CONGRESS HAS COMPROMISED DRY MEASURE

Deadlock Also Broken on Radio Bill at Twin Session Last Night.

Washington, March 2.—(AP)—Its principal worries over as a result of last minute concessions and compromises on major legislation, the Seventieth Congress was almost ready to close its doors today and turn out to see the Hoover inauguration.

Course, which remained to be done, and the fall of the gavel on Monday threatens to kill many eleventh-hour nominations and minor bills, but leaders were breathing easier for the first time in weeks after the Senate and House at the first twin night session of the winter reached an agreement on the controversial proposal for an increase in prohibition enforcement funds and broke the deadlock of the radio bill.

The first move toward relieving the clogged machinery was the compromise on the prohibition item. The amount finally agreed upon was $2,977,000, exclusive of an additional $250,000 for a severance of enforcement conditions by a commission to be appointed by President-elect Hoover. These funds were included in the two pending deficiency measures and the House last night gave approval to the conference report on this bill.

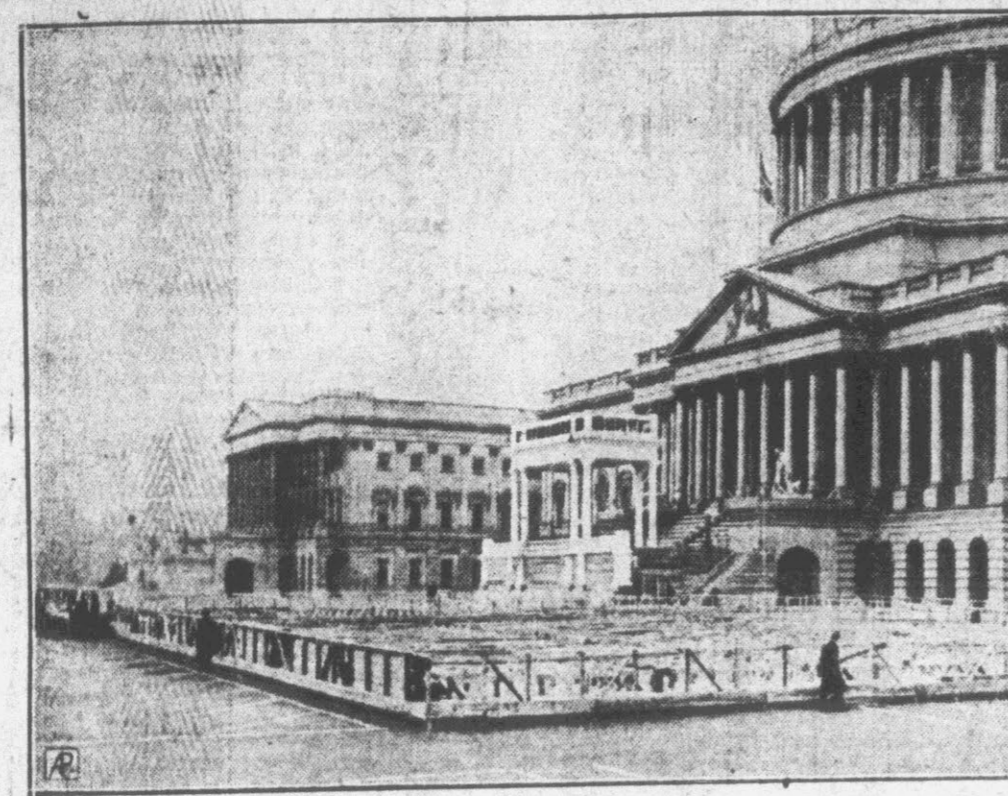

The Senate carried the measure carrying the substance of the appropriation. The House will complete congressional action on this bill. As a result of the compromise on the $2,977,000 item, which brings the total direct appropriations for the next fiscal year for dry law enforcement to approximately $18,000,000, the conference finally ditched the controverted $24,000,000 proposal of Senator Harris, Democrat, Georgia, which the Senate inserted in the first deficiency bill. The total, however, was slightly higher than the $2,727,000 figure recommended by President Coolidge and which the House approved in passing the second deficiency bill.

In accepting the compromise, the Georgia Senator declared it was a "distinct vindication of our position that additional funds were necessary for proper and adequate enforcement."

