JESSE AND MAJOR ADAMS JAILED AS RESULT KILLING

Jesse Adams Confesses Killing Lee Haddock but Major Remains in Jail with Brother.

Major and Jesse Adams two youths of the Black Jack section of the county are today in the local jail pending further action by authorities in the death of Lee Haddock, 17 years old youth of the section yesterday.

Following an autopsy over the body and a hearing by Coroner S. G. Wilkerson, last night, the jury returned a verdict that young Haddock came to his death as a result of a fractured skull caused by a blunt instrument in the hands of Jesse and Major Adams. Enroute to Greenville, however, to be placed in jail Jesse confessed that he struck the lick that resulted in Haddock's death but owing to the high feeling in the section Major Adams refused to go back home last night stating that he preferred to remain in jail with his brother until the affair was cleared up and his return made more safe.

Information brought out at the coroner's investigation showed that the three boys were out together and that the deceased and Jesse Adams were drinking heavily. The party had stopped at a store and filling station in the vicinity and had tried to make trouble and then departed. Later residents returning from Shelmerding saw Haddock's car on the ditch but failed to stop to offer aid because of the apparent drunken condition of the boys. It appeared that the boys being unable to get the car out of the ditch had fallen out among themselves and begun a brawl. After being hit on the head Haddock went to the home of his uncle nearby and he and other neighbors helped to get the car out of the ditch. Haddock then returned home with his uncle and went to bed complaining about his head. His uncle thinking that the boy was only intoxicated and would be all right the following morning paid little attention to his complaints. Some time after retiring young Haddock dropped into unconsciousness and died yesterday morning.

In telling the story of the fight at the car Major Adams declared that he had been struck over the head by Haddock and had run away and he did not know that his brother had struck Haddock a fatal blow. Adams' story was that after hitting Major over the head Haddock had attacked him with an automobile pump and that he had defended himself by striking Haddock on the head with a piece of automobile spring. Haddock's uncle and neighbors stated that when Haddock arrived at his uncle's house to seek aid in getting his car out of the ditch following the fight that he was still carrying the automobile pump in his hand.

LOWLY DESTINY CONFRONTS MILLION OR SO MUSTANGS

Portland, Ore., Dec. 24.—(AP) Out of the glories of mountain range and plain into the soap vat or fertilizer bin is the ignominious destiny that seems in prospect for the western mustang—small, mostly useless, and numerous.

For those in the Pacific Northwest, this lowly end approached appreciably close when a Portland company began the construction of a plant in which the rendering will be done.

DEATH OF NEGRO NEAR GRIMESLAND WAS AN ACCIDENT

Coroner's Jury Sets Harry Wingate Free on Grounds that Killing of Little Negro Girl was Unavoidable.

Harry S. Wingate, 19, of Ayden, has confessed to the killing of Fannie May Bell Hicks, 4 years old negro girl near Grimesland on Monday December 14, and has been set free by the coroner's jury on the grounds that the accident was purely unavoidable. The investigation under the direction of Coroner S. G. Wilkerson was reported last night after Wingate had confessed the killing and told his story.

Wingate declared that he and Mark Dixon, 16, of Ayden, were traveling in the direction of Grimesland when he approached the group of children. Some of the children were on one side of the road and some on the other road and just as he reached them the little girl dashed across the road ahead of him. He immediately caught up with Dixon, who was in the lead, he said, and the two went back to the scene of the accident. When they reached the scene the little girl was dead and because of the feeling of several grown negroes who had arrived upon the scene they went back to their cars and departed. A little later when the coroner's jury was held, Wingate was among the listeners present but none of those present knew that it was he who had run over the little girl and he made no statement. After having time to reflect over his excitement Harry Wingate has given much thought to the affair and decided that it was best to tell his story now.

SAYS BRITISH RUBBER BROKERS ARE GETTING OUT

Some of the Firms' Profits Have Reached Stage that Justifies Extra Years Salary Bonus to Employees.

London, Dec. 24.—(AP)—Rubber Brokers are getting out of the business with well filled pockets, and the public is wondering whether they foresee a collapse of the boom and are standing firm under the pressure.

