Large Crowd Hears Bryan In Splendid Address At Tarboro Thursday Evening

Nearly 3,000 People Were Present to Hear Commoner Speak Last Night

JOSEPHUS DANIELS AND GOV. MORRISON DELIVER SPEECHES

Visited Tarboro Under Auspices of Kiwanis Club for Benefit Educational Fund

Tarboro, Feb. 23.—Nearly 3,000 people greeted William Jennings Bryan here last night when he spoke in the interest of the Tarboro Kiwanis educational fund.

Besides the Commoner, there were in this party Josephus Daniels, Clarence Mitchell, Sol Brower, Phillip Mc Gruder and Allen J. Balwick, who motored from Raleigh to be guests of the Tarboro Kiwanis Club on this occasion.

At seven thirty the large crowd at the Farmers' warehouse gave Mr. Bryan a great ovation as he entered with the other distinguished visitors.

In addition to the guests who entered with the speaker there were on the stage the presidents of many of the Kiwanis Clubs in Eastern North Carolina, Kiwanian District Governor Burt James, of Greenville, N. C. and the officers of the local Kiwanis club.

The Rev. Bertram E. Brown of the Episcopal church being called upon led the audience in prayer.

Here the president introduced Josephus Daniels, who explained some of the things that the Kiwanian stands for. He quoted Nathaniel Macon as saying that he wanted to live on a farm so far from his neighbors that he could not hear his nearest neighbor's dog bark.

After speaking happily in this vein and reminding the people of Tarboro that he too was born on the Tar river, he said that he did not think he should take any more of the time, "when we had the great Governor of the Commonwealth and the great Commoner William Jennings Bryan on the program."

W. A. Hart in a few well chosen words introduced Governor Morrison and told of some of the things he had accomplished since he has been governor.

The Governor then introduced to the people the man whom he characterized as the greatest orator that has appeared on the earth in half a century. Mr. Bryan announced as his subject "The World's Greatest Need." He said he was going to mention first some of our greatest problems, and then offer what he

ROBBERS OPERATED IN STOKES SECTION DURING LAST NIGHT

Two Stores and Coast Line Depot Reported Entered and Much Goods Carried Away

Some time during last night robbers were at work north of Greenville and from all information gathered today, their operations were centered in the Stokes section of the county. In the paths of their travels they entered the store of W. G. Stokes and the freight depot at Stokes and at Leas they visited S. A. Gogleton & Co.

Finding the first floor doors of W. G. Stokes store impregnable the robbers by way of an ox cart and long ladder made their entrance through the window of the second floor. Quite a quantity of goods were carried from the building. Their entrance to the other buildings were made through the doors with the aid of an iron instrument of some kind. Not much was taken from the Coast Line station, but Gogleton & Co., suffered almost as much loss as did Mr. Stokes.

Unconfirmed statements are to the effect that the same band or a second group were at work a few miles north. Nothing definite could be learned as to these operations at a late hour this afternoon.

While the officers have no clue upon which to work they are using every available means in their effort to overtake the robbers.

SEVERAL MATTERS OF INTEREST TAKEN UP BY THE SENATE

Bill to Forbid the Marrying of First Cousins Passes Third Reading

Raleigh, N. C., Feb. 23.—The senate tonight took up the bill which would forbid the marriage of first cousins in this state, set specially for consideration after it had been resurrected from the unfavorable calendar by a two-thirds vote of the body.

On the calendar for consideration tonight also were the Long bill, which would prevent "private corporations operated for profit" from pleading usury and several other measures of state-wide provisions.

The senate today passed on its third reading the Sams bill providing for an election on an amendment to the constitution to limit the power of political subdivisions of the State to contract debt and to require all such subdivisions to make full arrangements for payment of debt at the same time the obligation is assumed and the bill goes to the house for its consideration.

Injected into the business of its final two weeks of constitutional life was a voluminous measure offered today by Senator W. M. Long, of Halifax, incorporating the recommendations of the State Auditor for "the consolidation and co-ordination of the various agencies of state government."

The introducer commented upon the late entry of the bill and expressed the opinion that insufficient time remains for its adequate consideration. The bill will have to undergo some revision before it gets the support of the senator offering it, he said.

THREE PERSONS BURNED TO DEATH WHEN FIRE DESTROYS OLD BUILDING

Kansas City, Feb. 23.—Three were burned to death and others are missing, following a fire which trapped 20 persons on the second floor of a ram-shackle building.