With the two deficiency measures and the other controversial proposals well on the way to final action, only one of the eleven major appropriation bills passed upon annually for running the government remained under a cloud. This is the interior bill, a dispute over which has been hanging fire ever since the House approved an amendment providing for condemnation of private property in national parks. The bill was the second of the big supply measures passed this session early in December. The House sent it to conference for the third time yesterday after disagreement to a Senate change sponsored by Senators Walsh and Wheeler, Democrats, Montana, which would exempt park lands from condemnation when occupied by residences, churches or hotels.

The Montana Senators insist that this compromise be agreed to and representative Cranston, Republican, Michigan, one of the House conferees is equally insistent that the original House proposal be adopted.

TEN KILLED BY FLOOD WATERS IN GEORGIA

Damage From Rising Streams In Southern States.

Atlanta, March 2.—(AP)—Although many rivers in the Southern states still were at flood stage from recent heavy rains, reports to various weather bureaus of officers in the section indicated the prospect of a general recession. Ten drownings, all in Georgia, had been reported today from the surging flood waters.

Georgia bore the brunt of the high water damage. Valleys of the Savannah, Oconee, Ocmulgee, Flint and Chattahoochee rivers were filled with back waters from the streams, which have taken extensive damage toll as yet unestimated to homes, roadways and rail lines, and communication facilities.

The Apalachicola river in North Florida, formed by confluence of the Flint and Chattahoochee in Georgia, was receiving the full force of the flood in its sweep to the gulf, and complete recession was not expected for about ten days.

Roadways washouts in South Carolina held up automobile traffic, and at Perry, Ga., more than 200 automobiles were detained. No repairs were believed possible until Sunday at the earliest.

Reports of the drowning of two additional persons last night brought the death toll in Georgia to ten. L. M. Fussell, a Fitzgerald farmer, was drowned when his fishing boat capsized. Ernest Beigler of Augusta, died when he fell from a tree in which he had taken refuge when his boat overturned in the floor waters.

Many highways were still impassable in Alabama, where the Coosa river still was rushing at flood stage, flooding lowlands in the vicinity of Montgomery. Roadways were operating with difficulty, although traffic had been restored in all but a few localized sections.

BEGIN FLIGHT FROM MEXICO TO AMERICA

Two Fliers Take-Off On Non-Stop Trip from Valbuena Field for Washington.

Mexico City, March 2.—(AP)—Joaquin Gonzalez Pacheco and C. E. McMillin took off from Valbuena flying field at 6:57 o'clock this morning (7:47 a. m. E. S. T.) on a non-stop flight from Mexico City to Washington.

The two airmen hoped to reach Bolling Field, Washington, early Sunday morning. The distance was estimated at 2,200 miles. Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh now is the only man who has flown without a stop between the two capitals.

Their flight represented an attempt to do what Captain Emilio Carranza failed in last summer, he having been forced down in North Carolina just short of Washington. Their plane, a Stinson monoplane, is named for Captain Carranza.

Begin Concerted Effort For Reconsideration Of The Bond Issue Bill

Raleigh, March 2.—(AP)—The bill was cleared in the House today for an effort to reconsider its action of yesterday in killing the permanent improvement bond issue bill, while Governor Gardner's plans for administration changes was pushed forward a step. In the Senate, a bill was passed making drastic reductions in the penalties to be assessed against delinquent taxpayers.

Representative Odus M. Mull, of Cleveland, who precipitated the stampede which resulted in the improvement bill being snowed under 70 to 37, made the necessary motion to recommend, at the same time serving notice, however, that he did not intend to change his vote. Action on his motion was deferred until Monday.

The House passed the bill to abolish the office of Pardon Commissioner and to create in its stead the post of Executive Councillor, who would act as a general assistant to the governor. He would serve as commissioner of pardons in addition to handling such other duties as the Governor might designate. The salary would be not more than $7,500 a year. Judge N. A. Townsend, of Dunn, is commonly understood to be Governor's Gardner's choice for this post.

Another change proposed by Governor Gardner, to make the Commissioner of Revenue appointive instead of elective, was started on its legislative way with the introduction of a bill by representative Mull to make this provision.

The Senate bill reducing tax penalties would make the penalty for the first year 10 per cent instead of twenty, as at present, and for the second year, eight instead of ten per cent. It also carries a retroactive feature by which taxpayers reverting land already advertised for sale would be relieved of paying any penalty except six per cent interest.

The House killed the police pension bill of representative Younce, Democrat, of Guilford, tabling the measure without a record vote. It would have added one dollar to the costs of all criminal cases and created the fund for the relief of the officers.

