WILLIAM J. BRYAN RESTING ARLINGTON CEMETERY TODAY

No Definite Step Taken Toward a Memorial to Commemorate Services of the Dead Leader

Washington, Aug. 1.—A single wooden marker, set amid the withering clusters of blossoms that hid his grave, alone marked today the last resting place of William Jennings Bryan in Arlington National Cemetery. Just over the hill crest, beneath which he sleeps, stands the row on row of white stones above soldier dead, who lost their lives in France. Closer above are the more imposing monuments of the officers dead with whom he keeps his last encampment, and all about are the signs of the orderly reverent care with which the nation surrounds the last sleep of those it has called to its service.

One day a stone memorial will be erected to tell in graving lettering that the Commoner lies here on this peaceful slope.

It is too soon for the stricken widow, the brother, and the children of the dead to have made their plans for the permanent testimony of their love. The broken family circle still is in Washington today. They came back from the last solemn scene in the cemetery yesterday to spend a little while together before they must go their ways once more.

Mrs. Bryan has made no definite plans but the decision to return to her home in Miami when she has recovered a little from the long strain and has attended to some details of private matters in Washington.

After the last services at the grave yesterday, many of the old political and personal friends of the Commoner, who had come to Washington to be present at the funeral, left immediately. There was no definite step taken among them toward a memorial to commemorate the services of the dead leader, nor is it likely that the question will be opened until Mrs. Bryan has indicated her wishes.

ARIZONA AVIATION FIELD NAMED AFTER FLIER WHO LOST HIS LIFE

Williams, Ariz.—The name of a young army aviator who sacrificed his life to the cause of flying has been given to an aviation field here which, with the development of transcontinental man and commercial air lines, may become one of an important chain of landing places.

It is Webber field. Lieut. Charles L. Webber was killed Dec. 7, 1922, at the age of 26. He was piloting Colonel Francis C. Marshall of the aviation service from Rockwell field, San Diego, Cal., to Fort Huachuca, Ariz., and both officers lost their lives. It is believed that the plane crashed into a peak of the Santa Rita mountain range. For days all the air forces of the Southwest, together with infantry and cavalry troops, searched for the missing officers. After two weeks the destroyed plane was found.

GERMAN MERCHANT FLEET MAKES SATISFACTORY GAINS

Hamburg.—The growth of Germany's merchant fleet since the world war is reflected in the usually reliable Danish statistics on the proportionate merchant tonnage of various maritime countries to their population.

In the list Germany is near the bottom with 30 British register tons for each 1,000 inhabitants, but gets some consolation out of its low standing from the fact that what there is of German shipping is of first class order. Having lost so much of its shipping as a result of war settlements, Germany was obliged to make up these losses with new vessels, so that nearly 53 per cent. of the present merchant marine consists of ships less than five years old. The percentage of the country's merchant fleet was conspicuously shown in 1924 in the port of Hamburg, when the German flag was represented by only 37 per cent of the entire traffic of the harbor.

The Danish statistics on proportionate tonnage places Norway first with 832 tons to each 1,000 inhabitants; England second with 402 tons and Denmark third with 289 tons.

THREE MAD DOGS KILLED IN THIS CITY DURING YESTERDAY

Warren Whichard, Negro, Suffering From Bite of Dog With Hydrophobia; Police Warns Public

Chief of Police, Lester Jones and Officer Gus Stokes, on yesterday killed three dogs which were acting strangely, and which the officers believed had hydrophobia. One was killed while having a fit on the corner of Second and Pitt streets. Another was killed a short time after Warren Whichard, negro, had been bitten, and the third which had had free access to the town, throughout the day, was killed while acting in a manner which suggested that it was mad. The head of the dog that bit Whichard was sent to Raleigh for analysis.

The officers during this morning in an effort to avoid an epidemic of mad dogs, issued a warning to owners of dogs, advising them if they valued their pets to keep them in the yard. If the dogs are allowed to run on the streets, and if at any time they appear to be acting strangely the officers will act in any manner which they see fit to protect the people of the city.

One of the dogs which was killed and which the officers are quite certain had hydrophobia had free access to the city yesterday. It is probable that he came in contact with other dogs, and if so, unless the dogs are fastened up, it is impossible to ascertain the results.

