MOB MEMBERS DRAW PRISON TERMS

H. D. GRIFFIN ALLEGED LEADER OF MOB DRAWS SENTENCE OF 30 YEARS

Judge Directs Verdict of "Not Guilty" As to the Charge Against Joseph Needleman, Victim of the Attack; Sentences of Mob Members Range From 1 to 30 Years With Fines

Williamston, May 13.—Sentenced to hard labor in the state prison, ranging from 30 years down to two years, were imposed in Martin County Superior Court here today upon the five principal defendants convicted of the mutilation of Joseph Needleman on the night of March 28, after removing him from the Martin county jail. Henry D. Griffin, the alleged leader of the mob, drew a sentence of 30 years, while the lightest sentence, two years, was given to Clara Heath, for whom the jury recommended mercy.

Sentences were imposed upon the defendants after F. W. Sparrow, Jr., who had not been tried along with the other four, submitted to the charge of mutilation. Sentences imposed were as follows: Henry D. Griffin, 30 years; F. W. Sparrow, Jr., 20 years; John G. Gurkin, 18 months to 3 years; Alfred P. Griffin, 1 to 2 years; Roy Gray, 1 to 2 years; Alfred Gurkin, 1 to 2 years, and fined $500 to help defray expenses of the trial. Prayer for judgment was continued for the following on condition that each pay $500 fine toward the expense of the special term of court; Lester Edmundson, Tom Harrell, Lee Croom, John G. Corey, Jim H. Coltrain, Clarence Gurkin, Allen Griffin, Allen William Griffin, and Hubert Griffin.

Ben Lilly and John A. Griffin were placed under a $200 bond to appear before the Superior Court each term for two years and were taxed with the cost of the trial. Prayer for judgment was continued as to Tom Lilly suffering from a self-inflicted gun shot wound, and John T. Smithwick, ill with pneumonia.

The following were granted immunity by the court for their aid to the state in presenting its case: Edgar Johnson, Louis Johnson, Jas. H. Gray, Grady Smith, and Sherwood Roberson.

Following the sentences of the defendants in the case, Joseph Needleman entered a plea of not guilty on a charge of attacking a young white girl. Judge Sinclair then directed a verdict with the consent of the state of "not guilty," thus ending the case against the young tobacco salesman. The judge ordered the special term of court adjourned immediately after passing sentences on the members of the mob.

Judge N. A. Sinclair sentenced the defendants after Joseph Needleman pleaded "not guilty" to a charge of attacking a young girl, and the court had directed a consent verdict of "not guilty."

"I think we have witnessed a demonstration of the fact that we can trust our courts in North Carolina," declared Judge Sinclair from the bench, just before he passed sentences on the mob members.

"I am surprised when I hear people say our courts have failed to function. That is a lie, and a slander on society."

"There is no such thing as the unwritten law. The unwritten law is but an excuse for cowards. Just because a woman is wronged is no reason why we should revert to barbarism."

During the final chapter of the trial, which began ten days ago, there was intense stillness throughout the court room. There were no audible outburst of grief when the sentences of the court were imposed, but a number of women relatives clung to the defendants weeping.

When the judge came down from the bench after closing the special term of court, the wife of one defendant pleaded cheerfully for her husband. The judge shook his head and told her that a great crime had been committed and that the law must be upheld.

LORD MILNER DIES FROM SLEEPING SICKNESS TODAY

Was Former Secretary War of Great Britain and Had Been Ill for Some Time

London, May 13.—Lord Milner, former Secretary of War, who has been ill some time, died here today. Lord Milner had been suffering from sleeping sickness.

Lord Milner's death is the first fatality in the epidemic of sleeping sickness which has affected several hundred persons throughout Great Britain. Physicians have been unable to explain the sudden appearance of the disease. The cases have been mild, however, and the patients usually have recovered rapidly, most of the time being indisposed only about ten days.

Lord Milner was reported improved on Sunday, but yesterday he began to weaken.

Women's Federation Advertising Clubs Convene in Houston

Houston, Texas, May 13.—Women are making great success in certain fields of advertising as men, but most of them are not being paid in proportion to their ability because in many cases they lack confidence in themselves, asserted Carl Hunt, general manager of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, New York, before the Federation of Women's Advertising Clubs at the World Advertising Convention here today.

"No one who has observed the development of the advertising business would question the place of women in it, nor the place of the Women's Advertising Clubs," he said. "I say without fear of contradiction that the average Women's Advertising Club takes itself more seriously and does its work better than the average Advertising Club of men, and that a great many of our men's clubs could learn a lot from the women's clubs. And it has been our experience, too, that the admission of women to men's clubs has helped those clubs and has proved satisfactory to all concerned, apparently."