Hutchins of Yanke: To relieve persons receiving pensions from service the allied armies from paying income tax on same.

Moss: To amend statutes as to docketing and indexing of judgment.

Senate bill: To provide milling in transit rates on tobacco.

Senate bill: Relating to care of indigent children by State Board of Charities and Public Welfare.

Sutton and Moss: To repeal the pardon commissioner act and provide executive council.

Senate bill: Code regulating use of airplanes.

William of Warren: Regularizing stop-payment orders on checks.

Graham: To amend Recorder's court act to bring Orange county under it.

GANGSTERS TO FACE COURT AT CHICAGO, ILL.

Two Members Of Gang Massacre to be Arraigned on Murder Charge.

Chicago, March 2.—(AP)—The first murder charges to be issued in the Valentine's day gang massacre sent back McGurn and Rocco Fancelli into court for arraignment today.

"We've smashed their alibis," said Assistant State's Attorney Stansbury, "and within 30 days we'll be ready to go to trial."

"Both were members of the execution squad," Stansbury declared, "and any effort to seek release on bail will be opposed with all the force we can command."

Stansbury would not indicate what evidence he had to disprove McGurn's story that he spent the murder morning in his room at the Stevens Hotel. It was revealed, however, that the police had traced telephone calls made by McGurn during his two weeks' stay at the hotel.

McGurn talked several times with a friend in Cicero, police said, and the conversations were obviously in code. Once McGurn was asked "How's the child?" and his reply was "They got me a leaky of the heart."

McGurn was quoted as saying another time. This was taken to mean that important information was escaping.

Louise Rolfe, arrested with McGurn, was to be arraigned today, with McGurn and Fancelli. The gangsters were each booked on seven charges of murder, one for each of the men shot down February 14.

The fact that Miss Rolfe was charged with "disorderly conduct," for which bail is easily made, was taken as an indication that police would not attempt to hold her in jail.

Differences between the state's attorney's office and the police became evident when it was announced that police-men would henceforth carry on the task of seeking additional evidence and capturing the others.

ASSOCIATION ADDS SEVERAL NEW MEMBERS

Merchants To Continue Membership Drive Here Through Next Week.

The membership drive of the Merchants Association got in full swing yesterday, and committee members this morning reported the addition of seventeen new members. The campaign will continue through next week, and at its conclusion the Association hopes to have a total membership of 150 or more.

Only two of the three committees functioned in the canvass of business and professional men today. It was stated, however, that every committee member would get in action Monday and stay in the campaign until the goal had been reached.

Those taking part in soliciting today were J. H. Waldrop, C. O. H. Home, J. Knott Proctor, C. H. Forbes, B. B. Sugg, C. J. Ellen and J. H. Blount. They reported much interest in activities of the organization and a desire of business and professional men to do whatever they could in furthering the movement.

Most of the new members consist of professional men, such as doctors and lawyers, who have taken an active interest in the Association work the past several months. Two county and one city official were listed among the new members.

Secretary C. B. Rowlett said this afternoon that they were highly pleased with the first day's drive. He expressed opinion that they would find little trouble reaching the goal of 150 members. The organization at this time has something like a hundred members. The campaign now under way is one of the most ambitious every attempted before, but there is every reason to believe it will be crowned with success, the secretary said.

The new members follow: J. D. Aman, Plumber; Sugg Motor Co., Proctor Barber Shop, J. B. Kittrell, Greenville Cafe, Dixon Tire and Battery Co., John R. Barker, White's Theatre, J. Conrad Lanier, D. M. Clark, Pitman Eure, W. A. Darden, D. S. Wooten and Barrett, J. C. Gaskins, S. A. Whitehurst, Carolina Kelvinator Co.

Hoover's Inauguration To Be Most Brilliant Of Peace-Time Fetes

Washington, March 2.—(AP)—Assembling in the historic precincts of a Capital City transformed by glad preparations, the legions of American Citizens mustered today to salute proudly a new President of the Republic.

As the arriving throngs swelled by thousands, filling street and avenue with their colorful acclaim, no doubt remained that Herbert Hoover's inauguration on Monday would rank among the most brilliant peace-time fetes of American history, mirroring in gay pageant and solemn ceremony the might and contentment of a great people.

His cabinet complete, and his inaugural address ready for delivery, the President-elect himself had for the moment one of the quietest roles of all in the tumult of last preparations. After trying weeks, he found an opportunity for a season of rest with his family in the red brick house on street from which he goes forty-eight hours hence for the responsibilities of the White House.

