Tornado In Wilson County Yesterday

Few Persons Slightly Injured and Buildings Wrecked in Stantonburg Section; Damage Is Estimated At Over $25,000; Eureka and Saratoga Also Hit

Wilson, May 9.—With the roar of a hundred airplanes a cyclone of brief duration but serious intensity followed by a downpour of rain swept the Eureka, Saratoga and Stantonburg sections of Wilson county between 6 and 6:45 o'clock yesterday evening leaving desolation in its wake. Owing to demoralized wire communications this morning no information as to damage in the Eureka and Saratoga sections could be ascertained but reports from the Stantonburg section announce several slight injuries and property damage estimated above $25,000.

Passing through the outskirts of Stantonburg the tornado about 100 yards wide gave first warning in the form of a siren like wail which swiftly assumed the proportions of a deep voiced roar accompanied by the crash of roofs—the shattering of window glass, and the rumble of trees that fell in its path.

Damage was done to the buildings of the Stantonburg Lumber company, while the roof of the residence of H. E. Thompson was partially demolished and fruit trees in his orchard badly damaged. A huge oak tree fell across the house of Frank Wheeler, caving in part of the walls, while a corner of J. M. Strickland's porch was torn off by the whirling wind. Several trees in the Methodist church yard also were blown down and telephone poles were snapped off at the ground.

Jack Grantham, a prominent citizen was cut about the face when the glass front door of his store was shattered. Two negro men also were reported to have been slightly injured. The cyclone followed a light shower of rain, confining entire effect to a narrow path through which it swept, and persons residing short distance away knew nothing of the storm until it had passed.

Dr. Sam W. Small who is touring the United States under the auspices of the Anti-Saloon League of America will speak in the Ham-Ramsay Tabernacle, Monday evening, May 12, at 8 o'clock on the subject, "America—The Moses Nation of the Age."

Dr. Small is an acknowledged master of genuine platform work. He is one of the class to which belonged those lamented spirits, Gough, Talmage, Sam Jones, Copeland and DeMotte. For many years he was an editor of great Southern newspapers, chief among which was "The Atlanta Constitution" and he is still a staff specialist of that paper.

The public is invited to hear Mr. Small on Monday evening.

BISHOP WILLIAM M. BROWN

Bishop William Montgomery Brown, of the Protestant Episcopal Church, of Gallon, O., who retired ten years ago as Bishop of Arkansas, will be tried publicly by nine other Bishops in Cleveland, O., on May 27, on charges of heresy, growing out of his recent writings. He declares he expects to place the entire orthodox Christian religion on trial by demanding of all Bishops if they accept the entire Bible literally, adding that if they do they are hopelessly at odds with modern science. This battle between the fundamentalists and modernists is said to be the first heresy trial of a Bishop since the Protestant reformation.

LADIES' NIGHT OBSERVED BY PITT COUNTY MEDICAL SOCIETY; MISSES BRYAN AND WINFREE GRADUATE

It is the custom of the Society to have the ladies meet with them once a year and this was by far the most delightful and significant meeting ever held, because of the happy coincidence that the meeting occurred on the evening of the graduating exercises of the two nurses at the Pitt Community Hospital. This ceremony was merged with the Society's entertainment. Graduating exercises took place at the hospital and it was a proud moment to all those present to feel that in the presentation of the two diplomas to Miss Emma Louise Winfree and Miss Maude Bell Bryan, that Greenville would experience a new era in hospital work.

Rev. Dr. Lee Sadler presented the diplomas and his fitting and choice expressions to these young women on "Service" to others made a profound impression. The emblematic pins were presented by Dr. Green whose wit did not fail him nor was he abashed in the presence of the ladies. Following the exercises the guests were extended the privilege of inspecting the building. And right here

PRATT APPEARS IN WHEELER CASE

Assistant Attorney General Introduces Documents Upon Which Indictment Is Based

Washington, May 9.—John S. Pratt, special assistant attorney general, who assisted in securing the indictment of Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, today laid before the Senate committee investigating the subject, documents of evidence upon which the indictment was partially based.

One was a letter ostensibly from Senator Wheeler to Campbell dated March 8, 1923 asking Campbell to "Have your office send me details of the permits in order that when it is taken up I will be able to discuss it intelligently with the Department of Interior."

The matter consisted of photostatic reproductions of correspondence said to have passed between Senator Wheeler and Gordon Campbell, Montana oil promoter, for whom the Senator is declared to have appeared unlawfully before the Interior Department.

