VILLAGE OF SPARTA TO BE RESTORED TO ITS SIMPLE BEAUTY

New York Millionaire Who Has Bought The Entire Place Rebuilds It

EFFORTS WILL BE MADE TO RESTORE MORALE WHICH IT LOST MANY YEARS AGO

Sing Sing Prisoners Gave It Notely By Frequently Visiting Its Salons

Sparta, N. Y., Nov. 20.—This little village, fallen into decay from the homely dignity it enjoyed years ago, is to be restored to its cleanliness and architecturally simple beauty

Frank A. Vanderlip, New York banker and millionaire, has bought virtually the entire place, is to rebuild it. The snug brick homes which thrifty townsmen erected long years back will be renovated and reinforced. Gardens will bloom again where grass and weeds have won their way. And clean streets and neat sidewalks will be replaced.

Speaking of his plans for Sparta—which is part of Ossining—Mr. Vanderlip decried stories that he intended to build modern tenements here. Restoration of the old place to its former comeliness is his desire.

"Of course we hope to get rid of what elements there are which are not the best in Sparta," Mr. Vanderlip said. "Restoration of the village architecturally will be accompanied by efforts to restore its morale."

The notoriety Sparta received a few years ago, when the district attorney of White Plains declared Sing Sing convicts working outside the prison frequented its saloons, has not helped the village's reputation. Wealthy residents of Ossining and of Scarborough-on-the-Hudson half a mile to the south have deplored the "increasingly ramshackle" aspect of the place, and Mr. Vanderlip's object is not only to improve its "run-down" but to restore its looks.

THE DRY ELEMENTS IN MEXICO SUFFER A GREAT DEFEAT

Cafes and Cantinas Will Remain Open All Day Sunday As A Result of Defeat

"ESTADO SECA" (DRY STATE) MYTH AS FAR AS CAPITAL O F MEXICO IS CONCERNED

President De La Huerta's Dry Decree Was Subject of Much Satirical Comment

Mexico City, Nov. 20.—The "dry" elements in the Mexican government have just suffered defeat in an attempt to close the cantinas, or saloons, on Saturday nights and Sundays. The "wets" comprising some 2,000 cantina owners and their patrons are rejoicing.

The government has strong "dry" leanings, the chief executive being alleged to favor prohibition and E. Pin-tarico Calles, Minister of War, being known throughout the republic as a "bone dry" advocate.

Several weeks ago a presidential decree closed all places where liquor was sold from Saturday night at 6 o'clock until Monday morning at 7. This edict had a depressing effect upon Saturday night revelry.

More than 2,000 local vendors of liquor signed a request that the government be legally restrained from enforcing the decree. After the question was violently agitated in the newspapers, the Supreme Court handed down a decision which virtually granted the request of the "wets" by naming several hundred cafes and cantinas where liquor might be sold over Sunday. This order was later expanded to include all cafes and cantinas and the "estado seco" (dry state) is a myth so far as the capital is concerned.

President de la Huerta's "dry" decree was the subject of much satirical comment in the newspapers. Handbills and placards were distributed on the main streets ridiculing the measure by burlesquing it. For instance, one bill carried a purported decree stopping profanity from sunset Saturday to sunrise Monday.

MADRID AROUSED OVER THE ACTION OF LANDOWNERS

Alleged Profiteering By Land Owners Arouses Great Agitation In City

Madrid, Nov. 20.—Alleged profiteering by landowners has aroused an agitation here for a tax on the increases in land values. A writer in the newspaper La Libertad, accuses the proprietors of rapacity in increasing the prices at which they held their farm lands and of taking advantage of the high cost of home-grown grain brought about by the advance in freight rates on the foreign product. He says they have advanced their land prices to five and six times former values without paying anything into the national treasury as a tax on this appreciation.

An instance is cited in which an owner sold one farm at nine times the price he paid for it five years ago. The newspaper writer declares that these large increases have cost the landowner practically nothing, but asserts that it is high time a law taxing the increase on land values should be established in Spain, modeled after those in Germany, Canada and Australia.

COMING BACK TO LIFE.

A perfectly good region inhabited by perfectly good people may become discouraged, despondent, decadent, owing to nothing more serious than the inheritance of obsolete tradition of agriculture and social relationships, and to discouragement due to a long shrinkage of population.

Mlle. FERNANDE BARREY

Mlle. Fernande Barrey, an artist's model of Paris, suddenly deserted her platform a while ago and set up an easel of her own. Since then she has painted seven pictures, and five of them were accepted this year by the Salon d'Automne, making the young woman famous overnight.

SEVENTEEN CENTS BUYS REGULAR MEAL ON ELLIS ISLAND

Immigration Commissioners Show How It Is Possible On U. S. Doorstep

New York, Nov. 20.—Delegates to the convention of the National Hotel Association here couldn't believe that on act. Very likely you contemplate doing it tonight. Very likely your being in this place is simply a step toward sin you have in mind, and you can scarcely wait until my message is over and you can creep out in the darkness and propagate your iniquity.

