MOORE'S CREEK CELEBRATION BE HELD TOMORROW

Thousands Will Attend Celebration of 50th Anniversary of Revolutionary Battle

Moore's Creek, Pender County N. C., Aug. 23.—(AP)—With appropriate ceremonies, a 30 acre tract of land here will tomorrow be transferred from the State to the Federal government, the ceremony being the celebration of the sesqui-centennial of the Battle of Moore's Creek Bridge. Assistant Secretary of War, Hanford MacNider, will accept the land which will be converted into a national park.

Arrangements had been completed today for the celebration which is expected to attract between five and ten thousand persons from all sections of the state. A distinguished assemblage will be in attendance and a number of speakers of note are on the program.

The exercises will open at 10:30 o'clock, when G. J. Moore, president of the Moore's Creek Battle Ground Association, will formally announce the beginning of the celebration. He will then call on Mrs. T. C. Turnage, state chairman of the Daughters of the American Revolution Moore's Creek Battle Ground committee, to preside, who will in turn ask Mrs. Edwin C. Gregory, of Salisbury, state regent of the D. A. R., to take the chair.

After the invocation, by Dr. C. G. Vard, president of Flora MacDonald College, the ceremony of a salute to the flag will take place. The address of welcome then will be delivered by Judge J. D. Murphy, of Asheville, a former native of Pender county. Mrs. C. M. Parks, of Tarboro, state vice-regent of the D. A. R., will deliver the response. Greetings will be extended to those present by Senator Le S. Overman, who sponsored the bill in the Senate creating a national park here; former Governor Cameron Morrison; Mrs. W. O. Spencer of Winston-Salem, vice president general of the D. A. R., and Louis T. Moore, executive secretary of the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce.

Mrs. Alfred J. Brosseau, of Greenville, Conn., president general of the National D. A. R., then will speak, after which Brig. Gen. A. J. Bowley, commander of Fort Bragg, will introduce Assistant Secretary of War Hanford MacNider, who will accept the park on behalf of the government and will deliver an address. Congressman C. L. Abernethy, of New Bern, who introduced the bill on the lower house of Congress to make the battle ground a national park, will then deliver the last address of the day.

The entire assemblage then will partake of a basket lunch on the battleground. Music will be interspersed in the program and a large selected chorus of Eastern Carolina will sing a number of selections.

The battle of Moore's Creek Bridge was an important engagement in that it broke the backbone of the movement to support the English cause in North Carolina before it was fairly launched. The battle was fought February 27, 1776, between 1,000 patriots led by Col. Alexander Lillington and 1,600 Tories led by Col. Donald McLeod. England had looked to the Highlander troops to hold North Carolina loyal to the British cause but this unexpected defeat effectively broke the movement to keep the patriots from taking up arms for the new American republic in the stirring days which were to follow.

CARPENDER AND WILLIE STEVENS ARE DENIED BAIL

Supreme Court Justice Declines Permit Bail to Alleged Hall-Mills Murderers

Newark, N. J., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Chief Justice Dummer, of the Supreme Court today refused to receive the application for bail of Henry De La B. Carpendier and Willie Stevens, charged with the murders of the Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills.

In declining to consider the application Justice Dummer, who previously had admitted to bail in the amount of $15,000 Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, widow of the rector also charged with the murders, said he had been requested by Justice Parker to refer to him any such application.

CO-OP RECEIVERS MEET IN RALEIGH

Judge Meekins Indicated Only Routine Matters Be Heard at Today's Session

Raleigh, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Receivers of the Tri-State Tobacco Growers Cooperative Marketing Association were in session here this afternoon with Judge J. M. Meekins, of the United States District Court.

Confronting the receivers are a number of claims against the bankrupt association although Judge Meekins indicated prior to the session that only routine matters would be discussed at the time. The association was thrown into receivership last June by Judge Meekins whose order was followed by another freeing thousands of growers in Virginia, North and South Carolina, from their obligation to deliver their 1926 crop to the association.

Meekins Signs Attachment Order Rum Runner Elma

Raleigh, Aug. 23.—(AP)—An order of attachment against the rum runner Elma, and her cargo of 4,000 cases of assorted liquors, was signed today by Judge J. M. Meekins in Federal Court here.

The order removes the boat and the liquor from the custody of the Collector of Customs at Wilmington and places it under the jurisdiction of the United States Marshal.

The attachment is supposed to be a technical move to place the whiskey under the wing of the United States Court pending the trial of the men arrested several months ago when the boat was seized.

The trial was set for November 8.