Meantime, at the executive offices a mile away, undisturbed by the bustle about him, President Coolidge summoned his energies to a full day's work as the clock ticked away the last working hours of a political career which began thirty years ago. The usual last-minute gists of bills and resolutions from the slowing mills of legislation on capitol hill heaped his desk high. He kept to the task late had set for him, but none who knew him doubted that his thoughts already were wandering longingly toward the hour when he could "go back home" to Northampton.

Except for the troubles of the expiring congress, which have been keeping Senators and representatives answering quorum calls through long night sessions, they only inharmonious note in the whole inaugural chorus came from the weather bureau. Yesterday's bright sunshine had been succeeded by overcast skies, and the weather forecasters thought it not improbable that rain might follow.

Both today and tomorrow, they had not yet reached far enough into the future to make definite promises about Monday, but with the crowds here the inaugural committee declared that not even the caprices of the elements could materially dim the glories of the occasion.

Officially, the inaugural program mapped out by the two fathers of Washington began today, but the initial offerings merely were intended to give the visitors something to busy themselves with while they waited for the great day. In this certain-raiser the Army and Navy were the chief actors, the aviators of both services having been called upon to do stunts over nearby aviation fields while the Cavalry at Fort Myer, across the river, was mustered for an exhibition drill. Several of the state societies announced open house during afternoon and evening, and Washington society fluttered over a round of teas and dances.

Two of the central figures in the inaugural drama were concerned intimately with the final log-jam in congress. One of them, Vice-President Dawes, found the concluding hours of his four years service as presiding officer of the Senate only a little less hectic than that opening session in 1925, when he undertook the still unfinished task of reforming rules. The other, Curtis of Kansas, still a Senator but soon to be the nation's second in command, chose to stay out of the tenure of his Senatorial leadership, and keep the long hours with his Colleagues. Tonight Dawes will be the guest of the Gridiron club at a special dinner in his honor, while Coolidge entertains the cabinet at the White House.

Those who came to Washington in continuous procession throughout the day found the inaugural picture almost complete except for the man and the hour. On the Capitol Plaza a great, white pillared portico rose high above the pavement, ready for the coming of Hoover, and about it stretched a vast expanse of bright-timbered benches from which thousands will see the chosen leader pronounce the words of his official obligation and hear him announce his policies to the world in his inaugural address. Over the mile-stretch of Pennsylvania avenue, where the inaugural parade will follow the Phantom lead of many historic pageants which have gone before, temporary bleachers were ready for thousands more.

Directly in front of the White House, in a court of honor bright with new bunting, stood the resplendent reviewing stand from which the new President will watch the passage of the multitude which has come to honor him.

Monday's ceremonies will begin soon after 10 a. m. and it may be 5 p. m. before the last unit of the long parade has passed the Presidential stand, and President Hoover has turned from plaudits of the crowd to the waiting desk within the White House. Throughout most of this seven-hour period the radio will be carrying to the corners of the country a description of the changing picture of the inauguration. To aid the listener-in who wants to wring all about the radio commission has asked all stations not broadcasting the inaugural ceremonies to minimize interference between 11 a. m. and 4 p. m. Eastern time.

The list of those who will be in the parade grew hourly today as the inaugural committee received applications from marching clubs and other arriving delegations. No accurate estimate of the number of visitors was available, but weary clerks and swamped taxi-starters agreed that when the crowd got itself all together it would be one of the greatest ever.

It is a simple life of this kind, free from servile and secret service men that is beckoning the President to Northampton and serving to allay his deep and often expressed regret that he must sever the many pleasant personal associations which he has built about himself in Washington.

This spirit of regret underlay the President's apparently happy and genial mood yesterday as he presided for the last time at the cabinet table and later held his last conference with the newspapermen. At the conclusion of each he put into words, thanking the cabinet officers for their services to him and the nation. Expressing appreciation to the newspapermen for cooperation and helpfulness and telling them of his wish that they may be as happy in the years to come as he has been in his associations of the years just gone by.

MR. COOLIDGE PREPARES TO QUIT OFFICE

Last Full Working Day of Chief Executive Crowded With Much Business.

Washington, March 2.—(AP)—Frankly happy that he and Mrs. Coolidge are about to return to the peace and serenity of their old Northampton home, President Coolidge was busy today with last-minute accumulation of Government business, urged on by a realization of much to be done and the fact that it was his last full working day as chief executive of the nation.