That won't do. I won't see it. The people here won't see it, but the eyes of the Lord run through the earth and there is no blackness, density, fog or cloud that can hide your devilry and iniquity from God. You need not read the newspaper, go to the penitentiaries and see them dressed in zebra stripes and crapped hair with their liberty killed. Go to your jails and see them standing behind stone walls and iron bars playing checkers with their nose on iron bars. Go down to the festering part of your city and see them with the marks of the beast on their forehead and living illustration of the truth that "Your sin will find you out."

There is in Egypt a monument upon which is the inscription: "The impious shall commit iniquity with recompense but without remorse."

You may commit a sin and there may be a recompense attached to it but not without remorse. You'll have to pay for it. If you put your hand in the fire and thus violate the law of nature you will have to suffer for it. You may escape the law but you will not escape the consequence of sin.

Your sins will find you out in many ways. You cannot escape the consequences of sin. First in human law of course the execution of all human law will be more or less imperfect not all law breakers have been captured, and all of them have not been punished that have been captured and yet it is astonishing how surely men who break the law are brought to judgement. A man may be shrewd and elude the meshes of the law successfully, for days for weeks, and months and years, but he is all the time weaving a net and setting a trap that will catch him at last. You may have committed a sin in a distant state, no body knows you committed that crime and no body is any the wiser. Your neighbors are ignorant of it your family never thought you were capable of such an act, you may be shaking hands and congratulating yourself that they know not what you are or what you have done, but that is the most gigantic folly that ever found logment in the human brain for your sin will find you out.

SUNDAY MORNING WILL TEST LOYALTY OF CHURCH MEMBERS

One of the things evangelist McLendon has stressed since starting his campaign in Greenville three weeks ago, is that he wanted to awaken in indifferent church members a loyalty to the church. He said he has little confidence in the religion of a church member who does not attend prayer meeting and the church services. All of the churches of the town will have their usual morning services tomorrow, and the attendance will show what effect Mack's sermons have had on them and if they have been awakened to their duty. Serving Christ and being loyal to Him is a motto people should be in earnest about. Merely having the name on a church roll is no going to save anybody.

Everybody reads the Reflector. The business people realize this and show columns.

Be Sure Your Sins Will Find You Out Sermon Last Night

Mr. McLendon, the South Carolina tornado, preached another splendid sermon in the tent last night on the above subject. A large number accepted Christ as their personal Saviour.

There are some things in life about which there are degrees of uncertainty. You are not certain you will die. Jesus may burst upon the world and judge it before the clock strikes. You cannot be sure the sun will rise tomorrow. We suppose it will. It has risen ever since God swung it into the sky and it has swung with perfect precision and never deviated one bit. I presume it will rise tomorrow. I would be disappointed if it didn't but I haven't anything in the word of God to assure me that I'll ever see another sun creep up behind the eastern hills. I am not sure that I'll ever look into the face of my wife and children. But there is one thing of which I am sure. There is one thing that I do claim by the authority of the word of God, and that is your sin, no matter what it is, will find you out. No man can escape his own sin. Every sin we commit will find us and call us to account and make us pay. No man ever committed a single sin he did not pay for it in some way. No man ever committed a single sin that which he was not a loser. There never has been a sin committed on earth that paid. The most stupendous folly of which a man can be guilty is for him to imagine that he can ever gain anything by doing wrong. There are men and women in this audience tonight who contemplate doing some wrong act. Very likely you contemplate doing it tonight. Very likely your being in this place is simply a step toward sin you have in mind, and you can scarcely wait until my message is over and you can creep out in the darkness and propagate your iniquity.

Its stamp on a man's character and blight and smite, and wither and curse and mildew and eternally damn him in hell in sin. Oh man, oh woman listen to me! You cannot escape from your sins. Nobody ever committed a single sin that paid. You may have lied and made a thousand dollars by that lie, but it did not pay. You may have had houses added to houses and lands to lands, bank stocks and bonds, that you wouldn't have had if you had not have lied, but that does not pay. It comes too high, and the most stupendous, gigantic folly that ever entered into the brain of man or woman is the supposition that it pays to do wrong.

Certain diseases are the result of certain sins. Just naturally as water will sink its level, there is a very intimate connection between morality and health. We all know that morality is conducive to health, and that immorality is conducive to disease. We all know that morality is conducive to longevity and we all know that immorality is conducive to shortness of days. The Bible says, "the wicked will not live out all their days, and when a man does not pay the penalty of sin before human courts, he pays it in court where there is no possibility of bribery, the court physical retribution for moral offenses. The man that loves God will live longer than that old puking, spewing, bloated-faced booze "hitter"; the pure man will live longer than that old lecherous, leperous libertine. The wicked shall not live out all their days. Fellow citizens, if you put it into the scales of longevity, it pays for a man to live right and get sin out of his life, and out of his heart. I have had young men come to me, eyes blood shot, and they would writhe and groan in agony and tell their sad story. Why? because they broke physical laws, and any action that is unnatural or immoral is bound to be visited with penalties.

