Thousands of Little American Flags Shower Delegates as Band Plays Star Spangled Banner; Anna Case Sings National Anthem; Cordell Hull Calls Convention to Order; Keynote Address Delivered by Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi

Madison Square Garden, New York, June 24. — The Democratic National Convention came to order for its first session at 12:43 o'clock. After delaying the opening for a short time to allow police to straighten out a traffic jam outside which was keeping hundreds of delegates and guests from reaching the hall.

Chairman Hull, looking refreshed and apparently recovered from his heat stroke of Sunday, brought down the gavel. In a few brief words he called the convention to order and then gave way to Cardinal Hayes who offered the invocation. The audience stood in silence with bowed heads as the voice of the prelate penetrated to the farthest corners of the arena.

At the conclusion the band struck up on "The Star Spangled Banner," and from the recesses of bunting and flags upon the rafters of the structure thousands of little American flags were released and fluttered down upon the heads and shoulders of the delegates, then while the band softly played the National Anthem Anna Case, of the Metropolitan Opera Company, sang it and the audience joined in the refrain.

With a roaring demonstration for Woodrow Wilson the convention was interrupted while delegates and visitors joined in a noisy yet respectful tribute to the late president and idol of Democracy. Cheers for Cleveland, Jackson, Jefferson and Bryan had resounded through the big garden but when Temporary Chairman Pat Harrison mentioned the name of Wilson noise and enthusiasm broke loose.

State standards came quickly from their rests and soon the floor was a mass of milling humanity chanting the songs that became famous during the days of the war when Wilson was at the helm of the government.

Chairman Harrison sensed from the first outburst that they wanted to give a demonstration for Wilson so he chose a chair and sat down for a rest from the rigors of his keynote speech while the demonstration was in progress.

At the conclusion of the keynote address the convention adjourned until 11 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Madison Square Garden, New York, June 24. — All the swirling cross current which is finally going to cast up a Democratic presidential nominee centered today around the great convention hall when 13,000 party warhorses, delegates and spectators packed Madison Square Garden to see the curtain rise on the first act of the great drama.

Probably a third as many people got in at the first session as had hoped to and probably half as many as expected to. A good number who expected choice seats stood up and in the meantime managers were explaining that there had been no funny business in the distribution of seats and declared that the great hall was not being packed for any candidate or group and partiality was not being shown.

TICKET SEEKERS DISAPPOINTED

Inability to Meet Demand for Admission Tickets to Convention is Cause of Many Rumors

New York, June 24. — Since rumors yesterday of the mysterious disappearance of tickets to the National Democratic Convention, reports that various candidates had been favored in the distribution of the much sought for cards of admission flew thick and fast here today and were emphatically denied by J. Bruce Kramer, of Montana, vice chairman of the National Committee, and chairman of the ticket committee.

At the headquarters of all stage delegations there was an unsatiable demand for tickets and in many instances the state chairman's explanation of inability to meet the demand was interpreted to cast reflection upon the work of the national committee.

M'ADOO GETTING READY FOR BATTLE

William J. Bryan and Scores of Delegates Visit Presidential Nominee

New York, June 24. — As the Democratic National Convention was getting under way today William G. McAdoo continued conferences with his advisers looking to the strengthening of his lines for the battle of ballots which is to come.

William Jennings Bryan was the first caller of the day at his headquarters. Scores of delegates from various states also visitors and the entire Georgia delegation visited the candidate.

Published charges that the McAdoo forces had cornered 2,900 tickets to the convention brought a vigorous denial from David Ladd Rockwell, campaign manager. He asserted that in place of the thousand promised that McAdoo headquarters received only 200 tickets. This was augmented by 200 others donated by McAdoo state delegations.

PERSEVERENCE BRINGS SUCCESS

Lieutenant Russell L. Maughan is Successful in Third Attempt to Span American Continent in Single Day

San Francisco, June 24. — Lieutenant Russell L. Maughan wrote a new and spectacular chapter in the history of man's conquest of the air yesterday when he spanned the North American continent in less than a day. The hazardous and gruelling flight was his third attempt.

