

A group of Hollanders and Danes in lower Michigan are looking for a location to settle permanently and specialize in purebred live stock and dairying. They are young men, the sons of farmers, who have made Michigan famous for its purebred stock and dairy products. They are all highly trained and are community builders. No better type of citizens are to be found. If the advantages of Pitt County were properly presented, it is well within the realm of possibility that they could be interested. It is announced they will make a tour next fall with a view of finding a location that will meet their purposes.

With such a group of specialists identified with farming in this county it would be a splendid asset in showing the innumerable advantages and benefits of diversified agriculture.

GOVERNOR CALLS MEETING PRISON BOARD THURSDAY

Executive Makes Move to Probe Charges Against System

RALEIGH, May 16.—After six consecutive hours spent in conference first with Mrs. Kate Burr Johnson Commissioner of Public Welfare and later with N. A. Townsend legal adviser of the Board of Charities and Public Welfare Governor Morrison announced that he had called a meeting of the State Prison Board to be held in Raleigh Thursday afternoon at two o'clock.

Governor Morrison who on Friday of last week, took the investigation of the State and county prison systems out of the hands of the Board of Charities and Public Welfare and assumed personal direction himself, has pledged himself to give the State within the next few weeks a modern, up-to-date prison system. The Board of Charities and Public Welfare meeting in Greensboro Monday, resolved to check its own investigation in order to give the Governor free rein in the conduct of his inquiry. The meeting of the Prison Board Thursday, it is assumed, without direct authority from the Governor for the statement, is in line with the expressed determination of the Governor to take "far reaching action."

Neither Mrs. Townsend nor Mrs. Johnson would comment on their interview with the Governor in keeping with the hands-off policy which the Board of Public Welfare determined upon in the passage of its resolution Monday placing full responsibility for the investigations upon the Governor. Mr. Townsend, it is understood has advised the board of its full authority under the law to conduct an investigation and the ineffectiveness of the resolution of the State Prison Board adopted last week directing State prison camp supervisors to permit no one, except the Governor or members of a grand jury acting under the law, to examine prisoners in their jurisdiction privately.

Provide Camps For Tourists Who Plan Mt. Mitchell Trip

CHAPEL HILL, May 16.—With the opening of the automobile road to the top of Mount Mitchell on the State Park within a few days, it is expected that there will start a pilgrimage to the historic peak that will number 40,000 people before the end of the season. This is eight times the number that took the trip during the short season following the opening of the road late last year.

In order that the thousands expected may be well cared for and their number increased, the N. C. Geological Survey is taking steps to assure camping conveniences for spending night near the summit, including water supply, tents, blankets, sanitary conveniences, etc. It is also planned to have in operation for the season a tea room at which visitors may be served with meals. These essentials to the free use of the State's one park will be taken care of either by the Development Company, which has charge of the road or provided under State management.

Progress Slow In Obtaining Release Prisoners in China

Washington May 16.—Minister Schurman, reported to the state department today that no progress was being made in negotiations between Chinese authorities and brigands for release of American and other foreigners held captive in Shantung mountains. It was said there were indications that the negotiations might be drawn out indefinitely.

Escaped Convict Is Taken at Farmville

John Jordan, colored, serving a five year prison sentence from this county took leave of the county road workers to which he was "assigned for service," more than a week ago. Notice of his escape had been sent out and his period of liberty was short lived. He was seen by Farmville authorities last Saturday, and readily admitted that he was absent without proper leave. The sheriff's office here was notified and his return to serve out an unexpired term was ordered.

ORIENTAL-AMERICAN MUSICAL COMEDY IS GREATLY ENJOYED

"Katcha-Koo" Presented by Local Talent Proves Big Success

"Katcha-Koo," the Oriental-American Musical Comedy which was presented in White's theatre last night under the auspices of the King's Daughters was a great success and thoroughly enjoyed by those in attendance.

The play opened in the Temple of Buddha, before which stood "Katcha-Koo," Mr. Ned Laughinghouse a Fakir of Hunga. He stood immovable in spite of suppers and offers of rich food and gems. Finally through the ingenuity of two Americans, Mr. Will Lipscomb and Mr. George E. Sargent, a magical composite garment performed the miracle of moving "Katcha-Koo," and then the real fun started. Mrs. Robert Fitzgerald and Miss Maude Lee were perfect in their parts, in warning the Americans of the impending danger of moving "Katcha-Koo." "Katcha-Koo" wore a shirt of a vagabond, trousers of a Frenchman, vest of an Italian and the coat of an American. He made love to every lady and until the vest was removed the lives of the Americans hung in the balance. In the end the vest was finally taken off, and "Katcha-Koo" turned out to be an American, the husband of Mrs. Charles Gaddin, Mrs. Marvin Blount, and the father of Dolly, Miss Helen Joyce and Prudence, Miss Hannah Dixon.

The first act took place in the Maharajah's (Mr. Bernice Gardner) temple of Buddha, Rasputin, India. The Second Act. Mrs. Chattie Gaddin's Estate, Riverside Drive, New York City. The weird Oriental environments of the first act was in direct contrast to the second part of the play.

The Veil dance the Auld Lang Lynne groups, the Yankee, Dixie girls and the "Samboes," were beautiful dances and featured by Greenville's most attractive and beautiful children.

The closing scene was a wonderful patriotic one, entitled "Liberty Affaire." Mrs. C. F. Clark, as Miss America, James Burton James, Jr., as Uncle Sam and all the groups in the dances, occupied the stage and the scenic effects were both effective and beautiful.

