$1.11 Wheat Cost $1.23 To produce, Federal Experts Declare

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—Reports from 4,000 farmers in all parts of the country to the department of agriculture show that on the average in 1922 it cost 66 cents a bushel to produce corn, $1.23 a bushel to produce wheat and 53 cents a bushel to produce oats.

The cost figures include charges for labor of the operator and his family and for use of the land. Where the price received for the product was less than cost, either the farmer did not receive wages for his time or he did not receive for the use of his land an amount equal to the cash rental value reported, it is pointed out. The average cost of producing an acre of wheat on 2,400 farms was $19.68. The average yield was 16 bushels an acre, making the cost a bushel $1.23. The average sale value reported was $1.11 a bushel.

MARTHA TUCKER FOUND HUSBAND IN COMPANY OF "HIGH YALLER" TYPE; DISPUTE ENSUED; SEQUEL IN COURT

Martha Tucker, played the leading role of "High Yaller," a domestic drama rehearsed in police court, with Mayor Clark, as "critic." The story written in three acts revealed that Martha who said she was a dutiful wife went in search of her husband Robert Tucker. After following several futile "clues" she finally located him in the company of Martha Otterbridge, whom she described as the "high yaller type." A bitter dispute followed in which all joined in contaminating the atmosphere with heavy and sulphurous expression as to what the trio thought of each other. Mayor Clark, sustained Martha's contention that she had right to "uncover" the clandestine meetings of her husband with other women, and dismissed her. However, Martha and Robert did not fare so well. They were fined $25 each and division of cost.

Frantic appeals for help were heard from the ruins, but only in a few instances was it possible to render assistance. "On the bluff overlooking the city, the Court and the Cherry Mount Hotels seem to have been lifted from their foundations, and buried into the ruins below. The bluff hotel tumbled over on the opposite side of the bluff. "The French orphanage was demolished by the first shocks and sixteen sisters and 16 children perished. "It is reported that E. BETTER BOOKS FOR BOYS

The Boy Scouts of America have recently received a gift of a hundred thousand dollars, which is to be devoted to a campaign against the "Deadwood Dick" type of fiction and the substitution of something better in its place. While the plans for the campaign have not yet been announced those entrusted with the fund seem confident that they will be able to succeed and induce the boys of the country to give up the reading of the old dime novels and spend their leisure time on books that come nearer to the truth and in which the hero is not compelled to wade through blood and slaughter to rescue the heroine from the toils of her brutal captors.

Such a campaign may not prove so easy as it looks, but it is well worth while to make an attempt in this direction. The average healthy American boy when he sits down to read fiction wants a story full of life and action.

There must be in the book more than one thrill or he will soon tire of it and lay it aside. Love must be there, the right kind of love with an occasional fight in which the hero must come off victorious. There is no need to send the youth out to fight Indians and make him conquer a whole tribe by the skillful use of his trusty rifle, as the American boy now knows that fighting Indians is no longer a national pastime and that most of the aborigines who are left are well content to live in peace at the expense of a kindly government.

The American boy never loses his interest in sports, particularly in baseball. When he opens a newspaper, which he frequently does, the sporting pages are his chief attraction and he keeps well acquainted with the records of the leaders of the diamond.

Here is a field the new writers of fiction for boys can enter with every promise of success, a field that so far has been sadly neglected. Here there can be plenty of thrills without any spilling of blood, plenty of great victories without the loss of a single life.

There are many other such opportunities open to a new school of fiction writers for those who seek to arouse and to hold the interest of their boy readers. Scout training has had a wonderful influence on thousands of American boys, has induced them to take a new interest in nature and has taught them good habits in personal cleanliness and in kindness toward others. It now has an opportunity to go further, to lead the boys away from fiction of a worthless type and to confine their reading to books that are well written, interesting and ever exciting, but which present true pictures of everyday life.

THE RED CROSS SPIRIT

The American Red Cross has just finished what it was hoped was its last war service. Now comes a catastrophe which cries half-way round the globe for the aid of that greatest mother of mercy in all the world. President Coolidge has asked that "all contributions" from the people of the United States in this appalling combination of disasters pass ultimately through the co-ordinating hands of this semi-official representative of America's sympathy.

