

GOVERNMENT STILL SEEKING TO UPHOLD STRIKE INJUNCTION

Attempt to Show Effort of Strikers to Interfere With Railway Traffic

MOTION OF DEFENSE FOR MODIFICATION IS AGAIN DEFERRED

Judge Wilkerson Maintains Right of Government to Protect Public Rights

Chicago, Sept. 12. — With more than 20,000 affidavits charging assaults by strikers and strike sympathizers on railroad workers in every section of the country, the government today launched its endeavor to show converted effort by the striking shop crafts to interfere with interstate traffic by driving railroad employees from their work.

Over ruling the objections of attorneys for B. M. Jewell and John Scott, the strike leaders, Federal Judge Wilkerson admitted the affidavits in evidence for the time being at least, in the hearing on the government's bill for a temporary injunction against some 240 shopcraft officials and their followers.

The court likewise deferred for the present argument on the defense motion for modification of the temporary restraining order now in force. He ruled that the government's contention that the dominant purpose of the alleged conspiracy is the destruction of interstate traffic would be a vital factor in determining whether the unions were entitled to any modification in the order, and directed the government to proceed with the evidence on which it expects to prove that claim.

The value as evidence of the affidavits of persons assaulted by the strikers and strike sympathizers, or affidavits of public of railroad officials claiming knowledge of such assaults, was vigorously opposed by Donald R. Richberg and Frank Mulholland, attorneys for Mr. Jewell and Mr. Scott. They fought their introduction and entered a general objection to all of them that the government may produce.

The affidavits, they declared, are at the best only secondary evidence, and they fail, they added, to show any connection between their clients and the perpetrators of the acts of violence complained of.

A few isolated acts of violence among 400,000 men on strike are insignificant in themselves, Mr. Richberg declared. "They would occur even in an army under military discipline," he said, "and an army of 400,000 men would have to have courts martial to deal with such cases, yet the existence of the army could not be called a conspiracy because of those scattered affairs."

PLAN TO PREVENT EXCESS PROFITS IN COAL INDUSTRY

(By International News.)

Washington, Sept. 13 — Government forces are seeking to prevent coal profiteering during the coming winter. A scheme planned to prevent the accumulation of large stocks of coal has been decided upon. The matter of price regulation will be threshed out completely at a meeting Friday by representatives of private coal consumers and public utilities.

IRATE JANITOR STOPS SESSION OF LABOR HEADS

With Mop and Broom in Hand Janitor Demands Strike Leaders to End Session

JEWELL DECLARES GREATER PROGRESS EXPECTED TODAY

At Least, Session Will be Expected to Go Along Without Interruption

Chicago, Sept. 12. — A janitor put a sudden end to negotiations seeking a basis for settlement of the railway shop crafts strike today when with a mop and broom in hand, he ordered the union leaders out of the hall in which they were meeting. And they left, adjourning until tomorrow morning without taking any definite action.

It was the most critical period of the day's session, that the janitor intent on performing his duty of preparing the hall for another meeting, knocked loudly for admittance on the door behind which the Shop Crafts Policy Committee of ninety was in session.

"You fellows gotta get outa here at five sharp," the janitor demanded. "I gotta clean up for some wamin'."

The demand was transmitted direct to B. M. Jewell strike leader, who had just finished an impassioned appeal and a vote was in immediate prospect. But with the lease on the hall expiring in ten minutes, the proceedings were halted while efforts were made to obtain a few minutes grace from the janitor and then from the building authorities. When these efforts failed, the adjournment was ordered.

Gathering newspapermen about him Mr. Jewell issued the following statement for publication: "The meeting has adjourned today to meet tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock without any action having been taken. We hoped to get somewhere today, but our meeting was unfortunately interrupted."

These few words, Mr. Jewell said, were all he cared to give out for publication.

Today's session was marked by an apparent lessening of the tenseness that surrounded the meetings yesterday. The men appeared more jovial today and the leaders seemed more cheerful.

AUDIT OF FREIGHT BILLS ADVOCATED BY CITY CHAMBER

Merchants Can Save Money by Having Paid Bills Looked Over by Traffic Experts

(Auspices Pitt County Chamber of Commerce.)

Merchants and other business men having any amount of freight, from time to time, are asked to keep all of their paid freight bills. These bills mean money to you.

Even though you have paid the required amount of freight, yet it may be that you have been overcharged and that you are entitled to a refund. This is where the Pitt County Chamber of Commerce comes in to serve you.

