LEGISLATURE MAY ADJOURN SATURDAY

Preparations For Market Opening Being Completed

Completion of Hard Surfaced Roads and Additions to Local Plants Point to One of Best Seasons in History

Preparations for the opening of the Greenville tobacco market on Tuesday, September 2, are being speedily completed and indications are that the season will be one of the best ever experienced.

During the intervening time since last season many additions have been made which greatly increased handling facilities of the local market.

Among the improvements are the installation of an additional redrying machine by the Export Leaf Tobacco Company, doubling their redrying capacity. The concern has also added to their storage houses and has purchased a fleet of trucks to expedite the handling of their purchases.

The Liggett Myers Tobacco Company have purchased additional storage houses and the E. B. Ficklen Tobacco company has erected a new spacious storage house.

With these increased facilities, together with six warehouses and three complete sets of buyers to handle the crop once it reaches the market and with hard surfaced roads from every direction over which to haul the product to Greenville there is every indication that this season will be one of great expansion for the local market.

Tobacconists returning from the South Carolina markets state that since the opening prices have shown steady improvement and they predict nothing less than satisfactory prices on the local market the coming season.

BLUE NILE DAM BUILDERS WIN RACE AGAINST FLOOD

Alexandria, Egypt. — British engineers who are fast completing the world's biggest dam on the Blue Nile in the Sudan, have triumphed in a six months' race against the Nile floods.

The chief object of the dam is to raise the level of the water at this spot to a height at which it will flow through canals to irrigate a tract of more than 3,000 acres of land.

The annual floods, which reach their highest in mid-July, threatened to nullify the work of the engineers. Faced with this fact they have pushed the operation, with an army of 19,000 workmen for the past six months before winning a victory which was in doubt to the last minute.

Party Platform Is Praised By Bryan

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 19.—Governor Charles W. Bryan, of Nebraska, in accepting the Democratic Vice-Presidential nomination here last night, praised the party platform as broad, strong and progressive enough to satisfy the principle of "equality before the law" and a fit instrument through which farmers and wage-earners might work their will without dividing strength and making possible "the triumph of reaction and selfish interests."

John W. Davis, the Presidential nominee, and himself were termed "in harmony with the platform upon which we have been nominated." "The Democratic party stands as a unit, without the intervention of faction, bloc or section," he declared, "free from obligation to either individuals or interests that would prevent it from being used to restore confidence in government and economic justice to the nation."

His selection as "one from the heart of the great Middle West" as the Vice-Presidential candidate, Governor Bryan hailed as the Democratic party's recognition of "the importance of agriculture as one of the basic industries of the nation."

Political unrest and discontent throughout the country is a protest against the inaction of those in public office, he asserted, coupling the statement with an accusation that "failure of the Republican administration to enforce the law against conspiracies in restraint of trade and illegal combinations of business which stifle competition has unnecessarily, unfairly and dishonestly increased the cost of living and permitted the profiteer to ply his trade without let or hindrance."

Entrance of some States in the Middle West into the field of commerce he attributed to "the failure of the national Republican administration to enforce the law against private monopoly." Although, he continued, millions of dollars a year were saved to the people in their coal, gasoline and oil bills, he did not favor such municipal or State competition except when "government officials become corrupt and the Federal government fails to function for the protection of the masses. The alternative result would be I. W. W.'s, bolsheviks and anarchy in the community and State, he declared.

Outstanding Issues. Governor Bryan in discussing what he termed "a few of the outstanding issues uppermost in the minds of the people of the great agricultural States," included "women's worth and equality, child welfare the Democratic party's interest in and support of labor, the needs of the agriculturalist, water power development law enforcement and the outlawing of war."

The nominee expressed appreciation of the desire of the citizens of Lincoln, where he has made his home thirty years, to have the notification made here. "I am indebted to the people of Lincoln and of Nebraska for whatever success I may have achieved," he said.

He referred to his connection for more than twenty years with the publication of "The Commoner," issued by him and his brother, William Jennings Bryan, as having given "an opportunity to apply the principles of 'equal rights to all and special privileges to none.'"

"As a business man who has been endeavoring to apply business principles to government and not as an experienced platform speaker, I will give to our national leader all the support as my abilities will permit," Governor Bryan said.

