

M'LEAN RETURNS SEALED LETTER TO SHACKLETTE

Governor Says Shacklette Using Every Means to Prevent Orderly Investigation of Charges Hanging Over Sink

Raleigh, April 7.—(AP)—When Chaplain William S. Shacklette of State Prison is ready to submit the information on which "charges" in pardon sales against H. Hoyle Sink, Pardon Commissioner, are based without attached conditions to the submission thereof, then the matter will be further considered by the governor.

This was the net result of two sessions of a hearing called by Attorney General Brummitt yesterday to investigate the charges at the direction of Governor McLean. Mr. Shacklette, through his attorney J. W. Bailey, submitted a sealed letter to the governor with the condition that it was not opened until the governor had guaranteed that the persons furnishing the information alleged to be in the letter bearing on pardon trafficking were promised full protection from any prejudice against them by those in authority over them. It was stated a number of the informants were prisoners.

Governor McLean returned the letter unopened with the statement when Mr. Shacklette was ready to submit his "charges" or "information" to him as governor and rely upon the governor's office that justice would be meted out by the informants and without any conditions attached to furnishing the information then the executive stood ready to consider the information.

Mr. Bailey for Mr. Shacklette had nothing further to say in the matter at this time. Previously A. L. Cox, attorney for Mr. Sink had urged that the matter be dealt with at once in order that Mr. Sink be removed from the "unavoidable position" of being under charges.

In his letter returning the sealed envelope the governor said that it was clear to him that Mr. Shacklette was using every means to prevent an orderly investigation of the charges hanging over Mr. Sink and instead of aiding in the matter of investigation was hindering the progress of such investigation.

Neither Mr. Sink nor Mr. Shacklette had anything further to say on the matter early today.

Amherst Girls Tabulate Sheik Records of Boys

Amherst, Mass., Apr. 7.—(INS)—Amherst College boys are today face to face with an ultimatum from the co-ed friends that practically amounts to choosing one girl for their entire attention, or going without any.

Suspicious of their boy friends the co-eds at Amherst discovered that some of them were being used as "replacements" or to fill in when other girls were not available. Today the girls have a more complete history of each youth in the college than the college authorities. His whole record is an open book to all the girls and some young fellows are in for a tough time to find partners at various social functions.

American Hostesses Shy At High Rents London Mansions

London, Apr. 7.—(INS)—American hostesses not having rented London mansions for this season in the numbers which were anticipated, many of the owners are finding themselves faced with a considerable loss, over the decorations and renovations undertaken in expectation of an American invasion on a par with those of other years.

Many American women are finding it more convenient—and much cheaper—to take over large suites in the leading London hotels, rather than saddle themselves with the care, worry and servant problems of large London mansions.

So few "at homes" will apparently be given at the large houses this season that cynics are saying that Buckingham Palace will be the only Town house for which invitation is issued.

The Machinery of Death

The modern method of hanging prepared for Gerald Chapman is illustrated in this artist's sketch, drawn from a description by persons who had examined the mechanism. The warden (on left) steps on a treadle, which releases a spring, dropping a 300-pound weight and jerking the condemned man to the ceiling, from which he drops, making certain the neck is broken.

ANNA CASE WILL APPEAR TONIGHT

Reached Greenville At Noon Today and Will Give Concert At Exposition at 9 O'clock

Anna Case, "America's operatic sweetheart," arrived in Greenville at noon today, and this evening at 9 o'clock, will give a concert at the Eastern Carolina Exposition.

Miss Case was scheduled to reach Greenville yesterday for a concert last night, but was routed to Greenville, S. C., instead of Greenville, N. C.

The Fashion Show will be staged at 7:30 o'clock, and the concert will follow, beginning at 9 o'clock.

With the double bill, Anna Case and the Fashion Show, this evening's program promises to be great.

DARE-DEVIL VEE WILL "LEAP FOR LIFE" FRIDAY

Interpid Youth to Hop From Automobile Going at Rapid Rate, in Front Harper-Bailey Motor Co.

"Dare Devil" Vee, who seems intent on giving Greenville people some real thrill, will on Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock in front of Harper & Bailey Motor Co., Five Points, make his "leap for life." He hops from the rear of an automobile speeding down the street at sixty-five miles an hour and for the tug of war between himself and two cars, after his first stunt has been completed, providing he is alive and in condition to continue the performance.

The stunt of leaping from the rear of a rapidly moving automobile has been successfully pulled off on race tracks, but this will be the first time so far as is known that the jumper has selected a perfectly hard and paved thoroughfare as a landing spot.

Vee declares that he can do it successfully and that at the conclusion he will be in readiness and able to hold two automobiles—each pulling in opposite directions.

The show is free. Mr. Vee comes to Greenville under the auspices of Harper & Bailey Motor Company. The public is cordially invited to see Vee flit with his doom.

G. O. P. CONVENTION BE HELD DURHAM

Battle Looms Between Butler and Bramham in Advance of Meeting Which Opens Tomorrow

Durham, Apr. 7.—(AP)—Republicans of North Carolina will meet here tomorrow for their state convention. Frank W. Mondell, of Wyoming, will deliver the keynote address of the convention, while James J. Britt, of Asheville, has been named as temporary chairman of the convention.

In advance of the meeting a battle loomed between former Senator Marion Butler and State Chairman W. G. Bramham, of the plans of organization, which the convention will adopt. Mr. Bramham some time ago indicated he might retire as chairman, but in the face of the fight which is expected to take place between his forces and those of Mr. Butler it was doubtful today if the convention would receive his resignation. Business before the organization will be the nomination of the Republican candidate for the Senate, adoption of the platform for this candidate and others to go before the people on, and the settlement of the fight over the plan of organization.

Wilkins and pilot Ben Eillson landed safely at Circle City, about 150 miles northeast of Fairbanks, Alaska, yesterday afternoon. Hanged By the Neck.
Liver for Babies.
Immortality, or Nothing.
To Enjoin Chaplains.
By ARTHUR BRISBANE

As you read this, Chapman will have been "hanged by the neck until dead," for killing a policeman. Capital punishment is out of place in a civilized nation. But while capital punishment stands, it should be applied to such men as Chapman.

His appeal for mercy before the pardons board in Connecticut was dramatic and pitiful. Denouncing the district attorney that convicted him, he said of his hanging, "I think it is pretty rotten." Chapman's lawyer said his client "did not have a dog's chance." But killing a policeman doing his duty was also "pretty rotten," and that policeman did not have a dog's chance.