It would be wise to have the dogs inoculated. This is considered an almost sure preventive against hydrophobia, and required only a little time to administer it.

EVACUATION OF RUHR COMPLETED

French Forces Withdraw From the Ruhr After Occupying Area for Two and Half Years

Paris, Aug. 1.—Official announcement was made this morning that France's evacuation of the Ruhr is completed, that not a single French soldier remained in the mining and industrial basin after midnight last night.

The entry of the French forces into the Ruhr took place January 11, 1923. It caused much ink to flow and entire pages of the newspapers were devoted to the report of operations designed to bring about payment by Germany of her reparations obligations. The evacuation, which has been going on for the past months however, has been totally ignored by the French Press and unnoticed by the general public.

IMMANUEL BAPTIST TO HOLD MEETING DURING OCTOBER

Dr. Zeno Wall, of Goldsboro, Will Conduct a Two Weeks' Revival Service in Immanuel Baptist Church

The brethren of the Immanuel Baptist Church consider themselves peculiarly fortunate in securing the services of Dr. Zeno Wall, pastor of First Baptist Church of Goldsboro, for a two weeks meeting sometime about the middle or last of October. Dr. Wall is pre-eminently fitted for pastoral evangelistic work, ranking along with Truett and Scarborough who are well known in all Southern Baptist Zion.

The Goldsboro minister, while an original North Carolinian came to the Goldsboro Church from Hattiesburg, Mississippi, where he served the Baptist College of Mississippi for many years, leading in the erection for them of a wonderful church plant, costing approximately two hundred thousand dollars.

Since coming to North Carolina he has conducted revival meetings in connection with A. & E. College, N. C., Coker College, S. C., Buies Creek Academy, N. C., besides several other meetings in some of our leading churches of the state. He has also been on the faculty of the state B. Y. P. U. Mountain Assembly, Mars Hill College, the Seaside Assembly, Morehead City and for the last two years he has served at Chowan Baptist Assembly. It is therefore easy to ascertain that in Dr. Wall there is to be found a rare combination of pulpit eloquence, soul humility and consecration, with an abundance of Divine Grace and the power of the Lord.

Anticipating the coming of the Goldsboro preacher, the pastor of the Immanuel Church is trying to give to all the services the evangelistic flavor. Members, visitors, strangers and all are cordially invited to every service.

The subject for Sunday morning August 2nd, will be: "What Will You Do With Jesus?"

REV. R. A. PHILLIPS TO HOLD SERVICES

Third of Series of Union Services to Be Held on the Court House Lawn Sunday Evening

The union Sunday night services being conducted at the "out door church" on the court house lawn, by the Greenville Ministerial Association are proving popular, being well attended. Two of these services have been held to date, Rev. H. H. Leach being the speaker on last Sunday night, and Rev. L. R. O'Brien on the preceding Sunday. Both brought very timely messages, which were received with favor.

On tomorrow evening the speaker will be Rev. R. A. Phillips, of Eighth Street Christian Church, who will bring a message on the subject: "Highways That Lead to God." The music will be in charge of Prof. Ross, and will greatly add to the interest of the service.

Arrangements have been made to care for a large congregation, and it is to be hoped that the people of the city will avail themselves of the opportunity given in these services to hear all the pastors of the city.

LAND WEALTH OF FARMERS —DANZIG SHOWN BY PILLARS

Neuteich.—The tax collector in the Free City of Danzig does not have much trouble determining how large are the farms in the district under his jurisdiction. Since time immemorial there has obtained the custom of indicating one's wealth in land by the number of pillars on his front porch. Every pillar stands for one "hut," or "hoof," an old German designation which is equivalent to 20 acres.

Certain very wealthy farmers substitute marble pillars for wood. There are several examples of this kind around Neuteich.

PREACHER SHOTS AND KILLS WIFE, COMMITTS SUICIDE

Double Shooting Takes Place in Home of Rev. George W. Holder; Ill Health Indicated As Cause of Tragedy

Richmond, Va., Aug. 1.—The Rev. George W. Holder shot and killed his wife and then killed himself at their home here about ten o'clock this morning.

