Mr. Small Writes On Greenville Post Office

An Explanation of the Seemingly Small Appropriation Towards Government Building

WORK TO BEGIN EARLY DORING NEXT YEAR

The following letter addressed to Mayor F. M. Wooten is self explanatory and no doubt will answer satisfactorily any question that might have arisen on the minds of Greenville citizens.

Washington, D. C., June 4.
Hon. F. M. Wooten, Mayor,
Greenville, N. C.

My Dear Sir: The Sundry Civil Appropriation Bill, which has just been reported to the House and is now under consideration, contains an appropriation of one $1,000 toward the construction of the Greenville post office. In view of the fact that the treasury department submitted an estimate for $29,000 for this purpose and in further view of the natural anxiety of the citizens of Greenville for the early construction of their building, I submit a brief explanation.

I called on the committee on appropriation while this bill was under consideration and also on the supervising architect of the treasury department and obtained the following information.

The supervising architect states that he expects to begin the preparation of drawings and plans for your post office in October or November, next. After the plans are completed, advertisement will be made for bidders on the construction of the building; the contract will probably be let by March, 1913. As the sum of $1,000 will be amply sufficient for the drawings and plans, and as no further money will be required until after the contractor begins the work of construction and as there will be another Sundry Civil Appropriation Bill in the next session, which will probably pass in February and certainly before March 4, it became unnecessary to appropriate any additional sum in this bill. If conditions had been different, I would have insisted upon a larger appropriation. I am writing this for the information of yourself and the citizens of Greenville.

Very respectfully,
JOHN H. SMALL.

If You're a Baseball Fan Read This

IF YOU ARE NOT READ IT ANYWAY

Tomorrow night at eight o'clock in the city hall there will be a meeting of the baseball fans of the town for the purpose of starting something in the way of a team. Amateur baseball promises to have a banner year in eastern North Carolina this season and Greenville cannot afford to stand aside and merely view the passing show. We must get in the game and show 'em that we can "come back" and beat last year's proud record.

We have the park, we have the players and all that is lacking is interest. You can supply that interest by going to the meeting tomorrow night. Don't forget the time and the place—City hall, eight o'clock. Everybody invited and urged to attend.

Big Day for Vets in Rocky Mount

ROCKY MOUNT, June 5.—At Oakland park today more than 100 veterans are the guests of the Bethel Heroes Chapter of the Daughters of Confederacy and a day of unalloyed pleasure has been planned for them. There was in attendance veterans from all parts of the two counties and the long lingering memory of the good time enjoyed at this event, which is an annual one, has played its part in the attracting of the large crowd that enjoyed the days of pleasures. The speaker of the occasion on today was from the ranks of the veterans, Dr. W. D. Morton, pastor of the First Presbyterian church and his address was a terse handling of a subject ever dear to the rapidly fading lines of the gray and the fact that it was a first hand narrative from one who had endured those four years of hardship lent an additional impetus to the address and made it still dearer to the heroes, the honored guests of the day.

He May Be Colored But Oh! You Chickens

'Way down in my heart
I've gotta feeling for you
Feeling for you!
And I'd even go, yes even go
Chicken stealing for you!
—Popular song.

His name may be Willie Greene, or Willie Jones, but his heart is in the right place. And if you should ask Chief Smith, his whole anatomy is in the right place now. For that disturber of the local chicken coop is now in jail.

Chief Smith had a spell these last few days. It may have been spring fever, or it may not. Anyway when he reappeared in the horizon of law and order yesterday he was not long showing he was one of the champs that could "come back". Towards four p. m. he was seen marching court-housewards along Evans street lovingly clutching the wrist of a dusky Romeo, who had wooed and won something like 75 spring backyard fowls in about ten days. This is exactly the average of seven and one half chickens per each consecutive period of twenty four hours. The one and only mistake being made by the "cullod gent" being that the chickens were somebody else's property.

In default of one hundred iron men he will now languish in the feudal dungeons of Baron Dudley until Misto' Abernethy comes around next August and secures him a position in the county highways.

Cooper-Skinner Wed- ding Last Night

FIRST NOTABLE EVENT OF THE SEASON

The Romantic month of June claimed its first Greenville bride last night; when Miss Lottie Skinner, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Harry Skinner was married at her parent's home on Fourth street, to Mr. George Burwell Cooper, of Henderson.

The social prominence of the bride and groom and their extensive connection throughout the state and abroad contributed to make this, the initial wedding of the season, one of the most important ceremonies ever witnessed in this part of the state.

