President Hoover Takes Over Reins Of Nation Today

Californian Takes Oath of Office In Most Colorful Ceremony in History of Nation; Thousands Witnesses Exercises.

Washington, March 4.—(AP)—The presidency passed to Herbert Hoover today in a colorful ceremony which he himself described as a "dedicated consecration under God."

Washington turned out in elaborate pageantry today to climax the inauguration exercises. Pennsylvania avenue, transformed almost overnight from a work-a-day thoroughfare, reflected in glowing colors a nation's enthusiasm. An estimated 5,000 persons had places in the parade itself. A display of aircraft, with the navy airship Los Angeles the chief attraction, has been arranged as a spectacular sight that set today's exhibition in an historic class by itself.

In the tableaux of installing a president the "Avenue" itself was the magnet toward which humanity was drawn. The clustered tens of thousands today wait in traditional glory.

A grey-skied day, with the feel of a win in the air, was dealt out by a brilliant March for the inauguration of Herbert Hoover.

Early arrivals among the side, with alt crowds and bleacherites along the parade route were all gazing apprehensively heavenward as they waited to take up their posts hours ahead of schedule, and shortly after 10 a. m. the weather bureau farther up the avenue, with a reiterated forecast for showers during the afternoon.

"Rain this afternoon," said the weather bureau, "probably becoming heavy this afternoon or early evening."

Not before late afternoon were the ceremonies to end with the inaugural parade, although they would see their zenith shortly after 10 a. m. with the formal induction of Mr. Hoover into office on the capitol plaza.

All of the principals in the day's procession of events were stirring while many of the city's guests were sound asleep. President Coolidge and Mr. Hoover both were up shortly after 7 o'clock, and by 9:30 the retiring master of the house was at his desk in the executive offices, clearing away the last work of his administration.

Mr. Hoover breakfasted alone at 10 o'clock on scrambled eggs and toast.

Shortly after 9 a. m. the White House grounds were cleared, and a large crowd of sightseers, many taking an early car to the nation were invited to remain outside the big iron fence. The president's military and naval aides arrived shortly afterward, a line of White House cars was pulled up at the north portico ready for the ride to the capitol.

A full hour before the President-elect were to pass up Pennsylvania avenue, giving spectators there a first glimpse of the president's history-making the sidewalk grandstand crowds were increasing rapidly. Although it was not comfortably cool, the first commotion was overcast, and most of them brought along their umbrellas.

Senator Curtis was the first of the official party to start for the rendezvous at the White House. He left the Mayflower Hotel shortly after 10:15 a. m., accompanied by his sister, Mrs. Gann. Two members of the inaugural committee, with colleagues of Curtis for many years in the Senate, Hale of Maine, and Governor of North Carolina, were invited to escort him to the executive mansion.

As he climbed into his car, Curtis stopped for a moment to shake hands with a little girl whose mother thrust her forward from the crowd. The vice-President-elect reached the White House at 10:20 o'clock, just as members of the cabinet were assembling. They were to have places in the entourage of Coolidge and Hoover, soon to start for the capitol.

SENATE BUSY WITH SEVERAL ISSUES TODAY

Pass Bill Preventing Defeated Primary Candidates From Becoming Independents.

Raleigh, March 4.—(AP)—A bill to prevent candidates defeated in a primary from entering the General election as independents was passed by the Senate today and sent to the House. The Republicans voted solidly against the measure, which was approved by a vote of 19 to 15.

Senator Person spoke against the bill.

"Suppose Senator Simmons were defeated in the next primary?" he asked. "Do you think you would catch him in this spider web? you can't do it."

Other who favored the bill said it was not aimed at any particular person.

Bills passed by the Senate today: H. B. To authorize commissioner of Rutherford county to issue tunnel bonds.

H. B. To authorize Henderson county to issue bonds.

S. B. To permit the town of Margarettsville, Northampton county to issue bonds.

H. B. Relating to working of public roads of Graham county.

H. B. To better provide for highway construction in Craven county.

H. B. To authorize bond election in Burke county.

Blame noble for disaster to the Italia

Commander of Ill-Fated Ship Held Responsible For Crash Others Praised.

Rome, March 4.—(AP)—Official blame for the disaster which ended the North Pole flight of the dirigible Italia last May was attached today to General Umberto Nobile, its commander.

Two counts are contained in the sentence, which was made, by the official board of inquiry into the disaster appointed by Premier Benito Mussolini.

HERBERT HOOVER AND MEMBERS CHOSEN FOR HIS CABINET

Hoover Dedicates Himself To Law Enforcement and Promotion of World Peace

Washington, March 4.—(AP)—With simple forefurl language reflective of his own personality, Herbert Hoover today dedicated himself and his administration to law enforcement at home and promotion of peace throughout the world.

These two purposes stood out in bold relief in his inaugural address delivered from a simply decorated stand on the east front of the capitol after he had taken the oath as the 31st President of the United States.

Declaring that the most urgent of all the dangers from which self-government must be guarded today is the disregard for and disobedience of law, the President said that "to consider these evils, to find their remedy, is the most serious necessity of our times."

"Rigid and expeditious justice is the first safeguard of freedom, the basis of all ordered liberty, the vital force of progress," he said. "It must not come to be in our republic that it can be defeated by the indifference of the citizen, by exploitation of delays and entanglements of the law or by combination of criminals."

"Turning to the enforcement of the eighteenth amendment, Mr. Hoover asserted that abuses which have grown up around it are due in part to the failure of some states to accept their share of the responsibility for concurrent enforcement and the failure of many state and local officials to enforce the law zealously."

"But a large responsibility rests directly upon citizens," he asserted. "There would be little traffic in illegal liquor if only criminals patronized it. The duty of citizens to support the law is co-equal with the duty of their government to enforce the laws which exist."

"Our whole system of self-government will crumble if officials elect what laws they will enforce or citizens elect what laws they will support. The worst evil of disregard for some law is that it destroys respect for all law."

As an immediate step for improvement of conditions, President Hoover declared it essential "that a large part of the enforcement activities be transferred from the Treasury Department to the Department of Justice as a beginning of a more effective organization."

Reiterating his determination to appoint a national commission for a searching investigation, the chief executive disclosed that his inquiry would go into the whole structure of the Federal system of jurisprudence as well as to the methods of enforcement of the 18th amendment and the causes of abuse under it.

LESLE BLAND IS VICTIM OF AUTO WRECK

Son of Winterville Man Killed in Crash Between Ayden and Grifton Sunday.