M'NIDER SPEAKS TO LEGIONNAIRES HICKORY TODAY

Addressing Annual Convention, Mac- Nider Declares That Legion Reached Place of Power

Hickory, Aug. 23.—(AP)—The American Legion has fought its way to recognition as the "voice of the great war veterans over-coming indifference, misunderstanding—even organized opposition," Assistant Secretary of War, Hanford MacNider, said here in addressing the annual convention of the North Carolina department of the Legion.

"As our generation becomes the acting generation in American affairs, so will the Legion become the dominant voice concerning all those things on which experience qualifies it to speak."

"On all questions of national defense, the voice of the generation which fought the war will be final," the speaker continued. "Only the men who fought have the necessary background to speak authoritatively. It is logical to presume that the nation will be glad to take advantage of their experience and abide by that experience."

Such men would be pretty safe guides," the Secretary added. "They know what war is and they have no desire to see it again. They do not want it for themselves and certainly they do not want it for their sons. You will find no jingoists among them. You will find no 'peace at any price' Pacifists."

SHOW DECREASE IN COTTON CROP

Agriculture Department Estimates Decrease of 373,000 Bales in Last Two Weeks

Washington, Aug. 23.—(AP)—A decrease of 373,000 bales in the prospective cotton crop during the last two weeks was shown today in the Department of Agriculture report, indicating a total production of 15,278,000 bales. The condition of the crop declined 6.3 points in the fortnight. At the same time the census bureau announced that cotton of this year's growth gained prior to August 16, amounted to 181,572 running bales, counting round as half bales compared with 579,291 bales gained prior to that date last year.

The cotton crop prediction for this year compared with a total crop last year of 16,103,679 bales. The condition as of August 16, this year, was 63.1-2 per cent compared with a condition of 62 per cent last year.

The condition as of August 16 was reported as follows: For North Carolina, 73 per cent; Virginia, 65 per cent; South Carolina, 53 per cent; and Texas, 61 per cent.

New York, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Cotton prices soared $3.50 a bale in excited trading on the New York cotton exchange today following publication of the government crop report.

The report was a surprise both as to the crop estimate which was about a half million bales below expectations and the gaining figures which reflected a very late crop.

New Orleans, Aug. 23.—(AP)—The government report on the cotton crop condition proved to be a great surprise to traders and when trading was resumed the local market advanced $4.00 to $4.75 a bale.

CITY SCHOOLS TO BEGIN FALL TERM THURSDAY, SEPT. 9

School Board Making Every Effort Make Coming Term Best in History of School

The Greenville City Schools will open for the 1926-27 session on Thursday, September 9. Previous to that time, during the preceding week, all enrollments and registrations will take place. Detailed announcements concerning registrations will be made in this paper in a few days.

The plan of organization to be followed this year will be changed very little during the coming year. One small change is to be made: namely, the sixth grade from the Model School will remain in the Model School this year instead of going over to the Intermediate School. Also the Freshman class of the High School will remain in the Intermediate School. Most of the work of the Freshman class will be done in this building, but some of the work will be carried on in the new High School building. This scheme is made necessary by virtue of the fact that the new High School building is not large enough to take care of the High School this year. It is only a question of a couple of years before the High School will occupy both buildings entirely.

All the building principals will return for the coming year, and there are few changes in the teaching force. This insures another good year for the Greenville schools. A complete list of teachers and their assignments for the coming year will be published shortly.

There are no changes in textbooks for the coming year, and the prices will be the same unless the Governor and the State Board of Education are able to secure a reduction in prices, shortly. Local dealers and local school authorities have no jurisdiction over prices.

Smallpox vaccination is required of all pupils entering school for the first time, and parents are urged to attend to this immediately in order that the child may not be sick after school starts as the result of vaccination. Tonsils and adenoids should be given attention now so that the child can be in the best possible shape physically when he begins the year's work.

The local school board is very anxious to put a man intensive health program in the schools, but at the present time finds it impossible because of a lack of gymnasium facilities. But in co-operation with the local Board of Health, the schools are doing a great deal of health work both of a diagnostic and corrective nature.

DR. CHARLES ELLIOT DIED YESTERDAY

President Emeritus of Harvard and Distinguished Educator Passes At Age of 92

North East Harbor, Me., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Charles W. Elliot, "Harvard's Grand Old Man" and America's "first citizen" is dead. The end came yesterday at the age of 92 to the President Emeritus of Harvard University who had been his president for 40 years prior to his retirement at the age of 75 and whose outspoken ideas of public affairs commanded international attention and respect.

Dr. Elliot had been in delicate health since he came here early in the summer and had been confined to the house of late. He had spent his summers at Northeast Harbor since the early '80's. The end came peacefully late yesterday.

Funeral services will be held in the Union Church here on Tuesday at noon, and services will be held also in Appleton chapel at Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass., on Wednesday.

