WESTERN ITALY BEING VISITED BY EARTH SHOCKS

Atrouble for Past Two Weeks From Seismic Disturbances

Rome, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Western Italy from the region around the Province of Tuscany southward to the toe of the boot and across the Adriatic to the vicinity of Trieste has been a scene for the past two weeks from seismic disturbances. These culminated yesterday in a sharp earth shock lasting twelve seconds in Tuscany. Some persons received minor hurts and the home of peasants were damaged. Inhabitants of the effected districts fled from their homes. The shock was followed by another of lesser violence. The center of the disturbance yesterday was on the peninsula in the vicinity of Monte Amata, a volcanic mountain which rises to a height of 5,689 feet. The nearby villages suffering greatest were San Salvador and Abadia where all the houses were damaged. Mt. Vesuvius, far to the South, apparently had gone to sleep after its outbreak of a few days previous. With the new disturbance however, it awoke and threw up ashes and smoke while large quantities of lava began flowing, particularly from the new cone in the side of the mountain. Throughout the period of disturbance Mt. Etna on the island of Sicily, is behaving itself and shows no sign of eruption.

Naples, Italy, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Growing ominously and sending up dense clouds of smoke and showers of cinders, Mt. Vesuvius was being watched anxiously today by the thousands of people. The volcano's renewed activity is marked especially by the unusual flow of lava, the streams of which is increasing constantly. The main lava stream has reached a length of more than a thousand feet, while several smaller streams are flowing from the northern mouth of the crater.

CLOSES WOODEN CANTILEVER BRIDGE NEARLY CENTURY OLD

Lancaster, Ky., Jan. 9.—(AP)—The state highway commission has closed the longest single span wooden cantilever bridge, a romantic landmark across the Kentucky River.

A steel and concrete structure soon will make a memory of one of the few remaining covered bridges. Located just beyond Camp Nelson on the Lookout Mountain Airline Highway, it was built in 1838. Only lately when heavy rains began to erode the 240-foot span were there pronounced vibrations.

CAPTURED STILLS ARE VIEWED AS MODELS

Oklahoma City, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Because they were to useful as models, trophies seized by prohibition enforcement officers have been relegated from the exhibition rooms of the Oklahoma Historical society here to the storeroom.

PITT COUNTY'S OLDEST PUBLIC BUILDING IS NOW BEING RAZED

BY C. B. ROWLETT
Pitt County's oldest landmark, and its first Hall of Justice, the erection of which dates back to early years of the seventeenth century within which walls there were historical events which would require many volumes to disclose, is now being razed to make way for a dwelling of the more modern type.
The building located three miles east of Greenville, was very unusual in structure. There being three stories and its foundation covered a very small space of probably not more than fifty feet square. As far as the records disclose which was even prior to 1740, the building has never undergone any repairs or improvements since its erection, even the walls of the interior have remained the same as placed there nearly two centuries ago by John Hardee, its builder.

Nearly 300 People Lose Lives in the Mexican Flood

Nagales, Ariz., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Loss of lives during the floods in the state of Nayarit, Mexico, is estimated at between 200 and 300 in dispatches today to the Nagales Herald. Revised estimates of the flood loss place it at 5,000,000 pesos with the possibility that it will increase as reports continue coming in.

MUSLIMS IN EGYPT WILL JOIN FORCES WITH INDIA

Cairo, Jan. 9.—(AP)—As a result of the visit of two Muslim Khilafat leaders, Dr. Ansari and Hakim Ajmal Khan, a new association has been formed in Cairo, with branches in at least half a dozen important centers, called the Jamiat-i-Rabbi-ul-Hindia to cooperate with Indian Muslims for the advancement of the eastern nations, especially the Muslims. The Home Rule Party in Egypt has taken a leading part in the movement and it has received the blessing of Sheikh Abdur-Rahman Qutub, the Grand Mufti of Egypt, and about a dozen other influential Muslims. NEW MODEL OF SPATS FOR MEN

London, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Arbiters of Men's fashion, spurred by the popularity of Russian boots for women, have designed new spats for men. These are made of rubber in varying shades and besides being easy to clean, are claimed to be more close fitting to the ankles and show than the present cloth spats.

Washington Files Protest Mexican Alien Land Law

Washington, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Formal representation against retro active features of the new Mexican anti alien land law, have been filed with the Mexican Foreign Office by American Ambassador Sheffield.
The action of the Washington Government was taken after prolonged diplomatic interchanges which failed to remove either from the land law or the new petroleum act, those features which are held here to violate assurance given by the Mexican Government at the time of recognition which was accorded it by the Washington Government in 1923.
In informing the Mexican Foreign Office of the displeasure resulting here from the new Mexican laws, the State Department has spoken in direct and forceful terms of the injury it feels will be done to American interest if the legislation goes into effect.

