NEGRO ATTEMPTS BOLD ENTRANCE TO LOCAL RESIDENCE

Would-be-Burglar is Frightened From the Home of W. G. Craft on Greene Street

This morning between three and four o'clock Mr. C. L. Dupree who resides at the home of Mr. W. G. Craft on Greene street was awakened by a negro crawling into a window of his bedroom. Not having a revolver for protection near at hand, Mr. Dupree called to Mr. Craft who was in the adjoining room. This of course frightened the would-be burglar, and he made a quick get-away out of the window and through the rear of the yard in the direction of Washington street. In his mad rush for safety the negro lost his hat which the officers found shortly after the alarm was given to them.

While it is a difficult to gain much clue from an ordinary hat that has no mark other than the name of the manufacturer.

Police working this morning on their only clue which was thought to be foot flakes on the hat, but which later proved to be black shoe polish stains, they set out for the capture of their man and before the day had been far spent, the officers arrested Willie Daniels, colored, an employee of Herbert Latham's barber shop on Evans street. After being arrested and forced to answer the direct questions of the officers, Daniels gave up and admitted entering Mr. Craft's home. He was immediately placed in the city jail to await his hearing.

Since the tobacco factories of the city have cut their forces to a small minimum, throwing so many of the negro population out of employment, it appears that some are resorting to the paths of thievery in order to keep the wolf from the door. Many residents of various parts of the city have reported negroes prowling about their premises at all hours of the night, and in some instances the intruders have been fired at.

FEDERAL RADIO BILL IS PASSED BY HOUSE

Effort to Make Use of Wireless More Valuable Causes the Measure

Washington, Feb. 1.—The federal radio control bill, vesting broad powers in the department of commerce for regulation and supervision of all phases of wireless telegraph and telephone communications, was passed yesterday by the House.

The bill is intended to bring order out of the chaos in the air as the result of thousands of stations competing on similar wave lengths.

Licenses would be required on all transmitting operators except government employees, and the Secretary of Commerce would assign wave lengths to various stations and supervise where necessary their sending periods. A section of the bill, dealing with possible monopolies with the wireless business of the nation, vests in the Secretary the power to refuse or revoke licenses where monopoly is being threatened.

Army, navy and all other government stations although exempt from licensing must conform to rules when handling commercial or government or non-government business. Assigning of wave lengths for governmental plants would be in the hands of the President.

DANGER OF BREACH IS SIDETRACKED AT LAUSANNE CONFAB

Spirit on Conciliation Prevents Rupture of the Near East Peace Conference

Lausanne, Feb. 1.—Ismet Pasha, head of the Turkish delegation has been instructed by his government to sign the near east peace pact, but will hold off a while longer in the hope of getting further concessions from the allies, was learned authoritatively today.

Lausanne, Jan. 31.—The spirit of conciliation shown on all sides today prevented a rupture of the near eastern peace conference following formal presentation of the allied draft treaty to the Turks and the mutual goodwill manifested by the British, French and Italian delegations sidetracked any danger of a break in the allied front due to yesterday's developments.

Marquis Curzon, the British foreign secretary, changed his plans for leaving Lausanne on Friday, and agreed to remain, together with his entire delegation until Sunday night. Meanwhile, efforts will be made by private negotiations to obtain accord on the disputed points in the treaty. Richard Washburn Child, who as chief American spokesman delivered a striking address at today's meeting urging that peace be signed as soon as possible, has played an important if not dominating part both in harmonizing the conflicting views of the allies as to the time limit to be given the Turks and in convincing the Ottoman delegates that their national interests demand peace be concluded without delay.

Reasonable prospects of attaining an agreement, probably by submission of several of the matters in conflict to arbitration, saved the conference from shipwreck, induced the Turks to adopt a more moderate attitude and prevented discord among the allies.

The results is that the Turks probably will not present their counter projects at a formal session of the conference, but will endeavor to iron out the difficulties speedily in private conferences.

NEW BERN FAVORS ORGANIZED BALL EAST CAROLINA

If League is Formed Will be Under Regulations National Baseball Commission.

New Bern, Feb. 1.—Whether Eastern Carolina will have a baseball league this season is an undecided question, but one thing is certain, and that is that there will be no more independent baseball for the towns that participated in last year's league.

If a league is formed, it will be under the rules and regulations of the National Baseball Commission. It will be on an established basis and will be free from many annoying situations which always accompany independent baseball.