Mars Will Be Short.
Ideas, Not Economy.
The Clergy Protest.
The Kaiser Gazes.
By ARTHUR BRISBANE

Sir James Colquhoun Irvine, one of Britain's greatest chemists, says future wars will be settled in a few days, by poisonous gases, dropped from airplanes. Nothing simpler, than to beat a nation by asphyxiating hundreds of thousands or millions, conveniently crowded into cities.

Victory will be with the nation that first sets its airplanes to work. This nation, with plenty of gold, and little intelligence in government, lacks airplanes, and is sentimentalizing about forbidding experiments with poisonous gases, and their manufacture. If the next war should hit the United States and turn out as disastrously as it probably would turn out, some respectable Americans might be as fortunate as the former Kaiser.

Italy, by order of Mussolini, is on a strict economical diet. Belgium forbids making white bread, and from the king down, strict economy is to be the rule, and law. France follows suit. Poincare reduces his meals to two dishes, difficult for the French, who know how to eat and will not have dinner without soup, and salad or fruit. Many Frenchmen will make their dinner of a good soup, bonne femme, and salad or fruit.

All this is patriotic self denial. But one good idea might do more for Europe. No more economy could have restored Europe after the Napoleonic wars. The steam engine—an idea quickly made Europe richer than she had ever been. Taxation, which some Europeans will not tolerate, and development of electric power could do for Europe in this century what steam did at the beginning of the last century.

Nietzsche, German philosopher lived in hate and died insane, but Europe might recall his prediction of the great war, and his proposed remedy for its evils "within fifty years, these babel governments (of Europe) will clash in a gigantic war, for the markets of the world." From that war he predicted a unification of Europe, which would more than pay the cost of such a war.

Angell, the intelligent Britisher, who Europe, before 1914, predicted that the big war would do, now publishes a book urging a federation of European nations, similar to the union of states here. Will Europe listen this time? Probably not. It was hard enough to overcome jealousies in our colonies, and the selfish ambitions of individuals, after 1776. How can Europe make a working combination of Trotsky, Baldwin, Kemal Pasha, Poincare Primo de Rivera and Mussolini?

It is not a pleasant thought, but Europe will plan for war while poor, and declare war, when strong enough. Until one nation, or two or more combined, beat the others and force peace. This nation, through Woodrow Wilson, bears responsibility for setting up several preposterous European "nationalities, that time had killed off, as not fit to survive time will have to kill them off again. Let us hope this nation will mind its own business, and not send any other provincial crusader to tell Europeans what they must do. We have plenty to do, managing ourselves, and do it, none too well.

Philadelphia clergymen protest against the heavy weight prize fight to be "pulled off," in that respectable city, after the fight you will know who is the world's heavyweight champion, and how much influence the clergy have, as compared with $2,000,000 gate receipts.

It will console the clergy in their disappointment, to reflect that if all the sinners of the Declaration could come back, Hancock, Franklin and Jefferson included, and publicly sign the Declaration all over again, they could not "draw" ten percent, of the prize fight receipts.

RUDOLPH VALENTINO DIED THIS MORNING NEW YORK HOSPITAL

RUDOLPH VALENTINO

AUGUST TERM CIVIL COURT OPENED HERE

Only Few Cases Are Heard Before Judge N. A. Sinclair, in Short Session This Morning

The first session of the August term of Superior Court, which opened here this morning, with Judge N. A. Sinclair, presiding, held for little more than an hour and adjourned until tomorrow morning. When court was called it was found that many of the cases docketed for today had been settled out of court, and the remaining cases to be heard consumed very little time.

The first case heard was the impeachment proceedings against A. C. Jackson, who was temporarily removed from office in July by Judge R. A. Nunn upon petition of the Board of County Commissioners. Jackson failed to appear for hearing today and Judge Sinclair ordered that the temporary removal be made permanent. Attorneys were instructed to draw up the order for signature today.

In the case of R. E. Harris versus the Pitt County Highway Commission, motion by attorneys for non suit was sustained by the bench.

Non suit was also taken in the case of Cass and Rosenthal versus R. Solomon, and the case of Carolina Building Supply Co. versus Ruth Clark.

Two other cases were heard in which Minnie S. Lilly was granted divorce from Frank Lilly, and Carrie Spuders was granted divorce from Blaney Saunders.

Kills Step-Daughter, Wounds Wife and Makes His Escape

"Sheik" of the Movies Passed Away Shortly Before Noon As Result of Operations

New York, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Rudolph Valentino, the original "sheik" of the movies, died today. Death occurred at 12:40 p'clock, Eastern Daylight-saving Time, at the Polyclinic Hospital.

