BIG STEAM STILL CAPTURED IN RAID DOWN THE RIVER

Chief of Police Jones Makes an Important Haul in Visit Down the Tar

One of the most complete and up-to-date distilling plants to fall into the hands of county authorities was captured by Chief Lester Jones and Policeman Whitehurst Tuesday afternoon about a mile and a half down the river. The plant was operated by steam and contained all auxiliaries necessary to successful operation.

The still was not in operation when the officers arrived, but it showed signs of having been in frequent use recently. No men or whiskey were discovered and no arrests are expected to take place.

While many fine plants have been captured by county authorities in the past months, it is probable this surpassed anything yet taken. It was capable of enormous production, and no doubt played an important part in supplying the section with contraband beverage.

AYDEN MAN DIES SUDDENLY WHILE AT SEVEN SPRINGS

J. M. Dixon Passed Away While Visiting Springs to Recuperate

Mr. J. M. Dixon, about 55 years of age, well known citizen of Ayden, died unexpectedly at Seven Springs early this morning, according to a telephone message received by relatives at Ayden today. The deceased had been in declining health several months, but was thought to be improving. He went to Seven Springs Sunday in hope of recovering even more and sent word to relatives yesterday morning that he was feeling fine. As a result news of his death was received with distinct surprise this morning.

Funeral services will take place at the family burying ground probably tomorrow afternoon although arrangements had not been perfected at the noon hour today. He will be buried with Masonic honors, having been one of the oldest members of the Ayden lodge.

DORAN REPORTS FOR WORK WITH THE LOCAL CLUB

First of Regular Players Arrives to Begin Practice at an Early Date

Frank Doran, former third baseman of the Greenville baseball club who has been in Richmond since the closing of last season, arrived in the city today and reported to Manager Guy Smith. While two or three prospects have already reported Doran is the first real member of the club to appear for duty.

Manager Smith stated this morning that all players and prospects would report for duty by the 26th of this month when actual training and try-outs will begin. The season opens June 8th, and the various clubs will be forced to work rapidly to get the men in trim for opening games.

It is reported that New Bern will play a number of college men again this season owing to a change in college rulings, and it is expected other clubs will do likewise. Not quite so many college men will be in evidence this season, however, because of the participation of the two additional clubs. Farnville and Tarboro, it is understood, will be composed of men who haven't seen service in this league before, although it is certain they will be forced to use a few.

Greenville's line-up this season will be entirely different from last year although several old men will be seen in action on the infield. It is not known who will take Stringfield's place at short, but Mgr. Smith has assured the public of a dependable team and a man as good as "String" will hold down the busy place.

Conflicting reports regarding the hiring of players have been received from the various teams of the league, but these have caused no uncertainty among the managers, who have a definite line on their players and will be ready when the first ball is tossed. This is especially so in Greenville and it is certain other towns are situated the same way.

AMERICAN LEGION TO GIVE MINSTREL HERE ON JUNE 9TH

Local Post's Baseball Team to Challenge Winner Rotary-Kiwanis Game

All day yesterday the people up and down the street were asking why the "Majestic" the largest passenger ship afloat had docked at Greenville, and last night, they let the cat out of the bag at the regular meeting of the Pitt County Post American Legion, when it was announced that the Majestic had made its initial voyage across the Atlantic to bring Mlle. Vin Rouge, of Cognac France, to dance for the Pitt County Legionnaires last night.

On the way over Mlle. Vin Rouge's Pianist was lost in a ship wreck and the Majestic stopped at New York long enough to procure the services of Miss Ruth Andrews, formerly of Greenville, but now with the Metropolitan Opera Co., who accompanied her on the trip to Greenville. Her costume was collected from the four corners of the globe. She was wonderful. This will be one of the many features of our "Minstrel-Beauty Show" that is to be staged in Greenville on June 9th, 1922.

J. C. Lanier was made Captain of our baseball team which will challenge the winner of the Rotary-Kiwanis team any time they want it. If they want to they can put the best of the two together and we will lick the bunch. Let us know when you are ready and then fire.

Everybody else has been having mock trials so we had another last night. The accused was Legionnaire C. O'H. Laughinghouse. He was accused of everything and found guilty of nothing except what another real man will do when away from home. This was one of the features of the evening. Chief Lester Jones was appointed "Bouncer" for the Post. Our next meeting will be in Ayden, N. C. The Ayden members have invited us and the date will be announced later.

ONLY THREE CASES GIVEN HEARING IN CITY POLICE COURT

Outstanding Feature of Session Was Absence of Vagrant and Drunks

Only a small number of cases appeared before Mayor D. M. Clark in yesterday's session of police court, and adjournment was possible long before the usual hour.