This does not mean that there is not need of participation by other societies, associations or groups of individuals. Already the churches, civic organizations and individuals have begun a canvass for relief funds or have made prompt contributions. The total sum named by the Red Cross does not seem large enough in view of the reports of the extent of the loss of life and property. But at any rate, the million-dollar quota which has been allotted to the New York committee under Dwight Morrow's chairmanship was more than raised within a few hours.

Reference has been made to the fact that the Japanese sent a large contribution at the time of the San Francisco fire. It was an amount one-half the total sum contributed from outside the United States. What we give should at least be half of what the whole world outside Japan will contribute. That would not be more than our neighborly share.

We estimate elsewhere the terrific damage to this island kingdom, but its people can have this comfort in their suffering, grief and loss: that, facing their symbol, the rising sun, they face a sympathetic and friendly world in all the circuit of the sun.

ARROGANCE OF MUSSOLINI

The isolation of Italy, in consequence of her rough seizure of Corfu, is not considered at all "splendid" in Rome. The Italian press comments bitterly on the fact that the great Powers are a unit against the course of Mussolini, while all the minor States represented in the Assembly of the League of Nations are of one mind in condemning what he has done. The attitude of the smaller countries is ingeniously attributed by the Italians to jealousy of Italy as a great and growing naval and military Power. But that reasoning does not apply to Great Britain or France or Belgium, all of whom are supporting the demand that Italy, as she is bound to do by the Treaty of Versailles, submit her quarrel with Greece to the Council of the League of Nations.

At first Mussolini would not hear of any intervention whatever in the matter, of reference of it to any outside parties. But now, obviously feeling the weight of the world opinion against him, he proposes an alternative. Let the case be referred, his representative at Geneva suggests, to the Council of Ambassadors. This is a recognition, even if some what tardy, of the fact that the affair has an international significance. As the commission delimiting the Albanian frontier, at the time the Italian officers were massacred, was under the Council of Ambassadors, it may be plausibly argued, as it is by the Italian Government, that it should be left to the latter body to inquire into the merits of the case. This, too, is belated as Italy had prejudged the case. In consenting now to an inquiry, she is very much in the position of first hanging the accused person and then proceeding to try him. On the main issue, of course, if the Council of the League assented to this latest plan of the Italian Government, it could be adopted in entire consistency with the provisions of the Covenant. But it would have to be done in and through the League, not on the sole initiative of Italy.

FREE GUIDE BOOK ISSUED BY U. S. FOR SMALL HOME OWNER

WASHINGTON. — A guide book designed for the prospective small home owner was issued yesterday by the United States government, the department of commerce announcing the publication of a handbook setting forth details which assert the steps necessary to acquiring such property.

This aid to home builders is a publication entitled "How to Own Your Home." It carries a foreword by Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce, and was compiled by John M. Gries and James S. Taylor, of the division of building and housing, in answer to the request of a large number of national civic organizations that the subject should be authoritatively covered to encourage home owning in the interest of good citizenship. The booklet, planned to give simple, common-sense information to the person of moderate means who would possess a home, is the result of collaboration and approval by more than 50 civic bodies and experts interested in developing a sound social and economic system through the home.

Advantage's Stressed.

In declaring that the public recognizes the advantage of owning their own homes and that business groups, especially, are viewing this proposition in a new light, Secretary Hoover says in the foreword:

"They see that taking a neighborly interest in developing sound financing and other machinery for the use of home seekers and insisting on the observance of honest, straight-forward business methods by those who deal with home seekers is not paternalism but good business and good citizenship. It is the square deal—and it is not only right but essential that the cards should not be stacked against the home seeker."

"Maintaining a high percentage of individual home owners is one of the searching tests that now challenge the people of the United States," Secretary Hoover asserted in urging "the

NEW HIGH POWERED REO SIXES TYPIFY STEADY DEVELOPMENT

"Considerations of refinements in the new line of high powered Reo Sixes just announced for 1924 freshens interest in the traditional progressive conservatism of the Reo Motor Car Company," remarked Mr. Cox of the A. G. Cox Manufacturing Company. He was commenting on the policy of gradual development which has distinguished Reo's manufacture for twenty years.