Leslie Bland, 19-year-old son of Herman Bland, farmer of the Winterville community, was killed in an automobile accident on the Greenville-Ayden highway, between Grifton and Ayden, Sunday, morning about three o'clock, according to information reaching the city today.

Coroner E. S. Williams investigated the accident Sunday morning, and the jury returned a verdict that the young man came to his death while driving on the wrong side of the road.

The accident happened at a cross roads between Grifton and Ayden. Bland was going in the direction of Ayden and collided with an automobile occupied by J. O. Canady and J. Vann, both of the Ayden community. The Canady car, it seems, was towing another vehicle to town, and had stopped at the cross roads to turn around. It was while maneuvering the cars to go in the opposite direction that the Bland car came along and ran into them.

The Bland car is said to have turned over two or three times, catching the driver under it. Young Bland's head was crushed and his body badly cut by the impact. A negro occupant of the car escaped uninjured.

Charlotte Man Commits Suicide

Charlotte, March 4.—(AP)—J. T. McAden, prominent Charlotte cotton man, committed suicide between 9:30 and 10 o'clock this morning by shooting himself in the head.

Mr. McAden, after telling Owen Fitzsimmons, his brother-in-law who had stopped at the McAden home to take Mr. McAden to his office, "I'll be out in a minute," went into the basement at his home and a few minutes later the muffled sound of a pistol shot was heard. When the body was reached a note was found by its side which indicated he had been contemplating such action for sometime. Mr. McAden's death in yrms.

Bootleg Whiskey Held Responsible For Seven Deaths

Georgia, Ill., March 4. (AP)—Poison liquor was blamed today for seven deaths here within 48 hours. In a roundup of bootleggers started as soon as a coroner's investigation was completed two men were arrested.

Three persons died Saturday and four yesterday, but the first knowledge that they had died from other than natural causes came late last night when Coroner W. H. Elliott announced that post mortem examinations had revealed that poisonous liquor was the cause of death.

Three of the dead men and two others who were seriously ill were members of a party held by livestock men at a hotel Thursday night. The four others who died, one of them a woman, had no connection with the party. But police said they received some of the same consignment of liquor.

FINAL ACTION EXPECTED ON SCHOOL BILL

Legislature to Also Give Attention To Australian Ballot Bill This Week.

Raleigh, March 4.—(AP)—Final action on the school aid bill and the Australian ballot bill, two of the major measures of the legislature current session, appeared slated for this week as Senators and Representatives returned after the week-end recess.

The Senate set precedent for the session by deciding to meet at 11 o'clock this morning, but the House adhered to its schedule of beginning the week at eight o'clock tonight.

The Australian ballot bill was a special order before the House for tomorrow. It was in practically the same form as passed by the Senate.

The compromise school aid bill passed by the House, with its provisions for an equalizing fund of $15,325,000 for the coming biennium was in the hands of the Senate Committee on Education, which was expected to report it out early in the week. Senator T. L. Johnson, President Pro Tem, who is regarded as one of the administration leaders issued a statement yesterday predicting that the Senate would approve the measure in substantially the shape it passed the House.

After the ballot bill, the workmen's compensation measure passed by the Senate ranked next on the House calendar.

N. C. HAS PART IN INAUGURAL PARADE TODAY

Governor Gardner Leads Contingent of Carolinians at Hoover Inauguration.

Washington, March 4.—(AP)—An executive of one of the original thirteen Colonies, O. Max Gardner, Governor of North Carolina, today has a place near the front of the section following the inauguration of Herbert Hoover as President of the United States.

The Governor, with Mrs. Gardner, heads a colorful contingent of North Carolinians including a guard of honor from the Wilmington Light Infantry, one of the Old North State's crack military units. Members of the Governor's personal staff included Gen. John Van B. Metts, adjutant general of North Carolina; Col. Don Scott of Graham, Col. W. T. Joyner and Lt. Col. Gordon Smith both of Raleigh.

Other prominent North Carolinians who were invited to march in the parade were Stuart Cramer of Charlotte, State Chairman of the Republican National Committee, who is credited with having much to do with North Carolina going Republican in the last Presidential election, and national committeeman Charles R. Jones of Lincolnton, they were placed in the section given over to prominent figures in the Republican party.

Hundreds of North Carolinians, from Manah to Murphy were in Washington to witness the inaugural pageantry. They came by motor train and some hitch-hiked. A group of Catawba and Lincoln County Republicans had their headquarters in Harrington Hotel, near the route of the parade.

Mr. and Mrs. Gardner will be in the receiving line tonight at the official reception given for governors, their ladies and official cohorts. They later will attend for a short time the charity ball at the auditorium. The governor today said that he must get back to Raleigh Tuesday morning as the legislature is in session, but a number of his escort expect to remain in the Capitol for the round of post-inaugural affairs which are scheduled.

Since the arrival of the gubernatorial party, Mrs. Gardner has received a number of high social honors. She was chosen by Col. U. S. Grant, third, to accompany him to the luncheon given by the inaugural committee and the choice of Mrs. Gardner as his partner was considered a distinct social honor.

The North Carolina executive arrived yesterday and immediately was the center of a round of pre-inaugural activities indulged in by Tar Heels coming up from "down home" and hundreds who live in the national capital.

The governor attended the First Baptist church in the morning and at night was the guest of honor at a dinner given by North Carolina society officers. In the afternoon, he called with his staff, on President Coolidge at the White House and took a short sightseeing trip around the capitol.

Among interesting North Carolinians here for the ceremonies today was Dr. Elwood, President of Guilford College, Quaker Institute of higher learning in North Carolina, who came up to see the first quaker ever elected to the Presidency inducted into office. He was warmly welcomed by a group of Guilford Alumni living in Washington.

Mexico In Grip Of Revolution

Mexico City, March 4.—(AP)—The Mexican Government mobilized loyal forces today to meet the attacks of widespread and serious revolution.

General Plutarco Elias Calles, former President, was drafted from his retirement and made secretary of war in charge of all military operations. As troops were brought here from loyal States to reinforce the Mexican City garrison other combat contingents were prepared for departure to the States of Vera Cruz and Sonora where the revolt appeared to center. A strict censorship was established.

Vera Cruz and Sonora have been taken over—apparently without bloodshed—by the rebel forces, in Vera Cruz under the command of General Jesus Marta Guirre, until yesterday chief of military operations there, and in Sonora by General Francisco Manzo, military chief Governor Fausto Topete and General Manuel Aguirre, brothers of Jesus Aguirre, joined with Manzo.

Ambassador Morrow cut short his week-end at Cuernavaca and decided to hasten back to the Capital with his family and prospective son-in-law, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

In a statement to Mexico City newspapers President Portes Gil expressed confidence his government would survive the revolt.