The shooting took place in the dining room of their home and both are believed to have died almost instantly. Police have not definitely assigned a motive but declared their preliminary investigation indicated ill health was the cause of the tragedy.

The couple, who were married only recently, apparently were in the midst of their morning meal when the wife was shot down, and the minister then fired a bullet through his own heart.

Holder retired from active ministerial duty several years ago, and in recent months had been working in a furniture store. Mrs. Holder had been his housekeeper until she became his wife. The retired minister had been ill for about a week, but went to work yesterday. Both are thought to have been about 35 years of age.

TWO SUPPER CLUBS BATTERED DOWN WITH HAMMERS

Five Men Under Arrest and Value of Government Seized Liquor Increased to $1,000

New York, Aug. 1.—As a result of battering down with sledge hammers of two Broadway Supper Clubs by twelve prohibition agents, five men were under arrest today and the value of government seized liquor had increased $1,000.

In inaugurating steps against 200 clubs in an effort to make Broadway as dry as harbor, the agents last night smashed the door of one club when they failed to gain admittance by giving the counter sign. Then at another club, using crow bars, they prized iron shutters from a fire escape, after a pass word had proved an ineffective means of getting inside.

The raiders were gathered here recently by Federal Attorney Buckner from among agents who had been making raids along the Canadian Border. Paid lock proceedings have closed many clubs in the city. Bargain week for petty bootleggers ended yesterday in the court with 2,000 cases disposed of and a total of $81,729 in fines. The bargain week was designed to clear the congested federal court of minor liquor cases in order to make way for proceedings against those high up.

DEATH PENALTY TO BE ASKED FOR MAJ. WADE V. BOWMAN

Now Under Bond of $7,500 on Charge of Committing Capital Crime Against Little Girl

Hickory, N. C., Aug. 1.—Solicitor Robert L. Huffman will ask for the death penalty for Major Wade V. Bowman, Commander of the Artillery Unit of the North Carolina National Guard, who was released yesterday afternoon on bond of $7,500 to answer to the Superior court on a charge of committing a serious capital crime against a twelve year old girl. Solicitor Huffman was here during the trial and heard the evidence.

The Solicitor said last night that he would not get out a warrant for the statutory offense since Bowman was being held on bond and said, "I will ask the jury to return a verdict of guilty of the capital offense."

Raleigh, Aug. 1.—Adjutant General John Van B. Metts today stated that no action had been taken by National Guard Officers in the case of Major Wade V. Bowman, charged with having committed a capital crime in Hickory, N. C. General Metts said that he had not as yet received a report of the matter other than through newspaper reports and that his only action thus far had been to order Major General Bowman's Squadron of Cavalry to proceed to Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., for their annual encampment without him. Under military regulations, unless an officer resigns, no action may be taken against him unless he is indicted or convicted of the charge of the crime of which he is charged.

SERVES THIRTEEN YEARS, GRANTED PAROLE TODAY

James Britt Was Serving Thirty Year Sentence for Burning a Warehouse

Raleigh, Aug. 1.—After serving 13 years of a thirty year sentence imposed after being convicted of burning a warehouse, James Britt, of Lenoir county, described by Governor McLean as being in the homeless and without friends class, today was granted a conditional parole. Clemency resulted from no professional pleas in the prisoner's behalf. It was voluntary on the governor's part, he said, and followed an investigation made by Hoyle Sink, Commissioner of Pardons.

"Upon my instructions," said the governor in a formal statement, "the Commissioner of Pardons is making an investigation of certain prisoners, who are homeless and without friends. This is apparently a case. The Commissioner of Pardons, after making careful investigation, recommends clemency for the prisoner for the reason he has been an exemplary prisoner, that he was a mere boy when convicted, that prior to this trouble he had a good character, and that the others sentenced along with him were pardoned or paroled by a former governor."

MR. W. S. FLEMING DIED YESTERDAY

Funeral Services Conducted This Afternoon; Interment in the Family Burying Ground

Mr. W. S. Fleming, Sr., 70, died at his home on Cotanch street, yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock after an illness of several weeks. Funeral services were conducted from his late home this afternoon at 4 o'clock by Rev. Leland O'Brien with interment following in the family burying ground, on the farm of Miss Adelaide Fleming.

