WITNESS DECLARES CONGRESS TRYING STIFLE EDUCATION

Science Will Have Its Day on Question Teaching Evolution if Avowed Atheist Realize Object of Suit

Washington, July 23.—Science will have its day in court on the question of teaching evolution if Loren H. Wittner, an avowed atheist, realizes the object of his suit brought here by Federal Court against teaching in the District of Columbia.

In making clear that he was attacking from the "evolution side" a provision of the current district of Columbia appropriation bill barring payment of salaries to the public school officer who teaches, or permits the teaching of "disrespect for the Holy Bible." Wittner declared the purpose of his action "was to make possible teaching of all theory facts in the schools."

He and his attorneys believe the injunction proceedings brought yesterday against officers of the district and Federal Governments to prevent further payment of certain school salaries will open the way for a constitutional test of the question of teaching evolution in a manner that the proceedings in the Dayton Tennessee trial would not permit.

"Congress is trying to stifle education," said Wittner in discussing his suit. "The difference between the Scopes trial and the present case is this: In the Scopes trial the issue was whether the state legislature should prescribe the curriculum in the schools. Here Congress says that all curricula must be narrowed to a point or it will agree with the insane ideas of a people 2,000 years ago. Congress is simply glorifying ignorance."

Shipping Board Strikes Snag in Sale War Built Vessels

Washington, July 23.—The shipping board has struck a snag that may for the present sink its entire policy of disposing of its huge fleet of unserviceable war built vessels. The possibility that Henry Ford's bid of $1,706,000 for the 200 ships offered for scrapping may be thrown over on the ground that junking of the vessels would be contrary to the Merchant Marine Act, understood to have developed on the eve of a board meeting called for today to consider acceptance of the bid.

Chairman O'Connor would not discuss a message he is understood to have sent President Coolidge, asking for a ruling on the question by the Attorney General, and stated that any announcement on the matter would have to come from Swampscott. He said, however, that the board probably would not meet today as planned to consider acceptance of the bid.

The question is understood to have been raised by Commissioner Benson in the belief that the law as it now stands might be construed as prohibiting the sale of ships for purposes other than operation. The board as a whole, however, is represented as entirely satisfied with the ruling of its General Counsel that the sale of ships for junking is not contrary to the law.

Pending an opinion from the Attorney General, the board is expected to mark time as to the Ford bid as well as the entire policy of disposing of all unserviceable ships.

Russia Plans Black Sea Oil Port

Moscow.—Russia has decided to build at Touapse on the Black Sea, a special oil port in order to facilitate the loading of big ocean steamers with oil for export. The bulk of Russian oil export is now concentrated at Touapse. The long discussed project of building an oil tunnel from Grozny to Touapse has been approved by the State Planning Commission. It is expected work will begin this year, and the tunnel will be complete by 1928.

A THREE MASTED SCHOONER RAMMED BY OIL TANKER

Believed to Be One of Vessels in Rum Row; Search Reveals Nothing; The Luckenback Only Slightly Damaged

New York, July 23.—A three masted schooner believed to be one of the few remaining vessels in rum row, was rammed by the oil tanker Edward Luckenback, early today, but radio messages this morning indicated she was still afloat.

Earlier messages from the Luckenback said the schooner seemed to sink rapidly after the collision and that search of her revealed nothing. Later however, wireless telegraph picked up messages from a steamer said she was the Bossom, saying she was standing by the schooner, whose captain refused aid.

The collision occurred sixteen miles south of Ambrose light ship. The Luckenback reported only slight damage above the water line.

A report from the coast guard cutter Seneca, said that the schooner was identified as the Sally Wren and was towed by the Seneca to Staten Island. Captain Jacob said there was no reason to believe that the Sally Wren is a rum runner. She sailed from a South Carolina port on July 13.