Two Presidential Suites Leviathan Engaged Today

New York, Jan. 9.—(AP)—The two Presidential suites of the Leviathan were engaged by Broadway honeymooners on her Trans-Atlantic voyage beginning today. Irvin Berlin, whose romantic marriage to the former Elin McKay occurred Monday, and Edgar Selwin, producer, who was married to Ruth Wilcox Tuesday, paid $5,000 for accommodations on the queen of the seas.

Just after midnight Mr. and Mrs. Berlin, whose life has been a hectic flight from reporters the last few days, slipped aboard the Leviathan and went into seclusion. The Berlins were hopeful that when the Leviathan left her docks today the intense light of publicity which has followed them, would fade.

ARTHUR BRISBANE

The Chicago Daily News celebrates its fifteenth anniversary and all congratulate the late Victor Lawson and the living Melville Stone of the useful newspaper they care the world.

The Chicago American, which has the Daily News for its only worth-while competitor, also feels cheerful in spite of its youth.

Selling at three cents a copy five days a week and five cents on Saturday, against the Daily News' uniform price of two cents, the American circulation leads the Daily News by seventy thousand daily.

Mr. Bok, able winning young American, born in Holland, says this nation ought to be in the League of Nations and finances his opinions liberally, which is right. He accepts the World Court as a desirable first step toward the League.

Another able American, born here, named George Washington, thought this country ought to keep out of European entanglement. He fought his way through one, entanglement, and did not want any more.

But Washington is dead, not clearly remembered in some quarters. Mr. Bok is alive, with money to spend. You remember about the "The Live Dog and Dead Lion." You will learn from this administration what it thinks of a dead Washington, as compared with a live Bok.

Two babies were born in Chicago taxicabs yesterday.

The former Emperor of Germany was almost born in a stage coach while his mother, daughter of Queen Victoria, was traveling. A village doctor, frightened by the announcement that he must be careful of the heir to the Prussian throne, lost his head, pulled on the unborn baby's arm, causing a deformity still existing.

That story was told this writer by the great French doctor, Braunschweig, who went to Windsor Castle, at Queen Victoria's command, to see the child's deformed arm, some time later.

Braunschweig added that any one good doctor might well have cured the deformity, but fifty doctors were too many for the poor child.

Later you will read of children born (in flight, five miles ap, between Seattle and San Diego) and that flying machine, landing, will be rechristened "zeppelin stork."

President F. Edison White, of Armour & Company, expects to cut ten million dollars more off the cost of distribution and overhead, this year. If he succeeds, that will be $29,000,000 similarly cut off, in three years.

Combinations make savings possible. The public should have brains enough to encourage by combinations, and keep some of the savings for itself.

There is a howl against a proposed combination of bakers. But in one city, each shop selling bread is visited and solicited by from ten to fifteen wholesale bakers' wagons every day.

Who pays for those wagons and drivers? The families that eat the bread.

The "Garter Bouquet" of real flowers is announced in Philadelphia, forget-me-nots, presumably just below the knee. Women spent centuries hiding their legs, even with dresses sweeping microbes from the ground.

Now they exhaust ingenuity, calling attention to their legs. Pink stockings, strange garters, slippers that look like a set of gold pony harness, no stockings, sometimes, high tide skirts.

It is puzzling, but you may be sure that back of it all usefulness and wisdom are at work. Man's full dress evolution is about over. Woman's is only starting.

REVEALS LITTLE KNOWLEDGE OF ALUMINUM CASE

Sargent Says He Will Test Out Right of Justice Department to Secure Necessary Evidence

Washington, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Under further questioning by a Senate investigating committee, Attorney General Sargent said today he would test out the right of the Justice Department to secure necessary evidence in the Department's inquiry into the conduct of the Aluminum Company of America.

It has been charged that some of the evidence against the company, in which Secretary Mellon is a heavy stockholder, has been locked up in the files of the Federal Trade Commission, which some time ago declared the company guilty of improper trade practices.

Yesterday Mr. Sargent told the committee he did not recall any effort on the part of his department to secure this evidence. He also said he did not recall when he first heard of the Aluminum case, but today he said he had ascertained that his attention was first called to the matter on March 25, 1925.

Today Mr. Sargent was asked directly by Senator Walsh, Democrat of Montana, what "your Department has done to get this information" from the trade commission.

