Stovall High School in Granville county. This is the second address of this nature that he has delivered in the county this spring and thousands of people who have heard these magnificent appeals for a higher and richer life expressed their determination to enter more fully into the movement for better schools in their communities. Life in the county is on a higher plane because of these visits of Governor Kitchin.

Four years ago this school district voted a special tax and since that time the school has made a steady progress. It became necessary to add the third teacher for the past year and the attendance shows a marked increase. H. W. Baker, principal and Miss Sallie Younger and Mrs. J. J. Davis, assistants, have done excellent work which is appreciated by the whole community.

South Carolina Club Women.
ABBEVILLE, S. C., May 6.—Abbeville extended a cordial welcome today to the many visitors who arrived from all parts of the state to attend the annual convention of the South Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs which convenes in this city. The graded school closes next Friday, May 10th.

Buncombe County For Roosevelt

A Great Deal of Discussing Took Place at the County Convention Over Right of Minority to Select Own Delegates. Taft Men Protest.

ASHEVILLE, May 4.—There was considerable argument in the Republican county convention here today over the right of the minority to select own delegates to the state and congressional conventions and Taft supporters gave notice of protest on that point. Roosevelt received 33 5-6 of 35 votes notwithstanding two Taft men were named to vote his strength. The minority insisted that it should name these men. Thomas Settle was evidently the choice but the convention vociferously declined to accede.

Discussion between Richmond Pearson, Thomas Settle and others became heated. Settle urged delegates to go unstructured. He was laughed at and finally had trouble getting hearing as did F. W. Thomas.

Truck in Fine Condition.

WILMINGTON.—Shipments of lettuce continue to go forward from this county, three cars being shipped from Wilmington alone on one day. While there has been some break in the prices and the returns are satisfactory and the truckers are well pleased over the results of the crop. Roosevelt Seems to Get 'Em All.
LEXINGTON.—Bladen county instructs its six votes for Roosevelt; Duplin, its 12 votes; Buncombe, 33 5-6 of its total of 35 votes; Richmond, 2 74-100 out of its total of four votes; and Rowan, its 18 votes.

Biggest Suffragette Parade Yet

Successfully "Pulled Off" in New York

NEW YORK, May 4.—The promise of the woman suffrage leaders to eclipse all previous demonstrations for their cause was fulfilled this afternoon when more than 9000 women and 900 men paraded for three miles up Fifth avenue under suffrage banners.

Hundreds of thousands of persons looked on from windows and balconies in hotels and business places along the avenue and the sidewalks were so crowded for the entire length of the route that the mounted police were unable to keep the spectators within bounds. There was no disorder however.

Women, men, and children were in the ranks. Almost every profession and industry in which women are engaged, from educational leadership to laundry work, was represented by a delegation under appropriate banners. A squad of mounted police led the parade, but riding with this equestrian show there were nearly a hundred women on horseback, most of them riding astride. The parade was under the command of Mrs. Parrot Stanton Blache, president of the Women's Political Union.

A majority of the paraders wore "30-cent" hats of yellow straw and some effort was made to preserve uniformity in simple dress of white and black.

The parade concluded with a meeting at Carnegie Hall at which Mrs. Blache presided and the Rev. Dr. Howard Anna Shaw, national president of the suffrage party, and the Rev. Anna Garlin Spencer were the speakers.

Leut.-Governor Newland Will Deliver Address at Kinston.

KINSTON.—Governor Kitchin will not make the address at the exercises attendant upon the laying of the cornerstone of the state school for the feeble-minded here Monday, as was expected. The governor had accepted an invitation to deliver the memorial day address here next Friday and it was considered that it would be inadvisable for him to make two visits to Kinston in the same week. Lieutenant-Governor Newland will be the principal speaker on the program.

ROOSEVELT LEADS PRESIDENT IN VERY CLOSE CONTEST

DALLAS, Tex., May 4.—Returns received up until 9 o'clock tonight of the precinct conventions held throughout Texas today show Governor Woodrow Wilson leading by a large majority over Clark and Harmon in the democratic contest and in the Republican race Colonel Roosevelt and President Taft are running close, with the former president slightly in the lead.

Woodrow Wilson's long lead over Champ Clark and Judson Harmon in today's presidential preference primaries was increased tonight by further returns from the state at large, but they did not serve to clarify the Republican situation which, with the returns at hand, show Roosevelt and Taft running neck and neck. Out of about one-half of the state reported to midnight with reference to the Democratic situation Wilson followers are assured of control of a sufficient number of county conventions to give the New Jersey governor 253 votes in the state convention. Out of a total of 620 Harmon has 50 and Clark only 18.

