Fighting Colonel Teddy Tells all About The New Party's Policy

Party's Platform Will be a Contract With The People
 BOTH OLD PARTIES OPPOSED

Teddy Speaks of the Helplessness of the Two Other Parties. The Fitness and Right of the People to Rule

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—Colonel Roosevelt's address to the national Progressive convention here today strikes a keynote for his followers and supporters in the new party.

It lays down the plan of battle to be waged by the national Progressive party. He discusses those principles under twelve subdivisions, namely, The Helplessness of the Old Parties; The Right of the People to Rule; the Courts and the People; Constructive Control of the Trusts; Rights of the Wage Worker; The Farmer; The Tariff; The High Cost of Living; Currency; Conservation; Alaska and International Affairs.

The two old parties, he said, are husks, with no real soul within either, divided on artificial lines, boss ridden and privilege controlled, each a jumble of incongruous elements and neither daring to speak out wisely and fearlessly what should be said on the vital issues of the day.

As opposed to this incongruity and insincerity of action he asserted that the national Progressives platform will be a contract with the people with definite and concrete provisions to be carried out if the people ratify the contract on election day as exactly and honestly as if it were actually enforceable under the law.

A synopsis of Colonel Roosevelt's address follows:

Neither the Republican nor the Democratic platforms or managers show any adequate recognition of the mighty fact that we are now in the midst of a great economic evolution. This irresistible movement for economic change and improvement must be guided by both common sense and the highest ethical standards, in order to prevent reasonable evolution from becoming dangerous revolution.

The Democratic party, as is indicated by its present record in Congress, lacks the common sense, and the Republican party, by its record, of stolen delegates at the Chicago convention, lacks the ethical standards. The men who presided over the Chicago and Baltimore conventions, and the great bosses who controlled the two conventions—Mr. Root and Mr. Parker, Mr. Barnes and Mr. Murphy, Mr. Penrose and Mr. Taggart, M. Guggenheim and Mr. Sullivan—differ from one another, of course, on certain points, but these are the differences which one corporation lawyer has with another corporation lawyer when acting for different corporations.

They came together at once as against a common enemy when the dominion of both is threatened by the supremacy of the people of the United States.

CAUGHT ON THE WING

What the Traveling Man Finds Around Winterville

(By J. F. Stokes)
 Editor Reflector: My trip to Winterville Tuesday was interesting from two standpoints—cash for the pocket and some interesting news for the readers of this sheet.

The political situation is warming up and assuming shape. Dr. B. T. Cox, who so efficiently represented Pitt county in the legislature of 1909, is again a candidate for the nomination. Winterville is enthusiastic for him and there is hardly any doubt that he will be nominated by a substantial majority. The people of this little town believe that Blow, Clark and Cox will make a splendid legislative ticket.

Mr. W. H. Allen, a member of the anti-ring end of the party, was in Winterville Tuesday liberally advertising that his friend and candidate for the senate would address the citizenship of the town and neighborhood on the burning issues of the day, next Saturday. The two Bills are live wires and to come in contact with either means a political shock. Some times, however, the shock has an

JAILED GAMBLERS ARE THREATENED WITH DEATH

MEN FEAR ATTEMPTS ON THEIR LIVES AS THEY ARE LED INTO COURT

LITTLETON TO DEFEND BECKER

NEW YORK, August 6.—Death threats have been repeatedly sent to Jack Rose, Bridgie Webber and Harry Vallon, who have made confession showing alleged relations between the police and gamblers and all three prisoners are in a state of panic over fears that their lives may be taken.

The three gamblers say that they expect to be killed if they are taken through the streets to court.

It is reported that the prisoners have been intimidated by emissaries who have been smuggled in the West side jail.

The search today for Harry Horowitz and Louis Rosenweig is being prosecuted in several parts of the country. The state's attorney is also anxious to capture Sam Schepps who according to the confessions of Jack Rose, paid over the money to the gunmen after the killing.

Schepps received the money, Rose says, from Webber.

Former "Show Me" Mayor Treasurer

CHARLES CRANE APPOINTED VICE CHAIRMAN OF FINANCE COMMITTEE

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 6.—Governor Woodrow Wilson announced late today the appointment of Rolla Wells, former mayor of St. Louis, Mo., to be treasurer of the national Democratic committee and Charles R. Crane of Chicago, to be vice chairman of the finance committee of which Henry Morgenthau, of New York has been chosen chairman.

Governor Wilson declared that Mr. Wells was a lifelong friend, who had come into prominence in the west in connection with the lake to the gulf waterway project. Mr. Wells, he said, as president of the Business Men's league of St. Louis, had won the confidence of business men generally.

Mr. Wells is a graduate of Princeton university in the class of 1876 and is at present spending the summer at Wequetonsing, Mich. He is a retired business man.

Of Mr. Crane's appointment as vice chairman of the finance committee Governor Wilson, said:

I am gratified that he had been able to accept.

Mr. Crane, who was a prominent supporter and contributor to the La Follette campaign for the presidency, visited Governor Wilson recently at Sea Girt, when the governor was assured of Mr. Crane's support of the Democratic ticket.

