MR. R. H. WRIGHT GIVES SERIES TALKS EDUCATION WEEK

Last Lecture to Student Body
E. C. T. C., Shows Condition
N. C. Schools Respect Lack of Trained Teachers

On last Friday morning Mr. Robert H. Wright, president of East Carolina Teachers College, gave the last of a series of talks to the student body designed for Education week. The last lecture showed the condition of the North Carolina schools with respect to the lack of trained teachers. He pointed out that after all of our educational progress in North Carolina we still have 1720 white teachers in the state with less than a high school education teaching more than 60,000 children, in schools with barely a six month's term. He said that the state owes it to the childhood of North Carolina to see to it that there are enough trained teachers to put on in every school room in the state.

He further said, there has been a movement on foot now for about five years to get the state of North Carolina to build more two year normal schools that will train teachers for grade work, and we have not yet been able to persuade a single legislature that this is a necessary part of our scheme. Last year, according to a report made by the Greensboro Daily News, after sending out a questionnaire, there were 2,000 high school boys and girls, and most of them were girls, who applied for admission to college in North Carolina and who were refused, admittance because there was not room for them. We know that some of these applied to two or three places. There probably was a thousand of those who did not go to college who wanted to go. Let's divide that by 2, and suppose there were only five hundred. It would cost the state of North Carolina just about one million dollars to build a good two year normal school that would accommodate five hundred people. We needed it last year. There were five hundred last year who stayed at home and taught school, and are teaching school this year, working as clerks, or just staying at home waiting, who wanted to go and prepare themselves for life's work, and who could not go because old North Carolina had not done her part.

"We want to put a campaign on in this state through the teaching people and prospective teachers that will bring the truth home to the people so that the next legislature will start a building program for normal schools that will train teachers enough to meet the needs in North Carolina. It will take about five more such institutions. We could not spend five million dollars of public funds in any other way in this state that would give us a great return as five millions put into the building of normal schools."

"In 1923-24 the people, by special taxation and bond issues, spent enough money in public school house construction in North Carolina to build six five-thousand-dollar school rooms for every day in the year, including Sundays. The year preceding, the normal schools of North Carolina turned out 182 graduates and 141 of these went into the school rooms of the state. In other words, we trained one-half of a teacher a day, and we built six good school rooms a day. That is, we put up twelve school rooms for every teacher we trained. Now we must have school houses, but a school house will not educate the child. The school house, at best, is nothing but a work shop, a place for the teacher and the child to meet to produce the thing that we call education. We may spend millions, and we are doing that, in school house construction and in transportation, but that will not educate our children. We must train teachers if we want to educate the childhood of this state. It is the most important thing before the people of North Carolina today. Ample training of teachers for the public schools is the greatest public service the people of North Carolina could render to the childhood of this state."

OVERCOAT FOR WHICH PEAK NAMED BACK AFTER 28 YRS.
Wenatchee, Wash.—Washington State Forest Supervisor Sylvester has received the weather-worn remains of an overcoat which he left on the summit of Overcoat Peak in the Cascade Mountains 28 years ago. The garment was forwarded to him in an envelope.
Sylvester said he left the coat buttoned around a rock for use as a signal when he completed surveying in that region in 1897. The peak was named from the coat.

Greenville Highs Defeat Washington By Score of 7 to 6

The High School football squad finished their gridiron schedule of the season on yesterday with a victory of 7 to 6 over the Washington Highs, after sending out a questionnaire, there were 2,000 high school boys and girls, and most of them were girls, who applied for admission to college in North Carolina and who were refused, admittance because there was not room for them. We know that some of these applied to two or three places. There probably was a thousand of those who did not go to college who wanted to go. This ended the scoring as both teams presented impenetrable lines thereafter, and gains around ends were absolutely impossible, although Greenville did complete for short gains two forward passes out of five attempts. And just when it appeared that there was a possibility of the locals scoring again a fumble gave the ball to the visitors and the game ended in midfield.

