BILLY SUNDAY DELIVERS STIRRING SERMON ABOUT NEED OF BETTER HOMES

Evangelist Preaches Sermon on Subject of "Home," in Observance Better Home Week Throughout United States.

Picturing the home as the foundation of civilization, Billy Sunday, famous evangelist, last night delivered one of the most forceful sermons of his campaign in this city. The discourse came as a crowning feature of "Better Homes Week," sponsored by the Woman's Club of Greenville, in keeping with similar observance throughout the nation.

"I have traveled up and down this land and I have met every beast in the arena, and I am convinced now that neither law nor script can make a nation great without home authority and home example," Mr. Sunday declared.

"Parental neglect is one of the principal causes for the failure of boys. Judicious control and moral training are absolutely indispensable; neglect is not less fatal. The fool-doting parent who can not bear to correct that boy may be compelled to see him corrected in the reformatory and by the sovereignty of the power of the state. I know a good many people go around and sneer at the boy and say, 'Oh, he is tied to his mother's apron strings.' But that is an ancient term of reproach and it is designed to separate youths with pink hair from the vestige of self-restraint and from self-respect, and the sneering use of that phrase will convert a fairly decent boy into a loud-mouthed, swaggering tough with a vocabulary of a Bowery bum and all the refined tastes of a wharf rat."

The evangelist was faced by another congregation of between three and four thousand people last night. He preached to them as he probably has never preached before, at the opening of the campaign last Sunday afternoon. Apparently, he threw his entire heart and soul into the task of convincing his hearers of the necessity of improving homes that civilization of the future may not hit the toboggan. But none of Billy Sunday's violence of gesture was in evidence. His diction was smooth and even and not all eruptive. It was the Rev. William A. Sunday, student, man of the world, composed and reserved, doing the preaching.

Mr. Sunday has accepted an invitation to preach at the First Baptist church in Rocky Mount next Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock. He will speak here in the afternoon and night as customary.

Tonight Mr. Sunday will speak on the subject of "Forces That Win." The largest crowd of the week is expected at this service and the mammoth tabernacle at Smith & Sugg's warehouse probably will be crowded to capacity.

"In Genesis, the eighteenth chapter, the nineteenth verse, 'I know him,' speaking of Abraham—God said, 'I know him, and he will command his children and his household after him.'"

"I am going to throw myself on the merciful sympathy of this hope that what I have to say may arrest our attention and grip our heart. Somebody has said that the sweetest word in the language which we speak, no matter what time, whether where the sunbeams are dancing in sunny La Belle, France, or upon Cejlar's perfumed shores or India's coral strand, or where frost-kissed holds sway in the Klondike of the North, the sweetest word in the language is 'home,' whether it means that to the Eskimo in his igloo or whether it means it to the Indian in his tepee on the plains or to the millionaire in his palace on Fifth avenue."

"Home Most Sacred Spot. 'I want you to go with me for a brief time to the most sacred spot in all the world, the one ground which cluster more sweet associations and precious memories than any other in the universe, and that is home. In the long I live and see the joys and sorrows and the successes and the failures of men and women, the more I become convinced that the home is one of the greatest problems we have.'"

"The homes are like streams pouring forth their current into the great emblem of eternity we call the world, and they should be the center of everything noble and inspiring. Nothing should ever be admitted to wriggle its insidious, destroying carcass across our threshold to assassinate virtue, or to lead that boy or girl toward God, or on their knee to develop a Christian character."

"You walk up and ask ten different men and you get ten different definitions of home. To one it is love the hearth. To another it is (Continued On Page Five)

Be Kind to New Ideas.
Miss Congo's Insides.

It was said of one, long dead, "he never feared the face of any man." Floyd Bennett, the American flier who died yesterday, never feared the face of death. He died in a noble effort to help others. The respect and admiration of all his countrymen are his. He could have given him no more had he lived a hundred years.

"Greater love hath no man than that a man lay down his life for his friends."

Above New York yesterday, in a trim motor Fokker airplane, flew George Young, publisher of the Los Angeles Examiner, and other good Californians. Major Mosely, of Los Angeles, was pilot. The western air express, owning the machine, will start carrying passengers from ocean to ocean.

Mr. Young found the Atlantic ocean small, was sorry to see that New York lacks Los Angeles possibilities of expansion but was otherwise well pleased with Los Angeles' eastern rival.

Charles M. Schwab sails for England to receive the Bessener medal as outstanding figure in the world's iron industry.

On the same ship, Berengaria, sailed William Randolph Hearst, Jr., on his honeymoon. William Randolph, Jr., will go to work on the New York American. He and the Hearst family are meditating on the importance of taking new ideas kindly.

RUSH TROOPS TO SHANTUNG

Northern Dictator Attempts to Hold off Advance of Southern Forces.

Shanghai, April 27.—(AP)—Marshal Chang Tso-Lin, northern dictator, today was rushing all available troops he could muster in Manchuria into Shantung to stem the advance of the southerners across that province and toward the objective of their drive on Peking.

The troops were being sent to Tschow, near the Shantung-Chihli border and about 40 miles northwest of Tsinan, which is still in the hands of the northerners.

At a conference of northern generals in Tsinan supreme command was given Sun Chuan-Fang, Chang Tsung-Chang, military governor of Shantung, retiring to the rear.

The northern forces claimed they were holding a line running from Pingyin on the banks of the Yellow river, through Feicheng to Tainan, on the railway connecting Tainan and Nanking. This would place them only 30 miles to the south of Tsinan.

Three governments, the United States, Great Britain and Japan, have adopted precautions to protect their nationals. The British consul at Chaochow advised the British to go to K'aiwai, which is British territory. A Japanese regiment arrived at Tsinan.

The Nationalists advance has disturbing American life and the fate of another American is in doubt. Dr. Walter F. Seymour, superintendent of the Presbyterian hospital at Tsinan, southern Shantung, was slain, presumably by a Nationalist soldier for giving medical aid to wounded northerners. The American legation had a report that L. C. Osborn, of the Nazarene mission at Chaochow, western Shantung, was a prisoner of the Nationalists, who took him to Kaichow Chi, in southern Chihli. The consul general at Hankow was investigating this report.

BREMEN CREW TAKE OFF FOR CAPITAL CITY

Atlantic Fliers to pay Honor to Bennett Upon Arrival at Washington.

Curtiss Field, N. Y., April 27.—(AP)—The crew of the trans-Atlantic plane Bremen landed here at 1:46 p. m.

The Ford relief plane which brought the trans-Atlantic fliers from Greenly island appeared suddenly over the field at 1:45 and after circling about, settled gently to the ground.

Few people were on hand to greet the fliers. A large delegation of reporters and photographers had been sent from New York on the chance that the plane might stop at the Long Island fields but almost all of them had gathered at Mitchell Field, a mile away from Curtiss field.

Lake Ste. Agnes, Que., April 27.—(By the Canadian Press)—The tri-motored Ford relief plane which landed here yesterday from Greenly island with the Bremen crew, took off at 7 o'clock today on a non-stop flight to Washington, D. C.

The plane, which was piloted by Ernst Balthen, was occupied by Captain Koehl, Baron Von Huenefeld, and Major Fitzmaurice, hero of the east-to-west trans-Atlantic flight, Miss Herta Junkers, daughter of the designers of the Bremen, a newspaperman and Carl Wenzel, Junkers' representative.

The plane left the ground easily after a run of one thousand feet. It steadily climbed, clearing a mountain and disappeared in the southwest. Five minutes later it was back circling over the lake. Charles A. Levine's Columbia across the Atlantic, to take off.

Mechanics immediately started the motor of Chamberlin's plane while the Ford machine was loading, waiting for its escort. The Ford headed towards the south for a second time and at 7:05 Chamberlin rose into the air and both planes were soon out of sight.

Lake Ste. Agnes, Que., April 27.—(AP)—Away from Greenly island for the first time since their trans-Atlantic plane landed there April 13, two German fliers, with their Irish comrade, were intent today upon a 700-mile flight to Washington to honor an American aviator who died trying to do them.

In the tri-motored Ford relief plane in which they landed here yesterday from an eight and one-half hour flight from lonely Greenly island, Bremen crew planned the trip to the capital to lay a wreath on the grave at Arlington national cemetery for Floyd Bennett, who originally commanded the relief expedition.

The flight from Greenly island was through several storm storms during which Major James Fitzmaurice, and Captain Hermann Koehl of the Bremen crew alternated at the controls with Ernst Balthen pilot of the Ford plane, but the plane arrived here on schedule.

Major Fitzmaurice with a cheerful grin and in his Irish free coat, was the first to step from the plane, followed by Captain Koehl and Baron Huenefeld in their German blue uniforms. It was Major Fitzmaurice's second visit to Lake Ste. Agnes. He came here once before to arrange for the relief of his German comrades.