He left Mitchell Field, New York, at 2:59 1-2, (Eastern Standard Time), yesterday morning halted briefly at five refueling stations enroute across mountains, fought fatigue and constantly returning nausea for 21 hours, 47 minutes and 45 seconds and arrived at the aviation field at San Francisco at 9:47-15 Pacific Time last night.

As soon as the plane landed newspapermen broke through police lines holding back a huge crowd lining the field and greeted the flier. A few seconds later the mammoth throng of spectators, cheering and shouting, while automobile sirens shrieked in a bedlam of noise, surged over the field and surrounded the plane.

A telegram from President Coolidge, asking immediate news of the arrival of Lieutenant Maughan was received by Crissy Field officials early this evening.

Maughan dropped down on the field at the northeast corner, and taxied to the center of the field where he became the center of a surging, shouting wildly excited mass of spectators.

The way was cleared, however, for news photographers to take pictures of the plane and the daring flier.

Apparently overcome with emotion and jubilant at the victory which he had achieved, Lieutenant Maughan seemed unable to speak when his

Sen. Pat Harrison Delivers Keynote Speech Democrats

Mississippi Senator Declares "America Needs a Paul Revere, Not a Sphinx" in White House; Condemns Republican Administration and Calls on Democrats to Unite Against a Common Enemy

New York, June 24. — America Needs a Paul Revere, "not a sphinx," in the White House, to call it back to duty and high resolve, Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, declared today in sounding the keynote at the Democratic National Convention.

In an address condemning the Republican administration—its policies, both domestic and foreign—the temporary chairman called on Democrats everywhere, "With Victory within their grasp," to unite against a common enemy.

"Oh for one in the White House," he said, "whose heart might be melted and courage aroused to sympathize and fight. Would that we once more might see in that exalted position one with the courage of a Jackson, the militant honesty of a Cleveland, the matchless statesmanship and the fine fighting qualities of a Woodrow Wilson."

Senator Harrison ran the gamut of the Harding-Coolidge administration in a series of biting criticisms. A large part of his speech was taken up with a resume of the disclosures of Senate investigating committees. The oil policies, in particular, came in for vigorous denunciation.

"Show this administration an oil well," he said, "and it will show you a foreign policy."

"America has taken the Measure of this administration," he continued. "It might have been able to free itself from the sectional idolatry and to have looked beyond the skies of New England. It might have heard the groans of the distressed farmers of the West and sympathetically responded. It might have sought markets and removed the tariff jams in the channels through which our surplus products move. It might have visualized world conditions and courageously assumed the part befitting a great nation. It might have reduced living costs, redeemed pledges to the soldier, followed a definite domestic program, and adopted a broad and statesmanlike foreign policy, but, even then, it would have availed it nothing with its carnival of corruption."

"The least that the American people expect of their public servants is common honesty. They will forgive their passivity, overlook their indiscretions, and, too often, forget their impotency, but to them corruption is inexcusable, graft is indefensible."

Referring to Senate inquiries, Senator Harrison was unparing in his criticisms of former Secretaries Denby and Fall, former Attorney General Daugherty, Charles R. Forbes, former head of the Veterans' Bureau and former Senator Newberry, of Michigan. He paid high tribute to Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, prosecutor of the oil inquiry and others connected with the various investigations.

"Decry them as they will, the American people know that it was these investigations—conducted by Democrats but through Republican committees—that sent Albert B. Fall to Three Rivers a disgraced man. It was these investigations that compelled Edwin Denby's retirement from the cabinet. It was these investigations that drove Daugherty back to Washington Court House. It was these investigations that caused conspirators against their government to take their own lives rather than tell the truth. It was these investigations that pointed to the immoral orgy of Forbes and sickening scandals in the Veterans' Bureau. It was these investigations that put a Republican Congressman behind bars and lashed Newberry from the Senate. It was these investigations that informed the American public that the first official act of Calvin Coolidge was the appointment of a private secretary who had traded and trafficked in public patronage. It was these investigations that led a Republican Senate to convict its own Republican National Committee for "Framing" a Democratic Senator because he dared to do the right. Comparing the investigations into Democratic and Republican administrations Senator Harrison said it was "not graft alone that offers in the two administrations such happy comparisons."

