

KIWANIANS HOSTS FACULTIES COLLEGE AND CITY SCHOOL

Entertain at Annual Reception in Honor of the Teachers; A Splendid Program Enjoyed

The Kiwanians had a good time last Friday night. The teachers of the City Schools and the faculty of the Teachers College say that they had a wonderful time, and the wives and sweet-hearts present know that they had a wonderful time. So everybody present had a good time.

The occasion was the annual supper and reception given by the Kiwanis Club to the teachers of the city and college. The social rooms of the Christian Church were artistically decorated in keeping with the occasion and Halloween. The ladies of the Christian Church added further to the pleasure of all present by serving a delicious supper and the young ladies of the Church added grace and beauty in their serving.

The ice of formality was soon broken; everyone present was ordered to shake hands with everybody else using the left hand only. The tenth person shaking hands with an unknown Kiwanian received a prize. Miss Lois Gorrell of the College was the one the gods elected to favor.

Bloom's orchestra furnished the music and soon had everybody fox-trotting to the dining room through dimly lighted and spooky passages.

President Will Hooker spoke his little piece of welcome which was responded to by Bob Wright, President of the Teachers College. The Greenville Teachers gave their response to Will's Greeting in the form of a bright snappy song.

Bob Fitzgerald was given the gavel for the evening and after "Just one word says" touched off the evening's fireworks.

Victor Davis with his double quintette from Black-Jack, Professor Kiser (Ed Griffin) with his warbles provided the classical numbers of the program, "Let Me Call You Sweetheart," "I Love Her, Yes I Love Her," "Why Did I Kiss That Girl?" and parodies on "It Ain't Gonna Rain No More" and "Workin' on the Railroad."

The Serró-Comic feature of the evening was the marriage of Mr. Greenville and Miss Typical Teacher. It was sid-splitting, at the same time emphasizing the close bond of union that should exist between Greenville and the teacher of his children. A telegram was handed Bob which he opened and read to those present: It was signed by the heart broken mother of a teacher in Greenville saying that her daughter had fallen in love with Greenville and was planning to marry him that evening, and asking Bob and the Kiwanians to stop the wedding if possible. After a short discussion it was decided to let the affair proceed as it was a principle of Kiwanis that the interests of the children of Greenville could only be served by the closest sympathetic relationship existing between Greenville and the teachers in this public schools. About the time this conclusion was reached a knock was heard at the door and the wedding couple was announced. Charlie Laughinghouse sang "O Promise Me." Then to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March, played by our Victor at the piano, the bride, Miss Typical Teacher (Ed Griffin) appeared at the door, suffused with blushes and adorned with a lace curtain for the veil and carrying a huge red bouquet. The bride was preceded by a flower girl (Jack Kilgo) scattering rose petals from a market basket. From a door on the opposite side of the room appeared Mr. Greenville (Ralph Deal), much agitated with great beads of perspiration standing on his brow. The ring bearer (Charlie Forbes) carried the ring on a large white pillow. The couple met at the altar where they were joined in wed-lock by Jew Cooke who used the impressive ring service. He solemnly required each to take these solemn vows:

Dearly Beloved: We are gathered together in the presence of this great company, to join together in indissoluble bonds this Symbolic Man and Woman; and underneath the joyfulness of the occasion there lies a deep sense of the importance and significance of our act. The union between the City and its Teachers is, or

SAYS LAST MINUTE OPPOSITION WILL HELP PORT MEASURE

General Cox Declares Last Hour Attack Will Bring Supporters of Measure to Polls

Raleigh, Nov. 3.—"The sniping and guerilla warfare methods of the opponents of the Port Terminals and Water Transportation measure of the past few days, I am satisfied is but a smoke screen to conceal from public view efforts being put forth to control the polls," declared General Albert Cox, chairman of the Port Terminals Campaign Committee in a statement issued here today. "The final disclosure of those most actively directing opposition bears out the statement of the nine representative North Carolinians composing the investigating committee that the establishment of port terminals and development of water transportation would inure not to the benefit of a few but to the people of North Carolina as a whole," he continued.

"First the opposition came from representatives of manufacturing concerns who have been enjoying rates lower than citizens generally have been able to obtain. It is inconceivable that these interests think the people of North Carolina so lack intelligence that the appeal to prejudice can take the place of argument. Reaction of the state on account of the efforts of those few, who have already obtained lower rates that the establishment of port terminals and development of water transportation will give to all North Carolinians, to divert attention of the voters from the main question has been just as it should be. Nothing has happened to so tend to bring out the voters on the Port Terminals measure as these efforts in the last hour on the part of a few, who at present enjoy low freight rates, to prevent its being given to all citizens of the state. No argument has yet been advanced against this great economical measure and no effort to prevent its adoption at this late hour can succeed. Reports from every section of the state indicate that a great majority of votes will be cast for the establishment of Port Terminals and Water Transportation."

