

Labor Party's Annual Conference to Show How Strike Split Up

London, Aug. 12.—(INS)—A further demonstration of the way in which the recent general strike has split the Labor Movement here will be witnessed when the Labor Party holds its annual conference at Margate October 11 and the four following days.

among some sections of the Party at the lack of support given to the general strike by more prominent Laborites, and this in particular is directed to J. H. Thomas, Ramsey McDonald, Arthur Henderson and the more moderate members of the organization.

It is generally believed in political circles, here, however, that the leaders will be able to ward off an actual vote of censure by putting in an amendment calling for a vote of confidence in themselves, which, by virtue of their popularity among the general mass of the delegates, will be carried.

The conference in another resolution will be invited to reaffirm the Capital Levy as an important item in the party program and to make it one of the principal questions in the campaign at the next general election. The question of incorporating with the Communist Party will again come up, but it almost certain to be summarily defeated.

Another resolution urges the Party leaders at no time to consider a rapprochement with the Liberal Party, and calls on the conference to renounce "these infrequent invitations for an alliance in a sufficiently decisive manner." The Mess Side Labor Party asks the conference to instruct the Executive Committee that the whole of the next Labor Cabinet be formed from and elected by the whole of the elected Labor members of the House of Commons.

Unemployment, the housing situation, and various other domestic subjects form the general bulk of the resolutions to be submitted.

RUSSIAN COUNT, ONCE CZAR'S GENERAL NOW PLAYS IN CIRCUS BAND

Waukegan, Ill., Aug. 12.—(INS)—From the pomp and power of a Russian noblemen's position and a generalship in the "Little Fathoms" force to that of a musician in a circus band is a long drop but a necessary one for Count Zouboff, who told his tale to Sam Glass, a merchant, while in this city. Glass knew the count in the Czar's realm. His full name is Gregory Nicolaievich Graf Zouboff, the name Graf denoting his rank.

Surely I would like to better my position in the world, he said. However, I have no choice in the matter. But still I am fortunate in a way as there are many others of my countrymen of fame and prominence in Russia in former days who I am sorry to say are not faring as well as I. In fact, thousands of them are seeking a pitiful existence in the cities of France and England.

"NEWS and PROGRESS" No. 3 ECONOMIC SIGNIFICANCE AND SERVICE OF THE AMERICAN NEWSPAPER AND NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING

WHAT IS NEWS?

NEWS! What is it? It is the stir of life that marks the difference between a living world and a dead planet. It is the sound of civilization's machinery in motion. It is the speed gauge of progress.

Up to within the past few generations, exchange of reports has been chiefly by word of mouth. It was principally for this purpose that men gathered in coffee houses in the cities of Europe and America, and even today the gossip is reasonably sure of willing ears.

Therefore, whatever other functions a newspaper may exercise—advisory, educational, political, social or economic—all are based upon its prime function of reporting the news.

Man is today living in an Age of News of which earlier generations never dreamed. He stands on a high mountain overlooking "The Kingdoms of the World" and before him unfolds the immeasurable panoramas of human life.

Such announcements show that readers were willing to pay for news. Advertising started as news. Here, for example, is a yellow, frayed copy of a pre-revolutionary newspaper "printed by B. Franklin" and "Containing the Freest Advice, Foreign and Domestic, and it cannot escape notice that six of its twelve columns are devoted to paid announcements.

Man today is living in an Age of News of which earlier generations never dreamed.

atmosphere of news. They emphasized immediate events and opportunities. No words were more constantly employed than "bargains" and "special sales," while occasional "bargain counter riots" were striking witness to the fact that they were read. The buying public came to depend upon the advertising columns for information concerning its material needs just as completely as it depended upon the news and editorial columns of the newspaper for news and views of current events.

GENERAL ANDREWS IS OPTIMISTIC ABOUT RUM ROW

General Andrews says rum row faces extermination as result of the prohibition conference recently held in Great Britain.

The majority of American men and women hope this is so.

All of us realize the danger confronting American life as result of the illicit whiskey traffic. And we are ready to listen to any kind of proposition to do away with it.