Awaiting his action were nearly 150 pieces of legislation lacking only his signature to make them laws; there were numerous federal offices of great responsibility to be filled and the day's engagement calendar, standing in its embossed leather frame on the President's desk revealed a long list of government officers, people of national prominence and close friends who wished to drop in, shake hands and bid him good-bye.

Outside the executive offices, the workmen could be seen adding the final touches to the stand from which Mr. Coolidge's successor will review the parade in honor of his inauguration and a long queue of out-of-town visitors was gathering to meet the President at the last of his daily non-hour receptions. But within, it was a regular business day. The President, as adhering to the precept, announced early in his political career, "doing the day's work."

Mr. Coolidge has made no effort to conceal the fact that this retirement from office will enable him to return to the life he likes best. Although the last eight years have seen his elevated to the highest place in the nation and have been crowded with significant events and accomplishments of which he is justly proud, there has always lurked in the chief executive's mind a desire, sometimes discussed with Mr. Coolidge to "go back home."

In his interview with the Associated Press in 1926, Mr. Coolidge mentioned his visits to the old home-stead at Plymouth, Vt., and the pleasure he derived from doing the little odd jobs that were constantly necessary, things that must be left to others when one sits in the White House surrounded by its large staff of servants.

"I like to dispense with the kind of service that it is necessary for me to have at the White House, and wait on myself," he said then. "If I find a strap broken, I like to get out the tools that are used by shoemakers, make a wax end, and repair it. It like to go out and repair the fence when it is breaking down, and mend the latch on the kitchen door."

It is a simple life of this kind, free from servile and secret service men that is beckoning the President to Northampton and serving to allay his deep and often expressed regret that he must sever the many pleasant personal associations which he has built about himself in Washington.

This spirit of regret underlay the President's apparently happy and genial mood yesterday as he presided for the last time at the cabinet table and later held his last conference with the newspapermen. Mr. Hoover during the campaign promised, if elected, to abolish poverty in this country. Here's hoping that there will be no lost time in his getting down to this phase of his work immediately following his inaugu-

CURBING DRUNKEN
DRIVERS

While even more drastic steps to curb the drunken driver would not have been out of order, the Senate has at least taken a step in the right direction, we believe, in the passing of the bill providing for a $100 plus a six month revocation of driving privilege for the first offense. Too often the case has been that the offenders were punished with a fine only which was nothing more than paying a license to repeat their offense. No doubt this mandatory revocation of driving privilege on the part of the courts will cause many a would-be drunken driver to stop, look and think before swilling bootleg liquor and then endeavoring to make a race track out of our streets and highways.

SOME SMOKE

Statistics just compiled estimate that during the year just closed 5,092,315 cigarettes were smoked in Greenville or a gain of 420,160 over the previous year. According to the reports, had the number of cigarettes been laid end to end, Greenville people smoked 221 miles of cigarettes. It might also be pointed out that while the statistics were based upon a per capita consumption of the present estimated population of the United States Greenville's quota was based upon its 1920 census population of 5,772. Figured on the present estimated population of more than 10,000 Greenville's consumption during last year would have shown almost twice the above figures or more than 400 miles of fags consumed.

ABOUT
TOWN

I am glad to note that the Merchants Association is planning to ask for extension of the White Way on Dickinson avenue," observed a citizen today.
Dickinson avenue is one of the principal business sections of the city. It should be as well lighted as any other street. The white way would not only be advantageous to the men doing business on this street, but would also aid traffic on the most congested thoroughfare in the city.
Everybody knows how difficult it is to see his way up this tobacco season. While better lights would not relieve the traffic it would help in its movement.

The city Aldermen have an important matter before them in this proposal and it is hoped they will give it the serious consideration which it is deserving.
"I wish Lindbergh would stay on the ground until after his wedding," declared an admirer of the trans-Atlantic flier this morning.
"He may feel perfectly safe sailing around through the air from one part of the country to another, but when one is on the ground he doesn't have so far to fall. It would be a pity for this brave young airman to meet with a terrible accident on the eve of his wedding—or after announcement of it. His career has been a brilliant one but it is probable his service would be far more valuable on the ground than in the air now."

The Merchants Association should be able to add quite a number of new members in the drive now in progress," said a prominent citizen today.
"The work of this organization has been outstanding the last few years. It has not been continued to the merchants alone, but to practically every branch of industry in the community.
"With this splendid record behind them, the Association ought to be able to attack all business men interested in the development of the community. The more members the organization has the greater will be its influence. Therefore, it is hoped every business interest will be represented and help in this great effort to improve local conditions."