Mr. George E. Sargent of the John B. Rogers producing Company, directed the play and much credit is due him for the great success which it proved to be. The rehearsals were conducted under great difficulties as there were so many things going on in the city, but he overcame every obstacle and "Katcha-Koo" was presented in a wonderful manner. Mr. Sargent not only proved a good director, but with his personality he won the hearts of the Greenville people who will always give him a welcome here.

The production was given under the auspices of the Patient Circle of the King's Daughters and the receipts will be used to carry on the work of this worthy organization.

Mr. W. C. Vincent was a business visitor to Bethel and Rocky Mount today.

Chinese Bandits Hurl Three Foreign Captives to Death

SHANGHAI, May 16.—With unconfirmed report from Lincheng, that three of the captives held by Chinese bandits had been hurled to death over a precipice in the Shantung mountains as a warning to the authorities to hurry work of negotiations for release of the prisoners.

Further word is anxiously awaited. It is said that murders were done with the purpose of impressing on the Chinese authorities and the foreign diplomatic corps that the bandits meant what they said that all prisoners would be slain unless the terms of the brigands were promptly complied with.

PEKING, May 16.—With the government's consent Minister of Communications Wu Yu Lin and General Yang are proceeding to the stronghold of the bandits to obtain the release of the foreigners held captive.

YOUNG LADY HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT HERE LAST NIGHT

Miss Lizzie Kennedy Suffers a Dislocated Shoulder in Wreck

As result of injuries received in an automobile accident last night Miss Lizzie Kennedy, a niece of Mr. C. B. Whichard is suffering today from a dislocated shoulder and a bad bruise on the right side of her head, while other occupants of the car, Mr. Earle Broach, Mr. Kelley and Misses Sybil Hickman and Gladys Harris, of Vandemere, house guests of Misses Maggie and Stella Whichard are suffering minor injuries.

The accident occurred last night at 8 o'clock, about four and one half miles from Greenville on the paved road leading to Bethel. The car which was a Chevrolet and driven by Mr. Earle Broach was going along at a good rate of speed when it left the pavement and went onto the soft ground along the side. The earth being too soft to hold the weight of the car it gave away turning the car over into a ditch. Miss Kennedy was thrown from the car and caught underneath while the top protected the other occupants.

The accident would have perhaps proven fatal for Miss Kennedy but for the timely arrival of Mr. Jarvis Harding who happened to be passing. He succeeded in extricating the party from beneath the car and brought them to Greenville.

While Miss Kennedy's injuries are painful they are not believed to be serious and last reports received today state that she is resting quietly. The other members of the party are all right with the exception of a few bruises.

DECLAMATION AND RECITATION CONTEST IN THIS CITY TONIGHT

Miss Annie Vandyke and Wayland Hart Will Represent City

Tonight at 8 o'clock in the high school auditorium will be held the declamation-recitation contest. This contest will be participated in by boys and girls from the schools of Washington, Bethaven, Rocky Mount, New Bern, Elizabeth City and Greenville. There will be a recitation contest for the girls and a declamation contest for the boys. In each case the prize will be $10 in gold.

This contest was begun last year at Washington. At that time there were only three towns that participated viz. Greenville Washington and New Bern. Last year New Bern captured the honors. This year Greenville is host to the occasion, and bids fair to take some of the honors. Greenville's representative for girls is Annie Shields Vandyke, representative for the boys is Wayland Hart. Both of these have good selections; they have learned them thoroughly. They will make a splendid showing this evening.

This contest is being carried on by the various schools for the purpose of stimulating interest in public speaking. Public speaking has just about become a lost art in the South, and the schools feel that it is up to them to revive the art. The public is invited and urged to be present in order to lend encouragement to local boys and girls as well as pay a courtesy to the visiting people.

Mr. W. C. Clark went to Scotland Neck this morning for a brief business trip.

S. B. Currin, Named Grand Master at Meet Odd Fellows

GOLDSBORO, May 16.—SPECIAL.—Sam B. Currin, Greenville, was elected grand master of the North Carolina Lodge of Odd Fellows, which is meeting in eightieth annual session here today. For the last year Mr. Currin has been grand warden of the lodge, and the honor conferred upon him is the highest that can be paid by the state lodge. Mr. Currin is one of the prominent tobaccoists of Greenville and for many years has been conspicuously identified with the fraternal organization.

A love feast featured the meeting of the lodge last night, when gifts of the anniversary campaign for the Orphan Home maintained by the lodge here were presented. The program also included musical numbers consisting of songs, choruses, recitations and a concert by the Home band.

More than 200 representatives of various lodges throughout the

Bootleggers Ring In New York Bold

New York, May 16.—An attempt to break up a country-wide ring of bootleggers, with headquarters in this city, which is charged with operating the maritime liquor, mart off Jersey's three mile limit, will be made by the Government tomorrow.

Assistant United States Attorney Herman L. Falk made this announcement today after quizzing the captain and crew of the British steamer Yankton, which put into port yesterday with empty larder and bunkers, after the supercargo had left the ship off Montauk Point, several weeks ago.

Falk said the government tomorrow would file a complaint in Federal District Court against six men believed to be the brains of the ring, which is credited with having flooded the Atlantic seaboard with smuggled liquor in the last six months. Falk estimated that the ring had landed at least 60 thousand cases from Scotland and the Bahamas from the fleet, operating from Miami to Boston.

The names were not made public, but the suspects, Falk said now were in New York, Boston and Philadelphia.