HARD COAL MINERS SAY THEY WILL NOT ENGAGE IN STRIKE

Explodes Chance of Real Serious Danger When They Say Their Branch of Industry Not Be Counted in Strike

Atlantic City, N. J., July 23.—Much of the sting appeared today to be drawn from the general coal strike threat made to the Government on Tuesday by Van A. Bittner, Chief Union organizer of West Virginia. Hard coal miners themselves were said to have exploded the chance of any serious danger when they said yesterday that their branch of the industry was not to be counted in an any strike planned.

The miners said definitely they agreed with the operators in the understanding that hard coal and soft coal problems must be kept separate at least until a new Anthracite contract is negotiated to replace the one expiring August 31.

EPISCOPALIANS HOLD FIELD DAY GREEN WREATH PARK

Field Day Under Auspices of Woman's Auxiliary a Decided Success and Largely Attended

The Field Day held at Greenwreath Park yesterday under the auspices of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Episcopal Church in Pitt County, was a decided success, and largely attended. The Rev. J. W. Heyes of Farmville, acted as chairman. The Rev. Geo. F. Cameron of Ayden conducted the opening exercises. The program was carried out practically as arranged. The two solos were omitted on account of the absence of the singers, but their time was taken up with the added features of impromptu talks by Messrs. John G. Glenn, of Mexico, who spoke on the schools of that county, and Bruce Cotten, of Baltimore, who represented the family which has long been prominent in the councils of the church.

The addresses by Professor H. E. Austin, of the Teachers Training College by the Rev. C. O. Parbo, rector of Wilmington, by the Rev. Walter R. Noe, executive secretary of the Diocese, and by Mrs. Fannie Chase Staton, president of the Woman's Work of the Diocese, were of an exceptionally high order.

The Hon. Hallett Ward delivered an oration which ought to be broadcast over the whole land, and the Bishop, the Rt. Rev. Thomas C. Darst, D. D., was never in finer form. His inspirational address will not be forgotten easily by those who were privileged to hear it. The Rev. J. M. Taylor and his sister entertained the young people during the day.

The Rev. James E. W. Cook proposed a vote of sympathy with and a message of cheer to Colonel and Mrs. R. R. Cotten who were unable to be present. Dr. Whitfield, of Grifton, seconded, and the resolution was carried unanimously. The Bishop offered a tender and affectionate prayer for the recovery of these beloved friends. We ought not to fail of mentioning the wonderful basket lunch spread on the tables in the grove. It was such as only Pitt county women can provide.

Visitors and friends agreed with our Episcopal friends that the program was splendidly carried out, and the day one long to be remembered.

They motored through five or six counties over the wonderful system of hard surface roads that have been recently completed, and were very enthusiastic over the prospects, not only of the tobacco crop but cotton, corn and the numerous other crops that are raised in Eastern Carolina.

EQUIPMENT FOR PLAY GROUND NOW BEING ASSEMBLED

Greenville's Play Ground Located Near High School Will Be Ready for the Children in the Near Future

Greenville's play ground will soon be a reality. Equipment has arrived and work will begin immediately upon assembling of same. If work progresses as rapidly as expected the play ground will be ready in about three days.

The play ground is being sponsored by the Kiwanis Club with the assistance and co-operation of other civic organizations. The town had the site which is located between the High School and the residence of Mr. W. E. Hooker tiled, while the sand was furnished by the school authorities and the town. It is an ideal location and bids fair to be one of the most modern and best equipped play grounds in the state.

The equipment consists of swings, slides, ocean wave, giant slide; horizontal bars, barrel of fun, trapeze, rings, acting bars and a number of other things with which the little folks can amuse themselves.

The side fronting Fourth street has been left for a basket ball court. The equipment for the smaller children will be assembled on the west side while that for the larger children will be on the east side. The space between will be used for sand piles, running and playing.

A supervisor will be in charge of the play ground until the opening of the schools, at which time other arrangements will be made.