"The government is sure it possesses strength sufficient to dominate the revolution in a short time," he said, "not only because the greater part of the army has remained loyal but because in districts where the revolt has broken out there are parts of the army which have not joined the rebels, moreover the government is confident it has the force of public opinion with it."

There is disagreement as to the cause of the outbreak. President Portes Gil's statement says it is the movement of disgruntled military leaders who wished to impose their choice for the Presidency upon the country at the elections next November.

EMILE FUCHS IN CHARGE OF HIS BALL CLUB

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 4.—(AP)—Emil Fuchs, former New York Judge, will sit this summer on a strange bench and with him will rest the hopes of the Boston Braves. "The Judge", as he is called by every one in baseball, will find this open air court quite different from the ones he knew in New York.

He cannot issue a citation for contempt of court against fans disagreeing with his decisions and few, if any of the verdicts returned against his club will be subject to appeal.

The head of the Boston forces in the National League is conducting one of the most daring experiments in baseball. He has stepped from the sheltered confines of his prospective office to the field itself and although he has not donned baseball uniform to replace the judicial robe of other days, he is no less the manager.

There have been other presidents who were managers, too, but almost without exception they were like Wilbert Robinson, of the Brooklyn, former Major League players.

Manager Fuchs' best baseball playing was done for the Grange Athletic club, a combination of circumstances, including an injury to his arm and service in the Spanish-American war thwarted his ambition to make baseball his profession.

In seven years connection with the Braves he has developed into a case student of the game as it is played by experts. A part of the time he sat at the feet of a baseball gamelle, the immortal Christy Mathewson.

At first glance it would seem impossible for a club President to lay aside a pen to pick up a bat with any hope of success but the mild mannered Fuchs, with a ready, pleasant smile and sympathy for all mankind, certainly has a chance to get away with it. He has accomplished one third of his task already by setting himself as a manager to his players. Now he had to convince the fans and opposition clubs.

He will be assisted by two stalwarts of the game, Johnny Evers and Hank Gowdy, co-heroes in the 1914 four game world series triumph of the Braves over the Athletics but President Fuchs is manager Fuchs just the same. He proposed to give his ideas a thorough trial and if he is wrong he says he will be the first to admit.

On the playing field will be found at least two men who know a lot of the game. The diminutive Rabbit Maranville, another 1914 Braves star who since then has seen the baseball world, and George Sisler, former manager of the St. Louis Browns, will be very active in carrying out the instructions of the judge. Gowdy may point the playing forces forty games or so.

Sisler has returned into superb form and gives every indication of being the Sisler of old, when he was the American league's leading batsman and most valuable player. Gowdy does not seem to have changed in 15 years.

All the five players Boston took from Chicago have shown good in the spring workouts and promise to help the club. Maguire, a sensational fielder, is established at second base. Louis Leggett, will get a chance to do plenty of catching and Percy Jones, Bruce Cunningham and Harry Seibold will fit nicely into the pitching staff. Seibold is not a youngster but has ripened in the minors.

Kent Greenfield, Bob Smith, Edward Brandt and Arthur Delany are veterans who will again be available. Ben Cantwell and Bill Clark, who went from the Giants to the Braves, Henry Werz, former Brave, George Prety, Wichita recruit and G. V. Leverett, trying to come back to major league baseball, are in a free for all.

The infield will be made up of Sisler, Maguire and Bell on the bases with Maranville and Farrell at short. The fleet Lance Richbourg is the only outfielder sure of his place. Earl Clark and Al Moore may complete the trio, leaving George Harper, Helme Mueller and Jack Smith to fight for the other places.

Pat Collins, ex-Yankee, the veteran Zack Taylor, and Dick Smith, the Notre Dame football star, who caught for Montreal last year, may make up the catching staff unless the ancient but nimble Gowdy takes a hand.

The jury will begin its deliberations in about six weeks.

LOCAL CAGERS TO PLAY LAST GAME HERE

Tomorrow night what will probably be the last appearance of the fast traveling quintet, which has been representing Greenville High in basketball this year will take place when Roanoke Rapids comes here for a post-season game to wind up the year. The Roanoke Rapids team has played a consistently good game throughout the Conference circle and has a record almost as good as our own. On the best comparative scores, those with Farmville the Halifax boys are as good as we are, for while we scored only as many field goals as Farmville in our last meeting, they outscored the Pitt County boys.

Roanoke Rapids has without question, one of the All-Conference team playing in the person of Goodman, their all around star. He was picked for All-Conference football this fall, was very easily high scorer at the track meet last spring, and has been leading his team in all ways this winter. To stop Goodman will take considerable of the time and ability of the Greenville boys, leaving not as much as they might desire for constructive work on their own part and toward their own basket.

The last time these two teams met was a little over a year ago, in the gym at Roanoke Rapids, for a game which Greenville won, 7 to 6 in the final seconds of a hair-raising scrimmage. The local boys have not entirely talked themselves out on this subject yet, and indications are that tomorrow night's game will furnish equally good material for a long time.

It is with a feeling of regret that we see this basketball season close, and the best that Greenville can do towards giving the boys a good send off to the State College Tournament at Raleigh will be to turn out in large numbers to see them play their last game at home.

The path the team will pursue in the Tournament will not be a delicate roadway of poses by any means, for they have drawn a hard place, from beginning right thru to the end. Their first opponents are the strong Lexington team, always a dangerous crowd of husky lads, and well coached in the bargain. Their record this year showed them a hard team to beat. If we are fortunate enough to win in this opening contest, our next opponents would be the winners of the Durham High Point set-to. In all probability this would mean Durham, as they are considered the better of the two on their records. A victory over them would be by no means easy, but would place us within the favored circle of surviving teams. Whom we would play next can be at this time only a matter of conjecture. The boys play their opening game early on Thursday morning, and the schedule is packed close with hot contests from that time on.

BABE RUTH HAS GREAT SEASON AHEAD

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 4.—(AP)—Babe Ruth has decided that he is going to have a good year and that the New York Yankees are going to win another American League pennant.

Aside from saying that he is in good physical trim and confident that he will play as well as he ever has, the Babe declined to become specific as to why he thought so.

ONE form of life insurance provides education for children at the very time when their education costs most... Another kind of policy tides over enforced idleness because of accident or sickness. Another form of policy, paid for in regular installments, is a sound financial investment, as well as a protection.

Employers and employees join together in buying another kind of insurance which provides leisure and freedom from financial worry in later years.

Business men build needed credit for business with life insurance policies... Final payments on homes are made certain by insurance.