George Gould, Noted Financier Dies in France, Unable to Rally From Bad Attack Pneumonia

MENTONE, FRANCE, May 16.—George Jay Gould, American financier, who has been ill at Cape Martin near here, died at 3 o'clock this morning. The end came peacefully with his wife and two children at his bedside. Gould was stricken with pneumonia March 20, and for several days his condition was critical. He rallied April 3, and it was reported that he was out of danger. Three weeks later he took turn for the worse.

George Jay Gould, financier and railroad man, succeeded to the leadership of the famous Gould family upon the death of his father, Jay Gould, December 2, 1892.

In addition to assuming responsibility, as trustee and executor for the $80,000,000 estate left by his father, he carried on and expanded the great railroad holdings of the latter, and within a few years, during which he applied the lessons learned from the elder Gould, he became one of America's foremost railroad financiers. The 6,000 miles of road left by Jay Gould grew into more than 20,000 miles under the management of his son, while the many investments in other huge enterprises, including the Western Union Telegraph Company, also were largely managed by the principal heir.

Case of Colonial Stock.

He was born in New York City Feb. 6, 1864, the sixth in line of descent from Major Nathan Gould, of Gold, the original ancestor, who came from the north of England in 1648 and settled in Fairfield Conn. While many of Nathan Gould's descendants attained eminence in colonial affairs and through service in the Revolutionary War, it remained for Jay Gould to become the first financier.

The Gould family fortune dates from 1860, when Jay Gould, a partner in his father's hardware store in Delaware county, New York, bought for ten cents on the dollar a controlling interest in the Rutland and Washington railroad, a little bankrupt line running between Troy New York, and Rutland Vt. Young Gould, in addition to selling hardware, had studied surveying in his spare time and took an interest in railroad building as a result of these studies.

Two years after purchasing the road, Jay Gould had succeeded in extricating it from financial difficulties, whereupon he sold at 120 the interest originally acquired at ten. This was the first feat of that generalship which over and over in later life, made him the foremost railroad developer of his time.

Showed Business Ability.

George Jay Gould even when quite young, showed an inclination to follow in the footsteps of his father. He received a thorough education from private instructors, and subsequently entered Columbia University but was not graduated.

While Mr. Gould apparently enjoyed good health during the years he spent as a railroad builder, it developed during a lawsuit in 1923 that he had suffered a breakdown, and was spending most of his time in Europe recuperating from bronchial trouble.

In the spring of 1923 he became seriously ill while in Egypt and was hurried back to his villa in southern France suffering from pneumonia. For several weeks his life was despaired of by the foremost physicians of Europe.

Owner Fine Estate.

Mr. Gould's home in Lakewood N. J., has been described as one of the most magnificent country places in America. It was modeled after the old English estates, and had its gatekeeper, its lodge, its master of the hounds and its master of the hunt.

The financier had been a lover of outdoor sports from boyhood, and continued to ride, hunt and play golf as long as his health would permit. He was a member of the New York Yacht Club the Atlantic Yacht Club, the Royal Southampton and Royal Thames Yacht Clubs, as well as the New York Athletic Club.

Demand for Skilled Labor Grows, Report

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Increased demands for all classes of skilled labor, skilled mechanics and farm hands have practically put an end to unemployment in every section of the country the department of Labor reported today in an analysis covering conditions during April.

The predicted shortage of competent farm labor, the report said, "is now already a fact and in many sections of the country the farming interests are being severely hampered by the inability to secure labor for farm work. In the south and southwest where heretofore there has always been a sufficient supply they are experiencing for the first time a situation which is causing alarm, as large numbers of men who have always worked on the farm have migrated to the large cities of the country, securing immediate employment in the various industries which are having trouble to find sufficient labor to meet their demands."

"Indicative of the country's sound industrial condition is the fact that a large percentage of the public employment offices report that it soon will be impossible to meet the growing demand for certain classes of labor."

PUBLICATION IN BEHALF OF THE AUCTION METHOD SELLING WEEED APPEARS

MR. JIMMIE LEE ACCEPTS POSITION WITH BLOUNT-HARVEY COMPANY

"The Tobacco Farmer" a small publication of four pages, which is being issued in the interest of the auction method of selling tobacco and for the growers as well appeared for the first time this week. R. W. McFarland of Wilson, one of the best known tobaccoists of eastern North Carolina is editor and owner. There is no man connected with tobacco interest in the state better qualified to keep the public informed as to conditions than Mr. McFarland, because from a standpoint of service in behalf of the tobacco growers he is among the oldest.

In his salutatory, the editor states that the paper is not run in competition with any other publication but will enter the arena to occupy a field of its own, especially as it will deal with things not from a local standpoint but as a whole. It will boost no particular town or city, but will play the part of an informant to the tobacco growers and other interested parties. The first sheet is a very creditable one and contains information from practically every state where the weed is sold through both the auction and cooperative methods.

THE SPRING FESTIVAL AT TEACHERS COLLEGE WAS GREATLY ENJOYED

The College campus was the scene of an attractive and enjoyable fête on the afternoon and evening of May 14, when the annual Spring Festival was held under the auspices of the Y. W. C. A. at 6 in the afternoon the program began with the assembling of the queen of the Festival and her attendants. Catherine Reid, of Hertford, was the charming queen and she was nobly escorted to the throne by the Prince Betsy Wright, who crowned her with due ceremony. Flora McCormick was the page, and the other attendants were Mary Dayton Leonard, Irma Hebit, Pearl Daniels, and Lorena Jenette.

The Maypole dance was an unusual success, and was carried out by girls of grace and agility. Then the queen and Prince led the Grand March, followed by the attendants and the dancer.

In the evening, a lantern drill was very efficient. Then came the contest, the participants in which represented some of the best talent in the college.