This is the exterior of the antiquated four-story building, one of the group in the Manhattan State Hospital for the insane on Ward's Island in Hell Gate, East River, New York City, where 22 insane patients and three attendants perished in a fire which swept the structure. The roof caved in on them.

C., spoke on "Public Education," while W. E. Stubbs, cashier of the Bank of Belhaven, addressed the bankers on "Recent and Pending Legislation of Interest to Bankers."

From two o'clock to 2:30 in the afternoon a round table discussion relating to bankers' problems was held, after which came the address of John R. In the evening at 7:30 the bankers were the guests of the Elizabeth City Shrine Club at a banquet at the shrine hall, and during the banquet came the address of Colonel Meekins, whose subject was "Are We Going Up or Down?" Washington and Greenville Will Meet on Local Court to Determine Winners Group 1

The third and last basket ball game which is to decide the winners of group one will be staged on the local court tonight at 8 o'clock between the Washington and Greenville High. While the local quint has engaged in some hot and hair raising struggles so far this season, indications point to this evening's game being the hardest fought yet witnessed here.

Both teams have two victories to their credit in the elimination series, and tonight's game will decide which of the quint will enter the final with the six other group winners. Some of the groups will not complete their schedule until the games of tomorrow night, after which another meeting of the State coaches will be called and a schedule arranged to determine the winner of the east over the thirty-nine schools that originally entered the race. The team winning will then meet the champions of the west at Chapel Hill on a date to be announced after the last game of the elimination series.

It is understood that the visitor will be accompanied here tonight by a large number of basket ball enthusiasts of Washington, and this fact should prompt the Greenville people to turn out and encourage the home team. Your presence may mean victory for us.

SAYS DOLLAR IS WORTH FIVE CENTS MORE THAN YEAR AGO

Washington, Feb. 23.—The farmers' dollars of 1914 are worth only eighty cents, according to statements of the Federal Reserve Board. The statement was based on the ability to trade their own products for other products at wholesale prices, but did not reckon on the middleman which would cut down the buying power. A dollar is worth five cents more than a year ago.

CAMPAIGN AGAINST RATS WILL TAKE PLACE MARCH 5-10

Rats Are a Constant Menace to the Health of Man; $25.00 for Largest Number Rat Tails

The Anti-Rat campaign will be waged in this county during the week of March 7 to 15. Much interest is being manifested as a prize of $25 will be awarded to the child bringing in the most rat tails.

Rats and mice are practically omnivorous, feeding upon all kinds of animal and vegetable matter. The brown rat makes its home in the open field, the hedge row, and the river banks, as well as in store walls, piers, and all kinds of buildings. It destroys grains when newly planted, while growing, and in the shock, stack, mow, crib, granary, mill, elevator, or ship's hold, and also in the bin and feed trough. It invades store and warehouse and destroys furs, leaces, silks, carpets, leather goods and groceries. It causes disastrous conflagrations; floods houses by gnawing lead water pipes, unions artificial ponds and embankments by burrowing and damages furnishings of dwellings.

Rats are not only a cause of destruction and damage to property, but they are also a constant menace to the health of man. They are parasites, without redeeming characteristics, and should everywhere be routed and destroyed. The campaign should receive the attention of every citizen as rats are a nuisance and should be exterminated.

LOCAL PHYSICIAN ELECTED PRESIDENT OF TRI-STATE ASSO.

Dr. C. O'H. Laughinghouse to Head Physicians This Year; Next Convention in S. C.

High Point, Feb. 23.—At the final session this afternoon of the 25th annual convention of the Tri-State Medical Association, which convened here yesterday Dr. C. O'H. Laughinghouse, of Greenville, N. C., was elected to succeed Dr. S. S. Gale, of Roanoke, Va., as president, and Greenville, S. C., was chosen as the meeting place for next year's convention. When the convention registration books closed this afternoon 202 doctors from all parts of Virginia, North and South Carolina had entered their names upon it. That the High Point convention had been the best in every respect ever held in the history of the association was the consensus of opinion of all of its members.

The electing of Dr. Laughinghouse and of all the other officers was unanimous. Dr. D. A. Stanton, one of High Point's leading practitioners, was elected vice president from North Carolina, Dr. L. Peple, of Richmond, vice president from Virginia, and Dr. S. B. Sherard, of Gaffney, South Carolina, vice president from that State. Dr. James K. Hall, of the medical staff of Westbrook sanatorium, Richmond, and formerly assistant superintendent of the State hospital at Morganton, was re-elected secretary and treasurer. Dr. Hall has faithfully filled this position for two years.

Dr. F. M. Hodges, of Richmond; Dr. D. A. Stanton, of High Point, and Dr. W. A. Wallace, of Chester, S. C., were elected as new members of the executive council.