The success of the nation, compared of diverse people and activities, requires that the desires and interests of each shall be subject to the rights and needs of all, with individuals, groups, factions and organizations restrained to the extent that equal rights of others shall not be impaired, he declared.

Party Platform. The Democratic platform, Governor Bryan asserted, upholds the ideals of America, demands a return to honesty and equality in government and outlines the legislative and administrative requirements for such restoration.

"It is the most progressive platform ever promulgated," he declared. He paid a tribute to his running mate, saying the spirit of unity rose and reason triumphed in the nomination of "that able lawyer, that trained diplomat, that experienced statesman, that champion of the rights of humanity, that progressive Democrat, John W. Davis."

"The buying of immunities, issuing of permits, hoisting of tariff schedules and the granting of government oil leases in return for campaign contributions must be uprooted and destroyed if this government is to endure," he asserted, adding that men must be selected for public positions because of honesty and ability, neither than social qualities or political strategy.

Every righteous cause will triumph the sooner because of women's political activity, and the welfare, education and the welfare, education

SAYS PROGRESSIVE ELEMENTS MUST LOOK DEMOCRATS

Senator Pat Harrison In Notification Address Says Democratic Party Is Only Hope for Progress

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 19.—The Democratic party is the only party to which progressive elements can look for direction and leadership, Senator Harrison, of Mississippi, declared tonight in officially notifying Governor Charles W. Bryan of his nomination for the vice-presidency.

Omitting any direct reference to a third ticket in the field, Senator Harrison, who was temporary chairman of the Democratic National Convention, declared the national campaign must be contested between a "reactionary" Republican organization and a "Progressive" Democratic ticket.

"Whatever independence one may possess and however non-partisan one may be," Senator Harrison said, "he must know that in the coming November election either the Democratic or Republican ticket will triumph. The American people themselves must decide between the Republican and the Democratic Party as to which will control the Government for the next four years."

The Senator assailed the Republican party as "hopelessly disrupted, without plan or purpose, courage or cohesion," and declared it to be dominated by reactionary leadership. He revised the record of the Davis-Bryan combination as one to which the progressive and independent voters could look to "administer government honestly, protect the rights of the masses and solve the economic problems of the day."

After warmly praising the accomplishments of John W. Davis, the party standard bearer, as a member of the House, as Solicitor General and as Ambassador to Great Britain, Mr. Harrison paid a tribute to Governor Bryan for the "courageous manner" in which he handled Nebraska's coal and gasoline situations, and for his efforts to lower state taxes and to economize in the administration of state affairs.

"The long list of progressive achievements that has filled the pathway of your short administration," he said, "reflects credit upon the common sense and patriotism of your citizenship."

The Republican party, he continued, is reactionary "because re-

Both Branches of Assembly Put in Busy Day in Effort to Clear Calendar in Time for Adjournment By Noon Saturday

Raleigh, Aug. 19.—The Senate today passed a joint resolution providing for the extraordinary session of the North Carolina General Assembly to adjourn not later than noon Saturday August 23. The resolution now goes to the House for adoption.

Both branches of the legislature today plunged into its work determined to end the extra session as soon as possible. The Senate rid of the port commission bill which held sway all of last week passed a number of local measures, and killed the Wilson constitutional amendment bill that would provide for a vote to reduce taxes on real estate loans and also voted down an amendment to the Child Labor law.

The House voted to limit the salary of the chairman of the State Highway Commission to $15,000 per year amended the Senate measure that would have the commission fix the salary without limit, and plunged into debate on the port commission measure.

Both branches adjourned shortly before 2 o'clock this afternoon until 8 o'clock tonight.

The ship commission bill was reported favorably to the House this morning by the Water Commerce committee. At the same time the accompanying bill fixing the compensation of the members of the commission at $15 per day was amended to read $10 per day and reported favorable.

In the Senate the resolution looking to the reacquisition of the Cape Fear and Yadkin Valley railroad was passed after sharp debate and sent to the House.

Representative Everett, of Durham county, in a brief speech opened the debate on the port measure but when he concluded adjournment was taken until tonight when the bill was made a special order of business.

The House expects to vote on the second reading of the bill tonight and take a final vote on the measure tomorrow.