The numerous lotus with delicious refreshments added greatly to the occasion as did also the side-shows. Among the side attractions were the Fortune Telling tent and the fashion show.

The money which was made will be used to send delegates to the Y. W. C. A. conference at Blue Ridge.

Canada is Preparing Against Fuel Shortage

OTTAWA, Ont.—Federal and provincial governments of Canada are trying to find a way to meet next winter's fuel demands without leaving the country wholly dependent upon the United States, having in mind the threat of embargo last fall when American communities were suffering from a shortage.

Canada has vast stores of both soft and hard coal, but transportation difficulties will prevent their development so long as the Pennsylvania-West Virginia hard coal field continues to produce and there is no export. The inquiry before a Senate committee indicates that Nova Scotia can meet all demands for soft coal. The search for substitute Pennsylvania anthracite has not been successful.

Sure is strong!

The air-tight sifter top keeps the lye full-strength and always ready for instant use.

RED DEVIL LYE

for washing clothes
Softens a tub of hard water, making it like rain-water.

Red Devil Lye—convenient to use

There's no inconvenience about using Red Devil Lye. It is put up in granulated form, the modern way to make lye. The can has an air-tight sifter top, which is opened quickly and closed easily. The tight-fitting cap keeps the contents fresh and dry.

Red Devil Lye, being granulated, dissolves almost instantly in hot or cold water. It is economical to use because you can measure just the quantity you need, and there is no danger of using too much. Don't be put off with out-of-date, unknown and wasteful brands. Insist upon genuine Red Devil—the lye that's easy to use.

Willett, Washington, statistician.

The Bituminous Operators' Special Committee, formed to cooperate with the United States Coal Commission, and as a liaison between the industry and the public, has outlined the ills of the coal industry as viewed by the operators. The committee represents about 70% of the commercial tonnage of bituminous coal, and is the first joint body ever authorized to speak for any considerable portion of the industry, which is highly competitive and comprises 9,000 independent operators.

John C. Brydon, of Somerset, Pa., Chairman of the Special Committee, described in his committee's first report the following four major obstacles to satisfactory bituminous coal mining from the standpoint of the public and the industry:

1. Instability of labor conditions due to the monopolistic power and methods of the United Mine Workers of America, with the following consequent handicaps to the industry:
 - (a) Inability of mine owners to lay plans even a year ahead with any certainty of regular operation.
 - (b) Inability on the part of the industry to make maximum use through steady shipments of the transportation facilities of the country.
 - (c) High costs of mining, resulting in high prices, due to constantly interrupted and therefore uneconomic operations and to property losses through violence.
 - (d) Exorbitant labor costs, causing prices which force other working people in effect to exchange from two to four days' labor for one day of mining labor when they buy coal.

(e) Continual threats of even higher wage demands, to be enforced by bludgeoning and violence.

2. Transportation difficulties. These constitute an obvious and fundamental deterrent to satisfactory supply and price of coal. Problems of car shortage and suggestions for improving the present system of car distribution are being studied.

3. Seasonal demand. A determined and thorough effort by the industry to encourage and teach the storage of coal is certain to be one of the committee's recommendations.

4. Speculation. Out of the evils listed above grows destructive opportunity for the industry's barons, the speculators who, and those mines which, lie idle when supply is normal and strive for "billings" when demand is hot and prices high. The great body of constructive business citizens who constitute the bulk of the bituminous mining industry are as desirous as the public itself to so stabilize the industry as to stamp out the speculator.

Large Towns in Soft Coal Fields Built for Temporary Use Serve as Examples of Better Conditions

Although the life of the average mining camp is only 25 years, bituminous coal operators are investing heavily in modern villages. Many of these new towns are worthy examples of rural community development as the above photograph of a community at Dun Glen, O., shows. Just outside the range of the camera were large recreational grounds. While the miner has his problems, he is fortunate in not having to contend with many of the difficulties which confront the man in the city. Items like rent, fuel and light are the least of his worries. The day of the month holds no terrors for him. In the average camp, house rent seldom exceeds $8 a month. Rent is usually figured on a basis of $2 a room. Coal for heating and cooking purposes is plentiful. In some fields it is given away; in others a charge is made of $1 a month. The spirit of progress is keen in the bituminous coal fields, crowding out the backwoods camps of years gone by. Schools, churches, good roads and recreational facilities are necessary features of the new towns. The Bituminous Operators' Special Committee, formed to cooperate with the United States Coal Commission, has filed briefs alleging organized violence in support of destructive labor monopoly on the part of the United Mine Workers of America. There is no excuse for the union's course, the operators contend, because the industry is highly competitive—wages are high and conditions good. The United Mine Workers of America launch constant violent attacks against any form of industrial relations, no matter how satisfactory, other than their own, according to one recent brief filed before the Coal Commission, dealing with conditions in Johnson County, Kentucky. The operators said: "The advent of coal mining in Johnson County, of which Paints-ville is seat, brought paved streets, recreation centers, hospitals, shower baths at working quarters, abolition of typhoid fever and doubled wages in what was formerly a poor farming section. There had never been trouble between workers and employers, improvements in working conditions had been steady under shop committee systems or on the companies at Van Lear and Thealla had employed union and non-union men alike. Then, in 1922, as part of a nation-wide attempt to starve the public into submission, the union minority among the workers in these mines, by systematic intimidation and violence, culminating in two murders, succeeded in terrorizing the much larger number of contented men who wished to work and in paralyzing to a larger extent the operation of the companies and the production of coal. "It is alleged that there were no local grievances or issues of any kind."

