FLOYD COLLINS TO BE EXTRICATED FROM HIS CAVE PRISON TONIGHT

Henry T. Carmichael, in Charge of Rescue Work, Still Hopes to Rescue Collins Alive After 12 Days of Imprisonment in Cave

Barring unlooked for developments indications at 12:30 this afternoon were that Floyd Collins would not be extricated until late tonight from Sand Cave where he has been trapped for 12 days.

Cave City, Ky., Feb. 11.—A definite connection between the rescue shaft and tunnel in which Floyd Collins has been imprisoned for 12 days, was expected to be reached very soon, it was declared this morning by Henry T. Carmichael, in charge of the rescue work.

"I am prepared at almost any time to find a definite connection between the shaft and cavern," Carmichael said. "More crevices are being found, rocks are getting larger, and cave crickets are reported."

For the first time, the amplifier test across the electric wire leading down to Collins failed this morning to record anything in the head phones. The last successful test at midnight repeated "breathing" at a regular rate of 18 times per minute. Henry G. Lane, the manager of the electric apparatus in the cave, said that the test indicated that the globe was out of the socket or burned out.

Carmichael would not estimate how soon the Sand Cave Tunnel might be pierced but said "we appear to be very close, and we will get Collins out alive."

Jack Pettaway Wanted for Murder Surrenders to Officer

Jack Pettaway, 60, negro, of Belvoir Township, who one night last week shot and killed Della Bullock, has surrendered and is in the Pitt County jail awaiting trial in the next term of Superior Court.

Pettaway went to the home of his victim and shot her while she was asleep. For several days he succeeded in evading arrest but on Monday he went to the Constable of Belvoir Township and gave himself up.

According to information, the negro confessed the crime, saying that he and the woman had had a misunderstanding which resulted in a quarrel. He stated, however, that he did not intend to kill her, and that he never saw a trigger pull so easily. He just pointed the gun at the sleeping woman and somehow in some way his finger touched the trigger and the fatal shot was fired.

The Senate Committee Votes Substitute for the Bill Passed by the House Late Yesterday

Approval of this act by the Senate would force a conference between the House and Senate on the differences between the two bills, which vary considerably on the proposed rate increases. The Senate bill also would make the pay advance effective as of July 1, 1924 instead of Jan. 1, 1925, as in the House measure.

Labor Conditions Showed Improvement During Last Week

Raleigh, Feb. 11.—Labor conditions in North Carolina during the week ending February 7 were decidedly more favorable than they have been during the past six weeks, according to the weekly report of the State and Federal Employment Service, which has just been made public through Frank D. Grist, Commissioner of Labor and Printing. The improvement is noted, it stated, through more favorable weather conditions and the situation over the state is reported as being fairly well balanced.

Yes, Mr. Nettles, There Is No Bill for "Marriage Bonus"

Raleigh, Feb. 10.—"I have been trying all morning to figure out what has become of that 'marriage bonus' bill," said Representative Nettles, of Buncombe county, leaning over his desk to address a fellow member. "I don't get you," said the one addressed. "There hasn't been any 'marriage bonus' bill introduced in this house. I wish there had, because I need the money."

Representative Nettles pulled from his pocket a letter from a constituent. "Passing it along," he said. "There it is. Read that and tell me what you think the writer is driving at." The person to whom the letter was handed for inspection read it and a smile played over his face. "He wasn't asking about any marriage bonus," he said to the Buncombe county representative. "He wants to know about the bill requiring the publication of marriage banns."

"O, I see," said the Buncombe county representative. "Then we won't have to refer this bill to the appropriation committee." "Hump," chimed in another, "nor road freight rates for short hauls will I be collected for that eight than for long hauls on the same route, years I've been married."

They went on record as opposing any kind of professional boxing because of "the atmosphere that is said to be generated around such events."

The association went even further and passed a resolution asking that the state legislature repeal the bill providing for professional boxing under local jurisdiction in the cities of this state.

Summary Tuberculosis Eradication Shows Progress During Dec.