The bill amending the Child Labor law which would prohibit the employment of children under fourteen years of age in a factory in North Carolina was tabled in the Senate on motion of its author Senator Long, of Halifax, after a heated argument in which Senator Johnson, of Duplin, had succeeded in getting passed an amendment allowing children to work in grocery stores, bootblack shops and as messengers.

Miss Ella Lee Dudley arrived Saturday morning from Baltimore, Md. and is visiting Mrs. W. M. Carter on 8th street.

OPEN FORUM

August 18, 1924.

Greenville Reflector,
Greenville, N. C.,
Gentlemen.

About ten days ago, you published a letter supposed to be from Otto Wood, a prisoner in the State Prison and as the letter itself is false in every particular, I am sending you a letter from Mr. Allen Adams in today's Greenville Daily News which is about as near correct as any one could state the proposition. As a falsehood travels much faster than the truth, I trust that you will give the prison authorities the same publicity that you gave to the false report of Otto Wood.

I do not hesitate to say that Otto Wood is now confined in the death cell with plenty of light and ventilation, and has been there ever since his return to the State prison with the exception of three days, during which time he was kept in what is known as the dark cell.

I consider Otto Wood one of the most dangerous men that we have in the penitentiary and he made the statement to me a few weeks ago in the presence of Mr. J. S. Busbee that he was going out of the cell in which he is now confined as the penitentiary was not built to hold him.

Unless the legislative committee instructs us otherwise Otto Wood will be found in the death cell when we turn the penitentiary over to our successors next March and should the legislative committee give us other instructions, that is, if he is given any liberty at all he will not be there next March to worry our constituents.

It would give me great pleasure on my next visit to the prison to take a representative of your paper to Raleigh, with me that he might see for himself the conditions and the many handicaps under which we have to work.

Assuring you of my best wishes, I am,

Very truly yours,
E. B. FICKLEN,
Director State Prison.

Mr. Adams' letter follows
Otto Wood's cell in the state prison looks more like the room of a college freshman than the domicile of a prisoner, declares Allen Adams, Greenville attorney, in a communication to the Daily News.

Mr. Adams, who visited Wood only about 36 hours before Wood's letter in which the murderer of A. W. Kaplan complained of harsh and barbarous treatment was printed in papers of the state, says that he spent several minutes in Wood's cell.

"His cell was sufficiently lighted and ventilated and I found him lying on a cot as good as the officers and men of our army had for use in the best cantonments." Wood at that time was engaged in reading and his cell was covered with pictures of some of the nation's choicest female beauties and the light was sufficient for him to feast his eyes on these specimens of feminine pulchritude.

"I was permitted to give Wood smokes and when I asked him how he was getting along he replied that he had no complaint to make other than that Superintendent Pou would not let him go back to the chair factory from which he made his celebrity. If he had been denied wholesome food in proper quantities since his recapture following said escape it appears strange to me that he does not exhibit those familiar symptoms so readily discernible in one being starved or ill-nourished."

Mr. Adams says that he was in Raleigh Thursday morning on legal business, and, having some time to spare decided to visit Wood. He was interested, he says, on account of having heard Wood's trial and by the further reason of Wood's sensational escape. Mr. Adams, who is a Republican, declares he has no brief for the state administration or for Mr. Pou other than that he thinks prison officials should not be condemned without a hearing.

"In justice to George Ross Pou and the public," he says, "I feel that a thorough investigation of the prison should be ordered by a committee with power to act now and after the special session of the legislature is adjourned. This committee should be given broad authority so that it can delve completely into the charges made against Mr. Pou's management and in order that Mr. Pou can either be properly condemned or righteously vindicated. Knowing George Ross Pou as I do and having seen with my own eyes and heard with my own ears, I, as his friend, do not fear the outcome of a most impartial and painstaking investigation of his every act. Mr. Pou is in no way responsible for this letter and the same is sent without his knowledge.

"I was surprised to find the whole prison so clean and well kept and the general surroundings so favorable. The mess hall is such as will be found in our army camps and military schools throughout the country and the food served almost an exact duplication of the familiar army and navy rations. It was being served in plates which had the insignia of the United States navy upon them. I saw no guards with guns except at the outside gates. The women prisoners were segregated from the men but women prisoners are not even locked in cells at night.

"The buildings were constructed about 1868 by the state of North Carolina and not by Mr. Pou and with the equipment at hand I think Mr. Pou has done admirably well. The prisoners are of necessity incarcerated and deprived of their liberty, not by order of Mr. Pou, but under sentences of lawfully constituted tribunals for trial of offenders against laws of society.