Mr. Crane was appointed in July, 1909, by President Taft to be minister to China but was recalled four months later at San Francisco before he reached his post.

awful rebound. Thus it was when Mr. Allen requested one S. S. Smith to vote for Will Evans. If I understood Smith, his reply was something like this: "If I had to make a choice between swallowing a red hot wedge and voting for Will Evans, I would try the wedge". Now that must have been shocking to a man of my friend Allen's daring; yet, he is an old warrior at the game and no doubt is well prepared for such reports even from a plain farmer like Sam Smith. As for United States Senate, it is conceded that Contentnea is Kitchin soil.

TEDDY SHOWS HIMSELF TO ADMIRING HERD OF MOOSERS

Bandanas Waved as San Juan Hill Hero Enters Convention to Make Confession—Negroes Protest Treatment.

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—When Colonel Theodore Roosevelt appeared on the stage of the National Progressive Convention this afternoon to make his confession of faith address he faced one of the greatest audiences ever gathered in the big coliseum building and the demonstration of delegates and spectators that greeted him lasted nearly an hour.

Col. Roosevelt held an impromptu reception during the enthusiastic noise-making and was still broadly smiling in his appreciation. Sen. Beveridge introduced Col. Roosevelt at 1:48 and the colonel began his speech.

Despite the fact that Colonel Roosevelt was expected to reach the convention hall soon after noon, delegates to the national Progressive gathering were slow again today in reaching their seats. At 10 minutes to twelve there were no less than 200 delegates on the floor. The galleries were also slow in filling up.

A great crowd of spectators and delegates had remained at the hotel headquarters eager to see the colonel start triumphantly for the convention or to accompany him on the trip.

The New York delegation marched in at 11:15 a. m., with a brass band in the lead, playing the inevitable convention tune, "Everybody's Doing It." Several other bands were reported on their way to the Coliseum and it was apparent that when Col. Theodore Roosevelt arrived to deliver his confession of faith he would receive a noisy greeting. The delegates were prepared with flags and bandanas to make the demonstration a colorful one as well as noisy.

As 12 o'clock approached the delegates began to pour into the hall from all sides. A number of the delegations had formed an impromptu parade down town and had marched to the convention. Four or five bands came with them and for a time the air was fairly blue with conflicting tunes.

Women delegates to the convention again were a center of interest in the convention today. Many of their sisters in the suffrage movement had gathered outside the coliseum distributing tracts and emblems of the suffragette cause.

Temporary chairman Beveridge reached the stage shortly after twelve o'clock. Ten minutes later the delegates' sections were completely filled.

At 12:35 p. m., Senator Beveridge interrupted the singing by rapping for order.

Rev. Father Andrew Spetz offered the prayer.

The galleries near the stage were crowded but at the further end of the hall were many empty seats.

The audience applauded the brevity of the priests prayer.

It was 12:47 when Chairman Beveridge announced the arrival of Colonel Roosevelt at the Coliseum. This was enough for the delegates and the galleries. They jumped to their feet and cheered. A minute later the colonel appeared on the stage almost as if by magic.

In the midst of the deafening din he stepped onto the insulated speaking platform under the big sounding board.

He smiled his appreciation of the demonstration and bowed to the right and the left. With a broad grin he left the stage.

The delegates meantime stood on their chairs and cheered until the rafters rang. They waved flags and bandanas in a perfect riot of colors.

The G. A. R. Fife and Drum Corps on the stage marched up to where the colonel stood and each veteran got a warm greeting and hearty handshake from the Progressive leader. Then surrounding the former leader the fifers and drummers played numbers of patriotic tunes.

Mrs. Grace Leaves Scene of Drama

ATLANTA, Ga., August 6.—Mrs. Daisy Ople Grace, acquitted of the charge of having attempted to murder her husband to obtain $25,000 life insurance is on her way to Philadelphia today to make her future home. She left Atlanta last night and took passage on a steamer from Savannah, Ga. today. Mrs. Grace lived in Philadelphia previous to her marriage to Eugene H. Grace of this city.

Col. and Mrs. F. G. James and daughter, Miss Ada, returned this morning from Buffalo Springs and Wrightsville. His friends are glad to see Col. James restored in health and looking as well as ever.

Bring Convention to Greenville

Senator R. R. Cotten, of Bruce, was in town today. He attended the good roads convention in Charlotte last week, of which body he was vice president. He was made a member of the executive committee for the next year. Senator Cotten talks enthusiastically of the work done in the interest of good roads at the Charlotte meeting. He is trying to bring the next convention to Greenville and we hope he will succeed in this. The town will have a large modern hotel by then and can take care of the convention.

SAN JUAN DEL SUR, Nicaragua, August 6.—The American blue-jackets and marines who were landed from the United States gunboat Annapolis at Corinto on Saturday night and who are now in Managua, have ordered General Luis Mena, former minister of war and now leader of the revolutionists to deliver up immediately the lake steamers owned by the rail roads which are run by an American company.

Geo. T. Weltzel, the United States minister, has sent a note to General Mena advising him that the United States government recognized only the government of President Diaz.

A large quantity of arms has been brought from Corinto to Managua to enable the government to take the offensive against the followers of General Mena.

Washington, Aug. 6.—Marines from Panama have been ordered to Nicaragua to supplement the force of blue-jackets now in Managua guarding Americans and their property.

The collier Justin, now steaming from San Juan del Sur, was today ordered to Panama to embark 350 marines for Corinto.

The Justin was at sea and nearing Corinto when the radiograph was flashed to her. The vessel had left San Juan del Sur Saturday. It will take her approximately three days to reach Panama and one day to take marines and their full equipment aboard. It will then take approximately four days to return to Corinto.