Pratt produced what purported to be a letter dated May 25, 1923, in which Campbell offered Booth, solicitor for the Interior Department, 40 acres of land of the permit and suggested an additional 40 acres be assigned to F. M. Goodwin, assistant Secretary Interior if the permit could be granted.

Convicted of Murder in Connection With An Attempted Bank Robbery Three Years Ago; Men Executed on the Same Gallows This Afternoon

Tangipahoa Parish Jail, Amite, La., May 9.—Six men who were put to death on the gallows here this afternoon for the murder, three years ago yesterday, of Dallas Calmes, Independence, La., spent their last few hours on earth with priests attending them, the prisoners sprawled upon the floors of their cells.

Out side in the enclosure surrounding the double gallows final preparations were made by deputy sheriffs. The ground under the 12 by 15 feet space the ground was covered with sawdust and a movable rack upon which the physicians could stand to examine the bodies as they swung from the gallows was in place.

Through a door in the enclosure the bodies were taken into a small space surrounded by canvas where there were two wide shelves one above the other.

The men hanged were Joseph Bochio, Natale Deamore, Andrea Lamentia, Joseph Rini, Joseph Giglio and Roy Leona, the last the actual slayer of Calmes.

The Death March Began at 11:55 O'clock

Deamore was led from his cell at that time and accompanied by a priest began his walk down two flights of stairs. The order of execution was changed and Leona went to the gallows with him. A priest stood beside Leona with his hands upon his shoulders while a second priest stood beside Deamore. The door of the trap was sprung at 12:01 and the men apparently died instantly. Under the law they must hang for 20 minutes.

As the wind whistled the scaffold Deamore said, "I'm going to Heaven" and as the mask was adjusted on him he screamed "Le Hanga Me." Leona kissed a New Orleans sheriff before he was led to the gallows.

Giglio and Rini were led from their cells at 12:12 accompanied by two priests. The pair halted in the inner corridor pending the removal of the bodies of Leona and Deamore from the nooses.

As Rini and Giglio started down from their cells to the lower floors one of the remaining prisoners began to shout wildly. Jailer Johnson was called by the turnkey and they soon quieted him. Rini and Giglio after a few minutes of waiting began to pace back and forth. Both were apparently determined to die game for this pacing was the only signs of agitation shown.

Leona's body was taken from the rope at 12:22 and Deamore's was removed at 12:23.

Lamentia stabbed himself with a knife under the right shoulder blade but physicians pronounced that the wound was not serious. Lamentia bleeding profusely was removed from his cell and taken to the ground floor of the jail.

The traps were placed for the second pair at 12:25 but Rini and Giglio were returned to their cells and Bochio brought out. Lamentia and Bochio went to die next leaving Rini and Giglio for the last. Lamentia and Bochio were pronounced dead by physicians at 12:44 and 12:45. Bochio had been virtually in a state of coma since his collapse this morning. The noose was put around Lamentia's neck and the black cap put on. The trap was sprung at 12:37. The chair fell through the trap with Lamentia as he was seated in it. The second pair apparently died instantly as there was no motion of the ropes after they straightened out. The body of Bochio was taken from the noose at 12:48 and that of Lamentia two minutes later.

Awaiting their turn Rini and Giglio paced up and down the cell. Rini heard the ticking of a telegraph instrument above him and wanted to know what it was. "Newspaper men" said Jailer Johnson. "Have they sent out the news that we have been hanged?" asked Rini. "You know they started with us and brought us back." "No," replied Johnson, they haven't done that. "They might have us hung twice, you know," said Rini. "They are hanging" (Continued on page 5)

American Education Week to be Observed November 17 to 23

Washington, May 8.—Encouraged by the great success of American Education Week last year, the Bureau of Education of the Department of the Interior, in co-operation with the American Legion and the National Education Association, will promote a fifth National week for education in 1924.

There are certain phases of education which, it is generally agreed, require emphasis from a National standpoint. Among these are Americanization; patriotism; better trained and better paid teachers; improvement of the rural schools; more adequately equipped buildings; eradication of illiteracy; and physical education and hygiene. In order to give these phases of education prominence in the observance of American Education Week it has been agreed to designate certain days in the week for calling particular attention to them.

Oppose Preferential Rate
Liverpool—Another protest against the proposed United States railway preferential rates on goods carried in American ships, has been made in a resolution adopted by the council of Liverpool Chamber of Commerce. The suggested discrimination was formally condemned as destructive of the basis of international commerce, and as likely to have far reaching and unfortunate results.