Arrangements have been made with a Traffic Bureau, whereby all of your paid freight bills will be audited without any cost on your part, and you will share in the amounts collected on a fifty-fifty basis. The Bureau that does the auditing gets fifty per cent and the individual or the firm for whom the bills are audited gets fifty per cent.

The Chamber of Commerce benefits in this matter to the extent of ten per cent, which amount comes from the Bureau's part. This amount is given the Chamber of Commerce for acting as their local agent, collecting bills, making settlement, etc.

Who is entitled to this service? Every business house in Pitt county. If you are now enjoying the benefits from this connection, you are asked to continue with your present connection. If you are not now having your bills audited, you are asked to bring all of your old paid freight bills to the office of the Pitt County Chamber of Commerce, where Secretary Smith will explain in detail the benefits to be derived.

The Bureau now serving a large per cent of the firms of Pitt county, is a most excellent connection. They produce results. You are urged to keep your bills and deliver to no one other than a known representative. This statement is made in view of the fact that other Bureaus will be calling from time to time.

STIRRING SCENES TO FEATURE PLAY IN CITY TONIGHT

"Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come" Literally Tingles With Novel Features

The greatest of the season's productions "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come" comes to White's Theatre tonight.

The dramatization of this widely read novel, which as thousands of book readers know, is from the pen of John Fox, Jr., the author of "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" is by Sidney Toler, the clever dramatist who has written many successful plays his latest being "Golden Days."

The production has a sumptuous scenic mounting. From all accounts the play is as delightful as the book, for the beauty of the book has been redoubled on the stage. The strong New York Company portrays the stirring scenes of the book in a delightful manner.

SEVERAL CASES GIVEN HEARING IN CIVIL COURT

Twelve of Fifteen Cases Disposed of in Second Day's Session of Term

ONLY UNIMPORTANT ISSUES FEATURED THE DAY'S HEARING

Absolute Divorce Granted in Two Separate and Distinct Cases

The civil term of Pitt county superior court which convened in this city Monday morning with Judge Thomas H. Calvert, of Raleigh, presiding, continued to move along smoothly yesterday and when the day's work was completed some twelve or fifteen cases had been disposed of.

There were no really important actions given hearing during the session, and this resulted in the court being able to clear the calendar rapidly. While most of the cases had been recently entered for trial some of them had been hanging fire several months and caused officials to make greater effort to completely dispose of them.

The case of R. D. Harrington against Henry Tripp was dismissed. In the case of Martha Moyer against A. M. Allen, and Roy Allen, administrators of J. T. Allen the plaintiff was awarded judgment for the sum of $14.

Non-suit was ordered in the case of C. T. Munford against H. Harvey Briley. James Williams was awarded $25 against James Davis, director general of railroads.

Divorce absolute was granted to Cora Baker against Augustus Baker, both residents of this county.

Absolute divorce was also granted in the case of Allie Dupree against Joshua Dupree.

No judgment was returned in the action of R. Mobley against W. W. Moore.

The National Packing Company was awarded judgment for $44.55 against A. C. Jackson and Fred Broadwell, trading as A. C. Jackson & Company.

Non suit was ordered in the case of J. R. Abeyounis against American Express Company.

SHIPPING BOARD SELLS WAR TIME WOODEN VESSELS

Fleet of 226 Sailing Vessels Sold Yesterday for Sum of $750,000

SHIPS WERE BUILT DURING THE WAR AT COST OF $300,000,000

Not to be Used in Competition With Shipping Board Fleet at Present

Washington, Sept. 12. — The Shipping Board today got rid of its "white elephant."

The great fleet of wooden vessels conceived during the war as a means of rapidly bridging the Atlantic, was knocked down at private competitive sale to George D. Perry of San Francisco. The price, $750,000 for 226 vessels, all but ten of the entire wooden fleet—was considered a bargain as evidence by spirited bidding which rapidly ran the offer from a first bid of $406,000 to $750,000, which was accepted by Chairman Lasker and other members of the Shipping Board.

The wooden fleet was built at a cost of approximately $300,000,000.

When the bids reached the sum of $624,000, Mr. Lasker called the board which sat in at the sale, into executive session to determine whether the sale should be continued on the unit basis or in lots. The former, course was accepted and the bidding from then was largely between Mr. Perry and the Dravo Contracting Company of Pittsburgh. The latter finally stopped at $749,000. Mr. Perry's representative then offered $750,000.