Davis and Rogers, who have announced they have decided to close down their business, have been in rubber brokerage for less than four years, and are said to have made 1,000,000 pounds profit. Several other firms say they will retire at the end of this year.

Many rubber brokers in the city have seldom been able to close their books before midnight of recent months, and the pressure continues with new issues of rubber plantations stock offered constantly in the paper.

London, Dec. 24. "Fight the Good Fight" is the favorite hymn of the Prince of Wales, according to his written reply to a challenge on the "greatest hymn" conducted by John G. London's Weekly.

The Prince's favorite was written by Rev. John Samuel (Dorset) Mervill, who was born in 1811 and died in 1881. It is a hymn of 12 lines, and is the first hymn ever printed from the east of a church by being helping in 1811. The first stanza of the Prince's reply is:

"Fight the good fight with all thy might,
'Tis not by strength, nor Christ the King,
Thy birth of life and it shall be."

"The joy and peace of the day," says the Prince, "is the joy of the day." YOUNG

Norma Has Great Cast in "Graustark"

The perfect cast.

That is how Joseph M. Rapp, producer, characterized the play cast in the new production of "Graustark" at the Theatre National.

Norma, who supported Norma Talbot in the first production, is again the star in the new production. She is supported by a fine cast of players, and certainly in 1925 she has been more carefully selected for the characters which they portray.

Francis O'Brien, leading supporting actor in the role of General Lorry, romantic young American, more appears by popular demand as Norma's leading man. Director United Buchenwald called O'Brien "the ideal American type" and indicated that he was the best suited to the part. O'Brien is an admirer of Norma's talents, and he will be enthusiastically welcomed in this new production.

Miss McDermott, recognized as one of the greatest actresses of the world, plays the role of the heroine, Roy Harvey appearing as the villain. Miss McDermott's work has principally been in the theatre, and she has been called the "Queen of the Stage." Her latest work in New York was in the play "The Sign of the Cross" and she has been called the "Queen of the Stage." Her latest work in New York was in the play "The Sign of the Cross" and she has been called the "Queen of the Stage."

First of the Princeton complete the principal supporting players, and each is admirably ideal in his role. "Graustark" is a modernized version of "Görge" Baruch's celebrated romance.

PARIS PLEASURES
OUTDRAW ITS ART
Paris, Dec. 23.—(N. Y. S. P.)—Paris pleasures are much better known than her works of art. Out-is the art talent of the conservators of the various collections in the French capital. Statuaries recently published that the receipts of last year's exhibition to the French capital amount to only two million francs, less than any good business theatre would take in during a good season. In spite of the large number of sightseers, both French and foreign, lovers of art and beauty things are far from equaling the number of pleasure-seekers in the city capital. Many of the small museums with the choicest art collections are quite neglected and only on very rare occasions see a visitor, as for example, the chateau of Malmaison-Lafitte which has some of the most beautiful French works which only the regards have, more publicly is needed for the French are slow in advertising their wares.

THE CHRISTMAS CANDLE

The lighted candle on Christmas Eve! There is an individual significance in the flickering shadows of the waxen taper, on this of all nights.

It is an infallible symbol of a Christian home, where peace and charity dwell. It illumines a pathway to kindness, to cheer, to rich benevolence.

ITS SINGLE IMPERFECTION

Of all the holidays in the regular and sacred calendar of America, the spirit of none is so nearly perfect as that of Christmas Day.

Perhaps it is folly to expect such an Elysian experience to stand up longer than twenty-four hours. Perhaps a continuous round of it would weigh heavily.

This is the day when the man with gout smiles. The dyspeptic ventures to tell jokes. Willie spills the jam with impunity.

And it is all so genuine. The hypocrite hides his hypocrisy. Even affection affects sincerity so buoyant and glowing is the spirit of the day.

ment of good will and fraternity. Surely the birth of such a movement has a significance that cannot be discounted.

An apparent need of the times is a traveling bag that won't leak.

A necessity is anything the neighbors can have without arousing our envy.