Chapman was, in part, the result of our apparently unavoidable system of education in crime. He had been for years an ordinary sneak thief, of a mean kind, swindling women. Then prison term brought him in contact with "Dutch" Anderson, a more desperate criminal, who explained to him the advantages of "higher crimes." Both were in Atlanta's Federal Prison. Both escaped, Chapman twice.

"Dutch" Anderson, pursued by a young detective, shot and mortally wounded his pursuer. But as the courageous young man lay dying, he shot his murderer dead.

Now the hangman confers upon Chapman the last and highest "degree" of the university of crime.

We are, first, what our parents and distant ancestors make us; second, what our surroundings make us, and third, what WE EAT.

Dr. E. H. Fishberg, from Germany, says the new crop of babies is superior to the war-born babies. The latter, half starved, now ten to fourteen years of age, have the minds of normal children aged 4.

Dr. Fishberg's news is that German babies, fed on chopped liver, thrive on it because of its richness in vitamins. Babies in Berlin's charity hospital get no milk after the age of two months, and chopped liver makes them grow to be sturdy and beautiful human specimens.

But don't change your baby from milk to chopped liver without asking the doctor.

Many clergymen on Sunday preached on mortality, as well they might, EVERY SUNDAY. To those now living the only IMPORTANT question is, shall we live hereafter.

Rev. C. E. Wagner, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, says belief in immortality is growing feeble. He knows, undoubtedly, but the statement is amazing.

What is worth while if the hope of immortality be taken away? "The satisfaction of providing for your children, which is a kind of immortality," you may say. What satisfaction is that, if children in their turn are born only to die and forever remain dead?

But immortality IS real. Matter and force are indestructible. Would the wisdom that controls this universe doom CONSCIOUSNESS, the light of the soul, to eternal death, while giving perpetuity existence to force and matter?

Mr. Elliott, of Jamaica, L. I., who represents atheists, wants an injunction forbidding the government to spend money on army and navy chaplains and chaplains serving in Congress. To push this demand the "American Association for the Advancement of Atheism" plans a banquet in Washington.

The army has 125 chaplains, the navy 86, in the officers reserve corps, and national guard, 1200 clergymen, priests, and rabbis hold commissions.

The demand of the atheists is silly and unpatriotic. If anything in this world needs praying for it is Congress, the army and the navy of the United States—especially the aviation departments. Two chaplains should pray right and day for them.

HON. TASKER POLK ADDRESSES MEMBERS OF LEGION POSTS

Second Day's Program Featured by American Legion Program; Smithfield Wins Attendance Prize; Specht's Orchestra and "Billie" Burke Feature Evening's Program

The second day of the Eastern Carolina Exposition and Fashion Show was featured with a program of the American Legion, the afternoon being exclusively for the Legionnaires.

The exercises were opened with a parade which was participated in by the marshals, several hundred ex-service men, and many prominent military officers, and Hon. Tasker Polk, of Warrenton, who delivered the principal address of the day.

The exercises were held in the Auditorium of the Exposition hall. The speakers preceding Mr. Polk included Lieutenant Bryan and Colonel Merrill of Fort Bragg. Following these, First District Committeeman A. B. Corey presented Mr. Polk, who in glowing words retained his usual reputation as one of the South's outstanding orators.

The speaker reviewed every phase of the world struggle, refreshing the minds of the comrades with their life experiences and quoted the Bible and such writers as Shakespeare in presenting his thoughts. Mr. Polk said that the people had been made to realize that it was not the hosts of the Allied force, marching on to Marne and Verdun that won the victory, but that it was the hand of the omnipotent God.

The Exposition building was filled with legionnaires, members of the Legion Auxiliary and their friends. Legion posts from several towns of Eastern Carolina were represented. Smithfield was presenting the loving cup for scoring the best percentage of membership in attendance, fifty members, of the Smithfield post being present.

Dr. Charles O'H. Laughinghouse one of the outstanding figures in the ranks of the service men of the state, made the speech of presentation.

Little Miss Woodard, aged 8 years, of Wilson, delighted the large audience with aesthetic dances.

Evening's Program
Last evening's program was featured by a concert by Paul Specht's orchestra, specialty dances by Mr. Conkling, leader of the orchestra, and a short sketch by "Billie" Burke, humorist, of Richmond, Va.

Mr. Conkling delighted the large audience with a solo "O Little Girl, Take Me Back to Your Heart," which is his own composition. He also repeated his exhibition of the Charleston and gave several other specialty numbers.

Mr. Burke is connected with the Tower Binford Electric Company in Richmond, and was a visitor to Greenville yesterday. As soon as it was learned that Anna Case would not be here for her concert which was to feature last evening's program, Mr. Burke was appealed to to take part in the evening's program. He consented and his sketch was a real treat and proved most enjoyable.

Today's Programs
This afternoon's program was featured by the presentation of the Junior Queens and the Eastern Carolina Teachers College program.

The Fashion Show with beautiful living models will feature the evening's program. This will be a wonderful number of out of town models will appear for the local merchants in addition to the local models.

Defeats Washington Baseball Team By Score of 4-2, in Slow Game

The Greenville high baseball team won their second victory of the season yesterday by defeating the Washington high team by the score of 4-2.

The game was featured by wind, errors and dust, these factors were in the main responsible for the slowness of the game.

The game was more or less a plinking duel between Forbes and Potts, each putting away their proportionate share by the strike out route. Forbes counting for 15 strike outs, Harrington led the stick attack for Greenville with a double and a triple out of four trips to the plate.

Greenville meets the Washington Collegiate Institute here on Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Charges Farmers Representatives With Changing Position
Washington, Apr. 7.—(AP)—Charges that farmers representatives in Washington had changed their position in advocating the leasing of Muscle Shoals were made today at a meeting of the Senate Agriculture Committee by Benjamin C. Marsh, who said he was managing director of the Farmers National Council. The charges drew a warm protest of General Hefflin, Democrat of Alabama, who left the room five minutes before the committee adjourned. Marsh said that E. O. Bradford, former president of the Farm Bureau Federation and L. G. Taylor, master of the National League, had changed their positions after they had been named by President Coolidge on the National Farm Advisory Council and that he "noticed now that Taylor had been named a representative of the United States on the International Institution of Agriculture."

During the argument Senator Hefflin suggested that "Chester Gray and the other gentlemen, this witness is attacking be called in."

He told Marsh that he could continue "if you tell the truth" and added that the "charge that the leasing of Muscle Shoals was a sell-out is not true."

Douglas Robinson
On Classes and
Is Not Missing
Cambridge, Mass., Apr. 7.—(AP)—Douglas Robinson, son of the Assistant Secretary of the Navy, was at his classes today unaware that his family had started search for him on a report that he was missing.