"Outside of the inconvenience which restraint naturally brings, the prisoners, on a whole seemed to me to be treated better than American boys were treated by American officers for slight infractions of military discipline, and but for the iron bars and the walls the place reminded me of an American army camp without the time-honored army discipline. From what I saw and heard the thought presented itself to me that an importation of several regular army top-sergeants would improve conditions at the state prison immeasurably and that the hardened criminal should at least feel the specter of authority as much as the American soldier who purchase was a little too sleepy at reveille or who over-stayed his leave a few hours.

"As I went through the prison I never thought I would be constrained to make any public observation of what I saw and heard but when I saw the gross inaccuracies and glaring mis-statements in Otto Wood's letter I felt it my duty to say something."

Wood's letter, sent to the Raleigh Times Friday and printed in many papers of the state, charged that he had been held in solitary confinement and in a dark cell since his recapture in Roanoke, Va., after his escape from the prison. He asserted that he was given six salty crackers and a glass of water for each meal. He said three negro prisoners brought him water in a talcum powder box between meals, and when the warden learned of this the negroes were removed to another section of the prison.

Wood is serving a 30-year sentence for the murder of A. W. Kaplan, Greensboro pawnbroker, who was killed in his store on South Elm street November 8. He was convicted of second-degree murder December 23. Sentence was imposed December 24. After the murder he had escaped from the city and was captured several days later in West Virginia.

May 10 Wood and J. L. Starnes escaped from the state prison, Sta. 11, a Ford belonging to a prison official they left Raleigh. In Durham they boarded M. D. Cline's car and forced him to bring them to Greensboro. On Flam avenue they took Cline's car away from him, lifting him in the head with the butt of a gun when he attempted to resist, and sped away. They were captured in Roanoke, Va., about 7 o'clock the evening of May 12.

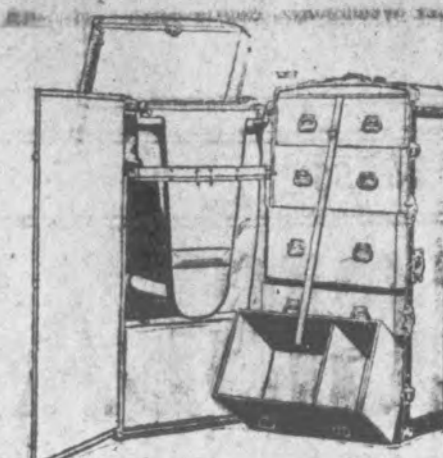

FURNITURE MADE OF OAK POPULAR IN GERMANY

Hamburg—The furniture makers of Germany assembled recently in Hamburg and exhibited their wares for the first time in a number of years.

One of the most attractive exhibits was a group of rooms decorated exclusively with Old North German peasant art which flourished when the rural districts produced and supported their own artisans to supply them with such furniture as fitted in the low studded rooms of the farm houses of the early periods. The rural artisan disappeared when the industrial age came with its machine made furniture, and he never has come back. His work today is copied by machinery, but faithfully copied, and well made.

Oak is the popular wood. Hardly any other material was seen at the show.

North Carolinians 250 Strong Attend Columbia University

New York City, Aug. 18. — Two hundred and fifty North Carolinians attended the Summer Session of Columbia University here during the season just closed...

These 250 Tar Heels, it was said, composed the North Carolina Club, and many of them are members of the Southern Club...

Officers elected to head the North Carolina Club for the coming year were announced as follows:

W. C. Kog, High Point, president; A. H. Hutchins, Superintendent of Canton School, vice-president; Katherine Moran, Department of Education, Secretary-treasurer.

The members of the North Carolina Club have expressed their pleasure of being a member of the organization. Just prior to the closing of the summer school, the North Carolina Club took a moonlight boat ride up the Hudson...

Party Platform Is Praised by Bryan

(Continued from page 1) tion and protection of child life and the care of mothers are of first importance, he said.

As to Labor. Labor must be dealt with humanely, asserted Governor Bryan.

"All legislation for the benefit of the wage-earners rests on the first sentence of our platform's labor plank, 'Labor is not a commodity; it is human,' he said. 'The captains of industry' have their place and should be protected in their rights, but those whom they employ and whose labor they direct have rights as sacred and those rights are as essential as their employers to industrial welfare and our political progress."