An official greeting to the trans-Atlantic fliers was extended by Abbe Savaud of the Parish of Malbale, who read an address of welcome in French.

To this Baron Von Huenefeld replied in the same language. "We appreciate the boundless hospitality of the people of Canada," he said, "and thank you from the bottom of our hearts."

"May God bless the beautiful country of Canada and its people," he concluded.

The Baron said he and his comrades take as a tribute to Bennett who took to Washington flags of Germany, the Irish free state, the United States, the North German Lloyd and the Hamburg-American Line which the Bremen had brought from Ireland.

Plans were made at first for a non-stop flight to Washington, but the possibility of a stop enroute for fuel, possibly at Hartford, Conn., was considered, especially as soft ice here seemed to present difficulties for a take-off by the Ford plane with a full load. Normal flying conditions would enable the Ford plane to reach Bolling Field, near Washington, by 2 p. m.

Two Hurt In Windstorm. Jackson, Miss., April 27.—(AP)—Two persons were injured, one seriously and more than $50,000 damage suffered by property in an electrical and wind storm here last night.

DEATH CLAIMS INTREPID FLYER

Floyd Bennett, one of the world's most noted flyers, succumbed to pneumonia in Quebec, thus ending a brilliant career all too soon. His gallant feat of rising from a sick bed at Detroit to answer the distress cry of the Bremen was the cause of his contracting the illness. Upper left is an excellent photo of Bennett wearing the Congressional Medal of Honor which was awarded him for his part in Commander Byrd's North Pole flight. Upper right he is being presented with the Hubbard Medal by President Coolidge. Below he is seen with Secretary Wilbur, Commander Byrd and President Coolidge at the time when the Medal of Honor was conferred on him at Washington, D. C.

ASK REMOVAL OF JUDGE AT CHICAGO, ILL.

Crime Commission Charges Break down in Law Enforcement in Political Move.

Chicago, April 27.—(AP)—Removal of three judges from the criminal court bench has been demanded by the Chicago crime commission. A break down in law enforcement is charged and an alliance between politics and criminals is held responsible.

The statement of the commission, a non-official organization, singled out Judge Emanuel Eller, Stanley H. Klarkowski and Otto Kerner, and pointed to the records of their courts for the last three months for substantiation of its charges.

These judges, the statement said, "were put on the bench by politicians, against the protests and votes of the Chicago bar association."

The "man who runs may read from the record why politics needed them on the bench," the statement continued. "During these three months there was only one trial and capital conviction for murder, and that not of a gunman but of a doctor who had performed an abortion."

"During the same three months fully 400 jurors were in daily attendance waiting to be called to try such murderers and gunmen as had been indicted and arrested; but it was easier to waive gun-counts and secure pleas of guilty to minor offenses of which the criminals were not guilty, and so make a cheap record of convictions for the state's attorney and the judges."

"In short, it was politics in full swing in the state attorney's office and on the criminal court bench."

"These judges should not sit a day longer in the original court if they will not voluntarily retire, then the other judges of the circuit and superior courts who placed them in the criminal court should recall them and assign to the criminal court judges who will enforce the law against criminals."

The waiting of felony and gun cases for pleas of guilty to minor offenses was the chief complaint of the commission. Growth of the system has been pointed out in previous reports which have shown that all judges have granted such waivers. Judges Eller, Klarkowski and Kerner, however, were singled out because of the large number of such cases in their courts, the statement said.

Matrieide Granted Bond. Ottawa, Ill., April 27.—(AP)—Harry Hill, young alleged matrieide, was admitted to $20,000 bond today when Judge Joe A. Davis sustained the defense's challenge of the jury list drawn for the youth's second murder trial and continued the case until next September.

Clears Way Today For Railway Consolidation

New York, April 27.—(AP)—Surrendering his holdings in the Wabash and Lehigh Valley railroads, Leonard E. Loree has cleared the way for a final agreement on the eastern railway consolidation involving 50,000 miles of track and properly worth billions of dollars.

Loree yesterday relinquished his dream of a fifth trunk line between the east and west and sold his stock in the Wabash and Lehigh to the Pennsylvania railroad for $53,000,000.

The deal was closed after weeks of bargaining by Loree, W. W. Atterbury, head of the Pennsylvania, and other railroad interests. The amount of Loree's holdings was not disclosed.

The sale was for cash and free of all encumbrances. It leaves Loree a free hand in the disposition of the Delaware and Hudson, of which he is president, and which he may keep or throw into any merger he sees fit.

Consummation of the deal followed closely upon the disclosure that Otto H. Kahn, banker, had intervened in a deadlock which threatened when Loree refused to give up his fifth trunk line scheme.

The deal may be a contest for territory between the now strongly entrenched Pennsylvania and other great eastern lines. The Baltimore & Ohio, it is believed in some quarters, may now acquire the Wabash holdings from the Pennsylvania, since there exists friendly relations between the two roads.

With Loree out of the picture after three years in which he balked efforts at consolidation, it is predicted in railroad circles that the Pennsylvania, Baltimore and Ohio, New York Central and Nickel Plate, will now go ahead with plans to amalgamate the eastern carriers into four groups.

As predicted by financial writers the lineup of roads under pending proposals would be as follows: The New York Central would receive the D. L. & W., Buffalo, Roch-ester & Pittsburgh, and the Wheeling & Lake Erie, Chicago & Eastern Illinois, or to parallel it along Lake Erie, the Norfolk & Western, and part of the Virginian and others.

The Baltimore & Ohio would get the Reading, Jersey Central, Western Maryland, Wabash, part of the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh, the Monon and others.

The Nickel Plate, controlled by the New Sweringers, would have the Chesapeake & Ohio, Hoeking Valley, Pere Marquette, a half interest in the Lehigh Valley, part of the Virginian, the Erie, part of the Wheeling & Lake Erie, the Pittsburgh & West Virginia and others.

Senate to Iron Out Mississippi Flood Measure. Washington, April 27.—(AP)—In agreeing to the house amendment, the senate ordered the Mississippi river flood control bill to preference for an ironing out of differences and also to attempt to change the measure so as to meet objections by President Coolidge.

Senator Jones received a memorandum today from President Coolidge outlining the house amendments to which he has objection and Senator Jones conferred with Major General Edwin, chief of army engineers, regarding the matter. This memorandum with explanations will be presented to the conferees for their consideration.

Approve Prayer Book Revision. London, April 27.—(AP)—Final approval of the revised prayer book measure of the Church of England was voted today at a special session of the church assembly. The motion of the church assembly, the measure about which so much controversy has centered now goes to the House of Commons for acceptance or rejection.

The total vote was 396 for the revision and 153 against it, divided as follows: in the House of Bishops, 32 for and two against; in the House of Clergy, 183 for and 59 against; in the House of Laity, 181 for and 192 against.

MADDEN DIES SUDDENLY AT CAPITAL CITY

Veteran Congressman From Illinois Succumbs to Sudden Heart Attack.

Washington, April 27.—(AP)—Martin Madden, veteran member of Congress, from Illinois, died suddenly today.

Mr. Madden expired within a few minutes after being stricken by an acute attack of heart trouble.

He was in his office at the time the attack occurred and breathed his last within a few minutes after Representative Strovich of New York, a physician, reached him.

Representative Summers of Washington another physician, arrived a few minutes later. They administered first aid treatment but Mr. Madden did not respond and passed away quietly.

The representative was chairman of the appropriations committee and in this position was one of the most influential members of the house.

He was a staunch supporter of the Coolidge administration and just recently took a leading part in trying to put over the desires of President Coolidge in connection with the Mississippi river flood control bill.

Mr. Madden was conferring with Representative Sprout, of Illinois, at the time the attack occurred. While he was talking he suddenly slumped down in his chair.

Mr. Sprout called to clerks in an office adjoining and they assisted him to a couch, he never regained consciousness.

Just preceding his conference with Mr. Sprout, Mr. Madden had talked with other colleagues regarding the District of Columbia appropriation bill and somewhat heatedly had told the house members to hold out against amendments desired in the bill by the senate.

This was a fitting end to the career of this picturesque statesman. For years he has stood his ground against undue drains on the treasury and in upholding the position of the house whenever he had differences with the senate.

He was in his 73rd year but was active for his age and a number of his colleagues had commented in recent months over the apparent improvement in health of the committee chairman.

The house adjourned immediately in respect to the veteran representative on motion of Representative Williams, Republican, Illinois.

"Mr. Madden's death brings to a close the career of a great legislator," said Mr. Williams, in announcing the death on the floor.

"For many years Mr. Madden has served as a member of the house and as chairman of the appropriations committee, and he was probably the greatest chairman that important committee has ever had."