While his father prepared to make an airplane flight from Washington to aid in the search for his son, and his mother had gone to Boston for the same purpose, young Robinson was going about his daily routine oblivious from a slight illness.

Cambridge, Mass., Apr. 7.—(AP)—Mystery surrounded the reported disappearance today of Douglas Robinson, son of the Assistant Secretary of the Navy.

The young man is a sophomore at Harvard University. Although it was said officially a Harvard that he had been attending classes through the morning no one could be found who had seen him. At his rooming house on Linden Street, all information concerning his whereabouts was refused and Miss Malone, who manages the house, would not say whether he spent the night in his room.

Earlier in the day it had reported that he had gone to New York, but later refused to confirm or deny this statement.

Daily News Letter

Gossip of Staff Correspondents at World Centers of Population.

By H. R. KNICKBOCKER, INS Staff Correspondent.

Moscow, April 6.—Is America a slaver?
This strange addition to the world's stock of foolish questions has aroused a new controversy between Russian Communist leaders which threatens to banish their interest in the world revolution to the back page.

So far Leon Trotsky has done valiant defense of America's reputation as the most efficient country in the world, and has won a large majority of popular votes. He has confirmed the well-founded Russian intuition that America is no false-alarm, but a regular three-bell fire, requiring constant attention from the chief himself.

Only for a moment was the confidence of the Russians in general all-round technical superiority of America shaken. It is one of their favorite beliefs, and the wavering was only temporary when "Professor" Valerian Valerianovich Ossinsky, one-time Soviet ambassador to Sweden, and now chief statistician of the government took the platform and endeavored to prove that America is after all, a backward country, just a sort of tank-town nation.

"Professor" Ossinsky had just returned from a six-month tour of America, made for the express purpose of "dispelling the popular illusions" which point that country in rosy colors even in the land of the clear-eyed Bolsheviks. He came back completely satisfied with his findings and reported them to a packed house in the Polytechnic Museum, which, however, unfortunately for him, contained a large number of persons who had also been in America.

"We know America chiefly from romantic novels, and our ideas about it are fantastic," opened up the "Professor." We think that American technique is perfect, but take their soap for example. It is rotten. And their safety razor blades! Why, Americans have to use a new one every morning. "I wore an American suit of clothes six months. It was wretched."

"When I bought matches, they gave me a box marked 'made in Latvia.' You see, they can't even make matches in America."

"American railroads are rarely on time. During my travels, 75 per cent of the trains were late, from ten minutes to three hours. And the trains started with such a jolt, they almost broke my neck."

"American telephones are abominable. You have to scream, shout, and then send a telegram."

"And what about those workmen in America who own their own automobiles? Why, while I was there, a lot of these workmen lost their jobs and went around begging gasoline for their cars."

The "Professor" was perfectly serious at this point, but the laughter nearly broke up his audience. Proceeding obviously, he said: "The psychology of the pioneer in America has disappeared. The old folks do nothing but play golf, the silliest game in the world, and the young ones are corrupt."

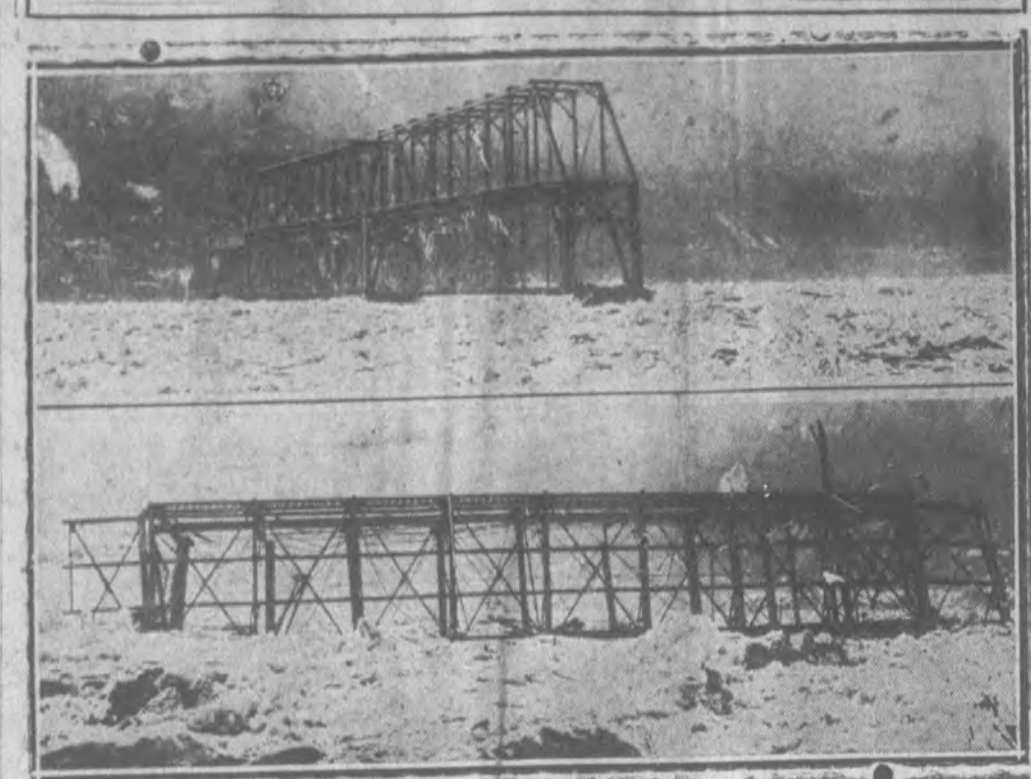

"The best thing in America is Russian art. Ninety per cent of all the art, music, acting, and painting in America is foreign, and 50 per cent is Russian."

"All art in America is very low, except the jazz bands."

A few days later Leon Trotsky, idol of Moscow, answered the "Professor." In a speech before an audience which paid from $3 to $15 a seat and packed one of the largest theatres in Moscow.

Trotsky, as is well-known, has also been in America. But not, as he was careful to emphasize, as a tourist.

LIBRARY NEWS

Our Slogan: "Let the Library Serve Greenville"

Library Hours—2 to 6 P. M. and 7 to 9:30 P. M.

The definite program of the Greenville Public Library is most noticeable in the fact that it has become necessary to employ an associate librarian. We are indeed fortunate in securing the services of Miss Alice Foley as our assistant. Miss Foley is a graduate of the Greenville High School and is now a student of the East Carolina Teachers College. With her help the circulation of books and calls for reference as well as the many phases of regular routine will be cared for in an efficient manner.