Valentino came East several weeks ago to attend the Broadway premiere of his latest picture and to bid farewell to his brother, who was returning to his home in Italy after a visit. He collapsed in his apartment here a week ago Sunday afternoon and was removed to a hospital where an immediate operation was decided upon. Local peritonitis set in shortly after the operation and doctors announced that only his rugged constitution could save him from the dreaded infection becoming general, a condition which usually results in death.

Valentino rallied Wednesday and was reported definitely out of danger barring further complications. The physicians ceased the regular bulleting regarding his condition. The statement that he had developed pleurisy issued last night, followed the terse report of a relapse.

Last rites of the Catholic church had been administered at ten o'clock. Father Leonard heard Valentino's confession, and granted him absolution yesterday when his condition took a turn for the worse.

Makes No Statement As to Disturbance Caused in Washington

Charlotte, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Ben C. Sharpe, prohibition administrator for the 8th district comprised of Georgia and the Carolinas, left for his summer home at Glendale, N. C., today following a conference with members of his office force here.

Mr. Sharpe would make no statement prior to departure relative to the outbreak in Washington a week ago following the administrator's statement in which he declared the 8th district has "more liquor than at any time during the last three years."

Water Works Ass'n. Holding Convention Wilmington Today

Wilmington, Aug. 23.—(AP)—More than 100 delegates were in attendance today at the opening of the sixth annual meeting of the North Carolina section of the American Water Works Association, which is holding a three-day convention here.

The session began shortly before noon with an address of welcome by Mayor Walter Blair. The response was by J. O. Craig, of Salisbury, president of the association. An address prepared by Governor McLean, was read by one of the delegates, the executive having found it impossible to attend.

PIRATES TERRORIZE CREW AND PASSENGERS OF CHINESE STEAMER

Hong Kong, Aug. 23.—(AP)—The Chinese river steamer Manning, of the Chinese Maritime station, near Macao, was boarded last night and ten o'clock last night and the passengers and crew terrorized and kidnapped.

It is believed the passengers were enroute from China to San Francisco and were, for the most part, wealthy Chinese. More than 100 passengers and the ship's crew were kidnapped and their belongings completely ransacked.

MAN'S ACHIEVEMENTS

Man differs from lower forms of animals largely in that he is able to reason and control his impulses to some extent. There is no doubt that one who allows himself to satisfy every desire, follow every impulse, weakens his power of resistance and he soon finds himself going swiftly down the road of degeneration. It seems at times as if it would be wonderful to create a Utopia, or place where every wish is fulfilled, every desire satisfied. And yet it is doubtful if those things denied us, those things that seem so desirable because they are denied, would not lose their glamor if obtained. The pauper wishes for money to be able to satisfy his appetite, some millionaires would give their money for a healthy appetite. One often decries the fact that he is destined to struggle to overcome difficulties, such as lack of finance, disease, etc., in order to exist, but still is forced to admit that if existence were too easily obtained, life would indeed become monotonous.

Man has reached his present status because he has learned to subdue, at least partially his passions, to strengthen himself by denying himself some of the things that seem desirable, to cope with every difficulty that may be presented. He has learned that through work one finds pleasure and contentment, and that the more energy put into a project the more benefit is obtained from it. It is necessary only to glance back through the pages of history to ascertain that the ones who have realized the most from their short span of life, those whose names are immortal, are not those who accumulated fortunes, not those who for a time were able to control the markets of the world, to build palatial homes, but those who spent their time in striving to accomplish something that would aid in the advancement of humanity, and who left behind their eternal monuments of good deeds and examples of self sacrifice. As stated by a great man:

"What we have done for ourselves alone dies with us; what we have done for others and the world remains and is immortal."

In the present age of materialism and commercialism, when the accumulation of fortunes seems to be the consummate desire of a large majority of the people one may well stop to reason that finding pleasure in helping others and thinking more often of the welfare of the whole, insures the continued advancement and progress of humanity.

Plain Facts About Investments

New York, Aug. 20.—(INS)—The end of every long swing in industrial stock prices finds a certain group of stocks plowing and plunging along to higher price levels, while other groups have either remained stationary or declined. As a rule this is the worst time of all for conservative investors to acquire industrial stocks for dividend purposes only, since the stock which has been over priced will logically shrink in market value more than the amount of the annual dividend thereon. To purchase such stocks, unless unusual discrimination be used, as equivalent to having funds tied up on a non-productive basis, and there are many ways of doing this outside of the purchase of speculative stocks. A government bond or savings bank account would be far preferable.

For example, the investor or traders who have held the railroad, copper, steel, theatrical, farm machinery, foodstuffs, chemical, telegraph and cable, and miscellaneous specialty stocks during the latest enthusiastic bull movement in the stock market, have made good profits and have reason to commend themselves for expert judgment and foresight.