Idaho Senator to Launch Fight for dry Plank in Republican Party Platform. Washington, April 27.—(AP)—Taking to the country his fight for a prohibition plank in the next Republican platform, Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, will open his campaign here in the Hamilton Club at Chicago tomorrow night.

This will be the first in a series of four or five addresses the senator will make on prohibition during the next few weeks but he finds it impossible because of the pressure of work here to make a continuous campaign.

After his Chicago address he will return to Washington and later on an opportunity affords he will journey forth to speak in both the east and west. The Idahoan, who has sent prohibition questionnaires to a number of the candidates for the Republican presidential nomination, is prepared to carry on his fight for a dry plank at the Kansas City convention.

Bad Health May Cause M. Briand To Retire Soon. Paris, April 27.—(AP)—Foreign Minister Aristide Briand may be obliged to relinquish his portfolio, at least temporarily, it was said in diplomatic circles today despite the fact that improvement was noted in his condition.

M. Briand is recovering from gripe, complications are likely and his progress will be slow. It will be a long time before he will be able to resume his duties at Quai D'Orsay.

NOTED FLYER LAID TO REST AT ARLINGTON

Floyd Bennett Buried at National Cemetery Today as Nation Pays Tribute.

Washington, April 27.—(AP)—Floyd Bennett, who crowded a life time of hazardous adventure into his short span of 33 years, came to Washington today on his last journey to be buried in Arlington cemetery beside the rugged figure of Peary, first conqueror of the waste lands of the north pole.

As the young naval mechanic was conveyed along the route which leads over Pennsylvania avenue, across the broad Potomacs and up the winding hills of Virginia the capital gazed fruitless into the sudden skies for a sight of the German-Irish crew of the Bremen for whose sake he had given his life.

But there came word that the crew of the Bremen who were coming to pay tribute at the grave would not reach Washington in time to attend the funeral. Nevertheless, the Navy Department had permitted exercises unusual at funerals of sailors of such low rank as the man who flew across the north pole with Byrd.

New York, April 27.—(AP)—New York saluted in reverent tribute today as Floyd Bennett came home on his way to a grave in historic Arlington cemetery at Washington.

In less than three hours from the time of the arrival of the body from Quebec to the departure of the funeral train for Washington, official New York, the army and navy, and thousands of citizens extended to Bennett a hero's fare; well on a day which had been reserved for triumphant welcome to the men he had tried to rescue from isolation on lonely Greenly island.

In a flag-draped coffin the body left Pennsylvania terminal at 10:25 a. m. for the journey to Washington for burial near the grave of Admiral Peary, who in a ship's year ago preceded Bennett and Commander Richard E. Byrd in their historic flight to the north pole.

Behind him the left a cheer in mourning. Flags that had flown in tribute to the German-Irish crew of the trans-Atlantic plane Bremen stirred slowly in the slight breeze of early day as if to match the spirit cast by the half-staffed national colors on municipal buildings and the skyscrapers of the metropolis.

The aviator's body arrived at the Grand Central terminal at 7:30 a. m. and under escort of military naval and police details was taken to the 71st regiment, armory in lower Park avenue where it lay in state for more than an hour while thousands filed slowly by.

While WEAF and Associated Press radio stations carried the ceremony to millions throughout the land great crowds pressed about the armory in a vain effort to view the body.

"He was the pastor," said the Rev. Daniel A. Posing, pastor of the Marble Collegiate Church and President of the Church Federation of Greater New York, at the conclusion of the radio service.

"His memory remains as an unfulfilled eschaton to be won by all who follow worthily his high calling spirit shall live again and yet again in the youth of the world."

Outside the armory the rumbling traffic of the city was stilled while the body lay inside and during its movement from the Grand Central terminal to the Pennsylvania station.

The casket was carried on an artillery caisson to the slow measured tread of the escort while throngs in the streets bared their heads and bowed.

Four airplanes soared high above and their pilots dropped floral tributes to their departed comrade in the skies.

Mrs. Cora Bennett, the widow, who left a sick bed in her Brooklyn home to be with her husband when he died in Quebec, Mrs. Bennett carried her husband's warrent officers' uniform which she obtained at their home this morning and in which the aviator will be buried.

The city was represented by Grover A. Whalen, chairman of the mayor's reception committee, and high officers of the army and navy represented the branches of the service.

Six warrant officers of the navy were the pallbearers while additional details came from the 16th infantry of the regular army and the 71st regiment, New York national guard. (Continued on Page 6)

Woman's Club Observes Better Home Week

Following their usual custom the members of the Woman's club observed Better Home Week by a special program on Thursday afternoon.

The first part of the program was in charge of Miss Veasey who announced as her subject "Better Music in the Home". A most interesting and delightful talk was made emphasizing the fact that since music of some kind is within reach of everyone the home makers problem is to cooperate with the schools and cultivate the right taste in children which will lead to their appreciation of good music.

Suggestions for accomplishing this were the right kind of phonograph records and the study of stories dealing with the love of musical composers and their principal or notable compositions, particularly folk songs.

The parts of music most interesting to children are rhythm, melody and harmony and when properly trained children can easily pick out any one of these parts.

Mr. Kirkpatrick followed Miss Veasey's talk with a demonstration of General Electric refrigeration at the conclusion of which delicious frozen salads and mousse were served.

Mrs. Loula Fleming Hostess

The George B. Singletary chapter U. D. C. was delightfully entertained by Mrs. Loula Fleming Thursday afternoon. A very interesting feature brought out at this meeting was that of the recipient of the Samuel Nash scholarship at East Carolina Teachers College is making the highest average of any scholarship given in the state. The U. D. C. maintains twenty-eight scholarships throughout the state, and the local chapter takes pride in the fact that the Greenville girl is leading. Confederate Memorial Day was planned, committees appointed and the gracious invitation of President Wright to have the Veterans dine at the College was accepted with thanks. The program was as follows: Mrs. S. T. White read a paper "The History of the Confederate Flags. Mrs. Herbert Waldrop sang two beautiful selections appropriate to the season and occasion Miss Ruth Townsend of the College gave two readings "When the Folks Are Away from Home," and "It Takes a Heap of Loving in a House to Make a Home."

Mrs. Lillian Whitfield Turnage of Farmville retiring district director read a most comprehensive paper on "The South's Part in Making America History." These numbers were greatly enjoyed. And the honor guest added much to the pleasure of the afternoon. A sweet course carrying the Confederate colors red and white served by the hostess assisted by Miss Margaret Fleming was not the least of many delightful features of the occasion.

TO DETERMINE BOUNDARY BETWEEN THE CAROLINAS

Raleigh, April 27.—(AP)—Efforts to determine the North Carolina-South Carolina boundary between Lumber River and the Atlantic Ocean through a survey will get under way early in May.

This announcement today was the result of an conference held by George Smye, North Carolina boundary commissioner, and Col. J. Monroe Johnson, South Carolina boundary commissioner with Governor McLean.

The commissioners will visit the stretch of "No Man's Land" next week, it was announced. The question of the boundary came up when fishermen of one state were apprehended for fishing along the point involved by authorities of the other.

GENERAL SANDINO GOES TO THE JUNGLES

Managua, Nicaragua, April 27.—(AP)—General Augustino Sandino, rebel leader, has disappeared into the jungle country of northern Nicaragua after making threats to raid Puerto Cabezas (Brangman's Bluff) on the east coast.

Most of the 500 Americans at Puerto Cabezas employed by the Standard Fruit and Steamship Company and the Brangman Bluff Lumber Company regarded the rebel threat as a bluff. Presence of a large garrison of American marines and an American gunboat reassured them.

With the disappearance of Sandino the fate of George B. Marshall of New York, who was seized by General Giron, a Sandino officer, became more of a mystery today.

FILE EQUITY PETITIONS IN FILM ACTIONS

Washington, April 27.—(AP)—Two petitions in equity were filed today by the department of justice in the southern district of New York to test agreements between film distributors and exhibitors as well as operators of the credit committee of the film boards of trade.

The regular monthly meeting of the local post of Travelers Protective Association will meet at the City Hall tonight at 7:30 o'clock.

Numbers of matters of interest to organization members will be considered, principal among them being appointment of delegates to the state convention to be held in the near future.

FORMER GREENVILLE MINISTER HONORED

Rev. Loy E. Ballard, former pastor of the Greenville Free Will Baptist Church, was one among the 309 students of the Vanderbilt Church School, conducted by Vanderbilt University of Nashville, Tenn., to receive the certificate of honor for work in the 1928 session of the school which closed April 21st. 483 students, all active pastors in seventeen denominations, were enrolled in the church school this year, as against 205 last year, when the first session was held.