SPANISH KING'S RACING STABLE HELPS THE ROYAL POCKETBOOK

San Sebastian, Spain.—The stable of the Duke of Toledo, the incumbent under which the King of Spain's colic is seen on the Spanish turf, has gathered in 2,116,954 pesetas in stakes since its creation in 1916. The king's best year was in 1922 when his three year old Ruban won by the press of corruption and graft. Americans should be grateful that corruption is so superficial in their government as to be unable to successfully conceal itself or to conspire against the freedom of the press. As long as public officials remain human, as long as there is opportunity and temptation for graft we can expect to have corruption and graft in government.

REQUIREMENTS OF THE MATE

President Coolidge's running mate will have to conduct most of the Republican presidential campaign this year, it is predicted by the political observers in Washington. To him it is believed will fall the task of touring the country and making the big speeches to gatherings of voters in different parts of the country.

Republican newspapers have reported that Mr. Coolidge is to leave the White House for only a few political journeys during the campaign. It is planned also, according to these reports, that he will use the radio in addressing the electorate. It is for these reasons that the selection of a vice-presidential candidate is likely to give the Republican leaders a good deal of worry.

It is admitted among officials and unofficial Republicans that President Coolidge's personality is not a political asset. He has been pictured in the "movies" in nearly every city and hamlet without stirring spectators to enthusiasm. It is felt that his personal appearance on the hustings would bring hardly more response.

The vice-presidential candidate will have to supply these defects in Mr. Coolidge, it is commented. To do that he will have to be a man of more than average physical and intellectual attractiveness, and a good orator. These at least are the qualifications that seem indispensable in the circumstances likely to exist.

the 500,000 pesetas Grand Prix de Sebastian and the total winnings of the stable amounted to 626,730 pesetas.

Horses bred and born in France lead the king's stable with 1,625,827 pesetas; English stock comes second with 249,750, while Spanish horses do not do better than bring 240,977 pesetas into their royal owner's pocket.

TWO CITIES BID TO ENTERTAIN AMERICAN LEGION NEXT YEAR

Indianapolis.—Two cities are bidding for the 1925 convention of the American Legion, according to national officials.

Louisville claims to be able to handle the great crowds incident to such gatherings of veterans, and hopes to demonstrate this fact on Derby Day, May 17. Houston is planning a demonstration of the hospitality of the Lone Star state to Legion officials at an early date.

Louisville, which annually handles a gathering of 80,000 on Derby Day, claims added facilities with the opening of two palatial hotels. Jefferson Post, one of the largest in the country, has use of a 123 acre tract, formerly Douglas Park and once a famous race track, given the Legion by the Kentucky Jockey Club. Selection of the convention city, however, will not be made until the annual convention this year at St. Paul. Seattle already is planning to obtain the 1926 convention.

CALIFORNIA TO BUILD SINGLE SPAN BRIDGE OVER GOLDEN GATE

San Francisco, May.—Bridges and tunnels across San Francisco Bay, under construction or contemplated, call for estimated expenditures of approximately $100,000,000. Engineers say that before the completion of the various programs for connecting San Francisco peninsula with the mainland opposite, the investments may reach $200,000,000.

The largest projects planned are the proposed tunnel and bridge between San Francisco and Oakland and a bridge across the Golden Gate, where the bay, between high steep bluffs, merges with the Pacific Ocean. The Oakland subway and bridge still are in a nebulous stage, though engineers declare them feasible and a matter of necessity sooner or later. Plans for the Golden Gate span have been drawn, however, and submitted to the War Department for approval.

According to the plans the Golden Gate bridge, connecting San Francisco with a tier of northern California coast counties which are now accessible only by ferry or by a roundabout overland journey, will be the longest single-span suspension bridge in the world. Engineers say it will be longer by 1,040 feet than any other suspension bridge. For 4,010 feet of the total distance of 6,700 feet the water is 300 feet deep, on an average with a swift current and a scouring action that is held to preclude the building of piers.

It is planned to make the floor of the bridge 200 feet above high tide, thus giving shipping ample space to pass underneath. The cost of the structure is estimated at $20,000,000.

San Francisco county and other counties in the bridge district have voted approval of the project and the state legislature, at its last session, passed a bill approving such a bridge. Eastern financial interests are reported to have promised capital for the undertaking, with the scheme of a toll system whereby the bridge would be paid for in a short term of years and then turned back to the state.

