

The old idea of education was comprised between the boundaries of 'readin', ritin' and 'rithmetic'. The modern idea is that education should prepare for life, as well for the utilization of print, pen and figures.

Two million children learning to save pennies is a sound guarantee for saving manhood and womanhood in the coming generations. A people which will not SAVE CANNOT PROSPER.

Two million school boys and girls who have their little savings accounts and thus learn that the labor of today must be conserved to some extent for the expenditure of tomorrow are sufficient security that in the next 10 years the increase in our savings accounts will more than equal the increase in the last 10 years, which was 100 per cent.

WEATHER Generally fair tonight and Saturday; cooler.

STRESEMANN IS STRIVING TO FORM SUITABLE CABINET

BERLIN, Oct. 5.—A constitutional dictatorship, it is believed, is the sole alternative left to the President and the former Chancellor in view of Stresemann's inability to command a two-thirds majority support in the Reichstag, which is necessary to legalize his authorization law.

Deep interest is being manifested in the identity of the men whom Dr. Stresemann proposes to summon as his aides, especially as he has broadly proclaimed his intention to disregard partisan consideration in forming his cabinet.

The casual presence in Berlin of Dr. Wiedefeld, the ambassador to the United States, is stimulating the rumor that he will be one of those selected by the chancellor because of his ability as an economic expert.

Fascist Control Brings Better Times to Italy

ROME.—As the first year of Fascist rule in Italy draws to a close, it is interesting to consider what has been accomplished in the agricultural and industrial life of the nation. It is believed that the increased energy and confidence on the part of landowners and farmers, together with favorable weather conditions, has started Italy on the road to greater production and prosperity.

The number of unemployed has steadily declined; the official returns for the months of March and April 1923, show a reduction of almost one-half as compared to the corresponding months of 1922.

COL. HARVEY AND CHILD QUIT U. S. FOREIGN SERVICE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—The resignation of Ambassadors Harvey at London and Child at Rome, submitted for private reasons and under agreements reached with the Harding administration, have been accepted, marking the first big change in the American diplomatic service since President Coolidge took office.

Ambassador Harvey will not quit his post until about the first of the year. Ambassador Child, who has either left or is about to leave Rome for the United States, will not go back. None of the other American ambassadors, or ministers, the State Department said in making the announcement, has any similar agreement limiting his term of service as far as is known.

The only explanation of the two resignations given in official quarters was that in both cases the ambassadors had a few months ago reached agreements with President Harding as to the length of time they could continue at their posts. Whether they have deferred their retirement because of President Harding's death until President Coolidge should feel that they could be spared was not disclosed.

BOARD RESCINDS ACTION ON GAS FILLING STATION

The privilege recently voted by the board of aldermen to L. L. Hearne to erect a gasoline filling station at Five Points was rescinded by the action of the Board of Aldermen at the regular meeting last night. Since it was held that the permit was granted without being submitted at two regular meetings of the board, the question was whether the previous action of the body last October in refusing a similar privilege should be sustained in this instance.

Four aldermen favored the privilege and four opposed. Mayor Clark cast the deciding vote against the proposition. Those voting for granting the permit: G. A. Clark, R. E. Sellers, Closs W. Hearne, W. L. Hall. Against: F. J. Forbes, P. L. Clodfelter, J. L. Hassell, Z. P. Vanduyke.

D. S. Spain and W. L. Tucker, were re-elected members of the Water & Light commission. The purchasing agent was authorized to buy a new street grader. Mayor Clark, was directed to advertise for bids for paving 14th street from the end of Evans street east to the city limits, forming a connecting link with the city pavement and Cox's Mill road now under construction.

Aldermen Hearne was authorized to revise the insurance program on city property. Clodfelter, Hassell and G. A. Clark were appointed members of the fire commission to succeed Forbes, Sellers and Hearne. It was unanimously voted to allow one per cent discount on city taxes paid during October.

The time was 15 hours.