"But as a rule, a woman is not paid as well in the advertising business as a man who does precisely the same work, and who accomplishes no more. Various reasons and excuses are given in justification for this—by us men. One is that men have greater home responsibility—families to support—which is not always true, of course; and another is that a man is usually a better future prospect than a woman—and that is not always true, either."

"There are, no doubt, many reasons, as well as many excuses, for this condition, but one of the reasons, I believe, is that women are not properly sold on their own ability, in many instances."

"Now, the advertising woman does have a place in the business, and a position of growing importance it is, too. Just so long as women do most of the buying, and influence most of the rest of it, women will continue to have an important place in the business, because a woman understands the buying motives of other women better than a man. If she will study selling appeal as a man of equal mental attainments studies it, she can write better advertising copy than that man, I believe."

SMOKING CIGARETTES LEADS TWO BERLIN GIRLS TO JAIL

Berlin.—Longing for a smoke while walking recently through the pine woods of Tegeler, near this city, two young girls started a fire that consumed 20 acres of fine timber in two hours.

A lighted cigarette end, carelessly cast aside, ignited the dry pine needles. The girls tried to put out the fire, but could not, and then gave the alarm, but it was too late. They are now in jail, and will be sued for the loss of the forest.

HISTORY OF OIL LEASES AVAILABLE TO GRAND JURY

Says Erection Oil Storage Facilities and Paying for Them Out of Royalty Oil Essential for Defense

Washington, May 13.—The history of the Naval Oil Leases, as recited in documentary evidence, was made available today to the Federal Grand Jury, charging conspiracy in the cases resulting from the Senate's investigation. The Special Government counsel was to have Frank Charles Finney, Assistant Secretary of the Interior, continue his testimony begun yesterday, and to hear George Otis Smith, of the Geological Survey.

Rear Admiral Robinson, chief of the Bureau of Engineering, and who appeared in the Senate inquiries as a strong supporter of leases, was also heard before the Grand Jury today.

At the hearing Rear Admiral Robinson testified to his belief that the erection of oil storage facilities, and the paying for them out of Royalty Oil, was essential for the National Defense.

Odd Fellows Will Hold Convention in Greensboro

Raleigh, May 12.—A week hence the Grand Lodge Independent Order of Odd Fellows will assemble at Greensboro in its 82nd annual session and preparations are in the making for an interesting and profitable meeting. John D. Berry, the Grand Secretary, is advised that members of the Order in the "convention city" are bestirring themselves in perfecting plans for the gathering of their brethren on Tuesday, May 19th. The Grand Secretary is busy, too, getting ready for the event and the end of the week will find his office fully prepared to give an account for itself.

The Grand Lodge will assemble on Tuesday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock for a business session at which time reports of the committee on credentials will be submitted, the Grand Lodge Degree conferred, standing committees appointed, reports of grand officers received, petitions and resolutions presented and miscellaneous matters considered.

Tuesday evening at eight o'clock a public meeting will be held in the Grand Theatre. Hon. W. N. Everett, North Carolina's Secretary of State, is to be the principal speaker. Mr. Everett is a member of the Order of long standing, having filled all stations in his local lodge and served the State body as grand conductor. The welcome address on behalf of the city will be delivered by its mayor, Hon. C. A. Kizer; on behalf the Odd Fellows, by Frank C. Boyles. Response by Grand Master S. L. Whitmore. The exercises will be interspersed with appropriate selections by the Orphan Home Band soon to begin a tour of the State in the interest of that institution.

Elaborate plans for a big fraternal parade have been inaugurated, this to occur on Wednesday afternoon, May 20th. Three bands of the Three-Link Fraternity will participate in this "pageant" and floats representing various fraternal and civic organizations are expected to enliven the occasion. A special train is to be operated between Fayetteville and Greensboro to accommodate the many Odd Fellows who expect to journey to the "Gate City" for the purpose of inducing the Grand Lodge to select their "home town" as the meeting place for 1926.

Harlem Section Of Manhattan is Reported Quiet

New York, May 13.—The Harlem section of Manhattan, where thousands of negroes live, today had quieted down after the shooting of four negroes, two of whom were killed, last night. The excitement was caused by false rumors of race riots, and special police patrols were necessary to keep order. The trouble occurred when one negro addressed the wife of another in a manner which the husband thought offensive.