An outstanding feature of the morning's session was the absence of vagrants. Heretofore the court has been crowded with characters unable to give a satisfactory account of their activity, but they were missing yesterday.

The sentences dealt out by Mayor Clark in other cases were probably responsible for the shortage, and it is hoped the improvement will continue to be in evidence.

The mayor and members of the police department have been very fortunate in holding crime down in the limits, and Greenville can probably boast of a better record than any other city of its size in this section of the state.

The first case to be given consideration yesterday morning was that against M. Porter, charged with driving an automobile while in an intoxicated condition. He was released upon a fine of $50 and cost.

Alonso Cherry, recently arrested on a charge of resisting an officer, was taxed to the amount of $15 and cost of action.

Cecil Cobb and P. O. Forbes, charged with assault on a woman, were bound over to county court for June 5th.

Members of Greenville Pitt Shrine Club to Take Part in Parade Today

Members of the Greenville-Pitt Shrine club left this morning for Kinston where they will attend the spring ceremonial of Sudan Temple which opens there today. Kinston has been making elaborate preparations for entertaining the visitors and from all indications the gathering will be the best in years.

The parade of the Shriners which took place this morning was one of the most brilliant features of the ceremonial. Several hundred members of the organization were in line, and presented an attractive appearance in bright uniforms. Kinston's main streets have been rewired for the occasion and at night the city is a regular blaze.

While the Greenville-Pitt Shrine club is in its infancy its membership is quite active in everything pertaining to organization activity. Several members left last night, the remainder leaving this morning by automobiles despite the torrential downpour of rain.

(By International News.) ## QUIET RESTORED IN BALTIMORE RIOTING

City Quiet After Disorder Resulting from Prohibition Agent Activity

(By International News.) Baltimore, May 18.—Quiet has been restored following a riot lasting several hours, in which missiles were hurled at prohibition agents who seized a half million dollars worth of liquors at the residence at Joseph Kelly, who was also badly injured. Negroes who had been hired to drive and load trucks were dragged from their vehicles and beaten. A riot call was sent into the police department, and several reserves responded. Thousands of people gathered at the scene in a short time.

LARGE BALL PARK BEING ERECTED BY FARMVILLE PEOPLE

Large Park with Comfortable Grandstand and Bleachers Under Construction

EVERYTHING TO BE IN READINESS FOR OPENING OF SEASON

Public Urged to Support the Team in Large Numbers Right in Beginning

Farmville people are getting ready for opening of the Eastern Carolina league season, and when the first ball is tossed it will find them with a brand new ball park. Buildings at the park have been under construction for some time, but will not be completed until the latter part of this month because of a severe shortage of lumber.

The grandstand will be one of the largest in the entire league. It will be capable of seating around twelve hundred people in a pinch, and this will be sufficient to accommodate any crowd the town is likely to have during the first season. However, the grandstand will not be the only seating place for the large crowds as adequate bleachers will also be erected to take care of that great number of people who like to be a little nearer the diamond than the grandstand. Colored people will be looked after also and the opening of the season will see them provided with seats near the diamond where they may root as much as they like. The fence around the park of course will contain advertisements of city business houses. The advertisements will be sold to help defray expenses of building the park, and indications point to much success in this direction.

This is the first season Farmville has ever participated in the Eastern Carolina league, but they don't mean to make a showing like beginners by any means. They believe a strong set of players have been picked and expect to make a commendable showing right in the beginning, although no one expects to set the world aside. A considerable amount of money has been expended in the ball park, and if any progress is made in repaying expenditures it will be necessary for the public to turn out to the games in large numbers, whether the team is a winning one or not. Some good baseball is promised and that's sufficient assurance for anybody.

CONTINUE PLANS TO LOWER PRICES

Government Takes First Steps in Preventing Skyrocketing of Coal Prices

(By International News.) Washington, May 18.—The government's first step to prevent coal prices from sky rocketing at the mines was taken today when Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover asked forty leading non-union producers to voluntarily establish a clearing house, with committees composed of their own members, to restrain competitive bidding on the part of buyers so as to hold prices at normal level.

DISCUSS ART AS NATIONAL ASSET

Washington, May 18.—Art as a national asset was the general theme for discussion on the program for the thirteenth annual convention of the American Federation of Arts which opened here today with an address by Robert W. De Forest, president of the federation.

The delegates later in the day were to be received at the white house by Mrs. Harding, and reassembling tonight, were to hear address by Chief Justice Taft, Ambassador Gerard of France.

The Russian government intends to fulfill all obligations, according to Leon Trotsky. American people are certainly glad to hear it, especially if the fulfillment is to be expected any time soon.