From 8:30 until the time the wedding took place Col. and Mrs. Skinner's lovely home on Fourth street was the mecca of numberless guests and when the ceremony was performed approximately 150 guests had assembled. The home was beautifully decorated with plants and flowers and the illumination throughout the house was magnificent. Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Ferguson received the guests at the door and after taking charge of hats and wraps they were ushered into the main hall where Mrs. R. O. Jeffress and Miss Whedbee introduced them to other guests. In the sitting room, to the left of the hall, the wedding presents were displayed for exhibition. The quantity of gifts and their magnificence begs description, most of them being beautiful cut glass pieces and silverware. Tastefully displayed in tables around the room and brightly illuminated, they filled the entire room.

For the wedding ceremony, the dining room and the parlor, to the right of the hall had been made into one room decorated with profusion of natural flowers and plants. From the hall door and through the room to the altar occupying the farthest end of the room, a lane had been made of ribbons for the bridal party. Behind these ribbons the guests took places shortly before the ceremony. Miss Ada Cherry presided at the piano and as a prelude Miss Arlene Joyner beautifully sang Schubert's Serenade. Before Miss Joyner had concluded the song Messrs. Bennett H. Perry and Lewis Cooper, both from Henderson, and the latter a brother of the groom slowly advanced toward the altar, where Father Gallagher, of New Bern had taken his place. Slowly they came back unfolding a white cloth which they laid on the floor for the bridal party. To the strains of Tanhauser's "Here Comes the Bride" the bridal party entered the room, Messrs. B. H. Perry and Lewis Cooper preceding it. Miss Fannie Cooper, the Maid of Honor accompanied by the bridesmaids Misses Genevieve Cooper, Irma Jeffress and Irma Allen and followed by Mrs. A. M. Moseley, the Dame of Honor. The groom leaning on the arm of the best man, Mr. John D. Cooper, Jr., his brother, followed them and waited at the altar for the bride, who was accompanied by her father.

The wedding ceremony was a Catholic one, this being the religion of the bride, and its simplicity yet the solemnity of the vows exchanged, held the guests to a hush. Perhaps not quite ten minutes were inverted at the altar and the bride and groom knelt down on white satin cushions to receive the benediction from Father Gallagher.

Immediately after the bride and groom and their parents took a position in the lower end of the room and received the earnest congratulations of the guests.

A reception was held immediately after, refreshing punch being served in the hall by Mesdames J. G. Moyer and W. H. Dall, Jr., whilst delicious loaves and cakes were served in the dining room by Misses Margaret and Florence Blow and Myrtle Warren.

The bride and groom left on the one o'clock train for an extended honeymoon tour, many of the guests accompanying them to the station to bid them happiness.

While there were many magnificent dresses exhibited at both wedding and reception it would not be fair to attempt description, for should we try it, being mere men, we would not

Taft Wants Trust Elihu for Chairman

MEANS HE WILL FIGHT TEDDY IN EVERY POINT

WASHINGTON, June 5.—President Taft's choice for permanent chairman of the Republican national convention is Senator Root, of New York, already selected by the Republican national committee as the temporary chairman of that convention. In spite of the opposition to Senator Root as temporary presiding officer of the convention, Mr. Taft today decided that Mr. Root also should receive his support for the permanent chairmanship.

The news that the president had reached this decision was taken tonight in Washington as a further indication that the president and his friends intend to fight Mr. Roosevelt at every point and was said also to show that the votes necessary to insure the selection of Mr. Root in spite of determined opposition and make permanent the temporary organization of the convention. The information that the president would like to see Mr. Root made permanent chairman followed closely the departure of his secretaries, Hillie, for Chicago. Mr. Hillie will have charge of the president's interests before the national committee and the convention.

State Convention at Raleigh

CLANS GATHERED AT STATE CAPITAL

(Special to Reflector)

In caucus of first congressional district, preceding assembling of convention, R. R. Cotten was made chairman of caucus and S. J. Everett, secretary. Caucus named first district members of state executive committee, E. F. Aydlett, Pasquotank; W. G. Lamb, Martin; L. W. Tucker, Pitt; S. C. Vann, Chowan; L. L. Smith, Gates; E. A. Daniels, Beaufort.

District officers of convention as follows: Committee credentials, T. W. Costen, Gates. Committee organization: Albion Dunn, Pitt; vice president, W. M. Rodman, Chowan; assistant secretary, D. J. Whichard, Pitt. Committee resolutions: R. S. Neal, Beaufort.

Ex-Gov. Jarvis was recommended one of delegates at large to national convention.