New Books is the topic for this week and we have them from so many sources that it will be difficult to tabulate them correctly. First comes the gifts which are always very welcome not only because of the book itself, but also because of the generous and thoughtful spirit of the giver.

Mrs. N. B. Herring has given "A Heap o' Livin'" by Gjest; "Wildfire" by Grey; "A Court of Inquiry" by Grace Richmond. Miss Flournoy from the Library Commission, presented a French-English dictionary, also "Cargoes for Crusoes," by Grant Overton in which he gives interesting facts and incidents in the lives of contemporary writers who have not yet been "biographed." From the State Commission we also have a copy of "North Carolina, the Land of Opportunity," by the State Board of Agriculture. This is a very interesting book epitomizing the progress and development of North Carolina during the past ten years, emphasizing especially farming, manufacturing, transportation, education and health. From the Beechnut Packing Company comes an interesting book, "Grocery Clerks Who Have Become Successful," which is meant especially for the benefit of grocery salesmen, but which is interesting reading for everybody. "In His Service," by Louis C. Jenks and presented by him, is an attractive and an impressive tribute to Mrs. Louise Jenks with "the object that good may be created by good example."

The Library Commission has purchased and has in circulation the following list of books—
Non Fiction—"Dollars Only," by Edward W. Bok in which he denounced the pursuit of dollars only. Although commercial endeavor is of importance and value the element of service must have its place. "Public Speaking for Business Men," by Sidney F. Wicks, is at once amusing, instructive and inspiring. No tamer setting forth of mechanical rules but the inspiration for logical, vivid and downright speech of the sincere man. "Understanding Our Children," by F. Pierce (is the work of a psychologist who has had personal knowledge of thousands of children and presents this book to all who have children in charge. "The Fun Book," by Edna Geister, is a series of 50 games that will prove delightful and helpful in the entertainment of children. In the "American Holiday" series by Rice and Schaffner are Easter and Mother's Day, both of which contain the history, celebration, spirit and significance as related in prose and verse.
Under Fiction comes the rental collection with "Unchanging Quest" by Phillip Gibbs; "Glass Houses," by Eleanor Gizeycka; "The Professor's House," by Willy Cather; "The Lady of the Abbey," by Birmingham; "Shepherds," by Marie Conway Oemler.
In the general circulation may be found "With or Without" by Fanny Heaslip Lea; "The Blue Window," "The Trumpeter Swan," "Dim Lantern," and "Mistress Anne," all four by Temple Bailey; "Secret Garden" and "Robin" by Frances Hodgson Burnett; "Les Miserables," by Victor Hugo; "Spell of the Yukon" by Service; "North of 36" by Emerson Hough; "The Rosegarden Husband" by Margaret Widdener; "Bab, a Sub-Deb," by Mary Roberts Rhinehart; "Twenty Years After" by Alexander Dumas; "The Virginian," by Owen Wister; "Mother," by Kathleen Norris; "The Wings of the Morning" by Tracy; "Up the Road With Sallie" and "Nancy Goes to Town," both by Frances R. Sterrett; "The trail of the Lonesome Pine" by John Fox, Jr.; "Prudence of the Parsonage," "Prudence Says So," "Prudence's Sisters" and "Prudence's Daughter," all by Ethel Hulston; "Just Patty" by Jean Webster; "May Iverson," "Her Book" and "Mav Iverson's Career" by Elizabeth Jordan; "Virginia's Adventure Club," by Grace May Worth; "Highacres" by Jean Dabbert; "Derrick Sterling," "Wakulla," "Chrystal Jack and Co." and "The Flamingo Feather" by Kirk Munroe.

AUTHOR OF "KIKI" DIES AS LATEST PLAY OPENS
Paris, Apr. 6.—(INS)—Just as the curtain was about to go up on the first performance of his latest play "Monsieur de Saint-Ouen," Andre Picard was breathing his last in his home on the Boulevard Pereire.
Picard was one of the best known French playwrights. His play, "Kiki" had a tremendous vogue in France and Germany and was a memorable success in New York. Out of respect for the death of the author the "first night" was postponed for three days and the audience filed silently out of the theatre.

CHILI BUYING CRUISERS TO BE BUILT IN ENGLAND

Newcastle-On-Tyne, Apr. 6.—(INS)—The Chilean Government is about to order in Great Britain two cruisers of about 10,000 tons displacement. There is keen competition from the United States, but British shipbuilders declare themselves confident of receiving the order.

The vessels are most likely to go to the Tynes and Barrow, and these centers have built ships in the past which have been appreciated by the Navy Department of Chile.
They will resemble in displacement, gun-power and defense, the cruisers recently ordered on the Clyde and Tyne for the British Navy. This additional work will give a distinct fillip to British shipbuilding.

West Virginia Lady Says That She Was in a Serious Condition, But Is Stronger After Taking Cardui.
Huntington, W. Va.—"I was in a very weak and run-down condition—in fact, was in a serious condition," says Mrs. Fannie C. Bloss, of 1964 Madison Avenue, this city. "In my left side the pain was very severe. It would start in my back and sides. Part of the time I was in bed and when up I didn't feel like doing anything or going anywhere."

"Life wasn't any pleasure. I was very pale. I was nervous and thin, and so tired all the time. "My druggist told me that Cardui was a good tonic for women and I bought a couple of bottles. I took two bottles, then I noticed an improvement. I kept on and found nine bottles. I'm stronger now than I have been in a long time." Cardui is made from mild-acting medicinal herbs with a gentle, tonic, strengthening effect upon certain female organs and upon the system in general.

FARM ELECTRIFICATION IN SOUTH

A Southern Rural Electrification Conference, the first sectional meetings of its kind, is now in progress in Montgomery, Alabama, to discuss every phase of rural electric service.

The conference has been called by Dr. E. A. White, Director of the National Committee on the Relation of Electricity to Agriculture representatives of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Alabama Farm Bureau Federation and Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

The South is rapidly awakening to the importance of electrified farming and dairying, and the purpose of the conference is to bring together leaders in this new phase of agriculture for a general discussion of the subject.

FUTURE LUMBER SUPPLY

Supplying the American people with timber products for future building material has become a great national issue.

Not only is this a vital factor in the industrial development of Western States, but reforestation is a vital necessity in the East and South.

"Keep the Green Mountains Green," is the slogan adopted by the Vermont Forestry Association, in making a plea for conservation of the forests of the state.

Practically the same plea is being made by the Society for the Protection of New Hampshire Forests, but it has not yet indicated that "Keep the White Mountains Green" will be its slogan.