HOW TO MAKE POULTRY INDUSTRY SUCCEED TOLD BY F. P. LATHAM; PITT READY FOR BIG FORWARD STEP

An interesting session of the Pitt County Poultry association was held yesterday afternoon in the Chamber of Commerce rooms. Dr. J. Morrill of Falkland presided.

F. P. Latham, Belhaven, a member of the state board of agriculture from the first district made a forcible talk.

He let it be understood at the beginning that he was vitally interested in poultry, from the standpoint, primarily, of the "Live-At-Home Program."

In November 1922 a drive was made in a 10 mile radius of Belhaven for the purpose of having the largest number possible to start with a small flock of chickens. The goal was set for 10,000 laying pullets by this fall. Commenting on the success of the undertaking, Latham said that they would have at least 5,000 pullets as a result of this undertaking. In the light of the problem, that necessarily had to be encountered, this is a fine showing. "Everybody is enthusiastic and success is inevitable," he declared.

Elements of Success. "The lack of proper nourishment part of which comes from poultry products, was one of the causes why so many of our country boys were unable to pass the physical examination for the recent World War," Latham continued. Unquestionably many of us fall heir to a good many of the floating diseases simply because our resistance power is at a low ebb because of lack of nourishment.

Those who would take up the poultry industry, if they would succeed, are reminded to "grow into it," and not make the mistake of "going into it." Start in with the small family flock with a view of supplying the home table with nourishing food, then as you gain experience with the problems that will surely arise, and you continue to like it, you are then qualified to increase your flock. Grow just as fast as your experience in it and love for it will justify. This plan will insure success, while the idea of getting rich the first year will mean certain failure.

The profitable flock is the flock that consumes the invisible waste on every farm. If the farmer would only realize it, they could most profitably care for their flock of chickens at a nominal cost, and at the same time make possible a most necessary food for their family. It should be, first of all, their aim of every farm to supply their own table and then sell the surplus.

There is an increasing demand for baby chicks, Latham pointed out. He said that this spring that folks had about Belhaven ordered between 5,000 and 10,000 chicks from Ohio and other distant places, when they should have been supplied by the state of North Carolina.

Link Up Pitt County. "Let's link up Pitt and Beaufort on the baby chick business," he said, referring to the custom hatchery located here and about the proposed enlargement to a 10,000 or 12,000 capacity.

Frank Winstead, Winsteadville, Beaufort county, in 1922 handled a $14,000 business in poultry, this is the record of one country store. "The chicken and egg business," he asserted "is the best of the raising of the cotton crop of 700 bales in that section for that year." On one Saturday Winstead bought 1000 dozen eggs.

STATE'S COTTON CROP THIS SEASON LARGEST EVER GROWN, HE ASSERTS

RALEIGH, Oct. 5.—Optimism characterizes the monthly cotton report for October issued here today by Frank Parker, agricultural statistician of the co-op native crop reporting service.

"The cotton crop in North Carolina is unusually good, considering the various agencies that have worked towards its detriment, including the boll weevil, cotton cat spidder and the weather," reads the report. Nature seems to have been pleased particularly pleased with North Carolina inasmuch as she has given us the earliest July crop in history, thereby getting ahead of the boll weevil. Even though the weevil did hit the crop heavily after the first of August several sections, even Roberson county, had quite a sprinkling of bolls to set and develop after that time. Naturally, with a rather heavy growth of foliage due to heavy fertilization and a very slight or entirely lacking evidence of bolls on the lower half of the plant, the average farmer underestimated his prospective yield. "In September the cotton caterpillar did terrific damage by stripping foliage, incidentally revealing that the number of setting bolls on the lower part of the plant was greater than realized. The killing of the leaves will result in earlier maturity and opening of the bolls, as well as easier and cleaner picking of the crop. These conditions warrant the statement that North Carolina was particularly blessed in a cotton crop under the boll weevil conditions that existed.

"With a forecasted production for North Carolina of 877,000 bales based on 64 per cent, we have one of the largest crops the state has ever grown, in fact it is 25,000 bales more than last year's final production."

He declared he would fight for her estate, under a will he has offered for probate, and then divide it as she had wished. Mrs. Webb left about $2,000,000, which was left her by her mother.