Programs for the sessions of 1925 will place special emphasis on social service, said Dr. Nollner.

PASSING OF BARBER RECALLS MANY CELEBRITIES HE SHAVED

San Francisco.—The recent death of Bernhard Bernhard, known to two generations of San Franciscans as the owner and manager of the Palace Hotel barber shop, recalls the many celebrities he shaved and looked after in other tolorial ways.

He was past 80, and for 50 years had missed scarcely a day at his shop. He trimmed the beards of Presidents Ulysses S. Grant and Benjamin Harrison and shaved Presidents William McKinley, Theodore Roosevelt, Woodrow Wilson and Warren G. Harding. Among other notables in every walk his list included Enrico Caruso and John L. Sullivan.

SAYS BLOCKADE OF RUM ROW IS ONLY MINOR ENGAGEMENT

Will Be Followed by A "Real Liquor Warfare;" Rum Smugglers Seeking Other Ports

New York, May 13.—Because of the blockade off rum row, liquor smugglers working along the Canadian border, are increasing their activities.

At Dunkirk, New York, newspapers tell of 350 cases of liquor landed and carried away by more than a dozen trucks. In Detroit, prohibition agents have raided a three story building, equipped for bottling liquors, where 300 gallons were confiscated.

Meanwhile rum row still displays some life. Yesterday a big French steamer dropped anchor and was promptly surrounded by four coast guard boats. The German steamer which left rum row Monday morning in the fog, reappeared today, and anchored near the French steamer. 50 cases of whiskey are reported landed at Seabright, New Jersey, yesterday. The New York American today published a story by Norman S. Hall, in which he asserts that he came in from rum row on a boat which landed 155 cases of whiskey within the harbor of Manhattan. He says he believes a great deal more whiskey was brought ashore at the same time.

Ten cutters, three former destroyers, and 24 picked boats are patrolling rum row. Aircraft are going to be used in the blockade. A seaplane with fuel capacity for four hours flying at high speed is being prepared to go to rum row.

The prepat blockade, according to Lincoln C. Andrews, assistant secretary of treasury, in charge of Prohibition Enforcement, "is only a minor engagement" and will be followed by a "real liquor warfare." He plans better co-operation between National and State tri-officers, and the elimination of politics from prohibition appointments.

Madrid, May 13.—A dispatch from Rabat French Morocco says the concentration of the well armed and disciplined Rifian forces are taking place near Chachauen, giving rise to the belief that Abd El Krim will attempt to pass the French Right and cut the line of communication with Fez. It is said that the French military experts do not believe this operation can be carried out successfully.

OPPORTUNITY

This month and next, hundreds of thousands of school children will put up their books and say goodbye to classrooms for three months or more. For weeks many have been planning camping trips, auto tours, vacations in the country, and every conceivable form of pleasure and amusement. These are the more fortunate and their thoughts move in pleasant train.

A large group will continue their studies in the summer sessions. Some are making up deficiencies, some are acquiring advanced standing. These deserve credit for their effort to get as much education as possible and their willingness to forego vacation pleasures to continue their studies.

There is another group to whom vacation brings a problem. Their first query at the closing of the season is "Where can I find work this summer so that I may go back to school next fall?" They are willing to do anything, and many of them are skilled along special lines. A vast majority are of superior intelligence as indicated by their zeal in overcoming obstacles in the path to their education. From this host of boys and girls, ranging from the graduate student in the university to the child that wants to go to high school and is barely old enough to be employed, will come forth this swarm of job seekers.

To the business men of our community this situation presents opportunity for real service. Take a brief inventory of your particular business and more than likely you will discover some job that you have put off for a long time. Perhaps you have intended having your files rechecked or you have some documents to be indexed that your stenographer seems unable to get time for. If you are a contractor, there may be some odd jobs to which you cannot detail your regular men. If you are one of the cogs in a large concern, perhaps you can speak to those in charge concerning extra help.

If you do not have openings in your particular line, try your friends. It may be that in performing this slight service for some deserving student you are having a part in moulding the life of another Washington, a Lincoln, or a Wilson.

SYNOPSIS

Melone, a young London newspaper reporter, rejected by the girl he loves because he has no great deeds to his credit, goes in search of adventure. An appeal to his editor, McArdle, for a dangerous assignment, results in his being sent to interview Professor Challenger, a scientist, who has recently returned from South America with an amazing story of adventure which no one believes. Angered, Challenger has since refused to talk. By a ruse Melone obtains an audience with him, but is unceremoniously ejected when Challenger discovers he is a reporter. But because Melone refuses to press a charge against him, Challenger is sufficiently mollified to order him into the house again.