The lumber industry in magnitude of payrolls and its importance as universal building material, ranks among the five greatest industries of our country.

Lumbering is also unique in giving employment to classes of labor throughout the year—payrolls met by no other national source of employment.

TAXES MORE THAN EARNINGS

In commenting on the necessity of reductions in local taxation and for a high class of administration in local government, John T. Flynn, in a recent article, points out that the various government agencies in this country draw more in taxtion from many kinds of business than the owners get in dividends. He says: "The business of local government cost is the next step toward which business must turn its attention. The federal tax cuts will amount to nothing unless this is done."

He shows that per capita cost of local government has nearly tripled in the last 13 years, although neither wages in city departments nor commodity prices have increased in anywhere near this proportion.

To illustrate the tax absorbing proclivities of government, Mr. Flynn points out that public utilities are assessed nearly as much per annum for various taxes as they are allowed to pay in profits to their owners. It might be added that government has been collecting considerably more in taxes from railroads than they have been able to pay in profits to the owners.

As a remedy, Mr. Flynn says: "The trouble undoubtedly lies in the antiquated methods of running city departments. There should be some sort of reform in methods such as has been inaugurated in federal departments through the Bureau of Efficiency. That bureau, for instance, found a department in Washington employing 250 men to collect certain taxes, merely because it used an antiquated system of accounting. A modern bank system was installed and the force was reduced to 80 men, thus saving 250,000 a year in that one office."

"This is what the cities need. Moreover they need some businesslike method of supervising what is called outlays—the sums expended on local improvements. Countless millions are wasted in this way every year and the burden imposed on business is so great that, in some cases, it means all the difference between profit and loss."

"This is a job for the business men, for in the end local taxes are essentially a tax on business."

It might be added that this is a job for all the people because, every truck driver, clerk, storekeeper, banker, capitalist, man, woman and child ultimately pays in the cost of living, all taxes which are assessed against business.

New Slot Machines Tell Phoney Coins

Chicago, Apr. 6.—(INS)—Slot machines which can tell the difference between an honest coin and a lead slug, between an American quarter and a French franc piece, are recent innovations displayed at an exposition here of the National Vending Machine Association. They mark the culmination of years of experiments designed to balk the would-be cheater of slot machines. The secret is simple. The machine distinguishes between good and bad coins by size and weight.

Machines displayed here included everything from dispensers of penny sticks of gum to clothes. The largest received only 50-cent coins. No machine to receive a dollar will be made so long as the silver "cartwheel" unpopular in many parts of the country because of its size. A unique machine shown was one which returned the correct change for any coin up to a half-dollar after deducting the price of whatever article was purchased.

Exhibitors predicted that within a few years citizens will rise to bathe under a nickel-in-the-shower, select shirt, collar and tie from machines offering a wide variety at cheap prices; breakfast at an automat and ride to work in an automobile that will run only when quarters are dropped into a slot at stipulated distances apart.

He Thought This Was Fun

EARL CARROLL

Earl Carroll, the New York theatrical producer, who is known as one of the best press agents in the world, posed like this recently to show he was not afraid to go to jail for a principle. Now the picture just fits in with the fact that he was indicted for perjury in connection with the "wine" bath taken by Joyce Hawley, actress, at his birthday party.

GIRLS IN PARIS CAFES

SELL DRINKS TO VISITORS FROM U. S. AND ENGLAND

Paris, Apr. 6.—(INS)—"Drink deoza," beautiful, fashionably dressed girls, are now being employed by the owners of Paris cafes to sit at the tables that border the sidewalks and invite American and English visitors to sit with them in the hope of getting business for the proprietor.

"These girls are of high character and absolutely reproaches as to morals; they are mostly Russians, Armenians or Greeks who have been financial victims of the war. 'This lady here,' said the head waiter of the Grand Cafe to International News Service, pointing to a distinguished looking young woman whose hair was prematurely gray, 'well, she was a lady-in-waiting of the Austrian court. All that we ever demand of our lovely aides is to accept the invitation of the gentlemen to come to their table, to accept a glass of champagne and to honour our American clients with their conversation to which their former rank gives an undeniable charm and attraction. Occasionally some butter-and-egg man becomes supercilious and insists on taking them home. But I have yet to see them accept.'"

Biblical Plains Mesopotamia Evid. Human Origin

Chicago, Apr. 6.—(INS)—Discovery in Mesopotamia of prehistoric mounds which may cover the lost city of Opis, long sought by early Greek geographers, is reported in a letter from Prof. Stephen Langdon received by the Field Museum, which is joined with the Oxford university in backing an expedition headed by Prof. Langdon.

Perfect specimens of painted pottery, found by wandering Arabs sixteen miles northeast of Kish, in the Biblical plain of Shinar, resulted in finding of the mounds. Inscriptions upon clay tablets discovered nearby point strongly to the mounds marking the site of Opis.

"If this should prove true we have recovered material which may go far in explaining the origin of human history," Professor Langdon's letter says. "Opis and other cities, built by the founders of civilization in Mesopotamia, were ruins throughout the long history of Sumer, Akkad and Babylon."

The expedition now is excavating the sites of cities known to antiquity as Tal Barghutiyat, Jamdet Nasr and Jamdet Ubaid. "At Jamdet Nasr we have discovered one of the earliest known sites of Sumerian civilization—a city abandoned after a great fire 3,000 years before Christ," Professor Langdon reports. "In the ruins we have found pottery manufactured by an art lost 5,000 years ago and the only complete set of household ware ever found in Babylonia." So luminous is the highly-colored pottery, the letter adds, that during excavations, "a warm glow seems to pervade the moldy chambers."

The excavations are being carried on in a region that is reported as "desolate and unsafe, roadless and waterless" and only proof of the great antiquity of their finds is holding the scientists to their onerous task.

This proof consist of clay tablet, inscribed with the earliest known Sumerian pictographs and signed with carved stone seals that have not been used since nearly fifty centuries ago.

Beloved Citizen of Bethel Dead

Bethel, Apr. 6.—A pall of gloom spread over the Bethel community and Edgecombe and Pitt counties when they learned of the death of Mr. John Mayo, one of its oldest and most esteemed citizens. Sunday afternoon, at one o'clock, at his home in Bethel. He had been in ill health for four years, but ten days ago he contracted pneumonia and little hope was held for his recovery. The funeral was held at the home yesterday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, conducted by Rev. Mr. Harrington, a Primitive Baptist minister, of which church Mr. Mayo was a loyal and consistent member. It was attended by a host of friends and relatives who gathered to pay their last respects to him who was a friend to everyone who knew him. He was laid to rest in Robersonville cemetery. The floral designs were numerous and beautiful, completely covering the grave and the grave of his eldest daughter, the late Mrs. W. J. Little, who preceded him several years ago.