"We are still shipping poultry to northern markets," said a member of the Department of Agriculture.
"These shipments mean the paying out of several thousands of dollars to the farmers of this community. The extra money comes in good. It fills up many a hole left open by shortage of main crops or their failure to bring as much money as expected.
"Farmers of this section should give more attention to the raising of chickens and hogs. This provides a source of revenue greatly in need during the summer months. Dairying is also another good money-yielding industry. Let one of these extra crop men walk into a bank and he can get all the money he needs," a prominent grower told me today.
"The bankers know he has something the consumer demands and that he is safe in loaning money to such a man. But loans should not be needed often by the poultry and cattle dealers. The soon find themselves on the road to financial independence."

"The one hour parking ordinance for the business district should be fully enforced," said a business man today.
"This should apply directly to local citizens who are familiar with the ordinance and who should not have to park or such a long time.
The visitor ought to be able to park as long as he wants. This is a courtesy every town owes to people coming into spend a short time with them. It is a mighty small thing to do, but it will pay big dividends when the visitor returns home and tells of the courtesy shown by the officers of another city."

"Information tending to show the necessity for deepening Tar river will be sent to Washington within the next few days," declared a citizen today commenting on the visit to Greenville yesterday of a representative of the War Department who was in the city compiling data.
"The project is one in which every business man is interested. The deepening of Tar river has been discussed for a long time but this is the first real attempt taken to make it an actuality."

"Just what action Congress will take in the matter remains to be seen. But enough facts have been presented to show that opening the river to navigation would be a great advantage to this community."

"My Thirty Years
at Sea"

By CAPTAIN GEORGE FRIED

Life as a crew sailor is behind him. Fried is at the turning point in a seaman's career; he becomes a junior officer.
Another step is taken and with it more responsibility. Men are in his hands to do his bidding. Fried explains why one type of officer fails and the other succeeds.
ficer is like any other step of advancement. An examination must be passed. His duties, of course, are on the bridge. He is now in direct contact with his superior officers and captain. A promotion depends on the individual. He must have a good education for a foundation, he must have ability as a leader, and the most important of all, he must have executive ability.
This is quickly determined by the other officers that work with him.
The work of a new junior officer is closely supervised. He is permitted to give a few orders and must stand watch. After a short period of time, if he is capable, he remains in the position, but if not he falls by the wayside. This means returning to the ranks. Few men will accept a demotion because of his pride, and oftentimes the young officer abandons the sea if he finds he is not qualified to go up the

..In a short time dislike for him became evident among the crew.. tween becoming a junior officer and going out into the world after graduating from college. An officer has a uniform. There may be very little gold on it, but nevertheless it is an inspiration to the wearer. At any rate, he has a job. A college man has to seek his Making the grade of a junior officer.
If he remains he continues his studies and is alert so that he reaches the pinnacle of his success —that of being a captain. Supreme command of a ship is the hope of every seafaring man. It has often been said that if a man taken from the ranks is given authority his true colors will come to the fore. Some men will become abusive; others can issue orders in a pleasant manner and obtain the confidence and cooperation of every one with whom they come in contact.

I recall several instances when a junior officer would study diligently and work hard on the decks for many hours to obtain that rank only to become unpopular with the men that were his former comrades. One officer, I remember, being assigned to the bridge for the first time, would stand beside the quartermaster for several minutes, then walk away some 10 or 15 feet and call the quartermaster aside to issue some kind of an order. The man would carry out his instructions, returning to his post, and the officer would again join him and a few minutes later would walk away and call him to his side to issue another order."

This became very irksome to the quartermaster, and word soon spread around in the forecastle that the officer was getting a "big head."
The other officers on the bridge were unaware of the situation. In a short time dislike for him became evident among the crew. He realized his mistake, but it was too late.
Orders were not being carried out and finally the man fell by the wayside.
Another instance was that of a junior officer who would give instructions to a boatswain and have the latter convey them to the quartermaster. Repeatedly he would call someone to give an order to another man. When the men were not receiving their orders direct from the officer in charge, they did not feel particularly gracious about it. The man who had to carry the order was disgruntled because he was taken away from routine tasks and was compelled to act as a messenger. This officer, like the other, soon became unpopular and was transferred.