Of the fleet, 217 vessels are wooden and nine are of wood and steel. Two hundred and eleven are now at Charleston, Virginia, 43 at Orange, Texas, and two at Beaumont, Texas. One of the conditions of the sale was that they were not to be used for ship and that they would be dismantled within a reasonable time.

Chairman Lasker said after the sale he thought the successful bidder expected to dispose of the ships as scrap.

SHIRLEY LAUNCHES BROADSIDE AGAINST THE COOPERATIVES

Comment on Statements Made Recently by Oliver J. Sands

CAN'T UNDERSTAND HOW FARMERS ARE TO BE LAWSUITED

Is Watching Outcome of the Watts Case With Much Interest

To the Editor: The article in The News and Observer of September 8th, "Up to the farmer to show his faith," by Oliver J. Sands, manager of the Tri-State Tobacco Growers' Co-Operative association, isn't exactly clear to me. It has a tinge of preparing for the death of the child. I thought all the time the child was sick, but it never dawned on me that double pneumonia had set in, and in both lungs.

Mr. Sands said sometime ago that the association had a credit of $30,000,000 with the War Finance Corporation—and he said in the article of September 8th: "We have arranged for all the money we need, and some 250 banks throughout the tobacco sections and a number of the leading banks throughout the country whom we have approached, have given us liberal lines of credit." I don't understand exactly who the "we" and "us" in the above statement refers to—because in the same article Mr. Sands is quoted as saying: "If the banks and merchants will make these additional loans to the farmers, and will help to relieve them of pressing needs, it is reasonable to suppose that the next advance made by the association will more than liquidate these small loans."

Why should the merchants and bankers throughout the tobacco sections be asked to help relieve the farmers of pressing needs? That's all they have been doing for the past two or three years—and they have gotten their fill of it. What they need now is the payment of these loans, advances, credits, or whatever you choose to call it. The co-operative growers association told the world that they had all the money they needed—if they have, they might pay their membership a bit more as a first payment on their tobacco. What's $8.75 per hundred pounds? What can that farmer do with a little dab of money? He hasn't enough to pay the merchant, or the bank, or the fertilizer company, or any one else. And he knows it, so he doesn't pay anybody, but spends his mite for present needs at home. And that's not the worst of it—he doesn't know when he is going to receive any more. The association hasn't made a second payment in South Carolina yet—for Mr. Sands says: "If sales continue at the present rate, we should be ready to make a second payment to our South Carolina members in the near future." Promises don't pay bills very well. The farmers went into the thing believing that he was going to get more money than he had by the old method—but has he? Or will he? Ask the peanut growers their experience. The association members in the tobacco belt, lot of them, are just about as well pleased as the peanut farmers. One farmer selling on the open market gets $29.67 per hundred pounds, and gets it in cold cash, right then and there—while his next door neighbor gets $8.75 per hundred pounds, and a certificate for some more "sometime in the future," he hopes. We are all hoping for the best—but the case is critical, and the child is liable to pass away any minute.

I have my doubts about Mr. Sapiro pushing that case of Garret Watts, the Kentuckian who sold his tobacco outside the association—for if Mr. Watts wins his case, he has let down the bars for the rest of the goats to pass out. And Mr. Sapiro is a smart fellow, he knows this. Let's see if he pushes the Watts case.

County officials shouldn't forget that speeding still continues on the hard surfaced roads. The same element insists on running over the limit established by the law and unless something is done their activity will assume greater proportions. If you desire to see conditions improve bring what pressure you can upon officials and see if they won't provide sufficient traffic officers to improve the situation, even should it only be temporary.

Continued improvement in the condition of Mrs. Harding will be greeted with interest on all sides. The fact that she is the first lady of the land causes everyone to watch her movements with interest and to mourn with her in case of adverse of the slightest kind. Her illness is the first to occur since the president was indicted into office over a year ago and if it had terminated as seriously as at one time expected the White House would be overcast by impenetrable gloom for months to come.
Mrs. Harding has been quite active in social development since her entrance into Washington city society.
She has been able to accomplish much in behalf of humanity and this has done much to attract the public towards her. While partisan jealousy may cause everybody from giving the first lady of the land credit for what she has done, she may be consoled

Everyone will be glad to learn that the strike of textile workers in Rhode Island has been brought to an end.
The workers agreed to return to work when manufacturers yielded to their demand for restoration of old wage scales. They had been off the job about eight months, and no one can doubt that their return was greeted with general satisfaction on every side. While both factions are probably to blame for the strike, it is very likely the twenty-five thousand men and women involved learned a lesson they won't soon forget.
There is nothing that demoralizes industry like strikes and other forms of labor disorder and no one realizes it more than those who live in communities where the strikers reside.
The workers are not only forced to fall back on funds saved up for a rainy day, but are compelled to make debts they will be years in paying.
That the Rhode Island workers are affected in this way after spending eight months in idleness is not to be questioned. But they have paid the price of their folly, and the long months following in which they will recover should help them realize how futile it is to lose thousands of dollars to get a few cents raise in pay.