These are the groups of stocks which, responding to the unusual brilliant achievements of the strong and well managed companies in their respective industries, and given a strong initial boost by the professionals and pools have led the way to a brilliant and buoyant advance in the prices, more than wiping out the effects of the February and the March collapse.

Despite the remarkable advance in stock prices as a whole in the last five years, or since the first part of 1921, there are eight out of 26 important groups of industrial stocks, selling at lower prices than in the bear market which preceded that period. In other words, there has been no genuine bull movement in the coal, leather, machine manufacturing, paper, sugar, textile, rubber or shipping stocks in one of the most aggressive and widely heralded bull movements in the history of American stock markets.

This must not be taken to mean that the industries enumerated above have been in a state of depression all the time. Far from it. Had they all been in the dumps, the country as a whole would have been in no position to enjoy the unexampled prosperity which visited it in the post-war period. No country could prosper with so many of its important industries on an unprofitable basis and America is no exception to the rule.

It means, however, that the textile trade, shopping business and others have not been sufficiently lucrative to accumulate surpluses for expansion of their future business while paying their stockholders the "going rate" for the millions of dollars invested in the enterprises, with an occasional melon cutting in cash or other equity thrown in.

It means that the leading companies in these industries have not attracted investors sufficiently to permit the flotation of new stock issues or short term borrowing. Their listed stocks do not appeal to speculative buyers and hence the trend of prices of their securities cannot be other than downward as long as such conditions continue.

Irish Linen Hard Hit As U. S. Gives Trade to Continent

Belfast, Aug. 21.—(INS)—Transference of United States custom from Ulster to other parts of the European continent is one of the main causes of the present parlous state of the Irish linen industry, according to prominent business men here.

The United States formerly consumed 70 per cent of the linen produced in Ireland, but with the realization that she could buy many linen and associated lines far cheaper than the Irish product in other parts of Europe this consumption has been reduced easily by two thirds, according to current statistics.

How badly the Irish linen concerns are being hit is revealed in the statement of G. S. Graham, chairman of the York Street Flax Spinning Co., of Belfast, to the shareholders of the company at the recent annual meeting, when it was again reported there would be no dividend on the ordinary shares.

TALK LESS THAN QUEENS FIRST WOMEN OF FRANCE

Paris, Aug. 23.—(AP)—President's wives, or rather former president's wives—the present one being a bachelor—are difficult to interview in France.

Madame Millerand was the first one asked by a woman's paper for an interview. At first she acquiesced, but later withdrew her consent, presumably the paper concludes, at her husband's prompting.

Madame Poincare repudiated the first quality of a president's wife was to keep silence.

Madame Deschanel based her refusal on the shortness of time that she spent in the Elysee Palace, which was so limited that she brought away no impressions.

Madame Fallieres sent no reply from her country retreat in Lunellon.

The difficulty in obtaining interviews with presidents' wives furnished a contrast to the comparative ease with which statements are obtained from Kings and Queens.

10,000 Dentists Are in Philadelphia for 7th Int. Congress

Philadelphia, Aug. 23.—(INS)—The Seventh International Dental Congress, which opened here today, will undoubtedly establish closer relationships between medicine and dentistry, than has ever before existed, according to officials of the Congress. The Congress will continue all this week.

Among the 10,000 dentists assembled here are the most eminent dental scientists of the world.

The close relations of dentistry and medicine has been brought about by dentistry's development as a leading factor in preventive medicine, which is admitted by medical science as being the avenue through which the future progress of the healing art will be made.

President Coolidge, who invited foreign nations to send official representatives to the Congress, was personally represented in the opening session which is being held in the Commercial Museum convention hall. The U. S. government will be represented by United States Senator Henrik Shipstead, of Minnesota; Congressman Roy O. Clark, Michigan; Lieutenant Commander W. L. Darnell, U. S. N., all of whom are dentists and appointed by the President.

Colonel William H. G. Logan, is president of the Congress. Among the prominent dentists are Dr. Trgeman W. Brophy, of Chicago; Dr. Henry L. Banzhaf, of Milwaukee; Dr. W. A. Giffen, of Detroit; Dr. H. E. Frissell, of Pittsburgh; and Dr. Shppard W. Foster, of Atlanta, Ga., who is the president of the American Dental Association.

The session opened today with an address of welcome from Dr. Foster, president of the American Dental Association, to which Colonel Logan responded.