Since the Eastern Carolina League was organized three years ago, there have been about fifteen players who have gone into high class baseball. The success of these players meant nothing to the local league; the teams didn't receive a cent in the way of purchase money. Had the league been on an organized basis, those players who went into faster company could have been sold and been the means of bringing considerable revenue into the coffers of the team management who had them under control.

It has not yet been definitely decided in New Bern what action shall be taken in the organization of a league. Reports from some of the other towns are to the effect that there is some sentiment for a revival of the league but they are also opposed to any more independent baseball. They're had enough.

He resigns in order to enter business for himself, probably in Asheville. In tendering his resignation Mr. Barnard recommended that the office of graduate manager and alumni secretary be divided and a man secured for each position. It is expected that this will be done.

HOUSE ENDORSES HIGHWAY BILL OF ORIGINAL READING

After Long Fight Measure Passed Second Test and Will Receive Final Call Today

Raleigh, Jan. 31.—After voting down overwhelmingly a series of amendments that sought in one way or another to leave their imprints upon the good roads act, the senate today passed on second reading the bill providing the additional $15,000,000 bond issue for highway construction with only three votes against it.

The bill was put on the calendar tonight for third and final reading tomorrow.

An hour and a half was devoted to debate of the amendments, a roll call vote was taken on each amendment, and the final roll call recorded vote on the bill itself. The three negative votes were cast by Senator Stubbs, of Martin, who opposed the measure because advocates in 1921 had promised not to bother the legislature about money for at least five years more; Senator Tapp, of Lenoir, who offered no reason, and Senator Parker of Wayne, who introduced an amendment, tacking a retirement provision for bonds up to the original act, and who supported an amendment to submit the $15,000,000 issue to a vote of the people.

The various amendments were supported by several of the senators but no one amendment received more than a handful of affirmative votes. And when the time came for the vote on the bill there was a regular landslide in favor of it.

The first amendment was introduced by Brown, of Columbus, and substituted $10,000,000 for $15,000,000. Castelle Brown, Costen, Tapp and Parker introduced an amendment submitting the issue to a vote of the people, setting May 5 as the date for the election. Senator Giles proposed an amendment, which he withdrew before a vote, prohibiting the chance of the present central construction base in each construction district except for economic reasons and by a majority vote of the commission. Then came Senator Parker's amendment providing for the setting aside of a sum sufficient to retire the $50,000,000 issue in 40 years. Senator Heath, of Union, proposed the distribution of the $15,000,000 issue among the construction districts for use under exclusive district authority with a $3,000,000 equalization fund to insure just distribution among all the counties. Senator Para submitted another proposal to distribute among the counties one-third of the gasoline tax.

MER ROUGE MAYOR HAS BEEN WARNED TO QUIT THE TOWN

Robert Dade's Life Threatened Should He Fail to "Shake the Dust" of Louisiana Town

Monroe, La., Jan. 31.—Robert Dade, mayor of Mer Rouge, La., who testified at the state's investigation at Bastrop into masked band activities in Morehouse parish which closed last week, made public a letter he had received today warning him unless he left Mer Rouge within 10 days he would be killed.

The letter dated January 28 and believed to have been mailed at Hot Springs, Ark., has been forwarded by the mayor to Governor Parker and will later be turned over to Attorney General Cocco for investigation, it was said. Insulting epithets and statements of a derogatory nature made up the greater part of the letter, Mr. Dade said.

The letter in part follows:

"Dear sir: You are hereby notified to pack up and get out of town within 10 days of receipt of this notice. You have never been any good as a man or as a citizen. Use your judgment and either leave or become a corpse. (Signed) 'LAW ABIDING'."

"I have received a number of threatening letters since Watt Daniel and T. E. Richard were killed August 24," he said, "but these letters were more in the nature of threats against others than against me, warning me to clean up the town and get rid of the lawless element. These letters were made public at the open hearing when I testified."

The game against New Bern will be only one half of the show as the Greenville High Girls are to play the Washington High Girls as a preliminary to the girl's game.

In the final game the two teams will line up as follows:

DR. PARKER WILL TALK TO SCHOOL GIRLS ON MONDAY

Mothers of City Are Also Invited to Hear Child Welfare Expert at High School

Next Monday morning, February 5th, at the High School auditorium at 9:00 o'clock, Dr. Valeria H. Parker of the American Social Hygiene Association of New York City, will address the girls of the Greenville High School, and the ladies of the town. Dr. Parker is coming to Greenville under the auspices of the State Board of Charities and Public Welfare.