In the Republican contest President Taft is certain of 33 votes in the state convention and Colonel Roosevelt 17. The total vote in the Republican state convention is 252. In many counties the republicans did not hold precinct meetings and in others no instructions were given the delegates elected to the county meetings. The result as between Taft and Roosevelt is, therefore undetermined.

Only a few contests have thus far developed within the democratic party but many are reported as to the republicans.

UNFAIR TO COMMENCEMENT SPEAKERS.

This is the time of year when school commencements are taking place on every hand, and perhaps it is not out of place to a word in behalf of the men who are the speakers on such occasions. Of course commencements are primarily for the schools in which they occur and the public is expected to have prominent part in the program. Yet it is the custom to invite some prominent speaker to come and make an address and it is the disadvantage at which these speakers are often placed that we are talking about. It is not an unusual thing for such speaker to have to follow a very long program that has already tired the audience. We have known instances in which these commencement speakers did not begin until ten or half past ten o'clock at night and when a two hour's program had already preceded it the audience was not in condition to really enjoy the speech, even though it was ever so good. When a man expends the time and trouble to prepare a commencement speech and perhaps travels a great distance to meet his appointment and realizes that the people in this enlightened age are expecting something of him, it is very unfair to make him speak under conditions of such disadvantage.

We heard two returning home commencement speakers on the train the other day telling their experiences to each other and one of them said the place assigned him on a program that day was following the reading of eight essays and several musical selections. And that man had left his business and gone a long way to be there. Really when commencement programs are arranged the invited speaker should have an hour in the forenoon, afternoon or evening when there is but little else to detract them. Some schools are thoughtful enough to do this.

AYCOCK'S NOBLE WORDS.

The other day we heard Attorney General T. W. Bickett tell of the last words he ever heard the late Governor Aycock utter. It was on Monday afternoon before Mr. Aycock died Thursday night in Birmingham. Governor Aycock was standing on a corner near the capitol square in Raleigh waiting for a street car going in the direction of his home. General Bickett drew near and they began talking about Governor Aycock's candidacy for the senate and the speech he proposed making in opening his campaign. He said his ambition to be senator was not the salary, as that had no attraction for him. Nor was it that he might gain a stronger hold on the affections of the people of his state, for he already held that to the highest degree. But, he added, "that I might have a larger opportunity for service". With these words the car for which he waited came up and he was gone. In telling this General Bickett said "they were noble words, 'larger opportunity for service,' and truly characteristic of the noble man."

Another instance in the life of Governor Aycock of which General Bickett spoke occurred about three years ago. It was at a big celebration in Middlesex-where speeches were made by several prominent men. Governor Aycock was one of them and made an educational speech. In the course of this speech he said that when he passed away he could ask no higher honor than that there be inscribed on a simple shaft that marked his resting place, "Here lies the Children's Friend". General Bickett added that he hoped when the Aycock monument is erected these words will be on it. Truly Aycock was the children's friend and they will revere his memory. In life he selected his own epitaph.

GIVE YOUR CHILDREN GOOD BOOKS TO READ.

Believe me, you cannot leave your children a better heritage than a deep and abiding love of books and a taste for the best in literature. And you must begin when they are little. Read good books and poems to them and when they get old enough to read for themselves see what they are reading. Aside from the fact that what a child reads has a great effect on his character as an adult, there will come times in the lives of your children when a love and appreciation of good books will brighten hours of loneliness or enforced idleness that would otherwise be dark and gloomy indeed. To weep over the sorrows of little Nell or David Copperfield or laugh at Mr. Micawber or thrill at the exploits of Rob Roy or Ivanhoe or Marmion will prove a panacea for dullness, yes, and grief too, and leave one without any ruffled feelings as such as intercourse with people sometimes gives.

What the Inquiry has Proved

The near completion of the senate inquiry into the Titanic disaster makes timely a measure of what it has accomplished.

It is not yet two weeks since the committee began the taking of testimony immediately after the arrival of the Carpathia with the survivors. In that brief time it has been established with a mass of corroborative detail—

That the captain of the Titanic had received early notice of the presence of ice-fields in his course;

That notwithstanding the warning, the speed of the Titanic was not only reduced but was maintained at 21 knots an hour or more;

That in the apparent belief that the great ship was unsinkable, there was delay in notifying the passengers of their danger after the collision;

That the capacity of the lifeboats was insufficient to accommodate more than half of the passengers and crew and that with an adequate lifesaving equipment everybody might have been saved;

That the wireless facilities on board ship are inadequate to the needs and are operated under conditions of laxity calling for radical reform.