Among the distinguished scientists and practitioners from foreign countries are: Professor Alexander Limburg of the University of Leningrad, who is attending through the permission of the Soviet government; Dr. Floristan Aguiar, of Madrid, Spain, dentist to the Spanish court; Dr. J. N. Sambon, dentist and first general surgeon to the King and Queen of Sweden; Professor William Gilmour, of Liverpool, Eng., occupant of the only endowed chair of dentistry in the world at the University of Liverpool; Dr. Vincenzo Guerini, of Naples; Dr. Mitsturu Okada, of Tokio; Professor Wilhelm Dieck, of Berlin; Dr. Georges Villain, of Paris, and many others of eminence.

The Congress has an extensive clinical program, in which will be demonstrated the most advanced methods of dentistry.

Professor B. Goettlich, of Vienna, authority on the prevention of pyorrhea, will address the convention on the subject.

German tourists, turning the tables on the French who poured into the Rhineland when the mark was at a low rate, are now, thanks to their restored currency, thronging into the savery region, particularly in the higher resorts of the French alps. So great is this invasion that at Chamonix, the natives complain there is almost as much German as French spoken.

Twice as many hand rolled cigarettes are smoked in Paris as machine made by the state factories, the total for last year being 10,000,000,000 state made as against 22,000,000,000 self made. This is explained by some smokers as a reflection on the defective manner that the state turns out its cigarettes, but it is also greatly due to the economy that smokers find in rolling their own cigarettes.

The commercialization of tobacco trade in France which the Poincare government is introducing will no doubt try to change this state of affairs and bring France into line with other countries where the number of machine made cigarette sold is at least double that of hand made.

Berlin, Aug. 21.—(AP)—"Verboten" signs, which for so many years have been traditional in Germany, for serious curtailment under the reform plans of the Prussian ministry of the interior. Germany has a million ordinances too many. Secretary Abegg declares.

Another nuisance, the secretary says, is the multiplicity of bureaucratic factotums, authorized to enforce various ordinances. Prussia alone has 15,000 such petty officials. Many ordinances, especially those involving traffic regulations, date back a century.

A bottle of wine, reputed to be the oldest in the world, is a special attraction of the wine section in the historical Museum of Speyer.

This ancient relic of a hard drinking age is over 1,600 years old. It is a large Roman glass bottle containing a mixture of wine and honey almost two thirds of which is still in the liquid.

Princess Mary is fond of large hats and she likes them in bright colors. She recently has been wearing a wide brimmed picture hat in Damson red, simply trimmed with velvet of the same color. This hat usually is combined with gray gowns, set off by a bouquet the same color as the hat. Princess Ingrid, the 16 year old daughter of the Swedish crown prince, also is fond of picture hats but generally wears pure white ones and white frocks.

Paris, Aug. 21.—(AP)—Coming after the bemonaced and bospatted M. de Monzie and the equally bemonaced and adorned M. Caillaux, France's new finance minister and premier, Raymond Poincare, is an extremely simply dresser.

Practicing his own preachment of public and private economy, M. Poincare is wearing the same old soft gray hat he wore when he left the premiership more than two years ago. Also he is wearing an old gray sack suit that shows considerable need of press ing.

He is repairing less frequently to the barber, for his hair and beard trims when he occupied the more decorative post of President of the republic.

THE THEOSOPHY SOCIETY TO HAVE NATIONAL CENTER

Chicago, Aug. 23.—(AP)—The American Society of Theosophy will lay the corner stone of its new $250,000 national headquarters at Wheaton, Ill., near here, next Sunday, during its national convention here August 28 to September 1.

Approximately 2,000 members of the 274 lodges throughout the country are expected to attend the gathering, which will have as its guests of honor J. Krishnamurti, young Hindu regarded by the society as the man through whom God will work when next his agency visits the earth, and Mrs. Annie Besant, international president of the Society. They will come from Aydar, near Madras, India, headquarters of the Society.

Mrs. Besant, despite her advanced age of 79, will find a busy program of addresses planned for her, with as peaking tour from coast to coast awaiting the end of the convention.

Krishnamurti and she will be guests at a reception Saturday. August 28, the opening day of the convention, and Mrs. Besant will speak Sunday evening, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday when the convention will end with a banquet, and on Thursday will deliver a public lecture in a downtown theatre.

Mrs. Besant is the editor of a daily newspaper published in Madras, India, general secretary of the National Conference of India, and of the National Convention of India.

The bottle was found in a grave dating from the year 300 A. D. Originally the contents were sealed with oil which in the course of many centuries has become gummed up whereby the precious beverage has been preserved.

The commercialization of tobacco trade in France which the Poincare government is introducing will no doubt try to change this state of affairs and bring France into line with other countries where the number of machine made cigarette sold is at least double that of hand made.