SCOTT'S LIFE HANGS ON SLENDER THREAD REMOTE POSSIBILITY

Possibility Depends on Hearing From Clemency With the Governor and Appearance of Brother

Chicago, July 23.—On the slender thread of remote possibility hangs the chance of Russell Scott to escape death awaiting him on the gallows at sunrise tomorrow morning. This possibility depends on a hearing from clemency which his attorneys insist they have arranged with Governor Small, and the last minute appearance of Robert, his brother indicted with him but never found.

Scott says Robert was the real slayer of Joseph Maurer, a drug clerk, in a hold up a year ago. A telegram signed with Robert's name and later established as a hoax, caused Governor Small to grant a week's reprieve six hours before the time set for Russell's execution last Friday.

"No eleventh hour circumstances will halt the execution this time" is the only public indication from the Governor in the case.

But Scott's attorneys are hopeful. They have a fund of $5,000 raised by a group of Detroit Club women to aid Scott and they say new evidence has been uncovered which they feel will induce the Governor to grant a further reprieve. They will ask for a 90 day stay of sentence to develop this new evidence.

His spirit sinking as the time draws near for his execution, Scott thinks only the return of his brother can save him. His wife and aged father have returned to visit him after making every effort to obtain the brother's return.

Chicago, July 23.—The wife made a plea last night over the radio to Robert to come back and called on any one who might know where he is to send him, and asked that all those who oppose capital punishment send their appeal to Governor Small in her husband's behalf. Appeals to the Governor and President Coolidge continued to pour in a steady stream. The President has referred them all to the Attorney General and declined to take action regarding the case as being beyond his jurisdiction.

COMMUNISTS OF VIENNA EMPLOY NEW METHOD OF DEMONSTRATION

Vienna.—A new method of demonstrating has been hit upon by the communist of Vienna. Effectually to stop all traffic of a street, several hundred unemployed communists and war invalids lay down on the rails of the street cars in the city's principal street. It took the police more than an hour to clear the tracks so that traffic could be resumed. Whenever 30 or 50 of the weary communists had been induced to get up and seek their repose elsewhere, the same number would stretch out on the rails farther on. The entire performance was a source of unalloyed pleasure for the humorously inclined Viennese.

DISTANT SEAS SEND VAST STOCK OF FISH TO FULTON MARKET

New York. — Governor Alfred E. Smith, son of New York's east side, once was asked if he had a college degree, according to a favorite story of the town. He replied gravely that he had and, when asked what it was, said: "F. E. M."

This he translated with a broad smile: "Fulton Fish Market." The governor had worked there as a fish packer in his youth.

Fulton Fish Market, now in its second century, continues as in youth. "Al" Smith's time to be the country's greatest crossroads from fishing smack to dinner table.

Located in the lee of Brooklyn Bridge, its annual business is estimated at $30,000,000. It handles from 350,000,000 to 400,000,000 pounds of seafood year in and year out, which it receives all the way from the Atlantic to the Pacific, Great Lakes to the Gulf, Bering Sea to the Grand Banks, the fishermen say.

The market sends this tremendous poundage forth again over a much shorter radius, however. So dense is the population in the eastern area which Fulton Market supplies that the bulk of the shipments scarcely gets more than 100 miles from East River before it has absorbed it is said.

When Fulton Market was opened in 1822 its 340 original stands were taken largely by butchers. But early dealers in saw and cleaver leases, together with growing business among the bustling fishermen and oystermen closed the city authorities that October to set aside the east, or Beckman street, wing "for use of sellers of fish."

Wholesale activity developed, and six years later the fish industry moved to a shed of its own across South Street, opposite the main market, on the water. Ice, then, was unknown commercially and fish were kept in floating "cars" which were suspended in the slip below, bobbing against the hulls of the smacks. Today, ice is used in thousands of tons. Save for the period from 1843 to 1860, the smacks, with different roofs, has housed the wholesalers to this day.