Weak Back CARDUI The Woman's Tonic Mrs. Mildred Pipkin, of R. F. D. 3, Columbia, Tenn., says: "My experience with Cardui has covered a number of years. Nineteen years ago... I got down with weak back. I was run-down and so weak and nervous I had to stay in bed. I read of CARDUI and sent for it. I took only one bottle at that time, and it helped me; seemed to strengthen and build me up, so that is how I first knew of Cardui. After that, when I began to get weak and 'no account', I sent right for Cardui, and it never failed to help me." If you are weak and suffering from womanly ailments, Cardui may be just what you need. It has helped thousands, and ought to help you.

Hawaii Makes Report Experiment In Humanity Now

KAUNAKAKAI, Island of Molokai. The progress of Hawaii's ambitious experiment in humanity the effort to rehabilitate the dying Hawaiian race by returning its representatives to the soil and to the environment that was their ancestors' before the invasion of the white man, passed reverently through an exacting crucible of investigation on the occasion of the territorial legislature's visit here. The opinion of the majority of the legislators was that the work thus far had been well done, and that the lands are sufficiently fertile to presage virtual assurance of the success of the colony, which comprises 1 families of Hawaiian blood. Some legislators, however voiced doubt that the endeavor would result favorably and were of the opinion that the present difficulties in the path of the experiment would prove insurmountable. These disadvantages include lack of sufficient water for necessary irrigation; absence of transportation facilities, and an apparent lack of a market for the produce of the settlers. Members of the colony expressed boundless hope that they would be able to wade through the difficulties. "We are going to come out all right," one settler told The Associated Press correspondent. "You should see how the people work all day, taking just enough time for meals, and planting in the moonlight up to 11 o'clock at night. We are determined to make this a success, because we realize that perhaps the fate of our race rests upon us here. I know it can be done and will be done. We cannot fail."

FACES BEAM WITH HOPE AT SADDEST SPOT ON THE EARTH

KALAUAPAPA, Island of Molokai, T. H.—A spirit of happiness almost inconceivable, and a peace that passes the bound of human understanding, walk with tragedy through the isolated, cliff-guarded, surf-fringed strip of shore that has given this portion of the Hawaiian archipelago the name of "the lonely leper isle of Molokai." Associated Press correspondent found when he accompanied the territorial legislature on a trip to the settlement recently.

A visitor to the colony, forewarned of the horror it holds finds all of that horror and more that cannot be discussed. But he finds also that the heavy fog of gloom which once enveloped the tragic, narrow stretch between the sea and the towering cliffs, has been dissipated by a ray of light arising from the favorable results that have attended the use of the Dean chaulmoogra-soil specific during the past two years in checking the ravages of the oldest disease in the world. The hope that springs eternal in the human breast is ever present now at Molokai; even in the most advanced cases.

The visitor finds faces smiling with a cheerfulness that has conquered affliction. He is greeted everywhere by a hearty, joyful "Aloha," the all-embracing Hawaiian term of salutation, welcome and well-wishing. The eagerness with which the inmates talk to a visitor, and look for long hours upon an unmarred, strange face "from the outside," is pathetic as is their naive, almost child-like questioning as to whether the visitor may know friends of their on "the outside"—in Hilo, Honolulu, Wailuku, Lahaina.

Many of the patients have taken refuge in music—the great solace of the Hawaiian race. They have organized a band and several singing clubs which vie with each other at songfests. The performance of one of these clubs—a patients male octet—supplied a bit of pathos that crops up frequently through the aura of peace. The patients were singing gaily a cheerful Hawaiian song of welcome to the legislators. They were succeeding admirably. Suddenly a mandolin player—the colony—who had been gazing with longing into the unscarred faces of the visitors—began weeping. Despite the tears that streamed down his cheeks, he continued, with bravery as fine as ever seen on any battlefield, to sing the cheerful words of the song, did his best to simulate joy and keep the tears out of his voice.

Noted Physicist on University Faculty

CHAPEL HILL, May 16. — Paul Dike, noted physicist, has cabled from Constantinople that he will come here to the University to act as substitute for A. H. Patterson who will be at Harvard next year on leave of absence.

The engagement of Dike comes about as the result of a strange coincidence. Filling temporary faculty positions is always a difficult problem. Mr. Patterson, when it was decided that he would spend next year at Harvard was in a quandary as to who could be found to take his place for the one year. While he was puzzling over it one day, he took from his post office box a letter bearing a Turkish stamp. It was from Paul Dike whom he had known well at Cambridge University and in Berlin, but with whom he had had no communication for many years.

"I want to bring my two sons back to America so that they can be educated in their native land," he wrote. "If you know of any place where I would fit in for a year until I can look about, let me know." Mr. Patterson cabled, and the next day got a cable in return. So the matter is settled.

INVESTIGATING THE PRISON SYSTEM

The summary action of Governor Morrison in taking from the hands of the State Board of Charities and Welfare the responsibility of investigating various charges that have been preferred against the conduct of the state prison and various county road camps, has created wide talk and speculation throughout the state.

Without assigning any reason for his decision to the board other than "your investigation and report would embarrass me," Morrison it is presumed has started in his own way to probe the charges of state institutions.

It will be remembered when attention was brought to the penal system of Florida, prompt and sweeping denial was made by state officials. However, the charges would not down. Parents of a South Yakota youth asserted that he had been killed in a convict camp. The attorney general of the western state was asked to assist in uncovering the deplorable and inhuman whipping practice. Florida was reluctant to take the initiative of an inquiry. In the meantime, sentiment was becoming immensely aroused by press reports that were, subsequently verified.