Democratic Fund Has Reached $618,311.97

Washington, Nov. 3.—The Democratic National Committee reported to the Senate Campaign Fund Investigating Committee today that total contributions of $618,311.97 had been raised by the committee up to October 29. During the period from October 21 to October 29 the committee raised $125,492.91. A disbursement report was not filed with the list of contributions.

ought to be an honorable estate adorned and beautified by the favor of God.

Too often in the days that are gone, the Teacher has been like "a bird of passage" flitting from one town to another every year. The union formed today is followed by a separation at the close of the school term, and by a complete divorce later. Such a condition is bad both for city and teacher, and far more for the little children who should be the joint care of their abiding union. This contract therefore is not by any to be entered into unadvisedly or lightly, but reverently, discreetly, advisedly, soberly and in the fear of God. Into this holy agreement these two persons present come now to be joined; and it is our earnest hope that they will long live together in harmonious service; undisturbed by any friction and unattracted by any more wealthy suitors. If any man can show just cause, why these two may not lawfully be joined together, let him now speak, or else hereafter forever hold his peace.

I require and charge you both, that if either of you know any impediment, why ye may not be so united, ye do now confess it. And if you have any secret intention of dissolving this union for any material or financial reasons, ye shall now state it. For be ye well assured

Greenville To Be Host To Teachers North Eastern District, Nov. 14 and 15

Following its usual plan, the North Carolina Education Association is calling a meeting of the teachers from the twenty-two counties which compose the North Eastern District of this Association. This meeting will be held in Greenville on November 14th and 15th. Last year approximately fifteen hundred teachers and school men were in attendance. From reports from other similar meetings in the state, it is expected that an equal number will be in attendance this year. The first session will convene at 2:00 p. m. on November 14th. This will be a general session which will be followed at once by departmental meetings during the afternoon. The evening session will be open to the public and will be held in the auditorium at East Carolina Teachers College. It is hoped that there will be a generous attendance of citizens from Greenville and surrounding places. On Saturday morning the different departments will again meet. These meetings will be followed by a business session, after which the meeting will adjourn at approximately 1:30 p. m. Greenville counts herself fortunate to be able to act in the capacity of host to the teachers from the counties and cities in this North Eastern District. Last year the teachers and other school officials were very much impressed with the splendid spirit manifested toward the teachers. It is no easy matter to house all of the people who will be in attendance. Our hotel conveniences are limited, and it will therefore be necessary for the citizens of the town to open their homes to the teachers. The office of the county superintendent is endeavoring to secure rooms for the different teachers who will be with us. If you have a vacant room that can be occupied for the night of November 14th, please call his office so that it may be available in case it should be needed.

This is a splendid advertisement to this section to have these teachers meet here. In addition to bringing this group of teachers, many educators of state and national importance will be present. All meetings will be held in the Administration Building of East Carolina Teachers College.

SLAYERS OF CONSUL HAVE BEEN EXECUTED

Persian Government Sends Official Notice of Execution of Murderers of Robert Imbrie

Washington, Nov. 3.—Execution by the Persian government of Seyid Hussien, ring leader of the mob that murdered American Vice Consul Robert Imbrie, in Teheran, was reported officially to the State Department today. Another man was executed for the crime at the same time.

The death sentences were carried out after the Washington government had insisted that the two men must receive the extreme penalty despite the decision to the Persian Cabinet to commute the sentences. A third man found guilty and sentenced to death was executed some time ago.

Expect British Ministry Will Quit Tomorrow

London, Nov. 3.—It is expected by well informed quarters that the Labor Government will resign tomorrow and that the King, according to custom, will call upon Stanley Baldwin leader of the victorious conservative party, to form a new ministry. Baldwin will probably announce his chief appointments before the end of the week and will attend the Lord Mayor's banquet Saturday night with his leading colleagues.

DAVIS WILL MAKE SPEECH TONIGHT

Democratic Nominee Has Travelled 12,000 Miles and Delivered 230 speeches in campaign

New York, Nov. 3.—The long trail blazed by John W. Davis since he began his campaign for the presidency reached its end today. Only a motor trip from his home at Locust Valley to a studio where his last political message will broadcast tonight remained to bring the campaign mileage to a grand total.

The schedule for tonight calls for arrival of Mr. Davis at the W. E. A. F. studio at 9 o'clock and he will begin his address at 9:15 Eastern Standard time.