"During these little more than three years," he said, "we have seen the present administrations float along, tossed by every breeze, without purpose, program or policy. Upon a thousand issues they have hoisted the white flag of surrender."

Senator Harrison declared that nothing in "burlesque or opera buffoon" was comparable to the "scene recently enacted at Cleveland in the efforts of the Silent Sphinx of the Potomac to exile and expatriate those Republican Senators who dared to oppose his mandate."

"They dared to vote an investigation of a number of the President's official family and they are penalized for their decency," he said. "By every device known to trained camoufleurs, by every subtle process of legerdemain the Republican nominee, in true pharisaical fashion, sought to divorce himself from his former comrades in arms. The plan is obvious; the plot is futile. Neither the President nor his Fallstaffian army head by General Butler and Sergeant Steans, can conceal the ugly fact that the Cleveland convention was the most highly organized, boss-ridden and oleaginous ever held in America. The American people will not be deceived. "The American people will know that they are dealing with a system; that even though Hanna, Quay and Penrose are dead, their spirits go marching on in the personages of the Three Musketeers of present day Republicanism—Butler, Stearns and Sloop."

Turning to a discussion of the Mellon tax proposal, Senator Harrison asserted that it was conceived in the interest of privilege. "What is this Mellon that Mellon sought to cut?" he asked. "It would have given 1,200 of the 3,585,985 income tax payers in American 51 per cent of the total reduction. The Temporary Chairman declared under the leadership of Simmons in the Senate and Garner in the House, the Democratic tax reduction proposal triumphed, "not because we were numerically strong, but because we were assuredly right."

Comparing the foreign policies of the American government under President Wilson and the Harding-Coolidge administration Senator Harrison declared that the Wilson policy was "definite, wise and brave; the other vacillating, halting and weak."

"It is the difference," he said, "between a keynote and a keyhole policy of statesmanship."

Commending President Harding for his proposal that America adhere to the World Court Senator Harrison said that President Coolidge had pledged himself to carry out Mr. Harding's policies and that yet from the day he assumed office he had made "only a bow" in that direction. Senator Harrison declared that if returned to control of the government the Democratic party would have "neither pets nor puppets to

120 Gallon Copper Still Is Captured In This County

In response to a letter advising Officer Thad Williams that things near Haddocks' Cross Roads would "interest him" he visited that section of the county Saturday and returned with a 120 gallon copper still. The still was located near Rose Hill church and was not in operation although all signs indicated that it had played an important part in the making of fire water.

Officer Williams poured out a large quantity of beer and destroy ed all the other paraphernalia used in the making of whiskey.

THE FARMING SITUATION

Though the situation of the farmers is far from ideal, the average condition of the American farmer has improved nearly 10 per cent during the past year.

The revised estimates of the Department of Agriculture show that 1923 crops had a total value of about ten billion dollars an increase more than a billion in one year.

Total value of exports of principal agricultural products from the United States for eight months ended Feb. 29, 1924, was $1,308,338, as compared with $1,283,716,000 for the period during preceding year, an increase of 6 per cent.

In a recent statement, the Department of Agriculture says: "The general agricultural outlook for 1924 indicates that farmers are undertaking a normal production program. It is apparent, however, that agricultural production this year will be attended with difficulties arising from high wages and higher costs."

"Domestic demand for agricultural products is at a high level. Foreign markets on the whole, seem likely to maintain about the present level of demand."

MENACING NATIONALISM

In commenting on the political tendencies of the times, the Cincinnati Inquirer says:

"No nation can make progress such as the United States is capable of making, by throttling the individualism of the people. Paternalism, bureaucratic domination, has been the curse of Europe, has been responsible for its devastating retrogressions, economically socially and politically."