"This is still a present matter," was the reply. "It has just now come to my attention."

Senator Borah, Republican, of Idaho, then asked if it was the present purpose to demand more information from the commission and Mr. Sargent replied that he would test out the right of the Justice Department to obtain the necessary evidence.

Finds Tobacco Companies Not Guilty Boycott

Washington, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Findings of mismanagement on the part of the officials of the Tri-State Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association and exoneration of the American Tobacco Company and the Imperial Tobacco Company of the charges of boycotting the co-operatives, are contained in the report of the Federal Trade Commission investigation made, at the request of the co-operatives, which was sent to the Senate today by President Coolidge.

The report goes so far as to state that "the bona fides of the charges of boycotting against the American Tobacco Company and the Imperial Tobacco Company as made by officials of the Tri-State Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association, is certainly open to question."

Financial gains by association officials in addition to their salaries by re-drying association tobacco and arbitrary methods in refusing to sell green tobacco are set out in the report as the principal form of mismanagement on the part of the association officials.

The Federal Trade Commission report is made pursuant to the Ernst resolution which was introduced in the Senate at the last session. The report was sent to President Coolidge on December 22, and by him was sent to the Attorney General for consideration. No action by the Attorney General is expected on account of the nature of the findings.

Three full reports of several hundred pages was not available today, but all findings of fact are set out in the letter of transmittal to the Senate by John F. Nugent, Democrat, chairman of the commission. The commission is unanimous in making the report.

While the report had to do with all tobacco co-operatives, it deals principally with the Tri-State association of North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia.

TWO BODIES ARE DISCOVERED IN A HAY STACK

Believed to Be Victims of Hesterling Who Said He Killed the Pair On December 29

Forsyth, Ontario, Jan. 9.—(AP)—The body of Peter Jacobi a farmer, and his niece, Miss Mahilda Latch, were discovered in a hay stack on the Jacobi farm here late yesterday. Officers said that they were victims of Arthur T. Hesterling, 30, who told that he killed the pair on December 29. Hesterling, who admitted he escaped from a sanatorium at Knoxville, Iowa, in August, 1924, said he came to the Jacobi ranch on December 29, and found nobody home. He was preparing a meal when Jacobi and the girl appeared, and he murdered both and hid the bodies. The man confessed to shooting Jacobi and knocking Miss Latch to the floor. Jacobi, he said, struggled to his feet, and Hesterling then ended his life with a blow from an ax, and he confessed he then killed the girl in the same way.

PLAN FOR LEAGUE TOWNS MEET NEED FOR POWER IN EASTERN N. CAROLINA

The following article, by Miss Lucy Cherry Crisp, is the first of a series, which will appear for five Saturdays in this paper retelling for the idea of a League of Towns in Eastern Carolina for the purpose of securing available electric power for towns and adjoining rural districts in Eastern North Carolina.

Today in Eastern North Carolina, there stretches out from town to town a long white ribbon of hard paved road, linking the towns one to another in the fashion of the friendship circles young ladies used to wear. Travelers along these highways see, spread out before them as lovely a panorama of smiling, fertile fields and streams and forests as the Grace of God ever designed, for Eastern North Carolina is indeed a Garden Spot—but it is a Garden in which lurks a tragedy. 34,278 PERSONS WERE GIVEN JOBS THE PAST WEEK

Shows An Increase of More Than 1200 Over the Preceding Year

Raleigh, Jan. 9.—(AP)—The State Federal employment service in North Carolina during the year 1925, placed in employment 34,278 persons as compared with 32,719 during 1924. It was announced today by Commissioner Frank D. Grist.

The increase of more than 1200 during 1925 over the preceding year was made in spite of the fact that the office at Charlotte, one of the largest in the state, has been closed for approximately four months. Mr. Grist stated.

The Charlotte office was closed in September following a controversy between the Commissioner of Labor and Printing and the Charlotte authorities over the personnel of the office.

The increase over 1924 was made largely through the placement of labor in agricultural employment during harvesting seasons of berries, cotton and other products, Mr. Grist stated.

Of the total placements during 1925, 20,636, or nearly 78 per cent were men, while 7,642 women were given employment. More persons were given jobs in April than during any other month last year, the report shows, the number for that month being 4,341. The employment service has had offices in operation during all or a part of the year in Asheville, Greensboro, Charlotte and Rocky Mount. At Rocky Mount the office having been opened shortly after the closing of the office at Charlotte.