Greenville, Florence and Columbia asked for next year's meeting of the association. On the advice of the executive council Greenville was selected. The meeting is to be held in the month of February, but the exact dates have not been set.

The association's action in choosing Dr. Laughinghouse as its head is considered unusually wise. Besides being a physician of rare ability and devotion to his profession, he is a man who possesses the respect of every member of the Tri-State Medical Association. Dr. Laughinghouse is a member of the State Board of Health, a former member of the North Carolina Medical Examination Board, a former president of the Medical Society of North Carolina and a member of various other medical organizations. During the war he served as a lieutenant colonel in the medical service.

Instead of lowering the bars to immigration, the better endeavor of Congress might be to promote a movement in emigration. This country is giving sustenance to a bunch of foreigners it might well get rid of thru the peaceful operation of deportation laws. If Congress does not believe so now, it may be brought around to a different conclusion before the next political campaign is ended—Charlotte Observer.

It has been seriously proposed in the Legislature that the salaries of all school teachers in North Carolina be cut 10 per cent. That is carrying the economy program too far. Such a cut would save the state a considerable sum of money temporarily, but it would result in the wasting of something far more valuable than money.—Winston-Salem Journal.

LOOSE DYNAMITE

With France unwilling even to discuss the question of repayment of the nearly $4,000,000,000 it owes the United States, it is to be noted that it has money to loan an ally upon whom it chiefly relies for military support in the prosecution of its militaristic aims, should these lead to involvement in another war. In recently authorizing a loan of 400,000,000 francs to Poland, the Paris government declares its intention to provide the Poles with means of national defense. There is significance in the timing of this French action. It is a notice to Germany that there is a nation on its eastern frontier which is bound by the strongest ties to the French, and that any attempt at Russo-German co-operation will meet strong resistance.

In the light of the provocation to Russo-German co-operation which French policy in the Ruhr encourages, the loan to Poland for the strengthening of its defensive position can readily be understood. France feels that the policy it is seeking to carry out can have no stronger bulwark than a Poland prepared for vigorous action against Russia or Germany, or both. A successful Russian attack on Poland would be a ruinous blow to France and a godsend to Germany. The French loan, for the stated purpose of Polish defense to be decided "by mutual arrangements between the two governments of France and Poland, in accordance with the decisions of the French and Polish general staffs" is in the nature of a warning proclamation to the neighbors of Poland and the same time an announcement of the extreme cordiality of Franco-Polish relations.

If this were all, world concern over these developments might not find occasion to fear a disturbance of the peace is in the making. In proportion as each nation finds itself strengthened by the alliance that is being cemented will there be a disposition to assume the aggressive in controversies already existing and which may arise in future. Indeed, the attitude of both nations in their foreign policies is provocative and overbearing, and it is likely to become more so as their controversies grow in acuteness.

OPPONENTS SHIP SUBSIDY CONTINUE THEIR FILIBUSTER

Indications at Present Point to Defeat of Bill by the End of the Week

Washington, Feb. 22.—Buffed by another day of filibuster in the Senate the administration shipping bill tonight appeared headed toward its doom. The end seemed likely not later than Saturday on a motion to recommit the legislation or to displace it with another bill.

The filibuster which began on Monday night continued unabated through out the day and into the night. During its progress there were a number of private conferences between Republican Senators and later between Republican Senators and Democratic leaders in which negotiations were conducted for definite action by Saturday night so that the final week of the session might be left open to consideration of other pressing legislation.

Opponents of the ship bill after canvassing the strength of their points openly stated for the first time that they had enough votes to get the measure out of the way unless its supporters could obtain some action upon it within the next few days. The prospects of its supporters being able to do this appeared dark, in fact it grows darker with each hour that the flow of talk continues.

Several senators who have been mildly favorable toward the bill privately admitted during the day that they would not continue their support of the measure much further if it continued to block other legislation. One Senator, Willis, republican, Ohio, stated on the floor that he desired to drop it, if the bill was to be killed by filibustering, for if so, he said there were many other bills including some he was interested in, which should be taken up. Senator McKellar, democrat, Tenn., later plainly told the senate that it was the intention of those opposed to the legislation to kill it by any legitimate means and that he considered the filibustering legitimate.

The opinion of Senators as to means of bringing the filibuster to an end differed, some opposing recommitment and favoring displacement by another bill. Either method it was generally conceded meant the death of the ship measure. General agreement seemed to prevail, however, that nothing should be attempted until the bill was given at least another day of life.