About one person in every five in the United States and Canada shared in the Metropolitan's greatest year of service.

Happily, more and more persons have a new understanding of what life insurance promises, what it can do and what it does do. They are learning that it does many different things equally well.

While the original purpose—to take care of the breadwinner's dependents in event of untimely death—has never been lost sight of, today life insurance is largely and directly concerned with the business of living.

a business man—in big business or small—makes plans to protect and develop his business, so that his income will increase. But too few consider what will happen to their families when that income stops, for not many can accumulate

$1,000,000

Life insurance provides the way—insurance in a sound company, under a liberal policy.

You will be interested in the advertisement of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company appearing in this paper. It points out the many ways by which insurance serves both home and business, and will perhaps bring to your mind some new ideas for yourself. The local office of the Metropolitan will be glad to advise you.

BOY SCOUTS TO BE ORGANIZED HERE TONIGHT

Churches Appoint Committees to Assist in Organization at Rotary Club.

The Boy Scout movement which has been in progress in this city the last several days was explained to the congregations of various city churches yesterday and each congregation appointed a committee to aid in the selection of scout masters and other officials and to assist in sponsoring the movement of the various troops in this city.

Immediately following the regular weekly meeting of the Rotary club tonight, there will be a meeting of all the church committees appointed yesterday, ministers of the town and members of the Rotary and Kiwanis club who inaugurated the movement. At this meeting a permanent organization will be perfected. This will be preparatory to the training school for scout executives and scout masters to begin at the Teachers college Tuesday, March 12. The school will be under the direction of Scout Executive Herbert Stuckey, of Wilson area.

The movement to reorganize the Boy Scouts of this city gained momentum here several days ago when committees from the Rotary and Kiwanis clubs were interested to go about arranging for a permanent organization.

It was decided at the time to carry the plans before the congregations of local churches to assist in organization, and since this plan was carried out yesterday promoters are confident permanent organization will be perfected tonight with the moral support of virtually all leading citizens of the city.

Oldsmobile Shows Production Growth During Past Month

Lansing, Mich., March 4.—An increase of 95 per cent in the production and shipment of Oldsmobiles during February as compared to the same month last year is reported today by Oldsmobile officials. During the month just closed—the shortest in the year—10,200 Oldsmobiles were manufactured.

A further increase of more than 40 per cent over this record February production is scheduled for March, factory officials announce. During the present month approximately 14,500 Oldsmobiles will be produced to fill domestic and export requirements.

Retail sales are keeping pace with the greatly increased production. During February these showed an increase of more than 90 per cent. While domestic sales registered the greatest gains, exports showed an increase of 40 per cent over those of last February. This improvement in exports is in direct line with the great strides being made in the export field by the General Motors Corporation, of which Oldsmobile is a division. Last year General Motors exported double the number of automobiles it shipped abroad during the previous year.

A decided trend toward the coupe also is reported by Oldsmobile officials. This applies both to the standard model with large luggage space in the rear and the sport model with an additional rear seat for two. This demand for coupes is taken as an indication of a decided growth in the use of medium priced automobiles for business purposes.

Prospects are excellent for a good automotive year, say Oldsmobile officials, basing the prediction on a country-wide survey which included business trips totaling 26,000 miles. This survey showed a general improvement in business conditions, they report.

New activities are spreading throughout the New England states to replace these units of the textile industry which have removed to the South, while there appears to be a general revival of the shoe industry, which has been one of New England's premier industries, the report states.

The Middle Atlantic section was found to be prospering in practically every line. Better conditions in the coal regions also are being brought about by concentrating on mines where coal can be produced cheaply and halting production on those more costly to operate until the demand will make their operation profitable.

The movement of the textile industry has brought about an improvement in the south, and the resort season in Florida is reported to have been the best in years.

The entire central west is reported in excellent condition, from a business viewpoint. The southwest and northwest also are prospering with the exception of a few isolated sections. The Pacific coast is in good condition, especially California.

Oldsmobile dealers throughout the country have prepared for a materially larger business than last year, which was 50 per cent greater than any year previous, officials announce.

Chicago Cop Shoots Thief He Tipped Off

Chicago, March 4.—(AP)—Policeman Edward Coleman, spoken of by his friends as "a good cop" who never smoked nor drank during seven years, has confessed to taking an automobile thief "for a ride" Saturday night and shooting him, probably fatally.

His victim was Michael Bugario, 30. Coleman shot him in the mouth the bullet lodging in the throat. Bugario also was severely beaten by two men, Bugario associates who lined up with Coleman after the policeman told them he had been double-crossed by Bugario.

During 12 hours of questioning yesterday the officer maintained his innocence, despite the discovery of blood stains on his car. Last night his wife appealed to him to tell the truth, and he then gave a detailed confession.

Coleman said he became a "tipster" for Bugario a year ago, agreeing to tip off Bugario to automobiles that might be stolen easily. Coleman was to get $50 for the car Bugario stole.

"I wanted to quit it," Coleman's confession said, "but Bugario wouldn't let me. He said he needed $500 and threatened to 'talk if I didn't pay. I told two of his pals that Bugario was trying to shake me down. They agreed to help me settle him.

We got him in my car Saturday night and drove into an alley. Bugario began to tell when they beat him. They told me to shoot him. I didn't have the heart until one of them said, 'shoot him, or I will 5 then I fired."

SEARCH FOR PARADOX IN TAXES NOW HOVERS OVER NEWSPAPERS

Hunting for odd scraps of subjects of taxation to be imposed by the State to relieve counties of what they now consider injudicious self-impositions probably finds apotheosis of absurdity in the reported intention of the finance committee to levy a tax upon newspaper advertising.

Not that the newspapers themselves will be put to any great degree of trouble except to the extent of more complicated bookkeeping. A fact the finance committee evidently does not know is that advertising is just as much a commodity as a quart of milk or a loaf of bread. Competition causes its prices to be fixed at a level to return a slight profit. The level therefore is stable in reputable papers, and papers that are not reputable and whose circulation is of doubtful character are not good advertising mediums. A tax on advertising is therefore a sales tax, which, if passed, will in one way or another be passed on by the merchant to his customer.

One suspects that there is about this suggestion in the committee a hint of the old idea that a newspaper could be brought to time, its opinions dictated, or at least its mouth shut, by striking at its revenues. From time to time every newspaper runs instances of the survival of the fittest notion born in a day of the small newspaper so poverty stricken that it looked to be a harpoon. Now and again personal feelings of an advertiser are so ruffled that it contemplates the revenge of cutting down or withdrawing his space allotment, even have with us that of subscriber who in a moment of editorial difference concludes that he will take the offending journal in bankruptcy by discontinuing the call of the carrier boy!

