TRINITY COLLEGE TO CHANGE ITS NAME

Fire Threatens To Destroy Famous Amusement Resort

TRINITY TRUSTEES VOTE UNANIMOUSLY TO ACCEPT OFFER OF JAMES B. DUKE

By Changing Name the College Will Receive $6,000,000 Now and 32 Per Cent of Income From Trust Fund

Durham, Dec. 29.—The Board of Trustees of Trinity College meeting here today voted unanimously to change the name of the college to Duke University. By changing the name of Trinity the trustees accepted the terms of the $40,000,000 trust fund established by James B. Duke under which the new university will receive not to exceed $6,000,000 for building purposes and 32 per cent of the income from the trust fund.

The board passed resolutions accepting all the terms of the proposal made by Mr. Duke to establish Duke University at Trinity College. Every member of the board voted by proxy or in person and the board adjourned at one o'clock after an announcement that an official statement will be issued this afternoon.

It was said that the name of the college will be changed as soon as legal requirements can be complied with. It was specifically stated in the resolutions adopted that the name of Trinity College shall be perpetuated by the maintaining of a collegewhithin the new university to be known as Trinity.

Sketch of Trinity College Trinity College has had a long career as an educational institution of North Carolina; dating back to the establishment of a local school in the northwestern portion of Randolph county in 1838. Brantley York was the principal of this institution which began on a very modest scale.

In 1849 the school was enlarged and named Union Institute and a year later it was incorporated under act of Legislature as Union Institute Academy. The first board of trustees was composed of Nathan Hunt, Joseph Mendenhall, Joseph Johnson, Lewis Leach, Jabe Leach, Martin W. Leach and Abi Robbins.

In 1842 the Academy obtained a new head in the person of Braxton Craven and under his guidance it grew into a well known school of higher education in North Carolina. Nine years later, in 1851, the trustees decided to put the institution more into relation with the educational needs of the state and in more direct touch with the then infant public schools system of North Carolina. Accordingly, application was made to the Legislature and Union Institute Academy became known as Normal College. Certificates from this college were deemed sufficient to qualify a person to teach in the schools of the state and every student upon entering Normal College was required to sign a declaration that he desired to study at the college for the "sole object" of teaching in the state schools.

In November of the following year, the trustees of Normal College again went before the Legislature to have an amendment to the charter of the college ratified. This amendment gave the trustees larger powers in the direction of the college and among other things authorized the college to confer degrees. On July 28, 1853, the college graduated its first class with degrees, two young men being given the degree of Bachelor of Arts. This same act authorized a loan by the state from its literary funds for the purposes of the institution.

With a portion of this loan, during 1839-54, the college erected a larger building. A great change took place in the affairs of Normal College in November, 1856 when the trustees authorized President Craven to propose to the North Carolina Methodist conference that the institution be placed under the ownership and control of that organization. The offer was accepted by the conference with certain stipulations, chief among them being that the trustees must raise a

Mayor Outwits Holdup man in Own Home

DR. BENJAMIN CRITCLOW

Dr. Benjamin Critchlow, Hollywood, Cal., chiropractor, has confessed to police that he held up Mayor Cray, of Los Angeles, in the executive's home in an effort to obtain $10,000. Critchlow gained entry by making an appointment under the representation that he was a secret service officer, with information which the Mayor should have. For three hours he threatened the Mayor, police allege, while the latter talked soothingly to him and convinced him finally that the money could not be obtained at that time of the night. Critchlow's arrest came the following day.

REV. JAMES EASON PREACHES IN CITY

Student at Rutherford College Delivers Sermon in the Methodist Church

Rev. Jas. H. Eason, now a ministerial student at Rutherford College, but formerly of Greenville preached at the Methodist Church last night. Mr. Eason was converted under the ministry of Mr. Scoville, pastor of Jarvis Memorial Church, a little more than two years ago. He was at this time working with the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company with headquarters in Greenville. He immediately felt a call to the ministry and acting upon the advice of his pastor, has been in school since that time in order to the better prepare himself for his life work. Having made a splendid record in school, Mr. Eason was recently licensed to preach, and it was most fitting that his first sermon should have been delivered from the pulpit of the church in which he was converted and under whose influence he entered the ministry.