He said that "the refusal of the present Republican administration to permit the railway mail employees to receive a living wage at American standards was unfair and unjust to labor and illustrates their economy program which is at the expense of labor." He listed the Democratic party as championing wage-earners' rights to bargain collectively, to the eight hour day and to protection against government by injunction and as the first large party to declare for a Secretary of Labor.

The Democratic party's pledge of all its energies towards outlawing war could not be stronger and it expresses the sentiment of a large majority of the American people, Governor Bryan declared. War propaganda and mobilization demonstrations are unnecessarily inflammatory and misleading, he said.

"Our party will endeavor to secure world disarmament by international agreement—it is a condition precedent to peace. It will also strive for an international agreement providing for a referendum on war except in case of actual or threatened invasion. Until international agreements can be made to maintain the peace of the world, an adequate army and navy for our national safety must be maintained."

Criticizes G. O. P.

The nominee criticized the Republican party for its attitude towards agriculture, holding it to blame for depreciation of land prices, legislation which changed the farmers' conditions from prosperity to adversity, and for spreading industrial depression and unemployment.

"The Democratic party has proven itself to be the friend of the farmer in the past and the platform adopted in the recent national convention provides for the most complete and practical relief for the farmer that any political party or organization has ever conceived."

Governor Bryan spoke in support of the development of water power, and strict public control of and conservation of all natural resources.

"Laws should be obeyed by all regardless of whether this or that individual may like or dislike them," he said.

The nominee concluded with a laudation of the Democratic party's conduct during the World War.

Says Progressive Elements Must Look to Democrats

"It cannot look, therefore, for support in this campaign from the progressive and independent elements of the country," he said. "The Democratic party is progressive, as it has always been, and it is the only party organization to which progressive can look for direction and leadership."

The Democratic party is today the only agency through which the government can function in an orderly manner during the next four years. It has proven its ability to harmonize differences, unite efforts, and get results through team work, both while in control and while in the minority.

If the Republican ticket should again triumph, the American people will experience the same antagonisms, the same confusion, the same uncertainties that have characterized the party for four years. How can business contemplate with complacency such a situation? And have not the farmers of the West tasted enough of the bitter dregs of this administration to know that if there should be a recurrence of the disastrous depression through which they have just passed there would be little hope of extracting from the confusion and disorder incident to such an administration the slightest opportunity for assistance or relief.

"Congress through the coalition of progressive independents and Democrats, and over the protest of a reactionary Republican leadership in the Congress, might be able to pass some legislation, but it would be met, as it has been, by the veto of an unsympathetic President."

Defeat of the ship subsidy bill, the battle waged against the "iniquitous and indefensible provisions" of the Fordney-McCumber tariff law, defeat of the Mellon tax plan and adoption of an opposition substitute, and the "Long and hard fight to rid this administration of graft and corruption," were detailed as achievements of the "progressive forces" of the Democratic alignment with which no one could deny, during the last four years.

President Coolidge's reference in his acceptance speech to agriculture and tax questions were attacked by Senator Harrison in sarcastic terms.

"It must be refreshing to the great agricultural West," he said, "after living through the lean years of this Republican administration—confronted as it has been with a situation deplorable in the extreme and hardly comparable to any other in this generation—that the Republican nominee for President should announce in his acceptance speech in speaking of agriculture, the glad tidings of good news that 'now that nature and economic laws have given some temporary relief I propose, therefore, to appoint a committee to investigate and report measures to the congress in December that may help secure this result which we all desire.'"

"The President overlooks the fact that in June, 1921, while Vice President, at the direction of the Congress he appointed a committee to study the needs of agriculture and to make recommendations to the Congress. The Republican nominee has forgotten that that committee made its report in the fall of that year, and up until this good hour he has done nothing toward having any of the recommendations applied or enacted into law.

"In the same speech it was kind of the President to admit what he had previously, through Presidential plate or otherwise declared to be impossible, namely, prosperity under a Democratic tax bill."

MILLIONS SPENT TO AMUSE SOUTHERN CALIFORNIANS

Los Angeles.—Forty million more people attended Southern California theatres and places of amusements in the last fiscal year than during the year previous, according to figures compiled by the Collector of Internal Revenue here.