A RIFT IN THE CLOUDS.

There is a slight rift in the clouds which have been hovering over the country as result of the railroad and coal strike, and from all indications the next few weeks will see final settlement in both controversies.

The separate wage agreement, proposed a few days ago with the success of his ending the strike was such in the end and the workers should result in something favorable.

That the time for settlement has come is all too evident in the case of the railroad, the strikers and workers affected. And unless some definite decision is reached damage to American industry will be incalculable. How much the country has already suffered cannot be estimated or easily as some guess. Not only the railroad and mine operators are affected in this enormous loss, but practically every branch of business has felt it and will continue to feel it so long as the strikers impatiently mark time, expecting some chance of fortune to bring things to an end.

The situation has been brought on by a desire of the workmen to maintain old wage scales, and it is now up to them to agree to at least one of the proposals presented them.
Amicable settlement will never occur
so long as main issues are dodged, and unless the strikers immediately decide to return to their jobs and make the best of it no one can tell what the outcome of the great tie-up of transportation will mean to the country.

TWO FINE ORGANIZATIONS.

Greenville has the finest clubs in the state, and they have accomplished things the public has right to be genuinely proud of.

At this time the Kiwanis club is making an effort to establish a playground at the ravine in close proximity to the high school building and the Rotary club to provide an open air swimming pool on property immediately in rear of the beautiful home on Rotary avenue. These two propositions alone reflect great credit upon the thoughtfulness of the two organizations and indicate a spirit of thrift and aggressiveness that is gratifying indeed.

The playground is something the city has needed for many a year. It will afford an opportunity for greater physical development of our children who need something beside training of the mind to make them the type of men and women we would have them to be.

While the swimming pool also will provide a medium for physical development, it is of an entirely different class from the playground, and also just as necessary to the welfare and happiness of the juvenile. They will be acquaintances every boy and girl will be intensely interested in and would feature prominently in moulding their young lives for the great problems of life.

Members of the two clubs are to be congratulated in this commendable effort to better conditions, and may rest assured the public will appreciate what they have done.

COUNTY WELFARE BOARDS PROMOTE CHILD CARE IN RURAL DISTRICTS

Washington, Sept. 13.—The most recent administrative advances in the local care of dependent, defective, and delinquent children are described in a report just issued by the United States Department of Labor through the Children's Bureau, entitled "County Organization for Child Care and Protection." Administration of care for neglected, handicapped, or delinquent children by local boards of citizens, employing trained workers and aided by State boards, is, according to the report, the plan which is gaining approval in a constantly increasing number of States.

Within recent years laws requiring or permitting some form of county welfare organization of broad scope have been passed in Arkansas, Minnesota, Missouri, North Carolina, and Virginia, while counties, private agencies, or state boards in Alabama, Florida, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and South Carolina are working out similar plans without special legislative action. County organization concerned mainly with the care of dependent children is found in Arizona, Indiana, New York and Ohio.

The report summarizes recent developments in these states and presents detailed accounts of the methods used in Minnesota, North Carolina, California, New Jersey, and New York, where county organizations for child care are especially well developed. These accounts are written, in each case, by the persons who have been most directly concerned in working out the plan described.

In the past, according to the report, the development of preventive and constructive activities for children in rural sections usually depended on the willingness of some private individual or group to assume the financial obligation, but today county commissioners in many states are finding it sound economy to make an appropriation for this purpose. The recent rapid growth of county welfare work has come about largely as a result of the development of state-wide plans, but local organizations are usually put into effect only after the county has indicated a desire for it. "There can be no welfare department unless supervisors are ready to have it," says the Secretary of the California State Board of Charities and Corrections, while the Directors of the Minnesota Children's Bureau de-

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 12.—Clarence McCoy, of Norwood, is a handy man with a driver. He was driving home in his sedan the other night when the wheels skidded on wet street car rails and the car turned over. He and his wife, who was holding their sleeping baby in her arms, crawled out unhurt and McCoy took in at a glance that the auto was not damaged. He caught hold of the top and gave a mighty heave. The car righted and McCoy and his wife got back in and drove off. The baby was still asleep.

clares that it has not been necessary to stimulate the local communities in this regard since they have already made requests faster than the State department could meet the demand. Of 86 counties in Minnesota 69 have child-welfare boards.