NEGRO MUSIC FEATURED IN U. N. C. GLEE CLUB SUCCESS

Returning recently from a successful tour of three southern states, the University of North Carolina Glee Club is holding daily rehearsals in preparation for their final tour of the year, that is to include Greenville. The concert here is to be given in College Auditorium, Campus Building, at 8:30 p. m. o'clock on May 7.

The southern tour, recently completed, proved one more success that the club may add to a long list of conquests that include the largest cities in the east and middle west in this country, as well as European countries.

The trip to Europe was made last summer under the patronage of the American ambassadors to London and Paris and the Tar Heel singers were roundly applauded everywhere they appeared.

When the group appears here, with it will be Paul John Weaver, head of the University's Department of Music and director of the Glee Club; Nelson O. Kennedy, pianist, and Robert Foltz, Jr., business manager.

The program to be given will be largely of American music, featuring southern negro spirituals, negro ballads, and work songs. There also will be a number of cowboy songs, old sailors' chanteys, Carolina mountain ballads, and some tunes of the early frontier days.

Many of the folk pieces have been arranged with special harmonizations by Mr. Weaver himself. In working on this type of music he often goes out among the negro laborers—ditch-diggers, cottonpickers, and the like—listens to their incessant chanting and singing of ballads. These he later translates into words and notes in his study.

Chicago Finances
In Bad Condition

Chicago, April 27.—(AP)—The city of Chicago today had an unpropitious balance of only $13,300 in its corporate fund, the official report of the city comptroller showed.

Financial experts described the situation as the most acute since 1917 when it was necessary to vote bonds to sustain the corporate fund. The aldermen appraised the city's financial straits, voted to recalled all unexpended appropriations, to defer those pending and to direct department heads to use "doolidge economy."

Blame for the shortage was reported to be what one of the Aldermen called a "slip." He said the tax levy ordinance was not made large enough to take full advantage of the new tax rate of $1.12 1-2 per $100 assessed tax valuation for current expenses.

Police Clear up
Murder Mystery

Declining to divulge the names of the guilty parties, members of the Greenville police department today announced clearing up of the murder of Melvin Walston, negro, whose lifeless body was found on First street the first of the week.

It was stated that the killing in all probability resulted from a drinking party pulled off in an automobile by a crowd of young negroes. The party was breaking up when Walston was killed.

Declination of the police to give the names of those involved is result of other arrests pending.

Chief of police Jones said he was assisted to no little extent in solving the mystery by the better class of colored people residing in the vicinity where the crime was committed.

RECOMMEND COMMUTING SENTENCE OF BANKER

Raleigh, April 27.—(AP)—Recommendation of superior court judge W. A. Devlin who sentenced the prisoner, that sentence of Junius K. Powell, former Warsaw banker, serving five years in state prison for violation of state banking laws, be commuted to three years, thereby allowing him to leave the prison about June 30, next, was received by Governor McLean today.

The Governor heard counsel for Powell today and announced he would consider the case further before announcing any action he would take.

Powell was cashier of the Bank of Warsaw when $100,000 in securities paper was discovered in its treasury. Counsel for Powell argued to the Governor that Powell did not benefit by the bank's loss and had given his home and property worth $25,000, to help repay the amount.

TAKE OVER ASSETS

New York, April 27.—(AP)—The Republic Iron & Steel Company

has taken title to the property and assets of Trumbull Steel Company and issued shares of its common stock to the Trumbull Company, John A. Topping, chairman of the board of the Republic, announced today. This is a part of the program for the combination of the two companies.

Italian Flyer Killed.

Rome, April 27.—(AP)—Lieut. General Alessandro Guidoni, former Italian air attaché at Washington, was killed today when a parachute with which he jumped from an airplane over the Monteclito flying field failed to open.

Railway Head Seriously Ill.

It's really amazingly simple

GENERAL ELECTRIC
Refrigerator

This simplified General Electric Refrigerator works automatically, economically. It needs no attention—not even oiling. Inside the hermetically sealed casing there is a permanent supply of oil.

The all-in-one icing unit is merely lowered into the top of the specially designed cabinet. There is no assembling, no plumbing to be done. There are no pipes, drains, fans or belts. The unit is intact. It just has to be plugged into any electric outlet. Instantly it starts. It's as simple as that.

And quietly, economically, it gives you scientific refrigeration. Cuts down your marketing problems, your cooking tasks.

You should know all about these remarkable refrigerators. Come in and study them. Compare them with others. And send for an interesting booklet. If you wish it, time payments can be arranged.

The Washington Post says Kansas City has decided on everything pertaining to the convention except the hotel room where "it" will happen. Evidently the paper is a believer in the saying that history will surely repeat itself.

Announcement that North Carolina is third in the internal revenue column, being topped only by New York and Pennsylvania; is another sure sign that the Old North State is moving forward. Throughout the nation there was a slight decrease in collections for the first three quarters of the present fiscal year, yet North Carolina showed an increase of twelve per cent.

SPEED MADNESS
Two months ago Frank Lockhart, a noted automobile racer, was trying to beat the speed record on the beach at Daytona, Fla., when his machine escaped control and dashed into the sea. Lockhart missed drowning by a hair's breadth. Yesterday, driving the same car, he again lost control, and this time his life was offered up as the latest sacrifice to speed madness.

Lockhart was out to beat the new record of 207.6 miles an hour set on the same beach but three days earlier by Ray Keech. It will be hard to convince his family and friends—it should be difficult to convince anybody—that the object was worth the costly sacrifice. High speed in the air is fairly safe if the plane holds together; there is room to maneuver if anything goes wrong. But there is no place on the surface of the earth where speed surpassing 200 miles can be used in a practical way, either now or in any easily imaginable future. At that rate the slightest mishap is likely to prove fatal to the driver. Nor are spectators safe. Herd them 300 feet from the course, and the car if deflected might be among them in one second; at 600 feet in two seconds.

It may be of scientific value to know of what the modern automobile engine is capable. Experiments made to determine its capacities can be made in shop practice more accurately than on road or beach. Special roads may be constructed to permit of automobile speeds higher than at present are possible; such roads though increasing risk, may prove useful. We cannot forsake the time when an auto speed of 200 miles an hour will be anywhere practicable in use.—New York World.

ABOUT TOWN

"Don't forget that this is forest week." E. P. Stimmings of the North Carolina Department of Conservation and Development, wrote this column today.

"Schools, women's clubs, civic organizations, and other groups are planning to join in with observance of the week, which started Sunday, and many have already virtually completed programs mapped out the first of the week.

"The economic value of trees is being stressed this week. Our industries, farms and homes need a permanent supply of timber, and owners of woodland and the general public must be brought to realize the necessity of taking every possible step to perpetuate our forests."

"Discussing the dangers of birth control, Billy Sunday, distinguished evangelist, last night declared: 'This God forsaken birth-control is filling the brothels. The motion picture influence, too—well if it is one-fourth good it is three-fourths bad, in my opinion.'

"It separates families in the evenings. It acquaints children with crime, and marvels of daring rather than nobility. It is impossible to picture before the younger generation infidelity, nudity in dress, success in crime, without the evil effects having some influence on their thoughts and lives.

"The family is being disrupted by the new interests of women outside the home. The home is founded on the presence of the wife and mother and her daily toil and interest in that home. The home is the place where you can always find those you love and the beneficent atmosphere of the home is made by mother, father and children.

"Watch your home and mother and father, and civilization will care for itself."

"Tomorrow is straw hat day in Greenville and somebody has made the assertion—it might have been Billy Sunday—that a man caught without a straw hat on Sunday will be fined $1.00 for violation of the laws of Dame Fashion.

"The merchants of Greenville will have on display a most complete line of the most authentic straw hat styles of the day and the man that doesn't find what he wants will be mighty hard to please. Girls should take warning here and beware of the type.

"Members of the Merchants Association are wholeheartedly behind the movement and the public no doubt will get in line and lend their support in every way possible."

"Don't forget Greenville opens the baseball season on home grounds this afternoon at four o'clock. Rev. Billy Sunday, former National League player, will toss the first ball over the plate, and if necessary, 'I may get in the game,' he declared to his congregation last night.

"Greenville lost the two opening games of the league at Rocky Mount but they are not at all discouraged. It takes pluck and a certain amount of luck to get by in baseball, as it does in everything else, and when the Tobaccos strike their stride better things may be anticipated.

"Your attendance today and tomorrow will count largely in the kind of showing the club is going to make in the future. So be there and root as you never rooted before."

"Greatmen are the product of constructive home atmosphere." Rev. W. A. Sunday, evangelist, declared in delivering a sermon upon the subject, "Home" last night. In observance of "Better Home Week" now being given attention through the United States.

"The greatest men were mother made. Augustine the Great, Martin Luther, Constantine, Oliver Cromwell, Susanna Wesley—Oh, she was not only the mother of John and Charles, but she was the mother of the Methodist church that marshaled 6,000,000 of Christians.

