PITT COMPARED

The following paper written by William Small, of the Belvoir High School won the blue ribbon at the! Pitt County Fair.

Pitr county can boast of the facts that it has more hard mirface roads! than any other county in the State, that Greenville is the third largest tobacco market in the world, and that its soil is surpassed by only one county in fertility. However, in the field of rural education our county cannot claim such honors. Here though we have many things of which we may be justly proud and rapid stride; are being made in the development of bet ter rural education in our county. In this era of educational development it is the duty of every citizen to know how his county compares educationally with its neighbors.

In order to understand exactly what is being done for the children in the rural districts of our county we must know the advantage that are being offered. Of the nine hundred ninety five (995) one-teacher schools in the state of North Carolina, Pitt county has twenty-one (21) of them, or a fraction more than two percent (2 per cent). We readily see that this is more than our share. The standard of instruction in these schools is very low. In Briar Swamp school, seven pupils attempted the reventh grade examination, seven failed. At Tucker school three pupils attempted the seventh grade examination, three failed. Both of these were one-teacher schools. In the teachers an average annual salary of eight teacher school at Fountain, one thousand one hundred eighty-four thirty-four (34) pupils attempted lars and eighty-four cents ($1,184.the seventh grade examination and 84), which was a larger annual salary of this number thirty-two (32) passed with some conditions,