Mr. Fleming was a life long resident of Pitt county and was well known throughout every section of the county. For several years he was in the mercantile business in this city until failing health forced him to retire. A few years ago he affiliated himself with the Immanuel Baptist church and was one of its most loyal members. As long as health permitted he attended its services. Although ill, his death was a shock as it was thought that he was as well as usual on yesterday.

In early manhood he was married to Miss Fannie E. Mizzell, of Martin county, a daughter of the late Major and Mrs. A. J. Mizzell. She died a number of years ago.

The deceased is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Fannie Jones, of Salt Lake City, Utah; Miss Gladys Fleming, Oklahoma and one son, Mr. W. S. Fleming, Jr., of this city.

The pall bearers were as follows: Active—W. C. Clark, Marcellus Fleming, O. Q. Lassiter, Z. M. Whitehurst, Jr., L. R. Meadows, B. S. Warren, L. J. Smith, W. O. Bilbro. Honorary—E. B. Higgs, J. F. Brinkley, Sr., Z. P. Vandyrke, L. Fleming, D. W. Hardee, E. B. Allbrook, S. J. Everett, Sam Flake, T. R. Moore, John Henry House, Jack Harrington, Dr. E. P. Spence.

DEMAND OPERATORS MEET IN CONFERENCE ON NEXT TUESDAY

Lewis Wants Anthracite Mine Operators Meet With Him to Negotiate New Working Agreement

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 1.—Calling for an end to three weeks of "shadow boxing" and to "pleading a case before a jury of supernumeraries," John L. Lewis, President of the United Mine Workers demands that the principal Anthracite Mine operators meet him in conference Tuesday to negotiate a new working agreement. The virtual ultimatum was served by letter yesterday by Samuel D. Warriner, chairman of the Anthracite Operators Conference. Mr. Lewis demanded that Mr. Warriner and William J. Richards, President of the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron Corporation attend the conference because of the fact that the present operation committee, without exception, was composed of lesser executives with no power to act.

Mr. Lewis's statement was taken to mean that if the recognized operators leaders failed to appear Tuesday, the mine workers would break negotiations with a possibility of suspension of work September 1.

At Lancaster, Penn., Mr. Warriner commenting on the letter of Mr. Lewis, said the personnel of the operators committee would not be changed.

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 1.—Anthracite scale conference circles are speculating today whether there will be a continuation of any conferences after next Tuesday.

Resumption of the wage party was fixed last night for Tuesday by John L. Lewis, the miners' President. He appealed to Samuel D. Warriner and William J. Richards to appear as the acknowledged leaders of the Anthracite operators. Mr. Lewis told the two operators that unless they arrived to bolt up the present personnel of the scale committee the miners could not feel they had anyone of sufficient authority to deal with except for one member of the committee. Word of the Lewis invitation reached Mr. Warriner at his home in Pennsylvania, and he lost no time in authorizing representatives here to say for him that the Anthracite industry would stand pat on its present scale committee. The committee, he said, was charged with the unanimous mandate of the industry and represented the "purpose of the industry as a whole." Mr. Warriner's reply was taken here as meaning that he and Mr. Richards's will not accept Mr. Lewis's proposal. What Mr. Lewis will do with his miners at his back when he reaches the conference room Tuesday, if he finds neither of the two men there, is a matter of speculation.

THE MAD DOG EPIDEMIC

In view of the number of cases of hydrophobia among the dogs of this city it appears that the time has come for the authorities to take the matter in hand in order to protect citizens from the mad dog menace.

Inoculation is the only sure way to guard against dogs going mad and before they are bitten by some other dog is the time to give them this preventive treatment. An ordinance requiring the inoculation of every dog that is kept within the city limits will insure the community against the epidemic of mad dogs, will be a protection to every citizen against being bitten by a mad dog and will save dog owners the loss of their pets. The cost of the inoculation is very small and is naught in comparison to the danger that exists from the dog that has not been given the hydrophobia preventive.

FALKLAND NEWS

Dr. J. N. H. Summerell has returned to New Bern after spending a week here. He preached two splendid sermons at the morning and evening services on Sunday, with good congregations to hear and derive inspiration from them each time.

On Wednesday night Mrs. Mayo gave a delightful hay-ride and party at Greenwreath Park in honor of her guests.