Washington, Feb. 11.—A summary of tuberculosis eradication work among livestock, just issued by the United States Department of Agriculture shows much progress during December, 1924. The report is largely a statistical statement showing the status of the work at the close of the last calendar year.

The number of herds, of cattle officially accredited as free from tuberculosis passed the 60,000 mark during December, reaching the total of 60,639, containing well over a million head of cattle. Tuberculin testing was particularly active during the month in Minnesota, Iowa, Wisconsin, Illinois, and New York, states the report. Each of these states had more than 35,000 head of cattle tested.

The number of counties accredited as being virtually free from bovine tuberculosis increased from 48 to 53 during December, the gain occurring in North Carolina, North Dakota, and Kansas. The remarkable popularity of tuberculosis eradication work, which is conducted co-operatively by the Department of Agriculture and various State, is seen in the consistently large waiting list of herds to be tested. On the first of January, this year, the waiting list included 223,192 herds containing nearly two and one-half million cattle.

COURT MUST DECIDE ON VETERANS' LOAN

Question As to Validity of Bond Issue Causes State Advisory Board to Call for Test Case

Raleigh, Feb. 11.—Possibility that the Veterans Loan Bond Issue voted at the general election last November may not be constitutional, was seen here today in the opinion of Chester B. Masslich, Bond Attorney of New York, and representative of North Carolina in that City to the effect that there is a question as to whether the issue should have been approved by the majority of registered voters or the majority of those who voted.

Mr. Masslich raised the question yesterday to the conference of state officials, while Attorney General Brummitt upheld the issue.

Meeting was held this morning by the Advisory Board created by the act, which time it was decided to have a test case brought up by some citizen, and the matter decided by the Supreme Court.

Bout Between Indian and McCune to Take Place as Scheduled

Fort Bragg, Feb. 10.—All suspicions of "bad blood" between two of the boxers on the card for the bouts here February 20 have been allayed by Chief Mayle, Fort Bragg's Indian heavyweight, one of the boxers in question. Battline McCune is the other fighter referred to.

Following talk that the bout between these men would be a "grudge fight" officials investigated the matter and discovered that the talk was based on mere snay conclusions developing from calling off of two former bouts between the men on account of unavoidable circumstances. Chief Mayle disclaimed any grudge against McCune.

The bout between the Indian and McCune will come off as scheduled.

BUS REGULATION BILL PASSES THIRD READING WITHOUT OPPOSITION

Minority Report on Darwinism Measure to Be Brought to the Floor of the House Say Committeemen

Raleigh, Feb. 11.—Passage of the Bus Regulation Bill on its third reading by the House without a dissenting vote and the House's vote to reconsider the vote on the Court and Judicial Districts Bill which failed on its second reading, were the outstanding features of today's session of the General Assembly.

The House Committee on Education failed to submit its unfavorable report on the Pool bill designed to prohibit the teaching of evolution in state schools. Members of the committee reiterated their determination to bring the measure before the House on a minority report, and asked for a roll call show down.

Passage of the Bus Regulation Bill on its final reading was a finality. There was some suggestion of a debate on the amendment limiting commercial inter-city busses to 20 passengers, exclusive of the drivers, but have gotten to this would have necessitated motion to reconsider, the vote by which the measure passed its second reading last night, so there was no action on the point. The bill now goes back to the Senate for its concurrence.

The House last night voted three amendments, one to strike out the amendment to permit 94 inch busses which were on the road on Jan. 1, 1925 from the clause requiring narrow busses, the second one was that the number of passengers, be limited to 20, and the third that for hire cars being operated inside of incorporated places will not be affected by the bill.

In the Senate discussion commented on the Fisheries bill providing for a new scale of license of fishermen, both amateur and experienced. A half dozen amendments were offered to the measure and a parliamentary tangle was created. The Senate got out of this by re-referring the bill to the committee.

The upper body then entered into a discussion of the Johnson amendment to the divorce law requiring a one year period of absolute divorce after five years of separation before re-marriage. A substitute for the bill was offered, and a number of amendments sent forward. Discussion on these amendments was in progress at 1:30 with indications that the measure probably would not be disposed of until later on in the afternoon.