But we are unable to see where Great Britain is going to be able to help us. She may be able to reduce the amount of rum running vessels from that part of the country. But how about the other channels through which liquor finds its way to this country? How about the extensive manufacture of beverages in our own country? All of the dry forces are determined that it shall end. They have been determined the last several years. What have they accomplished?

We might combine all nations of the world in an effort to do away with the whiskey evil. But we can never succeed until we are able to employ officers who actually try to enforce the law. It is useless for us to close our eyes and try to extenuate the situation.

You and I know that the reason for so much whiskey in this country today is because men of money and influence want it. We know that they are able to buy off officers because these representatives of the law happen to be in need of extra funds, and are willing to sacrifice their honor to get it.

We are glad Mr. Andrews is able to take such an optimistic view of prohibition. We hope that things will turn out exactly like he anticipates. We are ready to stay with him until the last. But as we said before, something more than the assistance of heads of great nations is going to be necessary if prohibition laws are successfully enforced.

Something more important than sitting around tables talking about law enforcement must occur before America will be purged of her sins.

There is only one way to make prohibition effective. That is to elect men to our city and county offices who believe in prohibition, who know what a menace the whiskey evil has become to their homes and their country, and are willing to do their duty by humanity.

It will be some years yet before a change for the better will occur. And the coming of these years must see conscientious mothers holding offices of responsibility before this prophecy is fulfilled.

If General Andrews would use his influence in helping the counties of the nation "clean house" in public offices, it is reasonable to believe he would meet with more success. His efforts would be rewarded far more than they were at the British conference.

THIS IS NO TIME TO INCREASE RATES

Why should the telegraph companies desire to increase their rates in North Carolina?

It is admitted that the rates in this state compare favorably with those in other states. It is also admitted that the companies are operating at a profit.

So it is of little importance to the public that they should be experiencing a slight loss in the handling of one class of message when they are able to realize a distinct profit on all branches of service.

The commission to hear this matter during the month of September should give these facts the consideration they deserve. If rates of one of the companies are not as high as those of the other, then they should be permitted to increase until both operate at the same rate. The case was to have been heard this week, but was postponed until next month to give the commercial agencies a chance of presenting a mass of evidence. That they will have interesting facts to present goes without saying. This is no time for an increase in price. And we do not believe the public is any mood to listen to an application for increases in any kind of business.

If the telegraph companies must have more money for their stockholders, why not let them cut expenses? It might be they would be able to save a million dollars or so in the course of a year through this one movement alone. The public doesn't care in what way they go about reducing expenses just so rates are commensurate with the class of service rendered.

The American business man depends right much upon the telegraph companies. He depends upon it to the extent that a considerable portion of his business is transacted over telegraph wires. Yet, he is not willing to actually pay more than this service is worth. He is not willing to stand by and see his yearly profits decrease and those of the telegraph company mount higher with each succeeding year.

This feeling does not prevail in North Carolina alone. It prevails in other states where the companies intend to ask for rate increases. They are perfectly willing for zones to be changed, if such is necessary. But they are unwilling to sacrifice themselves in the interest of large corporations intending to increase their earnings.

WOMEN BRAVER FLYERS

Professional aviators around Los Angeles are agreed that women are less afraid in the air than men. The "why" they cannot give but a canvass of several commercial aviation fields disclosed many stock excuses that men offer to cover up a reluctance to take some business or pleasure trips in an airplane.

"I'll have to see about my insurance first," led all other excuses in popularity.

It was found that women seldom turn down a chance to fly. They say nothing about insurance, seldom refer to their obligations to family, and rarely suggest that they will have to talk to their husbands about it.

HOW LONG IT TAKES TO MAKE A PICTURE

Whenever a motion picture producer takes an "unusually long time to make a picture he always tells the public about it in terms of hundreds of thousands of dollars. In fact, the casual theatregoers have somehow absorbed the idea that most pictures take an abnormally long time to produce. As a matter of fact a feature length production may take anywhere from five days to as long as the producers can afford to dally with it. However, most companies have what they call a "shooting schedule" which calls for a certain number of scenes being shot each day.