President Harding had not been apprised of the proposed move late in the day so far as could be ascertained, but it was thought likely that numbers of republican senators would be called to the White House for conference tomorrow.

Misses Greenville to Pass in Review at White's Theatre.

Mrs. Lula Fleming, Mrs. C. S. Forbes, Mrs. C. T. Munford and Mrs. S. G. Gates were joint hostesses yesterday to the U. D. C. at the home of Mrs. Lula Fleming. The house was beautifully decorated with long leaf pine and cedar with a touch of red lending color to the already beautiful background.

After the repeating of the Lord's prayer led by the President, Mrs. Lula Fleming, and the reading of the minutes of last meeting, we were told that the four highest contestants at the close of the contest for the prettiest girl will pass in review on the stage at White's Theater. A small amount being added to the regular picture, the proceeds going to the U. D. C. This amount going direct to the committee in charge to help complete the Jefferson Davis monument.

With the help of the people of Pitt county and with the consent from the county commissioners it was voted to investigate the donation or purchase of a show case to place in the court house to place any relics that belong to the Confederate Veterans that would be loaned or given for a museum to be started.

Mrs. R. R. Cotten our historian, told that all efforts are being made to collect all facts concerning the early history of the U. D. C. in Greenville and any one knowing anything will please let her or Mrs. Fleming know.

LARGE CROWD HEARS BRYAN IN SPLENDID ADDRESS AT TARBORO THURSDAY NIGHT

thought was the solution of these problems.

He said that this solution, the same solution for all the problems, was the world's greatest need. He named five problems: first, that of taxation, and in this connection he took a rap at the present administration in their handling of the soldier's bonus bill. He said that in all matters of taxation the difficult thing was to find where to locate the tax.

He offered as his solution to make those who had grown rich out of the war while the boys suffered to pay the bulk of the tax. The next great problem he mentioned was the labor question on which he spoke for just a few minutes. Then he said one of our greatest problems was the question of law enforcement.

He reviewed some of the great issues which had been carried by small majorities, where the minority had always bowed to the will of the majority. But he said that in the matter of the prohibition question, an issue that was carried by a great majority, the people were still questioning the right of prohibition to prohibit, that they were in some cases trying to bring it back in the form of light wines, and beer and in many instances were trying to block the enforcement of the law by questioning its right and legality.

But he said that this was the greatest moral victory that this or other countries had ever achieved and that it would never be repealed.

The fourth great problem he mentioned was the profiteer. He said the farmer was the first man who was deflated after the war and that he was not selling his produce at prices that prevailed before the war and paying fifty per cent more for everything he had to buy than he did before the war.

He insisted that the Federal Reserve board should have on it at least one farmer, one man from the laboring class and one from the business men in addition to bankers and lawyers.

The last problem he touched upon was the competitive armament of the nations and he said that we could never make any great world advancement until we could realize to some extent Christ's ideal of the brotherhood of man.

Then he offered his solution for all these problems which was the right reward for service performed. He asked the rhetorical question: "Can a man's service be worth?" Perhaps the most eloquent part of his address was when he pictured to the audience, while it listened spell bound, the achievements of the great inventors and moral reformers and asked if any one could calculate what their services had been worth to the world. He believed that men were capable of earning great rewards but he said that the trouble was that those who had rendered greatest service had not had time to collect their reward and that those who had collected most had not had time to serve.

So he said that the world's greatest need was that thing upon which we might build God's law of reward for service rendered. He said that this thing was a belief in God and the Bible interpretation of love for one's neighbor.

He spoke for about an hour and a half and was heard with the closest attention by the several thousand people present. There were noted in the audience people from quite a distance and the adjoining counties of Nash, Pitt, Martin and Halifax had large delegations present.

Ventilation Most Difficult Problem in Building Poultry Houses; Adequate Space is Big Factor

In Airing Poultry Houses Moderation is Needed, Extremes Harmful

By SETH W. SHOEMAKER
Director, The School of Agriculture,
International Correspondence Schools, Scranton, Pa.

AN IDEAL POULTRY HOUSE

Many varying opinions are expressed on poultry house construction and extremes are indulged in from the coop that has no ventilation and is almost air tight to the extreme open type that is ventilated as much as possible.

After experimenting with various types of construction the poultryman usually selects a type of building that is midway between these two.

The most serious difficulty is usually to secure satisfactory ventilation. In too many poultry houses are built to take care of 50 to 100 hens and are used for three or four times that number.

Although it is not always possible or advisable to build a poultry house to fit all future requirements, care should be taken to provide for increases or decreases in the flock. Over-crowding of the flock in the winter time often brings unsatisfactory results and means considerable loss.

