

TWO WEEK TERM SUPERIOR COURT TO CONVENE HERE

Civil Court to Open Here Next Monday Morning With Judge Lloyd Horton of Farmville, Presiding

A two week term of Pitt county Superior court for the trial of civil cases will convene in this city next Monday morning with Judge J. Lloyd Horton of Farmville, presiding. The calendar for the term consists of about the usual number of cases which were chosen from the almost inexhaustible number which have been accumulating for the past four years. There are several matters of more than ordinary importance and will probably consume much time in disposition.

Considerable interest has been created by the approaching term owing to the fact that it will bring Judge Horton here for the first time since his election several months ago. He is a native of Pitt county having been Solicitor superior court here for years prior to his appointment to the bench and as his work in his capacity has elicited favorable comment from other parts of the state, hundreds of people will be present at the opening session simply to see the young Judge in his first endeavor in the county in which he was reared.

DIVERSIFICATION IN CROPS ADVOCATED FOR KENTUCKIANS

New Cropping System to Relieve Conditions Throughout the South Absolutely Necessary

Lexington, Ky. Mar. 14.—Diversification of crops and cropping system whereby the south may more nearly sustain itself are necessary, according to Dean Thomas P. Cooper of the State College of Agriculture here, who recently was chosen president of the Southern Association of Agriculture Workers. The farmer also should get a larger percentage of the value of his crops and a credit system that fits agriculture adopted, he said.

The south Dean Cooper said is more nearly organized under the county agent system than any other part of the country. A great deal of effective work has been carried on, he said. Speaking of the work being attempted in the south, Dean Cooper said: "The association of Southern Agricultural workers was organized twenty one years ago. Its membership comprises the agricultural colleges, experiment stations, extension divisions, commercial agents and agricultural representatives of the great transportation systems in the several southern states. The object of the association has been to unify and coordinate agricultural effort particularly to bring about greater co-operation in the experimental and investigational work in the conservation of funds thereby enlarging the opportunity for effective work and broadening the field of activity. Its studies, reports and conferences embrace the field of animal husbandry, crop development and the various economic aspects of finance marketing and tenancy as related to the farm problem of the south.

CRIMINAL COURT BEGINS PROBE IN BASEBALL ISSUE

Case Against Major League Baseball Players Charged With Throwing Games Taken Up This Morning

Chicago, Mar. 14.—The investigation into alleged gambling, bribery and game throwing in major league baseball was opened officially in September, 1920, when Judge Charles A. McDonald, Chief Justice of the Criminal Court, charged the Cook county grand jury with investigating reports which had come to his attention concerning fixed games, here today.

The grand jury investigation which followed, brought league presidents, club owners and star athletes to the witness stand. It finally resulted in the indictment of eight members of the world champion Chicago White Sox team, two former major league players and a former pugilist on charges that they had conspired for the White Sox team to deliberately lose games in the 1919 world series with the Cincinnati Reds. It also was charged that certain Sox players had accepted bribes ranging as high as $10,000 to throw games.

Through the investigation, a world champion team in a new deal for baseball with Federal Judge Kenesaw M. Landis as civilian baseball commissioner with supreme powers to run the professional game as he saw fit with the object of keeping crookedness out of it forever.

While Judge McDonald's charge to the grand jury was the official opening of the investigation by the state, there had been many rumors since the close of the 1919 world series that it had not been played on the square and testimony given the grand jury revealed that various baseball officials had conducted private investigations for months, but without definite results.

SAYS POPULATION IS DRIFTING BACK TO FARM SET

New York, Mar. 14.—A real estate firm of national-wide scope which in the past year sold 4,272 farms, valued at more than $20,000,000 from Maine to California, has made public at its offices here the interesting discovery that, for the first time in many years, there are signs of a change in the drift of population "away from the cities and back to the farms."

Recently announced Federal census statistics showed that the aggregate population of American cities, when the census was made six months or more ago, actually exceeded the aggregate population of the farming districts, a condition unprecedented in the country's history. This is explained by the fact that there was an influx of people from farming communities to the cities especially in the period of abnormal industrial activity during and immediately following the war. Thousands of farmers and members of their families came to factory localities where, for two or three years, they made big wages. With the slump following the general readjustment, however, these farmers, and, in many cases, idle city dwellers as well, are turning to the farms where labor has long been at a premium.