He said that he told Riehl that he would consider it, and would give him the money later. Riehl said, he did not say it.

MUSCLE SHOALS IN DANGER

Declaring that the Underwood Muscle Shoals leasing bill through juggling by the conferees has ceased to be a measure providing cheap fertilizer for the American farmer and has become almost a power project without provisions for a suitable return to the government for the property for such purposes. The New York World urges that definite action on the measure go over until the next session of Congress when ample time may be given to its consideration.

In setting forth its plea for due consideration before disposition of this great government property for another generation, The World says:

"The Underwood bill for Muscle Shoals was a weak bill when it went to conference. It is a weaker bill now that it has come out of conference. And the reason is plain enough. At the last moment there has been an effort to revive the discredited Ford offer of two years ago, bring Mr. Ford back into the bargain without mentioning him by name, and turn over to Mr. Ford or another bidder whose terms are little better than the public property on terms which are quite acceptable. This effort is all the more likely to succeed because it looks as if advantage were to be taken of the confusion which always marks the end of every session to jam a settlement through without debate, settling the fate of the Shoals for another generation. "What happened to the Underwood bill in conference between representatives of the Senate and the House? In an attempt to consolidate it with the old House bill of a year ago, bestowing the Shoals on Henry Ford, the conferees made two important changes:

"First, they cut the leasing terms so drastically that the Shoals can now be rented for a figure as low as $1,320,000. To be sure, that is a minimum figure. But it is an authorized minimum. And we do not believe that the people of this country will be content with what would amount to a return of less than 1 per cent on their investment in the Shoals.

"Second, the conferees inserted a phrase about using the power of the Shoals for nitrogen 'and other products.' That phrase is written for a manufacturer who wishes to use the Shoals not primarily for the production of that 'cheap fertilizer' which has been so much discussed but to run his own private, varied industries with power furnished largely at the public's cost.

In other words, the conference bill makes the Shoals essentially a power project, not a fertilizer project. The World has always believed that it should be so treated. The proponents of the Underwood bill have said that it should not. Now the bill itself comes around to the power view, but comes around haphazardly, with its emphasis still on fertilizer, and without any of the intelligent planning for power which a power bill deserves.

"This is a poor way, with a jumbled bill and a possible rental figure of less than 1 per cent on the public's dollar, to dispose for fifty years of a property like Muscle Shoals. The Shoals deserves a better fate than being rushed through in a sudden all-night spurt at the end of a tired session. This bill should go over till December. The World hopes that neither the prestige of the men who are behind the conference report, nor the confusion which attends the end of a session, nor the cry that having come this far toward passage of a bill we might as well go on, will serve to jam the present settlement through Congress."

PUBLIC FORUM

Urges Extension of City Limits.

To the Editor of The Reflector:
There has been considerable discussion during the past few days concerning the proposed extensions of the corporate limits of Greenville, and the enlarged jurisdiction of the Police Court over town cases. Therefore, in order to get both of these propositions more clearly before the public we would like to call attention to a few pertinent facts concerning same.

The proposed extensions of the city limits is absolutely essential to the progress and development of the town. However, the Board of Aldermen in determining upon the extent of the extensions decided not to take in any more territory than was absolutely necessary and such as could be improved and developed during the next two years. In fact so great was the desire of the Board to reach an agreement with all property owners effected that in several instances in order to avoid opposition, concessions were made of territory that should have been included. And at the time of the drawing up of the bill it was thought that everyone had agreed on the new boundaries.

In west Greenville where the main opposition seems to have developed, the Town of Greenville through its School Board has recently purchased a $5,000 lot and upon which there is now being erected a modern costly school building. This lot is at present just across the street out of town and the new limits seek to include this school block with a line one block west of same and one block north of same. It was thought that this had been agreed upon but the owners of the adjacent property, Messrs. Higgs Bros., now say there was a mistake and contend that the western line should only take in the school block, thus leaving the property across the street from the new school building out of town. Let's see what this would mean.