Mr. Davis' campaign started with his acceptance speech at Clarkburg, W. Va., on August 9. He has travelled an aggregate of 12,000 miles and has in all delivered 230 speeches not including his rear platform talks. The arduous canvassed reaches from the Atlantic Ocean to the Rocky Mountains in the west and from Rhode Island to Tennessee and Kentucky in the South.

Germans Oppose Postal Banks. Berlin, Nov. 3.—The postal administration probably will shelve the idea of establishing postal savings banks. Vigorous opposition to the plan was expressed by municipal and corporation savings banks.

ALL PARTIES CLAIM VICTORY ON EVE OF GENERAL ELECTION

History Making Political Campaign Shows Great Activity as Closing Hour Approaches

Washington, Nov. 3.—The campaign of 1924 is passing through its final hours in a swirl of activities destined to make political history.

For the first time two presidential candidates, President Coolidge and John W. Davis, are preparing addresses for an election eve message to the same audiences, a radio-audience that will extend the country over. Two candidates for the vice presidency are like wise upstating precedent by continuing through election Monday their speaking campaigns. Governor Bryan, of Nebraska, Democratic candidate, is completing a swing through his home state and Senator Wheeler, Independent vice presidential candidate, is winding up his coast to coast speaking tour in Baltimore.

Senator LaFollette having laid his case finally before the people on Saturday night in an address at Cleveland has returned to his home in Madison. Charles G. Dawes is awaiting in Evanston, Illinois, the verdict of tomorrow's balloting.

Managers of all three presidential tickets after making pre-election claims of victory, devoted much time today to perfecting machinery for getting out the vote. Fair weather forecasted for most of the country fitted in with these preparations, and apparently predicts a record vote.

Besides making a selection from three presidential candidates the voters will chose tomorrow a complete membership for a new House of Representatives and 34 United States Senators. In several states and localities the campaign has caused almost complete obliteration of party lines. The LaFollette movement seeking strength from both the old parties, has helped the Democrats in some localities and the Republicans in others and has turned tops a turvy; the established order in more than one political community in the west. In other localities the Ku Klux Klan issue has operated with equal force to tear down party alignment and cloud the outcome with uncertainty.

The Republicans claim national victory based on assumption that Coolidge and Dawes will sweep both the east and west and cut into the borderland of the Solid South. Democrats declared that Davis and Bryan will take the border state, as well as the Solid South and nose out a victory combination in the doubtful states of the east and west. The majority of the strength of the LaFollette-Wheeler ticket is conceded to be in the northwest with Wisconsin as its cornerstone.

Revival Services Close in the Court House Yesterday

The revival services which the Laymen's Christian Federation has been conducting in the court house closed yesterday afternoon with a splendid and largely attended service.

A delegation from Rocky Mount attended and after the song services, Mr. Shannonhouse made a most inspiring talk. The members of the Federation were delighted to have their friends from Rocky Mount attend the services and extended them a cordial welcome.

The revival services have been most helpful and much interest has been manifested.

Leaps to Death From Fifth Floor

Harrisburg, Pa., Nov. 3.—The body of a woman registered at the Pennsylvania hotel Saturday night as Miss Norma Kelly, of Syracuse, N. Y., was found early today on the roof of a building adjoining the hotel. Death was due, according to physicians, from injuries resulting from a fall or jump from a window on the fifth floor on which her room was located.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Woodard and Mrs. Ike Levy, of Rocky Mount, were the guests of Mrs. S. M. Schmitz, Saturday.

PIONEER STATESMAN DIES IN CALIFORNIA AT AGE OF 102 YEARS

Cornelius Cole, Former United States Senator Died at His Home Early Today

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 3.—Cornelius Cole, former United States Senator, 102 years old, died at his home here today.

Cornelius Cole was a survivor of the most striking and picturesque period in the history of California—the era of the placer miner, the Vigilantes, the Pony Express and the trans-continental railway builders; of momentous political and social controversies, startling crimes and summary punishments.

Mr. Cole, who celebrated his 102nd anniversary of his birth September 17, this year, arrived in California when he was 27 years of age, and became a member of the first gold-seeking party to reach the Sacramento Valley overland from the East in the rush of 1840. Every one of those hardy pioneers who survived the perils of the trail and trooped into the Golden West in the stirring days of '49 had just one object in view—the discovery of pay dirt—and Cornelius Cole was no exception.

But as time wore on and the ceaseless hunt for gold came to be regarded in the light of a permanent institution, there were some who called up memories of the comfortable civilization that had been left behind in the distant East, and with these memories came a desire for leaders. Among the latter Cornelius Cole was an exception.