Rocky Mount Man Dies From Exposure

Rocky Mount, Jan. 8.—(AP)—H. Moore, 65 year old white man, who yesterday was found paralyzed and frozen near the city limits, died last night as a result of the stroke and subsequent exposure.

Mr. Moore had been missing from the city for seven days. Yesterday afternoon a party of hunters found him lying on the ground in a clump of woods near the city limits. He was paralyzed from the waist down and his hands and feet badly frozen. Doctors advanced the theory that he was smitten with paralysis while walking thru the woods a week ago and was unable to summon aid.

JERUSALEM'S WATER SUPPLY COMES SOLELY FROM RAIN

Jerusalem, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Jerusalem must depend for its domestic and sanitary water requirements on the annual rainfall. Some winters this is inadequate for the daily consumption of between a half and one million gallons. When the supply runs short the water is rationed.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT MEDITATION

"All the World's a Stage"

I Corinthians 7:31—"For the fashion of this world passeth away."

The Apostle would have his brethren to so use this world as not abusing it, and for this reason, that "the fashion of this world passeth away."

The Greek word translated "fashion" is "schema," and is said by Grotius and other scholars to be borrowed from the theatre, and to refer to the scene-shifting on the stage.

Life here below has, in truth, its histrionic aspects. "The fashion of it passeth away" much as do the scene-painter's creations and the stage-carpenter's framework with the spectacular effects and dissolving views. Even the actors themselves pass off the stage.

"They have their exits and their entrances;

And one man in his time plays many parts, His acts being seven ages."

Shakespeare refers to this aspect of human life, not in his lighter moods, but when meditative and in sober sadness. As where Lear, in the extremity of his distraction, intent on preaching to Gloucester, takes for his text the wall of infancy, crying the first time that it smells the air:

"When we are born, we cry, that we are come

To this great stage of fools."

Or again, as where Antonio, the care-fraught Merchant of Venice, assured by a friend that he is looking far from well, indeed "marvelously changed," replied—"I hold the world but as the world, Gratiano, A stage where every man must play a part, And mine a sad one."

But the idea was a familiar one long before Shakespeare. Petronius Arbiter, the licentious friend of the Emperor Nero, said: "All the world practices the art of acting." Another old Roman said: "There's not in all the world a character the players won't act," and Lucretius added: "They conceal that part of their life which is passed behind the scenes," where the actors dress and make-up for their parts.

Earlier still, among the ancient Greeks who loved the Drama dearly, one said: "Life is a stage, a play; so learn thy part.

All cares removed, or rend with grief thy heart." In deed, in every nation, the art of imitation has been cultivated to a greater or less extent, and it seems as natural a thing as the imitation of his elders by a little child.

Personally, I am glad that the great Apostle could find room for at least a passing reference to the Stage in this wonderful Epistle.

Space prevents me telling of the Miracle Plays used by the Church in the Middle Ages for instruction in religious history, often given in the Churches and sometimes outside in the churchyards; or, how from this religious origin the modern Drama has evolved. The Puritans divorced Drama from the Church—to the injury of both. Today, the Church is endeavoring to redeem the Stage to the service of God and make it a magnificent method of instruction as well as of amusement.

There are two practical thoughts flowing out of this topic:

First. In the great drama of life, "Act well thy part; there all the moral lies."

Do not quarrel with your part, but play the game to the best of your ability. Epictetus, the stoic philosopher, said wisely: "Remember so to act your part upon this stage as to be approved by the Master. It is your duty to perform well what you represent—it is his to choose what that shall be."

Second. Remember the reason offered by the Apostle for our right and righteous acting: "The fashion of this world passeth away."

The stage-scenery by which you are surrounded today is a shifting scenery. The very part you play in the dramatis personae of life is a temporary part. The theatre, too, in which the drama of human experience is being unfolded, will pass away when the heavens are rolled together as a scroll and the elements melt with fervent heat. "The grass withereth and the flower fadeth!"

All things are transient, Life appears as a transitory show, a phantasmagoria, a succession of shadowy shapes passing along the screen in this moving picture arranged by a master hand. "The fashion of this world passeth away."

Yes, but underneath the "flux" of things there is something steadfast. Beneath the phantom there is a reality. There is a substance that casts these shadows. There is the Eternal manifested in this transient. "The Word of the Lord endureth forever."

For years I could not understand the text "God is not a respecter of persons." It seemed to me that a just God must make distinctions between the wicked and the good. Then I found out that the word "persons" came from the Latin "personae," and meant, originally, the mask worn by the actor in the role that he played, and the verse became clear.