Of course, the school building will be equipped with water, lights, sewerage, fire protection afforded and the side walks around the block paved. The property across the street gets the benefit of all this, but by reason of being out of town contributes nothing to the expense. Would this be fair to the tax payers of the town? And is it so unjust to ask that one hundred yards west and one hundred yards north of the school block be also taken in town? Could the Board in justice to the tax payers of the Town ask for less?

The whole controversy involves three blocks of 300 feet by 300 feet each, making a total of six acres. If this property is valued at $200 per acre it would in it, present state cost the owner in town taxes the magnificent sum of $12 per year. Yet by reason of the location of the school building, the very property across the street that the Mr. Higgs says should be left out of town, cannot be bought for $1,000 per lot or $20 per front foot. Try to buy some of this farm land across the street from the school building and see what it will cost you.

In east Greenville the new line goes nearly to the F. A. Haskins filling station and takes in about ten blocks of Mr. Walter Harrington's property, yet he raises no objection, but actually wants the property taken in town. Various other property owners are effected more or less without serious opposition. So much for that.

The other proposition applies to the jurisdiction of the Police Court over town cases. At present that jurisdiction is only concurrent with that of a magistrate and all cases in which the punishment could exceed 30 days imprisonment or $50 fine, must be bound over to the County Court and can be taken from there on appeal to the Superior Court. The proposal would increase the jurisdiction of the Police Court so that the same cases could be disposed of in the Police Court and appeals taken directly from there to the Superior Court without the cases having to go through the County Court.

Under the present system the county gets the bulk of the cost from liquor cases, pistol cases, driving automobiles while drunk, etc., yet the tax payers of Greenville pay for the maintenance of the Police force that make the arrests and the Police Court that has to first hear the cases and pass them on to the County Court. Is this fair or just? Especially in view of the fact that the Police Department is not self-sustaining while the County Court is, but at the expense of the town. In Wilson and other towns having the very jurisdiction that Greenville is seeking, the Police Department is not only self supporting, but revenue producing. None of this applies to fines for all fines from all courts go to the General County school fund.

In addition to the financial consideration there is the time of the Police Officers, to be considered. Often the whole force in fact nearly every Monday, both day and night several week, ago, has improved so that he has resumed his work as R. L. C. on route 2.

A. O. Beddard has been fortunate in securing a shipment of 1923 crop of pedigreed cotton seed of the Wannamaker Cleveland strain. The Betterment Association of Winterville High School held its February meeting on last Tuesday evening in the school auditorium. The entire meeting was centered around the one thought, "Athletics."

Mr. Keach made a short but very forcible talk on, "Equipment needed on the Playground." Following this was the most important feature of the program, the wedding of Miss Tennis Champion to Mr. Hundred Yard Dash. The bride and groom, officiating clergyman, and all the attendants were dressed in athletic costumes, the bride's veil was a tennis net. Altogether the wedding was a most striking affair and showed much thought and real work on the part of the program committee and the students. The attendance prize for the high school was won by the 11th grade in Mr. Keach's room, while the one for the elementary grades was awarded to the fourth grade, taught by Miss White.

The faculty of the High School went over to Bethel Friday night and gave the play, "The Old-Fashioned Mother," in the school auditorium there. They were accompanied by Mrs. John R. The following is a copy of a telegram received today by Rev. S. Lee Sadler, of Greenville.

"Cincinnati, Ohio,

Rev. Lee Sadler,
Greenville, N. C.:
"You were unanimously appointed delegate to Stockholm. All delighted. Congratulations."

This is the second World Conference on Religion to be held within recent years, the first one being held in Geneva in 1920. The Geneva Conference was on "Faith and Order," and had as its object a closer federation among all Christians by means of re-statement of creeds and beliefs.

The second conference will meet in Stockholm, Sweden, August 9-20, 1925 and will be a conference on "Life and Work." Practically every religious body of Christendom will be represented, with the exception of the Roman Catholic Church.