RALEIGH, N. C., June 6.—Raleigh was ablaze last night with both electricity and oratory. Fayetteville street was illuminated from end to end in honor of the thousands of people here from all sections of the state to attend the Democratic state convention. It looked like old times for the Democratic forces to come back to the capital city, after going elsewhere for several years to hold conventions. The splendid auditorium the city has builded and increased hotel facilities are responsible for this "coming back," for Raleigh realized that to get large gatherings and hold them, there must be ample accommodations for them. It was also a reminder of former days to see the large crowds caucusing around the lobby of the noted Yarroworth hotel, the place where more political plans have been laid and worked out than any other one spot in the state.

Raleigh's newest hotel, recently completed and just opened the first of the month, is the Bland. That is a Pitt county name, of course, and is in honor of the Pitt countain, Mr. T. L. Bland, who is the proprietor. And "Lee" looks unusually proud in charge of such a magnificent hotel. Elegantly equipped and furnished throughout, modern in plan and structure, it is truly the gem of hotels at the capital and springs at a single bound into great popularity. Quite naturally the delegates from Pitt county made at once for the Bland for their headquarters.

As to oratory, there was plenty of that, and then some, going on last night. Two meetings were held in the interest of candidates for the presidential nomination, both wanting to capture the delegates from North Carolina to the national convention in Baltimore. One of these, in the interest of Woodrow Wilson, was held in the court house where the host of admirers of New Jersey's governor gathered and gave expression to their feeling for him. Another meeting in the interest of Oscar Underwood was held in the auditorium, where a great crowd assembled to hear Congressman Heflin, of Alabama, speak in advocacy of the South ern candidate for the nomination. He is a gifted orator and fluent speaker and the crowd gave expression to its pleasure in frequent bursts of applause.

All this morning caucuses were held of the delegates from the various districts and counties in readiness for the meeting of the state convention at noon.

The candidates seeking nomination for the various state offices and their friends, have been very active among the delegates. Craig, for governor, Grimes for secretary of state, Lacy for treasurer, Wood for auditor, Joyner for superintendent of education, Shipman for commissioner of labor and printing and Graham for commissioner of agriculture, have no opposition and will each likely be nominated by acclamation. About the only contests in the convention will be for corporation commissioners, lieutenant governor and delegates to the national convention.

UNDEMOCRATIC USAGES OF THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY.

Now, many of the evils of the convention system are inherent and will last as long as this method of making nominations is retained, but other results from rules and practices of the conventions that could and should be abolished. Such rules, by clogging the machinery of the conventions and interfering with its freedom of action, increase the power and the opportunity of the bosses to manipulate the delegates and by defeating the will of the majority, contribute much to the popular distrust of all delegate bodies.

Among such rules the most conspicuously bad are the "unit rule" and the "two-thirds rule", rules still retained in the Democratic conventions though long since discarded by the Republican party. The unit rule which requires the delegates from a state to cast the entire vote of the state as a unit, had its origin in the days when a state might be represented in the national convention by a number of delegates largely in excess of the number of votes to which the state was entitled. Thus in 1835 the state convention of Maryland, not caring to discriminate between its members, elected them all as delegates to the second national Democratic convention, which was to be held in Baltimore, giving that state a delegation of 181. Of the 620 delegates present in that convention 422 were from four near-by states. Obviously in such a body it would be unfair to allow a per capita vote to dictate the policies of the party, so a resolution was adopted that the vote was to be taken by states and that each state was to have as many votes as it had votes in the Electoral College. In this way Maryland was deprived of the advantage of her great numbers, while the fifteen votes from Tennessee, in the absence of an elected delegate, were cast by a Mr. Rucker, a private citizen of that state who happened to be visiting in Baltimore at the time.

TWO POSSIBLE COURSES FOR THE REPUBLICAN PARTY.

It is plain, then, that there were two curses open to the Republican party this year and very small chance for compromise. One course was to renominate Taft, stand by the methods of his campaign managers, submit to the control of the state bosses and machines, glorify the president and his record in a platform written by Mr. Barnes of Albany, bluff the affair through until November and lose every state in the Union to the Democrats on election day. For under these circumstances it is quite safe to predict that Mr. Taft could not have gained a single electoral vote (unless by Mormon favor he could have carried Utah). The other course was not an agreeable one to conspicuous party leaders, because it meant the smashing of machines, the reorganization of the party and the dispossession of many politicians who thought themselves firmly entrenched.