If we understand North Carolina newspapers, they are not going to stage any particular fight over a proposal to subject them to a form of a nuisance tax. Nevertheless it remains true that every public policy which has the tendency to localize or restrict newspaper or periodical circulation is a blow at a desired uniformity of intelligence, information and understanding. Short-sighted administration of the postoffice department has done its foolish best in that direction, and although papers and magazines continue to thrive the hurt done has certainly been appreciable. Advertising, an essential part of a vital necessity of communication, is so wrapped up in the life of the average man that a tax upon it is a tax upon him—however much a North Carolina legislature or any other law-making body may desire to persuade him to the contrary.—Raleigh Times.

ABOUT TOWN

"Our goal is a total membership of 150 and we are going to reach it before the campaign closes," declared a member of the Merchants Association today, speaking of the membership campaign now in progress.

"With only two committees functioning Saturday, we added seventeen new members. This was a splendid beginning and we are hopeful of reaching the goal by the end of the week." The Merchants Association is doing a wonderful work for the city and community. Business and professional men interested in these activities should join us and help put them across. If you are not a member of this important organization, join while this campaign is in progress.

"We are glad to hear something else about the deepening of Tar river," remarked a citizen today, speaking of the story carried in the columns of this paper Saturday, telling of the visit of a representative of the district engineer of the War department.

"Everybody realizes the importance of the opening of Tar river to navigation. It would result in cheaper transportation rates and the saving of thousands of dollars annually by shippers of this locality." "This is the only direct way to combat the high freight rates of the past few years. In fact, it is the only direct way of providing a greater outlet for goods sent to other sections. It offers additional means of bringing more industries here. This last feature alone is of sufficient consideration to demand the attention of every business man armed in behalf of progress."

"The proposal will be watched with interest now that it is on its way to the War Department and consideration by congress. Upon its success is based our hope of greater industrial expansion." Guy Smith might find some good material among the big league ball players training in Florida, in the opinion of J. B. James, local attorney who is spending several days at St. Petersburg, Fla.

"I have been looking over the New York Yankees and Boston Braves and believe Guy should be able to find valuable players among them," Mr. James writes back home. Aside from his comment on the baseball, the local man said he found the weather "rather warm" in the land of sunshine and flowers.

"Get out your baseball pocketbook and be ready to subscribe for stock in the local club of the Eastern Carolina league," urged a supporter today.

"Committees will visit you within the next several days. The way you subscribe will have something to do with the success of the club this season. It takes money to run a ball club just like anything else, and we can't afford to start the season off with a shortage of finances." "Greenville plans one of the fastest clubs of the league this year. Help make this possible by taking stock in the ball club and assuring them of sufficient money to get away to a good start."

"Judging by news reports, the inauguration of President Hoover today was one of the most brilliant fetes in years," commented a local man, after glancing over news reports on the electric typewriters in the front of the Reflector office.

"Washington always dresses up for inaugural ceremonies, but she outdid herself this time. If pagentry has anything to do with success, then the future of Herbert Hoover as chief executive of the greatest nation on earth is absolutely secure." "America has always done things in big style, and it is only natural the induction into office of her leading citizen should be attended by exercises of more than passing prominence."

George Woodward is a great booster of Greenville. He is sure the best people in the world live here and that they rear the kind of children capable of taking their place in the front ranks of anything the undertake. Not so long ago George went to Chapel Hill. He talked to the coach of the University of North Carolina. "I came up here," he told the coach, "to see if you had anything that would compare with our high school cage players." He meant it for a joke. But it didn't go across the goal. The coach smiled. "That we have, Billy Brown is here and he got his start with the Greenville high school. Brown is one of our most consistent players and can be counted on to keep a level head under all conditions." George came back home and said he understood now why the University cage team was a success.

"My Thirty Years at Sea"

by CAPTAIN GEORGE FRIED

As far back as 1905 wireless gave Fried a thrill. Then it was personal messages. A few years later it was in connection with a rescue when he sought a brew of a radio operator hero under circumstances similar to those in which he years afterwards was to be the central figure. His first ship to shore audible communication is described as a "real thrill."

By CAPT. GEORGE FRIED (Copyright 1929, Associated Press) CHAPTER VII

One of the greatest values of modern day science to the men at sea is the wireless. Prior to the development of the radio, ships traveling from port to port were never in communication with each other nor with the shore. I recall, before wireless service, taking this hip's chronometer to the nearest telegraph or cable station to get the correct time to determine the instrument's error and rate. Of course it was necessary

Every night... men would congregate to get these reports... to wait for the flash which indicated the correct time. Whoever carried this chronometer had to be extremely careful—in fact it had to be transported much in the same fashion as you would carry a basket of eggs. It was absolutely essential to keep the chronometer away from any electrical influences such as motors and trolley cars, and you had to carefully select a conveyance because the instrument was extremely delicate and could not be jarred.

The first thrill I got from the radio was when I was aboard the cruiser Minneapolis. The Navy had installed a crystal receiving set and the first night there was considerable excitement when word spread that we were to receive news dispatches from shore. Every night while at sea men would congregate in the radio room to get these reports first hand. The news received would spread quickly throughout the ship.

Introduction of this novelty created considerable excitement. Frequently messages written on radiogram sheets would be found lying in different parts of the ship. These messages would sometimes say that we were to head for a different port or that we would turn about and start at once for home instead of following the original itinerary. These reports of course were erroneous and were dropped on the decks with the idea of creating a sensation. It was not long before the hoax was discovered. The captain of the vessel then issued an order saying that anyone writing a false report or spreading rumors purporting to come from the radio room would be severely punished. Personal messages were accepted for transmission in the early days about 1905, but there was never any guarantee of delivery. Frequently it was necessary to hold these messages until the vessel reached port and they could then be sent by telegraph or cable.

While this made a tremendous impression upon me, I realized the advantage of this new development in science, particularly as it referred to myself and other seafarers. The radio was first used in saving lives in January, 1909, when the steamer Florida and the Republic crashed during a fog off Nantucket Lightship. You will probably recall that the radio operator, Jack Binns of the Republic, was the outstanding hero and when the rescued crew returned to New York I happened to be in port and made every effort to get a glimpse of Jack to find out what a hero really looked like.