At the current session of the legislature enough evidence was developed by a special investigating committee to prove that the convict camp system was lacking in the first essential of civilization. The legislature abolished the flogging practice, while state officials have publicly pledged to see that prisoners are treated at least humanely.

Evidently there was some truth in the reports that one county in North Carolina did not give prisoners a fair deal. The official responsible for that condition has been removed. Protest has been made by state officials against what has been called "outside interference." That so-called "interference" is based on information furnished by the head of the Prisoners' Aid Society, at Washington, D. C. He invited the attorney general and other officers of the state to give searching inquiry of specific charges that had been made by prisoners who served time on the road gangs of the state.

An old saying puts it "where there is so much smoke there must be fire." As to the truth of the conditions as indicated by the prisoners' aid organization there is no attempt to say. However, it is hoped that Governor Morrison's inquiry will be through as he has promised.

In event conditions exist that reflect poor management and prisoners are not treated as they should be, undoubtedly the chief executive of the state will lose no time in bringing about quick and effective changes. On the other hand, if all the intimations, charges, etc., are found lacking the people should be advised by a report that will set at rest talk, and gossip concerning our prison system.

LIME PAYS WITH CLOVER

It would pay any farmer who is interested in soil development and soil building to visit a demonstration being conducted by Julian Sellars on his farm near Mebane, where he shows the value of lime in growing clover, says W. Kerr Scott, County agent of Alamance county.

Sellars planted a 15 acre field to wheat and clover last year, liming half of the area and leaving the other half unlimed. Scott states that the lime was applied with a wheat drill, going over the ground twice. About one ton was used to each acre, applied on top of the ground just before sowing the clover seed in the spring of 1922.

On a recent visit to this demonstration, Scott found that the clover on the limed half of the field was up to a fair stand; was dark green in color and showed a healthy growth. At this time the clover is about six inches high.

On the unlimed half of the field, there are a few scattered, pale yellow bunches of clover all in a very unhealthy looking condition. This clover is only about three inches high and there are more weeds than clover in this portion of the field. Very few weeds are to be found in the limed part. Scott says that the entire field received exactly the same treatment in every way except that half was limed and half unlimed. The date of sowing both the wheat and the clover was the same.

Scott believes this to be one of the most valuable and striking demonstrations that he has seen in the county this spring and that it gives a fair indication as to the need and value of agricultural lime, especially in the growth of legumes.

CARDINAL LAUDS AMERICAN WOMEN

Cardinal Lucon, the venerable war hero of Reims, gave the American business women who are travelling through France as Good Will Delegates an insight into the spiritual life of his nation today while he led them around the ruins of the famous cathedral.

The hope of world peace is the evening star of this grand old Prince of the Church, calmly waiting to embark toward the sunset of eternity. The sufferings of his beloved France, the desecration of the house of God, the destruction of its treasures that crystallized the genius of centuries—all he freely forgives, he told the American women, in the hope that God may answer his prayer and spare future generations for all time the horrors of war. And because of his confidence in women; as apostles of peace, and particularly American women, he volunteered to be their guide in their tour of the ruins.

The party included 61 women from almost every section of the United States. They came from New England and from below the Mason-Dixie Line. North Carolina was represented.

He told the delegates how for four years the Germans held Reims under the fire of their guns, and pointed out what remained of some of the famous statues, principally "The Smiling Angel" and "The Queen of Sheba."

"Before the spring of 1917," he continued, "the interior of the Cathedral was hardly damaged except that there were no doors and that the glass had been shaken out of the windows. Here and there a few pieces of stained glass still remained in their leaden frames hanging from the windows. But the remainder of the interior was untouched and I used to come alone in the closed cathedral every Friday to make my stations of the cross.

France's foremost church dignitary, renowned and loved the world over, yet simple in demeanor as the humblest cure, paused. Signs of fatigue were apparent. He had covered much ground in pointing out the innumerable features of interest. He had talked much in explaining their significance and their associations. In his late eighties his mind is as keen as ever but his form is beginning to show the might of the years and the hardships of the war days. Going over the scene made him live again the days of horror and it cost him much in emotion. He had lived so long in the beauty and art of the cathedral that every evidence of destruction was to him like the brutal murder of a loved one.

"Ladies," he addressed them, "Let me thank you for the affectionate visit you take in our city and our cathedral. My admiration has always been very great for the splendid American women who came to us of their own free will in the very first days of the war. They gave up their homes, families and comforts. They came to care for our wounded and to aid our poor refugees whose homes had been laid waste.

American women were the first to set the example of such devotion, long before their country entered the war on the side of France. Later American men came to prove their attachment and to mingle their blood with that of our soldiers. And so I ask you to carry back to your country the heartfelt gratitude of the Archbishop of Reims. Enlist them in the cause of peace. The world must have peace. We can only obtain it by prayer and love. Leave no room in your heart for hate. Crowd it out with love and prayer."

SHOP AT HOME

If we were to ask those who preferred patronizing out of town stores, the reason for doing so, the answer would invariably be, "the stores in this town are not as progressive as those in other towns."

Firstly, this is not so. Secondly, if it were, the blame would rest entirely upon those who shopped out of town.

And we'll anticipate the answer to their question, "Why."

"No store can be progressive and prosperous unless it receives the co-operation of the people in its town. If you do not do your buying at Home, how can you expect these stores to be all you demand. It's right up to you if you want your stores here to improve. Give them the opportunity to do so. SHOP AT HOME."

INDUSTRIAL PLANTS INCREASE OUTPUT BY CO-OPERATION

CLEVELAND—Sincerity to purpose, frankness and a desire for right labor relations are the basis of successful employe representation, according to the executives of 16 large manufacturing concerns here, all of which have in operation well developed systems of workers' committees with a voice in the affairs of the company.