LLOYD-GEORGE ON ARRIVAL HERE IS JEERED BY WOMEN

Police Disperse Crowd As the Former British Premier Lands

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Police reserves were called today to disperse a parade of middle aged women carrying banners denouncing Great Britain, as Former Premier David Lloyd George landed here today.

The crowd assembled outside the city hall to mingle with the thousands gathered to meet the distinguished English statesman. More than 20 banners with the following inscriptions were carried in the line: "Don't let England pull the wool over your eyes."

British hoodluggers flood America with booze. "Lloyd George and his black and tans are here."

"Lloyd George's hands are red with the blood of women and children." The police tore the banners into shreds. No arrests were made. During the demonstration one woman was struck by a pole serving as support for one of the banners.

Women composing the parade said they represented the American association for the recognition of the Irish republic.

Will Visit Wilson. Coming here as a private citizen to tour the United States and Canada, the former British premier was taken off the boat at quarantine and landed at the battery. Lloyd-George, let it be known to newspapermen that he intended to call on former President Wilson, his colleague at the world war peace conference. He was met at the battery by several platoons of mounted police and escorted to the city hall plaza. With the police were delegations of Canadian war veterans.

Defense In Trial Of Hurt Maintain Kanaris a Suicide

RALEIGH, Oct. 5.—The defense in the trial of Eddie Hurt, alleged deserter from the United States army on trial for the murder of Angelo Kanaris, introduced witnesses today tending to strengthen the statement that Kanaris committed suicide because of despondency over the transfer of his commanding officer.

Previous witnesses had stated that Kanaris had been heard to say that he loved his commander better than his mother and father. The evidence also refuted the alleged confession of Hurt, which as introduced yesterday. Witnesses on the stand testified that Raymond Horne, who swore that Hurt confessed killing Kanaris to him, declared that since the trial had been in progress that Horne had said there was nothing to the confession.

WHY THE SERIES OF SIREN BLASTS?

While it is fully understood and appreciated that clouds of black smoke and whistle blasts are the best possible indications of industrial activity, at the same time it is irconciliable why it is necessary to disturb an entire community without justifiable reason.

The factory sirens in Greenville start to let go around 5 a. m., and continue at intervals until 7 o'clock. It is well enough to announce the work hour, but why should whistles be blown so loud and long. It would appear that some of them are tied down and forgotten. There is no sound argument for this incessant nerve wracking nuisance.

In suggesting abatement of the noise it should be remembered that all of the men, women and children of Greenville should not be disturbed at 5 a. m. at the expense of factory employees. Again, the sick should be considered and it is not at all necessary to awaken entire households at such hours.

It is barely possible some substantial reason for the simultaneous outburst of clarion blasts might exist. However, to the average person it is hard to conceive why the grand chorus should begin shrieking with such persistency and in such protracted "unison" at the time of the morning when the greater number of Greenville folks are wrapped in the arms of Morpheus trying to collect the final winks, preparatory to beginning the day's activities.

We merely suggest to those who pull the whistle cords not to hold them down so long and so frequently. For the consideration, it is no assumption for us to extend the gratitude of hundreds of Greenville residents.

The soldiers' bonus is another of those considerations that arise to make life a little harder and explanations worse for statesmen as the time for convening of congress approaches.

By not going on record with opinions of his own, President Coolidge avoids checking an enormous supply of suggestions and White House denials.

In the present turmoil in Germany the former kaiser is apparently willing to look on much like a disinterested bystander.

Sir Thomas Lipton, grand old sportsman, may intend to issue another yachting challenge. In the meantime the world public is looking at the race horses and airships.

President Creedon of Georgetown University advises the students not to wed on less than $4,000 a year income, but of course, almost any college student knows that his services will be worth far more than that on graduation—figured on his own self appraisal.

Motorists are beginning to realize that the dimmer law is not to be wantonly disregarded. Chief of Police Jones and his force "spot" the violators. Mayor Clark does the rest.