"This nation achieved greatness and economic super-progress because it adhered to the principles and policies of the founders of the republic, because it fought down and away from every attempt to have the policies of paternalism grafted upon our system. But today paternalism is entrenching itself in the public service and is grown arrogant. Its end is on our business; it demands oversight of our health and education, the moral guardianship of our private lives! Bureaucrats multiply and fatten at the expense of the burdened taxpayer. Uncle Sam carries a cane and a club. This is not well. Bureaucratic control means inevitable retrogression, the loss of all that the American people have won through adherence to and support of the simple fundamental policies of the fathers, at whom it has become fashionable in these days of sneer."

SMUTS VOTED OUT

Gen. Jan C. Smuts, last of the great figures of the world war to serve prominently in government, has been voted out in the Union of South Africa. He was defeated by a Labor party man in the parliamentary elections, the general result of which is the relegating of the South African party to a minority position. This party remains the largest single body in the parliament, but the Laborites and Nationalists together outrank it. The world-wide unrest, coupled with South African aspirations for independence, has worked a political overturn in this section of the British Empire similar to those that have been effected in many other countries.

As an indication of tendency the result will be considered grave. The Nationalists and Laborites in coalition can manage the government according to their will, but that they will agree upon secession remains to be demonstrated. The Labor party has its own ends to serve and they will not necessarily be advanced fastest by supporting the independence plans of the Nationalists. The latter are mostly adherents of the old Boer element that never has been satisfied with the union with Britain. But they and their Labor colleagues are expected to make a great deal of trouble for the Empire faction. If they make enough to secure from London concessions of worth the independence movement may subside.

The Service Station Man buys "Standard"

The service station man buys gasoline on a practical basis. With him it's a matter of getting a "gas" that's a popular seller. That's why the majority invariably sells "Standard."

Ask the service station owner why he carries "Standard" Gasoline. Eight to one he figures it the best simply because "Standard" has been longest in the game.

Sound common sense in that. Our fifty successful years in business might account for the big "Standard" organization, with its splendid experience and equipment. But there's another angle. One of Biggest Films of the Year Coming

"Black Oxen," a Frank Lloyd production, released through First National Pictures, and featuring Corinne Griffith and Conway Tearle is to be the photoplay offering at White's theater, starting June 30, and the booking is looked upon as one of the big cinema events of the season.

The best selling novel of 1923, in book form "Black Oxen" is said to have been greatly enhanced by the elaborate filming. Mr. Lloyd has given it a meaning with the romance that develops when the rejuvenated Madame Zatsianny returns to America on a business trip and finds the first true love she has known. "Black Oxen," presents more than usual interest to picturegoers, it is said. Mr. Lloyd, with the aid of Mary O'Hara, prepared the scenario from which the film play was made, and as a result, critics state, the story runs its length with pleasing rapidity and increasing interest.

Corinne Griffith, regarded as one of filmdom's most beautiful and smartest dressed stars, essays the difficult dual character of Madame Zatsianny, and Conway Tearle has been cast as the romances newspaper writer, Lee Clavering.

Children make constipation a habit—relieve them with Kellogg's Bran

Children punish themselves terribly by ignoring nature's demands. They bring constipation upon themselves. They invite the many other diseases which can be traced to constipation. Immediate steps should be taken to rid them and keep them free from this disease.

It takes ALL bran to be 100 per cent effective. That's what Kellogg's is—ALL bran. That's why doctors everywhere recommend Kellogg's. That's why Kellogg's Bran carries a money-back guarantee to bring permanent relief, if eaten regularly, in the most chronic cases of constipation. That's why Kellogg's Bran, cooked and crumbled, has brought glorious, glowing health to thousands—because it is ALL bran.

No matter how long one has suffered with constipation, Kellogg's Bran will bring permanent relief IF EATEN EVERY DAY—at least two tablespoonfuls—in chronic cases, with every meal.

Kellogg's Bran is delicious. It has a crisp, nut-like flavor that simply delights the taste. It is a wonderful surprise if one has been used to ordinary, unpalatable bran.