BRITISH EMPIRE MOURNS PASSING DOWAGER QUEEN

Flags Flew at Half Mast and Many Buildings Draped in Black; Bell in St. Paul's Told Out Tale of Passing of Dowager Queen Alexandria

London, Nov. 21.—(AP)—The British empire is in mourning over the passing of the beloved Dowager Queen Alexandria. Flags flew at half mast in London today, and many buildings were draped in black.

Death came to the Danish Princess late yesterday afternoon in Sandringham Palace while her son, King George, and Queen Mary and various members of the Royal household stood with tear dimmed eyes at the bedside.

The Prince of Wales, always her favorite grand son, was delayed by a heavy fog as he traveled from London to Sandringham, and did not reach the Palace in time to bid his grand-mother farewell. Ministers in throughout the British Isle heard over their radio set that the widow of King Edward VII and the mother of the present monarch had gone to her last rest.

In London from eight to nine o'clock the big bell in St. Paul's tolled out sonorously the tale of the passing of the member of the Great Britain Royal family. It is only when a member of Royalty dies that the clang of the bell in St. Paul's awakens its sleeping belfry.

Numerous social functions arranged for last night were cancelled. The theatres did not receive the news in time to close their doors, but in them and in the motion picture houses which gave their programs, funeral marches were played.

Bowman was indicted last Tuesday on the capital charge.

The defendant was ordered taken into custody yesterday by Judge Thomas J. Shaw and it was intimated that application for bail would be made sometime today. Solicitor Huffman announced that a special term of court may be requested in January to clear the docket of outstanding cases.

Cannot Yet Determine Whether Trees Were Killed by Drought

Asheville, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Whether or not many trees in the Southern Appalachians were killed by the long-continued drought of the past summer cannot be definitely determined until next spring, according to Director E. H. Frothingham, of the Appalachian Forest Experiment Station.

But, says the forester, it is an ill wind indeed that blows the research forester no good, for, difficult as the drought has made it for dwellers in the Southern Appalachians, it has given occasion for a valuable study of the effects of drought on the forests of the region.

Asheville itself at the end of August was 15 inches short of its annual average of 39 inches of rainfall. In the forests, trees on the drier slopes became entirely brown, but how many were killed can not be determined until next spring. Typical trees on various slopes have been numbered and tagged for future observation, the condition of their crowns, twigs, and bud formation has been noted, and records have been made of the soil moisture at the depth of their main roots.

When the figures now being gathered are checked against subsequent conduct of the individual trees, the forests will have a new array of established facts on the effect of climate on the forest, says the director of the forest experiment station.

Honeycutt, director of the State Bureau of Identification from the Bureau of Identification of the Department of Justice at Washington.

Little Boy Afraid to Invaide Office of Governor of State

Raleigh, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Death by electrocution is the punishment for invading the private office of the Governor of North Carolina in the hope of securing a magazine subscription so one small boy, at least, had figured it out.
"Do you suppose he would have me electrocuted if I went in there?" The naive question was put in all seriousness by young W. T. Bost, Jr., 12-year old son of W. T. Bost, Raleigh correspondent of the Greensboro Daily News.

Mr. Bost found his son outside the Governor's office at the capitol, hesitant—not quite sure whether or not to turn the knob and enter the private office. The elder Bost inquired of his son why he was there, and the answer was:
"Well, I've heard the Governor was a great farmer, and I thought maybe he would subscribe to this farm magazine I am taking subscriptions for."

It was Mr. Bost's suggestion that the Governor probably was very busy and might not wish to be disturbed which prompted the question of possible electrocution.

The incident, recited by Mr. Bost at one of Governor McLean's conferences with newspapermen, was the signal for hearty and prolonged chuckles on the part of the Executive.

"By all means tell him to come to the office. Tell him I'll subscribe from him," said the Governor. "I want to hear his speech," he added, with another laugh.