Three smaller bridges over narrow portions of San Francisco Bay, all at points some distance from the city, are under construction. They are the Coyote Point, Dunbarton and Carquinez Straits bridges. They are designed to help relieve the congestion of trans-bay traffic.

Thousands of persons commute daily from their homes in Oakland, Alameda and Berkeley to their work in San Francisco. These cities, clustered directly across the bay, two and a half miles in width along this shore line represent a population approaching the half million mark. Thus the commuter tax the capacity of the numerous ferries and the plea for bridge and subway have been general. The Golden Gate bridge would not be of direct benefit to these people; the site is several miles distant and not easily accessible.

LIBRARIES PICTURED AS GREAT BENEFIT ADULT EDUCATION

Minneapolis, May 9.—It is in the field of self-education, more or less detached from the class room and formal teaching, that the public library can render its most important contribution to the education of American citizens, said Carl H. Millam, secretary of the American Library association, speaking today before the conference on Home Education, meeting in this city with the National Parent-Teacher convention.

Everything the library does is to some extent educational, Mr. Millam said, and libraries are now experimenting with a type of adult education service designed to increase their usefulness to men and women who wish to continue their education out of school.

"Education is not synonymous with schools nor teaching," Mr. Millam asserted. "Every child is educated not only by the school but by his contacts, experiences, by what he sees, hears and does and by what he reads. Although we put on to the teachers most of the blame for our uneducated or poorly educated, we should agree that the better part of every man's education is that which he gives himself.

"There is a growing recognition that America needs a thoroughly educated citizenship, and we are coming gradually to realize that no man is educated if he stops learning when he leaves school. The world movement for adult education is now felt and it gives to all agencies for adult education an opportunity to increase their usefulness.

"If the libraries see and meet this opportunity we may expect them to add to their staffs not only general educational advisors, but specialists in the several important fields, men and women of the type of high school teachers and college professors, who will be available for the preparation of reading courses and to give advice to the student as he follows out his course of reading. In all probability these specialists will not be teachers; they will be advisors to the independent student.

"The library, by organized effort, by establishing personal contacts outside, by having at the library persons who can take time to give personal advice, by having enough copies of needed books to meet demands promptly, can help materially to prevent boys and girls from continuing or becoming uneducated citizens."

GERMAN TRIGAMIST PREFERRED JAIL TO ANY OF HIS WIVES

Berlin.—When Quirin Hardt, a shopkeeper, was sentenced recently to prison as a trigamist, his three wives arose from court room seats, cursed the judge and fought to get by the guards to their husband and comfort him.

At the time of his arrest Hardt had tired of all three wives, and informed the court that he preferred 20 years in jail to being compelled to return to any one of them. He was given a sentence of a year and a half and left the court in smiles. Hardt was born of German parents in Belgium. His first wife was a Russian, his second Polish, and his third a Rumanian.

POLICING OF LONDON MADE ATTRACTIVE TO MEN OF EDUCATION

London.—The day when London's police force was made up of stalwart though ignorant recruits from the East Side has passed. The beer drinking hercules with the cockney accent is stepping aside to allow the university graduate a chance to carry a whistle and a club. It now takes more than a six feet of brawn to qualify for a pair of thick boots. The policeman's duty is now a profession in London.

Once, before the war, a man joined the London force when he could not get anything else to do. The policeman in those days earned 30 shillings a week, he worked ten hours a day for seven days a week and he had no recreation centers at his disposal. Thirty shillings, even in the days when a shilling knew a lot more tricks than it does today hardly sufficed to keep a family. The guardian of the

Former Greenville Makes Good in Texas

The following article from an El Paso, Texas paper of May 2, setting forth the achievements of Heber B. Tripp, formerly of this city, will be read with interest by his friends in this community.

Making the desert blossom like a rose is one way to build up a place, and transforming a barren, desolate, unsightly arroyo into a paved street lined with comfortable little homes is another.

Heber B. Tripp chose the latter. He came to El Paso in June, 1922, from Mexico City, and bought a block of ground in an arroyo between Mount Franklin and Fort Bliss, on Mountain avenue, which was not much more than a deep gully resembling an abandoned river bed. The property is between Copia and Henderson streets.

He got busy filling in the low places and grading up the arroyo. Dynamite was used freely to shake out the big rocks and tear down the hills. Mule teams and scrapers and a crew of men working for about three weeks almost settled the leveling job.