The wireless has been used to great advantage in giving first aid to the injured and sick on various ships that did not carry doctors. Every ship carries a medicine locker as part of its equipment. When a man is injured or ill, the captain of the ship frequently communicates by radio with the nearest vessel carrying a physician. The symptoms or description of the injury are given in detail and the doctor prescribes accordingly. In this way the pain of the sufferer is relieved and cures are many times effected. Another thrill experienced with radio occurred when I was chief

An Open Letter To Mr. Darden
Hon. W. A. Darden, City.
Dear Sir:
Since you have seen fit to twice deny any connection between your candidacy and the political firm of Brown, Bradsher and Co., I cannot but wonder if your secret meeting with them in Mr. Brown's store only a night or two before your statement was printed had anything to do with politics.
You must have known, since last July, that the Brown-Bradsher combination had picked you as their candidate. If you did not know it, Mr. Darden, you are about the only one in town so ignorant. They made no secret of it at that time, nor since then, and now they are arrayed solidly behind your candidacy. Your cause is their cause, and you cannot successfully deny it.
It is useless for you by your denials to muddy the waters in an effort to obscure the real issue. The voters of our city have known the issue since July when the crowd that is running you and opposing me gained control of the Board of Aldermen and then, and since then, have fitted their official acts to their personal grudges and private prejudices. I have publicly stated my opposition to their attitude and their various acts, and I await the verdict of the voters of the town on my stand at that time and since then.
You are running in opposition to me, Mr. Darden, and your aldermanic friends are working against me, because of the stand I took in opposing their indefensible actions. I challenge you to attack my record as Mayor on any other grounds, or to offer a single reason, other than the one I have stated, why I should not be honored with a second term as Mayor. I call upon you now, if you can, to cite any instance where I have been disloyal to the best interests of the town.
YOU YOURSELF, MR. DARDEN, CAME TO ME SOME THREE YEARS AGO AND REQUESTED ME NOT TO RUN AGAINST YOU FOR JUDGE ON THE SOLE GROUND THAT YOU WERE RUNNING FOR YOUR SECOND TERM, and you were unopposed for that reason alone.
You speak of HARMONY, Mr. Darden, as if it were a virtue. I do not understand that the oath of office of the Mayor requires me to harmonize with those who work against the good of the town and its citizens. Would you have harmonized with them when they massacred their obligation to the town in order to get even with their personal enemies? or when they sought to discharge a faithful woman employee whose crime was that she helped me unearth certain irregularities in the city's affairs? Would you harmonize with a Board that squanders the tax-payers' money to build a political machine to perpetuate themselves in office? If you would have harmonized with them in these and other things, you cannot deserve the office. I myself will not purchase harmony at such a price.
The real issue in this campaign, Mr. Darden, is so clear that a child may understand. The aldermanic clique that is supporting you is seeking to complete their domination of the city, and you are only a front screen to hide the issue. At least let's be honest in this contest, and then after the votes have been counted each of us will know just where we stand.
Very truly,
J. C. LANIER

CURTIS TAKES OVER OFFICE OF VICE PRES.

Kansas Has Good-Natured Clash With General Dawes During Ceremony.

Washington, March 4.—(AP)—Charles Curtis of Kansas, was sworn in as vice-President of the United States at a ceremony marked by a good natured clash of opinions between himself and his predecessor, Charles G. Dawes.

Roaring his defiance to the last General Dawes brought back memories of four years ago when he denounced the rules under which the Senate was working as antiquated. Curtis, in a good natured talk, reminded the Senate that it made its own methods of procedure.

"I take back nothing," Dawes shouted in a strident voice as he arose to administer the oath to the first man from west of the Mississippi River ever to achieve the vice-presidency and the first with Indian blood to reach such a high place.

Herbert Hoover, about to be sworn in as President, and Calvin Coolidge, about to retire, joined the other distinguished hosts in the Senate chamber in laughter and applause as first Dawes and then Curtis pronounced contrasting views on the rule allowing unlimited debate in the Senate.

"I take back nothing," he shouted as the chamber roared with applause and laughter, and Dawes himself smiled at his benediction.

"I could not be true to myself if I did not speak again on the collective errors of this great, liberated body."

Curtis' speech, brief and friendly, carried the spirit of camaraderie for his colleagues. In it he said that the Senate was naive of its rules which Mr. Dawes had fought so bitterly.

Curtis banged the gavel sharply as he took over the chair at the end of the benediction by the Senate chaplain.

His work over, Mr. Dawes walked down and took a place on the presidential row facing the chamber.

Coolidge to Write Magazine Stories

New York, March 4.—(AP)—Calvin Coolidge will turn to the pursuit of literature when he re-enters private life after today's inauguration of his successor as President of the United States at least to the extent of one series of magazine articles of "human interest" type.

As Mr. Coolidge's retirement from public life drew near, speculation steadily increased as to the sort of work he would do. No definite word came from the White House but the belief grew that Mr. Coolidge would engage in some sort of literary endeavors, and today that report was confirmed in New York.

When the question was put up to him directly whether or not Mr. Coolidge was going to write for the American Magazine, Merle Crowell, the publication's editor, acknowledged that a series of articles had been contracted for, although he would give no details.

It was learned, however, that the Coolidge articles will not deal with the fine points of diplomacy or politics, but rather with the "human" side of life in the White House.

What Mr. Coolidge will receive from his articles in the American Magazine could not be learned, but it is known that one other offer made to him for part of his literary output suggested by a yearly retainer of $25,000 and a guarantee of one dollar a word for all the "copy" he cared to turn in.

Confesses Forging Spurious Treaty

Brussels, March 4.—(AP)—Confession of forgery today cleared clouds of suspicion which endangered the foundation of European Post-War Relations.

Police, after arresting Albert Frank Heine, described as a great grandson of the famous poet, Heinrich Heine, said he had admitted authorship of the alleged secret Military Alliance Treaty between France and Belgium published in a Utrecht newspaper last week.

Frank, as the man is better known, said he had modeled the spurious document on a treaty concluded long before the world war by France and Russia.

The Brussels soir printed an interview today with Frank in which he treated the affair as a joke and boasted of having mystified the world.

Conviction will make him liable to 15 years imprisonment for plotting against the National Security.

Frank's wife, who was arrested with him on the arrival of an express train from Amsterdam yesterday was released.

The Spurious Treaty was published last week in Utrechtse Dagblad, which said it had established its authenticity beyond any doubt.

By its terms France and Belgium agreed to assist each other in the event of a war of either with Germany. The treaty was to be kept secret.

Mexican Fliers To See Inaugural At Capital City

Washington, March 4.—(AP)—Captain Joaquin Gonzales Pacheco and C. E. McMillin, Mexican fliers who landed at Bolling fields yesterday after a flight from Mexico City, planned today to see the inaugural ceremonies and the inaugural parade and afterward a meeting with the new President had been tentatively arranged. They brought greetings to Mr. Hoover from Dwight Morrow, American Ambassador to Mexico.