LOOKING BACK AT THE END OF THE WAR

The report of a Reichstag committee upon the cause of Germany's defeat can only underscore confusions long since accepted. Germany lost her last hope of victory when Ludendorff's final stroke in July of 1918 carried him across the Marne but failed to give him Rheims. She lost her last hope of averting military defeat when the August operations showed 1,500,000 Americans in France, helping the Allies push toward the Vesle and preparing to wipe out the St. Mihiel salient.

It was the prime miscalculation of the German command, as the report points out, that it failed to realize how fast the United States might pour troops into France. It correctly predicted that the spring fighting would show fewer than 450,000 Americans there. Ludendorff loosed his thunderbolt at St. Quentin on March 21 and on April 1 there were only 320,000 Americans abroad. But the stream became a flood. On June 1 there were 722,000; on July 1 there were 996,000; On Aug. 1 there were 1,293,000, with more arriving at the rate of 10,000 a day.

Looking back, the Reichstag committee may well emphasize not only this "extraordinary increase" but the effect of American numbers and American energy on Allied morale. "Fresh, well nourished and with unbroken nerves," our troops put new heart into the battle-line. The consciousness of their presence encouraged the British and French in the forward thrust of Aug. 8, which Ludendorff later called the back day of the German Army. The Reichstag does not condemn the gamble of the high command in its March offensive. But if German leaders had realized that the next six months would bring one and three-quarter million Americans overseas, they would have seen that any gamble was hopeless.—N. Y. World.

Alice Terry and Dorothy Sebastian in the Henry King Production "Sackcloth and Scarlet." A Paramount Picture

APPEALING STORY OF TWO SISTERS

"Sackcloth and Scarlet," Henry King's first American-made picture in two years—an unusually human and appealing story of two sisters, adapted from the novel by George Gibbs, comes to White's Theatre Monday for a run of two days. Alice Terry is featured in the cast which includes, among other big names, Dorothy Sebastian, Orville Caldwell, Otto Matiesen, Kathleen Kirkham and John Miljan.

Three locations, the far West, New York and France, play prominent roles in the unfolding of his Paramount picture.

The story starts in a fashionable mountain resort in California with Polly Freeman (Dorothy Sebastian), a wealthy, wilful, spoiled 109-year-old New York girl, carrying on a dangerous flirtation with Stephen Edyards, played by Orville Caldwell, one of the guides, a handsome, manly young fellow, but unaware that the girl is only playing at love. Polly is happy until Edyards asks her to marry him, when she takes French leave and returns to New York, where she and her sister Joan (Miss Terry) maintain a beautiful home. They are orphans.

The director is claimed to have painted a beautiful and convincing picture of sacrifice—with Alice Terry giving all, even her good name, and Dorothy Sebastian taking all. Polly runs away to Paris and marries a dancer. Joan is ostracized and held guilty for the sins committed by Polly. Finally Joan goes to Washington, where she meets and falls in love with Edwards, who has worked hard, succeeded and been sent to Congress. He proposes and breaks down Joan's scruples regarding what she says is a barrier by saying his past life, too, is under a shadow and that their love is strong enough to overcome any past mistakes.

A few days before the wedding, Polly, who has discovered her husband, reappears. Jealous of her sister, despite the sacrifices the latter has made for her, she determines to claim the now successful Edwards. The many big dramatic situations in the earlier portions of the story reach a tense and unusual climax.

SHAW'S "SAINT JOAN" LEADS

BERLIN THEATRICAL SEASON

Berlin.—Max Reinhardt's theatres have concluded an unusually prolific season. The total number of premieres was 25. Shaw's "Saint Joan," with 147 nights had the greatest number of performances. Pirandello's "Six Persons in Search of an Author" was produced 79 times and "The Dead Aunt" of Curt Goetz attained a round 100 nights.

Newly staged and revised plays produced were: "Othello," "Caroline," "The Imaginary Patient," "Cabal and Love," "A Servant of Two Masters," "The Revisor," "Caesar and Cleopatra," "Michael Kramer," "Lust of Decency," "Pillars of Society" and "The Krampus."