The records of the firm in question are said to show that during the past 20 years its sales have been made in almost unvarying proportion, two-thirds to farmers moving from one section or state to another and one-third to men from the cities. The present back-to-the-farm movement, however, it is declared, shows an almost exact reversal of these percentages, that is, two-thirds of the sales are now being made to men from the cities as against one-third to the farmers.

LITTLE BOY KILLED WHILE PLAYING ON TOBACCO TRUCK

George J. Schonburger, Jr., Caught Under Three Trucks and Was Killed Instantly

George J. Schonburger, Jr., the four year old son of Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Schonburger was killed yesterday afternoon at a quarter of four o'clock, when three tobacco trucks on which he was playing fell, catching him under them.

The little boy and his mother were here visiting his father who has been here for the past year as manager of the five and ten cent store, and were stopping at the Princeton Hotel. Mr. Schonburger had gone out to Hollywood to conduct Sunday school, leaving Mrs. Schonburger and the little boy at the hotel. For a while George Jr. amused himself by playing in the lobby, but the day being so warm he had coaxed his mother to allow him to go out, which she did, never dreaming of the danger which awaited him.

For a long time Forbes and Baker have used the lot between White's Theatre and Winslow's stables on trucks. The little boy before anyone realized the danger, had crawled on top of some tobacco trucks and three not being secure, fell and crushed the little life out before aid could reach him. Mrs. Schonburger, in a few minutes after the child went out, went in search of him and was the first to find that the terrible accident had occurred. Physicians were immediately summoned, but it was too late as the child was dead when taken from the trucks.

George Jr., was the oldest child, a two year old with Mrs. Schonburger's Alabama children. The children had been in Greenville. The parents in bright sayings, had ever visited in contact, he spent with the family during the week which everyone fell in love with his sad death cast a gloom over the entire community.

GREAT BRITAIN IS BADLY AFFECTED BY LABOR ISSUES

Unemployment Problems in Many Territories of United Kingdom

Lancaster, Mar. 14.—The unemployment question in Great Britain is still very serious but the belief is held in many quarters that the peak has been passed and a decline may be expected, says the American Chamber of Commerce here.

Wages combined with low output are given as the chief element in the high cost of production, but as yet few proposals have been made by employers for reductions. In certain industries and occupations where there is either a sliding scale based on the cost of living or where special bonuses are paid to meet increased cost, a reduction of wages will be automatic, according to the Chamber.

It was anticipated that the movement in the United States to reduce wages would be followed by a similar move in Great Britain, but British labor is in much stronger position and has expressed its decision to resist any reductions which may be threatened, says the American Chamber.

Dr. Poe Delivers Stirring Appeal To Farmers For More Organization In Marketing

Saint Patrick's Day Party Given To Senior Class

The Senior Class of the Training School on Saturday evening gave a delightful St. Patrick's Day party to the "B" class, or the last year academic, their little sisters. Green and white are the class colors of the trained class, therefore the St. Patrick's idea was especially appropriate. The parlors in West Dormitory decorated in the Irish Green and white. The punch bowl was a mass of green and white boxes, with shamrocks and filled with green drops. These were decorated in a unique manner.

The door bell rang, and in stepped a lady, with her little grandchild, a fairly like creature dressed with shamrocks sprinkled over and with a green sash tied in a shamrock bow. This was little Miss Louisa Hooker, who bore a big green box filled with the favors. The president of the B class, Miss Maggie Dixon was given the box and distributed the favors.

The entertainment features of the evening were enjoyable to the rival contestants, both B's and Senior. The first of these was a left hand writing contest, with one sheet of paper for the B's and one for the Seniors. The next was a spelling match, with the two classes matched against each other to see who could spell backward the words given out. In the last one girls from each class were selected and were shown some pitchers in the floor, and were told that they must watch carefully where these were, and when they came in blind folded girls moved around the room stepping high there was much fun watching them avoid the pitchers, which in the meantime had been removed.