God does not value the caste you may be assigned; He does not regard the mask or the part. But He "looketh upon the heart" of the player, and He does value the spirit in which you and I carry out the role which has been given us.

The "masks" of this present life passeth away; but the personality of the actor will persist through the ages if filled with His Spirit.

When the curtain is rung down on the empty theatre of Time, may we find Him, the Eternal and Unchanging One, to be our joy and peace, and our Everlasting Friend.

CABLE LETTER

London, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Fourteen little sons and daughters of famous actresses and actors are to participate in a production of Sir James M. Barrie's "Admirable Crichton" to be given in London in a matinee performance this month.

Gladys Cooper, Marie Lohr, Sybil Thorndyke, Viola Tree, Nigel Playfair and several other well known stage parents brought their children to the first rehearsal.

Little Mary Casson, the 11 year-old daughter of Sybil Thorndyke, the actress, who has greatly augmented her fame by her interpretation of the title role in Shaw's "Saint Joan," was the heroine of the rehearsal. She came without her part and when someone asked her if she had left her lines at home the little lady indignantly replied: "I have learned my lines and do not need any book."

And she really had. She was letter perfect and spoke her lines with a low, well modulated voice, which showed she had been coached by England's preeminent actress. She plays the role of Tweedy.

Marie Lohr's little daughter, Jane Prinsep, is cast for the role of Lady Agatha and Gladys Cooper's son, Master John Backfaster, is cast for the Honorable Ernest.

By appearing in one of the latest "dinner coats" for ladies, Princess Mary has set the seal of royal approval on another of society's fads. The "dinner coat" was designed and worn during the recent cold spell, and has proved so popular that it is being used now that the weather is milder. There are a variety of styles, mostly short like a man's tuxedo and made of taffeta lined with velvet. Others are somewhat longer, in bright colored chiffon velvets, the cut being straight with long, wide sleeves and bell opening at the wrists.

Paris, Jan. 9.—(AP)—When St. Joan of Arc's day comes again—next May 9, the foundation stone for a new church in her honor will be laid in Paris, in fulfillment of a vow made to her in the dark days of Early September, 1914, when the Germans seemed destined to occupy Paris.

The late Cardinal Amette, then archbishop of Paris, made a solemn vow in the cathedral of Notre Dame that if France were victorious the Catholics of the country would build a church to Saint Joan as a thanks offering.

Plans for the church have been drafted and a site covering 30,000 square feet purchased between Paris and the suburbs of St. Denis. It was here that Joan prayed before her troops made their attempt to re-capture Paris from the Dauphin's enemies and where she prayed after the failure of that ill-advised attempt, in which she was wounded by an arrow.

The greater talkativeness of the chamber of deputies as compared with its predecessors is costing France more than a million francs a year. The appropriation for printing the proceedings of the lower house was formerly 1,500,000 francs. Last year that sum was exceeded by 1,100,000 francs. Other expenses of running the chamber increased 1,500,000 a year, leaving a deficit of more than two million francs at the end of the year.

Night sessions netted largely into the increase, while the deputies consumed more letter paper than ever before. This extravagance is explained by the fact that since 1924 the deputies are allowed to send their letters free of postage. The total cost of running the chamber is about 28,000,000 francs.

The unusually severe weather in Paris this winter, with heavy snow-falls, has caused an innovation in women's styles, which for once cannot be called illogical. Fur stockings made their first appearance in the Bois de Boulogne when it lay, buried under three inches of snow.

Those seen thus far are made of rabbit, squirrel and skunk skins, are worn with heavy low shoes and reach just above the knee.

The fact that shoes have to be worn a size larger than is usually necessary and the high cost of the material has thus far prevented the new stockings from becoming common and this silk stockings are still in the overwhelming majority.

Berlin, Jan. 9.—(AP)—The United States leads the world in the excellence of its public and university libraries, in the opinion of Dr. Wilhelm Riedner, chief librarian of the state library of Munich, who has just returned from America, where he supervised a German book exhibit at Columbia University.

In respect of physical equipment and methods of administration, American libraries are far ahead of those of Europe, Dr. Riedner said.

"Any European visiting the public libraries of New York or Chicago, must turn green with envy," he asserted.

Dr. Riedner made a personal report to President Hindenburg, who expressed gratification over the progress made in the resumption of cultural relations between Germany and the United States.

MRS. PERSON'S ANNUAL REPORT OF TUBERCULOSIS FUND TO WOMAN'S CLUB

It is entirely fitting that the individual club member, as well as the public generally should know just where the money from the sale of Christmas Seals goes.