CRUDE METHODS OF PUNISHMENT REPLACE LASH

Chain Gang Bosses in Georgia Resort to Various Methods of Punishment Since Abolition of Flogging

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Strong advocacy among many prison camp wardens in Georgia for a return of the lash in punishing convicts for infractions of chain gang rules is prompting them to devise methods of punishment to appear as brutal as possible before legislative inspection committees, in the opinion of Edward I. Rainey, member of the Georgia Prison commission.

Flogging was abolished by a recent legislature and in recent months there has been some agitation among the wardens for a repeal of the statute. Mr. Rainey said that a meeting of the Commission would be held in December to consider suggestions for a uniform method of punishment in conformity with the law.

Reports from sub-committees to Representative Emmett Williams, chairman of the House Penitentiary committee, tell of many peculiar modes of punishment that have been devised since abolition of the lash. One camp, Mr. Williams said, fastened prisoners in a shallow box so they could not move their arms. Molasses is then exposed all over the exposed faces, leaving them powerless to brush away the flies attracted by the molasses.

At other camps, he said, prisoners are backed up to a post with their arms chained behind them. The arms then are raised as high as possible and hung to nails, the prisoners being left in this position for several hours.

MAIL ORDER SALES INDICATE HOME BARBERING ON INCREASE

Chicago.—Barbering at home appears to be on the increase in the United States. The desire of women with bobbed locks to keep the backs of their necks neatly trimmed is largely responsible for it. Hambleton and Company, investment bankers of Baltimore, are behind the new organization. The incorporators named are Henry A. Page, Jr., of Aberdeen, Henry Jenkins, of Baltimore and Major Wray T. Thorne, of Raleigh and New York, a transportation engineer.

The merging of the several bus lines is expected to be completed soon that the new organization may begin its function by the middle of next week. All drivers will be uniformed and the company may retain its old terminal stations in the several cities into which it will operate busses.

Lady Governor Hears Word Impeachment Connection Admins.

Dallas, Texas, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Governor Miriam A. Ferguson for the second time in a few weeks today faced the possibility of a special session of the Legislature to investigate her state department and heard the word impeachment at least in connection with her administration.

The Texas governor's confidence in the Attorney General yesterday, and for several weeks the governor had attempted to prevent any action being taken against the American Road Company on allegations of fraudulent road contracts, which it held. She was silent today regarding outcome of the suit in which the court held that the contracts were fraudulent and conceded them. Former Governor James E. Ferguson, husband of the governor, speaking for her said the sudden climax of the suit was of too great "magnitude for immediate comment."

Attorney General Moody said that he would not have brought the action if he had not believed the disputed contracts were conceived in fraud for "fraudulent purposes."

In the meantime today a call for a special session of the Legislature was issued by Representative Thomas K. Erwin, of Dallas, Texas, to "impeach any state officer who has aided or abetted in any way this gigantic fraud on the people of the state. He said he referred to the highway situation in which the state yesterday recovered $800,000 in the suit rendered in District Court against the American Road Company in the suit brought by the Attorney General to cancel the company's road contracts in the state. Erwin's call is in the form of a petition to speaker Lee Satterwhite who said several weeks ago he would call a special session if Governor Ferguson did not do so. The petition requires 50 names of legislators.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT MEDITATION

NEW TESTAMENT NAMES FOR CHRISTIANS:

I. "The Called"

Romans 1:6: — "Among whom ye are also the called."

I want to bring to your notice, during the next few weeks, the names given to Christians in the New Testament.

St. Paul, writing to the Romans, to the men and women who formed the little gathering of Christians at Rome, addresses them as those who had heard the Voice of God: "the called of Jesus Christ."

It was perfectly natural that St. Paul should think first of all of this fact of their calling, for he himself had entered the Christian life in answer to that Voice. He remembered a certain day in his life when a Voice had spoken to him in the Hebrew tongue, saying: "Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me?" And that day the Apostle had considered ever after as his birthday; the day when he was born anew unto God.