The marines may be landed when they reach Corinto. It was said at the state department today, however, that it was thought prudent to have the force ready.

The sending of the marine force is really a further compliance with the request of the Nicaraguan government and the American minister that the United States undertake to protect foreigners and their interests in Nicaragua.

Managua, Nicaragua, August 5. (By wireless to Colon, August 6)—(Precede San Juan del Sur).—The city of Managua is perfectly quiet today, but had been placed under military guard by the president. The stores continue open throughout the town.

The commander in chief of the army, General Emilio Chamorro, is engaged in recruiting the government forces.

President Diaz has dismissed a number of officials in various parts of the country, deposing those friendly to the ex-secretary of war, General Luis Mena and replacing them by partisans of the government.

The minister of Finance, Pedro Rafael Cuadra, declares there is still some disorder in the province of Grenda where several of his brothers have been arrested and a store belonging to one of them at San Francisco, in the province of Rivas, has been destroyed by troops under the command of a son of the late Secretary of War.

Governor Addresses Delegation From Delaware at Tronton

TIME FOR THE PEOPLE TO ACT

Goes Back Into Political History of New Jersey and Refers to the Accomplishments of the Popular Rule

TRENTON, N. J., August 6.—"We want to take the government out of the hands of trustees and put it in the hands of those we can trust. This was Governor Wilson's first campaign utterance as he addressed a delegation of two hundred Democrats from Delaware led by national committee man, Willard Saulsbury.

Mr. Saulsbury had declared that Delaware hoped through his influence to be redeemed from the dishonor that has been put upon her by the political supremacy of the trust millionaires and the public service corporations which she still endures with indignation, impatience and disgust.

The government of New Jersey was very bad, said Governor Wilson, in reply, but the people were sound to the core and all they were waiting for was some means through which they could express themselves. The ingenious political arrangement which made it difficult for the people to choose their own candidates and have their own way. I am sure Delaware will act as New Jersey has.

New Jersey people have always been as progressive as any people in the Union, but there have been embarrassments. They have been in the hands of a board of guardians who used to sit in the state house and tell the legislature what to do. They had not been requested by the people to tell the legislature what it could do but it assumed that authority. But we ought to speak tenderly of those who are on their death beds. Those people are not in the state house now and they will never camp in this building again.

Yet, I do not take to myself anything except good fortune of having been the spokesman of the people of New Jersey. What we are trying to do in the immediate future is to offer the people of the United States the right to say what they want done with their own government and their own affairs. We want to take the government out of the hands of the trustees and put it in the hands of those we can trust. Those for whom the government was held in voluntary trust are now grown up and ready to assume charge of their own business.

Two Japs Are Blown Clear Across Ocean

WASHINGTON, August 6.—Secretary Nagel, of the Department of Commerce and Labor, probably will order within a few days the deportation of the five shipwrecked Japanese who were blown across the Pacific ocean in a fishing junk, finally landing at Delmar, Cal., to be charged with a technical violation of the immigration laws of the United States. The immigration officers have recommended that the aliens be deported at the expense of the United States. This recommendation was supported by the Japanese consul, who was consulted in the case.

Three months ago the Japanese started on a fishing trip from one island of Japan to another. In their fifty foot three masted junk they were caught in a storm and blown to sea. They lost their bearings, crossed the ocean and the first land they saw was Ensenada, Mex. They they tried to make Seattle, Wash., where one of their number had lived years ago. Their weather beaten craft was wrecked off the California coast, how ever and the men went ashore at Delmar.

Woman to Die in Electric Chair

RICHMOND, Va., Aug. 6.—There is no chance whatever for further interference in the sentence of Virginia Christian, who will be electrocuted for murder Friday of next week, unless something now not foreseen should arise. The governor has granted her an extension of one month in which to make her preparations for the unknown, and will extend it further clemency.

She will be the first woman to be electrocuted in this state and because of this fact there is a good deal of interest in her case. Cases of capital punishment inflicted upon women in Virginia in past years, when death was dealt by hanging, have been few,

SOMETHING NEEDED

If you should happen to be in Norfolk and further happen to take the N. S. electric for Virginia Beach there is something along the way that is bound to claim your notice and set you a thinking of a possibility right in your home county—Pitt. The beauty of the scenery, the fastness, cheapness and comfort of the ride, etc., etc., will, of course, count as factors in getting your thinking machinery in motion. Yet these are only secondary to a something else which is situated midway between Norfolk and Cape Henry. To the left of the tracks, as you speed on towards the white horse covered Atlantic your eyes will rest for some few minutes upon a piece of ground covered with carefully cultivated plants. About the center of this piece of ground there is a sign, "Va. State Truck Experimental Farm". We can not tell exactly just all that is nursed into life and fruit in that experimental farm; by the different hues of green and the different shapes of bushes and plants, as you whisk past this miniature farm, you deduct that almost everything in the truck line has been assigned a strip of Mother Earth and that all the wisdom of modern cultivation has been bent over it to make it produce exemplary vegetables. Given the nature of the surrounding soil, that upon which the state has "planted" its farm is by no means as good as that incircled by the Pitt county borders. Yet results speak for themselves and right before your eyes is extended in that experimental farm an exuberance of "useful" vegetation that speaks volumes for the wisdom of applying some science to cultivation.