Below is a statement in full of receipts and disbursements from January 1, 1925 to January 1, 1926:

To balance in bank $57.87, receipts from seal sale $173.84, making a total of $231.71.

Total disbursements $191.14, leaving a balance of $39.77.

Under the head miscellaneous, I want to say that from this amount quite a few people have been rendered assistance in varying degrees, including milk, groceries, and attention. Some of them were colored people.

The Woman's Club as a whole, and Mrs. Alex Viola as chairman of Health Department wish to express their sincere appreciation for the generous support of the community in the sale of Christmas Seals this past Christmas. When the real significance of this work sinks into the hearts of the people, we will not have to solicit purchasers of seals, but each individual will be asking for a place and a part in this mighty movement of stamping out tuberculosis.

The Inside Story of 'The Wanderer' By JESSE L. LASKY

It was several years ago, in December, 1921, to be exact, that I sat in the second row of the Manhattan Opera House in New York awaiting the rise of the curtain for the evening performance of Maurice Y. Stumpe's stage spectacle, 'The Wanderer,' from the Biblical parable of the Prodigal Son.

For several weeks, from all sides, I had listened to countless words of praise for the play. Finally, I had determined to see it myself. I had witnessed a dozen plays within the past few weeks. While they were excellent as stage productions, none of them was of particular appeal as motion picture material. It was for this reason, as I sat there, I was not overly enthusiastic.

The overture ended and the curtain rose.

During the first five minutes I maintained my indifferent attitude. Then the plot started to unfold. Gradually, as scene after scene transpired before me, everything else faded except what was taking place upon the stage. Gradually, too, the words of the characters became dim in my ears, and I visualized the spectacle as a gigantic motion picture.

I left the theatre, enthusiastic but bewildered. I had just seen the nucleus of a marvelous photoplay. But one fear gripped me — one question flared before me. Was the art of the motion picture sufficiently developed to guarantee the results the story demanded? Was photography yet at a stage where it could do justice to a production of such magnitude and force? I decided in the negative.

Following a conference the next day with other Paramount officials, it was decided to purchase the motion picture rights to the spectacle and hold the production in reserve, to await the day when the art of motion pictures had advanced to the stage where full justice could be done the story. It was too beautiful a theme, too sacred a task to risk a failure. In my mind's eye I had visions of some of the production being done in natural color. It would have been sheer folly then to have attempted it. The story was purchased and put aside for the future.

A year passed — 'The Covered Wagon' was filmed. Came 1923. We filmed 'The Ten Commandments.' The art of photography was advancing by strides. The name 'Wanderer of the Wasteland,' a production done entirely in natural colors. It proved a tremendous success. Last year brought 'Peter Pan,' one of the greatest achievements in the history of creative motion pictures.

Through these years we had 'The Wanderer' always in mind, awaiting the day when the art of the motion picture could do justice to the theme, and also awaiting the director ideally suited to assume the responsibility.

From time to time various directors came to me and begged for the opportunity to handle this gigantic assignment. It was not merely that we wanted a great director to take over the task — at a time when we felt the development of motion pictures made possible a proper filming of this masterpiece — but that we wanted a director who could visualize the picture as we visioned it, who would put his heart and soul into the making as a director had never done before, who would direct it from sheer enthusiasm and love more than anything else.

One morning, while at the Paramount West Coast studio, my secretary announced that Mr. Raoul Walsh wished to see me. Mr. Walsh had learned that we possessed the motion picture rights to 'The Wanderer' and asked to be given the opportunity to put the spectacle upon the screen. Since the start of motion picture, Mr. Walsh declared, he had visualized the parable of the prodigal son as a photoplay. In his own words he outlined his idea of the screen play, the picture as he thought it should be filmed. Our ideas were parallel.

Although James Esposito, five, has just won $20,000 by a Brooklyn, N. Y., court verdict for loss of his leg under a city truck, he's not happy about it. He'd rather scamper and play with his little pals.

At last we had found the man to direct the picture. Aside from the fact that Mr. Walsh was fitted by tradition and love for the parable, he was the director who produced 'The Thief of Bagdad,' one of the screen's greatest spectacles.

James T. O'Donohue, who had written the scenario for more than a score of successful pictures, and who was Mr. Walsh's right-hand man as well, was assigned to the task of preparing the screen version of 'The Wanderer.' Many months were spent in reading and research work even before the first line was written. When the adaptation was completed I found, to my delight, it was exactly as I had pictured it.