He continued to mine for gold, as did everyone else, but he also found time to give the new country of Sacramento in the capacity of district attorney at a moment when the legal constituted authorities were taking from the Vigilantes the reins of law. This suited the time to keep California on the list of Free States. He took a prominent part in organizing the republican party of the Golden State, and later served on the republican national committee as the first California representative.

An indication of the range of his political career and that of his wife, who shared his early experiences, it is sufficient to note that he was chosen a delegate to the convention which nominated Fremont for President, and that Mrs. Cole was a member of the delegation to the convention that nominated Charles E. Hughes for the same office more than a half century later. During the Civil War Mr. Cole occupied a seat in the House of Representatives, and in 1866 was elected to the United States Senate from California, serving until 1873.

Nearly 50 years after Senator Cole had closed his desk in the national capital and returned to the state of his adoption, he appeared once again in Washington and took his old place in the legislative chambers, there to receive the tribute of a new generation that was guiding the affairs of the nation. He was a centenarian then—or within a few months of the 100 years mark—and as he stood in the Senate to speak, he saw none who had been there in his day.

Despite his advanced years, Cole insisted upon making the trip East in the early summer of 1922 to receive the degree of doctor of laws from Wesleyan College, his Alma Mater, 75 years after his graduation. He also visited Hobart College, which he had attended in his youth. The tour included a visit to New York, which the pioneer had not seen for more than 40 years. Hale and hearty as a man of half his years, and without a wrinkle on his face, the aged visitor spent an active week in the metropolis after meeting the heavy demands made upon him in Washington, where he had been welcomed by President Harding and many other high officials of the government, as well as the House and Senate.

Mr. Cole was born at L. A. S. N. Y., September 17, 1822. Completing his academic work, he studied law in the office of William H. Seward, who later became Secretary of State under Lincoln. In 1849 he struck out for the Far West, and with three companions "panned" gold with varying success until in famed Oregon Gluch they struck a rich pocket, one day's work on which netted them $1,840. They were prompted to sell the claim for a song, however, when a mining camp rumor drifted in telling of better pickings elsewhere, but all lived to see the Oregon Gluch subsequently produce (Continued on page 4)

DON'T BE A SLACKER

Tomorrow is THE DAY on which we must decide who is to run our government, and under what policies, during the next four years. This nation of ours is a business organization of vast proportion and as stockholders of the nation it is up to every citizen to interest himself or herself in the affairs of the government and cast their votes according to their convictions.

So long as citizens fail to take an active part in the selection of officials and the policies of government just so long will the government be operated for the benefit of the classes who take advantage of the lack of interest shown by a large portion of the citizenship and place in office men favorable to their interests. If this country of ours is to be Democracy the government must represent the will of the people and such is not possible unless the people express their wishes through their privilege of the ballot.

Tomorrow is the day for not only the national election but election in this state as well and there are questions of vital importance upon which the citizens of North Carolina must decide. Aside from the election of state officials there are several referendum measures upon which probably rests future prosperity of the state. The people of the state are given the privilege of expressing their wishes on these measures and the voter who does not show an interest in the affairs of state in the election should not criticize when things do not run to suit him afterwards.

A voice in your government is not only a privilege but a duty and if you fail to do your part toward making your state and nation a better place in which to live, well might your name be placed upon the list of slackers.

SENDS VETERANS HIS GOOD WISHES— ONLY

President Coolidge sent a telegram recently to an organization of World War Veterans in California expressing perfect confidence that the ex-service men would help to elect him President. He expressed, too, his appreciation of their expected support, thus:

"So I send all good wishes for the veterans of the Southwest, with the assurance that the American people and their governments are fully resolved to render every testimony of continued appreciation and gratitude for the services and sacrifices of those who defended their country in its time of most pressing necessity."

For once in his life, Calvin Coolidge has sent a word too many. He never should have written that word "continued." If he had merely expressed his high resolve for the future, it might have gone down with some veterans, but when he speaks of "continued appreciation and gratitude" it suggests a little more of the same and veterans are reminded that he vetoed every bill that came to his desk carrying any substantial expression of gratitude to the veterans of any war.

The veterans of the World War got an adjusted compensation bill of a kind after President Coolidge disapproved it and Congress had passed it over his veto. If that settles the bonus question, the World War veterans may have nothing more to fear from President Coolidge's gratitude, but if there is to be another effort to get the sort of adjusted compensation some of the veterans assert they are entitled to, they have the assurance that they may expect President Coolidge's "continued appreciation and gratitude" which means another vote.