The American churches will send delegates in proportion to their memberships, the Disciples having six. These six will be:

A. E. Corey, of Kinston; Fred Burnam, of St. Louis; Fliss Idleman, of New York; Guy S. Inman, of New York; Graham Frank, of Pasadena, and Lee Sadler, of Greenville, N. C.

Woman's Club Invited to Attend Recital In Kinston Tuesday Eve

The Greenville Woman's Club has received an invitation from the Community Club of Kinston to attend a recital to be given by Mrs. Ben Parham, on next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. The recital is being given under the auspices of the Music Department of the Club.

Mrs. Parham, nee Miss Kate Johnson, needs no introduction to the people of this city as she is well known throughout the State. She possesses a splendid voice and her recital will be a treat for all who hear her.

The members of the Woman's Club of Greenville consider it an honor to be invited to attend this recital and will no doubt show their appreciation by attending in large numbers.

The invitation which was extended to the Woman's Club through Mrs. Ralph Deal reads as follows:

Kinston, N. C., Feb. 9, 1925.

"The Music Department of the Community Club of Kinston wishes to invite the members of the Greenville Woman's Club to attend a recital to be given by Mrs. Ben Parham (nee Miss Kate Johnson) on Tuesday night, Feb. 17th, at 8 o'clock in the Auditorium of the Harvey School Building. Admission is free and we want all of the members of the Club to attend."

Mrs. Parham was soloist at the First Presbyterian church in Greensboro for several years—she has a delightful voice and has studied abroad and in New York. Perhaps its would interest you to know that she is a daughter of Mr. Archie Johnson, Editor of the paper, "Charity and Children."

BRITISH MUSEUM REPORTS
MULTITUDE OF VISITORS

London, Jan. —The interest in antiquities aroused by the Tutankhamen discoveries in Egypt, and the great influx of visitors in to London during the British Empire Exhibition at Wembley have had the effect of making the year just past a banner one for the British Museum.

It is expected that the total attendance will be considerably greater than last year, when 1,905,353 persons visited the museum, a greater number than any year since 1851, when the Great Exhibition was held.

THE A. & P. STORES
The needs of life are many;
The wants are many more.
The needs are quickly met
By the Atlantic & Pacific Stores.

They are scattered all-over this country.
Ten thousand painted red:
A million months depend on them
For their food and daily bread.

Their goods are always clean and fresh
Put up in bulk or can;
The price of each is plainly marked.
The same to woman or man.

This chain of stores has proven a boon.
When the pocket-book was low.
For you always get your basket full.
When to the A. & P. you go.

There are the clerks with aprons white,
Who always takes your money;
And thank you; thank you; each one says,
Just as sweet, as sweet, as honey.

Markets

(By William J. Cobb)

STOCK SUMMARY.

Negotiations for $35,000,000 loan to Poland to consist of 25 year 8 per cent nearing completion; offerings at substantially below par expected. Estate of late Julius Fleischmann estimated at $60,000,000.

On application of receivers Federal Court orders, interested parties to show cause why Virginia-Carolina Chemical should not sell entire capital of Southern cotton oil for $3,875,000.

Inland steel will build new blast furnace giving it total of four.

WEATHER.

Temperatures much cooler over the belt, no rainfall reported anywhere, except light rainfall along North Carolina coast no rain west belt.

Forecast Wednesday east belt partly cloudy and colder; central belt generally fair and much colder west belt generally fair and rising temperatures.

Tribune—Grain trade was more bearish last night than it has been in months. It was especially so on the coarse grains which seem to have few friends and longs are liquidating in wheat. In wheat the bears were more pronounced in expressing their opinions, while the bulls have faith that the market will right itself and prices eventually go higher than ever. The impression prevails among these men that the market was in shape for a good advance as there was heavy buying on the break to remove hedge against export sales. Houses with country connections were fair buyers of corn on the break and a few big local traders who have worked industriously for several weeks to advance prices unloaded.