If it is possible to raise all that is being raised at the mentioned farm taking into consideration the nature of the soil, what could not be accomplished right here in Pitt county? But perhaps, we might be told, vegetable growing is such a small side line to our farmers that it is hardly worth considering from the profit yielding point of view. This is a sad mistake, for there is as much, conceding that there is no more, in raising good vegetables as there is in dedicating a whole life to the growth of tobacco or cotton.

And by the way, it is not that we do not enjoy vegetables at our tables, for we really do, but the sad part is that they are brought to us from afar in tin kimonos and pink and yellow labels. The kind "Doc" Wiley spent such a miserable time over when he used to put his "Poison Squad" through the paces. In other words "canned goods". You see after all, there is a demand for vegetables and as we do not produce them in quantities to satisfy our own wants, enterprising people, many hundreds of miles from here, know and with solicitude born from a keen sense of business, hurry to our aid.

Why should not our farmers deviate from the beaten cotton and tobacco path and dedicate a few of their acres to the cultivation of something which we really want to the extent of buying it from strangers? Have they ever heard "Variety is the spice of life". Yes, even to the farmer this is more than true.

There are three candidates in North Carolina seeking the Democratic nomination for United States Senator, one man of them as good as the other, and we do not think any perfectly fair newspaper in the State should use its columns in favor of one and against another. While personally an editor can favor and support whom he pleases, his paper should give all candidates of the same party for the same office an equal showing and should not give merely an expression of his individual feeling. So far as we have observed there are very few papers in the State that fail to treat all the candidates with absolute fairness.

So many farmers in Pitt county are buying automobiles that we expect yet to see a sentiment for good roads take possession of the county. Of course when a man invests in a car he is not long in becoming an advocate for a good road in his neighborhood at least and everywhere else that he wants to go. It will not be many years before the man who opposes good roads will be looked upon as being as much of a back number as the one who makes light with a pine knot or plows with an ox.

Farmers of Pitt county should not let political agitation make them forget a farmer's meeting will be held in Greenville on Tuesday of next week, 15th. At this meeting specialists from the government and state departments of agriculture will be present to talk on subjects of vital interest to the farmers. Forget politics for that day and give attention to the matters that help improve the farm and farm life.

According to their own claims under investigation, they are all good trusts and working for the benefit of the people. But the recent advance of gasoline to twenty cents a gallon shows that the consumer catches it when the trust gets a chance at him.

And the new Bull Moose party made no quarter for the colored brother. This leaves the latter with out a party and he will have to get out and vote as he pleases or where ever he can.

Politicians are coming to realize that newspapers are business enterprises and not pack horses to ride free on. There are yet some communities that ought to learn this same lesson.

If as the London physician says that in 150 years everybody in the world will be crazy, none of the present residents will be on hand to prove to the contrary.

Greenville must certainly shake off some of her sleepy ways and bring in manufacturing enterprises if the town is to grow much faster.

"Uncle Joe" Cannon, former speaker, has not lost his fire even though he lost the speakership. The other day he called another congressman a liar.

It does not show much calibre in a man to get mad with another just because his opinion happens to be different about men or measures. All have a right to think for themselves.

One of the sea-sick fellows on the recent Press Convention ocean trip from Morehead City to Cape Lookout, said he threw up everything but his job.

Cotton is quoted at a pretty good figure now, but watch it tumble when the farmers begin putting it on the market.

A newspaper that has to pull almost alone for the upbuilding of its community cannot help from feeling discouraged sometimes.