She visited Greenville once before about three years ago, and spent the day in conference with the girls of the High School and did a world of good. The school authorities are very fortunate in being able to bring Dr. Parker here. They not only desire that the girls of the High School shall hear Dr. Parker, but the Mothers of the town shall be present for the address also. Therefore, it is earnestly hoped that all mothers of the town who are interested in the welfare of their children will be present for the address at 9:00 o'clock. It will certainly be worth the energy expended in getting to the building that early in the day. After speaking to the High School girls Dr. Parker will talk to the girls at the college, and will leave for Kingston at 1:00 o'clock. She will have a few minutes at the close of her address at the High School for informal conferences and talks with the mothers of the town.

It is hoped that the Woman's Club and the various women's clubs of the city will put forth an effort to get as many of their members here as possible.

MAY BLAST STILL TOO BIG TO MOVE

Dillon, Mont., Feb. 1.—When a "moonshine still" is too large to move should it be dynamited?

This is the question puzzling the Sheriff, Dan Mooney, of Beaverhead county, following seizure of what is believed to be the largest illicit liquor still ever discovered in the west.

The huge still was located in the Blacktail country, near this city. The tank is constructed of heavy sheet copper riveted in a work-man-like manner. Seven thousand gallons of mash were in a state of fermentation, and about 25 tons of corn and other grain were nearby.

It is estimated that it took tons or five men at least a month to "set up" the plant, which was carefully hidden in an out-of-the-way place.

Sheriff Mooney will ask the courts to decide on the disposition of the still.

Thursday, February 1st, 1923

Though the senator from Iowa is striving to keep his party in the position of repealing the Esch-Cummings transportation act and thereby modifying the railroad control of the United States, through this term of congress he has at least given the politicians something to talk about until the next congress convenes.

Now that Great Britain has decided to accept the American funding plan for the settlement of the British war debt, one more valuable requirement of our diplomats' full time and attention should be at an end. With this of their minds we hope that the two countries can now find time to give of their attention to other matters which may be of some benefit to the world.

We remember that sometimes ago the plans and arrangements for a carb market for Greenville were reported completed, but of late we have heard no mention of it. We hope that the efforts to put into effect the plans as originally outlined have not been put off for we would dislike to see much to see a proposition that would mean so much to the people of Greenville and the surrounding territory dropped, especially after making such a good beginning and receiving such support as did the proposed establishment of a carb market.

According to the Rhinelead press, the Lohrman agreement, by which a group of industrialists headed by Hugo Stinnes pledged themselves to assist in the German indemnity payments for rebuilding the devastated region, is now cancelled as a result of French occupation of the Ruhr. A spokesman at from the French standpoint not only this agreement but every other agreement made by the Germans regarding the reparations commitment were cancelled by Germany's failure to live up to them long ago and it is for this reason that French troops are today occupying the Ruhr.

WILL IT EVER BE THUS?

Several weeks ago the committee in charge of the finances of the proposed Pitt County Hospital, advertised the return of all monies collected, should the subscribers to the fund present their claim on February first. Such a step backward should indeed be the basis of every individual of our county, because in something the project, we are in all probability killing forever and a day all hopes of a county-owned institution of this nature.

Almost every day of every week we are brought face to face with facts that are bound to cause every right-thinking person to realize the great need of a hospital within our county bounds. There is no county of the entire state possessing more wealth than is or could be made available, for the erection of a hospital and with this comes the true fact that by public ownership is to greater use of such an institution than by any other statistics showing the facilities of other counties of the state for the caring of their sick, and the well and to other people of a

Is Kiwanis Worth While?

(By KIWANIAN VICTOR DAVIS)

The question, "Is Kiwanis worth while?" has been answered with an emphatic, "Yes" by over seventy-five thousand representative business and professional men in the United States and Canada. And yet it is fitting that we pause for a moment as Kiwanis celebrates its eighth anniversary, in order that we may see if the organization which has met with an enthusiastic response in this country, is really worth the time and money which is being expended on it.

Kiwanis attempts to serve the individual, the community, and the nation. Let us first see in what way it is worthwhile to the individual. The average man has his heart in his work to such an extent that he seldom looks beyond the narrow horizon which encloses him and his occupation. He forgets the outside world and his obligations to the other fellow. In his life "I" comes large in everything. And then there comes to the Kiwanian, the hour in which he forgets self and gets a close-up view of the ambitions and problems of men in other lines of work. The business man has the opportunity of coming to a better understanding of the professional man's spirit and ethics while the professional man becomes acquainted with the problems peculiar to the business world.