THE COMING OF CHRISTMAS

(By Rev. C. J. Harris.)
A Prophecy. "There shall come forth a star out of Jacob, and a sceptre shall rise out of Israel."
A Promise. "Behold, a virgin shall conceive, and bear a son, and shall call his name Immanuel."
The Prince Is Born. "I bring you good tidings of great joy which shall be to all people: for there is born to you this day in the city of David a Saviour, who is Christ the Lord." "Unto us a child is born," said Isaiah, as his eyes pierced the mists of the future great Christmas which we of the twentieth century are privileged to honor and enjoy. "Unto us a son is given, and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, Mighty God, Everlasting Father, Prince of Peace." Of the increase of his government and of peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom to establish it, and to uphold it with justice and righteousness from henceforth even for ever. "Indeed such an empire of peace was this peerless Man to establish that the same great prophet of God goes on to declare that he would "Judge between the nations, and decide concerning many peoples."

Who is it that can comprehend the circumstances of his coming, without being impressed with his greatness as the son of the Most High? None ever received more attention than did he, even as a Child nestled in that manger of hay. Feared by the princes of men who sought his life, reared by the shepherds of the field who come to do him homage, and worshiped by the sages who come from afar, he wielded from the very beginning his sceptre of imperial sway over the hearts and lives of men. He was a Child of poverty when he came. The animals of a well-appointed barn are better housed than was Mary's Virgin Son on this his natal morn. The son of the Most High was wrapped in the swaddling clothes of poverty by the hands of a virgin who in her travail hour was turned from the door of a village inn. Nevertheless, from the poverty of Bethlehem he ascended that he might come to rule a world as the King of Kings, and the Lord of Lords.

How beautiful, indeed, is the fact of the advent of the Messiah who gave to the world the glad tidings of great joy which we should lovingly commemorate with holy zeal and profound reverence. O, the gift of God's abounding love and eternal grace.

Christians of all denominations let your Christmas activities crowd him as the King of righteousness, and exalt him as the Son of God, form his poverty has he come the riches of the world, and his greatness the seat of the kingdom of Almighty God. The province of his reign is the universe itself. Having overcome the archenemies of man-sin, the devil and the grave—he has become unto us the High Priest of the universe. Who sat down on the right hand of the throne of the Majesty in the heavens, a minister of the sanctuary, and of the true tabernacle which the Lord pitched, not man.

Agricultural Club Work Returned $60,000 Profit

Newton, Dec. 24. (AP) — Agricultural club work with farm boys and girls in Catawba county has returned to the county nearly $60,000 in clear profit, according to a statement issued by the State College of Agriculture, in which is summarized the activities of County Agent J. W. Hendricks, of Newton.

Mr. Hendricks became county agent in Catawba in the early part of the year 1919. In 1920, he organized his first club work, with 23 members. The next year, 1921, he had 147 farm boys and girls in clubs, and 12 of these had been members since first joining in 1920.

During the entire three years, 23 farm projects have been carried on by members of the club organization. Of these club members 27 have graduated from club work and gone to college. Some entered State Colleges, some Catawba, others Concordia, Lenior, Wake Forest, Duke University, and Rutherford. A total of 16 members have married since club work began.

"Our club boys and girls have had projects in all lines of farming, reports Mr. Hendricks. These have been corn, cotton, wheat, sweet potatoes, white potatoes, pig, calf, sheep, and poultry. The work with poultry and purebred calves has been one of the most interesting and profitable pieces of work. We organized the first purebred Jersey calf club to be officially recognized in the south by the American Jersey Cattle Club. Some of these members have raised their calves to cows and have sold them at good profits. I estimate that the club club work alone has made a net return of over $1,500 to the county.

Mr. Hendricks says that the highest yield of corn made by a club member of his county during the five years was 107 weight bushels produced on one acre by Bunyon Love, of Newton, Route No. 2. The highest yield of cotton was 2,777 pounds of seed cotton from one acre, produced by Claude Sigmon, of Claremont, Route No. 2. Was made with the Mexican big hulled variety, and is one of the highest yields ever recorded in the South, says Mr. Hendricks. This boy pinned out two bales weighing a total of 1,047 pounds of lint.

"In 1925, some of our club members will graduate from the work," says Mr. Hendricks. "But they have done fine things for Catawba county, and have helped to point the way to better farming in this section. I have a record on each individual member 82. I think this is a record hard to surpass, and speaks well for the youth of Catawba farms."