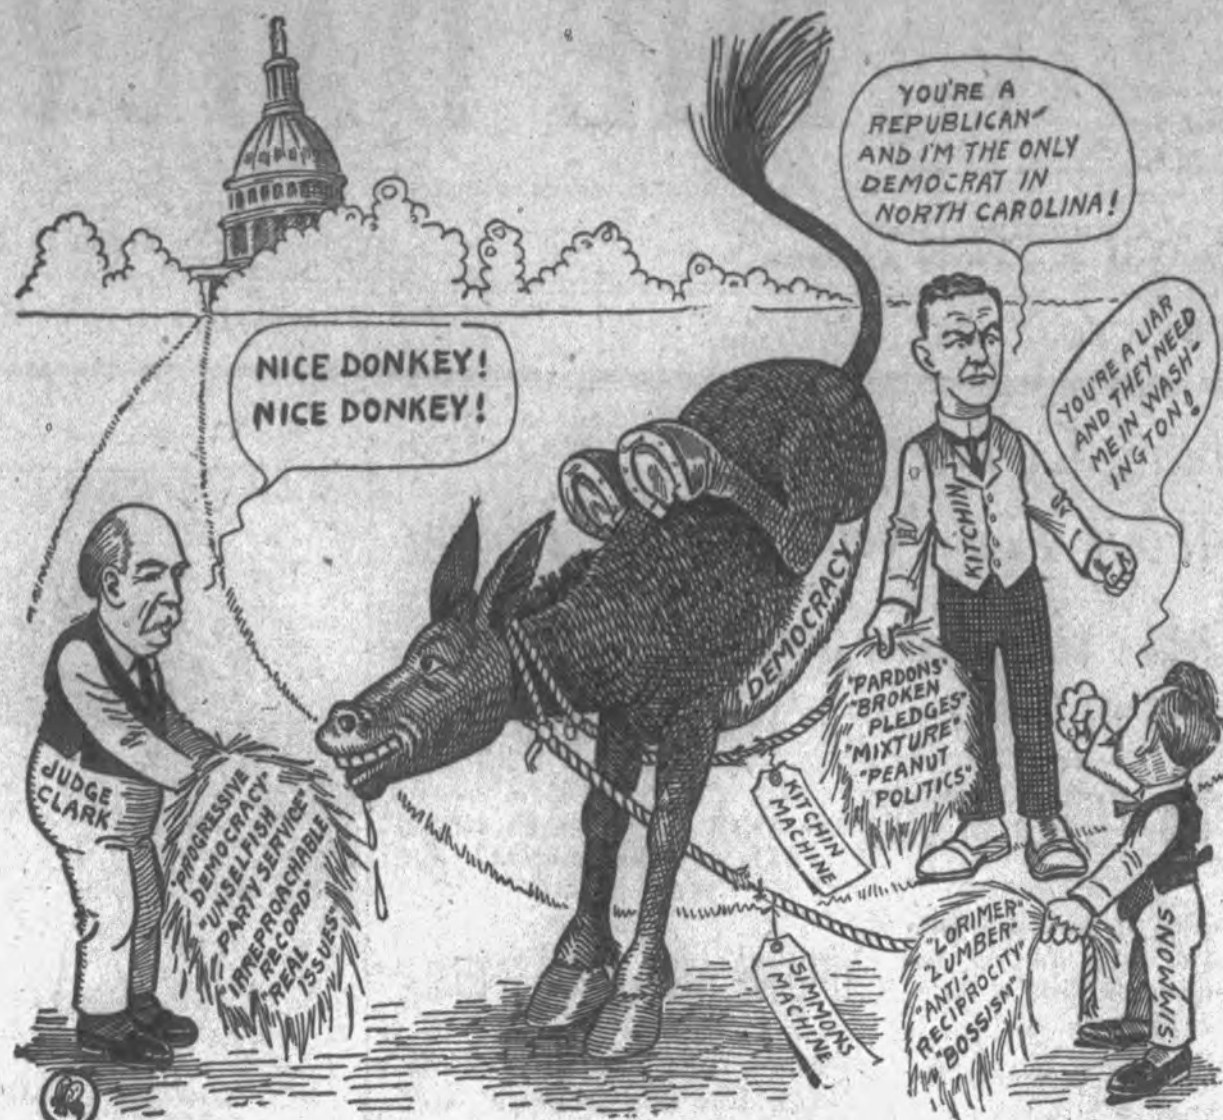

As the colonel called his own convention he could make it do as he pleased and get what he wanted.

And just think the people must put up with this senatorial scramble until November.

It is said that Jack Johnson is going to invest in an air machine. And ere long we will hear the last of Jack.

Wonder if there are any candidates up around the North Pole?

Editorial of Human Interest

By Arthur Brisbane

THOSE WHO LAUGH AT A DRUNKEN MAN.

How often have you seen a drunken man stagger along the street! His clothes are soiled from falling, his face is bruised, his eyes are dull. Sometimes he curses the boys that tease him. Sometimes he tries to smile, in a drunken effort to placate pitiless, childless cruelty. His body, worn out, can stand no more, and he mumbles that he is going home. The children persecute him, throw things at him, laugh at him, running ahead of him.

Grown men and women, too, often laugh at him with the children, nudge each other, and actually find humor in the sight of a human being sunk below the lowest animal.

The sight of a drunken man going home should make every other man and woman sad and sympathetic, and horrible as the sight is, it should be useful, by inspiring, in those who see it, a determination to avoid and help others avoid that man's fate.

That reeling drunkard is going to his home. He is going home to children who are afraid of him, to a wife whose life is miserable.

He is going home taking with him the worst curse in the world—to suffer bitter remorse himself after having inflicted suffering on those whom he should protect.

And as he goes home men and women, knowing what the home-coming means, laugh at him and enjoy the sight.

In the old days in the arena it occasionally happened that brothers were set to fight each other. When they refused to fight they were forced to it by red-hot irons applied to their backs.

We have progressed beyond the moral condition of human beings guilty of such brutality as that. But we cannot call ourselves civilized while our imaginations and sympathies are so dull that the reeling drunkard is thought an amusing spectacle.

SIDEWALK SKETCHES

SORORITY SISTERHOOD.

THE Sorority sisterhood is a close corporation of undaunted females who refuse to associate with anybody not a member of the union. It is much harder to get into a sorority that happens to be in a haughty mood than it is to get into the Daughters of the American Revolution with a crooked family tree and a jimmy. Nobody is allowed to become a sorority sister unless she can throw the Greek alphabet three times in succession without trying her tongue in a double bow-knot. Every sorority has a form of initiation which is calculated to throw a series of cohesive chills into a timid candidate and cause her mental poise to wobble on its axis. It is never necessary to initiate anybody into a sorority but once, as the experience leaves the applicant in a very mellow and chastened frame of of the Iliad so that anybody can tell it from that immortal epic. "The man with the Hose," she is admitted to full membership, given the semi-annual comes able to translate the first book mind. After a sorority sister be-password and allowed to make the fudge. The order of business at a sorority meeting is as follows: Physical culture with the Greek language and the horizontal bar; admission of candidates who agree not to reveal the secret work of the order to anybody but those with whom they come in contact, balloting on vestal virgins who have-forsworn matrimony on account of old age; hoisting the grand halling sign of distress for the benefit of sisters who have everything ready but the tulle veil; remarks for the good of the order relative to the ring service and the subjugation of the male sex; adjournment, both sine die and sine hope. The average sorority is equipped with a jaw-breaking ritual which makes the literary excises a very wholesome influence a Sabbath school leaflet, and it exercises a very wholesome influence upon the talkative propensities of the membership.