There are many ways to serve Kellogg's Bran. Eat it with milk or cream. Sprinkle it over other cereals. Cook it with hot cereals. Look for the recipes on every package and try it in muffins, bread, griddle cakes, etc.

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and crumbled, is made in Battle Creek and is sold by grocers everywhere. It is served by the leading hotels and clubs.

"I Never Give My Children Calomel"

"I used to feel it necessary to give the children calomel or castor oil," said one mother to W. L. Hand, "but it was such a distressing procedure that often I lost the courage to give the dose."

"And the children would just fight against it. I bless the day that I learned of your Liv-o-lax. I find that it will do the same work in bilious conditions as calomel and castor oil, and the children love to take it."

Liv-o-lax, a vegetable liquid preparation, may be had at any drug store and may be relied upon for adults as well as children in cases of indigestion, biliousness, constipation and similar disorders.

DAILY COTTON LETTER.
 New Orleans, June 24. — Better cables than due and buying of July sustained market today in face of the first of monthly private crop condition reports indicating some improvement and a somewhat larger crop than promised one month ago. Except for the absence of more rain in west and northwest Texas and the continuance of scattered rains in the eastern half of the belt, quite conditions in the interior were generally favorable.
 According to report, returns to the National Ginners Association and to a prominent New York commission house average the condition of the growing crop at 68, indicating a yield of 11,200,000 bales exclusive of linters. Returns to a prominent local commission house averaged the condition of the plant at 62.9, compared with last month's government report of 65.6, showing an improvement of 2.7 points for the month.
 Private returns as to progress of the crop during the past week indicate improvement. Tomorrow at nine a. m. the government will report on progress of the crop the past week. Only two stations in Texas reported a maximum temperature yesterday of 100, and there are no indications for an immediate return of the recent heat wave in the southwest, instead there is the possibility of scattered showers in the northern portion.
 Tomorrow will be the first July notice day in American markets. Light tenders are expected here and in New York.
 According to the census report, issued today the average number of spindles operated in the United States during May was 25,506,978, or at 67.5 percent of capacity on a single shift basis, against 30,177,468 for April of this year and 40,165,861 for May last year. This accounts for American mills having used only 414,000 bales lint last month against 621,000 for May last year.
 On the other hand, Liverpool advices are to effect that business in Manchester is improving.
 Meanwhile, the growing crop is said to have improved further since June 20th, or since the average date of some of the monthly crop reports issued thus far this month.

 form and in guests spaces in the great arena and in the galleries there were thousands to whom the sultry heat of a June midday meant nothing so long as they held their places to see the great show.
 Police lines were early established to keep back the throngs who had no tickets but hoped to gain admission.
 Determined to miss nothing from the drop of the hat delegates and guests began to assemble early. Half an hour before the opening bang of the gavel many seats were occupied and the aisles were crowded with delegates and guests. At 11:30 the full lighting effects were tried out. Three chandeliers each 20 feet across, studded with electric light bulbs threw the convention floor into bright relief.
 The seating arrangement presented the best picture seen in years in a national convention. Instead of the speakers stand being at the ellipse of the big amphitheatre the platform was arranged on the north side and was raised more than 10 above the floor itself.

SALT LAKE MAN DISCOVERERS NATURAL GAS WELL IN YARD

Salt Lake City.—The much heralded high price of light, gas and fuel means absolutely nothing to Henry Nebeker of Salt Lake City, for he has a natural gas well in the rear yard of his home. Drilling to a depth of 535 feet, Nebeker encountered enough gas to take care of all his home needs and he has a 300-gallon water tank for storage purposes. Nebeker has estimated that the flow from his well is about 24 times what he can possibly use, but as yet he has made no attempt to supply other residents of his neighborhood.

"Indigestion and nervousness had troubled me for years. As a result my body weakened and my energy about all left me. Frequently my sleep was restless and unsteady and I felt tired out much of the time. "After two weeks' use of Tanlac my stomach was in condition to where I could eat ravenously of everything and not feel a touch of indigestion.