Securing of executives or superintendents trained for such work is said to offer the greatest difficulty in connection with county organization; state universities, however, are preparing students to return to their home communities and take up this career, and state boards make possible the interchange of experience through conference, publications and other means. In the country the welfare worker has to be a general practitioner, but he must have the knowledge of the standard practice in the various fields of child welfare work as well as the understanding and common sense necessary to adapt those methods to rural conditions.

BISHOPS VOTE TO TAKE OUT THE WORD "OBEY"

Portland, Ore., Sept. 13.—The house of Bishops of the Protestant Episcopal church late today voted in favor of taking the word "obey" from the marriage ceremony of that church. The Bishops voted to refer the proposal to eliminate the phrase "with my worldly goods I thee endow" from the ceremony back to the commission which had submitted it.

The Bishops were generally in favor of the phrase but objected to its wording, it was said.

The vote to eliminate the word "obey" was 36 to 27. If the House of Deputies concurs in the action the proposed change will be subject to approval at the general convention three years hence before becoming effective.

Kentucky Lady Tells How
She Became Strong and Healthy—Recommends
Cardui to Weak
Women.

Mount Vernon, Ky. — Mrs. Cynthia Vanhook, formerly of Stanford, but now residing here, says that after her third child was born, she undertook to resume her housework too soon, "and this caused me a great deal of trouble."

"I began to feel weak and all played out—not myself at all," as Mrs. Vanhook describes her condition. "For about six weeks I was just a nervous wreck. I had to have some one do all my housework."

"My doctor told me my imprudence had caused shock to the nervous system and the thing to do was to use a tonic to build up my strength."

"He recommended Cardui. . . Very soon I saw an improvement in my condition. I used three bottles of Cardui and . . . My health was restored."

"I am a strong, healthy woman." This Kentucky lady adds that she "never fails to recommend Cardui to weak and run-down lady friends."

Thousands of women praise Cardui to their friends.

This mild, harmless, vegetable tonic medicine has been in successful use for over 40 years, in the treatment of many common ailments suffered by women.

Don't burn coal yet— use Kerosene

James J. Storrow, Fuel Administrator of Massachusetts during the War and special coal consignee during the present coal shortage, has issued a timely warning against drawing on the meagre coal stocks until absolutely necessary. Mr. Storrow makes the following suggestions, among others:

"Don't burn a pound of coal this month or in October."

"Cook and heat water for your household with a kerosene stove or gas stove. Buy a portable kerosene heater. It is handy. It is cheap. It can be moved easily from room to room. It will save coal and money. It will perhaps keep you out of the coal line next winter."

"Cooking by kerosene stove is cheaper than coal. It is more comfortable during these warm days."

"Kerosene can be bought anywhere. Kerosene stoves and heaters can be bought today at any hardware or probably any house furnishing store or general country store in the state."

The coal shortage is already causing much inconvenience. How much actual suffering and hardship it will cause next winter no one can say. Certainly, the expedient thing to do is to save every bit of coal you now have by cooking and heating with other fuels. Tens of thousands of families are already conserving coal by burning Aladdin Security Oil—the perfect kerosene. If you need a cookstove or heater look at the improved Perfection line.

BETHEL NEWS

Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Staton Entertain School Teachers.

Bethel, N. C., Sept. 12.—The Sunday school teachers council of the Methodist church in Bethel met in their monthly meeting on Friday night last, with Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Staton.

The purpose of this meeting was to give a reception in honor of the school teachers who have just arrived to take up their work in our school.

Mr. Staton, who is superintendent of the Sunday school and his wife who is one of the leading workers in the church activities and social enterprises of the community at large, proved themselves to be admirable host and hostess.

The weather being warm and ideal for outdoor parties they turned their front yard into a beautiful and artistically arranged reception hall elaborately decorated with ferns and flowers with electric lights so arranged as to make the whole as bright as a "white way." The freshness of the flowers in their silver receptacles sparkled like a flower garden after a summer shower.

Ample seating room had been provided for a large crowd, and all other provisions on the same scale. The guests were met at the gate, that was overhung by large ferns on pedestals. The guests were here directed by the reception committee to the table where they were served with fruit punch presided over by Mr. J. Bunting, Miss Ruth Brown, Mr. B. L. Ross and Miss Lydia Percer.