In a survey of the operation of the plants in these establishments, each of which employs more than 300 workmen, made by a committee from the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce, it is set forth that, while in some instances the plans are intended to promote departmental co-operation, increase efficiency and production, or reduce labor turnover in most cases a desire to improve relations between employer and employe is the fundamental reason for their installation. The executives, as a rule, contend that a mutual spirit of co-operation must be present before this basis of successful representation can be made actual.

Other outstanding features of the executive's opinion, as reported by the committee, were:

"Advisability of educating employes as thoroughly as possible regarding sound economics in order that they may be assisted to consider labor relations from a sound viewpoint.

Representatives of employes should be elected by and from their own number and should be assured by their employer that no discrimination will be made against them because of anything said or done in their representative capacity.

"There should be no limitation preventing employe representatives from considering and formulating recommendations regarding any phase of the company's activities concerning housing, wages, and all other matters properly affecting their relationship.

The Round Table Meets.

On Tuesday afternoon the ladies of the Round Table held the last meeting of the club year. This was to have been a picnic meeting at the Joyner farm, but when rain made the picnic impossible Mrs. R. L. Smith graciously opened her home to the ladies and their many guests, and a most delightful time was had regardless of the weather. The home was in readiness when the guests arrived, just as though they were expected.

Mrs. Grant the president in her usual cordial manner welcomed the visitors along with the members.

And after the various committee reports, which included final decision by the club on study course for next year, the business of the Round Table came to a close for 1922-1923. The program committee then announced O'Henry as the subject for afternoon study; and Mrs. Wiley Brown gave a reading of the short story "Divorce." This was followed by "Sketch of His Life and Character," by Mrs. R. L. Smith. Both numbers were greatly enjoyed by all present. Current Events followed in rapid succession adding to the fun of the day. The president's closing address will linger long in the hearts of members and guests as a gem of real merit. But even there the Spelling Match though thoroughly enjoyed did not set the seal on the fun of the afternoon, but the hostess invited everyone to the East lawn, where rugs were spread, and here in real picnic fashion the luncheon was served, which consisted of sandwiches, deviled eggs, pickles, lemonade ice cream and cake. Thus closed one of the most delightful meetings of the best year of the Round Table. Guests of the afternoon whose presence added much to the occasion were Mrs. V. P. Seoville, Mrs. H. E. Austin, Mrs. B. T. Rouse, Mrs. W. A. Darden, Mrs. J. N. Gorman, Mrs. J. K. Harris, Mrs. L. A. Randolph, Mrs. H. L. Ragsdale, Miss Ward Moore, Mrs. J. M. Edwards, Mrs. R. L. Crow and Mrs. J. M. LAND SALE.

By virtue of the power of sale contained in a certain mortgage, executed and delivered by S. W. Erwin to John F. Crawford, on the 9th day of December, 1919, which mortgage was duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds of Pitt county, in Book M-13, page 21, the undersigned will sell at public auction before the court house in Greenville on Monday, the 21st day of May, 1923, the following described lands:

Lying and being in the town of Arthur, county of Pitt, being lots Nos. 4 and 5, in subdivision No. 2 of the Norman lands, containing six acres, and being the same land that was conveyed to John F. Crawford by L. C. Arthur and C. T. Munford. Reference to which is hereby made for an accurate description.

This is a re-sale of said land, the bid at the last sale having been raised.

This the 5th day of May, 1923.

EGGS TO BE HATCHED MUST HAVE VITALITY

COWPEA CROP PAYS FARMER 18 MILLION, VAST FUTURE HERE

Chicks Need Nourishment in Shell—Old Eggs Do Not Give Enough.

By Seth Wagar shrdlu outwyp mfwy
By SETH W. SHOEMAKER,
Director, the School of Agriculture,
International Correspondence Schools, Scranton Pa.

Vitality is a prime essential in eggs for hatching. Unless the vitality is good the eggs may not produce chicks, or the chicks hatched may be weak and of little value.

It is not generally safe to rely on the vitality of eggs more than four weeks old, and yet eggs three months old have been known to produce chicks that have grown to maturity. Usually the eggs should be as fresh as possible when they are set.

If eggs have to be kept for some time before they are set, much of the success of the hatching will depend on the way they are taken care of. Eggs kept for hatching should be moved or turned about each day. It is usually considered best to keep the small end of the eggs pointed down. Cared for in this way, eggs have been very satisfactorily kept for fourteen days and sometimes longer.

When the eggs are turned about each day the yolk retains its natural position near the center of the egg, but if it is left unturned for any length of time the yolk settles to one side as shown in the accompanying illustration, and the chances are that such an egg will not hatch.

Eggs for hatching should be kept cool and at a uniform temperature. Fifty-five degrees Fahrenheit is usually considered the best temperature. Eggs exposed to a higher temperature are

The annual farm value of cowpeas produced in the United States during recent years averages over $18,000,000. The term "cowpeas" as here used does not include "blackeye cowpeas or beans" grown in California. "On most farms, however," says J. E. Barr in a bulletin of the United States Department of Agriculture, "the cowpea grown largely as a catch crop is considered of secondary importance as a money crop, and in many instances is handled in an unbusinesslike manner. This results not only in a direct monetary loss to the grower, but may mean a more serious economic loss to the farmers desiring to purchase cowpea seed."

"The cowpea is of major economic importance in the crop rotation, especially in the cotton belt, but it is an uncertain producer of seed, and in some years there is an apparent shortage of stocks for planting purposes. Investigations show that almost invariably a lack of cowpea seed in any section may be attributed to inefficient farm preparation for market and inequitable distribution of existing stocks rather than to insufficient production."