Berlin, Aug. 21.—(AP)—"Verboten" signs, which for so many years have been traditional in Germany, for serious curtailment under the reform plans of the Prussian ministry of the interior. Germany has a million ordinances too many. Secretary Abegg declares.

Another nuisance, the secretary says, is the multiplicity of bureaucratic factotums, authorized to enforce various ordinances. Prussia alone has 15,000 such petty officials. Many ordinances, especially those involving traffic regulations, date back a century.

A bottle of wine, reputed to be the oldest in the world, is a special attraction of the wine section in the historical Museum of Speyer.

This ancient relic of a hard drinking age is over 1,600 years old. It is a large Roman glass bottle containing a mixture of wine and honey almost two thirds of which is still in the liquid.

Princess Mary is fond of large hats and she likes them in bright colors. She recently has been wearing a wide brimmed picture hat in Damson red, simply trimmed with velvet of the same color. This hat usually is combined with gray gowns, set off by a bouquet the same color as the hat. Princess Ingrid, the 16 year old daughter of the Swedish crown prince, also is fond of picture hats but generally wears pure white ones and white frocks.

All the bell ringers in Chertsey were members of the bridal party at the wedding of Miss Lilly Stevens and Chimers from distant parishes had to be summoned to Chertsey to ring the wedding bells.

Miss Stevens' father, who gave the bride away, has been foreman of the Chertsey bell ringers for years. The bride and her sister, who acted as bridesmaid both are experienced ringers. The groom and best man also are members of the local bell ringers.

Paris, Aug. 21.—(AP)—Coming after the bemonaced and bospatted M. de Monzie and the equally bemonaced and adorned M. Caillaux, France's new finance minister and premier, Raymond Poincare, is an extremely simply dresser.

Practicing his own preachment of public and private economy, M. Poincare is wearing the same old soft gray hat he wore when he left the premiership more than two years ago. Also he is wearing an old gray sack suit that shows considerable need of press ing.

He is repairing less frequently to the barber, for his hair and beard trims when he occupied the more decorative post of President of the republic.

German tourists, turning the tables on the French who poured into the Rhineland when the mark was at a low rate, are now, thanks to their restored currency, thronging into the savery region, particularly in the higher resorts of the French alps. So great is this invasion that at Chamonix, the natives complain there is almost as much German as French spoken.

Twice as many hand rolled cigarettes are smoked in Paris as machine made by the state factories, the total for last year being 10,000,000,000 state made as against 22,000,000,000 self made. This is explained by some smokers as a reflection on the defective manner that the state turns out its cigarettes, but it is also greatly due to the economy that smokers find in rolling their own cigarettes.

The commercialization of tobacco trade in France which the Poincare government is introducing will no doubt try to change this state of affairs and bring France into line with other countries where the number of machine made cigarette sold is at least double that of hand made.

London, Aug. 23.—(INS)—To make England safe from air attacks in any future war is the object of a new scheme of national defense now approaching completion.

Experts of the air ministry, the admiralty and the war office have co-operated for five years in developing the defensive plans, which are designed to break up aerial bombardments as well as protect citizens of London and other large cities from gas attacks.

Units of the Royal Air Force concerned with engineering and maintenance are being moved further inland, so that ships and schools for training personnel would be less likely to be destroyed or damaged by enemy raiders, while squadrons of fighting airplanes are to be stationed at strategic points along the coasts, there to be in readiness to fly to the defense of London and the great centers of production. Land is being purchased by the air ministry to build new aerodromes with a view to establishing two unbroken lines of flying stations around London. These stations will be equipped with anti-aircraft guns, searchlights, sound-locators, and other devices to make it extremely difficult for any attacking squadron to steal down upon England from the Continent or from ships at sea.

The elaborate plans of the government for future protection against air raids are the natural outgrowth of the fears implanted in a large proportion of the English people by the German aerial bombardment in the world war. It is felt that in the next war, the navigation of the air will be so perfected that it will be from that direction, rather than from the water, that England would be likely to receive the most serious blows.

Women members of the House of Commons, annoyed at the bad accommodation reserved for them in the private rooms of the legislative buildings, are considering the question of sending a petition to the speaker demanding more and better accommodation.

The return of Margaret Bonfield to the House has brought the matter to a head, declare the women M. P's. There are now six women in the Commons, and it is complained that the rooms which are now allotted to them are not only small, but have only one small mirror.

"The way in which we are treated is disgraceful," said Helen Wilkins, the red-haired Laborite member for Middlesborough, describing the women's viewpoint.

The mosaic floor of an ancient Roman banquet hall where St. Paul is said to have preached, and believed to be one of the finest Roman remains in the world, has been rediscovered at Woodchester, near Stroud, Gloucestershire, a district notable for its trace of the early Roman habitation of Britain.