When the large company had all arrived, the hostess introduced a novel and unique contest that afforded a great deal of pleasure and called for much real thinking to work out. The first prize was awarded to Miss Clara May Ward.

The company was then served with refreshments which consisted of delicious icecream and cake of many varieties with after dinner mints in closed in ornamental peanut shells tied with ribbons.

The influence of Persia and the Orient is strongly felt in embroideries this season. The designer of this frock of navy Polart Twill took advantage of this fact to achieve an unusual and very attractive trimming. He used Persian embroidery, arranged it into tabs which he then bound with braid and applied to the sleeves and pockets. The dress is a simple one piece style good for any woman. The wide three quarter sleeves and braid bound belt make this a smart youthful model. This style may also be had in imported guaranteed twill back velveteen, fast color in navy, black and brown at the same price.

IRISH STATESMEN TO FILL GAP LEFT BY COLLINS, GRIFFITH

Dublin, Sept. 13.—Though a crucial fate has wiped out two of Ireland's greatest figures—Michael Collins and Arthur Griffith—there are still strong viril men behind the Irish government.

No Irish leader now in Dublin is well known in America, and perhaps none is so picturesque nor so able as were Collins and Griffith, but there are men with great possibilities and doubtless the next few months will see the advent of new leaders who have clambered to fame from obscurity just as Griffith and Collins came to fame.

The men behind the Irish government have, first of all, the advantages of youth, sincerity and fearlessness. This will go far in the making of new leaders.

Cosgrave Looms Large.
W. T. Cosgrave, although in poor health, succeeded to the place left vacant by Griffith, and whether he will keep it or not only time can tell, but his health permitting, Cosgrave should come onto the world stage as a strong figure. Essentially a business man, Cosgrave is nevertheless an intellectual and a student, and while he lacks the magnetic gift of fluent oratory he is nevertheless a man of keen personality and one who understands the temperament of his own people.

Kevin O'Higgins, minister of Economics, is the son of a country doctor and, although he has been a General in the Free State Army, he has stuck to his portfolio and attempted to solve the economic problems of his country with all of the energy of his young life.

Among the military leaders Richard Mulcahy, Commander-in-Chief of the Free State Army, holds the highest post. Mulcahy is the son of a postmaster in Clare and first went to war in the 1916 rebellion, when he covered himself with glory as an able leader of Irish fighters. Later he became a medical student and was most active in the war against the "Black and Tan." He has a youthful face, an ability to organize, keen judgment and, above all, an Irish smile that goes far.

Sean McKoon, General in the Free State Army, known as the "Blacksmith of Ballashoe," is still another military figure that is outstanding. Having been a close friend of Michael Collins and one of his constant companions, General McKoon is looked upon as a possible leader of the people. His great bravery has been demonstrated time and again, and what he lacks in tactics he achieves through courage. An idol of the troops and of the people, this former blacksmith may become a great figure in Irish history.

WOMEN TO RULE LABOR PARTY IN GREAT BRITAIN

Leaders Smilingly Tolerant of Lady Astor's Belief They Won't Support Women

London, Sept. 12.—When I arrived at the headquarters of the British Labor Party to ask party leaders what they think of Lady Astor's statement that the Labor Party will not support women in the House of Commons, I was met by a series of kindly smiles of amusement.

"No one really takes Lady Astor seriously," remarked one leader, "and such a statement is ridiculous. Lady Astor must have forgotten that the Labor Party was the only party that pledged itself to woman suffrage and carried on a campaign for it."

Perhaps I should not have asked them if men will regard Labor's women representatives in Parliament any more seriously than they do Lady Astor. There was some little embarrassment on the part of everyone, but very stanchly one or two of them declared that the whole attitude of men will change.

However, I found when I went to see Miss A. Susan Lawrence, one of the even women whom the Labor Party has endorsed for Parliament, a far more convincing advocate for the cause of women in the Labor Party.

"Why do I belong to the Labor Party?" she repeated. "Well, first of all, because it is the only political party that offers perfect equality to men and women—perfect equality tempered with special privileges for women." Her gray eyes sparkled when she said this, and she brushed back a few strands of her soft gray hair as she stepped back, with just a suggestion of preparing for a fight that she hoped would come to her.

"What special privileges?" I asked. "The privilege of having every member of the executive body of the party a woman. Men never had that privilege, and they never will have it. The constitution of the party requires that there be at least four women members on the executive council. We can have as many more as we elect. But the men have no clause for even a minimum number of men." Miss Lawrence smiled broadly as she triumphantly gazed back at me.