During the year ended June 30, 1924, the total attendance at places of amusement was 191,443,072 as compared with 151,298,660 for the year terminated June 30, 1923. The number of persons attending theatres and similar places of recreation is disclosed by the admission tax, which amounted to $3,190,718 in 1923-24, as against $2,532,644 for the previous fiscal year, an increase

WELCOMING THE "ROLL"

"The place you dropped it, is the place to pick it up," is trotted out as a wise axiom in encouragement of a youth just entering Wall Street with intent to recoup the family fortunes. The young man's grandfather is accorded the respectable designation, financier, he having kept his great pile. His father was known as a bold speculator on a magnificent scale, the superlative adjective being merited by the fact that when he "went under" his liabilities were estimated at $32,000,000 and his assets $27,000,000. Presumably the newcomer has control of his own, which also may be dropped to the benefit of others in the endeavor to pick up that which the father lost where he lost it.

The axiom is not unalluring. But there are other Wall Street axioms, founded, if not on sounder philosophy, an accurate observation and knowledge of human traits. One is to the effect that the persistent speculator always goes broke. The argument runs this way: One who speculates and gains can't stay out of the market, while one who speculates and loses will not; in the long run, greed overmastering judgment, and commissions and interest taking their regular tolls, the operator will have nothing left. The place you dropped it, is the place to pick it up, of course, if you can find it. But little good it will do you if you do not put it in a safe place, is the lesson of Wall Street experience.

IMPOTENT SNAKE-BITE CURE

Pall-bearers of delusions are requested to step forward and help bury another generally accepted idea, now exploded as false. Whiskey is not good for snake bite, announces Dr. Gilbert Vander Smissen, specialist in treating gentlemen who have thoughtlessly stepped on rattlers, copperheads, water moccasins and other lovable pets. In fact, says Dr. Smissen, a quart of rye or Scotch is apt to lessen rather than promote the victim's chances of recovery. Other scientists back up Dr. Smissen's views. They have been carrying on investigations started by the Brazilian institute of serum therapy.

Science thus vindicates the legal ruling, a few months ago, by Judge J. C. Hutcheson of the federal court in session at Corpus Christi, Texas. A gentleman on trial for violating the Volstead act had explained that snakes were numerous and active in his community, and that it was considered necessary to have a bottle of hooch on hand. The judge said he, too, had been brought up on the theory that whiskey was good for snake bite, but that the idea has no longer any standing. A heart stimulant hastens circulation of poison through the body. He added: "Two hundred and fifty dollars and costs!"

Like many other evils, snake bits are not as dangerous as generally believed. The average mortality from American serpents is only a little more than 10 out of 100 persons bitten, according to the government's Biological Survey. Most snakes, the survey adds, skeedaddle at the approach of man. And their striking distance is only about three-fourths of their length. Good-bye, oldest of John Barleycorn's alibis!

SLAVES OF FASHION

The haughty stare from the wax figure in the dry goods store window has a purpose. Milady must look serenely proud, that the gorgeous gown or smart frock that graces her superb lines may not be out of harmony.

But all the short-sighted men who have tried to flirt with the wax model will enjoy this one comforting bit of news: The cold alluring beauty is a slave of fashion, and with the advent of longer skirts she is due to pass, only to be replaced by models of newer lines.

Every spring and every fall the wax models go forth from the fashion centers, to be garbed in stores like the local ones with all that is latest and daintiest in the way of personal adornment.

A New York designer has given out the secret. The mannequins have but a brief day of glory. Their unfaded tints, their shapely shoulders, will be sacrificed. Frigid half-smiles on their lips, eyes still frostily gazing to the beyond, they will go into the melting pot, to be made into creatures yet more fair for another fashionable season.

ERA OF GOOD ROADS

Counting mileage, the United States is not short of roads. According to the federal bureau there is a total of 2,819,386 miles of rural highways. Good, indifferent, bad and worse are included in this reckoning. Until the arrival of the automobile and the insistence on improvement which its presence precipitated roads for the most part were treated as of secondary consequence. It's different now. A score of years covers the era of the zeal for good roads.