First discovered thirty-six years ago by gravediggers digging in the local church yard, the floor lay forgotten until an old-timer of the village suddenly remembered its existence and drew it to the attention of the local parson. It was found at the time of its discovery to be part of a villa supposed to have been the home of a Roman general and Governor of England. This supposition is borne out by the great beauty of the remains found, the elaborate arrangement of flues for heating and draining, and the magnificent baths.

Colonel Thomas Edward Lawrence, "mysterious man of the war" scholar, archaeologist, strategist, tactician and anchorite, has again joined the British Air Force as a private. He wants quiet to write another book.

His last book, also written while a private in the air force, was surely the most expensive book ever written. With Arabia as its subject matter, he is issuing 150 copies only at $1.00 each, and every purchaser must be known to the author and must sign a guarantee that he will not divulge the contents of the book.

In order to preserve the copyright in the United States, Lawrence will have to put one unabridged copy on the New York market, but he is pricing it at $25.00.

tored to a high hill, from his castle in Holland, looked across the German frontier, and gazed on the fatherland for the first time since he ran away from that fatherland, after the armistice. A crowd of German nationalists, by arrangement of course, rushed across the border to see and cheer him. Moses had the same experience looking at the Promised Land, but not allowed to enter, after all his hard work. The Kaiser, moreover, may have other chances.

Senator Capper tells the President that farmers want a new tariff, the Kansas senator thinks something is wrong, when canned beef from the Argentine is sold at cut rates in Kansas, where cattle grow. He wants a tariff on hides, higher tariff on wheat and cattle, all aluminum on the free list.

Why not arrange a tariff that would protect all interests and without hypocritical pretence, farms protect factory workers and business men in this country from the competition of low wages and cheap money abroad. Farmers have not had consideration, because, like the workers, they are not really united politically, and they live out in the fields, instead of having offices in Wall Street, and lawyers around the corners.

DANIELS SPEAKS DEDICATION OF MEM. CHAPEL

Former Secretary Praises 'Valor of Those Who Gave "All" in World War

Pressmen's Home, Tenn., Aug. 23.—(AP)—The only man who lives is the man who is ready to die for others, declared Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy in Wilson's cabinet, in an address here this morning at the dedication of a memorial building "to American pressmen who took an honorable part in the mightiest war in the time of tide."

"We can never forget that when the testing time came to this generation the youth of our day had as many Nathan Hales and Paul Reverses as 'phone in the Revolutionary firmament," asserted Mr. Daniels. The call in 1917-18 was not a call but to all Americans. These men who responded, the speaker pointed out, were the men who lived.

The dedication of the memorial building here today marked the first memorial to veterans of the World War to be dedicated by an international labor union. The building takes the form of a Memorial Chapel, to be used exclusively for religious services of all denominations, and over its door is the inscription, "For God and Country."

Mr. Daniels reviewed the bravery and spirit with which Labor entered the World War and declared that the success of the campaign for democracy depended largely upon those who came up from the ranks and assumed the lead in the great conflict. Fortunately for America, he continued, there lived during the time of strife a great head of the Federation of Labor—Samuel Gompers. He called upon his followers to crush out treason and they responded.

The speaker spoke of another great man who came from the ranks of Labor and was invaluable during the World War—Major George L. Berry, leader of the Pressmen patriots and one of the founders of the American Legion in Paris and its senior national commander.

This memorial, Mr. Daniels asserted, is to honor these men and their followers. It is to "manifest appreciation for the service rendered by those who returned and to memorialize the lives and contributions made by those who failed to return."

Alleges Cruelty By Keeper Stanley County Home

Albermarle, Aug. 23.—(AP)—From her cell in the Stanley county jail, Mrs. Nannie McIntyre today told newspaper men that she had been severely beaten by J. C. Burleyson, keeper of the Stanley County Home, of which she was an inmate until last Tuesday, when she departed.

The woman, who is about 35 years of age, was arrested here upon Burleyson's order. Reports are to the effect that the incident has been called to the attention of the Department of Public Welfare a Raleigh.

LIVED CLOSE FRIENDS FOR NINETY YEARS

Iron Mountain, Mich., Aug. 23.—(INS)—Born in the same month in the same district in Canada; been companions day by day for the last eight years; each in the garden. Gereau's hobby 90 years old, claimed by death was walking.

10 minutes apart. These are the remarkable coincidences in the passing of Joseph Gereau and Israel Valencourt at their homes in Quinnessa, Minn. Both were early settlers in the peninsula. Valencourt's hobby was taking care of chickens and doing work day for the last eight years; each in the garden. Gereau's hobby 90 years old, claimed by death was walking.