On the other hand, I have seen junior officers who have been courteous and polite to their superiors and others. By the crews they were regarded as "good fellows." By superior officers they were considered able, so, together with study they soon advanced.
There are many young officers who have shown unusual qualifications. Harry Manning, chief officer of the boat that saved the crew of the Florida, is only 22 years of age. He had been captain for four trips aboard the President Roosevelt during 1928. During my absence from the American on the voyage following the rescue of my ship was assigned as captain to my ship —the youngest officer on the bridge.
This should be an inspiration for the young men of this country.
Advancement is just as rapid and no more difficult than it is in any other field of endeavor. Hard work and study alone will make the grade. So-called "pull" means nothing and can mean nothing when the responsibilities of a large trans-Atlantic liner are his.

Ships are mechanical and there must be men behind them who can operate them successfully to insure the safety of the lives of all those aboard.

Philco Philadelphia Gentlemen:—

I have just recently put my Philco through an exhaustive test which will interest you.

Although I live in the "splash" of station WEHR (less than 1/4 mile away)—I cut through it easily and brought in 88 distant stations from all parts of the country. I also cut through two strong locals and got WFL, Los Angeles, and WRC, Washington, D.C.

The Philco is particularly good in the low wave lengths where most sets fall down. I brought in four stations between 202.6 and 205.4 which are impossible to get on any other set I ever tried. And in the high wave lengths from 483.6 to 545.1, I got nine stations.

This letter is entirely voluntary. In these days when it is so difficult for most people to choose from the many sets on the market, I want to go on record as saying that the Philco out-performs any I have ever heard.

Very truly yours,
J. P. Hanley

Mothers especially are invited to hear this, the third message in our series, Sunday morning at eleven o'clock.

Tom Thumb Wedding.

The Tom Thumb Wedding given by the second grade of Evans street school and sponsored by the P. T. A. of that school, was greatly enjoyed by a large audience last night at the old college auditorium. All of the minutest details consistent with any real wedding were evident at this one, but one of the outstanding features was of special interest to the audience. All locker men and women of the day were ushered down the aisle as special guests. Miss Ada Hill announced the names of these folks of note as they entered as follows: Mr. and Mrs. Cal Coolidge, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hoover, Mr. and Mrs. Al Smith, Will Rogers, Dorothy Dix, Mr. Charles Lindbergh, President Wright, Mr. Rose, Dr. Pace, Mr. Will Hooker, Mrs. Ed Harvey, Mrs. Knott Proctor, Mrs. Jim Moore, J. B. Kittrell, Herbert Utley and Mayor Lanier.

When the guests were assembled a delightful musical program was rendered by various guests. Robert Murphy as June Rose, sang "On the Road to Mandalay," Carolyn Gregson, Willie Delle House and Wilfred Powell, as old-maid aunts, sang "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes." Fred Carrico, the rejecter, sang "Forgotten." Nell Merritt, as Mrs. Knott Proctor, sang "Yo! Hosiey." Louise Ramsay and David Smith, grandfather and grandmother of the groom, sang "Silver Threads Among the Gold," and James Ward and Pauline Smith, grandfather and grandmother of the bride, sang, "When You and I Were Young, Maggie."

At the conclusion of this large wedding party entered the bride, Mattie Lawrence Holliday, was never lovelier than she was as she made her way slowly down the aisle on the arm of the groom, Kenneth Clay. They were met at the altar by the minister, Joseph Stanton, who performed the most auspicious ceremony.

A delightful but formal reception immediately followed and ice cream and cake were served while the audience looked on in admiration of the pretty scene and shared its praise of all who participated.

GIRL CAGERS WINNERS IN TWO GAMES

Last night the evening of basketball provided by the girls of Greenville High school was eminently satisfactory—at least to the Greenville fans and their followers. The Varsity wound up the season by obtaining ample revenge upon Belhaven's team, which had won a close game earlier in the season, by the up-side score of 48 to 12, and the Freshmen did almost equally well, with equal satisfaction, by taking Ayden's girls into camp by a score of 34 to 17.