Now there are 175,000 miles of gravel roads, 30,000 miles of various forms of asphalt, 27,000 miles of concrete, 10,000 miles of brick or stone block and 100,000 miles of macadam. Last year 40,000 miles of improved road was constructed. The 340,000 miles of paved or hard surfaced highways is chiefly the product of the automobile era.

Had not the motor car been placed within the reach of so many people no such vast program of road building would ever have been undertaken. Car ownership has embraced the entire population so nearly that there are few to object to road building programs. If there are those opposed to the huge expenditures for roads they are not numerous enough to make their protests heard. In their desire for good roads the flivver owner and the rider in the highest priced car are of one accord. They want smooth, hard highways, no matter what the cost.

The Romans gained fame because of the roads they built, and Napoleon did considerable in the same line, but the real road-building era is now and it's right here in America. With it all, however, we have quite a distance to go before all the nearly 3,000,000 miles of roads will be entitled to the appellation of "good roads."

That periodic touch of biliousness.

—W. L. Hand.

Mothers, what would you give to feel easy when your little one begins to show signs of biliousness?

It is customary to think that you ought to use calomel and castor oil, but you dread giving these doses as much as the child fears to take them. And still, you dread what may happen if you use just the ordinary children's laxative.

It was to meet this very situation that I invented Liv-o-lax, and if you try it once, you won't think of using calomel again.

Liv-o-lax cleanses liver and bowels, too, and still it is a pleasant-tasting liquid, entirely vegetable, which causes no distress, serves equally well in colds, constipation and indigestion and is just as good for adults as it is for the children—who really love to take it.

Barthlemess Scores In "Twenty - One"

"Twenty-One," as presented at the White's theatre last night, brings Richard Barthlemess back to the screen in a modern role.

The picture, which is a First National attraction, dealing with the problem of a youth of twenty who is unable to master his own fate because he has not yet reached his majority is in striking contrast to recent Barthlemess productions. It is light, full of humor and dramatic situations.

Inspiration Pictures, Inc., who produced the picture, prepared it for the screen with great attention to detail. The action is excellent.

In the part of Julian McCullough, the rich man's son, Barthlemess proves that he is a versatile star, one who can jump from character roles to modern parts and back again with great ease.

Donothy Mackaill again adds to her laurels in the part of a working girl. The settings, it is said, were taken at the famous Westchester-Biltmore Country Club at Rye, N. Y., the rendezvous of millionaire New Yorkers and at the famous estate of Samuel Untermyer, "Greystone."

"Twenty-One" is a picture which will delight all lovers of simple modern tales. It is unpretentious but very human. In the cast in addition to the star and Miss Mackaill are Bradley Baker, Ivan Simpson, Dorothy Cumming, Elsie Lawson, Joe King, Nellie Parker Spaulding and Helen Tracy.

John S. Robertson, who directed "Twenty-One," has given his characteristic careful attention to settings, acting and situations. Second showing to night at White's Theatre.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR MR. R. T. BURNETTE CONDUCTED TODAY

Funeral services for the late Mr. Robert Troy Burnette, Sr., who died Sunday night were conducted this morning at 11 o'clock from the Memorial Baptist church by the Rev. Leonard W. Smith, interment following in the Cherry Hill cemetery.

The honorary pall bearers were the deacons of the Inmanuel Baptist church, the members of the Baraca class of the Memorial Baptist and a few of Mr. Burnette's most intimate friends. The active pall bearers were the deacons of the Memorial Baptist church.

The church was filled to its capacity with sorrowing friends and relatives. The Rev. Mr. Smith in a few beautiful words told of the Christian life of the deceased. He spoke of what the passing of Mr. Burnette meant to the church and the community. His place as deacon, treasurer, chairman of the finance committee, teacher of the various classes and all other offices held by him since uniting with the church were discussed and Mr. Smith, with his own heart full of sorrow, touched the hearts of the entire audience of sorrowing friends as they realized that a vacant place had been left and that a life, worthy of emulation, had passed to its reward.

The Laymen's Christian Federation and the Knights of Pythias both of which Mr. Burnette was a member attended the funeral in a body.

The floral tribute was large and beautiful and showed the high esteem in which the deceased was held by friends throughout the state.

Recommends Night Schools for Illiterates State Prison Farms

Raleigh, Aug. 18.—Recommendations that night schools for illiterates be established in the state prison and on state prison farms, are made in a letter written by James L. Joy of Scotland Neck to Representative W. R. Matthews, chairman of the House committee on Penal Institutions. He declares that this would be a big step in prison reform for the state.