STRIKES DECREASE

Figures gathered by the Federal Department of Labor show that there has been a steady decrease in the number of strikes in the country during the past decade and that there were fewer labor disputes last year than in any other year since 1916. In its report, recently given to the public, the department does not minimize the effect of the miners' and shopmen's strikes of 1922, in which more than a million workers were involved and which entailed on the country, as well as on the strikers, losses that are beyond calculation. Deduct these idle men from the total of that year, and the number of strikers sinks to less than six hundred thousand for 1922, as compared with over a million and a half in 1919.

These strike figures show how uncertain is a labor war. In 1916 the odds were two to one against winning a strike, as compared with loss or compromise. In 1917 and 1918, which were years of the World War, the strikers were generally victorious. Employers had vast war contracts on their hands and, as a rule, gave in to the strikers' demands in order to keep their establishments running. At the same time, one-third of the labor disputes in those years were compromised.

Labor lost the majority of industrial disputes in the reconstruction years from 1919 to 1921. In the strikes of last year, capital and labor came out even, with a record of two hundred and twenty-nine each and with somewhat over a hundred compromises.

The total number of strikes last year was last than seven hundred, as compared with twenty-five hundred in 1916, since which time there has been a marked decrease. One of the best evidences of more settled industrial conditions is the prompt squelching of the unauthorized or outlaw strikes. Such strikes have been a vexing problem to both employers and organized labor leaders. Agreements signed by the leaders have been broken by the outlaws, who uit work in defiance of orders from headquarters.

This reduction in the number of strikes is largely the result of better understandings between employers and their workers and of the more general adoption of trade agreements. The labor unions, as a rule, have become convinced that the strike is at best a doubtful remedy and should only be applied when all other measures fail.

FORD AND GASOLINE

If the latest Wall street rumor is true Henry Ford may be going after the presidency in earnest. According to this report he is now negotiating for oil properties, planning to produce crude oil in huge quantities to drivers of cars of his manufacture at 16 cents a gallon, regardless of locality. Considering the number of flivvers in use in the United States it is easy to see what a wide-spread appeal this would make to popular appreciation and support in case the Detroit motor maker goes into the race.

Naturally, if Ford should do this he would start a gas war from coast to coast, and from Gulf to Canadian boundary. For the flivver is strictly an interstate, country-wide institution. There is no "field" for it. There would, therefore, be no field of gas price-cutting short of the national field. The established gasoline makers and venders would probably fight vigorously. It would be a merry war, and it might call on the limits of Henry's vast fortune to maintain it. Meanwhile the gas users would be in clover.

It is, of course, quite conceivable that if Mr. Ford has this plan in mind he has not ulterior political motive—if the desire to become President of the United States can be called ulterior. Maybe he wants to confer a boon on the American motorists, or perhaps he wants to boom his product. But, goodness knows, the product of his factories need no boom, judging from the appearance of the streets of all American cities and towns. Perhaps he just naturally hates a trust and high prices generally.

After a considerable absence from local screens, which time was used making preparations for a new series of feature pictures, Grace Davison, who critics have called "the loveliest woman on the screen," is to make her appearance here once again at the Strand theatre today in the first of her new series of productions entitled, "Love, Hate and a Woman."

Her work in the past has given promise of notable achievement and at this time, with her talents fully ripened, her famed beauty matured, she steps forth as a full fledged star taking her place among the most brilliant and beautiful stars of the screen. She has youth, beauty, intelligence and talent and the truth that the critics claim that she is the loveliest woman on the screen is freely acknowledged by all.

In "Love, Hate and a Woman," her work stamps her at once as a complete mistress of emotional dramatic expression. The story of "Love, Hate and a Woman" is a splendid one—vivid and thrilling in its plot theme.

BALTIMORE, MD., Oct. 4.—Amos W. W. Woodcock, United States district attorney, announced he will ask the indictment of Congressman John Phillips Hill for violation of the Volstead law.

Mr. Woodcock said he will lay the case before the Federal grand jury Thursday, Oct. 11, will ask for an indictment and will do all in his power to obtain the Congressman's conviction.