"Reo has always believed that certain engineering principles were so definitely correct as to eliminate the necessity of even a possibility of radical departure from them, continued Mr. Cox. "Refinements have been found possible, of course, as better materials and manufacturing processes have been evolved. Reo has never hesitated to make improvements which were thoroughly tried and proved in advance."

"But Reo engineers have been guided more closely by engineering principles and their anxiety to develop automobiles of extreme dependability and long life, than they have by momentary fads among a few prospective owners."

"Reo heads have believed for years that a manufacturer is in honor bound to respect the value of its product in owner's hands throughout the entire useful life of the product. Radical changes in basic design or even in outward appearance seriously depreciate the value of the superseded product, and cause unwarranted loss to the owner. Hence Reo has taken pains to add its improvements gradually, only after earnest thought for their enduring merit."

"Take brakes as an example," said Mr. Cox; "convinced that modern traf-portation is the "idea." "The present large proportion of families that own their homes is both the foundation of a sound economic and social system and a guarantee that our society will continue to develop rationally as changing conditions demand."

Sound Judgment Needed
"Buying or building a home requires the use of sound judgment in seeing that the personal needs of the family are best met with the funds available," Mr. Hoover pointed out in the foreword. "It involves not only the carrying on of transactions of financing and buying or building but it involves the proper determination of location with respect to school, work, and to neighborhood."

Secretary Hoover stated that the development of the automobile has given "a great impetus to suburban life and an increasing possibility of home ownership."

"A family that owns its own home takes pride in it, maintains it better, gets more pleasure out of it, and has a more wholesome, healthful, and happier atmosphere in which to bring up children."

The New 6-Cylinder Touring $1335 Add Tax

DEVELOPED by nineteen years' experience, the 1924 line of Reo high-powered six-cylinder passenger cars more forcefully expresses the significance of Reo as "The Gold Standard of Values."

Greatly improved and oversized brakes with 15-inch drums and 2 1/2-inch faces provide positive control; a simple, sure and safe design of time-tried goodness is assurance of continued efficiency.

The rugged, powerful chassis is hung lower to the road for easier riding, greater safety and improved appearance. The double-frame mounting of power units,—long a distinctive Reo feature,—is maintained. So is the simple dual foot control.

Powered with the wonderful Reo 6-cylinder engine; nothing experimental nor untried. With intake valves in head and exhaust valves at side, positive lubrication and cooling systems and unusual accessibility, it provides dependable power for every driving condition.

Super strength marks the new rear axle, which combines the advantages of both the semi floating and full floating types.

Safety—reliability—comfort—economy—roadability—appearance,—on whatever factor motor car satisfaction is based, Reo dominates.

Assembly Kills Indian Move To Release Gandhi

SIMLA, India—A resolution calling for the early release of Mahatma Gandhi and other political prisoners was defeated after a heated debate in the national legislative assembly in its present summer session here. Seshagiri Iyer, speaking in behalf of the resolution, gave a brief history of the political movement in India, beginning with the inception of the National Congress in 1885. The European war, he said, gave an impetus to democratic ideals which was supplemented by the announcement made in Parliament in 1917 that the British government intended to introduce legislation for the "gradual development of self-government institutions" and the "progressive realization of responsible government."

"Tanic is such a wonderful stomach medicine I would not be without it in the house for anything, and I can not praise it too highly," was the recent statement of Mrs. A. M. Nicholson, residing at 2 Pennsylvania Ave., Asheville, N. C. "For years acute stomach trouble nearly drove me frantic at times, and constipation would give me headaches and dizzy spells that would nearly topple me over. My stomach was so weak even toast or a drink of water would nauseate me. Gas would build me up often causing such intense pain that I could hardly breathe, and I was so nervous I could seldom sleep much. "Inside of five or six weeks the Tanic treatment made a well woman of me, and I was sleeping better than I had since I was a child and eating everything without a bit of trouble."

Tanic is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 57 million bottles sold.