Then the city paved Mountain avenue and Tripp began to build houses.

Instead of an arroyo field with rocks and rubbish and weeds, there is now a substantial residence place. On the property is built a row of neat bungalows along a fine paved street.

Mr. Tripp built six bungalows, a duplex house and a store building on his property. J. F. Mullin built three bungalows in the block, also. All the houses cost about $4000 a piece.

Mr. Tripp did a great deal of the work himself. When he wanted to

SIX DIE ON GALLOWES IN LOUISIANA TODAY

ing five innocent men," Rini said. "Only one is guilty of the murder and that is Leona. My last wish is that they abolish capital punishment in this country. I hope we are the last."

The final pair went to the scaffold at 1:12 p. m. Giglio was placed upon the trap upon which Leona and Bocchio had died and Rini was placed upon the other. They both had a few words to say which could not be distinctly heard.

The traps were sprung at 1:16 p. m.

The crime for which the six men paid the supreme penalty was committed shortly after midnight May 8, 1921. Dallas Calmes, a restaurant operator, was aroused by a noise at the rear of his home and upon investigating was spotted down by a man dimly discernible in the darkness. The bandits, who had gone to Independence to rob the bank, boarded their automobile and fled. The authorities immediately summoned bloodhounds at Crystal Springs, Miss. and telephoned the New Orleans police.

Detectives at New Orleans, on a tip from Amite, the seat of Tangipahca parish, before the fugitives were arrested, went to the home of a wealthy Italian resident of New Orleans which it was believed might be a refuge for the bandits. The house was empty but there was every indication it had been deserted hurriedly. Nearby, in an automobile, they found the bodies of Cipolla Gseto and another Italian named di Giovanni, who had been shot to death apparently a few hours earlier. This mystery never was solved and Roy Leona after his confession, said he and his companions knew nothing of that affair.

With the bloodhounds a posse followed a highway out of Independence and found the deserted car of the bandits. In the machine were pistols, and a large quantity of ammunition and dynamite. The dogs followed a trail into a thicket and there the posse arrested Joseph Giglio and Roy Leona, Brooklyn, N. Y., Joseph Bocchio and Andrea Lemantia, of Chicago, and Natale Deamore and Joseph Rini, of New Orleans. Two other Italians were arrested as possible suspects later but were exterminated.

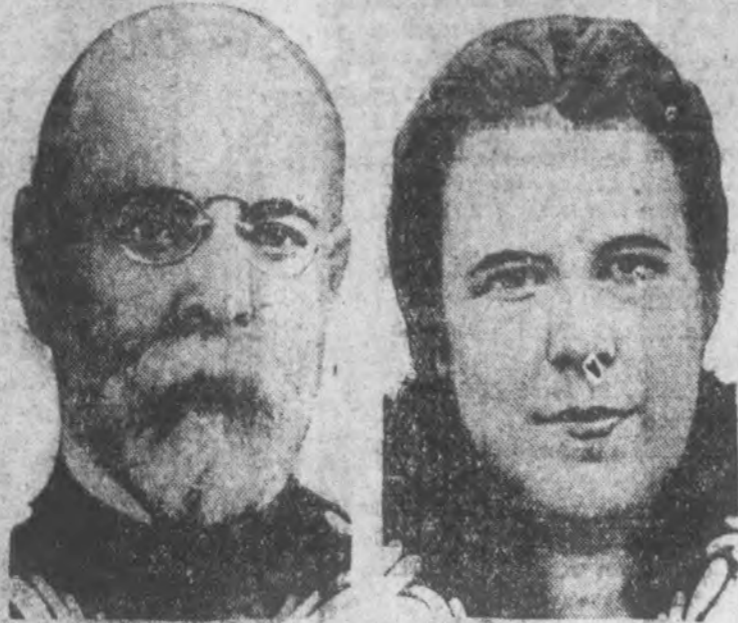

The six prisoners protested their innocence, declaring they were on a camping trip, but all were convicted of murder. An appeal to the state supreme court resulted in a retrial and a second conviction which the higher court sustained. Then counsel for the condemned men appealed to the Supreme Court of the United States which in March, refused to review the case because of a lack of jurisdiction.

Throughout the three years of legal battle the men were supplied with ample funds by Italian and Italian-American organizations and individuals throughout the country and Governor Parker received thousands of letters, telegrams and resolutions protesting against the conviction of innocent men and asking for clemency.