Choosing the players for 'The Wanderer' proved a difficult task. William Collier, Jr., who plays the title role was selected from a group of more than one hundred applicants. Fully thirty screen tests were made and scores after scores of candidates were interviewed before Collier was chosen. Ernest Torrence was selected as 'Tala,' the evil one, and Wallace Beery was chosen as the drunken sailor, Greta Nissen, because of her ability as a pantomimic dancer, and also because Famous Players-Lasky Corporation firmly believes her to be one of the greatest discoveries in the history of the film industry, was picked for the part of 'Tisha,' the siren.

Tyrone Power, who plays 'Jesse' patriarch of Hebron, had a long, successful stage career behind him and blended into the part perfectly. Kathryn Williams was chosen as the mother, 'Huldah,' because of her ability to create sympathetic parts and beauty of character. And Kathryn Hill as 'Naomi.'

It is my firm belief that the cast of 'The Wanderer' is truly outstanding and that the production itself will stand out as a glowing example of beauty and perfect cinema photoplay for many years to come.

ed on the east by lots Nos. 4, 5 and 6; on the south by Sixth Street; on the west by lot No. 7, 11 and on the north by lot No. 7, and being the same lot conveyed by John T. Thorne to M. L. Manning, and by Manning and wife to Sarah Dennis, and from W. B. Dennis and wife to M. V. Cannon.

Default having been made in the payment of the notes secured by above Deed of Trust this sale is made to satisfy the terms of the said Deed of Trust.

The greatest doctors in Europe told E. H. Harriman's relatives that he need not have died so young, had he taken good light wine in moderation, to help his digestion.

Other doctors said that President Harding died of indigestion because he continued to eat heartily, after swearing off completely.

But you know that Stan always finds arguments, and, anyhow, no indigestion is worse than the boot-leg poison that men take for indigestion now.

Fifty men and women visited Theodore Roosevelt's grave yesterday, the seventh anniversary of his death.

How quickly men fade into the background after death gets them. Dead only seven years, and Roosevelt is as much a memory, a part of the past, as Harrison or Garfield.

The Shipping Board, recently selling some ships and burning up others, now asks permission to build two huge ocean liners.

Somebody will make money out of that suggestion if it goes through. But will that somebody be the American public that will pay for the new boats? If you were compelled to bet on that, how would you bet?

PITT COUNTY'S OLDEST PUBLIC BUILDING NOW BEING RAISED

of John Hardee, situated three miles east of Greenville on the south side of Tar River, now on the north side of the paved highway leading from Greenville to Washington, was adopted as a courthouse, and was so used for approximately twenty-five years. So far as the records disclose this residence was standing in 1740, how much prior to that no record reveals. Having been adopted as the courthouse for Pitt County it became the center of Pitt's activities and soon thereafter became the town of Martinboro, and remained such until about 1785. In 1770 the present town of Greenville was established by a Legislature Act, but the said government remained at Martinboro until about 1785 when it was transferred to Greenville.

One of the unusual marks about this old courthouse, was the very large chimney made of brick about 16 feet broad, the brick being imported from England and varied in color. On the black brick which were placed in the back of the chimney were the letters "I. H. S." and remained distinctly visible until its destruction a few days ago. This probably has some connection with the fact that the law establishing Pitt County, designated as St. Michael's Parish, and this old residence as a parish house, and it is certain that this hollowed inscription was created in this chimney long before it was designated as a parish house. It must have indicated the idea of John Hardee, the builder.

During the past few years the property which is a part of a plot of about 150 acres of good farm land has changed hands several times. Last year an effort was made by some of the societies of the county interested in historical events of that period and since, to have the building spared and used for the preservation of papers and other things of a historical nature. This, however, never materialized, and when the property changed hands a few weeks ago, the new owner immediately began its destruction to replace it on the same site with a modernly constructed dwelling. While they failed in their efforts to save the building, the historical societies have acquired numerous fragments from the ruins which they expect to retain for their historical value.

PLAN FOR LEAGUE TOWN MEET NEED FOR POWER IN EASTERN CAROLINA

edy for those who have to move away, abandoning thus their real inheritance of wholesome country life; there is tragedy, too, for those who have to stay, with conditions as they are today in the lives of Eastern Carolina farmers. Worn faces of farmer-folks tell the story of long, weary hours spent at tasks about the house and farm that sap the strength of minds and souls as well as that of bodies, leaving little hope and enthusiasm for the search for better things. Yet, in this age of electrical invention, these same tasks might skillfully be done in the space of a few pleasant hours, leaving time and strength for the development of other things most needful. Eastern Carolina's wealth lies in her soil, speaking from a material standpoint, and Eastern Carolina is immensely wealthy. It is not time that she gave some thought toward providing the means of a happier existence for the tillers of her valuable soil?