SPOILED BOY IS GROOMED TO RULE GERMANY

Princess Hans

General Ludendorff, von Hindenburg's right hand man in the World War, does not hope to bring Kaiser Wilhelm back to Germany, but he does believe the monarchists will re-establish a monarchy in Germany, and he is grooming the eldest son of Princess Hermine, the ex-Kaiser's second wife, for the job. He is Prince Hans Georg, Helmut Ludwig Friedrich Hermann, Ferdinand von Schoenrich-Carolath, 16 years old, overgrown and anaemic. He lives with a court in his castle at Silesia. He is inordinately fond of candy and eats enormous quantities, despite the orders of his doctors. Hermine is set on having her son made Kaiser and already forces his attendants to address him as "Your Majesty."

"Cuddle Up" To Appear at White's Tuesday, Sept. 11

O. E. Wee's latest and most popular musical comedy will make its first appearance here next Tuesday at White's theatre. It is one of those funny French farces translated to an English version which provides an endless number of laughs for the audience. From beginning to end there is a continual stream of humor, interwoven with quips, which are all original and good.

We almost overlooked the fact to inform you that this title of this new musical comedy is "Cuddle-Up," rather than "Cuddles." The show is just as cute as the title and there is a cast of real actors and pretty chorus girls appearing at every performance as you will see by their names on the program. They are George Selden, Kathleen Brenon, Doris Clara, Ralph Cummings, Jennie Adams, Sweeney & Rooney, Eldon Baker, the Golden West Trio and others.

The settings of the various scenes are excellent comprising a reproduction of the outside of a big country fair grounds, a room in one of the boarding houses in the famous Greenwich Village, New York City, the big Shaik's tent, and the beautiful house that Love built.

The costumes worn by the "Cuddle-Up" chorus are varied and display the latest creations. The song hits are about twenty in number written especially for the show and are made popular by the audience. It is very easy to see that "Cuddle-Up" will be a welcome visitor in Greenville.

Rattler Swallows Young During Battle

SOUTHPORT, Sept. 7.—The fact of the female rattlesnake swallowing its young is again demonstrated by the following story told by Allen McLamb, a rural mail carrier of Brunswick county. Passing along his route he was attracted by the violent barking of his dog. Tracing the dog into a bay, he found the animal had a rattlesnake, which was trying to give battle, but the dog kept beyond reach. McLamb killed the snake, measured it and found it five and one-half feet long, with 13 rattles and a button.

Noticing that the snake was mugging in the middle, McLamb cut it open to see if he might discover the cause of what appeared an unusual size. Immediately there began to issue from the body of the dead snake a procession of young rattlers. These were killed as fast as each came forth until 21 were killed. These measured in length, each, 13 inches and each had a rattle and button.

WHEN ROUGH RIDING PALLED LUIS FIRPO TOOK UP BOXING

NEW YORK, P.—Luis Angel Firpo is the "rough guy" of the Argentine. Before he became a pugilist he was barred from two of the republic's most popular games, soccer and "rossette."

Member of one of Buenos Aires' leading soccer teams, he so frequently incapacitated opposing players in apparently accidental collisions that no body would play against him. He was too strong and too rough, they said. So Luis Angel looked around for another game to play.

Being an expert horseman he decided on "rossette." In this game a rodeo is planned upon the sleeve of a horseman who sends his steed galloping across the field. When he crosses a certain line, another rider starts in pursuit. The pursuer must pluck the rose from the sleeve of the pursued before the latter reaches the end of the field in order to score a point.

Schooner Fights With Hydroplane

A realistic battle between a hydroplane and a schooner at sea, in which the aerial vessel wins a victory, is a big feature of "Children of Jazz," a new Paramount picture featuring Theodore Kosloff, Ricardo Cortez, Robert Cain and Eileen Percy which will be shown at White's theatre Monday.

In the course of the story of the picture the hydroplane is all but wrecked on an island where the schooner of Richard Forestall, an adventurer, is moored. The crew mutinies and runs away with Babs Weston, the heroine, after Forestall has been overpowered. Babs' friends on the island, having repaired the hydroplane, go in pursuit of the vessel and after a battle, force the crew to give up the schooner to the skipper.

This is only one of many thrills in this excellent picture. There are several jazz parties showing modern cabaret life, and other scenes of great dramatic interest. The story is based on Harold Brighouse's play, "Other Times," and was adapted by Beulah Marie Dix, with Jerome Storm directing. The supporting company is quite capable.