"Oh, we live to revel in the paintings of Benjamin West in Windsor Castle, and as we do we are reminded of the fact that he said it was his mother's kiss that made him a painter. When a little boy, seven years old, playing with his sister and some friends, with some kittens and puppies he took a pencil and paper and sketched them so perfectly that you could look on and recognize them. His mother came in, threw her arms about little Benjamin, kissed him and said: 'Honey, you will make a great artist some day' and Benjamin said he carried the fragrance and the memory of that kiss with him through the world as his inspiration long after his mother was singing in the choir of heaven."

hunger in an empty tray, and the damp air shivering with curses, no Bible, no Sabbath wave rolls over the threshold the children are robbers in embryo.
No prayer is ever heard. The name of God is never heard. The name of God is never spoken except in obscenity in that home.
"Obscene songs, their lullaby. Every face is a picture of squalor and of want. It is a vestibule to the pit and it is a furnace forging chains, that will hold them unwilling prisoners of habits that will put them on the scrap pile or make them a piece of human driftwood.
'I think the proper or improper settlement of the home question is the most important thing in the world, and you never can settle it right, my friends, unless you settle first of all that you as a father and mother will be a Christian and serve Jesus Christ. It will mean the joy or sorrow or the weal and woe of more boys and girls than any similar question that comes up.

difference. Or some whiskey-soaked boy who begs your name is putting a stain upon the family conscience that wealth and culture can never in the universe be able to erase.
'Not only does happiness center about the home, but the social and the moral and the civil and religious power centers about the home. The downfall of most men and women can be traced to some defect in the home! Not all of them for there are homes where the children are trained rightly but they get out with some God-forsaken good-for-nothing moral assassin who electrocutes and murder every thought and ambition that might lead them to be decent and serve God, and they go down the long line with a bunch whose names are synonymous with whiskey, with booze, with blasphemy, with everything that is degrading and polluting and infecting and blighting and pestiferous.

'Every gambler leaning over his card table and staking his soul on the next showdown; every drunkard reeling and mauling, and jabbering and vomiting, and spewing and puking; and every fallen woman merchandising her womanhood for gain in some dark, rotten, festering spot of a great city, once was as pure as the morning dew. They knelt by their mother's side and perhaps said: 'Now I lay me down to sleep; I pray the Lord my soul to keep.'

'Now nearly one-half of inmates of the reformatories in this country committed the crimes for which they were incarcerated while they were in a state of voluntary or involuntary vagrancy.

'The genesis of vagrancy is too big a question for me or anybody else to attempt to handle in one address, but it is one of the most prolific sources of juvenile delinquency to be found. One-tenth of the boys and girls in the reformatories have lost both parents and one-half of them came from homes where the parents had been divorced.

'So broken homes and wrecked lives seem to be synonymous and inseparable, and many times sons and daughters brought up in idleness and unrestrained in the expenditure of money rapidly acquire profligate habits, and they figure conspicuously in the disgraceful escapades in scandalous society and they indulge in fast horses and fast women, wines, champagnes, the most costly from the vineyards of France and California, and the long list of diversions of the indolent, idle, indifferent, apathetic, stolid, lazy and they go to premature graves and they are only remembered because of the dissolute, disreputable, drunken, licentious lives they lived.

'And of many of the women, too much cannot be said in just condemnation. Oh! many of them, they are frivolous, and they are silly, and they are extravagant, and they will throw to the winds all restraint of modesty and of prudence, and of religion, and the many virtues which are so noble and attractive in womanhood and they allow themselves to be flattered, and gambolled, and cajoled, by a lot of good-for-nothing, empty headed things who call themselves men.

'They ought to be arrested for going around disguised as men! You wouldn't call some of them men if they did have whiskers and breeches on—they indulge in drinking and in gambling—and are more familiar with these terms than they are with English and classic literature—more familiar with the costly brands of champagnes and wines—they know about Piper-Heidsieck and they know more about the names of the expensive champagnes and wines than they do about the word of God.

'They are more familiar with bridge, which—that is a sort of twentieth century name for draw poker. I have as much respect for a gambler in a gambling room as I have for church men and church women who sit around and gamble under the guise of bridge whist.

'Prettiest Picture in World.
'I think one of the prettiest pictures that God or the world ever looked upon is to see a father and a mother who are Christians lock arms and then take hold of the next oldest and the next and then the next and on down to the youngest and see the whole family go on singing and praying toward heaven.

'And the blackest and vilest picture that God or man ever looked upon is a father who is not a Christian, lock arms and take hold of the oldest child and then the next and then the next and see the whole family go shrieking on to hell. And the biggest monstrosity that God or the world ever looked upon is a mother with children playing around her knees, and they never hear from her lips a prayer, and never are taught Jesus Christ. Oh! the step-mother would be a goddess if she only had religion. That is not all.

'Sometimes a stepmother would be a blessing if she were a Christian.

'Train a child in the way that it should go and when it is old it will not depart from thee, and if they are properly trained they will not often go astray.

'The normal way to get rid of drunkards is to get rid of the dirty, rotten, stinking hell-holes that are making them drunkards. It always makes my blood boil to see a cop walk up and pinch a drunkard and take him off to the police station, while they throw the protecting arm of the law around the dirty stinking hell-hole that sold him the liquor. It gets my goat. It makes my blood boil; don't you know it? I can hardly wait to get at that dirty, stinking gang.

'Oh, it is not the great buildings, not the wealth that attracts me as I go from city to city. Above the clamor of the market place come the sobs of the boys who had no boyhood, the cries of the girls who have had no girlhood, the children who will be crushed and damned and blighted because of sin. It isn't the bright lights of the White Way that dazzle me, but the faces—white, pinched, wan, pale anemic—of the little children peering out from the shadows of misery. And I pray God to help me close my first and drive it in the face of the devil and drive him from the earth.

'One of the great papers of New York City had a picture while I was preaching there of a poor little boy with a troubled, care-worn face, hiding on a strange doorstep, afraid to go home because of the drunken father, and the look on that boy's face haunts me yet. There are thousands in that great busy, whirling, cursing, virtuous, licentious city.

Blood Tells.
'I believe in blood. Blood tells in quadrupeds, in horses, dogs and in human beings as well. Blood tells, my friends. Oh, I believe in blood, proud blood, humble blood, honest blood, thieving blood, he-rich blood cowardly blood, infidel blood, Christian blood, licentious blood, virtuous blood.

'The large thick lip of the house of Hapsburg of Austria tells of licentiousness. If you don't believe it, read the history of the house of Hapsburg. And the house of Stuart tells of cruelty and bigotry, and sensuality from the days of Mary, Queen of Scots, to King James I, Charles II. King James I, who showed the world what a big fool a Scotchman can be when a Scotchman is a fool.

King James II, Scotch blood, stands for persistency, bulldog tenacity, stick-to-itiveness, never give up, fight to the last ditch and then refuse to acknowledge the defeat. I know a good thing about the Scotch. Mr. Sunday is a full-blooded Scot.

'An English blood stands for the reverence of the ancient as shown by the fact that England spent $50,000,000 to put a crown on George's black. Danish blood stands for love of the sea; Welsh blood, religious fervor and zeal for Jesus Christ. And the Jew blood, capacity to make money, from the days of Abraham until now.

"According to our standard of gold and silver, Abraham was worth a billion dollars. David was worth $3,000,000,000. Solomon could have hired John D. Rockefeller for a chauffeur. Solomon could have hired Carnegie for a butler. He could have hired J. Pierpont Morgan to cut his lawn.

"Nero's mother was a murderess, that is why that old libertine took stakes, fastened them into the ground and then took men and women who believed in Jesus Christ and covered their bodies with resin and tar and strapping them to the posts, set fire to them, and then he drove his chariots in his drunken revelry, while they were incinerated to ashes, because they would not deny faith in Jesus Christ.

"Patrick Henry's mother was eloquent, that is the reason that every schoolboy from New York to San Francisco knows 'Give me liberty or give me death.' Philip Goodrich's mother taught him Biblical history in the old Dutch fireplace and the pictures in front of it. Home authority and home examples are needed.

Home Neglect Is Fatal. "I have traveled up and down this land and I have met every beast in the arena, and I am convinced now that neither law nor gospel can make a nation great without home authority and home example. Parental neglect is one of the principal causes for the failure of boys. Judicious control and moral training are absolutely indispensable; neglect is not less fatal.