He had sat at the feet of Gamaliel and other teachers in Israel, but they could only tell him what Hillel had said and what Zadok had understood. They were only the echoes of the thoughts of others. When, on the road to Damascus, the Original Voice spoke, the Apostle found what all his life he had been seeking.

It was no new thing for God to speak in the Hebrew tongue. He had been speaking to them for more than two thousand years. The Hebrews were separated from all other peoples on earth because they were a God-fearing people.

Abraham, the father of their race, had heard the Voice of God calling to him, and saying: "Get thee out from thy country, and from thy kindred, and from thy father's house, into a land that I will show thee of;" and because Abraham heard that Voice and followed it, the Hebrew people began to be. And all through their history God had been speaking to them every day. That Voice was the guide of their lives in all things great and small. It told them how to feed their sheep and how to teach their children. It told them how to build their temples, and how to wash their kettles.

That Voice of God is the source of all that we call Scripture. God spoke to His servants, the prophets, and the prophets told what God had said to them in the ears of all the people; and some Scribe wrote down the words the prophet spoke, and so these wonderful books we call the Bible, or Scripture, came into existence.

Some people have thought, which spoke to our fathers is because He spoke so constantly and so clearly to the Jews, that God does not know any other language than the Hebrew; and that His Voice in any other tongue is spurious. But when God spoke to Adam, "walking in the Garden of Eden in the cool of the day," He could not have spoken in Hebrew, because that language was unknown, it being a late and minor stem on the great Semitic branch of languages.

When God wants to speak to you or me, He will use the tongue with which we are familiar.

Some people have said that "Because God has spoken, therefore He cannot speak."

His voice has been recorded in the written word called Scripture, and now God cannot further reveal Himself. The Book is closed, and He is dumb, and the average Christian believing this, has founded his religion on the Book which contains the record of what the Voice of God has said, and on various interpretations of the Book, so that sects have "multiplied between the leaves of the Bible, as magots multiplied between the rind of a cheese."

I believe that God speaks to every people and to every age. Shall we then cast the Bible aside? On no account. We must use it in living contact with the souls of men to-day, and show that the same Voice, called of Jesus Christ."

The Christian Church and its ministry have no place in the world except as they make the Voice of God heard by men.

The Christian Church, like the Hebrew nation, owes its very existence to the Voice of God. It was the Shepherd who called the sheep. At the first a motley crowd responded to the call. Fishermen from Galilee, slaves from the market, gladiators from the arena, rich men wearied with their riches, and poor men dying in their poverty;—out of the barrenness of Judaism and the wretchedness of heathenism they came in obedience to the Voice uttered through Apostles and teachers.

The Christian Church to-day lives because the Voice of God gives it life. If ever that Voice comes to you or me, here, on the banks of the River Tar, it will always be a call to some greater holiness, some higher duty.

It is not, to-day, so much what God said to Abraham, to Isaac, or to Jacob, but what God is saying now to you and to me; and how we are treating His word. That word, entering our hearts, must come back again, not as a word but as a life.

If we are thus living His

DREADFUL PAINS

Georgia Lady, Who Had Lost Too Much Weight, Was Advised to Take Cardui and Is Now Well.

Columbus, Ga.—Mrs. George S. Hunter, of this city, writes: "After I married, thirteen months ago, I suffered with dreadful pains in my sides during ... My side hurt so bad it nearly killed me. I had to go to bed and stay sometimes two weeks at a time. I could not work and I just dragged around the house."

"I got very thin—I went from 125 pounds down to less than 100. My mother had long been a user of Cardui and she knew what a good medicine it was for this trouble, so she told me to get some and take it. I sent to the store after it and before I had taken the first bottle I began to improve."

"My side hurt less and I began to improve in health. ... The Cardui acted as a fine tonic and I do not feel like the same person. I am so much better. I am well now. I have gained ten pounds and am still gaining. My sides do not trouble me at all."