Recently there have been unmistakable indications that thoughtful, constructive citizens of Eastern North Carolina have begun to think on these things, and not only to think, but to act. For some time the conviction has been growing in the minds of those who have studied the situation that one of the most vital needs in Eastern Carolina growth and development is cheap electric power available to towns and country districts alike. The discussion of how to secure this power has brought forth many suggestions, of which the one made by F. M. Wooten, of Greenville, at a meeting of the Greenville Aldermen, and heartily endorsed by them, has found the most favorable reception. This suggestion was that a number of Eastern Carolina towns—Kinston, New Bern, Washington, Greenville, Snow Hill, Ayden, Farmville, Tarboro, Rocky Mount, Wilson, and probably others, should form a League of Towns for the avowed purpose of securing cheap power for their own use and for the rural districts adjoining them. These towns should simply extend their lines to form a big circuit, in this manner supplying from the municipal plants already existing, sufficient power for the towns themselves and for their surrounding rural districts.

At the invitation of officials of the Greenville power plant, a group of fifty representative men from many of the towns named—power officials, mayors, ex-mayors, and other interested citizens—met in Greenville a few weeks ago for the consideration of the League of Towns plan, and after hearing it discussed, expressed themselves as being ready to give the idea of the League of Towns serious and constructive consideration, the general belief that it would be a practical, economical, workable plan. A steering committee was appointed to carry on further investigations, etc., reporting its findings at a meeting to be held in the near future. M. Schwartz, head of Greenville's power plant, was appointed to head the committee.

In a section chiefly agricultural, as is this section of North Carolina, the development of the towns is in great measure dependent upon the development of surrounding rural districts, hence, any movement designed to benefit either town people or country folks would work as a leaven in the whole big lump—and in the minds of those whose opinions are valuable, electric power is a mighty leaven. The machinery for producing the needed power is ready and at hand, and Eastern Carolina towns today have the opportunity to take the lead in a movement that would bring honor and benefit to themselves as well as a blessing to those who need it most, the farmer-folks of Eastern North Carolina.

Daily News Letter

Gossip of Staff Correspondents at World Centers of Population.

Manila, P. I., Jan. 9.—(I.N.S.)—Recently when Governor General Wood was on an inspection trip in southern Luzon, he surprised the natives by riding in a caraboa cart with a soap box for a seat. The road leading from the wharf, where his yacht, the Apo, was docked, to the barrin was impassable for a motor; so, rather than give up his trip the Governor General went native fashion in a cumbersome two-wheel cart drawn by a big awkward caraboa, as the water buffalo of the Philippines is called. The ride lasted for over an hour and many a native stared in open-mouth amazement to see the Governor General riding in this humble fashion.

The Bureau of non-Christian Trades is planning to give surrogates to all non-Christians, especially to the Moros. They claim that a goodly number of the non-Christians are called by the same name, and that the authorities have great difficulties in identifying individuals, because of lack of surnames. The Manila Daily Bulletin says, editorially.

"We are looking forward to the pleasure of meeting an honest-to-goodness Moro whom we can address as 'de Jesus.'"

Health officials have filed charges against the Bureau of Supply for furnishing the Government with drugs not in accordance with the proper standard prescribed in the United States pharmacopoeia.

Health officials allege that in several instances, medicines furnished by the Bureau of Supply were lacking in curative properties. It was recently found that quinine tablets received contained only 3.23 grains instead of 5 grains, while tincture of iodine was discovered to contain only 24.04 of free iodine instead of 75 grams.

Supplies for all Government offices are secured by requisitions on the Bureau of Supplies instead of by direct purchase. In many cases, the material's furnished are of most inferior quality and it is alleged that there is much graft involved in their purchase.

Licorio Dumadage, of Bohol, record-holder of sixteen convictions on the charges of estafa, with a total sentence of imprisonment amounting to 110 years, 10 months and 14 days, has petitioned Governor General Wood to grant him a conditional pardon, which was favorably recommended by the judge who found him guilty on all the charges preferred against him. Dumadage is thirty years old.

Extension by the Government to the Sultan of Magindanao of privileges now enjoyed by the Sultan of Sulu is advocated by Senator Hadji Butu, the Moro senator appointed by Governor General Wood. Hadji Butu thinks this would prove a means of securing for the Government the friendship of the Sultan, who is one of the two leading Moro chieftains.

The Sultan of Sulu has been granted free title to extensive public lands in Jobo and enjoys besides a certain amount of pension from the government.