Both teams played excellent basketball, with many good plays and an occasional touch of inspiration. This is probably most true of the Greenville Varsity guards and Thigpen, who excelled herself at forward play against larger and heavier forwards. Greenville's trio of defenders gave the visitors much trouble and little opportunity to score or even hold the ball. The game opened with considerable rather even play, and looked like a contest for the first half. In the second half, though, Greenville managed to get away from the Belhaven guards for goal after goal in rapid succession. One reason for the high score was the almost amazing accuracy of the forward's shooting. (Varsity only—the Freshmen were almost as amazing in their ability to miss the basket). But they were ably helped out by close guard ing an accurate passing from their own guards. Almost never did Greenville lose the ball at the center line. Foley, Kasey and Briley all seemed masters of the situation at all times when the ball was in their territory, and speedily sent it flying back to Jenkins, whose mission it was to advance it to Respass, with the deadly aim on the basket and herself with enough to outscore the Belhaven team. Respass tallied 23 points, which is enough to say about her. Toward the end, all the Greenville subs were slipped in, and the time they played. Final score: Greenville 48; Belhaven 12.

The Freshmen started off with a being largely responsible for a 8 to 2 lead at quarter time. In the second quarter, Davenport got her eye in the basket and tallied four times. The half ended 20 to 5.

In the second half, Ayden pulled up, and but for several "hard luck" shots, would have made the contest a close one. As it was, they scored 12 to the Freshmen's 14 for the half. The margin of superiority shows most clearly in the field goals scored; Ayden making 5 to the Freshmen's 17. The guarding of Cox against the tallest Ayden girl was the outstanding feature in the rear end of the court. In the last quarter, all the Greenville girls in uniform were sent in, to make a total of as many players for Greenville as Ayden scored points in the game, or possibly more. This game was a very satisfactory one to the Freshmen, and will probably remain the only satisfaction they have after this evening when they tackle the doughty Sophomores. These latter almost constitute the school Varsity, so the Freshmen know they have an evening's work on hand.

During the evening the boys of the two classes also clash, and this may perhaps give the First Year class an opportunity to break even on the two games. This does not mean that the Freshmen boys are expecting a walkaway, far from it. But there will be two good games tonight, no matter who wins either. They are slated to start at 7:35.

Philco Console
A full-length console cabinet of superb finish. Handsomely matched walnut panels. Also other furniture models—come in and see them.

Philco Philadelphia Gentlemen:—

I have just recently put my Philco through an exhaustive test which will interest you.

Although I live in the "splash" of station WEHR (less than 1/4 mile away)—I cut through it easily and brought in 88 distant stations from all parts of the country. I also cut through two strong locals and got WFL, Los Angeles, and WRC, Washington, D.C.

The Philco is particularly good in the low wave lengths where most sets fall down. I brought in four stations between 202.6 and 205.4 which are impossible to get on any other set I ever tried. And in the high wave lengths from 483.6 to 545.1, I got nine stations.

This letter is entirely voluntary. In these days when it is so difficult for most people to choose from the many sets on the market, I want to go on record as saying that the Philco out-performs any I have ever heard.

Very truly yours,
J. P. Hanley
Chicago

Records like this—

Yes, records like this, some even more startling, are being made by Philco users in all parts of the country. Location, of course, does make a difference. But even where reception is most difficult, the Philco has proved its ability to overcome obstacles which baffle other sets. And where conditions are good, Philco is making amazing performance records.

Free Home Demonstration

We will gladly show you what the Philco will do right in your own home. No obligation whatever.

Market Report Cotton--Stocks--Grain

COTTON MARKET

New York, March 2.—(AP)—Cotton opened steady today at an advance of four points to a decline of a point, generally 3 to 4 points higher in response to relatively steady Liverpool cables and continuing favorable reports from the cotton goods trade.

The advance into a period of week-end realizing however, there also seemed to be some southern selling. While buying continued in moderate volume, there was a quietness about yesterday's closing quotations by the end of the first half-hour.

Cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 149,000 bales compared with 102,000 last year.

GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, March 2.—(AP)—Settlers to anticipate any likelihood of a bearish showing Monday as to farm reserve stocks of wheat tended to ease what prices down a little today after early upward action of the wheat market at Winnipeg, today was also a bearish influence and so too was selling from southern sources. There was some buying of wheat here, and support demand today for wheat from North America again turned bearish.

Wheat closed unsettled at the same as yesterday's high to 3-8 lower; corn 1-4 to 1-3 off; oats 1-4 to 1-3 down and provisions unchanged to a rise of 1/8.

STOCK MARKET

New York, March 2.—(AP)—Heavy profit taking and sporadic short selling checked the so-called "Hoover industrial rally" on the stock market today, and prices turned extremely irregular, with the main tendency downward. Trading continued around the terrific price set in yesterday's wild market, total sales for the two-hour session running to about 3,400,000 shares.