Give Us Roads

Charlotte has entertained a number of conventions and a measure of importance attaches to each of them but the convention whose deliberations means the largest good to the State of North Carolina is now in session. This State is just now in process of splendid development. In every question there is progress and open opportunity. The citizenship is beginning to recognize the present possibilities and to take advantage of the natural forces. The farmer is learning the lesson of proper fertilization and the wisdom of diversified crops. The value of fruit, berries, melons and other marketable truck is becoming better known. Corn fields are seen from the car windows as often as cotton fields. The people of the rural district are better educated to their possibilities.

The mechanic sees as never before the industrial opening in the south. The capitalist has learned the value of the section for investment in manufacturing enterprises.

The one need is roads. The farmer without roads cannot market his product. What is the value of a good crop of cotton or corn if the few miles of road between the farms and the market is impossible? What the value of large yields of berries, of fruits, of melons if the express station or railway depot is unreachable?

The convention of the advocates of good roads is the important convention. The deliberations of the men who have come from different parts of the State will be watched. They mean business and that business which is of interest to every man, woman and child of the state.

Give North Carolina good roads. Roads for the wagon and roads for the buggies. Roads for the automobile truck and roads for the pleasure car. Give us roads for good weather and roads for bad weather. Bad roads cost more money than the building of good roads. The cost should not be an item, save that it be considered in reference to building good roads as economically as possible.

Plan for roads—good roads throughout North Carolina.—Charlotte Chronicle.

From Woman's View-Point

The gay bead embroideries on bags and redicules have become familiar, but bead embroidery on a handsome evening frock is something of a novelty. Paquin has used this colored beading with good effect upon a dinner gown of plum and gold taffeta. Hueg beaded motifs done in a pattern resembling the cross-stitch embroidery so fashionable now, decorates the skirt and one front of the bodice. The beads are in exquisitely blended shades of violet, amethyst, mauve, rose and white, and the embroidery harmonizes pleasingly with the shot plum and gold of the taffeta. The draped fichu of the pale violet chiffon, with the selvage used at the edge, gives a demure look to this bead-embroidered gown, and the costume is completed by satin slippers ornamented on the toe with bead embroidery.

The quantities of net used in tucked effects, frills and flounces make debutants dancing gowns especially airy and youthful, little white chiffons have pipings of white satin upon gowns are seen also and some of plied to scant ruffles of the chiffon. The satin piping along the edge makes the ruffle stand out in stiff whorls which are considered very fashionable. Most of the net dancing frocks are made still more babyish by the addition of sashes with long ends at the back.

The new chiffons are wonderful. Not only do they come in the most exquisite shades of coral, flame, jade, corn color, amethyst and other subtle variations on the three primary colors of red, blue and yellow, but there are also lovely Jouy chiffons with softly tinted floral designs sprinkled over a white or pale colored ground.

Those Jouy chiffons are draped above trailing skirts in modified panther effects which are ideally graceful, and usually there is a touch of solid color concentrating the shades in the Jouy pattern, the color touched taking the form of a rose tucked against the corsage or a series of tiny, flat velvet bows used like buttons down a bodice front or sleeve.

The high Robespierre collar, which completely hides the nape of the neck and leaves the front of the neck bare, is being worn by smart dressers. Two revers turn back from the front with square corners edged with pleating of Valenciennes lace.

Florence Fairbanks.

A Voiceless Sermon.

He stands beneath the noonday's blazing sun. With head low drooping and the harness load Upon his tired back; while from his neck The empty feed bag dangles to and fro. Long has he stood, a patient, faithful steed, Flies sting and thirt assails, yet mindful still inch. Of slackened rein he stands at call of him And though requitted only by the lash, Or vicious kick upon his galled side, Yet with a fortitude that questions not— So human, oftimes, that we bow in shame— He waits the signal, or the onward goad.

A brute, we say, and forthwith use as such, If manhood gained its measure by like deeds As mark this creature, voiceless, soulless (?), mute. Methinks the heavenly welkin oft would ring When such an one gains entrance to its joy.

—Helen M. Ricardson, in Our Dumb Animals.

Kitchen Craft

Maple Apples
Pare, halve and core half a dozen large cooking apples and put into a porcelain kettle with two cupfuls of water and one large cupful of maple syrup. Let them simmer until they are tender, gently turning them with a fork when the edges begin to look clear. Serve cold with whipped cream.

Spar-Ribs Stuffed with Apples and Prunes
Sew to gether several pounds of fresh spare-ribs, so that they form a pocket, then stuff with the following: One pound of prunes boiled for five minutes (pour the juice of the prunes into a bowl). Peel and cut a pieces, then mix them with the prunes, adding to this mixture sugar, a little cinnamon and a tablespoonful of cracker dust. Put this stuffing into the spare-ribs and sew the pocket together. Put juice of the prunes into pan in which the spare-ribs are to be roasted, and cook in the oven for one hour.