Why so many men with will powers destroyed? Why so many men with everything that is noble and grand beautiful, assassinated? And my answer come back, "Sin."

Sin wrongs man by weakening his personality, by dulling his mind by eating deeply into the spirit, by destroying temper of the soul and by leaving him worthless for time and eternity. It poisons the heart that was made to love God.

Sin wrongs man because it is responsible for every infamy, for every villainess, for every flaunting shame and for every staggering, vomiting drunkard that reels in hell. Sin is a cancer in the blood. Therefore, it needs a blood remedy.

Sin wrongs man because it turns him adrift on a wintry storm swept sea without chart or compass, it gives him no hope or chance for ought save shipwreck in the thickest of darkness of midnight on the roaring reef of everlasting woe.

Sin wrongs man because for centuries it has kept humanity busy undoing itself. It has made man the greatest curse of man. It was created deep-rooted enmity and blotted out brotherhood. It has developed hate and withered sympathy.

Sin's record of wrong to fellowman has filled the history of the race. It has set man developing all possible evil in his brother. It has slain its thousands in war and its ten thousands by strong drink. It takes bread from the hungry, clothing from the shivering, and home from the family. It turns human blood into gasoline for the motor of the world's pleasure.

Sin wrongs man because it heads him toward a wrong destiny. Hell did not create sin; sin created hell. Iniquity hollowed out the bottomless pit; evil laid the foundation of the diabolical domain; badness constructed the infernal abode. Sin was the architect and builder of eternal torment. No book could contain all the story of sin's wrong.

Mack closed by saying that there was one way of escape from the penalties of the law and that was the grace of the gospel.

Stock sellers can always catch suckers.

The changed weather has given nearly every body a bad cold and just now there is much sickness. Let us hope it is not the "flu" getting around again.

Tobacco sales were so large this week as to cause block sales on two days. And there were consequently lower prices again; especially on the mon grades.

There are few people who cannot afford to give the income-wages of one day as an offering for the orphans on Thanksgiving Day. Show your gratitude for what God has done for you by giving this much to the orphans and make it a Thanksgiving Day long to be remembered by them.

Talk about getting out under difficulties, that was the experience The Reflector had yesterday. Sickness and other force so that out into and the "devil" were left to do the work. It gave them a hard job, but the paper was its usual size and was not much later.

The Raleigh News and Observer figures it out that the reduction of one cent a gallon on gasoline saves North Carolina automobiles $1,250 per day. And that calculation is based on the supposition that the 125,000 cars in the state consume an average of one gallon gasoline each per day.

If people would keep from losing their heads, they would find that the country is in much better condition than they are trying to imagine. The unsettled conditions will soon be righted themselves if conservation and patience are experienced, and the meantime do what you can toward paying your debts and this will help conditions get better.

OUR CENSUS INCREASE

North Carolina moved up to 2,506,486 in population during the last census period, a gain of 350,199 or 15.9 percent against 14.9 for the United States as a whole. In 1910 sixteen states stood ahead of us, but in 1920 only 14. In the South only Georgia and Texas now have larger population than North Carolina.

Our increase was absorbed as follows: (1) Our 57 census-size cities of 2,500 or more inhabitants received 172,582 (2) our 14 little incorporated towns and villages 20,870, and (3) our open country 156,747. Our cities grew at a 54 percent rate, against 28.8 percent in the country as a whole; our small towns grew at a 9.6 percent rate against 21.5 percent for the United States; and our open country population increased at 9.4 percent rate, while the U. S. as a whole actually lost farm population, 227,266 all told this, for the first time in the history of America. At present barely more than one third of the people of the United States live in the country, engaged in the business of producing farm wealth. What shall we eat and wherewithal shall we be clothed has become a critical national problem.

At present we have 491,056 people in our cities, 239,352 in our small incorporated towns, and 1,826,078 in the open country—a vast multitude dwelling for the most part in solitary farmsteads and in socialinsulation. In 1910, our open country dwellers were 76 percent of our total population in 1920 the ratio falls to 71 percent. Which is to say North Carolina is still dominantly rural.

We sold this week, 448394 pounds averaging $27.00. In our Thursday's Block sale we sold 166410 pounds for $42538.41 averaging 25.59.

We will finish our Friday's block sale first thing Monday and believe we will be able to sell all that comes in Monday with this sale.

We are entitled to the first second sale Monday and as Forbes & Morton liked but a little of finishing, their buyers will go to the Liberty and we have no idea these two sales will have as much as we have in our house for Monday's sale. This being true the buyers from the Liberty will go to the Star and those who start with us Monday will remain until we finish the whole house. Drive to Gorman's and you will go home satisfied that you have received the TOP of the market.

1st sale Monday, 4th sale Tuesday and 3rd sale Wednesday.