It had been established that only one, and at the most, two men, had fired at Calmes and for three years efforts were made to determine the guilty man. He would not admit his guilt nor would any of his companions disclose his identity, if they knew it. The Saturday before Easter Leona requested the Rev. Father Raymond Carra, of St. Patrick's Roman Catholic church, in New Orleans, to visit him that he might perform his "Easter duties." Leona, in his confession to the priest, said he fired the shot which killed Calmes. Father Carra told him he could not hope for forgiveness from his Maker if he did not make a public confession and clear his five companions. Leona agreed to do so and on Easter Monday in the presence of the superintendent of the Orleans parish prison, where the men had been held for safekeeping, Father Carra and newspaper men dictated a confession and signed it.

In his statement Leona said he and Giglio came to New Orleans late in April 1921 to make and sell whisky. He had been told by Vito d'Georgia, who later was killed in Chicago, that he could become rich in a short time if he robbed the bank at Independence. Leona thought well of the suggestion and asked Giglio to join him. He had met Lemantia in New Orleans and when he broached the subject to him Lemantia and his friend Rini agreed to participate. The next step was to find a man who knew the highway about Independence and Deamore was persuaded to become a member of the party. Deamore asked Bocchio to join them and the sextette set out for Independence. When the bandits approached the bank shortly after midnight Leona and Rini, Leona said, left the car while the other four remained. Rini, however, Leona said, did not accompany him but disappeared in another direction.

Gaylord M. Saltzgeber, commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, has attacked President Coolidge for vetoing the Bursum Bill, increasing Civil War pensions. Mrs. Frederick M. Paist, of Wayne, Pa., has been elected national president of the Y. W. C. A. for the third time, the first president to be re-elected. She became interested in the work while a student at Leland Stanford University, in California, of which her brother, Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, is president. Another brother is Naval Secretary Curtis D. Wilbur. Congressman Martin B. Madden, of Illinois, denies public charges that he sought to pack the House Military Affairs Committee so it would give Muscle Shoals to Henry Ford. John Philip Sousa, a march king, told a House committee that prohibition has destroyed the light opera industry, which he declares requires drinking songs of the rollicking kind, and "we can't write them any more as apparently the inspiration is lacking."

"I tried to get near the bank by means of the rear yard, of Mr. Calmes' house," the confession continued. "As I jumped over the fence one of the pickets broke and the noise must have awakened Mr. Calmes. Mr. Calmes opened the door and shouted 'Halt' and fired four shots at me. Being surprised and frightened I fired two shots in the direction that the fire of Mr. Calmes' revolver was coming from, but unfortunately for the aid for me I killed him. I was alone when Mr. Calmes shot at me and I alone returned the fire which killed Mr. Calmes."

When the confession was made public Tangipahca parish authorities, attorneys and the widow of Calmes pronounced it "a trumped-up affair" in an attempt to save the lives of Leona's five companions. They pointed out that his confession did not coincide with the evidence and Mrs. Calmes declared she had been two men. There was a question concerning the shots Leona is supposed to have fired, for bullets were found where it was said they could not have come from his pistol or that of Calmes.

Another feature dwelt upon by those who placed little faith in the confession was that it came after all hope to escape execution had vanished, and that Leona had contracted tuberculosis during his long confinement which physicians said would prove fatal within a few months.

This was referred to by Governor Parker in a formal statement April that no reprieve would be granted.

After stating the convicted men had had the benefit of counsel the Governor added: "At the 11th hour one of their number, now afflicted with tuberculosis, seeks to assume responsibility, but in his own statement convicts every man proven to be a member of the party. "Keeping thoroughly posted with every detail of these cases, having carefully watched the trial, realizing mine is an executive duty and being determined to back up to the fullest extent the decision of the courts, after having carefully read all the evidence, in my opinion these men are guilty of deliberate conspiracy, willful murder, and the law shall take its course without interference from the Governor. This decision is final."

Have your children eat it regularly—two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. They will like its wonderful, nut-like flavor—so different from common bran which are most unpalatable.

As a cereal, with milk or cream, they will enjoy Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled. Sprinkle it over other cereals. Cook it with hot cereals. Try it in delicious muffins, bread, griddle cakes and other recipes given on every package.

But start them eating Kellogg's Bran today. Start every member of your family eating it. Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is made in Battle Creek and is served in individual packages by the leading hotels and clubs everywhere. Ask for it at your restaurant. It is sold by all grocers.