The active pallbearers were: J. W. Book, E. O. Northrup, M. R. Matthews, W. G. Keel, Ernest Whitchard and R. L. Barnhill. The honorary pallbearers were: B. A. Beverly, R. D. Whitehurst, Robert Staton and S. M. Jones, of Bethel; S. S. Nash, C. A. Johnson and J. D. Toylar of Tarboro; and Sam Moore of New York City.

The deceased was born in Edgecombe county, June 15, 1848, the son of Rueben and Lucinda Mayo. He was one of a family of twelve children. Only one of whom survive; a sister, Miss Lydia Mayo. He was married on Nov. 30, 1870 to Miss Sallie Cherry. Four years ago they celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary. Besides his wife, he leaves two sons, E. L. and John Jr., of Bethel; two daughters, Mrs. Lizzie Mooring of Bethel, and Mrs. F. J. Forbe, of Greenville; ten grandchildren, and three great-grandchildren also survive.

Until five years ago, when he moved to Bethel from his country home in Edgecombe county, Mr. Mayo was actively engaged in farming. From early manhood he was interested in the betterment of his community and county. For any years he was a member of the local school committee, serving until elected a member of the Board of Education of Edgecombe county, holding this office for twelve years, resigning in 1920 because of failing health. For years he was a director of the Bethel Banking and Trust Company, which he held until his death. Because of his honesty and fair dealing with everyone, he was called on for many services during his long and useful life, which only a man of his high ideal and noble character could fill.

Many out-of-town relative and friends were present for the funeral.

Cleveland Puts Water Bugs in Electric Chair

Cleveland, O., Apr. 7.—(INS)—After many months of experiments, three Cleveland city employees have submitted a report to Howell Wright, director of public utilities and City Manager William R. Hopkins, proposing the electrocution of bacteria in water and sewerage instead of killing these pests with chlorine and phenol treatments.

City Manager Hopkins was optimistic today that the new process would be a success, and result in great saving of time and money.

The discoverers of the new process of purifying water, which if successful will be of world-wide importance, were I. W. Eltums, water purification engineer—L. A. Marshall, assistant to Eltums and E. L. Cunningham, electrician.

Patents to protect their discovery have already been applied for.

The inventors stated their process was simple—a direct current and high frequency alternating charges are sent through the settling basins by means of special new electrodes. Tests have shown that Lake Erie water thus treated was freed of bacteria and made sterile. Nine-nine per cent of all bacteria in sewage was killed and the sewage made a non-pollutrescible liquid; minnows and an eel were killed in the lake water, some modification affected in oily water; coagulation, accelerated in sewage and the rate of sedimentation in alum waters increased.

U. S. to Pay Farmers Banned Crop Losses

Washington, Apr. 7.—(INS)—The Sixty-ninth Congress has approved the government's policy of indemnifying American farmers for losses incurred under government bans on crops, levied to prevent the spread of plagues.

A bill, authorizing hundreds of Texas farmers to file suit for damages from the government in the Federal Court for the Southern District of Texas on account of losses sustained in so-called non-cotton zones, has passed both House and Senate. This procedure was undertaken to eliminate friction in Congress over the amount of each claim.

The claims grew out of the government's fight in 1918 to prevent spread of a pink boll-worm epidemic. The epidemic was raging in portions of Mexico and had spread into a strip of Texas border counties. To halt it, the government authorities condemned the cotton crops and created two zones in which farmers were forbidden to plant cotton.

As cotton had been one of the chief crops in this section for years, the farmers faced heavy losses. Their total losses later were found to be $674,000 by the Texas Compensation Claim Board.

ROUND TABLE CLUB MEETS

The Round Table Club was delightfully entertained on Tuesday afternoon by Mr. J. D. Humber at her home on Dickinson Avenue. After an important business session, we pulled ourselves away from busy Greenville and the Exposition and set out—not for Africa, nor with somebody else's husband—but for China, with Mrs. Herring as our very competent guide. We went first to Lien Gsi, the New York of China; from there eighty miles by mule cart and wheelbarrow to Pekin, where we climbed one of the towers on the great wall, which, snake-like, follows the sea for 1500 miles. We entered one of the sixteen gates and visited the temple of Confucius. From here we went to Soa Chow, thence up the Yau Gsi river, through the hills by sedan chair, through mulberry orchards, rice fields, patches of poppies and crowds of people everywhere to Canton, with its narrow, dirty alleyways and through its "city of the dead" where the natives worship.

We were then glad we didn't have to die in China, and could return to Greenville in time to hear Miss Jesse Maye's solo. She was accompanied by Miss Mary Bertolet at the piano. Other guests of the club were Miss Gorrell, Mrs. Frederick Jones and Mrs. C. C. Poindester, of Elkin. The hostess served an ice course.

CHANGE IN MANAGEMENT OF WHITE'S THEATRE

An announcement to theatre-goers in Greenville concerning the change in management and ownership of White's Theatre comes from the office of the Eastern Carolina Amusement Company. Mr. Jack Marcus, former general manager and half owner of the theatres, has sold his interest to Mr. H. J. Paradis, President of the company. Mr. Paradis took possession on the first of April. Mr. R. E. Corbett, Jr., will continue in the capacity of house manager.

Mr. Marcus states that he regrets leaving Greenville and his many friends that he has made here, but business will now take him to the Western part of the State, where he has interests in a chain of theatres. He will take charge of the exploitation and general business of this chain.

FAMED FOR HER BEAUTY

Rosa Rudami, a famous Italian beauty and screen player, of prominence who recently joined the Cecil B. DeMille stock company of players has a strong dramatic part in Leatrice Joy's new star vehicle, "The Wedding Song," which comes to White's Theatre Thursday. Robert Ames is featured as leading man.

Miss Rudami has appeared in many Italian screen successes. She was seen on the stage and in opera and achieved enviable popularity abroad before coming to this country.

In "The Wedding Song" she has the role of an island girl, passionately jealous of the heroine who wins the love of the man she adores. This brings about complications which have their finale in a dramatic climax.

Pulverized Coal Explosions Blamed Industrial Casualties

Washington, Apr. 7.—(INS)—Pulverized coal employed as a fuel in thousands of industrial plants develops an explosive hazard fully as damaging as does dust in grain elevators, according to an investigation completed by the Bureau of Mines.

