Administration Offici als See Conciliatory Note in Reference to Tariff Issue

Paris, Oct. 3.-(AP)-France and the United States appear deadlocked in their negotiations for settlement of the pending tariff con-

Publication today of aide memoires exchanged recently indicate that France continues to demand assurances of reciprocity in the negotiations, while Washington, in its aide memoires delivered at the Quai D'Orsay last week insists upon most favored nation treatment.

Washington, Oct 3-(AP)-While the latest French tariff note is viewed by administration officials as con cilitatory and prehaps opening the way to settlement of the present dispute, text of the first two notes exchanged shows that the French guns have been trained directly on American tariff rates from the time the Franco-German commercial treaty was signed. These notes were made public simultaneously today in Washington and Paris, to be followed later by the current chapter in the interchange, the French note received now being formulated and is ex-

Any change in rate will be hased on study of production costs and will go up or down as that study dictates. Officials are in some doubt as to whether the French authorities realize that in many previous cases such studies have brought tariff increases.

In any event, examination of the first French note shows the new suggestion is a wide departure from the orginal treaty to include if necessary "such reductions or adaptions of the (American) tariff" as would permit certain unnamed French goods to enter the American market. In reply the state department implied surprise that the French government did not know that the American tariff law "does not envisage the in regard to rates of duty."

In admitting an "Augmentation" of these rates, the French note said man, of Durham, who with three they had come about under the "customs reform" of August 30 which was "instituted in consequence of the Franco-German treaty". It adds that the previous "exceptional treatment" granted American goods entering France and which was withdram by the August 30 decree was "not in harmony with the constant increase in American rates and the re-enforcement of customs barriers practiced by American since 1921 to the detriment of certain specific products of the French trade".

The latest and vet unpublished French note rebukes the Washington government for a threatening reference to the penalty section of the American tariff law. That remark was prompted, presumably, by the statement in the American note callthorizing counter discrimination, but all escaped without injury. assi ing that Washington "is very to make such duty increses clearly at present time practicing notion treaty and ad-interim sus- lision occurred. pension of the French discriminatory rates would settle the controversy without that recourse