"The fool-doting parent who can not bear to correct that boy may be compelled to see him corrected in the reformatory and by the sovereignty of the power of the state. I know a good many people go around and sneer at the boy and say: 'Oh, he is tied to his mother's apron strings.' But that is an ancient term of reproach and it is designed to separate youths with pink hair from the last vestige of self-restraint and from self-respect and that sneering use of that phrase will convert a fairly decent boy into a loud-mouthed, swaggering tough with a vocabulary of a Bowery bum and all the refined tastes of a wharf rat, and the symptoms are:

"Ability to absorb more fine-cut than a two-story cuspidor can hold, a lie on his tongue that would make Ananias look like a chromo of truth crushed to earth, and when a boy begins to hang his hat over one ear and hit the cigarettes and the booze, and calls his father 'the old man,' and puts in a good share of the night chasing some chicken down the white way, and trying to win a jackpot on two legs, and lays up against a quart of red eye in some staid parlor, and crawls into the hay from the last dance with a three-step headache, it's dollars to doughnuts that some cheap skate has called upon him to assert his independence of that string dangling from his mother's waistline known as her apron string.

"But, say, the young fellow, who allows himself to be laughed into a cheap imitation of a three-carat sport is a weak stater, take it from me. And the indifference of some fool parents helps the devil's game along.

"The father who crawls under the blanket at 8 o'clock and allows his son to give the cops a chase until the cocks crow will need a four-section fire ladder to get a look into heaven.

"Some parents are so darned afraid that their boy will be called a milk-sop that they let the bars down so low that there is nothing to stop him in his mad, wild rush to hell. But I have noticed this, that the boy who is tied to his mother's apron strings, who can't tell four aces from a load of alfalfa—when there are forty applications for the job he goes home with the blue ribbon and tagged No. 1—in other words, he comes home with the bacon. He is the fellow, yes; now, oh, the sporty guy with a green vest and spats, a silk lid, puffy eyelids, he looks as good to hard-headed business men as a counterfeit dollar. You bet your life.

"I would rather be a hundred times over (and I would rather have my boy and I know you would yours) tied to his mother's apron strings than hooked up to an appetite for 60-cent-booze and a consuming desire to steal the next jackpot on a pair of fours.

Idle Mothers, Danger Sign. "One of the danger signs of our time is the curse of the idle mothers who just board around. They never darn a sock, they never patch a pair of pants, they never hemstitch a handkerchief, or put any insertion—what do you call those? They just kind of drag themselves down to their meals and if they ever go out it is to some entertainment, to some opera, to some fashionable dressmaker or milliner. And if they die and you keep it out of the papers nobody will miss them—except their husbands when they get the milliner's bill.

"Are you one of those mothers who let their frizzle-headed, lipstick, manicured daughters go riding around the country and don't know where they are going? If you don't know what time your daughter trails in and what kind of company she keeps, your howls won't be noticed when the tongues of the gossips get busy. The girl who insists on spooning with every marriageable young man ought to be taken to the woodshed and her over-supply of passion stifled with a lipped laid over both hips. I tell you, you can't gold-brick a sharp-eyed suitor any easier than you can put a pair of pajamas on a billygoat. Not on your life. The question of obedience is settled in the home. If the children won't obey the father and mother, they don't obey the civil authorities when they grow older.

"We are neglecting the home life today for the club, for the lodge, for the literary, for society and a thousand and one things, sir. Fit yourself to be the intellectual companion of your children. The learning at the school and college will soon fade from their minds, but what they learn at your knee will stick after they have to hobble on the crutches of decrepitude, taking their teeth out and cleaning them at the sink.

"There are mighty few things more important than conversation. Oh, the good you can do with your tongue or the evil and pain you can give. A loving conversation is a great panacea to iron out the wrinkles. Many homes have none. No affectionate greetings when they return from school and the store, no regretful good-bye when they go away, no fireside chatter. Meals are often eaten in silence and the old man never speaks unless he grunts for somebody to pass him the grub and you'd think you were in a deaf and dumb asylum.

Inspired by the Devil. "I believe the devil inspired sentences like this: 'A child should be seen, not heard.' 'The only time a child should be seen and not heard is when he is in his coffin. Get that fool idea out of your head.' 'The perpetual scolding, don't, don't. A child should never be told that they were to be seen and not heard. Of all sentences that is the rottenest. Forget it.' A Few Don'ts. "Now, I will tell you some don'ts. Don't tell your children what you don't mean. Don't wait on them too much and don't make them wait on you all the time, you lazy loon. Don't break a promise. Don't talk about your neighbors. Don't hurt their self-respect by punishing them with company present; wait until the company is gone and dust them on both hemispheres if they need it. Don't over-dress them because you are able, and thus shame your neighbor who has a big brood that hasn't got so much as you, for it will make your kids feel that they are above his and this will create strife and enmity; don't do that.

Home Like a Barometer. "If things go right at home, they go right everywhere; if they go wrong at home they go wrong everywhere. Oh, the doors of the home is the foundation of the state. A man never gets higher than the garret of his home; he never gets lower than its cellar.

"When Henry Clay lay dying his mind wandered back to his old Kentucky home and his dying words were: 'Mother, mother, home, heaven.' Men will never get away from what they were taught around their mother's knee, that will be the last thing they think of when they are drifting out with the tide.

"Many things are tending to destroy the home. The social and political interests of women are making them competitors of men. Now, you may not agree with me. I don't give a whoop. I challenge you to answer what I have to say. This God-s forsaken birth control propaganda is going up and down the land.

"It means this: It means the emptying of the homes and the schools of the children. When you remove from the girl the fear that if she exercises her passions she will become a mother, you remove one of the greatest safeguards of virtue. When you remove from that young man the fear that he will become a father, you remove one of the greatest safeguards of womanhood.

No Appreciation of Home. "When a man likes any place on earth better than his own home it is a bad sign. Yet how many men have no appreciation of what home means? Years ago the twin stood at the altar and promised to be true as long as the skies were blue. And now at midnight I see him wandering his foul way home. I see a pale face inside of the door with shadows of sorrow veiled to come. I see her go out on the abutment and look over the river, glassy in the moonlight, and she wonders if in the glassy waters she might not find surcease from sorrows.

"It seems to me when I hear that word 'home' I can see it sparkling, leaping, whispering. It sparkles like a diamond. It leaps like a flame. It sings like an angel. It glows like a sunset.

"If someone should attempt to erase that one word 'home' from the English language, the children would hide it under the flowers, the rich would hide it under their furs; kings and queens would hide it in their crowns; the poor would hide it in their rags. The President would call out the army and navy to protect us from the loss of that word and the influence it has upon our lives. Oh, no leader is more closely followed than the mother.

"No leaders were more closely followed than the mother. If it had not been for the pleadings and expostulations of his mother, George Washington would have been a midshipman in the British navy and Cornwallis would have given his sword to some one else at Yorktown, and that magnificent monument on the banks of the Potomac would not be there, and if it was it would be to perpetuate the deed of some other, and the name of our capital of the nation would not be Washington.

"John Randolph, with the excitement nervous temperament, rose in the House of Representatives at Washington and said: "If it had not been for my mother, sir, who taught me when I was a boy to kneel by my trundle bed and shut my eyes, and say: Our Father who are in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy name, and, Now I lay me down to sleep, I pray the Lord my soul to keep, I, John Randolph of Roanoke, would be an infidel." Gray, the author of 'Elegy in a Country Graveyard,' said that he was one of a large family of children who had the misfortune to survive his mother, and live a little longer than she lived. Oh, what a tribute, my friends, to the memory of her. The diabolical mother, my friends, is the product of that civilization which culminated in and radiated from the manger of Bethlehem, Jochobed, the mother of Moses, and Hannah, the mother of Samuel, to the Spartan mother, who said to her son who claimed that his sword was too short, 'Add a step to it, my boy.' These are prototypes of Christian motherhood that should govern our land, and she must be godly.

"Fathers are busy. Oh, the parents! And you in the creator of a soul and the development of a character. So great is the responsibility that you must be a Christian. Fathers may fall, and God pity them, if they do. God have mercy. God have mercy.

"God help our world when women can go into the restaurant and cross their legs and smoke cigarettes and drink booze and be respectable.

"I say to you this, the web of a nation is made from the thread that is spun in the home and you never will save this city, you will never save New York or Philadelphia; you never will save Boston or Chicago or San Francisco, or any other city from intemperance and degradation and ruin, when you run a barroom in your own homes and keep wine and champagne on the sideboard.

"No blessing at the table, no Bible in the home; no prayer. Cure Lies at Home. "I have them come to me and writing their hands and say 'My God, Mr. Sunday, do something to save my boy!' "How old is he?" "Seventeen. The dew of youth is on his brow." "Save my girl!" "How old is she?" "Now the grandest work is done by the true mother. God did a great work through Moses, but He did a greater work through his mother. The mother of Moses did more for the world than the King of Egypt, who built the pyramids or the sphinx, and the mother of Wesley did more for the world than many a man who has his mug cast in bronze or painted on the canvas or carved in marble.