Che-On-Pine Salad
Soak some sliced and canned pine apple in olive oil until tender, then spread with cream and pimento cheese and smother in little pickled onions. This is very tempting served in a nest of curly parsley. No dressing is needed, as the vinegar is in the pickled onions and the oil is in the pineapple.

Bigness of a Nickel.
(From the Baltimore Sun.)

A nickel then was bigger than a million dollars now;
A nickel then could buy a word of happiness somehow;
A nickel then was all a lad could some times hope to get.
And, ah, how wide with human joy his little eyes were set!

A nickel back in those old days was bigger than a mint;
A nickel then was like a dream of riches, with its glint;
A nickel then was all a child expected at the best.
And, ah, how glad it made his heart beat in his little breast!

A nickel then was bigger than a fortune seems these days;
A nickel then could fill the mind with fancy's gilded maze;
A nickel then could buy the earth, in childhood's dream at least,
And, oh, that we could taste again that sense of childhood feast.

Winterville won both games of a double header from Kinston Wednesday. Won first game by score of 8 to 2. Fleming was batted out of the box in 5 innings. Features of games, catching of McLean and fast triple play by Langston and Kittrell. Batteries—for Winterville, D. McGlohon and McLean; for Kinston, Fleming, Kilpatrick and Tyndal.

At four o'clock the evening game began with much enthusiasm on both sides, for the Kinstonites were determined to win one victory for the day, but when Kittrell and Smith both scored in the first inning it caused a melancholy look to come upon the visiting team which lasted throughout the game. Kinston was allowed to score once in third but held out by the pitching of McGlohon and the catching of McLean until the ninth when another was added to the number.

All the time the home team was adding stars to their crown until they reached four.

Summary: Winterville, 4; Kinston 2. Batteries—Winterville, D. McGlohon and McLean; Kinston, Blanchard and Tyndall. Umpire—Worthington.

When in need of anything in up to date groceries and crockery ware, at a good price, see the Union Mercantile Co.

The Tar Heel Wagons have stood the roughest tests. The A. G. Cox Manufacturing Company has made still more improvements on this wagon and they want you to come down and look it over. Now is the time to place your order for a wagon, for you are going to need one and later on, when the rush comes, you might not be able to get it right at the minute you will need it.

A Lawn Party

In honor of their guests Misses Maude Louise Keelhn of High Point and Mary Cutler of Washington, Messrs. James Gay and Will Powell of Whitakers and Sebra Cobbitt of Fountain, Misses Venitia and Jeanette Cox entertained their many friends last night.

Imagine if you can, the beauty of Cox's Park when by the dainty touch of Misses Venitia and Jeanette's hands the most exquisite little Japanese lanterns were hung here and there to assist the twinkling stars in lighting up the pathway of the ladies as they went from nook to corner to make their engagements with the handsome young men who were looking as though the uppermost thought roving around in their brain was, "How I wish that girl was mine".

After many delightful and interesting games refreshments were served.

Some one has said that all things but a circle come to an end so the hour of departure came all too soon and after thanking our charming hostesses for the delightful evening they had given us we bade them good night and winged our way homeward to dream of the joy of companionship between lad and lassie.

and walked leisurely toward George, but his attention was not directed toward him. A short distance away, at George's left, was a man, stretched out as if in slumber. Over his inert figure Mahomed watched. He drew back his foot and kicked the sleeping man soundly, smiling amiably the while; a kick which, had Mahomed's foot been cased in western leather, must have stove in the sleeper's ribs. Strange, the victim did not stir. Ma-homed shrugged, and returned to the business of breaking camp.

George was keenly interested in this man who could accept such a kick apparently without feeling or resentment. He stood up for a better view. One glance was sufficient. It was Ryanne, the erstwhile affable Ryanne of the reversible cuffs; his feet and hands still in bondage, his clothes torn, his face battered and bruised like a sailor's of a Sunday morning on shore-leave. The sight of Ryanne brightened him considerably. Although he was singularly free from the spirit of malevolence, he was, nevertheless, human enough to subscribe to that unwritten and much denied creed that the misery of one man reconciles whether to his. And here was a company such as misery loved; here was a man worse off than himself, whose prospects were a thousand times blacker. Poor devil! And here he was, captive of the men he had wronged and beaten and robbed. As seen through George's eyes, Ryanne's outlook was not a pleasant thing to contemplate. But oh! the fight this one must have been! If it had taken five natives to overcome him, how many had it taken to beat Ryanne into such a shocking condition? He was genuinely sorry for Ryanne, but in his soul he was glad to see him. One white man could accomplish nothing in the face of these odds; but two white men, that was a different matter. Ryanne, once he got his legs, strong, courageous, resourceful, Ryanne would get them both out of it somehow. . . . And if Ryanne hadn't the rug, who the dickens had?

The jumble of questions that rose in his mind, seeking answers to the riddle of Yhiordes rug, subsided even as they rose. The bundle to the far side of Ryanne stirred. He had, in his general survey of the scene, barely set a glance upon it, believing it to be a conglomeration of saddle-bags (made of wool and cotton) and blankets. It stirred again. George studied it with a peculiar sense of detachment. A woman; a woman in what had but recently been a smart Parisian tailor-made street-dress. The woman, rubbing her eyes, bore herself up painfully to a sitting posture. She was white. All the blows of the night past were as nothing in comparison with this inviolable one which seemed to strike at the very source of his life.