For a number of weeks Hill has been engaged in win-making experiments at his home in the city. The tests were made, he said, to force a ruling from the Federal Prohibition commissioner as to what constitute intoxicating fruit juices.

"My wife had indigestion so bad she would sometimes have to give up and go to bed for weeks at a time. Gas, painful bloating, sick headaches, constipation, dizzy spells that would topple her over, nervousness and loss of sleep kept her feeling just miserable.

After three or four bottles of Tanlac treatment she was able to eat and digest anything at all, could sleep fine, was not nervous any more, and all the gas, bloating, headaches and dizziness had gone.

"Now she is able to be about her work and is getting along as fine as you please. We wish everyone suffering as she did would give Tanlac a fair trial."

AYDEN - SATURDAY 2:30 - AUCTION SALE

Business Lots and Brick Garage on Third Street in the Heart of Ayden's Business District

ENGLAND SATISFIED WITH NET RESULTS OF SEASON'S SPORTS

LONDON.—The season of international sporting events in Europe is drawing to an end, and Britain, glancing back at the spring and summer, is rather satisfied with her achievements. America didn't win everything. That alone is considerable satisfaction to those who have defended the British against their own critics, who have been crying out that the race had become decadent upon the fields of sport.

Perhaps the beginning of the sports season was the craze over non-stop dancing. Britain was the first to contract that fever. Her human butterflies flitted to fox-trot tunes for 15, 20, 24 hours without a pause, and then the epidemic caught America. A day and a night was just a good start over there. The marathon dancers kept going several days and several nights until, finally, one man dropped dead with his dancing pump on. Well, the British thought, let them have the silly old championship; one ought to be moderate about such things.

In racing the British watched an American horse, Sargent Murphy, win their Grand National, supreme among steeple-chases, but the Yankee jockeys got nowhere in the Derby, so that was all square. Most joyous of all were the British successes against the invading American golf players. The amateur championship remained at home and the open championship was won back from the United States, and both by young players. Wethered, the new amateur champion, and Havers, the open title holder, are in the middle twenties. Although they kept their championships, the British lost gold honors to America. The St. Georges Gold Vase was won by Francis Quimet of Boston in a play-off with Dr. Willing of Portland, Oregon, and—writ of all—the American amateurs retained the Walker Cup over the sacred fairways of St. Andrews, after the British had all but won it. That afternoon, when the fighting Yankee crushed the British after the latter had seemingly made the cup safe for them, it is referred to as "the blackest day in the history of British golf."

Soviets Will Circulate Their Money in Siberia

VLADIVOSTOK.—Siberia.—An attempt is to be made to put Soviet money into circulation in the Far East. Mr. Barihnikoff, director of the local branch of the state bank who went to Moscow for the purpose of regulating the currency in the Russian Far East, is the main sponsor of the scheme.

Mr. Barihnikoff points out, however, that no attempt will be made to interfere with the present Japanese currency circulating here, and that the Soviet money tokens will only circulate on an equality with the foreign money and will be changed at the bank for foreign money or gold as the holder may desire.

Few Prizes to Americans

RIO DE JANEIRO.—American exporters occupied first place in the number of prizes that were awarded foreign exhibitors at the Brazilian Centennial Exposition in this city, which closed late in July. According to official figures prizes were awarded to foreign exhibitors as follows: France 585, Belgium 211, Portugal 204, Italy 180, United States 147, England 110, Argentina 108, Luxembourg 79, Denmark 47, Japan 45, Norway 32, and Czechoslovakia 31.

PLANS TO RAISE BUTTERFLIES FOR DECORATIVE PURPOSES

LOS ANGELES.—An application made by John Hewlett, of Redlands, Cal., for a permit to establish a butterfly ranch on 40 acres of land in the Angeles forest reserve near San Bernardino, has forced the national forest bureau to go into extensive research to determine what effect butterfly culture would have on a forest.

According to Forest Supervisor R. H. Charlton there never, to his knowledge, had been such an application before and he held up Mr. Hewlett's request until the matter could be investigated.