"I wish every suffering woman knew about Cardui."

"BAGDAD" SURPASSES ALL OTHER FILMS

Douglas Fairbanks' glorious fantasy of "The Arabian Nights," "The Thief of Bagdad," will be the attraction at White's Theatre Monday. This photoplay, according to all accounts, surpasses anything heretofore seen on the screen. This extraordinary picture has upset the equilibrium of the critics in every city in which it has been presented. It is the crescendo photoplay. It is a fantastical story of love and adventure laid in an imaginary world of fancy, abounding with amazing happenings, and what critics generally have called unbelievable wonders. If you still believe in love, if adventure still stirs you, if you like your heart to miss beats in ecstatic moments of exciting suspense, if you enjoy the surprise of seeing things that heretofore you thought were impossible—here in "The Thief of Bagdad" are all these things, in the background of beauty and splendor. In this picture, a Winged Horse flies up to and through the clouds, a Magic Carpet soars over the house-tops and into the sky; wonder after wonder, surprise after surprise, are here revealed in amazing abundance. To depict such happenings on the screen has never been considered within the bounds of possibility. This crowning achievement has been accomplished by Douglas Fairbanks. It has received the highest endorsements that any picture has ever received.

OMENS ALL FAVORABLE TO THE BIRTH OF THE JAPANESE HEIR

Tokyo.—Two cranes nesting in an ancient pine tree in the Fukage Imperial Gardens, adjacent to the palace, have brought joy to the Japanese and the royal household. The nesting of the cranes, symbolical of married happiness, is traditionally believed to be a most fortunate omen and particularly applicable to the expected birth of an heir to the Prince Regent and Princess Nagako.

When the Prince Regent and the Crown Princess were married a storm descended into the Palace gardens. A white dove visited the Palace when young Prince Sumi, the fourth Imperial son, was born.

These incidents, with the arrival of the cranes, are looked upon as unusually happy auguries.

CHINESE SEND DEAD HOME FOR BURIAL, THEN REACH HEAVEN

San Francisco.—Because they believe that no Chinese will enter heaven unless he is finally buried in China, natives of that country in the West ship the bodies of their countrymen homeward through this port.

Bodies of scores of Chinese have been exhumed in several California cities and sent to San Francisco to await enough to make a ship and the bodies are cared for here by an official funeral director for the family to be affected.

TELL 'EM & SELL 'EM

JUDGE IN SMALL DEBTORS COURT TRIES PHONE CASES

Wichita, Kan.—David Leahy of Wichita, "dean of Kansas newspaper men" is one judge in the United States who tries cases by telephone.

He is judge of the "small debtors' court," permission for the establishment of which was granted by the last legislature.

A telephone rings in a Wichita business house.

"Hello. This is Judge Leahy. We want to get your testimony in regard to the Jones vs. Jones case." And so the testimony is taken, to be incorporated in the court records and used as the basis for a decision.

The "telephone cases" are decided by Judge Leahy after all the evidence is collected, and then his decision is mailed to the principals.

Judge Leahy's courtroom is a poor place for a lawyer. He himself receives no compensation for his services, and legal lights are barred from admission unless they wish to be mere spectators.

Even the courtroom is abandoned in the summer time. Most of the cases decided this past summer were heard on Judge Leahy's front porch. The seat of judgment was a rocking chair; the defendant and plaintiff took their places at the counsel tables—the front steps.

In the 200 cases "tried" since the institution of the court—without cost—not an appeal has been taken from Judge Leahy's decision. Only persons whose controversy involves a sum of $20 or less are admitted to the court. Many potential cases are settled "out of court" by Judge Leahy's getting the principals together and talking it over with them.

Wichita's charitable judge acts as a judge even outside of office hours. Recently two prominent eastern authors found themselves embroiled in a controversy over the color of "Wild Bill" Hickok's hair. "Wild Bill," an old frontiersman, was an intimate friend of Judge Leahy when Kansas was still in short trousers.