"And do you think that women will elect only women?" I asked her. "If they are better representatives they will—not otherwise."

FRENCH REBUILDING FORGES AHEAD FAST

(By International News.)

Paris, Sept. 13.—The work of reconstructing France's devastated regions is going ahead actively. Already in many parts of the former battle-front large areas of land have been given back to farmers for cultivation. Products from these regions have reached Paris for sale at the Central Market.

Before being allowed to cultivate the soil, however, farmers have had to wait until military authorities have carefully examined the ground and assured themselves that it no longer presents any danger from buried shells or grenades.

The district around Arras, known as the "Red Zone," it was found was one of buried shells and munitions. Work on this region began a few days after the armistice, and today it is not yet finished. Great have been the dangers of clearing the land. Sixty-eight men have been killed in this region alone by accidentally dropping shells or hitting munitions of all kinds while working. The total quantity of ammunition removed from the "Red Zone" is close upon 90,000 tons. While ammunition dumps, both German and Allied, have had to be removed elsewhere to be exploded. The remains of villages and towns have had to be gathered up and sifted, road have had to be completely dug before being repaired. Two dumps have been removed by the thousands. Two hundred thousand shells alone have been discovered.

BAD ADDRESSES SEND MAIL ASTRAY

Big Importers and Exporters Are Among Frequent Offenders

Washington, Sept. 12.—Large manufacturing and exporting firms and even specialists in commercial efficiency have been found by the Department of Commerce to be the most frequent offenders in carefully addressing their foreign mail.

"The Department of Commerce," says a statement from Secretary Hoover's office, "as well as the Post Office Department frequently receives complaints of non-delivery or slow delivery of catalogues and other printed matter in foreign mails. In investigating recent cases of this kind the question arose as to whether faulty addresses were not a contributory cause of the trouble. A superficial examination of certain mail matter seemed to support such a view, and the co-operation of the Post Office Department was sought in an investigation of the way in which printed matter was directed.

"A formal request from the Department of Commerce resulted in a careful survey of the printed matter passing through the outgoing section of the New York Post Office. The average daily volume handled in that section amounts to over 30,000 pieces, destined for almost every country in the world.

"The survey proved the frequent occurrence on printed matter of addresses so carelessly written as to be absolutely illegible. There are two serious features of the situation. One is that the most frequent offenders are not the small business concerns, but the large commercial and exporting corporations and even the specialists in commercial efficiency. The second is that some automatic addressing machines seem to be so carelessly operated that the resulting printed addresses are almost if not entirely illegible."

It was made plain by officials that this statement was not intended as a criticism of addressing machines, or argument against their employment.

Current Business Conditions

By GEORGE E. ROBERTS

(From the Monthly Bulletin for September Issued by The National City Bank of New York)

THE good crops are an outstanding feature in the business situation. Corn has been hurt in some states by drought, but the yield on the whole is a good one, and the other grains have done well. All food stuffs are in abundant supply. The farmer has done his work faithfully, and will feed the town populations during the coming year at as low a price level as in the past year, and it may be a little lower.

The cotton crop again faces below the amount required for a year's consumption, owing to drought and boll weevil. The carry-over August 1, 1921, was over 9,000,000 bales and August 1, 1922, was only about one-half that amount. Even if world consumption is no greater in the coming year than in the last, stocks will be very low before another crop is made. All textile goods seem likely to be higher.

Steel Industry Wage Advance

The most notable development in the labor market since the depression began has been the advance of 20 per cent. in the wages of common day labor announced by the United States Steel Corporation, followed by the other steel companies. It took the country by surprise, and may be taken as proof that involuntary unemployment for the present at least is at an end.

The explanation is that the steel industry during the war was largely devoted to the war. In some lines equipment and construction fell behind the needs of the country, and the general slump in business last year cut down the production of iron and steel before the shortage was particularly true of railroad needs. The demand has been increasing since early spring and the companies have had difficulty in recruiting their forces. Their men have scattered, many having gone back to the old countries, and the companies have decided that they must rescind some of the wage reductions made last year.

The action is an effective refutation of the charge that there is a close community of interests among all employers with a fixed policy to depress labor, and of the claim that there is no such thing as the law of supply and demand in the labor market. Here is the biggest open-shop industry in the country leading a wage advance at the very moment most embarrassing to the railroad companies and coal operators.