He used as text "Like as Moses Lifted Up the Serpent in the Wilderness, Even So Must the Son of Man be Lifted Up." The theme was the importance of exalting Christ before men. The message was well received by an appreciative and sympathetic congregation. The pastor and membership of Jarvis Memorial feel an especial interest in this splendid young man, and as he returns to college to continue his studies, their prayer will follow him. A very bright future is predicted for Mr. Eason by his many friends.

FRENCH WAR DEBT DISCUSSION STILL DRAWING INTEREST

Indications Point to Outbreak of Discussion in House and Senate at Early Date

Washington, Dec. 29.—Although outward appearances the discussions over funding the French war debts has reached a stalemate the question of a possible solution continues to occupy a prominent place in the minds of official and diplomatic Washington.

There is intense interest in some phases of the subject in Congress and it is possible that discussions of the situation will soon break out in the Senate and House.

Elliott Wadsworth, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury and Secretary of the Debt Funding Commission, conferred at some length today with Secretary Hughes. No statement was authorized as to the subject of the discussion. It can be said definitely, however, that the Washington government has had no official intimation directly or indirectly that the French government disposed to alter its previous attitude regarding the debt to the United States.

For this reason administration officials are not inclined to see any delay in the settlement of the French debt. The Finance Minister who made public recently a French governmental sheet which failed to include any mention of money that the government owes to the United States. On the contrary the whole course of the French Government so far as its social communications to the Washington government are concerned not only recognized the legality of the debt but also its equity.

CONGRESS SETTLES DOWN TO BUSINESS AFTER ITS HOLIDAY

Senate Resumes Muscle Shoals Discussion; the House Buies Itself With Appropriations

Washington, Dec. 29.—Congress, after a week's recess today buckled down to its legislative tasks that will keep it busy from now until the end of the session on March 4.

The Senate started to work this morning with a resumption of consideration of the Muscle Shoals problem while the House resumed work on appropriation bills. Three of a dozen supply measures have already been counted off and sent to the Senate and leaves the Treasury and Post Office bills next in line for House action. Its passage this week will clear the way for the army supply bill.

The Senate will halt its consideration of Muscle Shoals Tuesday, January 6, when by unanimous consent the President's veto of the Postal Salaries Increase bill will come on. Meanwhile hearings on the administration's postal rate increase which leaders hope to have ready before the President's veto comes up for consideration, will continue before the joint committee.

Although the Senate has yet to take up the appropriation bills sent from the House, their consideration in committee has begun and leaders believe that by speedy action the Senate can catch up during the less than ten weeks remaining of the session. The Senate is also pledged to take action before the end of the session on the Isle of Pines Treaty.

PHYSICIANS FIND NO EVIDENCE FOUL PLAY YOUTH'S DEATH

Chief Heir to Estate of "Millionaire Orphan" Will Divide it Into Funds for Betterment of Mankind

Chicago, Dec. 29.—While state attorneys awaited further reports of the doctors who are examining the exhumed body of William Nelson McClintock, "Millionaire Orphan," William D. Shepherd, foster father and chief heir of the dead youth announced plans for legal vindication of himself and ultimate disposal of the fortune.

Shepherd hurriedly returned to Chicago from New Mexico when inquiry into McClintock's death was begun two weeks after he died on December 1, supposedly of typhoid fever. Shepherd asserted that he would seek indictment of persons he named only as a vindication and that he will destroy the hoodoo that seemingly rests upon the million dollar legacy by separating it into several funds which upon the death of himself and his wife will be used for the betterment of mankind.

He said he would provide a fund from which Miss Isabelle Pope, McClintock's fiancée would receive $8,000 a year during her life time after which the fund would be divided among several charities.

Examination of the dead youth's viscera had advanced to a point to include furtherance of commercial relations between the two countries. Hitherto the society was concerned only with cultural matters.

DECREASE HIGHWAY ACCIDENTS

As the time for the convening of the North Carolina General Assembly approaches it is well that those who are to represent the citizens of their various counties should begin to decide upon what legislation is needed for the best interests of all concerned.