Most farms can support a flock of 200 to 400 hens economically. Poultry houses, however, are often based on a 100-hen unit, which is an economical unit to use, as it takes very little more to care for than many hens than for half that number.

Square Feet Per Poultry

The number of square feet floor space necessary for fowls is a matter of considerable argument. The best results are usually obtained, however, in a house where there are at least four square feet floor space for each fowl; three square feet will answer for Leghorns and other varieties of the Mediterranean fowls provided the house is kept perfectly clean, except perhaps the Minorcas, which will need as much space as the American varieties. Large fowls like the Asiatics have about five square feet of floor space per head. Where the fowls may be crowded somewhat the house is especially well ventilated and the unit is made, the more space proportionately will have to be allowed for each fowl, that is a house with 400 square feet floor space will probably require for 100 fowls, not only 200 square feet floor space will not be as satisfactory for fifty fowls.

When the space is too small for the flock, special care must be taken to keep the walls and floor especially clean. Poultry houses are made of all kinds of material, but more are made of frame construction than any other kind, partly because a house can be easily erected by the average person and partly because wood provides a good insulation against the weather. Dryness in a poultry house is essential and freedom from moisture depends considerably on ventilation.

JUDGE AND MAYOR SENT TO PRISON

Judge Earman, Mayor Diggers & Sheriff Deben

Mayor L. C. Diggers and Municipal Judge Joe Earman, of West Palm Beach, Florida, in custody of Sheriff Deben, are shown here entering the West Palm Beach jail to serve sentences of 10 days each, imposed upon them by Circuit Judge E. C. Davis for contempt of court. The two had violated terms of the official depositions of a case. While they were in jail they were visited by Mayor Bryan, of New York, who was present when they were released on bond, pending an appeal of the case to the state courts of the state.

MARRIAGE IS NOT MERE BUSINESS, WOMEN ASSERT

By CHESTER B. BAHN,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Syracuse, N. Y., Feb.—Marriage is a mere business contract, simply to insure the protection of the children? "Yes," says Mrs. Almon Hensley, writer and suffragist, who foresees such a condition within fifty years, adding that women will live separate lives, with motherhood pensioned, and should mothers prove incompetent, their offspring will be placed in "home group" institutions.

"No!" shout Syracuse clubwomen, professional women and successful wives and mothers.

Says Dr. Theresa Bannon, one of the best-known women physicians in the State.

"If Mrs. Hensley will guarantee a complete change and evolution in human nature during the next fifty years her conclusions will be logical. But if in fifty years the marriage contract is a purely business one she needn't make provisions in her plans for the children, 'cause there won't be any."

Mrs. Kate Knickerbocker, president of the Kanawha Club, said: "I don't approve of or believe in Mrs. Hensley's statements. Marriage is a sacred institution and should be regarded as such. The situation, as Mrs. Hensley describes it, will never come about while there are American mothers living who hold to American ideas. It is a poor idea to spread such things before the younger generation. They have enough ideas already. I think Mrs. Hensley is certainly looking at the world through very queer eyes."

Mrs. Cora P. Graham, president of the Syracuse Women's congress: "Don't let anybody worry about such remarks. Truly intellectual women—I mean women who honestly think—hold their lives close to the true and sane methods of living. It is merely a question of vision—and I think Mrs. Hensley's eyes are on the bias."

Reo Provides Super Thrills or Daring Athletes in Frozen West

Super thrills are the principal stock in trade of the movie game. Riding a plank behind a rapidly traveling motor boat used to be considered the ultimate in trick stuff, but here is a stunt that goes the surf boat two or three better.

Skidding behind a racing auto is the newest outdoor sport and it is gaining favor in the California mountains where it first became popular. Persons familiar with the handling of skis will realize particularly well the anger involved in this kind of sport. It is one which only the most athletically inclined should attempt.

The greatest of care is required in keeping a stout hold of the rope and still be able to let go instantly in case of a spill.

The idea was first conceived by a resourceful stunt man for a weekly news film. He took a Reo taxicab chassis with a special roadster body to Truekee over the week end and had the fast car pull sleds and men on skis while the camera spun off the film.

The Reo racer shown above is the one which made quite a speed record on the San Carlos track last spring.

IRON AND COOK

by electricity and you will taste a new kind of life. It takes all the drudgery from the kitchen, and makes house keeping a thing of joy. It is lots of fun to turn on a switch and have a hot iron in less time than it takes to tell it. Come in and let us prove it to you.