Information was obtained after observation of the causes and results of a number of serious coal explosions which killed many workers and damaged thousands of dollars worth of property.

The use of pulverized coal has increased rapidly since natural gas production declined in the vicinity of the big industrial cen-

Super-Bandit

Gerald Chapman is shown at the beginning and end of his career in these two pictures. The top one was taken in 1907 when he was arrested in connection with the theft of $500 in jewelry and the one below as he awaited death in the Wethersfield Penitentiary, Connecticut.

It is coal reduced so finely by crushing that it can be conveyed by compressed air or an air current induced by a fan from the place of preparation to the consumption center.

Pulverized coal is widely used where a steady intense, heat is required.

Officials said that to reduce the explosion hazard there should be absolute cleanliness and freedom from any accumulation of dust, both in the pulverizing plant and in the buildings where this form of coal is used as a fuel. Accumulations of dust on the floor or machinery never should be brushed or swept up with either the dust being wetted or thoroughly mixed with a fine incombustible material.

UNIVERSITY NEWS BUREAU

Chapel Hill, March 27.—Regulations governing the third annual contests in high school journalism for North Carolina schools were announced today by the University Extension Division, under the auspices of which the contests are held.

There are two contests running simultaneously, one to determine the best high school newspaper, and the other to pick the best high school magazine. The purpose of the contests is to encourage excellence in high school journalism.

Regulations governing the newspaper contest require that schools competing send a file of its paper for the scholastic year 125-26 to the committee at Chapel Hill on or before May 25, of this year. Files of magazines for the year should be sent on or before the same date. In both contests the work must be done by the student, although "there may be some degree of faculty supervision," the school principal being expected to explain the degree of faculty responsibility.

The University Extension Division will award permanent trophy cups to the winners of each contest.

McGaw's Team Is Fit and Fancy

New York, Apr. 7.—(INS)—It is a fit and fancy ball team that John McGraw is bringing home for the season's opening ceremonies. That these pleasant words may be said about the Giants thank John McGraw himself.

Never has the stock leader of the Stoneham sharpshooters worked so hard with his team in the spring. Just when it looked as if John Joseph might be getting ready to retire he has come back with more pep and pinch than he has shown in years. The team saw it. Led by the long George Kelly the boys are hammering that old onion all over the place.

There is not one sore arm on the pitching staff, nor an injury of consequence anywhere on the squad. That must come pretty close to setting a record for a perfect training camp.

The boys admit that they are good. There is a certain complaisance about the way some of the old timers view the pennant race, which is not too reassuring. No matter what the remainder of the baseball world thinks some of these lads will always believe that the victory of the Pirate is very flukey.

Thus, they practically count themselves five-time champions and seem to feel that the coming pennant race will be just a breeze for them. May be so. We wait to see.

Endow Room in Hospital Memory Dr. Jack Taylor

In the Pitt Community Hospital there is a room endowed in memory of Dr. J. D. C. Taylor, first lieutenant of the Medical Corps of the United States navy. This memorial is lovingly donated by his family. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Taylor, of this city.

As a young man he worked with a local commercial firm establishing a record for conscientious, efficient service. He would probably have continued in a business career had it not been for a trivial circumstance. When a mule belonging to his employer received an ugly wound in a runaway accident, Jack neatly and with dispatch sewed up the laceration with a burrap needle. Thereupon his employer was astonished into remarking, "Boy, you are in the wrong business. You ought to be a surgeon."

Without further inducement he began preparations for a medical career. There followed three years of pre-medical work at Atlantic Christian College before he was graduated in 1913. They were not easy years. A boy with less courage and ambition would have become discouraged. But with splendid determination he worked with the Western Union Telegraph company at night that he might go to school in the day time to his ideal. The following fall he entered the Medical college of Virginia where he made an enviable record as a student. He was popular among his fellows and held membership in the Chi Beta Chi fraternity. Two months before his degree was to have been conferred there came the call to war, and in company with a group of classmates he volunteered for service. He was sent to Washington, D. C., to the United States Naval Medical College, and after three months' intensive training was given special recognition. Immediately Dr. Taylor was assigned to the United States battleship Utah where he served with distinction for a year. He was then transferred to the post of chief medical officer aboard the transport "Plattsburg," which office he held until after the armistice. During that time he made twenty-two trans-Atlantic crossings.

After the close of the war deciding to remain in government service, he was sent to Philadelphia to continue his study of surgery of the head. On the strength of his excellent record he was chosen six months later as one of four honor men to attend a special clinic in St. Louis. This signal recognition of his ability put him in line for promotion and he was made a member of the staff of the Naval Base Hospital at Norfolk. Dr. Taylor there held the office of chief of head surgery until his tragic death. On January 30, 1921, after leaving the hospital, he was accidentally shot by a sentry. His body was brought to his early home and interred with military honors.

Cut off in the rich usefulness and splendid enthusiasm of early manhood he yet left behind him an enviable record. In a few short years he had given to his fellowman priceless gifts of healing in mind and body, and to his country his devoted loyalty and service. His sympathetic understanding ever attended his professional services, and hundreds of boys in khaki found in him a ready friend.

As excellent as was Dr. Taylor's public service, his private life was exemplary. Devotion to his family was expressed in ever thoughtful consideration. His love for his mother was one of the beautiful chapters of his life, and his ambition for his sister, was an absorbing interest. His home town people and his friends in the country are proud of so creditable a native son, and they will take pride in the ex-establishment of so fitting a memorial. "The growth of urban life during the last seventy years has played havoc with the famous complexion of Irish girls," Dr. Morrison says. "Working in stuffy offices and factories has chased the color from the cheeks of the modern girls, who have been constrained to have recourse to the drug store to supply the deficiency."

City Life Ruining Irish Complexions

Dublin, Apr. 6.—(INS)—The Irish colleen is rapidly losing the beautiful complexion for which she has been for long world famous, according to Dr. S. H. Morrison, a distinguished Dublin physician.

"Gone is the fugitive flush of the nineteenth century womanhood," adds the doctor. "Many a rose-lipped Irish maiden of nowadays depends entirely upon cosmetics for her complexion and the artificiality that was once confined to the great Continental cities.

"In almost any Dublin street car, one can see young women completing their facial embellishments enroute to the theatre or dance hall, and the rouge box seems to be an indispensable part of the equipment of any young Irish woman now, from the person of fashion to the humblest maiden.

"I would prescribe artificial sunlight for all those who are unable to bask in the brilliance of the summer day, and certainly it is a far better prescription than the younger generation now favors. "The twentieth century girl, who was to have recaptured the 'milk and roses' of her grandmother must eschew the drug store and put her faith in the heavens as her forebears did before her."