Cotton—Past week abnormally warm temperatures over entire belt. Light to moderate rainfall scattered eastern and central. Very little rain fall in East Texas where much alarm.

2:15 p. m. wheat 3 1-4 a 3 3-4 lower Liverpool.

Compared with last year stock on shipboard at Galveston yesterday was 85,000 vs. 34,000; at New Orleans 53,000 against 29,000.

Weekly weather and crop Government report 9 a. m. today favorable as a whole. British Board of Trade for month of January due shortly, perhaps today, likely be bullish.

Cables, weather conditions, especially in Texas, spot advices and trade reports etc., have to be reckoned with.

Favor buying for the present, particularly on depressions.

Sentiment remains divided. Holiday New York tomorrow, Lincoln's Birthday.

GRAIN

Clement, Curtis: Bearish sentiment pervades the entire list.

Logan: It is a question of outside support can be relied upon at this time. We would be extremely conservative.

Bartlett: Buying power is decidedly unsettled and liquidation does not seem over.

Seaverns and Co.: We believe further liquidation will carry the prices down.

Hulburd Warren: The situation in all grain is very weak and lower prices are indicated.

Stocks, Post and Flegg: The market is marking time.

Clark and Childs: In numerous cases of high priced shares it is becoming more difficult to buy.

Liverpool wheat 3 to 3 1-2 lower; corn 1 1-2 lower; B'Alres close yesterday lower; corn closed 2 1-4 to 3-4 lower.

BETHEL NEWS

Take a Journey.

Do you ever have the travel-bug? What I mean is an urge to get out and see things. A longing to go away beyond our civilized, or what we think of as civilized, portion of the world into some unknown country, there to see varied and strange people and objects. Who is it who has not longed to get a glimpse of the Pyramids of Egypt, the hanging gardens of Babylon, the Great Wall of China, the South Sea Island, who is it that has not longed for a swim at Waikiki Beach? I have and so have you. But it isn't the best policy to leave your school work to see it and later you can't. In fact you are doing yourself a grave injustice not to finish your H. S. education and then college.

But you can see these places. In your mind's eye you can. All well equipped schools have numerous books on travel and places. They are at your disposal. It is up to you to use them to your advantage. You want to go to China. You want to see the Great Wall, very well, go to the library and get your book on China go off by yourself and forget you are not in the land of make-believe. You can then read and see almost as plainly as at night called his friend Mike and you read the Great Wall. Thereafter, following is the conversation isn't so much difference. Take the word of one who has tried both ways the real and the make-believe mode of travel. And the make-believe may be the best. When you once get the travel-bug in your veins you must keep going, anywhere, everywhere and then nowhere, when you read it, you see it and then you forget it and that's the best way. But don't forget to read it.

Senior News.

The Senior class is very glad to be 100 per cent present again this Monday morning. There were quite a number of absences last week.

Annie Dare—Doris, I saw something last night, that I never expect to get over.

Doris—What was it?

Annie Dare—The moon.

Mrs. A.—(Speaking to her husband) Dear, I saw in the paper last night where Jack Dempsey was going to get married and retire from fighting.

Mrs. A.—Why my dear he has only begun to fight.

Visitor—Mr. and Mrs. B. seem to be very devoted to each other, I see they always hold each other's hand. Old resident—I'll tell you Mister, its this way. If they ever turned loose they would begin to fight.

HOLLAND'S RIVER SHIPPING TRAFFIC GREATLY EXCEEDS PRE-WAR RECORD

Rotterdam.—The ten-thousandth vessel to enter this port last year was welcomed by the local authorities, with much rejoicing as it came up the river, Dec. 30. It was the steamer Jonge Anthony with a cargo of pice goods from Italy and wine and fruit from Spain.

Year-end statistics show that Holland's inland river shipping traffic, the most important of which is the Rhine traffic, has grown to more three times the size of the preceding year, and even exceeds the record year of 1913 by over 2,000,000 tons. The transit of German reparations coal was an important factor in this increase.

Ocean-going shipping, on the other hand, did not show a corresponding growth.