It is to be hoped that in this consideration the need of a vehicle light law for North Carolina will not be overlooked. During the past three years there have been scores of accidents on the public highways caused by unlighted vehicles. As the number of miles of hard surfaced roads in the state increases the danger of such accidents likewise increases and it is time that some measure to protect those who find it necessary to travel the highways after dark was adopted.

For the past two terms of the General Assembly there have been presented measures that would require every vehicle, whether animal drawn or motor driven, to carry a light on the highways after dark. Looking at it from a standpoint of dollars and cents rather than from a standpoint of safety the legislators decided that the expenditure for lanterns or other emans of lighting would work a hardship upon those who must travel and so the measure failed adoption each time.

Since then accidents from this cause have continued and the amount of property damage has been more than enough to furnish a light for every wagon or buggy that travels the roads at night to say nothing of the loss of life that cannot be reckoned in dollars and cents.

It is to be hoped that the legislators at the coming session will consider the measure from a safety stand point and perform the duty for which they were chosen by adopting measures that will protect the lives and property of those who elected them to their present positions.

"It is said that his car remains idle—that Ehn has quit drinking—and goes by every day and looks yearningly at his car and counts the hours till March 1, 1925.

"That medicine ought to be meted out, plus a fine in Raleigh and other North Carolina towns."

THE WAY TO STOP 'EM

Commenting on the action taken by Kansas City to break up the driving of automobiles by persons under the influence of whiskey and urging that such steps be taken throughout North Carolina to rid the state of menace of the drunken drivers the News and Observer says:

"The number of accidents by drunken, or drinking, men calls for more drastic punishment than has heretofore been meted out. A fine is no punishment to most of them. They have found out how to give the right medicine in Kansas City. A man named Ehn had a head-on collision with a street car. The motorman testified he saw that the mash-up could not be averted and he stopped his car and waited for the inevitable.

"All I remember," Ehn explained, "was that I took one drink. I was cold and I thought the drink would warm me. The next I knew I was in the police station."

"You don't remember hitting the street car?" asked the judge.

"No."

"And in your condition you might have run over a person without realizing it?"

"Yes."

"Then the judge gave Ehn the dose that stops drunken driving. He said:

"Well, you must pay for your drink. Your fine is $100 and I forbid you to drive your car until March 1, 1925."

Memorial Tree to Woodrow Wilson Planted Sunday

Mr. formerly of Goldsboro, for a number of years, a resident here, a devoted admirer of Woodrow Wilson, who is now actively engaged in having a Woodrow Wilson Scholarship established at Davidson College, and who on behalf of Davidson College scattered soil from its campus about the tree when it was presented to the National Cathedral.

Edward E. Britton, of Raleigh, was the master of ceremonies for the event, and following his introduction of Chaplain E. W. Scott, of the United States navy, who gave the invocation, Mr. Britton delivered a brief eulogy of the life and services of Woodrow Wilson, and read a number of letters from prominent men paying tribute to the memory of the late President. Among the writers of these letters, were Dr. William J. Maith, president of Davidson College; Dr. Edwin A. Alderman, president of the University of Virginia, whose recent memorial address on Woodrow Wilson before a joint session of Congress has evoked expressions of admiration from all parts of the country; and Dr. Henry Louis Smith, president of Washington and Lee University. At the close of his remarks, Mr. Britton presented Congressman Charles L. Abernethy, of the Third North Carolina District, who delivered the address of the afternoon and formally presented the North Carolina long leaf pine tree to the National Cathedral, while Miss Margaret Pou, daughter of Congressman Edward W. Pou, of the Fourth North Carolina District, color bearer for the exercises, waved the Stars and Stripes, Mrs. Taylor using the North Carolina State flag.

The acceptance of the tree was by Canon W. L. Devries, of the National Cathedral, who in doing so declared that the long leaf pine was a worthy symbol of the life of Woodrow Wilson, that it was the first tree planted on the cathedral grounds in memory of Mr. Wilson, that it was in a goodly company, for there were memorial trees placed there to the British soldiers of the World War by the Prince of Wales, and another by the Bishop of Canterbury. He referred to the fact that he had been a classmate of Woodrow Wilson in his college days and of his feeling then that Woodrow Wilson was destined for greater events in life, that his services for humanity had shown that his belief was firmly fixed. He declared that the authorities at the National Cathedral deeply appreciated the gift and that there would be given the closest attention to the tree from North Carolina, that it would be nourished and protected with the greatest care, after which he delivered the benediction.