The prizes were delivered at the end of the evening by Mrs. Beckwith. These were souvenir favors in green and white carrying out both the idea of St. Patrick's Day and using the colors of the honored class.

Editor of Progressive Farmer Declares Old "Dumping" Process Will Not Meet Future Demands

OUTLINES CONSTRUCTIVE PROGRAM FOR MARKETING COTTON AND TOBACCO CROPS

O. F. McCary, District Farm Agent, Speaks at Meeting At Court House Here This Afternoon

The absolute necessity for a definite and systematic way of marketing farm products, instead of the old dumping process which has existed among American farmers for years was set forth in a comprehensive and forceful manner at the court house in this city today by Dr. Clarence Poe, editor of the Progressive Farmer of Raleigh, in opening the co-operative campaign in this section of the state. It is absolutely imperative that immediate action be taken to eliminate further reckless dumping of tobacco and cotton on the market, the speaker declared or there is little hope that the future will witness any improvement over deplorable conditions of the past.

The address marked the beginning of an extensive campaign to be inaugurated in this county for furthering principles of the co-operative marketing plan, and was heard by a large delegation of farmers, bankers and business men representing every section of the county who practically filled the court room to overflowing when the meeting was called to order this afternoon at 1 o'clock. Active interest prevailed throughout the entire program and the way co-operative marketing is being received in other parts of the nation as explained by Dr. Poe was listened to in an unusually interesting manner.

Dr. Poe was introduced by Dr. O. O'H. Laughinghouse of this city, who spoke briefly of the great part which the principal speaker of the evening had played in improving farm conditions and advising the farmer of essential facts connected with the industry. He said the time had come for organized effort and that unless every farmer did his part that there is little hope for recovering from present conditions. Dr. Poe was followed by O. F. McCary, farm demonstrator of this district, who spoke along the same line, urging the acceptance of the marketing plan in order to save the future from bankruptcy and eventually ruin.

Dr. Poe said the principal object of the co-operative marketing plan is merely to substitute the old policy of dumping products on the market with the organized employed by labor, manufacturing and business organizations. As an illustration he pointed out the difference between every man offering his product to the market in a blind helpless manner to that of a body, organized and selling as one. If every individual man sold his labor or the product of his labor in this way, he declared, it would be exactly similar to the position which the American farmer is in today. If the merchant of large organization pursued such a course it would be because they were in a state of bankruptcy and unable to meet demands of their creditors. The farmer has no definite purpose of marketing except to get money. He carries his product to the buyer and sells it at whatever price he can get. If the price is low, he accepts it, and if perchance, it should be a above the average he in some measure is amply rewarded for his labor.

The California plan as recently presented before a large delegation of farmers and business men in Raleigh was explained fully, showing that it has proved a paying proposition from the beginning. The plan in a brief way provides for strict organization measures; to get a large per cent of growers of any one product to sign a legally binding agreement to market all they can produce through the marketing association; to have such an agreement seven years, and to pay salaries high enough to get the best business talent in America as marketing agent.

Monday Afternoon March 14

President Harding seems to be pretty good in handling nominations from the pile counter. If he succeeds as well in administration of the country's affairs it seems probable he will make a success after all.

National railway systems probably have a right to declare wage reductions in force. They paid extortionate prices to workmen ever since the war began, and deserve relief from such deplorable conditions. Workmen should accept the decrease in best of faith, and in this way help the country reach readjustment as early as possible.

Russian revolutionists want America to aid in the uprising around Kronstadt, claiming that its a little different from others. The invitation we are sure is mighty nice of Russia, but on the other hand America must refrain from accepting owing to distant for anything bordering warfare. If Russia wants to fight, let'er get all she wants. America has had enough.

Labor leaders have assailed efforts of railway officials to effect a general decrease in wages. That was to be expected but labor leaders as every one else must learn that abnormality is temporary and cannot possible exist even though it does effect several thousand railway laborers. It is unfair to expect high wages when prices are declining on practically all commodities, and if labor still contends high prices should exist it is up to the government to interfere and help establish better conditions.