The Republican machine has been beaten in the State of Pennsylvania. That may sound like something out of the ordinary to Pennsylvania people but to the Democrats it's a mere indication that sentiment is turning the corner towards better things.

Despite the outcome of the Geneva conference, Russia will carry out all intentional obligations, according to information made public this week. The government is to be commended for taking this attitude in the issue and if they stick to the decision the world will have more respect for its people.

When considering the great havoc wrought by storms and floods in other sections of the country it is certain Pitt county and Eastern North Carolina have been signally blessed. Farmers have enjoyed greater prosperity in past years than all others, and they should be thankful.

President Harding has invited a number of steel magnates to take dinner at the White House. If he favors the proposed merger of the large steel corporations the magnates may stand in large numbers, but if his sympathy is against it he may expect the crowd to be small. The public doesn't favor the monopoly, and if the president wants to gain favor he had better take the same attitude.

FAILURE OR SUCCESS FOR GRAIN GROWERS

(By E. G. NOURSE.)

Farm Journal, May 1922.

We asked Professor Nourse, who is economist at the Iowa Agricultural College, to write this article because we knew his views as to the chances of success of the national co-operative marketing organizations. As to the economic soundness of the plans for the U. S. Grain Growers there is room for some difference of opinion, but Professor Nourse's argument is that of a careful student of economics and history, and as such can not be disregarded.

The Grain Growers' meeting for permanent organization at the end of March developed weak spots even beyond those pointed out on this page. Commenting on it, Professor Nourse says: "Unfortunately, it appears that either there was a lack of able and inspiring leadership, or a failure in the wisdom and loyalty of the delegates perhaps a little of both. Instead of removing misunderstandings and relieving the internal friction which been growing for some time, it looks as though the breach had been widened, and a split into two or perhaps three factions would be the result."

The meeting ended with a sweeping victory for the administration, which held a small but solid majority. The opposition is strong, active, and determined. The issue no man knoweth, but it seems hardly possible that an organization which must fight so many and so powerful outside enemies can at the same time carry on internal civil war, and live.

Roughly speaking, the farmers will have invested two-thirds of a million dollars by the end of the first year of promotion work on the U. S. Grain Growers, Inc. This has meant a real sacrifice in a hard-times year. Further, farmers have invested in the movement something infinitely more important—their hope and faith in co-operative principle. If that is lost co-operation will be set back a generation. The whole farmers' organization movement will reel from the shock.

There has never been a time when so much attention in the United States has been focused on the question of marketing, as now. Never a time when such large plans of cooperative selling were actually under way. Never a time when the opportunity was so good to set the powerful machinery of modern business methods work, under the co-operative form, in the service of the farmers. To paraphrase a well-known poem:

The hopes and fears of many years
Are hanging on its fate.

But sincere good will towards the cooperative movement, does not mean patting every mistaken or hypocritical promoter of cooperative organizations on the back, nor climbing on every band-wagon that has "cooperative" painted on its side in big red letters. The best friend of any organization is the one who keeps his eyes open and his judgment cool, and who will not let his enthusiasm carry him away from cold facts.

Every genuine cooperator is not only willing, but anxious to discover any weak spots in present plans while yet they may be remedied. And I believe that there are some spots in present day cooperation which need timely examination and careful repair. Several of these recent organizations have been built very rapidly, and it is too much to believe that no defects have crept in.

Weak Spots in the U. S. Grain Growers

What then are the chances of success of failure for the U. S. Grain Growers? It has only just begun to sell grain. Its enormous labors have been consumed in promoting itself. And yet it has both succeeded and failed already. It has failed to accomplish the great results promised by the young prophet who made the keynote speech on July 23, 1920, when Committee of Seventeen was first proposed, which was to have been the guaranteeing of a cost-of-production price to the grain grower. It has failed, also, to do the things promised in the report of the Committee of Seventeen, namely, setting up a great grain-selling, storing, financing and exporting concern which would be a controlling factor in the market. It has failed to put the grain exchanges and grain gamblers out of business. There seems no immediate prospect that any of these things will be done.

The directors have now laid aside the pretty pictures of terminal elevators, have put their finance corporation scheme on the shelf, and have stopped playing with the dynamite stocks of the grain export business (with which the co-operative wheat growers of Canada so nearly ruined their own prize infant.) They are now proposing to secure seats on the principal grain exchanges, and to sell grain after the fashion of other grain commission firms.

