Scandinavian Airmen Try to Break Record

Copenhagen, Jan. 14. - (INS) throught the air, is a question stirring the imagination of the population of this city at present The question has gained new actuality through the airplane competition held here recently and which was witnessed by an immense crowd. Two of the pilots of the air service of the Danish navy succeeded in breaking Scandinavian record for attitude, one soaring a distance of 8,600 meters through the air and the other even reaching a loftitude of 8,900 meters. The thermometer of the latter's machine showed 52 degrees Celsius below zero; and not being adjust for a lower temperature it was completely smashed in the bottom. Experts think it is impossible to ascend higher with the airplanes used for this competition as both the pilots declare that it proved impossible to drive the machines higher. It is planned however to continue the experiments early this year, and hen an attempt will be made to break the world record. A number of new machines have been ordered from England and which are provided with a special apparatus that can supply the mofor with additionat air. By the help of this device it should be possible to ascend about 1500 me-ters higher. During the manouve res the aviators will wear the new electric suits that are made according to the same system as the electric warming pillows.