It is apparent the peasant class of Russia is becoming thoroughly aroused over the exploits of Lenine and Trotzky, and there is every indication that they are getting tired of conditions which have been the result of principles of government. They have a right to get aroused, too, for if a change does not occur in the near future virtually every region will be years recovering. It is all right to be in war when there is a necessity for such, but Russia has no cause to continue fighting just because opinions of leaders happen to differ to such a great extent. The time for reconstruction has come, and if Russian leaders continue their attitude of belligerency it is right that some other nations intervene and bring about peace.

The Wilson tobacco market has sold some over fifty million pounds of tobacco this season, according to reports of the supervisor of sales presented to the public at closing of the market Friday. The record is an enviable one, but final reports of the Greenville market will give the Wilson market a mighty close race. Both markets are two of the greatest leaf centers in the country, and people have a right to be proud of them. Enormous sums of money are released daily from each market, and this is one reason why people declare this section of the state the garde nspot of the world.

The fact that North Carolina leads the nation in value of tobacco crops goes to show that "hard times" pleas are more of a shield for some folks than an actuality it is true prices have been considerably below the average while this year, but this doesn't set aside the fact that many have realized something out of their endeavors. It may be mighty convenient to plead hard times to the man who doesn't desire to square himself with his creditors, but it's mighty hard matter to convince the public that everyone is broke. There is too much talk of depressed conditions, and when this is the country will be on a sure road to prosperity.

The president has been holding a conference over the Esch-Cummings railroad act. This is a piece of legislation tending to protect the railroads at the expense of the public, and if Mr. Harding succeeds in eliminating objectionable features he will have rendered everyone a great service. There are too many such issues enacted into law, and if the country is relieved of many the future will hold greater prospects of progress. Mr Harding has promised a constructive administration and discouraging proposals tending to burden the public is about to begin.

Alabama tenants, like people in every part of the country, are endeavoring to find some way of curing their troubles, but they have started out the wrong way in resorting to night riding. There are many other ways of settling such troubles without defying the law, and when this is realized and lawlessness abandoned every section will come nearer solving their problems.

February building reports for the nation show a substantial increase over January. This fact is gratifying indeed, for many sections of the country have been suffering from severe shortage of houses for months, and even at this time there is no indication of relief. Right at this time when the price of labor and building material is on a decline it looks like prospective builders might find it to their advantage to erect homes and be among those knowing exactly where they are to put their heads at night. It is mighty convenient at times to hold money, but people with money and without a home are in an unenviable position. The time is ripe for extensive building operations, and it is assured everything will be much brighter when this takes place.

As Old as His Arteries

The doctor can't help it. He knows that the man has hard arteries, high blood pressure, and the beginning of kidney and heart disease, due to long neglected, chronic constipation.

It isn't the other man's fault—directly. He never realized that constipation was a serious thing. Year in and year out he has taken pills, castor oil, mineral waters and salts—and now he wonders why his health is so bad.

Nujol is for just such cases as this. It works on an entirely new principle.

Instead of forcing or irritating the system, it simply softens the food waste. This enables the many tiny muscles in the walls of the intestines, contracting and expanding in their normal way, to squeeze the food waste along so that it passes naturally out of the system.

Nujol thus prevents constipation because it helps Nature maintain easy, thorough bowel movements at regular intervals—the healthiest habit in the world.

Nujol is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take. Try it.

Nujol is sold by all druggists in sealed bottles only, bearing Nujol trade mark. Write Nujol Laboratories, Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey), 50 Broadway, New York, for booklet, "Thirty Feet of Danger".

Before we stock building materials of any kind, we first satisfy ourselves that they are the best in their line. We have a purpose, of course.

We couldn't stay in business if we didn't have your continued patronage. And long experience has proved to us that people don't come back unless they're satisfied with what they get.

Consequently, whether it's flooring, roofing, shingles or Beaver Board that you buy from us, you can be sure of its satisfactory result. We investigate first.

We're always glad to talk over building or remodeling and offer helpful suggestions. Why not come in and see us. No obligation whatever.