"The training of a Luther, or a Bunyan, or a Calvin, or a Lincoln; that is greater to be than a Caesar or a Napoleon, or an Alexander the Great, or a Charlemagne, or a Hannibal.

"Oh, to launch a boy, to launch a girl, to live for Jesus Christ and virtue and the truth. Oh, that is greater than to launch a battleship with 18 inches of hard iron, steel and enough men on her to make a city.

"Now this nation has no better friend than the mother who will teach her boy how to pray. Home is a refuge. Life is a good deal like an army on the march. At evenings we put our heads on our knapsacks and slumber through the night. In the morning the bugle calls to action. How pleasant to rehearse the tasks of the day and the surprises around the campfire of the old home circle.

"Life is like a storm at sea, with the sails torn and the masts bent before the wind. We go for repairs into the dry-dock of the home. 'Jails, penitentiaries, armies, navies, they are not our best defense. No, the door of the home is a better fortress than any other fortress ever built in the universe. The household utensils are better artillery than cannon that can speed a shell 15 to 25 miles into a besieged city.

"The chimneys of our homes are grander monuments for safety. No home, no republic; she will go down!

"I wonder if in any of the homes of any of my congregation tonight no voice of prayer is ever lifted? What? No supplication to God to protect you? What? No thanksgiving in the morning for His watchful care? You never thank God for the clothes you wear on your back, for the food you eat?"

COTTON MARKET.

New York, April 27.—(AP)—Unfavorable weather reports were reflected in a further sharp advance in the cotton market today, all months making new high ground for the present movement at 36 to 46 points above yesterday's closing quotations.

A good deal of realizing was attracted as prices reached 2.45 for May and 2.09 for October, and business tapered off somewhat during mid-afternoon when prices showed reactions of several points from the best.

Futures closed steady, 17-30 points higher; spot steady; middling 21.85.

GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, April 27.—(AP)—All deliveries of wheat soared today to new high price records for the season. The largest export business put through in many weeks, about 5,000,000 bushels, was announced, and commission house buying for future deliveries was also of huge volume.

Wheat closed firm, 3.5-8c to 4.1-4c net higher, corn 1-2@5-8c to 1c up, oats showing 3-8-1-2c to 1-1-8c advance and provisions varying from 5c decline to a rise of 12c.

STOCK MARKET.

New York, April 27.—(AP)—Encouraged by the retention of the 4 per cent rediscount rate by the New York federal reserve bank and the apparent agreement on eastern trunk line consolidations, speculators for the advance brought about a sweeping rally in prices in today's market. Extreme gains in the active issues ranged from 2 to 12 points. So great was the volume of trading that the ticker was nearly 40 minutes behind the market at the end of the third hour, total sales during that period approximating 2,500,000 shares.

A temporary sinking spell took place around mid-day when heavy profit-taking developed in such recent railroad leaders as Delaware & Hudson, Wabash and Lehigh Valley, but buying support was quickly provided and the general market headed upward again by early afternoon. Wabash dipped from 88 to 82 and then snapped back to 89.

One block of 32,000 shares of Standard Oil of New York changed hands at 35, up 1-2 and a new high record. Blocks of 5,000 to 20,000 shares of other Ohio shares were sold in the early trading, with Sinclair, Royal Dutch, Richfield Oil of California and Pierce reaching new high ground.

Consolidated Gas extended its early gain to nearly 10 points by touching a new high record at 167 7-8. Allis Chalmers advanced more than 7 points to a new top at 129 3-4. Brooklyn Edison, Case Threshing, Jersey Central, International Harvester and American International advanced 5 points or more, while gains of 2 to 4 points were distributed among several score issues.

New York Traction, Tobacco and Motion pictures issues showed signs of heaviness, selling of the last named being influenced by reports that proceedings had been brought against some of the larger producers by the federal trade commission.

The closing was strong. Total sales approximated 4,200,000 shares.

LOCALS LOSE SECOND GAME TO ROCKY MOUNT

Greenville lost the second game of the season to Rocky Mount yesterday afternoon by the score of 12 to 4. Four Greenville hurlers fell before the hard hitting Railroaders, who pounded out 14 hits in a terrific battling attack.

Witry lead in with the stick, getting four safeties out of as many times at bat. Manager McMillan secured two-bingles out of two times up. Greenville's inability to hit opportunist was largely responsible for the loss.

PENN RELAYS TO TEST QUALITY OF COLLEGE OLYMPIC MATERIAL

Philadelphia, (AP)—Pre-Olympic track and field prognosticators will have an excellent opportunity to make their deductions at the 34th annual University of Pennsylvania relay carnival on Franklin Field, April 27 and 28.

Olympic stars of the past, intercollegiate champions and title-holders in different sections of the country will participate in the gigantic meet that occupies two days from before noon until sunset. Three thousand athletes from five hundred colleges and schools are entered. More than 100 cents are on the program, including many that will be contested in the Olympic games.

The decathlon, which is an official Olympic tryout, has attracted an all-star entry list from leading athletic clubs as well as the colleges and more than twenty entries have been received.

with New York University in the two mile relay.
Syracuse, with its speedy team anchored by big Ray Barbuti, will be a favorite in the mile relay. The Orange team won the intercollegiate indoor championship during the winter.
An event that is causing no end of comment because of a possible record in the Olympic games is the pole vault. Victor Dickard, of Pittsburgh, a native Canadian and the Dominion's representative in the event in the 1924 Olympic games, will battle with Sabin Carr, of Yale, this country's best and the indoor and outdoor world's champion and record-holder.
Cornell's powerful band of weight men will play a big part in the strong-arm events. Outstanding among the Big Red huskies is N. O. Wright, of Chatham, N. Y., hammer throwing expert, who broke the intercollegiate indoor record recently and hopes to do as much for the outdoor mark.
The sprint entry list is headed by none other than Charley Paddock.

In addition to the college events, numerous high, prep and grammar school championships will be staged. Foreign athletes will be missing from the games this year due to a ruling by the international sports governing body prohibiting competition between countries during Olympic years.

LOCALS TO GET BIG SEND-OFF TOMORROW

Rain this afternoon caused postponement of the game that was to have been played here between the Greenville and Fayetteville baseball teams. Only the regular scheduled game will be played tomorrow according to announcement made by Manager Joffit and the rained out game will be played here in a double header the first day of Fayetteville's next visit to this city.

The celebration of Greenville's home-coming, planned for today's game and described below will take place tomorrow.

After opening the season with two games in Rocky Mount, Greenville Tobacconists returned home today to make their maiden appearance at the fair grounds with Fayetteville. With two losses checked up against them, the locals will enter today's conflict defeated, but not crushed, hopeful but not hopeless, ready to make up for the loss of the two opening games.

Today promises to be something of a gala day for the city. With an elaborate program arranged for the first game, the Tobacconists will get a rousing send-off this afternoon.

Billy Sunday, who thirty years or more ago played in the National League, will toss the first ball across the rubber at today's game. Mayor Lanier, in the receiving position, will take whatever the evangelist tosses.

A parade of the ball club headed by the high school band will take place shortly before the game. Hundreds of people are expected to be present and see the Tobacconists open up strong at home.

President Guy Smith stated that ticket books were placed on sale today. Tickets will be sold at Warren's drug store to accommodate the large crowds coming from other sections.

Grand stand and bleachers are in splendid condition for receiving the great influx of fans and families this afternoon. A splendid view of the diamond is afforded from these vantage points, and seating capacity is sufficient to care for the largest crowds of the season, officials of the club believe.

The Greenville diamond is generally conceded to be one of the best in the league. Improvements of the grounds have been going in for six weeks or more, and Deacon Joffit pronounced the diamond to be in splendid condition several days ago.

Members of the club are not discouraged by the two consecutive losses to Rocky Mount. On the other hand, they have returned home in high spirits, confident of shaking off the jinx in the two games with Fayetteville this afternoon and tomorrow. They do not believe that bad luck is destined to hound them.

Inability to hit at opportune moments is largely accountable for the two defeats. Batting slumps occur quite frequently at the opening of the season, and recovery is oftentimes quick and unexpected.

With stores closing at 3:30 this afternoon, officials of the club were expecting large attendance. The closing of the stores is expected to furnish quite a number of persons who otherwise would not get an opportunity of attending the game.

Pitches Brilliant Game But Looses

By the Associated Press.
Every once in a while a baseball player reaches the hall of fame by pitching a no hit game but more often these prospective fame builders are ruined by some occurrence and the near fortunate one is forced to talk about "what might have been."

This was the luck that befell Conklin, hurler with Greenville in the South Atlantic Association yesterday.

Conklin had breezed along in easy fashion for eight and one-third innings without giving Spartanburg anything that resembled a base hit.

Then, in the ninth, a false bounding grounder hit the Spinner third baseman in the head and a Spartanburg man doubled.