"I am going to talk to you about South America," said he. "No comments if you please. First of all, I wish you to understand that nothing I tell you now is to be repeated in any public way unless you have my express permission. That permission will, in all human probability, never be given. Is that clear?"

"It is very hard," said L. "Surely a judicious account."

He replaced the notebook upon the table.

"That ends it," said he. "I wish you a very good morning."

"No, no!" I cried. "I submit to any conditions. So far as I can see, I have no choice."

"None in the world," said he.

"Well, then, I promise."

"Word of honor?"

"Word of honor."

He looked at me with doubt in his insolent eyes.

"After all, what do I know about your honor?" said he.

"Upon my word, sir," I cried, angrily, "you take very great liberties! I have never been so insulted in my life."

He seemed more interested than annoyed at my outbreak.

"Round-headed," he muttered. "Brachycephalic, gray-eyed, black-haired, with suggestion of the negro. Celtic, I presume?"

"I am an Irishman, sir."

"Irish Irish?"

"Yes, sir."

"That, of course, explains it. Let me see; you have given me your promise—that my confidence will be respected? That confidence, I may say, will be far from complete. But I am prepared to give you a few indications which will be of interest. In the first place, you are probably aware that two years ago I made a journey to South America—one which will be classical in the scientific history of the world? The object of my journey was to verify some conclusions of Wallace and of Bates, which could only be done by observing their reported facts under the same conditions in which they themselves had noted them. If my expedition had no other results it would still have been noted pressed them considerably with my personality, so that I was not surprised to find myself eagerly awaited upon my return. I gathered from their signs that someone had urgent need of my medical services, and I followed the chief to one of his huts. When I entered I found that the sufferer to whose aid I had been summoned had that instant expired. He was, to my surprise, no Indian, but a white man; indeed, I may say a very white man, for he was flaxen-haired and had some characteristics of an albino. He was clad in rags, was very emaciated, and bore every trace of prolonged hardship. So far as I could understand the account of the natives, he was a complete stranger to them, and had come upon their village through the woods alone and in the last stage of exhaustion.

"The man's knapsack lay beside the couch, and I examined the contents. His name was written upon a tab within it—Maple White, Lake Avenue, Detroit, Michigan. It is a name to which I am prepared always to lift my hat. It is not too much to say that it will rank level with my own when the final credit of this business comes to be apportioned.

"From the contents of the knapsack it was evident that this man had been an artist and poet in search of effects. There were scraps of verse. I do not profess to be a judge of such things, but they appeared to me to be singularly wanting in merit. There were also some rather commonplace pictures of river scenery, a paint-box, a box of colored chalks, some brushes, that curved bone which lies upon my inkstand, a volume of Baxter's 'Moths and Butterflies,' a cheap revolver, and a few cartridges. Of personal equipment he either had none or he had lost it in his journey. Such were the total effects of this strange American Bohemian.

"I was turning away from him when I observed that something projected from the front of his ragged jacket. It was this sketchbook, which was as dilapidated then as you see it now. Indeed, I can assure you that a first folio of Shakespeare could not be treated with greater reverence than this relic has been since it came into my possession. I hand it to you now, and I ask you to take it page by page and examine the contents."

He helped himself to a cigar and leaned back with a fiercely critical pair of eyes, taking note of the effect which this document would produce.

I had opened the volume with some expectation of a revelation, though of what nature I could not imagine. The first page was disappointing, however, as it contained nothing but the picture of a very fat man in a pea-jacket, with the legend, "Jimmy Colver on the Mailboat," written beneath it. There followed several pages which were filled with small worthy, but a curious incident occurred to me while there which opened up an entirely fresh line of inquiry.

"You are aware—or probably, in this half-educated age, you are not aware—that the country round some parts of the Amazon is still only partially explored, and that a great number of tributaries, some of them entirely uncharted, run into the main river. It was my business to visit this little-known back-country and to examine its fauna, which furnished me with the materials for several chapters for that great and monumental work upon zoology which will be my life's justification. I was returning, my work accomplished, when I had occasion to spend a night at a small Indian village at a point where a certain tributary—the name and position of which I withheld—opens into the main river. The natives were Cucama Indians, an amiable but degraded race, with mental powers hardly superior to the average Londoner. I had effected some cures among them upon my way up the river, and had in sketches of Indians and their ways. Then came a picture of a cheerful and corpulent ecclesiastic in a shovel hat, sitting opposite a very thin European, and the inscription: "Lunch with Fra Cristoforo at Rosario." Studies of women and babies accounted for several more pages, and then there was an unbroken series of animal drawings with such explanations as "Manatee upon Sandbank," "Turtles and Their Eggs," "Black Jaguar under a Miri Palm"—the matter disclosing some sort of pig-like animal; and finally came a double page of studies of long-snouted and very unpleasant saurians. I could make nothing of it, and said so to the Professor.