Much of the deep sea tang of Fulton Market is felt to be lost with the passing of the old time fishing boats. Craft like the old Gloucester smacks have largely disappeared. Power engineering with blasts of gas and smoke carried away the rigging that endured a hundred storms. Magneto and carburetor, throttle and firebox, have routed the old stoney heaves on job and sheet, topsail and staysail. Fleet still follow bluefish from Hatteras to Montauk, mackerel from Cape May to Nova Scotia, and haddock and cod off the Banks. But Fulton Market itself admits they are different fleets.

If the issue is authorized, it will run over a period of years to be determined later.

LOIS WILSON AND WARNER BAXTER IN THE PARAMOUNT PICTURE "WELCOME HOME" A JAMES CRUZE PRODUCTION

All the warmth of life and love, the joy of home and fireside, all the happiness and comfort of family and friends are contained in the greatest of greetings, "Welcome Home." Such words can be made to live, and James Cruze has given them life in a motion picture. For "Welcome Home" is the title of his latest production for Paramount, and to it he is said to have given a heart interest that will appeal to all.

Cosgrave's arrival is premature, causing Fred and Nettie to cancel a party date they had planned on for weeks, for they felt they couldn't leave the old man alone on his first night in the house.

The Fun Starts. On his arrival the old man immediately begins making himself at home. He trots about the house, prying first into one thing, then another. Extra blankets and a pillow are provided upon his demand, but he never uses them. They are simply a habit of years.

The next morning he stays in the bathtub for an hour, leisurely reading the morning paper, which gets so wet it can't be read again. Owing to business and club affairs the old man is given but little time by the young folks. Wandering in the park, he makes friends with some inmates of a nearby Home for old men. There is a forum of these old men in the park and Cosgrave becomes somewhat of a leader among them.

More Laughs. No sooner is the meeting called to order than Cosgrave begins to take part in the discussions, interrupting the speakers. Indignant, the women finally decide the transaction of business is hopeless, and leave in a huff.

As they go out, Fred comes in, and out of hearing of Cosgrave, his wife insists that one of them must leave—the old man or herself. It is a real family quarrel.

Great Finding. Torn between the pleas of his friends and his desire to be with them, and the duty he believes he owes to his son and daughter-in-law to live with and help them, Cosgrave makes a decision. Then he wavers, changes it, then through chance changes his mind once again. How he finally determines on the right course to pursue, to the happiness of himself and those he loves is the heart-tugging ending of "Welcome Home," which will be shown at White's Theatre today to remain for only one day.

Discusses Expansion of the Carolina Potato Exchange

Elizabeth City, July 22.—Expansion of the Carolina Potato Exchange to include farmers of Pasquotank and Camden counties, in addition to its present membership, which confines it to Currituck county, was discussed at a meeting of farmers representing the counties affected.

The Carolina Potato Exchange was organized ten years ago for the purpose of enabling Currituck potato growers to purchase their seed, fertilizer and other supplies in sufficient bulk to enable them to market their potatoes on a larger scale. Committees have been appointed looking toward the expansion of the exchange.

FRENCH AFRICAN SOLOINISTS ADD COLOR TO ART SHOW

Paris.—The interest taken by France's colonial subjects in the decorative arts' exposition adds to the picturesque aspect of the crowds daily along the Esplanade des Invalides and in Grand Palais.

Swarthy Moroccan chieftains, Algerians, Tunisians, Senegalese, all in native costume, promenade in and out among the booths and pavilions, pausing to inspect with gravity and awe the various displays. Some have come in connection with the exhibits of the French colonies and porticoes, but the exposition authorities maintain that a far greater number are in the real tourists class, paying their own expenses and following their own programs.

Germany Holds Sugar Exhibit. Magdeburg, Germany.—So steady-

ly has the sugar industry grown in Germany that the nation has been in a position to export rather than import the product for 50 years. The year 1905-06 was the record year, during which more than one million tons of best sugar were exported. An exhibition, depicting the progress of the industry, was recently held in Magdeburg. While sugar was one of the best export articles before the war, the exports have fallen off considerably since that time.