Fortune Chedsoy!

CHAPTER XIII.

Not a Cheerful Outlook.

George, his brain in tumult, a fierce tigerish courage giving fictitious strength to his body, staggered toward her. It was a mad dream, a mirage of his own disordered thoughts. Fortune there? It was not believable. What place had she in this tangled web? He ran his fingers into his hair, gripped, and pulled. If it was a dream the pain did not waken him; Fortune sat there still. Through what terrors might she not have passed the preceding night? Alone in the desert, without any of those conveniences which are to women as necessary as the air they breathe! He tried to run, but his feet sank too deeply in the pale sand; he could only plod. He must touch her or hear her voice; otherwise he stood upon the brink of madness. There was no doubt in his mind now; he loved her, loved her as deeply and passionately as any storied knight loved his lady; loved her without thought of reward, unselfishly, with great and tender pity, for unconsciously he saw that she, like he was all alone, not only here in the desert, but along the highways where men set up their dwellings.

Mahomed, having an eye upon all things, though apparently seeing only that which was under his immediate concern, saw the young man's intention, and more, read the secret in his face. He was infinitely amused. There were two of them, so it seemed. Quietly he slipped in between George and the girl, and his movement freed George's mind of its bewilderment. Unhesitatingly, he flung himself upon the Arab, striving to reach the lean, brown throat. Mahomed, strong and unwearied, having no hand in the actual warfare, thrust George back so vigorously that the young man lost his balance and fell prone upon the sand. He was so weak that the fall stunned him. Mahomed stepped forward, doubtless with the generous impulse to prove that in the matter of kicks he desired to show no partiality, when a hand caught at his bur-nouse. He paused and looked down. It was the girl.

"Don't! A brave man would not do that."

Mahomed, moved by some feeling that eluded immediate analysis, turned about. It was time to be off, if he wished to reach Serapeum the following night. Pursuit he knew to be out of the question, since who was there to know that there was anything to pursue? But many miles intervened between here and his destination. He dared not enter Serapeum in the daytime. Lying upon the canal bank as it did, the possibility of encountering a stray white man confronted him. Every camel-way frequented by Europeans must of necessity be avoided, every town of any size skirted, and all the while he must keep parallel with known paths or become lost himself. Not to become lost himself, that was his real concern. The caravan was provisioned for months, and he knew Asia-Minor as well as the lines upon his palms. There were sand-storms, too; but against these blighting visitations he would match his vigilant eye and the instinct of the camels. The one way in which these peculiar storms might distress him lay in the total obliteration of the way-signs, certain rocks, certain hills, without the guidance of which, like a good ship bereft of its compass, he might fall away from his course, notwithstanding that he would always travel toward the sun.

And there was also the vital question of water; he must measure the time between each well, each oasis. So, then, aside from these dangers with which he felt able to cope, there was one unforeseen: the chance meeting with a wandering caravan headed by white men in search of rugs and carpets. These fools were eternally hunting about the wastes of the world; they were never satisfied unless they were prowling into countries where they had no business to be, were always breaking the laws of the camel and the Koran.

It was beautiful in her pale, foreign way; beautiful as the star of the morning, as the first rose of the Persian spring; and he sighed for the old days that were no more. She would have brought a sultan's ransom in the markets. But the accursed Feringhi were everywhere, and these sickly if handsome white women were more to them than their heart's blood; why, he had never ceased to wonder. But upon this knowledge he had mapped out his plan of torture in regard to Ryanne. The idea of selling Fortune had dimly formed in his mind, while his blood had burned in anger; but today's soberness showed him the futility of such a procedure. He would have to make the best of a foolish move; for the girl would eventually prove an encumbrance. At any rate, he would wring one white man's heart till it beat dry in his breast. That her health might be ruined, that she might sicken and die, in no manner aroused his pity. This

Greenville People Receiving the Full Benefit

There have been many cases like the following in Greenville. Everyone relates the experience of people we know. These plain, straightforward statements will do much toward relieving the suffering of thousands. Such testimony will be read with interest by many people.

James Hardison, 411 Fifth street, Greenville, N. C., says: "I had trouble from my kidneys and the kidney secretions passed too frequently at night. In the morning when I got up, there was lameness across my joints and I also suffered from backache. Doan's Kidney Pills which were procured from the John L. Wooten Drug Co., relieved all these symptoms of kidney complaint and restored my kidneys to a normal condition." (Statement given January 14, 1908..)

No Trouble Since

Later Mr. Hardison said: "I take pleasure in confirming my former statement in favor of Doan's Kidney Pills. This remedy made a permanent cure in my case."

This is My Birthday

Earl Nelson

Earl Nelson, who is known as the Father of the House of Lords—that is to say, its oldest member—was born at Brickworth Park, near Salisbury, England, August 7, 1823. He is the son of the second earl Nelson and a grand nephew of the famous Lord Nelson, the hero of Trafalgar. Through the death of his father he succeeded to the title while he was still a schoolboy at Eton. He completed his graduation at Cambridge and at the age of twenty two was married to a daughter of the Earl of Normanton. Lord Nelson took his seat in the House of Lords in 1845 and for upwards of 60 years he has continued to take active interest in public affairs. He is the holder of one of the only two perpetual pensions in existence in England, the holder of the other one being Lord Rodney, a descendant of the celebrated Admiral Sir George Rodney.