The controversy was referred to the Kansas newspaper man. "Wild Bill" Hickok's hair was straw-colored, said his decision. "The old woodcutters make it look dark."

"Presiding over a small debtors' court seems to take the judgment of a Solomon," observes Judge Leahy, but it's only plain common sense.

Spring of Civil War Fame Again Survives Drouth

Atlanta, Ga.—Georgia and the Southland are recovering from a drouth of unprecedented severity during which many streams and water sources dried up and all records for aridity were broken, but through it all a cold stream of pure water continued to flow from the side of a beautifully foliaged hill on which, some fifty years ago, was located the Andersonville military prison, of the Southern Confederate army.

This is "Providence Spring," in Sumter county. Local history has it that in the closing days of the War between the States that section suffered from the effects of a drouth which dried up all small streams and wells, leaving no water supply for the many thousands of Federal prisoners of war confined within the over-crowded and fever-stricken camp.

Quinine had been made contraband of war and none was available to relieve the burning fevers which created a torturable thirst for water.

These conditions existed for days while the men, in their delirium, daily scratched holes in the ground with their bare hands in their attempt to strike water. Finally, after having reached the end of their resources and too weary and exhausted to put forth more physical effort, they dropped to their knees and prayed to God to send them relief.

While they were still praying, a hole of lightning struck the hillside, just outside the "dead line," and a fountain of sparkling, cold water gushed forth to cool the parched tongues whose prayers had been heard. Today one may visit the prison camp and find the holes marked off and enclosed within iron fences, and the streaked "dead line" which was extended to mark the spring within its confines, bearing evidence to the miracle that was performed there in the sixties. The fountain has been housed in an ornate work of masonry, in which is inserted a bronze tablet identifying it as "Providence Spring," and relating the above story.

Adjoining the camp is Andersonville National Cemetery, covering an area of 126 acres and where rests in eternal peace, nearly 14,000 of the boys in blue who succumbed to the ravages of the fever and other diseases. Virtually all of the names on the plain stone slabs are preceded by the word "Private," with here and there one marked "unknown."

The Road To Independence! Buy Your Own Home!

Two fates await you at the turning of the road. You may have either at your preference. If you prefer the drudgery of an overshadowing landlord, you may have it by continuing to pay rent. On the other hand, all you need to gain your independence is to make the first payment on a Home of Your Own. After that, the payments are just like rent, but of course you're just paying rent to yourself instead of a landlord. We'll be glad to talk it over with you.

NORTH CAROLINA

MEETS VIRGINIA IN BIG

TURKEY DAY CLASSIC

Chapel Hill, Nov. 21.—The Universities of North Carolina and Virginia, keen rivals on the gridiron over a period of 34 years, will meet here on Thanksgiving in their annual encounter which has become one of the outstanding football classics in the South. The advance sale of seats indicates a record crowd approximating 20,000.

Judging by comparative scores during the season the two teams are pretty evenly matched, with Carolina having perhaps a slight edge. There are only two teams which both Carolina and Virginia have met this year. Carolina beat Maryland 16 to 0 while Virginia defeated the Old Liners 6 to 0. Carolina beat V. M. I. 23 to 11 while Virginia beat the Cadets 18 to 10. That can be taken for what it is worth, for admittedly, comparative scores don't count for much when these two ancient rivals meet.

North Carolina clinched the State title last week by defeating David son 13 to 0 and the Tar Heels have a perfect Southern Conference to date. Virginia's conference record is marred by only one defeat, that at the hands of Washington and Lee, champions of the Old Dominion State this year.

In number of games won since gridiron relations were inaugurated back in 1892, Virginia has an imposing lead over Carolina. Since the war six games have been played, Carolina winning three, Virginia two and one being a scoreless tie.