M. P.'s Object to Radio Speeches

London, March 29.—(INS)—English members of Parliament have gently but firmly intimated that they do not look upon the proposal to broadcast the proceedings in the House of Commons by radio with favor, and it is unlikely that the proposal will be adopted.

The view is taken by the majority of members that broadcasting would ruin the proceedings of Parliament, and perhaps the reputation of many members, who are popularly supposed to deliver only masterpieces. Another argument against the broadcasting is that the tendency of members would be to address the listeners in rather than the House, and that there would be too much temptation to use the radio for propaganda purposes.

"Every member of Parliament will think he is standing on a soap-box if we have broadcasting of speeches," said one member.

Edison's Home Town Has Many Old Folks Now

Milan, Oa., Apr. 7.—(INS)—To be born in this little village of 653 souls, the birthplace of Thomas A. Edison, the inventor, seems to insure an expectancy of life beyond the average.

When Mr. Edison on February 11 celebrated his 79th birthday, "old timers" here started a check to determine the ages of some of the old inhabitants. It was learned that Milan has more "old people"—men and women in the eighties and nineties—than any other place of like size in the State, and probably in the world.

Mr. Edison was born here on the banks of the Huron River and lived in the village until he was about five years old when he was moved with his family to Port Huron, Mich.

The inventor is not the only villager who has attained ripe old age. There was Martin Harter, the village druggist, who lived to be 99. John L. Williams the village blacksmith, was nearly as old when he died. So was George Smith, merchant.

Most of those who die here are what the villagers refer to as "old timers."

The village has a home for aged women, but the inmates are comparatively young when their ages are compared with some of the natives.

Gossip of Staff Correspondents at World Centers of Population.

By ALICE LANGELIER, INS Staff Correspondent.
Paris, April 7.—Italians head the list of foreigners living in France, according to the latest official figures. There are 807,000 of them out of a total of 2,845,000 foreigners in all. Spaniards and Belgians come next with 467,000 and 400,000 respectively. Then there are 310,000 Poles and 109,000 Russians. British subjects number 84,000 and are largely from the leisure class and North Americans as well with 50,000. In spite of what nearly everyone might think, Germany has no mean delegation of 60,000 in the country she was recently at war with.

Their false hair is what most women leave behind them in the streets and public places—this is what the Paris Prefecture of Police announce. Lost bags, hairpins, handkerchiefs, lipsticks, vanity cases, scarves and ear-drops are few in comparison with the false chignons that are found after the play. Sometimes they drop off when the hat is taken off; sometimes during too much emotional excitement or applause. At any rate, they are there in great piles at the Prefecture of Police, for one of the most curious things about this particular lost object, is that it is very rarely claimed. Although every woman knows that it is quite smart to wear a wig, transformation or chignon attached to her bobbed head in the evenings, none of them seems to want the other fellow to know it.

One may be the strongest man in the world and yet be powerless. Charles Rigoulot, the Frenchman, who claims this title, can lift great weights but can't stop evil tongues wagging. A few months ago the strong man married a winsome little cinema actress, Mariee Magda-Roche, and it was not long before gossip and jealous sisters spread abroad the rumor that the wife was, not very happy and intended to leave her home for her former cinema haunts. Some tongues have even gone so far as to say that the French woman is almost on her way to America to join the stars at Hollywood.

Mr. and Mrs. Rigoulot had the case before a well known lawyer, Pierre Weill, and strongly repudiated the evil assertions at the Palais de Justice.

"I love my husband far too much to ever think of leaving him," affirmed Madame Rigoulot.

It will not be strange if a grocery store in Tunis is haunted. For the fourth time in three years, a suicide has been committed there. Last week the present Arab owner of the store decided to hang himself and complete the "suicide quartette."

Frenchman usually roll their own, according to the figures just published for the year 1924. They show that loose tobacco in packages is much more popular in France than ready-made cigarettes. Out of a total of 55,770,000 kilos of tobacco, ready-made cigarettes composed only one-sixth of the amount. Scaferlati tobacco made up 70 per cent of the total. Undoubtedly the high cost of the ready-made brands has much to do with the matter and perhaps the Frenchman is only making the best of circumstances when he says he really prefers to roll his own.

Why are there no women stenographers in the Chamber of Deputies, the French House of Representatives, asks the Paris "Intransigent?" And goes on to say that a few pretty bobbed heads, light frocks and bare arms would not be amiss in the political hall which has witnessed many a riotous scene.

have contributed money to this American flight is encouraging. The one thing that makes a great fortune useful is IMAGINATION.

Especially credit goes to Edsel Ford, himself a manufacturer of flying machines, gladly contributing to help establish the merit of a rival machine.

All that Ford son want from the flying machine is the satisfaction of creating a "fool-proof" air boat. Profit doesn't interest them. They can get enough of that from the old, reliable, four-wheeled "Ford."

Three Spanish flying machines started from Madrid yesterday bound for Manila in the Philippines. That flight will be watched with interest by this nation's defense department. We sent three flying ships on a little modest hop from California to Hawaii, and made three 100 per cent failures.

If the Spanish can show us how to fly to our own Philippine possessions we shall doubtless be much obliged.

Postal Civil Service Change Facing Fight

Washington, March 29.—(INS)—First, second and third-class postmasters would be placed under Civil Service and appointed by the Postmaster General without definite terms of office under the bill sponsored by Senator Couzens, Michigan, awaiting action before Congress.

Power of appointing such postmasters, now held by the President, is regarded as one of the most important prerogatives of that office, inasmuch as it enables the Executive to dispense favors to Congressman who invariably recommend the candidates.

In addition to postmasters, collectors of custom, appraisers of merchandise, controllers of customs, collectors of internal revenue and deputy collectors would be under Civil Service appointed by the Secretary of the Treasury, as well as deputy marshals, who would be appointed by the Attorney General.

The President would be authorized to include in the competitive classified service any office, place of employment now filled by appointment.

Because of the drastic nature of the legislation, indications were that it would not be passed.

JAPAN'S OLDEST STUDENT STUDYING LAW AT 67

Tokyo, Apr. 7.—(INS)—Yoshihide Arakawa is Japan's oldest college graduate. He finished a four-year law course at Kyoto Imperial University in March and received his diploma at the age of 67. Arakawa graduated in liberal art, from the Hokkaido Imperial University in 1880 and later took a Master of Arts degree at the University of Michigan.

After many years in the government service he decided to study law and entered Kyoto University at the age of 63.