Veterans of the Civil War and of the Spanish-American War know what to expect. The President expressed his appreciation and gratitude to them by vetoing the Bursum pension bill. The remaining remnant of the Grand Army of the Republic has petitioned Congress to reread the Bursum bill. Congress will doubtless do it—and President Coolidge, if he is consistent, will express his "continued appreciation and gratitude" by again vetoing it.

President Coolidge's "continued appreciation and gratitude" cannot be expressed many times more for Civil War veterans in time to mean anything to them. One more veto—and the method President Coolidge has of expressing "appreciation and gratitude" for men who have borne arms in their country's service—will be perhaps the last blow that can be dealt the men who served the union in the sixties, of they may help to elect a President who will not express "continued appreciation and gratitude" in terms of vetoes.

They put those four-wheel brakes on the wrong thing; they ought to be put on the drivers."

Pioneer Statesman Dies in California At Age of 102 Years

Years after this venture, Mr. Cole was one of a group of men who met in the law office of Collis H. Huntington and Mark Hopkins in Sacramento to organize the Central Pacific Railroad Company. Later as a member of Congress, he brought about the enactment of laws that made the building of the transcontinental railway possible.

When he was elected to the Senate, however, he actively opposed a bill granting Goat Island in San Francisco bay to the Central Pacific as a terminal site, and thereby, he felt, incurred the enmity of his former friends and associates. To their opposition and that of the so-called Whiskey Ring and national banking interests, which he had antagonized, he attributed his defeat for reelection.

Mr. Cole was married in 1853 to Miss Oliver, Colegrove, who shared her husband's friendship for Abraham Lincoln. Mrs. Cole died in 1920 at the age of 87.

When Mr. Cole celebrated his 100th birthday, his estate in Los Angeles was thrown open to the public for a general reception. Surrounded by his children, grand-children, great-grand-children, and by nonogenarian friends of a lifetime, the former senator danced and frolicked the whole day through as though he had been a boy again.

Chain of Shops to Employ Only Disabled Service Men

Chicago, Nov. 3.—The first of a series of workshops for disabled war veterans, in which they will turn out memorial wreaths and flowers for patriotic uses, will be opened here the first week in January under the auspices of the Bolo club, an organization given chiefly to the interests of former service men.

Thousands of small emblems, the red carnation, insignia of the Spanish-American war veterans, the blue violet of the world war and the purple daisy of the Veteran Corps of the Republic, will be manufactured, according to C. T. Jennings, secretary of the executive council. Orders for poppies from the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign War, also will be delivered.

Only disabled American war veterans will be employed and the profits deposited in a general fund for the relief of veterans and dependents.

Boston, New York, Baltimore, Jacksonville, Fla., New Orleans, St. Louis, Kansas City, Butte, Mont., Seattle, and San Francisco are among the cities already selected for the shops.

that the true and lawful union of City and Teacher should ever be for life.

Miss Teacher: Do you take this man for better or worse; promise to teach his 2000 children; to labor with them from morning until night; to try and get some sense into their empty heads?

Mr. Greenville: Do you, for your part, promise to take this Teacher and give her enough of your income, in order that she may live respectably, and have enough to advance further professionally? Do you promise to make her feel welcome, and to treat her with such courtesy, that she will never regret having come to our city? Do you promise to provide her with all things essential for the success of her work, ample and well lighted school rooms, not obliging her to teach and look after more than 35 of your children at one time?

I, Greenville, take thee, to have and to hold and to support while life shall last.

I, Teacher, take thee, Greenville, to be mine forever, to educate and cherish thy children while my life lasts.

With this ring I thee wed, and with the best my City possesses I thee endow.

What we have joined together, let no school board put asunder.

For inasmuch as Greenville and Teacher have covenanted together to live together in holy union, and in the presence of this company have signified the same by giving and receiving a ring, I therefore pronounce them wedded and all their interests One. Go in peace.

SCHOOL TEACHER BEARS WITNESS TO CHILDREN'S SENSE OF JUSTICE

London, Nov. 3.—The record of Miss Margaret J. Williams, a Richmond school teacher, who has ceded only one pupil during a teaching career of 40 years, is rather unique in this country where pedagogues still accept the old adage, "spare the rod and spoil the child."

When some kind of punishment becomes necessary, Miss Williams usually writes to the mother, and obtains her consent before it is given. "I hardly ever do punish them," she said, "but when I do I make it a rule to hear their side of the question first, I recognize that they have a side. No one, you know has so exact a sense of justice as a child. And I always wait till my temper cools down before I do anything."