Oil stocks showed considerable strength on Saturday on reports that crude oil buyers in the Bradford district were offering twenty five cents advance, also on reports that the Wortham field was beginning to show water.

GRAIN MARKET

GRAIN

With May wheat above 180 a good many traders who have followed the leaders on the bull side have taken profits, while a few are bearish, others are waiting to see what effect heavy revising sale will have on values. Those foremost to the trade, who have been right are strong in the belief that the two dollar level, even higher figures will be reached eventually. They expect to see sharp fluctuations. The situation in all grains has reached a position in which caution is advised in taking either side of the market. It will be no surprise to see wheat at 190 by the end of the week.

Trinity Trustees Vote Unanimously Accept Offer of James Duke

fund of $20,000 which was done within the next two years. The Normal College then passed into full control of the North Carolina Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

In February, 1839 the trustees again went before the Legislature and this time the name of the college was changed to Trinity College. Certain rules and regulations were also incorporated in the amended charter with reference to degrees to be conferred, gambling and drinking and the operation of institutions tending to these two habits within a certain radius of the college.

President Craven resigned in 1863 and Professor William T. Gannoway was elected to the presidency. In Oct. 1865, Dr. Craven again became president of the college. In April, 1865, due to condition arising from the War Between the States, the work of the College was suspended and was not resumed until January, 1866. Dr. Craven remained as president until his death, November 7, 1882. Professor William Howell Beogram was then elected chairman of the faculty and served until June, 1885.

In 1883, the Reverend Marquis L. Wood, D. D., was elected president. He resigned in December, 1884 when Professor John F. Heltman was named as chairman of the faculty. Dr. John Franklin Crowell was elected president of the institution in April, 1887 and it was he who conceived and carried out the idea of moving Trinity College to a city. On May 7, 1889 the Board of Trustees authorized the removal of the college to a city when a proper site had been offered and at a meeting held November 30, 1889, the offer of the city of Raleigh was accepted. The Methodist Conference at its session held the following month approved the arrangements but before the deal was consummated, the city of Durham came forward with an offer which was deemed more to the interests of Trinity and on January 21, 1891 the Legislature approved the amended charter removing the college to Durham.

In September, 1892 the first session of Trinity College at Durham was opened. The plant then consisted of the Washington Duke building, the Inn, the Crowell Science Building and seven residences. In May 1894, Dr. Crowell resigned as President and on August 1, 1894 the Reverend John Carlisle Kilgo, D. D., was named his successor.

The college became co-educational in May, 1897 when the trustees authorized the admission of women to all departments of the institution. In 1898 the plant was increased by the addition of Trinity Park School and the Mary Duke Building. In 1899, the Angier Duke Gymnasium was added, the Craven Memorial Hall was erected and Crowell Science Building was remodelled and fully equipped. In 1900 the president's house was built and another professional residence erected. In 1901-1902 the library building and Ispahang Hall were constructed. A heating plant centrally located was also installed.

In 1902 it was deemed wise to condense the charter and the amendments into a single charter and this was done by act of legislature the following February.

Dr. Kilgo was elected a Bishop of the Methodist Church in 1910 and resigned the presidency of the college. Dr. William Preston Few was named to succeed him and in November, 1910 was inducted into office. Dr. Few has continued to head the college since that date.

Additions and changes in the college were many during the administration of Dr. Few. The West Duke building was built in 1911 and the East Duke building was erected in the same year to replace the Washington Duke building which had been destroyed by fire. In August, 1911 and in October, 1912, Aycock Hall and Jarvis Hall were added to the buildings. During 1914 the Inn was remodelled.

In the spring of 1915 the athletic field of the college was fully equipped and in 1915-16 the entire campus was circled with a wall. The James H. Southgate Memorial Building was erected in 1921 and was occupied by the women students. In 1922 the Trinity Park School was discontinued as a preparatory school and its buildings were added to the College equipment. In 1922-23 the Alumni Memorial and in October, 1912, Aycock Hall and Jarvis Hall were added to the buildings. During 1914 the Inn was remodelled.