BIOGRAPHY OF LINCOLN IN GERMAN FAVORABLY RECEIVED IN BERLIN

Berlin.—One of the latest publications on the German book market is a biography of Abraham Lincoln in German. Hitherto only the German translation of the Carl Schurz sketch of Abraham Lincoln life existed. The author of the German work is County Albrecht Montgelas.

The book has met with a favorable reception by the press. Reviewing it the Vossische Zeitung: "Despite the obvious thoroughness of Count Montgelas' investigations and research work among the mass of existing Lincoln biographies, his book reads like an interesting short story." Another paper states: "Even among educated Germans, there are not many who fully realize Lincoln's historical importance."

How this One-Profit Coach

is built by Studebaker on the sturdy STANDARD SIX CHASSIS

SUPERFICIALLY other coaches may resemble this Studebaker Standard Six, but the resemblance will not stand analysis. Only two cars are made on a one-profit basis—Ford in the lowest price field and Studebaker in the fine car field. Only in these two cases are all bodies, engines, clutches, gear-sets, springs, differentials, steering gear and axles designed, engineered and manufactured by one company. Contrast this with the average car, where the extra profits of many outside parts and body makers must be included in the purchase price.

These profits are part of the production cost of the car—the same as the steel and wood of the body. They do not buy materials nor workmanship—they do not make any car one whit better. Studebaker has achieved one-profit manufacture through years of far-sighted management and through sacrifice on the part of stockholders. Earnings which might have been distributed have been retained in the business to build one of the largest gray iron foundries in the world, to erect stamping mills, forges, etc., to purchase the finest labor-saving machinery, to construct enormous body-building plants.

As a result, resources totaling one hundred million dollars are concentrated upon the production of one-profit automobiles such as this Standard Six Coach.

What does it mean to you? To you, as an automobile buyer, this means:
1. A Lower Price.
2. A Better Car.
A LOWER PRICE, because Studebaker does not need to pile its profit upon the profits of outside parts manufacturers and body builders.
A BETTER CAR, because it is a thoroughly coordinated, harmonious unit. Every part designed, engineered and manufactured under one management, to work more efficiently with every other part. A better car because Studebaker can afford to use finer upholstery, better steel, higher grades of lumber, more painstaking workmanship in hundreds of unseen places. Scores of thousands of miles of excess transportation are built into every Studebaker. When the car which looked like an equal value while it was new, is breaking up, the Studebaker is breaking in.

That is why in Arizona—out where desert heat and rugged mountain trails test automobiles to the utmost—Studebaker sells double its normal proportion of cars. Every county in Arizona which has bought an automobile for its sheriff has bought a Studebaker.

This coach is not a one year car. As a splendid example of the facts stated above, we offer the Standard Six Coach. To appreciate this car you must see it and ride in it. We urge you to do so immediately. It is called a coach, but is in reality a roomy five-passenger coupe. It is a car that will give you faithful economical service. It is built to yield dependable, comfortable transportation for years and years.

Buy now—no more "yearly models" This is the time of the year when men have hesitated to purchase an automobile, fearing that the car they bought in July would be made obsolete artificially by the announcement of new yearly models in August or September. Shipman on Tour Western Districts

Raleigh, July 22.—M. L. Shipman, grand treasurer for the North Carolina Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows, has gone, with Grand Master David Gaster, of Fayetteville, on a tour of western districts with a view to "touching elbows" with officers and members of the order in that section of the State. A similar itinerary is being planned for the eastern section later in the year.

The grand master, accompanied by Grand Secretary John D. Berry, began his tour at High Point, July 10 and has addressed meetings at Concord, Statesville, Pinnacle, Jefferson, Spruce Pine and Morganton. Mr. Shipman joined him at Morganton and expected to accompany him through the counties west of the Blue Ridge mountains.

Gives Facts Concerning Pasteur Treatment in the Past Few Years

Raleigh, July 22.—Raleigh's present "mad dog" scare resulting from the death of 9-year-old W. H. Wynne, Jr., following a brief illness with rabies, has caused many inquiries to be made at the State Laboratory of Hygiene, where dogs' heads are examined and from which the Pasteur treatment is sent into all parts of the State. A dog census is in progress here, as another result. Muzzles are in demand. The people are mildly alarmed, the police state.