"Surely these are only crocodiles!"
"Alligators! Alligators! There is hardly such a thing as a true crocodile in South America. The distinction between them—"
"I meant that I could see nothing unusual—nothing to justify what you have said."
He smiled serenely.
"Try the next page," said he. (To be continued.)

THERE is no reason

Whatever why you shouldn't have plenty of hot water. A Lion Automatic Storage System doesn't cost as much as old-fashioned "wait-until-I-get-some-water" methods, and it provides 20 gallons of ever ready hot water, day or night.

Not a thing to be done but draw hot water, without going near this self-operating heater. The heating flame lights itself when the water cools or is used, burns for a few moments, and heats all the water in the rustproof storage tank up to the desired temperature.

The Lion Automatic Storage System costs little to run for two good reasons:

1. It saves gas by turning out the heating flame the instant all the water in the tank is hot.

2. The insulated tank keeps the water hot for 18 hours without lighting the heating flame.

Texas weather cloudy warm, raining Ft. Worth, Wichita and Paris.
Grain
It was said at the close that the main strength and advance in wheat at the last was due to covering by a local large trader who was one of the heaviest sellers on Monday. This made bears predict lower cables and a reaction. On the other hand, the strength in the cash markets, with the cleaning up of the bulk of the surplus stock at the east, with fair export sales, created a better feeling, as prices in the east have advanced so that wheat in the Northwest will move eastward instead of to Chicago.

Cotton Letter

New Orleans.—The cotton market was reactionary again yesterday and made new low records for October when it sold down to 21.57 while July dropped to within 23 points of its previous low when it touched 22.23. Expectation of a favorable weekly review today at 9 o'clock, belief that rains in the eastern belt has improved the crop outlook in that section and talk of big increase in Texas as well, other states, furnished the incentive for the selling.
Bullish sentiment is in ascendency

Cotton

It would seem wise to pursue the policy of buying on easiness rather than to anticipate a further precipitate downward run at the present time.

Further decline seems likely, but a fairly large speculative interest exists which anticipate lower prices and on any unsatisfactory crop news, buying by this interest would cause a very sharp rally.

Standard Textile Products Corporation net income after charges four months ended April 30 $295,276. Business now running at highest rate in company's history. Production up to May first amounted to 1,500,000 cases of goods and shipments 1,488,000 pieces.

Cotton Summary

New York.—Showers occurred in South Atlantic States yesterday and outlook is for further showers today and tomorrow in these states. Forecast entire Southwest including Texas generally fair today and tomorrow.
Day temperatures slightly warmer, night temperatures slightly cooler.

Light rainfall scattered Eastern Belt. Forecast today: Eastern Belt partly cloudy, unsettled; Central and Western Belts generally fair, slightly warmer.

Past week moderate rains Eastern Belt; heavy rains Central Belt and Arkansas, soaking rains Texas, Oklahoma, drought completely broken. In fact too much rain in some localities, slowing up planting Texas and Oklahoma. Dry weather now needed to complete planting, cool nights somewhat unfavorable, warm sunshiny weather now generally more needed.

Fall River reports practically no orders in print cloths yesterday and no interest by mills.

Journal of Commerce finds signs of stability in cotton goods and says merchants getting back to normalcy. Liverpool.—Fair demand for staple from spinners, Manchester merchants disturbed by break in cotton. Buyers cautious. London and Continental selling, stop losses uncovered.

Of 11 opinions 7 bullish, 3 bearish, 1 non-committal.

Government Weekly Weather Report

Washington, May 13.—Government weekly weather report says: While most of the week was too cool and dry for cotton in Central and Eastern portions of the belt with germination of late planted and growth of early planted slow, there was a reaction to warmer weather in the latter part, and generous rains partly relieved the droughty conditions except in the more Eastern and Southeastern districts. It was too cool and wet however in Northwestern part of belt.

In Texas stands of early cotton are very good and growth satisfactory with much seedling accomplished during the week although this work was in eastern and northeastern parts of the state. Planting has been nearly completed in Central Northern part of belt. Rain and warmer weather in latter part of week materially improved germinating conditions from Louisiana Eastward.