Captain Pacheco and McMillin planned a non-stop flight from Mexico City but in order to gain altitude they were forced to dump part of their gasoline and this caused a stop at Birmingham, Ala. then a fog and engine trouble caused a descent at Crewe, Va., where a propeller was damaged in landing.

Despite the delays hundreds of spectators had gathered at Bolling field yesterday to watch the Mexican aviators make a perfect three-point landing in their plane, "Cap Carranza" named in honor of Captain Emilio Carranza, Mexican ace who was killed last year in an attempt to overthrow the government from New York City to Mexico City.

Three Dark Horses In Semi-Finals At Atlanta Tonight

Atlanta, March 4.—(AP)—Three "dark horses" and one pretourney favorite will meet tonight in two semi-final games which will decide which two teams will play tomorrow night for the basketball championship of the Southern conference.

The University of Mississippi, last year's champions, given little chance to repeat on the pre-tournament season's standing, today was prime favorite to take its second title in 2 years. The Ole Miss squad will play North Carolina State in the first of the two semi-final games at 8:30 p. m. tonight.

The second game will go on at 9:30 p. m. which Duke University's Blue Devils, playing in their first conference tournament, engage the University of Georgia squad the only "favorite" left in the tourney.

Mississippi barely managed to nose out Maryland in the first round but then apparently returned to last year's winning form and defeated the powerful Washington and Lee team Saturday in the biggest upset of the week's play.

North Carolina State went into the semi-finals by virtue of a 31 to 28 win over Clemson, which in turn had eliminated the strong Georgia Tech quintee in the opening round. Duke added to the surprises of the tournament by winning from the University of North Carolina, another of the favored teams. Georgia eliminated the University of Kentucky squad on the closest match of the second round play by a score of 26 to 24.

Arizona Asks For U. S. Troops During Mexican Disorders

Douglas, Ariz., March 4.—(AP)—Mayor Millard Haymore of Douglas, today declared he would ask that a detachment of United States troops be sent here pending settlement of revolutionary conditions on the Mexican side of the International border.

"Let the people be not too sanguine about this being a peaceful change of government," said Haymore. "It might just as well be understood that the Mexican Federal Government will not be willing to surrender without resistance, and when we take that into consideration we know that the proper protection of Douglas means the presence of United States troops, and plenty of them."

Noted Woman Dies At Kansas City

Kansas City, March 4.—(AP)—Mrs. Katherine Wright Haskell, wife of Henry J. Haskell, editor of the Kansas City Star, and sister of Orville and Wilbur Wright, inventors of the airplane, died of pneumonia at her home here last night.

Mr. Haskell, his son, Henry C. Haskell, reporter for the Baltimore Sun, and her brothers, Orville and Lorin Wright, both of Dayton, O., were at the bedside.

Mrs. Haskell was the constant companion of her brothers when they were planning their first heavier-than-air machine in Dayton. The three were unmarried and lived at home. She never would consent, however, to have her name linked with the actual development and ultimate triumph of her brothers' plans.

Orville and Wilbur, before his death in 1912, however, gave credit to their sister for her part in their success. She had faith in them and gave encouragement when the world shook its head dubiously, they said.

After she resigned her position as a teacher in the Dayton public schools, she accompanied her brothers on a tour of Europe when they were honored by the kings of England, Spain, Italy and other rulers.

Mrs. Haskell was born August 19, 1874. Her father was the Rev. Milton Wright, who at the time of her birth, was editor of Religious Toleration, official publication of the United Brethren Church. He later became a bishop and served in that capacity for 24 years. Her mother was Susan Catherine Koerner Wright.

Mr. and Mrs. Haskell were married Nov. 20, 1926, by Dr. Henry Churchill King, president of Oberlin College, Dayton, where they had been students together. Mrs. Haskell was named a trustee of Oberlin in 1924 to serve six years.

Reparations Body Takes Stock Today

Paris, March 4.—(AP)—The experts on reparations planned at their plenary session today to take stock of what the sub-committees, formal and informal, had accomplished.

A formal report, understood to embody the findings of the informal bankers' committee, dealing with the possibilities of commercializing and marketing that part of the German Annulias, which will be transferred unconditionally, is to be heard.

Cotton--Stocks--Grain

COTTON MARKET N. Y. STOCK LIST

New York, March 4--(AP)--The cotton market opened 7 to 10 points higher on continued covering by trade or speculative shorts in the old crop positions. There also was a little buying on reports of rains in the south. The advance to 20.64 for May and 19.94 for the new October contract met considerable realizing and prices sagged off 2 or 3 points, but the volume of business tapered off on the set-back and the market was steady at the end of the first half hour.

Private cables from Liverpool said trade calling and continental buying had been supplied by realizing in Liverpool and reported a fair cloth demand for India and China.

GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, March 4--(AP)--President Hoover's announcement of plans for a special meeting of Congress to deal with farm relief measures led to a wave of buying today both in wheat and corn. Price upturn that ensued were insufficient however, to counterbalance fully the effect of earlier weakness resulting from bearish unofficial estimates regarding domestic reserve stocks of wheat and from an increase of the United States visible supply to 1.2 billion bushels. During the late dealings, values dropped again, the fact being pointed out meanwhile that grain marketing methods were not mentioned by the inaugural address, whereas hopes had been entertained on the part of many traders that the President would favor a removal of restrictions on individual exportations.

Wheat closed nervous 1-1/4 to 1-3/4 net lower; corn 7-8 cent down; oats varying from 1-1/8 decline to 5-8 advance, and provisions finishing at 25 cent set-back to a rise of 2.

STOCK MARKET

New York, March 4--(AP)--A thrilling movement in the stock market today was checked by a wave of buying which followed the inauguration of Hoover. The market opened on a high note, but turned sharply lower in the late forenoon and desisted again. Early dealers of 1 to 5 points were cut, but were wiped out, and a fairly good list of stocks sold 1 to 8 points, with about a dozen in new high ground.

Call money renewed unchanged at 8 per cent, but the supply of funds was fairly plentiful despite the calling of about $15,000,000 or $20,000,000 in loans. With the month-end demands out of the way, an easier tone is expected until the banks begin preparations for March 15 government financing and income tax payments. Firmness of prime commercial paper, now at the highest levels in several years, has removed fears of an increase in Federal Reserve rediscount rates.