However, Dr. C. A. Shore, of the State Laboratory of Hygiene, today stated that the Pasteur treatment was "probably the most absolute" of any immunizing inoculation. He stated that it was "certainly as absolute."

In this connection, it was brought out that during the period beginning with 1921 and ending with the first six months of 1925, the State

Laboratory had administered 4,873 treatments. Dr. F. M. Register, of the State Department of Health, in charge of vital statistics, announced that from 1921 to 1924, inclusive, there were only twelve deaths from rabies throughout the State. He stated that these, in all probability, could have been prevented, had the Pasteur treatment been administered to the victims in time. In this connection, he said he would impress on the people of the State the advisability of "taking no chances."

He said that the Pasteur treatment, which is made and distributed by the State Laboratory of Hygiene, should be taken upon the slightest suspicion of a person's having been exposed to a rabid dog. Dr. Shore reported treatments administered since the beginning of 1921, as follows:

1922	868
1923	1,108
1924	1,288
1925 (6 mos.)	935
Total	4,873

The official State record on deaths from rabies follows:

1920	1
1921	1
1922	2
1923	5
1924	3
Total	12

These figures take in the entire State. The figures for the first half of 1925 were not yet available. The peak was reached in 1923, with five deaths.

Noted Golfer Barred as Amateur

London.—Because he acted as a professional to a club in America for a few months in 1903, Fred Mackenzie of St. Andrews has been refused reinstatement as an amateur by the Royal and Ancient Club, says the Golf Monthly.

For the past 20 years Mackenzie has played in the local club competitions at St. Andrews as a amateur but on account of his one lapse into professionalism, he cannot take part in open competitive golf except as a professional.

I had not gone a hundred yards before I deeply repented my rashness. I may have said somewhere in this chronicle that I am too imaginative to be a really courageous man, but that I have an overpowering fear of seeming afraid. This was the power which now carried me onwards. I simply could not allow back with nothing done. Even if my comrades should not have missed me, and should never know of my weakness, there would still remain some intolerable self-shame in my own soul. And yet I shuddered at the position in which I found myself, and would have given all I possessed at that moment to have been honorably free of the whole business.

It was dreadful in the forest. The trees grew so thickly and their foliage spread so widely that I could see nothing of the moonlight save that here and there the high branches had a tangled filigree against the starry sky. As the eyes became more used to the obscurity one learned that there were different degrees of darkness among the trees—that some were dimly visible, while between and among them there were coal-black shadowed patches, like the mouths of caves, from which I shrank in horror as I passed. I thought of the despairing yell of the tortured iguanodon—that dreadful cry which had echoed through the woods. I thought, too, of the glimpse I had in the light of Lord John's torch of that bloated, warty, blood-slaverer mangle. Even now I was on its hunting-ground. At any instant it might spring upon me from the shadows—this nameless and horrible monster. I stopped, and, picking a cartridge from my pocket, I opened the breech of my gun. As I touched the lever my heart leaped within me. It was the shot-gun, not the rifle, which I had taken!

Again the impulse to return swept over me. Here, surely, was a most excellent reason for my failure—one for which no one would think the less of me. But again the foolish pride fought against that very word. I could not—must not—fail. After all, my rifle would probably have been as useless as a shot-gun against such dangers as I might meet. If I were to go back to camp to change my weapon I could hardly expect to enter and leave again without being ing seen. In that case there would be explanations, and my attempt would no longer be all my own. After a little hesitation, then, I screwed up my courage and continued upon my way, my useless gun under my arm.