Mr. Joy, who, with others, holds services at the prison farm at Caledonia every Sunday, says in his letter that he has a chance to see things as they are and to talk with prisoners every Sunday. He declares that he has heard no complaints and expressed the belief that Superintendent George Ross Pou of the state prison does not know anything about the charges that have been made as to cradles and inhuman treatment

Standards which has just completed examinations also are made for com-

The Second Neck man, who is a mercantile man, expressed the opinion that 140,000 tests, more than a hundred thousand such tests, for which a charge is made, having been issued since 1922.

Upon the findings of the bureau it is estimated that the government will expend millions of dollars of expenditure in the world of physical science and engineering. While most of the government has had to be refused because the demand exceeds the facilities for doing the work.

Mr. Joy also recommends a special examination of every prisoner as to his mental and physical condition as a part of the work among the prisoners.

"If anything is done for these unfortunate people," he says, "to reduce the number of every prisoner as to their mental and physical condition, they will be better than they were when they were taken behind the prison bars."

Mr. Joy praises Capt. G. J. Reed of the Caledonia farm as a gentleman of the old school and a man on the farm who could tolerate no injustice to any man.

CITTON LETTER

New Orleans, Aug. 19.—Undertone of market was steadier today owing to the uncertainty of a tropical disturbance, of moderate intensity, reported north of Porto Rico, apparently moving northwestward and because of numerous reports as to army worms appearing in certain districts of Arkansas and Texas.

Two additional semi-monthly private crop reports were released this morning. Returns to the Giles bureau average the condition of cotton at 65.3 indicating a yield of 12,800,000 bales and returns to Slement Curtis & Co., Chicago, average the condition of the plant at 65.6 pointing to a production of 13,100,000 bales. Linters not included.

The average of 6 private semi-monthly crop reports as to condition is 65.8 lowest 64.9 highest 66.8 and the average of 6 indicated a yield of 12,963,000 bales, highest 13,340,000 bales, lowest 12,450,000 bales. Linters not included.

The August 8 bureau report indicated a crop as of August 1 of 12,361,000 bales without linters. Except for the want of more moisture in sections of the southwest weather conditions and crop accounts are general favorable.

WOMEN TO LAUNCH MOVEMENT FOR PROHIBITION IN GERMANY

Berlin—Welfare workers who have visited the United States within the last few months, chiefly for investigating the question of prohibition, returned recently and have announced that a movement sponsored principally by women, would soon be launched here to make Germany dry as quickly as possible.

Meeting with this end in view have been held in Berlin, Leipzig, Hamburg and, it is said, even in Munich, the home of famous brews. Most of these meetings, it is announced, have been private, the purpose being to arouse the attention of the women whose influence is to be used eventually in initiating the movement throughout the country.

The main speakers at these meetings were the women prohibitionists who told of their visit to America and gave their views on the situation there.

Sell Tobacco With Star Warehouse Greenville, N. C.

SMITH & SUGG

We Have First Sale Opening Day, Tuesday, Sept. 2nd.

and desire to extend a cordial welcome to all the farmers of Pitt and adjoining counties on that day and at all times.

Many improvements and additions have been made since last season, and our market is in the finest possible condition, the Export Leaf Tobacco Company, having doubled its redrying capacity. Greenville market will reach out further this year than ever before, and with our splendid hard surfaced roads leading into Greenville, three sets of Buyers assuring every warehouse with 1st or 2nd sale every day, and our previous record of paying MORE MONEY for tobacco which will be maintained this season, we are looking forward to a great year.

We advise close grading and keeping your tobacco dry. While in South Carolina we noticed tobacco handled very carelessly and poorly graded which always results in loss to the grower.

We take this opportunity to thank one and all for the patronage accorded us in the past. Our business has grown from year to year because our FIRST INTEREST has been and will continue to be the INTEREST OF OUR PATRONS. You will like our way of selling tobacco. No dropping back or sliding back on any pile of tobacco sold on our floor, when the bid is once made. Your good judgment must concede this to be profitable to the farmer in the sale of his tobacco.

THOSE IN POSITION TO KNOW SAY GREENVILLE IS THE BEST MARKET IN EASTERN CAROLINA.