Most of the commercial supply of cowpeas is produced in Alabama, Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina and Mississippi. Other States that produce fairly large quantities, but usually not enough to meet their own planting requirements, are Florida, Virginia, Tennessee, Louisiana, Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Kentucky.

liable to start to develop prematurely and may spoil. Eggs that are exposed for any length of time to a temperature of forty degrees Fahrenheit usually have their vitality impaired. Eggs exposed to this temperature for any length of time during cold weather will seldom hatch.

All experienced poultrymen insist upon the greatest possible vitality in the eggs. Even though an egg may be fertile, it is not necessary hatchable. To be capable of producing a chick an egg must not only contain the living germ but must have sufficient vitality to enable the chick to grow to maturity.

Nnnatural environment is usually the cause of lack of vitality in eggs. The death of chicks in the shall may occur at any stage of incubation, either from natural cause or from unnatural causes. Lack of knowledge of how to control the processes of nature in this matter is responsible for most f the losses.

WAR ON SUMMER FURS TO SAVE WILD ANIMALS

NEW YORK, May 16. — War is declared against the fashion of summer furs, which is expected to reach the peak of popularity this summer. In a circular issued by the American Blue Cross Society, with headquarters in Springfield Mass. The purpose of the campaign is to check the slaughter of fur-bearing animals, which threatens tota extinction of the wild animals if the craze maintains its present pace, says the society.

According to information given out by this organization the 1923 styles will not be limited to neck pieces and trimmings for summer wear as in former seasons. There will be entire coats of fur, and other coats with fur trimmings to go along with milady's parasol and straw sailor.

The society is seeking the concerted support of social leaders and publicists to put summer furs in the discard. The same body will be remembered by its fight upon vivisection, calling for an "open door policy" in experimental laboratories.

One of the advanced coat styles consists of jet black monkey fur, colored with American ermine. "Fur Jaquettes" will be in vogue, besides mole pelts having trimmings of chipmunk, monkey, fox and squirrel. The Paris stylists recommended fur-trimmed fans and sunshades.

The "call to arms" reads in part: "Every right-minded person should protest against such monstrosities of fashion violating the laws of health and comfort causing wastage that involves needless sacrifice of fur-bearing animals."

Will Augment Freight On Mississippi River

MINNEAPOLIS.—Commercial use of the Mississippi via "the line of least resistance," or the shipping of freight by water, is again to be established with Minneapolis the northern and St. Louis the southern terminal, with a connecting barge route as far as New Orleans.

Announcement is made that a river transit company, which operated last year between this city and LaCrosse, Wis., will broaden its activities and extend its line to St. Louis, where a government barge line now extends to New Orleans.

Most of the shipping business is expected to come from Minneapolis and St. Paul firms, but a good share is expected from such cities as Red Wing and Winona Minn.; LaCrosse, Wis.; Dubuque, Clinton Davenport, Muscatine Burlington, and Keokuk Iowa; Moline, Rock Island Quincy and Al-

Smaller Rooms Reduce Demand for Carpets

Berlin.—As Germans moved into smaller living quarters, because of high rentals, the need for floor coverings declined proportionately. At the same time prices continued high on account of the heavy import duties on raw materials, and out of both these conditions there resulted a buyers' strike.

Now carpet prices have fallen from one-third to one-half, but even so a domestic covering will be twelve feet cost, the equivalent of $100, and here are few buyers.

Stainless Silver Comes to Relieve Housewives

Sheffield, Eng.—A new tarnish-resisting alloy, "stainless silver," has been discovered as the result of research in the laboratory of a local firm.

In making this announcement at a meeting of the Institute of Metals, Harold Turner said experiments had been in progress for two years for the discovery of an alloy resistant to ordinary atmospheric corrosion.

New British Stadium To Seat Over 126,000

LONDON.—England boasts the world's finest sports arena in the world. It is the great new stadium at Wembley which opened recently with the final for the English football cup. It accommodates 125,500 spectators, which is almost twice the capacity of the famous Greek stadium at Athens, and is considerably larger than either the Yale or Harvard bowls.

The site was cut out of a hillside on an old golf course. The turf is exceptionally fine, being suited not only for football but also for baseball, cricket and lawn tennis. On first view it suggests a modern vision of the Colosseum of Rome, with vistas of a cleaner sport activity than that ancient shames afforded.

Vienna Given Over to Land Speculation

VIENNA.—Vienna is showing remarkable adaptability during these days of reconstruction and change, and in more than one municipal office the dusty records and business system that reminded a visitor of the methods of the middle ages have given place to broad flat-topped desks, card index systems, typewriters, and a flock of alert young women who have time for nothing but business in business hours.

Take real estate. There has been an orgy of speculation. Of the 43,700 buildings in Vienna 21,000 have changed owners since the armistice, some of them over and over again. One piece changed hands ten times in side of 18 weeks. The whole city has been crazy to change depreciated crowns into real estate, and prices went up tremendously. In one instance a seller received 5900 times the original price for his dwelling. Even the members of the old aristocracy lost their heads and sold property right and left.

Divorces in France Double Since 1913

Paris.—Divorces have doubled in France since the war, according to figures made public recently. A general divorce law was first passed in France in 1884, and in that year there were 1,657 divorces. In 1913, the number of divorces was 15,372. In 1919, when the armistice were being disbanded and people were free to put their houses in order, this number reached 19,465. In 1920 it reached 31,463, in 1921 the number was 30,498, and the past year 50,753.