The darkness of the forest had been alarming, but even worse was the white, still flood of moonlight in the open glade of the iguanodons. Hidden among the bushes, I looked out at it. None of the great brutes were in sight. Perhaps the tragedy which had befallen one of them had driven them from their feeding-ground. In the misty, silvery night I could see no sign of any living thing. Taking courage, therefore, I slipped rapidly across it, and among the jungle on the farther side I picked up once again the brook which was my guide. It was a cheery companion, gurgling and chuckling as it ran, like the dear old trout-stream in the West Country where I have fished at night in my boyhood. So long as I followed it down I must come to the lake, and so long as I followed it back I must come to the camp. Often I had to lose sight of it on account of the tangled brushwood, but I was always within earshot of its tinkle and splash.

As one descended the slope the woods became thinner, and bushes, with occasional high trees, took the place of the forest. I could make good progress, therefore, and I could see without being seen.

I passed close to a pterodactyl swamp, and as I did so, with a dry, crisp, leathery rattle of wings, one of these great creatures—it was twenty feet at least from tip to tip—rose up from somewhere near me and soared into the air. As it passed across the face of the moon the light shone clearly through the membranous wings, and it looked like a flying skeleton against the white, tropical radiance. I crouched low among the bushes, for I knew from past experience that with a single cry the creature could bring a hundred of its loathsome mates about my ears. It was not until it had settled again that I dared to steal onwards upon my journey.

The night had been exceedingly still, but as I advanced I became conscious of a low, rumbling sound, a continuous murmur, somewhere in front of me. This grew louder as I proceeded, until at last it was clearly quite close to me. When I stood still the sound was constant, so that it seemed to come from some stationary cause. It was like a boiling kettle or the bubbling of some great pot. Soon I came upon the source of it, for in the center of a small clearing I found a lake—or a pool, rather, for it was not larger than the basin of the Trafalgar Square fountain—of some black, pitch-like stuff, the surface of which rose and fell in great blisters of bursting gas. The air above it was shimmering with heat, and the ground round was so hot that I could hardly bear to lay my hand on it. It was clear that the great volcanic outburst which had raised this strange plateau so many years ago had not yet entirely spent its forces. Blackened rocks and mounds of lava I had already seen everywhere peeping out from amid the luxuriant vegetation which draped them, but this asphalt pool in the jungle was the first sign that we had of actual existing activity on the slopes of the ancient crater. I had no time to examine it further, for I had had to hurry if I were to be back in camp in the morning.

It was a fearsome walk, and one which will be with me as long as memory holds. In the great moonlight clearings I slunk along among the shadows on the margin. In the jungle I crept forward, stopping with a beating heart whenever I heard, as I often did, the crash of breaking branches as some wild beast went past. Now and then great shadows loomed up for an instant and were gone—great, silent shadows which seemed to crawl upon padded feet. How often I stopped with the intention of returning, and yet every time my pride conquered my fear, and sent me on again until my object should be attained.

At last (my watch showed that it was one in the morning) I saw the gleam of water amid the openings of the jungle, and ten minutes later I was among the reeds upon the borders of the central lake. I was exceedingly dry, so I lay down and took a long draught of its waters, which were fresh and cold. There was a broad pathway with many tracks upon it at the spot which I had found, so that it was clearly one of the drinking-places of the animals. Close to the waters' edge there was a huge isolated block of lava. Up this I climbed, and, lying on the top, I had an excellent view in every direction.

The first thing which I saw filled me with amazement. When I described the view from the summit of the great tree, I said that on the farther cliff I could see a number of dark spots, which appeared to be the mouths of caves. Now, as I looked up at the same cliffs, I saw discs of light in every direction, ruddy, clearly-defined patches, like the port-holes of a liner in the darkness. For a moment I thought it was the lava-glow from some volcanic action; but this could not be so. Any volcanic action would surely be down in the hollow, and not high among the rocks. What, then, was the alternative? It was wonderful, and yet it must surely be. These ruddy spots must be the reflection of fires in the caves fires—which could only be lit by the hand of man. There were human beings, then, upon the plateau. How gloriously my expedition was justified! Here was news indeed for us to bear back with us to London!