Thirty days was the schedule for "Sky High Corral" the Universal Blue Streak Western which is coming to White's Theatre on Saturday. Another interesting fact is that only under the most unusual circumstances is a picture shot in the order in which the scenes appear on the screen. Rather, they are shot from a standpoint of convenience. Thus, if we have a picture in which the opening action takes place at a certain home and the closing sequence likewise, both sequences are filmed before any other scene is shot. This makes it possible to demolish the set and construct another for some other production, an important consideration in a large company.

COUNTY WILL SELL TOWN TO PAY DELINQUENT TAXES

Nason, Ill., Aug. 12.—(INS)—Anyone with a few thousand dollars desiring a nice quiet town in which to settle down practically to himself should come and give this place the once-over.

The whole town, or about 95 per cent of it, has been placed on the auction block and is waiting a good bidder. The county treasurer of Mt. Vernon has some $12,000 in delinquent taxes due and is going to sell the town to satisfy these debts.

Nason's principal industry, a large coal mine, shut down several months ago, and most of the male population were thrown out of work. Business slumped and with the exodus of many of the citizens, homes were closed and business houses felt the pinch until they also began moving away.

Then to add to the town's plight, destructive fires came along and destroyed many buildings. Taxes on many lots, likewise, are due and nobody is willing to pay the treasurer.

Ghost of Carrie Nation Stalks in Hotel, Her Axe Made Famous

Wichita, Kan., Aug. 13.—(INS)—The ghost of Carrie Nation is stalking again through the old Eaton House, once the Hotel Carey, where, in the saloon resplendent with gold paint and mahogany, the famous woman reformer raised an axe and smashed the bar and cut to ribbons a picture of Venus, painted by John Noble, of Wichita, now nationally known artist.

the International Miners Federation, and one of England's most prominent labor leaders. Pointing out that the world's reserves of coal are known to exceed those of oil, Hodges asserts that coal has only had a temporary set-back in its industrial development and will shortly regain its ascendancy over oil.

The increasing use of the pulverized system of coal-firing limits the expansion of the use of oil for steam-raising, and coal will thus maintain its supremacy. The great advantage of the system is that low grade fuels become easily available for the production of power.

Huge quantities of the fuels, which are inseparably produced with better grade coals, and which represent a substantial item of the cost of production, will soon find a profitable market. Its increasing use will be an enormous economic help to the coal industry. I am not surprised, therefore, that it is being reported from the United States that oil-firing for steam raising is being scrapped and pulverized coal-firing is being installed in its place.

It is also well known that coal need not 'bleed' oil even on its own special territory, namely, for use in internal combustion engines and as a lubricant. There is no doubt whatever that what is known as the low temperature processes of carbonization or pre-treatment of coal for the recovery of its volatile constituents are now established as a commercial possibility. We now know that by these processes coal yields a large quantity of fuel oil and motor spirit, as well as a smokeless semi-coke for power production and domestic fuel.

Once more the barges of vice that stirred Mrs. Nation to action have arisen, and frequent arrests have been made on immorality warrants in the old house. The Eaton houses astonishing vice conditions, according to a report made recently by J. W. Walston, chief of police of Wichita.

The Eaton house is a historic hotel, built in the late eighties by John B. Carey, and was at the time the pride of the state. It was the first large hotel to be built in Wichita, and was, when first built, the stamping ground of the city's aristocracy. It has been the gathering place of many a distinguished company, gathered from throughout the south-west.

In 1900 that Mrs. Nation, stirred to action, gave Kansas one of its first tastes of the reformers that were to make the state the pioneer in the prohibition movement. Mrs. Nation found herself in pail as a result of the attack, but it was so successful in arousing public sentiment that she continued.

Now the shadow of ill repute has settled again on the building and although it has been cleaned out by Chief Walston, it may cause a survey to determine what conditions of vice there are in the city, and the ghost of Mrs. Nation will walk again in its old haunts.