As a rule, wage-advances are a good sign, but there is doubt about this one, because it tends to increase industrial costs when there still is need to reduce them. It is not a population. To say that the issue is good sign to have iron advancing between capital and labor or between wheat and corn are declining employers and wage-earners, there is no doubt about it. The chief cause of depression during the past year was the unbalanced state of industry, great numbers of workers in different industries, buy freely because their own products would be consumers being unable to adjust of the relations between the real paymasters of miners and railroad employees are the public, and chasing power over other products, they have a right to be represented in the settlements.

Balanced Situation Needed

It cannot be too plainly stated that what is wanted to give the best general result is a balanced situation among the industries with full and steady employment and ready sale for products at fair prices all around. Somebody has to pay for all around high prices, and unless the pay of all classes rises or falls together, consumption is curtailed and prosperity is checked.

The coal strike has been settled in the bituminous industry, and seems to be near settlement in the anthracite district. The miners have won a complete temporary victory, going back to work at the old scale, the highest ever known, despite the efforts of the President of the United States to persuade them to submit the case to arbitration. The settlement, however, is really only a temporary suspension of hostilities; the old agreement is renewed until April 1st next, when the whole subject will be reopened. The only step of progress is an agreement for the appointment of a fact-finding commission, which is to report by January 1, 1923.

Strike of Railroad Shopmen

The strike of railroad shopmen continues. The roads unquestionably are embarrassed by it, but are handling a larger volume of traffic than in any year except 1920. The shopmen have waived every claim except that of seniority rights which they possessed when they went out.

The paramount question in these strikes evidently is not the particular disputes causing them, but the question of how to protect the interests of the public, which are far more important than those of the immediate parties. Not five per cent. of the people of the United States are directly interested in mining coal taking, and by no process of reasoning and order in the community.

SOUTH CAROLINA MAN HIGHLY GRATIFIED AT RESULTS IN DAIRYING

(Auspices Pitt County Chamber of Commerce).

When you hear a farmer in a cotton and tobacco county say that the velvet bean is the greatest crop for that section, you may make up your mind that an important change is taking place in the agriculture of that region. The man who placed the velvet bean above the old stand-bys is P. M. Pitts, a farmer of Sumter county, S. C., and the change is being brought about by the dairy cow. Mr. Pitts is so well pleased with the results of a few years of dairying that he says: "I should like to see two good cows on every one-horse farm in Sumter county. It would mean $30.00 a month additional income to every farm and the feed come to every farm and the feed used in making the milk would hardly be missed. There is many a man who would be happy to have that income, and since the ticks are gone it is easily possible to get it."

"A farmer with a few cows will need to buy very little feed. The ration I am using is made up of 200 pounds of velvet beans ground in the pod, 200 pounds of corn and cob meal, and 100 pounds of cottonseed meal. This feed has given just as good results a mixed feed that cost $60.00 a ton. In the winter the cows have velvet bean vines for roughage and pasture on rye planted in September.

"This will be a disastrous year for many farmers in this section who have no live stock. Our county used to grow 45,000 bales of cotton a year, but the weevil has cut down the production from year to year and this fall we will probably get no more than 12,000 bales."

Mr. Pitts has cut down his cotton acreage one-half since developing a dairy herd from which he retails the milk.—Southern Cultivator.

AKRON PROPOSES POUND FOUR AUTOS, LIKE DOGS

Akron, O., Sept. 13.—An auto "pound" similar in operation to the "dog pounds" in which cities hold stray animals will be established here if the plan proposed by Safety Director Warren F. Selby is found to be court proof, officials said. The plan, Selby says, would relieve police court congestion for minor traffic offenses, and offenders and their machines would be automatically released upon payment of stipulated sums, instead of having to appear in court as under present procedure.

PEACE DEPENDS ON ALLIANCES, OPINION

(By International News.)

Paris, Sept. 12.—World peace depends upon strong military and defensive alliances and not upon romantic agreements signed by all European nations to forbear from aggression against their neighbors, according to the viewpoint of the French delegates in the disarmament commission of the League of Nations.

Phillipe Millet of the Petit Parisien, set forth the government's view point when he declared that Sir Robert Cecil's proposal for a general pact in which all European nations would engage themselves to defend each and every other European country from aggression is a beautiful theory but does not face realities.

The French government has given whole-hearted support to the doctrine which bears the name of M. Benes, of Czech-Slovakia. Premier Benes seeks a series of strong military alliances, the foremost of which shall be an Anglo-French defensive agreement. Supplementary to this treaty, which he considers will insure European peace, he would have French-Franco-Polish alliances.

Mrs. Sara Raven Towne.