And not only do men in different lines of work meet but man and computer come in contact with each other and forget the rivalry of the day. They come to know each other, find in knowing, to like each other. It is said of the genial Charles Lamb that when a friend wished to introduce him to an acquaintance that Lamb replied, "But I do not like your friend." "Why, you do not even know him," his friend responded. "And that," said Lamb, "is the reason I do not like him." In Kiwanis a man comes to know those about him and his admiration grows apace with his acquaintanceship. Under the influence of the comradeship of others, petty misunderstandings disappear, and his "I grasp" is changed to a "We build." Even as some one has said of O'Henry, the Kiwanian, "He looks and sees not the rattle but his brothers struggling for an ideal." It is not necessary to add that a Kiwanian profits from the organization only in proportion as he invests his best thoughts and idealism. If he looks upon Kiwanis as an organization where he may go to enjoy a good dinner and a better cigar, his only reward is apt to be indignation and disappointment. If, however, he sees in the club an opportunity to serve to give and not to get, then his reward will be correspondingly great.

But Kiwanis is not primarily for the purpose of developing the individual but has a larger sphere of activity in serving the community. Any organization is worthwhile which helps to remove the suspicion and doubt that exists in many cities and even smaller communities. Bitter rivalries and jealousies can not exist where the spirit of Kiwanis abides. Good fellowship is the only traveling companion that the organization recognizes.

In every community there are single county numbering over forty thousand population are without from two to four hospitals.

If the people as a whole are not willing to contribute a trivial amount for the protection of their sick, which includes their own loved ones, then for the sake and love that we should have for humanity will not some person or persons erect a hospital somewhere in the county.

Every provision has been made in the county for the protection of our hogs, cows, and even fowls against disease, but not one thing has been done to save our own lives other than what help from a medical standpoint that our physicians can give with their limited facilities.

LAND SALE.
By virtue of the power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed, executed and delivered by the trustees of the A. M. E. Zion Church, York Temple, Greenville, Pitt county, North Carolina, to George Brooks Hutchins, on the 16th day of August, 1921, such mortgage was duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds of Pitt county in Book 14, page 435, the undersigned will sell for cash before the court house in Greenville.

on Wednesday, the 28th day of February, 1923.
The following described property, to wit: That lot situated in the town of three classes; the progressives, the reactionaries, and the great middle group who have no decided views on any question but wait to see who will win the case of Progress vs. Reaction in order that they may follow in the train of the victor. Kiwanis represent the progressive element in every community and along with similar organizations it is the hope of many a city struggling for advancement. A man may enter Kiwanis with a selfish spirit but the "We build" motto of Kiwanis shames him out of his narrowness and forces him into altruistic endeavors.

The work of Kiwanis both locally and in other sections of the United States and Canada is too well known to bear repeating here. It may be said, however, that the value of Kiwanis to a community lies in the fact that it is an organization which studies each measure proposed for the advancement of a city and not pushes those measures it considers worth while but is as quick in exposing and putting to an end all movements which would retard the growth of the section it seeks to serve. A city without Kiwanis, or one of the civic organizations, lacks an agency through which to work and many a movement which could have spelled success for a city has failed because it lacked an organized body which could put the desired measure through. Kiwanis is the dynamo of many towns and has been a veritable Moses in leading small cities into the promised land. If Upon Sinclair had had a few Kiwanians in business on the different corners he might not have found "Main Street" so tame.

It has been said that Kiwanis seeks to serve the nation. As the different units of Kiwanis are woven into a strong national organization its possibilities in this field of service are just being realized. It may be said though, that Kiwanis should do much toward bringing to an end such petty sectional jealousies as now exist and as a result the pulse of national life should beat much more strongly. Certainly in times of national distress, our government will find Kiwanis worth while when it feels the need of the backing of a strong loyal group of men organized for service both locally and nationally.

Will the influence of Kiwanis ever be felt in the world at large? The organization is too young to predict for it a very vital piece to service in international affairs. And yet, one can not keep from wondering, if Kiwanis International is not one more step toward.

"The Parliament of man, the Federation of the World."
In conclusion, any discussion of the value of Kiwanis which does not take into consideration its program for 1923, is incomplete. During this year Kiwanis plans to make a special study of and to aid in the development of the "Underprivileged Child." Surely, a work which is so essential and which breathes the very spirit of Him who was the special guardian of the unfortunate, marks Kiwanis International as a valuable asset to the community and nation and worth while to any man who seeks to serve.

CALIFORNIA CLIME BARREN FOR CUPID

Sacramento, Cal., Jan.—Dan Cupid's hand has lost its cunning in California. The love darts of the famous matchmaker are falling short of their mark.

Such are the deductions to be taken from the marriage statistics for 1922, as announced by L. E. Ross, head of the Bureau of Vital Statistics of the State Board of Health.