CARRIER PIGEONS EMPLOYED

TO CARRY NEWS TO JAPAN

Tokyo.—While there are 19 daily newspapers in Tokyo, and hundreds of others throughout the empire, the gathering of news in Japan is somewhat more difficult than it is in America and other countries. The reason is that the telephone and telegraph services are exceedingly primitive and almost worthless for the rapid transmission of news.

The tardy wire service, however, is overcome to some extent by the use of carrier pigeons. Every news agency and large newspaper has its own specially trained birds which daily are sent by train to the various correspondents. The pigeons, when released with the thinnest of "cop" sheets attached to them, make rapid time back to the editorial rooms.

dog that showed symptoms of going mad. Said he, if people value their dogs they will keep them up, especially at a time like this, and besides human life is too precious to be jeopardized by a loose dog gone mad or even by one that has come in contact with a mad dog, no matter how valuable the owner may consider his dog. If the dog is valuable, all the more reason why the owner should obey the law and keep his confined. The life of the little child that died in Raleigh a few weeks ago from the bite of a mad dog was worth more than all of the dogs put together, so don't take chances. Furthermore, I don't blame you officers for not trying to catch a dog that you have reason to believe is infected, for I would not ask you to do what I would not do myself, and certainly I would not put my hands on the finest, most valuable dog in the world if I thought he was infected with hydrophobia, the law does not require this of you. However, I do not want you to kill unnecessarily any citizen's valuable dog, so be sure the symptoms are present, but once you are sure don't hesitate. In those cases in which you have no reason to believe the dog is mad, but cannot catch him, if you know the owner, come and get a warrant for him and also notify him to get the dog up at once, and if he does not do this get a second warrant for him. Continue this until you get results. No citizen has the right to jeopardize the lives of his neighbors and their children, or even annoy them, by his own carelessness or neglect, or by wilfully refusing to obey the law. One can never tell when any dog might go mad, so this running at large of dogs must be stopped at once. If not voluntarily by the owners, then by vigorously pursuing the methods I have just outlined. But remember above all else not to take chances on allowing an infected dog to escape, for to do so might cost some innocent child a horrible death.

A wide, open space lay before us—some hundreds of yards across—all green turf and low bracken growing to the very edge of the cliff. Round this clearing there was a semi-circle of trees with curious huts built of foliage piled one above the other among the branches. A rookery, with every nest a little house, would best convey the idea. The openings of these huts and the branches of the trees were thronged with a dense mob of ape-people, whom from their size I took to be the females and infants of the tribe. They formed the background of the picture, and were all looking out with eager interest at the same scene which fascinated and bewildered us.

In the open, and near the edge of the cliff, there had assembled a crowd of some hundred of these shaggy, red-haired creatures, many of them of immense size, and all of them horrible to look upon. There was a certain discipline among them, for none of them attempted to break the line which had been formed. In front there stood a small group of Indians—little, clean-limbed, red fellows, whose skins gleamed like polished bronze in the strong sunlight. A tall, thin white man was standing beside them, his head bowed, his arms folded, his whole attitude expressive of his horror and dejection. There was no mistaking the angular form of Professor Summerlee.

In front of and around this dejected group of prisoners were several ape-men, who watched them closely and made all escape impossible. Then, right out from all the others and close to the edge of the cliff, were two figures, so strange, and under other circumstances so ludicrous, that they absorbed my attention. The one was our comrade, Professor Challenger. The remains of his coat still hung in strips from his shoulders, but his shirt had been all torn out, and his great beard merged itself in the black tangle which covered his mighty chest. He had lost his hat, and his hair, which had grown long in our wanderings, was flying in wild disorder. A single day seemed to have changed him from the highest product of modern civilization to the most desperate savage of South America. Beside him stood his master, the king of the ape-men. In all things he was, as Lord John had said, the very image of our Professor, save that his coloring was red instead of black. The same short, broad figure, the same heavy shoulders, the same forward hang of the arms, the same bristling beard merging itself in the hairy chest. Only above the eyebrows, where the sloping forehead and low, curved skull of the ape-man were in sharp contrast to the broad brow and magnificent cranium of the European, could one see any marked difference. At every other point the king was an absurd parody of the Professor.