If this is failure, they have failed. But if it means coming down out of the rosy clouds of make-believe and getting their feet on solid ground, then it can be called by a kinder name than failure. To me it seems the first necessary step toward ultimate success—if wisely followed up. To be sure it has cost a lot of money, and involved a delay of many months only to get back to the point where any group of trained marketing men might have started nearly two years ago. In the meantime, scarcely a step has been taken toward organizing the farmers' grain trade on business lines, so as really to bring the benefits of more efficient and more economical marketing to the grower.

What is Failure?

If we are to have a complete co-operative grain-marketing system, its terminal activities must grow logically and naturally out of a well-organized, co-ordinated, successful, and permanently established country grain-shipment system, and this we do not have today. A state-wide survey of farmers' elevators in Iowa just completed by the Experiment Station shows clearly how much short of a good business standard they fall. We have had, in Iowa, one farmers' elevator movement which blew up; later, which achieved results of enormous value, but which settled down into a kind of rut. Now we should turn this present great interest in co-operation to full account, by taking firm hold of the so-called farmers' elevators, making them fully co-operative and highly efficient, as the only broad and stable foundation upon which a successful grain-marketing organization can be built.

Country Elevators Are Not "All Right."

The committee of seventeen believed that if we were to jump into the terminal markets with a big aggregation of grain producers, hastily corralled into a selling agency by a sign-on-the-dotted-line drive, that very large marketing saving, or higher prices, or both, could be secured. They apparently assumed that the country elevator was all right or could take care of itself. More careful investigation would have shown them that the leaks and losses at the country station are enormous under present conditions, that great savings at the terminal are not so easy to secure, and that the real benefit which can be had must in large measure await the improvement and extension of what co-operative grain-marketing machinery now exists.

But there is a very real sense in which the U. S. Grain Growers, Inc., has already succeeded. It has shown the grain trade and the grain exchanges that unless they put their business on a basis of service to the farmer, he is quite capable (even if he does make a few blunders at the start) of putting in the field an agency of his own that will relieve them of their job. They are wise men, and a word to the wise is sufficient. They know that they must not only put their facilities and skill at the farmer's call on a charge as low as it can be provided, but must demonstrate the fact to the producer, or he will turn his business into another channel.

Keeping the Grain Trade on Its Toes

It would be exceedingly beneficial to have U. S. Grain Growers in the business of selling grain, even on a small scale. Only so would the private trader be kept on his toes, without slipping back into the ways so easy for himself and costly to the farmer, when he has the whole business for his private oyster. We need the U. S. Grain Growers in active operation also, to search out every short cut and more direct channel which can be opened up between the grower and the buyer, since quite a quantity of grain could well be kept out of the central markets altogether. It is not necessary that the grain growers sell all their own grain, if they have private dealers competing with each other to hold a share of the business, and fully aware that the farmers have a going concern which they can and will expand, the moment they are convinced that they are not receiving maximum service at a minimum charge.

It will take time for the U. S. Grain Growers to build up a business organization, but slowly developing success is better than a swift catastrophe. The leaders of the promotional campaign must give way to the best practical grain men who can be secured, and both present pay and future opportunity must be assured to men of this caliber. But they must avoid the common mistake of thinking that a small man becomes big by raising his pay check.

It is possible that the grain already signed up is more than the new organization can handle most effectively, and that some should be released for the season of 1922. The strong desire for a big sign-up is largely a hang-over from the earlier day, when the enthusiasts of the movement thought they were going to "control" the market. The organization should perfect a system of handling grain at the terminal markets co-operatively, and let size come only as a natural growth. Above all, they must come to realize the vital importance of the local elevator; they must build their second and third lines of defense strongly, before they try to advance on a wide front into new and hostile territory.

Price Control a Rainbow

The alternative to all this is that the organization shall continue chasing the rainbows of price control,—of trying to beat out skilled, powerful and highly organized traders by the mere bluff of a lot of grain signed over to a loosely built concern, headed by men of high purpose and integrity, but of no marked business ability or experience. And also, alas, by others who, without either ability or worthy purpose, are in for what there is in it.

I am not anxious to be a prophet of evil but it seems that unless the U. S. Grain Growers soon establish a sound and practicable business policy, then the next year will probably see one more and probably the most spectacular of the blow-ups that have so lamentably and so needlessly strewn the pathway of co-operation in America. Once more, people will sadly admit that co-operation is a failure. The failure will not be in the co-operative plan, but in the unwillingness of leaders to learn the true principles which they are assuming to put in practice. Unless we settle down to the slower but sure methods of genuine co-operation, we can not say we have given the system a fair chance.

WHY "WAIT AND SEE?"

I have always heard "figures did not lie" but when juggled and connected with misstatements as was done in the advertisement which the Wilson Times is given credit for in your Wednesday's issue they sure are far from true.