The Spinners won out 6 to 0 through Conklin's pitching and the hitting of C. Walker, left fielder who obtained a homer and three singles out of four trips to the plate.

Asheville combined 21 hits, six smoke errors and four bases on balls to defeat Knoxville 16 to 3. Shaney kept the Smokies six hits well scattered.

Macon kept up its heavy hitting to win from Columbia 8 to 0. Four hits and five walks gave the Peaches six runs in the second inning with the result that Mahaffey, Somer moundsman, was sent to the showers.

Henie Groh led his Charlotte Club to a 12 to 5 victory over Augusta. The veteran third sacker obtained two hits in as many times at bat and was spectacular in the field.

ASP'S VENOM REMEDY FOR MAD DOG'S BITE
Paris, (AP)—The asp, which provided Cleopatra with a solution of her love problems, is also, it appears, death to rabies.

The discovery was made by a well known French woman physician, Dr. Marie Phisalix. In a paper read to the Academy of Sciences, she told of having established that the venom of the asp when mixed with the virus of rabies makes the latter harmless and non-infectious.

(International Newsreel)

CONNIE MACK IN CHARGE OF THIRD PLACE

Thanks to the resourcefulness of three of the game's most ancient warriors, Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics hold undisputed possession of third place in the American League standing.

The tribe of McGillicuddy ran roughshod over Washington yesterday, carving out a 10 to 0 decision to place right behind the New York Yankees and Cleveland Indians.

Credit for that victory must go to a trio, aged 23 years in the aggregate and with 62 major league campaigns to divided among its opponents.

John Picus, Quinn, 42 years old and a veteran of 16 big league seasons, held the Senators to seven scattered hits out of which they could fashion not a semblance of a run.

Eight of the Athletics ten tallies were accounted for by Ty Cobb, who at 41 now is in his 24th American League pennant chase, and forty-year old Tris Speaker, who started two years after the "Georgia Peach."

Ty and Tris divided batting honors on a share and share basis. Each went to the plate four times, and smashed out a triple, drove in three runs and scored once. Just to make the thing more or less of a monopoly, Quinn drove in one tally with a sacrifice fly and scored once himself.

A six run rally in the eighth, enabled the Yanks to whip the Boston Red Sox at New York 9 to 4 and retain their grip on first place.

Home runs by Blue and Schulte, each with a man on base, aided the Browns to register a 6 to 5 triumph over the Chicago White Sox at St. Louis.

Idle for days because of inclement weather New York Giants, leading the National League parade, opened a series with Philadelphia by dropping a 5 to 4 verdict to the Quakers.

Pounded for 11 hits, Larry Benton, ace of the Giants staff, dropped his first game of the season.

Ed Brandt, Seattle rookie, pitched the weakened Boston Braves to a 4-0 victory over Dazzy Vance and the Brooklyn Dodgers. Brandt allowed but two hits, both singles.

Carmen Hill won his first victory of the year when the Pittsburgh Pirates beat Cincinnati at Forbes Field 7 to 2.

The Cubs and Cards got a day off because of cold weather.

SPORTS SLANTS

By ALAN J. GOULD

Associated Press Sports Editor. New York, April 27.—(AP)—Europe seems about to be entertained for a while by American girls who can hit.

It is said of Glenna Collett, now on a golfing quest to England, that she hits the ball like a man. If anyone doubts the masculine severity of Helen Wills tennis strokes, such doubts may be removed by brief discussion with several of America's first ten ranking list who have exchanged drives with the Californian.

"I look forward keenly to renewing acquaintances abroad," she said before departing recently with Miss Penelope Anderson, of Richmond, as a playing partner. "I was very proud to win the Wimbledon championship last year and I hope to have some good play again."

No confident prediction here from the girl who didn't lose a match at home or abroad last year, who possesses stroking power never before exhibited by a feminine player and whose successes have gained for her undisputed ascendancy to the tennis throne occupied for so long by Suzanne Lenglen.

But this from a player who has opposed Miss Wills in practice this spring and has seen her game develop:

"Helen has tremendous stroking power at her command, greater than ever before. Her game is getting rounded now, her foot work surer and her tactics sounder, all the natural result of experience and consistent development. There isn't a woman player in the world who can cope with her and not many men outside the very top flight who wouldn't have a busy afternoon trying to beat her."

Shine, Shine'em up fine.

SETS WORLD'S AUTO SPEED RECORD

Ray Keech is the proud holder of the world's speed record for automobiles when he drove a 36-cylinder Triplex at an official speed of 207.55 miles per hour at Daytona Beach, Fla. This record brings the title back to the United States since it beats the record of Capt. Campbell by nearly a mile.

title in 1923 at Forest Hills from Molla Mallory it is related by Miss Wills that she was so "utterly surprised that the only feeling experienced was that she was being kissed on both cheeks."

Miss Wills was 17 then. A year later she won the Olympic championship. She celebrated her 21st year by accomplishing "the dream nearest a player's heart," victory at Wimbledon. If she wins again this summer, as she is strongly favored to do the American girl will be the first since Lenglen to wear the crown two years in a row. The famous French woman was triumphant six times altogether.

Turn in your used tires now at good prices!

Get credit for all the unused mileage in your tires. Get rid of the risk of blow-outs, skids and punctures which come from driving worn tires. Just as you "turn in" an old automobile for a new one—you can now "turn in" your used tires for new Goodrich Silvertowns.

NO TIRE CAN OFFER YOU MORE!
No tire can offer you more than you get in fresh new Goodrich Silvertowns.

No tread has a stronger, firmer grip on wet pavements or on muddy country roads.

No tread gives you greater freedom from uneven, choppy wear, than you get in the famous hinge-center tread of Goodrich Silvertowns

No tire has tougher rubber than Silvertowns—because they are cured from inside and outside both by the Goodrich Water Cure.

And no tire has more uniform strength than the carcass of Goodrich Silvertowns—made from cords, which are accurately matched for stretch, and rubberized to protect them from internal friction.

A BUSINESS PROPOSITION FOR US—FOR YOU

There is always a market for used tires—re-conditioned or re-treaded. If we get them before they blow out, we can get the money out of your old tires but if you let them blow out—they're only worth "junk" prices. Turn in your old tires now, for good prices, at any Goodrich dealer's where you see this sign.

ing from ridicule. The man's name was Bessmer, and he revolutionized the steel business. Treat the new ideas kindly. It may work.

Dr. Green, in Jacksonville, dissecting the remains of Miss Congo, female gorilla, said "her inner organs could not be distinguished from those of a 12 or 14 year old girl."

Colitis, common among humans, killed Miss Congo and cost John Ruzling $150,000, the gorilla's value. Miss Congo's brain is as "equal to that of a child six or seven years old." John Hopkins scientists will examine the gorilla lady and tell more about her.

Fundamentalists should not let her resemblance to a human female disturb their faith. A piece of glass looks like a diamond, but isn't one. Miss Congo has no soul. At least that's the white man's theory.

Albert Lowenstein, Belgian banker, in America to do a little business, brings a few counts and counsellors with him, also four secretaries, two stenographers, chauffeur, private detective, airplane pilot, masseur and about twenty maids and valets.

Lowenstein, said to be "the third richest man in the world," has more maids and valets than John D. Rockefeller, George F. Baker, Secretary Mellon, Henry Ford and some other Americans, all put together, but he probably hasn't as many dollars as they have.

Secretary Hoover and Governor Smith are "cleaning up" the political field. Ohio is for Smith and Hoover, Massachusetts is for Smith and Hoover.

New York is 100 per cent sure for Smith, and Hoover will have New York, although some big Wall Streeters do not want him. Perhaps they fear he would spend too much on public improvements, canals, roads, etc.

In Ohio 34,000 men and women took the trouble to write Governor Smith's name on the ballot, indicating he has a big personal following far from his own state.

Racing on the sand of Daytona Beach, in his Black Hawk Special speed car, going more than 200 miles an hour, Frank Lockhart blew out a rear tire. His car bounced 300 feet, "turned several somersaults" and landed upside down. Lockhart was killed.

The unfortunate death of a darling automobile racer is a warning to those that indulge in excessive speed. The air, not the ground, is the place for speeding.

After peace was signed he toured America and Canada. Upon his return to America, he joined Dr. Wilfred Grosvenor's expedition to Labrador. After that experience, he went back to Johns Hopkins.

Duke Coach Resigns. Durham, April 24.—(AP)—George Whitted, well known in baseball circles and coach of the Duke University nine for the last two seasons has resigned. It became known here today. His resignation was handed in just after the Princeton game. No statement could be obtained from Whitted, and no announcement has been made by Duke athletic officials. James Dehart, head coach, now in charge of the team, is said by friends to have resulted in a rift between Whitted and Dehart, culminating in the resignation of the former.