Revolutionary outbreaks in Mexico were a source of deep concern in many speculative quarters. While relatively few American companies listed on the "big board" have properties which might be directly affected, fears were expressed that the news might be utilized by the "bear traders" as an excuse for a general assault on the market.

Mining shares changed hands in lesser volume at advancing prices, with some new leaders brought forward in the low priced group. Kennecott (new) moved up three points to a new high at 94 5-8. One block of 12,000 shares of Mother Lode changed hands at 5 3-4, followed by blocks of 7,800 at 5 7-8 and 22,000 at 6, duplicating the year's top. National Power & Light, Murray Corporation and Lumber moved into new high ground on gains of 3 to 5 1-2 points.

ness by the government in connection with its citizens; the avoidance of policies which would involve us in the controversies of foreign nations; the more effective reorganization of the departments of the Federal government; the expansion of public works; and the promotion of welfare activities affecting education and the home."

Asserting that the questions before the country were problems of progress to higher standards, Mr. Hoover said they demanded thought and they served to "quickener the conscience and enlist our sense of responsibility for their settlement."

"And that responsibility rests upon you, my countrymen, as much as upon those of us who have been selected for office," he added. "Ours is a land rich in resources; stimulating in its glorious beauty, filled with millions of happy homes; blessed with comfort and opportunity. In no nation are the institutions of progress more advanced. In no nation are the fruits of accomplishment more secure. In no nation is the government more worthy of respect. No country is more loved by its people. I have an abiding faith in their capacity, integrity and high purpose. I have no fears for the future of our country. It is bright with hope."

"In the presence of my countrymen, mindful of the solemnity of this occasion, knowing what the task means and the responsibility which it involves, I beg your tolerance, your aid, and your co-operation, your aid, and your co-operation. I ask the help of almighty God in this service to my country to which you have called me."

A moment later many listeners stamped their feet and cheered as he declared he intended to appoint a National Commission for a searching investigation of the Federal System of jurisprudence to include the method of enforcement of the eighteenth amendment and the "causes of the abuse under it."

PRESIDENT HOOVER TAKES OVER REINS NATION TODAY

only a small percentage seated in the temporary stands stretched from the Senate office building on the left and the House office quarters on the right, an area about three city blocks in length.

While Coolidge busied himself with last-minute orders in the President's room, and Senator Curtis waited in the vice-President's room nearby, final preparations for the outdoor ceremonies went on apace. Radio and picture company officials were busy testing their instruments. Arrangements had been made to send pictures by radio simultaneously with the voice of Mr. Hoover delivering his inaugural address.

A few airplanes cruising high over the capitol dome were almost held to a standstill by a stiff breeze which whipped the flags decking the inaugural stand. The famous marine band, garbed in coats of bright red and blue trousers, played a constant succession of patriotic airs.

The Senate chamber meantime filled rapidly with notables entitled to the coveted seats. Young Herbert Hoover was forced to sit in a chair in the aisle. Apparently the Hoover boys had given only their seats to a gray-haired man who leaned on a cane.

President-elect Hoover was escorted to the room of the Senate military committee where he waited just a few feet from the Senate chamber while President Coolidge, in the vice-President's room, was busy with the last duties of his administration. In the vice-President's room, Senator Curtis was pacing up and down, waiting for the time when he should be called into the Senate chamber to take the oath of office. In another room nearby the new members of the Hoover cabinet assembled, with only Henry L. Stimson absent. He is on his way here from the Philippines. The rain let up a bit by 12:30, but still was sufficient to keep umbrellas and coat collars up as the time drew near for Mr. Hoover to appear in the inaugural stand and take the oath.

After the Vice Presidential inauguration was over, Hoover, there was a wait while those who had seen it and those who were a part of it were conducted in groups through the various exits and seated in their proper reserved spaces under the dripping sky outside.

Only the inaugural stand itself, some twenty by fifty feet in expanse, had been covered. Under this protection the President and Vice President elect, the supreme court, and but a few others had special chairs set for them. On the way out the justices of the court passed their robing room where overcoats were put on over their flowing robes.

The President and President-elect stayed behind until all of the others were in their seats in the stands outside.

Chief Justice Taft had a place near the front of the platform, on the right. The old and new Presidents were on the left, a small metal speaker was in place at the center for Mr. Hoover's manuscript. Mr. Hoover appeared on the platform at 12:57 p. m., ready to take the oath.

Four bugle flourishes signaled approach. The rain was still falling, but lightly. Mr. Hoover took a seat in the center, with Mr. Coolidge on his left. Chief Justice Taft already was in his seat on the right.

After he had taken his seat, Mr. Coolidge rose to adjust his overcoat. There was some confusion in getting the dignitaries in their proper places delaying the start. When all had been quieted at last, the clerk of the Supreme court, C. Elmer Cropley, stepped forward holding on his outstretched palm the little bible on which Mr. Hoover had chosen to swear his obligation. It was opened at the chosen passage proverbs 29:18, saying "where there is no vision the people perish; but he that keeps the law happy is he."

ed at 10 a. m. from General Manzo in Sonora.

Meanwhile the two generals carried their revolt into effect, Aguirre taking over Vera Cruz, Orizaba, which is 80 miles up the railway to Mexico City, Perote, and other places. Manzo, dispatches said, occupied Nogales, Guaymas, Hermosillo and other cities of importance.

Nowhere was there resistance to the coup, dispatches indicate, the leaders of the revolt explaining their action simply to those who seemed unaware of it, and taking over public offices, without opposition. It is possible that the entire movement thus far has been accomplished without bloodshed at all.

The President said that he had received pledges of support from 23 Military Commanders in 22 states, but in view of Aguirre's message the value of these pledges was in doubt today.

The rebellion took most of Mexico City by surprise. First intimation that anything was wrong came in reports of interruption of train service on the Mexican railway line to Vera Cruz. At the railway station it was said service was discontinued until further notice. Trucks full of soldiers carrying full field equipment scurried about the city and finally reports trickled past official reserve of what had happened in Vera Cruz. A war council was held at Chapultepec Castle.

General Calles as leader of the Army is regarded as a tower of strength for the government. He has a war record only less than that of the assassinated President-elect, Alvaro Obregon. In addition he has a strong following with the Army and with the public at large.

riority of the constitution; the vigorous enforcement of the laws; the continuance of economy in public expenditures; the continued regulation of business to prevent domination in the community; the denial of ownership or operation of business by the government in connection with its citizens; the avoidance of policies which would involve us in the controversies of foreign nations; the more effective reorganization of the departments of the Federal government; the expansion of public works; and the promotion of welfare activities affecting education and the home."

Cough from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth. Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)