The party who did the figuring, if he did it honestly, shows his ignorance as to the Buying Contract of the association, the same as is being done in the other propaganda his co-knockers are circulating.

The management of the Kentucky association is satisfactory to its members. The statement made by its officers and quoted in N. C. by the Carolina association, were made to its directors and any sane man knows no business man would make a statement to his directors which his books would not confirm, certainly not in Kentucky.

The truth of the whole matter is the opposition has not a single sane reason why a farmer should not pool his tobacco. They know their only hope is to mislead or scare him and they do not hesitate to make, or quote any dignitary statement they may secure, in their efforts to defer the signing of the contracts and break down the morale of those who have signed. Any tobacco man knows that fully a third of the past two crops (in pounds under the auction system has been sold far below its value and that had this tobacco not been dumped on the market but redried and sold as the trade needed it, that the farmers in the bright tobacco belt would have received several million dollars more and that this section would have its share of this lost cash.

If the opponents of the co-operative movement can advise you how they will or can under the auction system, stop this enormous loss to the tobacco planters they will do their cause far more good than by the tactics they are now using. In my opinion the plan of the co-operative marketing is the only remedy and same will not be anything like as expensive to handle, as the opponents would have you believe.

Adv. J. N. GORMAN.

BEAUFORT FARMERS TURN OUT FOR SPEECHES ON MARKETING

This is a head line for an account of meeting recently held at Washington, N. C. The meeting was addressed by several prominent gentlemen, the Star of the occasion being Major Joyner, we presume a son of the Hon. J. Y. Joyner. We wish all interested tobacco men including farmers, could read what Joyner had to say. If the Major is a kinsman of the Hon. J. Y., they had better compare notes before making speeches, for we find that they are at variance in certain statements. In his address Major Joyner made the following statement:

"The Kentucky tobacco was marketed in February so that in these three months the growers see what the co-operative plan is doing. Referring to the association he said it was not dominated by any one. You, as members elect the directors who manage it. It is organized for you and every cent realized less actual expense, you get. You are not required to deliver all your tobacco at one time. Advances will be made when required to the amount of at least one third of the value of the tobacco delivered.

(A voice—We were promised 60 per cent, what about it?)

Major Joyner, your contract does not specify any price but I can assure you that you will get as much as the banker says he can advance no matter whether it is 10 per cent or 60 per cent. All tobacco marketed goes into a pool and becomes the property of the association."

We wonder how many people remember that Mr. J. Y. Joyner said in his reply to the Editor of this Journal, that farmers would receive or that it was almost a certainty that they would receive as much in the advance that would be made as the entire crop sold for this tobacco year. See the difference in the statements?

In his speech Joyner said:
"Under the old plan of buying the grower had to take just what was offered him. Now the buyer has to pay just what the growers say he shall pay. The growers fix the prices not the buyer, so that it is now come to us. The growers are organized into a legal identity. You can control your output just as the American Tobacco Company can do and does with their products. The question is asked. How are you going to finance this thing? Can the money be raised? I do not think this will bother you at all as you have some of the biggest brains to be had at the head of it."

Now we all know, that under the present system a farmer owns his tobacco and controls it until a sale is made. Under the proposed system the farmer turns his tobacco over to the Co-operative concern for five years—and he (the farmer) has nothing more to say about the sale, etc. Farmers and business men are investigating the proposed plan and we shall see what we shall see.—Southern Tobacco Journal.

HON. JOHN WANAMAKER

Was asked how it was that he became the largest insurer in the United States, carrying sixty-two policies, and gave these five reasons in reply.

1. That he was insurable and accident or ill health, might come at any moment when he would not be insurable.
2. That life insurance was one of the best forms of investment because it gave after one deposit an instant guaranty that would repay principle and interest and more.
3. That life insurance in the long run was a saving fund that not only saved but took average care of any deposits and took him into partnership, into possible profits that not infrequently returned principle and interest and profit.
4. That life insurance regarded from the standpoint of quick termination, was more profitable than any other investment he could make.
5. That it enabled a man to give away all he wished during his lifetime by providing an estate for those left behind. Consult us.

enjoyed delicious Karo last year —on pancakes, biscuits and served as a spread for children. Also for cooking, baking and candy-making.
Remember Karo home-made candy is best for children—and here is a simple recipe to follow:

- Peanut Brittle
1 cup Karo, Blue Label
1 cup Brown Sugar
2 teaspoons Mace
2 tablespoons Butter
1 cup Shelled Peanuts
- Boil sugar, Karo and water until it is crisp when dropped in cold water. Just before taking from fire add Mace and nut. Pour into tin oiled with Maceola.