'LITTLE MOTHERS' HOME', CENTER OF CITIZENSHIP AND HOMEMAKING

The secrets of citizenship and homemaking are found in this little house of the Sesqui-Centennial. This does Mrs. Herbert Hoover, chairman of the Board of Directors of the Girl Scouts of America, characterize the Better Homes Building, which is to become the permanent 'Home-making Center' of the Philadelphia Girl Scouts at the close of the centennial, which is now in progress to commemorate the 150th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

The lowly attic has been turned into a delightful livable and healthful playroom and nursery by a lining of celotex insulating lumber, which not only prevents the summer heat from beating through the roof, but conserves fuel by keeping the furnace heat from leaking out in winter. The room has been further made enjoyable for the kiddies by decorative treatment to which celotex lends itself so readily. The sound-deadening qualities of the material give a touch of restfulness, because the noise of the children is confined within their own room.

Scout Commissioner of Philadelphia. The Scouts will reveal to the public their entire program of education, which includes elementary proficiency in cooking, housekeeping, first aid and the rules of healthful living. One-fourth of the badges of achievement given Girl Scouts are for service of the woman in the home as mother, nurse or housekeeper. These Scouts will demonstrate how they are trained to face life as experienced homemakers, and to become the mothers of the future.

During the period of the exposition this 'Little Mothers' Home' as it is called, will be used as a demonstration center with the aim of raising the home-makers of the nation with the best standards of small house architecture, construction and furnishing. Here, for instance, the exterior of the 'Little Mothers' Home' is made of face brick of the type used in colonial architecture. The building is donated to the Scout organization by the Better Homes of America, of which Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, is president. The land is the gift of the Park Commissioners of Philadelphia.

Honolulu, Aug. 13.—(INS)—Mount Waialeale, on the island of Kauai, generally agreed by scientists to be the wettest spot on earth, felt the recent drought along with other portions of these islands. A field party from the U. S. geological survey which recently climbed the mountain, which stands 5,075 feet above sea level, found that the rainfall during the past year had amounted to only 219.6 inches, just about one-half the normal measurement. Rainfall as high as 600 inches in one year has been officially recorded at the summit location. A record climb was made by this field party owing to the fact that the streams which have to be crossed and recessed were practically dry and the trail in good condition underfoot.

Eight hundred pounds of tree seeds were dropped over the Pan-aea forest area on the island of Hawaii by two airplanes sent recently from the Luke Field air station for experimental purposes in this type of planting. The Pan-aea section was burned over during April by a severe forest fire. It is estimated that one plane in a single flight planted as much seed as could have been distributed by a force of ten men working for a period of two weeks.

High dignitaries of the Catholic Church of America will be invited to Honolulu next year for a great centennial celebration commemorating the arrival of the first Catholic missionaries on Hawaiian shores. The centennial will be celebrated with pageants, masses and other special features. On July 7, 1921 the first Catholic missionaries arrived at the port of Honolulu. They rented three grass huts in a part of the town, the location of which is not definitely known at present, and there the first holy mass ever celebrated on Hawaiian soil was offered.

American citizens of Japanese ancestry residing in the territory of Hawaii are becoming of voting age at the rate of about 500 or 600 a year, according to the annual report of Raymond C. Brown, secretary of Hawaii. The report shows that to date 12,578 birth certificates have been issued by the territory to male children of Oriental ancestry and 32,900 to female children.

Johnson and Sand Islands, lying several hundred miles to the westward of the Hawaiian group proper, have been set apart by President Coolidge for use by the territorial department of agriculture and forestry as a refuge and breed- ing ground for native birds.

Street car patrons of this city during the entire history of the transit company have never known the relaxation that comes with reading the big colored display advertisements such as give zest to a street car ride in any city of the mainland. Heretofore it has been an unwritten law of the company that such advertising was taboo. However, with profits dwindling as a result of the increasing use of automobiles, the transit company has decided to accept the recommendation of Richard Sachse, traffic expert of Los Angeles who recently conducted a survey of the entire local system and install advertising in the cars as a means of increasing revenue. The company has also recently set apart smoking sections in the cars as an added attraction to the devotees of Lady Nicotine.