For a long time I lay and watched these red, quivering blotches of light. I suppose they were ten miles off from me, yet even at that distance one could observe how, from time to time, they twinkled or were obscured as someone passed before them. What would I not have given to be able to crawl up to them, to peep in, and to take back some word to my comrades as to the appearance and character of the race who lived in so strange a place! It was out of the question for the moment, and yet surely we could not leave the plateau until we had some definite knowledge upon that point.

LIGHT UP YOUR WAGONS

Another death in this county as the result of collision between an automobile and an unlighted animal drawn vehicle has been reported which brings forth again this grave menace to night travel. Despite the legislature's failure to pass a law requiring all vehicles to carry lights such a need is being impressed more and more upon the public of this section and it behooves everyone who drives animal drawn vehicles on the highways to display lights on them for their own protection. So long as unlighted vehicles are allowed the use of the highways accidents from this cause will continue and as the crop movement begins within the next few weeks the danger will be multiplied several times as a result of the increased traffic.

No one wants to be in danger himself or does he want to be a menace to his fellowman so it is hoped that the fair-minded farmers will display lights on their animal drawn vehicles in justice to themselves and others regardless of whether or not it is required by law.

AMERICANS ALL!

That the public schools are truly the melting pot of this nation, wherein all races are being fused to produce a new and finer type of nationality was strikingly exemplified at the commencement of the Roosevelt High School of Los Angeles, California, in June, on which occasion the graduation address was delivered by Reynold E. Blight.

Among the ninety graduates, the following nationalities were represented: English, Austrian, Roumanian, Swedish, German, French, Greek, Italian, Armenian, Japanese, Norwegian, Hungarian, Syrian, Spanish and Russian.

The different religious affiliations represented were: Russian Orthodox, Jewish, Methodist, Christian Science, Baptist, Roman Catholic, Presbyterian and Unitarian.

The class speeches were described as vibrant with intelligent Americanism, and flaming with patriotic loyalty and enthusiasm. This class spoke for the new generation who love America with passionate devotion and may be depended upon to support staunchly American ideals and institutions.

Young people such as these are products of the American public schools. By the close association in the study room, social hall, and athletic field, they have learned tolerance, sympathy and a sturdy Americanism that transcend the narrow prejudices of race and religion. Herein lies the hope of the future, a hope and a challenge to which no private nor parochial school, by the very nature of things, can measure up to.

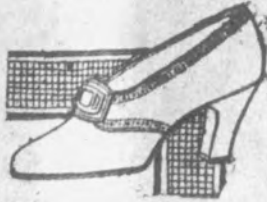

How long before this self-evident fact will be recognized by the American people? The way to destroy the antipathies and misunderstandings that now divide this nation into a hundred antagonistic sects, classes, nationalities, and schools of thought is so utterly obvious that it needs no elaborate definition or argument.

The solution of these social problems is found in the public schools, and such commencements as the one mentioned is proof of it.

CURB MARKET

It is very gratifying to the people of this city to know that arrangements have been completed for another curb market. Several months ago we had a curb market which proved most profitable to both urban and rural people. The market will open in the near future.

WHAT IF EDITORS TOLD THE TRUTH

Only a short time ago the editor of a paper in Indiana grew tired of being called a liar and announced that he would tell the truth in the future and his next issue contained the following items.

"John Benin, the laziest merchant in town, made a trip to Beaville on Monday."

"John Coyle, our groceryman, is doing poor business. His store is dirty and musty. How can he expect to do much?"

"Dave Conkey died at his home here Tuesday. The doctor gave it out as heart failure. Whiskey killed him."

"Married—Miss Silvia Rhodes and James Collins last Saturday at the Baptist parsonage by the Rev. Gordon. The bride is a very ordinary girl who doesn't know any more about cooking than a jack-rabbit and never helped her mother three days in her life. She is not a beauty by any means and has a gait like a duck. The groom is an up-to-date loafer. He has been living off the old folks at home all his life and is not worth shucks. It will be a hard life."—N. C. Cotton Grower.