The second course would let the party have its own way and frankly exhibit its progressive convictions. This meant the repudiation of Taft's tariff record and of his kaleidoscopic attitudes and policies in the matter of dealing with trusts and corporations. And it meant in the spirit of government and administration even more than a reversal of policies. It is not easy for a party to go before the country and say: "We have been in power and have made a sad mess of things, but we propose to do differently and we ask, therefore, to be given another chance." Yet this is not quite the situation as it shapes itself. A closer analysis shows that there have been two elements struggling for the use of the Republican party's name and emblem. Mr. Taft was supposed to belong to the progressive element; but as soon as he was elected he turned about and went over to the reactionaries. Since then, the two elements have become much more sharply divided. The progressives have declined to make any entangling alliances or compromises with the other wing. Taft, on his part, assumed openly to read out of the party all of the progressive leaders, though many of them had been far more conspicuous Republicans than he had ever been. He has compelled a fight and he will be eliminated.

WITH OTHER EDITORS

Taft May be the Bolter.

Heretofore the prediction has been that Roosevelt would bolt the Chicago convention, but now comes Washington chat to the effect that it is Taft who may do the bolting. The result of the delegate getting contest is extremely close, with the strong probability that Roosevelt will control the national convention. Evidently, Taft himself is not certain of his own strength, but it seems that he is desperately determined to beat Roosevelt at all hazards.

It is said that the president is perfectly desperate and is planning bold strokes for the great nomination event at Chicago. It has been stated that he had decided to have William Barnes, Jr., the New York state boss, to be the leader of the Taft forces at the convention. Now it is said that it has been so arranged that the proxy of a National committeeman from the South will be given to Barnes so he can get on the national committee and do heavy work for Taft.

There are some that hint that this will be done to secure the solid South for Taft, but we do not see how that could be done without buying up Roosevelt's Southern delegates.

It is believed in Washington that Taft's real purpose now is to keep the fight up and make it so bitter that it will solidify his support and enable him to withdraw from the convention if it goes against him. He is telegraphing to his workers and friends to stick to him to the last ditch and effect no compromise and give no advantage to any Roosevelt man. He is making a specially strong fight to hold his own in Ohio and he refuses stoutly to make any concession there.

To show how men are ever ready to desert a losing candidate, it is stated that several Republican senators have notified the President that they do not agree with him in his vigorous methods to get as much of the votes of his state as he can. They base their action on the contention that the president should be willing to compromise for the good of the party. We do not see how any compromise with third termism will do the Republican party any good.

The Ohio state convention will be held next Tuesday and it is believed that Roosevelt's men will elect all the delegates at large to the Chicago convention. Taft is claiming them and from some sources there was a suggestion to compromise by dividing the delegates equally. Taft refuses, and Roosevelt also says he would not hear to it. The next lively fight, therefore, will be in the Ohio state convention next Tuesday, and the action there will largely determine the chance for Taft at Chicago.

At present it is not believed he has any more chance, and that he is getting his ducks in a row to bolt if Roosevelt is nominated at Chicago.—Wilmington Star.

Social and Personal

To The Girl Graduates

Little lass of fairest fancies,
Ere the joy of youth has gone,
Thrilled by girlhood's nescromancies;
At the threshold of the dawn,
Many now, as life is starting,
Will advise you thus and so,
Pointed out to you, at parting,
Many roads that thus should go.

Heed them all, yet heed them merely;

There's another knows you best—
Conscience will advise you clearly—
Let her work outweigh the rest;
Standing at the gate of morning,
Where the sunlight's falling clear,
Hear her gently, kindly warning,
Let her linger always near.

Ne'er a sermon, long and weary,
Contience preaches—'tis her way,
In a "still, small voice," cheery,
Just a word or two to say.
Listen when she speaks intently,
She but warns you when she should,
Whispering to you softly, gently—
"Little girl, be good—be good."

Skies, today, are blue above you,
May they always so appear;
God and all his people love you,
And will always love you, dear,
If you e'er heed the warning,
And obey it as you should—
Enter then the fate of morning,
Ah, but little girl—be good.

CARDUI WORKED LIKE A CHARM

After Operation Failed to Help, Cardui Worked Like a Charm.

Jonesville, S. C.—"I suffered with womanly trouble," writes Mrs. J. E. Kendrick in a letter from this place, "and at times, I could not bear to stand on my feet. The doctor said I would never be any better, and that I would have to have an operation, or I would have a cancer.

I went to the hospital, and they operated on me, but I got no better. They said medicines would do me no good, and I thought I would have to die.

At last I tried Cardui, and began to improve, so I continued using it. Now, I am well, and can do my own work. I don't feel any pains.

Cardui worked like a charm."

There must be merit in this purely vegetable, tonic remedy, for women—Cardui—for it has been in successful use for more than 50 years, for the treatment of womanly weakness and disease.

Please try it, for your troubles.