All this, which takes me so long to describe, impressed itself upon me in a few seconds. Then we had very different things to think of, for an active drama was in progress. Two of the ape-men had seized one of the Indians out of the group and dragged him forward to the edge of the cliff. The king raised his hand as a signal. They caught the man by his leg and arm, and swung him three times backwards and forwards with tremendous violence. Then, with a frightful heave they shot the poor wretch over the precipice. With such force did they throw him that he curved high in the air before beginning to drop. As he vanished from sight, the whole assembly, except the guards, rushed forward to the edge of the precipice, and there was one long pause of absolute silence, broken by a mad yell of delight. They sprang about, tossing their long, hairy arms in the air and howling with exultation. Then they fell back from the edge, formed themselves again into line, and waited for the next victim.

This time it was Summerlee. Two of his guards caught him by the wrists and pulled him brutally to the front. His thin figure and long limbs struggled and fluttered like a chicken being dragged from a coop. Challenger had turned to the king and waved his hands frantically before him. He was begging, pleading, imploring for his comrade's life. The ape-man pushed him roughly aside and shook his head. "It was the last conscious movement he was to make upon earth. Lord John's rifle cracked, and the king sank down, a tangled red sprawling thing, upon the ground."

"Shoot into the thick of them! Shoot! shoot!" cried my companion.

There are strange red depths in the soul of the most commonplace man. I am tender-hearted by nature, and have found my eyes moist many a time over the scream of a wounded hare. Yet the blood lust was on me now. I found myself on my feet emptying one magazine, then the other, clicking open the breech to reload, snapping it to again, while cheering and yelling with pure ferocity and joy of slaughter as I did so. With our four guns the two of us made a horrible havoc. Both the guards who held Summerlee were down, and he was staggering about like a drunken man in his amazement, unable to realize that he was a free man. The dense mob of ape-men ran about in bewilderment, marveling whence this storm of death was coming or what it might mean. They waved, gesticulated, screamed, and tripped up over those who had fallen. Then, with a sudden impulse, they all rushed in a howling crowd to the trees for shelter, leaving the ground behind them spotted with their stricken comrades. The prisoners were left for the moment standing alone in the middle of the clearing.

Challenger's quick brain had grasped the situation. He seized the bewildered Summerlee by the arm, and they both ran towards us. Two of their guards bounded after them and fell to two bullets from Lord John. We ran forward into the open to meet our friends.

With a frightful heave, they shot the poor wretch over the precipice.

and pressed a loaded rifle into the hands of each. But Summerlee was at the end of his strength. He could hardly totter. Already the ape-men were recovering from their panic. They were coming through the brushwood and threatening to cut us off. Challenger and I ran Summerlee along, one at each of his elbows, while Lord John covered our retreat, firing again and again as savage heads snarled at us out of the bushes. For a mile or more the chattering brutes were at our very heels. Then the pursuit slackened, for they learned our power and fled, no longer face that unerring rifle. When we had at last reached the camp, we looked back and found ourselves alone.

So it seemed to us; and yet we were mistaken. We had hardly closed the thornbush door of our zareba, clasped each other's hands, and thrown ourselves panting upon the ground beside our spring, when we heard a patter of feet and then a gentle, plaintive crying from outside our entrance. Lord Roston rushed forward, rifle in hand, and threw it open. There, prostrate upon their faces, lay the little red figures of the four surviving Indians, trembling with fear of us and yet imploring our protection. With an expressive sweep of his hands one of them pointed to the woods around them, and indicated that they were full of danger. Then, darting forward, he threw his arms round Lord John's legs, and rested his face upon them.

"By George!" cried our peer, pulling at his moustache in great perplexity. "I say—what the deuce are we to do with these people? Get up, little chaps, and take your faces off my boots."

Potato Bug Menace Feared.
Berlin.—Fear that the potato bug, which has settled in France, will overrun all Europe, is expressed by the Berlin daily Der Deutsche, with the possible diminishing of the German potato crop by one third "at a time when the increase of the crops has become a vital question." The newspaper proposes that all persons in the empire be enlisted in a war on the bug.

IT'S

—to have the plumbing of your home, inspected, throughout, at least once a year. Warm weather is the best time to have this done. A few minor repairs now, will prevent damage and greater expense later on.

Call us now and avoid the rush next Fall.