It was further brought out that icebergs constitute a constant menace against which mechanical devices and human vigilance are alike powerless at night and by way of corollary that the northern route is so that extent the more dangerous; that no ship is unsinkable and that commanders must rely in case of accident on the same means of rescue that have been relied on since navigation began, and that the vaunted regulation of the British board of trade governing lifeboats and rafts do not enforce safety.

That these deficiencies of sea-safety are now a matter of public knowledge is due to the prompt an energetic inquiry by the senate into the conditions responsible for the loss of the finest of passenger ships, the vessel that was reputed to say the last word in marine construction. They are the essential things, and whatever opinion may be held of the manner in which the inquiry was conducted and how- ever irrelevant some of the questions asked may have seemed, the substantial nature of the facts established has well justified the purpose of the investigation.—New York World.

The English Ambassador

The departure of Ambassador James Bryce of England from Washington, set afloat the report that his trip was not for pleasure, but that it meant his retirement from the British embassy at Washington. This report was coupled with the further interesting rumor that Ambassador Bryce had not been a failure as an ambassador, but that he would soon be promoted to foreign minister of the British government.

Mr. Bryce has represented Great Britain in Washington since 1907. During all that time he has been the most conspicuous figure in diplomatic circles in Washington. He not only, intentionally or unintentionally, loomed large to the public eye, but he managed to identify himself thoroughly with American customs and American traditions. He began his diplomatic service under most favorable auspices. His book, "The American Commonwealth," is an acknowledged authority on the American government and it is regarded by students as the best book ever written by a European on the American system of government. Moreover, he came to America bearing the reputation of being the foremost of the Englishmen of letters. He augmented that reputation in America by numerous able and scholarly addresses. His retirement, if the report from Washington should prove true, would remove from Washington life one of its most interesting figures.

And yet Mr. Bryce's services as ambassador has not been altogether successful. He failed in two of the most important undertakings of his embassy. The first of these was the establishment of reciprocity between England and the United States, and the second was the agreement to a new arbitration treaty between Great Britain and American. His failure was due to no fault of his, but to political conditions existing in Washington and in Canada.—Montgomery Advertiser.

Auld Lang Syne

It singeth low in every heart,
We hear it each and all,
A song of those who answer not
However we may call;

sweet,
Who walk with us no more.

'Tis hard to take the burden up
When these have laid it down;
They brightened all the joy of life,
They soften every frown,
But, Oh, 'tis good to think of them
When we are tempted sore,
Thanks be to God that such have been
Although they are no more!

More homelike seems the great unknown
Since they have entered there;
To follow them were not so hard,
Wherever they may fare;
They cannot be where God is not,
On any sea or shore;
What are betides, Thy love abides,
Our God for evermore.

—John Charwick.

Greenville Lodge 284 A. F. and A. M. meets tonight.
County commissioners in session today.
This was tax sales day.
The first Monday crowd was larger today than usual.
Tonight at the Training school the junior class will give a reception in honor of the senior class.

Baraca Reception.

The reception given Friday night by the Baraca class of the Methodist Sunday school was a very pleasant occasion. The Baraca spirit is strong in Greenville.

He Hopes to Win.

This week and next will end the big contest that the Raleigh News and Observer is conducting and it will come to a close on the night of the 18th. Five automobiles are the leading prizes in this contest and The Reflector man is a candidate trying to win one of them. He already has a large number of votes, but he wants more and needs more to be sure of winning the coveted prize. Many friends in his home county, in several parts of the state, some in other states and even one in a foreign country, have helped him with their votes, which he fully appreciates and will always remember. But he needs more votes and wants them bad, as there are many aggressive candidates for the prizes. There are yet many friends who have promised him votes before the contest closes, but have not yet sent them in. We hope they will not forget to send them in this week or next, as it will be too late after the contest closes. We earnestly hope every one who reads this will do all possible to help us get votes in the remaining two weeks of the contest.

The appetite flies and the strength falls; also malaria often paves the way for deadly typhoid. But electric bitters kill and cast out the malaria germs from the blood; give you a fine appetite and renew your strength. "After long suffering," wrote Wm. Fretwell, of Lucama, N. MADAME RACHELLE'S ADVICE TO BEAUTY SEEKERS

Mrs. Charles M.—Be careful of your diet. Nothing is so conducive to a muddy skin as rich, over seasoned foods. Drink plenty of water and massage the face with the preparation recommended below.
Miss T. F.—For the long standing cases of dark brown freckles, I recommend a regular nightly massage with a combined face bleach and skin food. The name of a good preparation is Wilson's Freckle Cream, which you may obtain at any good drug store for 50c the jar or direct from the Wilson Freckle Cream Co., Charleston, S. C. This is remarkably effective, guaranteed and I use it regularly with the most satisfactory results.