The estimated total of marriages for 1922 is 46,041, while in 1921 a total of 46,772 marriages were recorded. This represents a decrease in the total number of marriages of 731. If the increase in population should be taken into consideration the waning popularity of the marriage mart would be even more marked.

From another startling turn which the game of matrimony has taken it appears that divorced women often prefer to make their second venture with divorced men. More than 31 per cent of the divorced women who remarried last year picked men whose first search for matrimonial bliss had failed.

Widows, however, no longer turn to widowers for love and solace. Only 21 per cent of the widows who married again during the year chose men who had lost their first mates by death.

SYRACUSE IN GRIP OF DOPE TRAFFIC

By CHESTER B. BAHN

Syracuse, N. Y., Jan.—The curse of dope holds this city fast in its grip.

Four new dope friends are created in Syracuse weekly, the rate of increase being two new victims for every hundred addicts in the city.

Given free rein for ten years, Syracuse dope peddlers would have 240,000 customers in this city. Or, in other words, in 1933 50 per cent of the city's inhabitants would be drug addicts.

Local physicians, city authorities and Federal narcotic agents are responsible for these startling statistics.

Dr. Thomas P. Farmer, City Health Commissioner, is investigating the drug traffic as a public health problem and will call on Syracuse Academy of Medicine to assist him in getting at the root of the evil and devising the best methods of checking and destroying it.

Children are learning the drug habit before they are able to talk.

Some of the city's most refined homes have fallen beneath the shadows of wretchedness and deceit that follows the trail of the drug victim.

Capturing of the peddlers is difficult because they are protected by the very persons whom they are harming most drug addicts themselves.

Weeks of persistent effort are frequently necessary to secure evidence.

City police, busy with routine work do not have time to devote to the traffic except in cases where they have direct evidence.

Federal agents are obliged to cover large districts and as quickly as they make a cleanup in one place the traffic starts more actively than ever in another.

CLEAN OUT THE MITES.

Mites are the little fellows that crawl on you every time you go into the chicken coop; they make the setting hens leave their nests; they suck the very life-blood of the hens; they drive the hens to roost on trees and fences in order to escape torment.

You won't get many eggs if you hens are feeding mites. It takes too much good red blood to keep the mites going.

Mites live and breed in the cracks and crevices of the coop. In warm weather they multiply so rapidly that they can be gathered by handfuls if left undisturbed.

Mite destroyers—Clean and thoroughly disinfect the entire coop at least once a year. After this thorough annual cleaning, spraying the roosts and nests once a month will in most cases keep the mites under control.

Any good disinfectant can be used. A mixture of three parts kerosene and one part crude carbolic acid is effective.

Kerosene Emulsion—Kerosene emulsion is better than plain kerosene because it sticks longer.

To make an emulsion dissolve a bar of laundry soap in a gallon of hot water. Add two gallons of kerosene and stir vigorously so that no oil stands on the surface. To this stock solution add eight gallons of water.

Cresol Soap Mixture—Dissolve a bar of laundry soap in a pint of hot water. Add a pound of commercial cresol. When cold stir in a gallon of kerosene. Apply without diluting. Don't get any of this on the hands or face as it will smart.

Lime Sulphur—The lime sulphur used for fruit trees is also effective.

There is no profit in mites or lice.

EVANGELIST HAS IMPORTANT THEME FOR HER HEARERS

Subject "How to Come to Christ" Should Attract Large Congregation

The message last night, had the sharpness of a sword, it cut all kinds of sin and the people were reminded that Elijah's God still lives today and has the same power. Elijah put the folks to a test over their religion and it failed. So would it in Greenville if the people were put to a test, many would fail for they know nothing of the spiritual things of God. Sin brought the people very low in Elijah's day and it will bring any nation low. The old prophet said "How Long Halt ye between two opinions? The county is dried up, no rain for three years and six months and will you still worship idols? Come with me and we will put our Gods to a test, the altars were made and the sacrifices placed thereon, but the idolatrous god failed. The true and living God answered by fire and the sacrifice was consumed that is what God wants to do for the sinful soul, let the spiritual fire come and burn out sin. But many are saying no to the blessed Savior of the world.

One soul came and accepted Christ and several came for prayer.

Subject tonight will be "How to Come to Jesus."

Prayer meeting Friday morning at 10 o'clock at Savages' Stables; Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock, Mrs. J. E. Warren on Ward street; Mrs. Mills on 4th and Cotanch; Mrs. Boyd on the south side of town just off Reed street.