WHITE'S MONDAY

CABLE LETTER

London, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Americans are scheduled to take large part in the coming social season of London than ever before. The years since the war have seen an increasing number of Americans establish themselves in West End mansions, where they entertain on a scale equal to that of the leading families of the capital.

Each year their activities have increased until last year many of the most fashionable and elaborate of the season's entertainments were given by American hostesses and their guests often included the prince of Wales, his brothers and many others whose presence assures social success.

This season Americans are being invited everywhere, their names appearing in some of the guest lists for the first time. The hesitancy of many of the older families of London to admit foreign guests who are in London just for the season seems to have been overcome, if not by the extensive entertaining they have received from these foreigners certainly by the presence of the royal family at affairs given by such people.

The duke and duchess of York have acquired a large town house, and now that they have left their "flat" in Buckingham palace, the duchess is expected to be the leading hostess of this season. The royal couple intend to return the hospitality they have accepted during the last two or three seasons and invitations have been issued for a "house-warming." Americans figure extensively in the invitation list.

A statue of the prince of Wales that has been admired by millions and criticized by a few, is to be melted down and made into soap. It is three-ton butter model of the prince wearing his head dress and robes as chief Mornington of the St. Indians, which throughout the last year of the British empire exhibition at Wembley, has been one of the most popular attractions of the Canadian building.

But, like the largest squash from Australia and the prize pumpkin from South Africa, the prince's day has come he must leave Wembley. A soap-maker's cauldron will consume him because preserving chemicals have made the statue inedible.

Artists have not protested. Perhaps the refrigeration plant went wrong, but the butter prince seems to have settled down into his boots and is much too "stouffish" for those critics who admired the statuary for art rather than for the amount of butter required in the making.

Paris, Nov. 21.—(AP)—It is the boast of Foreign Minister Briand that he has used the same top-hat for more than 20 years. The veteran topper was still doing duty when the reconstructed Fainleve ministry went before the chamber of deputies a few days ago.

It has served M. Briand during his seven terms as premier, during his trip to Washington for the disarmament conference and through his recent negotiations at Geneva and Locarno. The foreign minister goes out under its shelter as little as possible, preferring the more democratic "derby," it takes the most formal of occasions to induce him to don his tube as the French call it.

Last summer M. Briand on one occasion was received in audience by the king of England. His valet and even his chauffeur begged him to buy a new top-hat, one that didn't "date from the time of the big exposition (1900)" as they put it. But he refused. "What, me in a new tube?" he exclaimed. "Why, I'd look like a best man. This is a royal audience I'm going to, not a wedding." And off went he with his ancient friend.

Berlin, Nov. 21.—(AP)—The theft from the Dresden zoo of a prized cockatoo, famed for the plaintive manner in which it cried, "oh, dear, I kissed you only on the shoulder!" has resulted in the arrest of Otto W. Mohr, 27, on charges of looting bird cages in the Dresden, Leipzig and Nuremberg zoo gardens.

Mohr, a former chemistry student, obtained access to the bird cages, police said, by posing as a student of bird life. He is said to have stolen a score of valuable parrots, pheasants and cockatoos and sold them to bird stores.

The theft of the cockatoo with the distinctive line of chatter led to his undoing, as the zoo director recognized the bird in a Dresden pet shop. Mohr was sentenced to 10 months in jail.

The proposed American tour of Hubert Houben, premier German sprinter, is arousing much interest in German athletic circles.

Houben defeated both Charlie Paddock and Loren Murchison in the 100 and 200-meter dashes when the American stars were here last July. In addition to charges that Paddock and Murchison were putting in exorbitant expense accounts, German sports writers alleged they were not running their best. Sport fans are now speculating on what Houben can do with the dash men with whom he is expected to compete in the United States.

Houben plans to leave Hamburg for New York early in January. His first appearance in competition will be in New York February 4. He is in good condition and unless the trip affects him adversely he ought to be able to run at his best.