Germany Need, Seamen

BREMEN.—The need for officers to man Germany's navy and merchant fleet is so great that three sailing ships soon will be in operation to train young men to follow the sea.

Germany always has insisted upon training under sail for the men who officer her steamships.

Harding Memorial in Berlin

BERLIN.—The American church in Berlin has announced that it will install a memorial window to the late President Harding. It was in this church that the Berlin memorial request until the matter could be investigated.

AIR TRAVELERS SUBJECT TO PASSPORT RULES

VIENNA.—An air traveler in Europe has to get his passport vised for every country over which he may fly, even if he does not intend to land in that country. This measure was found necessary in order to prevent a passenger through accident or forced landing, finding himself in a strange state without the proper documentation.

Build Alaska R. R. Terminal. FAIRBANKS, Alaska.—Construction of terminal facilities for the Alaska Railroad here is progressing rapidly with a large force of men at work. The improvements include passenger and freight depots, engine and oil houses, water tanks and other buildings to cost in all between $250,000 and $300,000.

Old Time Mining Camps Are Gone; Attractive Communities in Their Stead in Soft Coal Fields

The old terms always stick, no matter how outworn and even false they may become in time. Every mining community probably always will be known as a "mining camp," calling up visions of the tents and rude shacks of the days when the pioneers rushed to California and Alaska seeking gold.

The truth is that coal mining communities are model towns which compare favorably with towns of the same size, anywhere. The picture above, taken at Island Creek, in Logan County, West Virginia, gives an excellent idea of how the soft coal miner lives to-day. Well built, modern, pretty houses, with modern improvements, lawns, wide well laid out, graded streets, nesting in the valley close by the creek with mountains rising on either side, except for the presence of the mine company's office building, the front of which just shows at the left of the picture, gives the town more the appearance of a suburban community or a resort than a "mining camp" in its old sense.

The miners' houses stretch on beyond the church seen at the right of the picture, and on down the valley out of sight around the bend in the creek. These houses, in nearly all coal mine communities, are built and owned by the companies, and rented to the miners at rates which must make the average city renter sick with envy. The usual basis of rental charge is by the room, the rate varying from $1 to $2 per room each month. Imagine renting a six-room house, with a garden and yard, often a garage, well kept up and with modern improvements, for from $6 to $12 a month. Those days are gone forever in the cities, but they will exist for a long time to come for the coal miner. These model homes are electrically lighted, and the miner pays a ridiculously low rate for this service, as he does for all the coal he burns for heating his house and other domestic fuel purposes. The soft coal miner, with the help of the operators, seems to have found an attractive and certain way of beating the high cost of living bogey completely.

War Hatreds Still Alive.

LONDON.—It is too soon to expect the end of racial antipathies engendered by the war, in the opinion of the rector of a small town in Norfolk. He recently learned a lesson that was pointed and conclusive.

Wanting to embellish a war memorial in the town with some carved figures, the rector took it upon himself to order the work done. In due time the figures arrived and were installed. Then the trouble began, for it was learned that the figures had been carved in Germany. A storm of indignation broke upon the head of the rector. He appealed to his church superiors for support, which was not forthcoming, and then retired as gracefully as might be from his impossible position.

Many Notary Applicants.

RALEIGH, Oct. 5.—Now that the automobile title registration act passed by the last General Assembly has gone into effect October 1, William H. Richardson, private secretary to Governor Morrison, reports that scores of automobile dealers throughout the state are applying for notary of the public commissions.

This was announced at Mons, following a meeting of the Provincial Council of Hainaut, at which the necessary credits were voted.

MEXICO TAKES STEPS TO ENFORCE DRY LAW

SAN LUIS POTOSI.—First steps to comply with Article 119 of the Constitution of 1917, which provides that all states take measures against alcoholism, have been taken by the state of San Luis Potosi. Under a law just promulgated by the retiring governor, Rafael Nieto, the establishment of new breweries and distilleries is prohibited and existing plants are enjoined from increasing their capacity.

Never use heaping spoonfuls when you bake with Calumet—it isn't necessary because one spoonful of Calumet does the work of two of many other brands.
