

MEXICAN INSURGENTS STORM MAZATLAN

Definite Outcome Of Conflict In Doubt As
Calles Begins Defense

General Carrillo Reported To Be Defending Important "Key City" With 2,000 Men; Federal Reinforcements of 6,000 Men on Way to Relieve City; Battle Expected at Bachimbra Pass.

The storming of Mazatlan, important federal city on the West coast, was reported by the rebels today, but definite outcome of the battle was in doubt.

General Carrillo, federal commander, had about 2,000 troops strongly entrenched and the insurgents about 4,000 men.

Federal reinforcements of 6,000 men were enroute to Mazatlan, but it will be several days before they will be in a position to relieve the city.

Mazatlan is important as a key city on the Southern Pacific railway leading into the heart of Mexico and to the capital.

General Calles, meanwhile, is hard at work repairing the railway out of Tuxtepec in order to permit pursuit of the federal forces in Chihuahua. He will send a force of 12,000 men shortly.

A battle is expected at Bachimbra Pass south of Chihuahua City where the rebels are concentrating.

The government strategy at this stage is to drive the rebels into Sonora, centralize the revolt there and then gradually destroy it.

An expected attack on Naco on the American border has not materialized and government troops are still firmly entrenched there.

Six of the highest officers of the Mexican Navy have been arrested and will be court-martialed for their conduct of the fleet at the time of the outbreak of the revolt in Vera Cruz where they were anchored.

Mexico City, March 22.—(AP)—Six thousand federal troops under General Lozano Cardenas were started today on a thousand mile railway journey from Tuxtepec to relieve the rebel siege of Mazatlan.

Splitting of the force of General Calles was ordered by the generalissimo as a consequence of reports of a well organized rebel offensive down the Mexican West coast and the cornering of available loyal troops in that sector at Mazatlan.

At the same time General Calles announced that he had completed organization of an army of 3,000 men to proceed northward from Tuxtepec against General Jose Gonzalez Escobar, whose rebel forces were believed preparing to defend the mountain passes south of Chihuahua.

The situation of the West Coast caused some uneasiness at Chapultepec Castle. There was the possibility that a large rebel army in Sinaloa might drop down through the State of Nayarit, take Guadaluajara, and threaten the Mexican capital itself.

Such official announcements as were made, however, belittled the West Coast force and indicated a government view that the port of Mazatlan was almost impregnable to an ordinary force of men. Possibility even of a siege intercepting food and water supply was scouted.

A government spokesman explained the diversion of Calles troops to the State of Sinaloa as part of the federal generalissimo's strategy in what was termed the "third phase" of the war.

The first phase was said to have ended yesterday with execution of General Jesus M. Aguirre in Vera Cruz after his activities there ceased to be menace two weeks ago. The second phase was described as having ended with capture of Tuxtepec.

Heavy Windstorm Does Damage In Conetoe Section

According to a report reaching this city today, a windstorm of considerable intensity visited the Conetoe section of Edgecombe county last night. Full extent of the damage could not be determined. The report indicated that several houses in the path of the storm were blown down. Numbers of trees were also reported to have been uprooted.

Three Oklahoma
Justices Faced
By Impeachment

Oklahoma City, March 22.—(AP)—Impeachment articles alleging incompetency, willful neglect of duty, corruption in office and other offenses against three justices of the State Supreme Court were reported to the Oklahoma House of Representatives today by its investigating committee.

Eleven articles were reported against Chief Justice Charles W. Mason, ten against Justice Fletcher Riley and eleven against Justice J. W. Clark.

The report was filed by Rep. J. A. Patterson, chairman of the sub-committee which investigated the Supreme Court.

Gardner Explains
Tax Reductions
On Real Estate

Raleigh, March 22.—(AP)—How property taxes were reduced by the recent General Assembly was explained by Governor Gardner in a radio address on the work of the legislature, broadcast last night by station WPTF of Raleigh.

By means of the highway bill, increasing the gasoline tax one cent a gallon and setting up $2,500,000 a year for use on county roads, and by appropriating $6,500,000 to aid schools, the governor said, the 1929 session made possible an average reduction throughout the state of 25 cents on the $100 of property.

In the richer counties, the reduction may not exceed 10 cents, he said, but in the poorer counties where relief is needed worst, the reduction will run as high, in some instances, as 35 cents on the $100.

The state is entering a critical era, the chief executive said, because it is in process of transition from an eight year period of rapidly increasing public service and rising taxes to a period of descending public expenditures and descending tax levies.

Among the principal achievements of the legislature, he ranked the workmen's compensation act, the Australian ballot, and the property tax reduction high.

United States To Pay High Tribute
To Marshal Foch

Washington, March 22.—(AP)—Recognizing him as one of its own war leaders, for as generalissimo of the allied forces he commanded America's largest army—the United States will pay its highest tribute to Marshal Foch.

A National Salute of 21 guns will be fired at sun-up on the day of the great war leaders' funeral by American military forces throughout the world. At all military posts, the flag will stand at half-mast throughout the day, and one gun will be fired every half hour until sunset.

President Hoover whose associations with Marshal Foch from a vivid part of his memories of the war, will attend memorial services which will be conducted here under the auspices of the French Embassy if he finds it impossible to do so, and will be specially represented.

General John J. Pershing, who placed his soldiers at the disposal of the Marshal just eleven years ago, also will take part in France's tribute, acting as the representative of the war department and the millions of Americans who served under him during the war.

Not since the death of La Fayette in 1834 has the United States paid such tribute to a foreign soldier. Earlier, France had paid a similar tribute to Washington.

TORNADO STRIKES
NEAR WILSON

Wilson, March 22.—(AP)—A tornado struck a section of the country side between Wilson and Stanfordsburg early this afternoon demolishing farm buildings, unroofing dwellings and damaging power and communication lines. No one was injured according to reports.

Rockefeller Buys Village. Tarrytown, N. Y., March 22.—(AP)—For $700,000 or more John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has bought the village of East View, which dates from colonial times. He is to raise it and incorporate it in his estate. Forty six families live there.

GOV. GARDNER

Tells School Superintendents It Is An Economy Measure; Warren Scores Bill.

Raleigh, March 22.—(AP)—With conflicting views on the new school law expressed by Governor Gardner and officials of their own organization, 1,500 teachers and school officials today went into a busy program for the second day of the annual convention of the State Educational Association.

Governor Gardner endorsed the work of the legislature in passing the school bill, with its doubled equalization fund and its provisions intended to promote economy.

On the other hand, J. B. Warren, secretary of the association, declared that the parts of the law he could understand were unsatisfactory, and that there were many parts he could not understand, and which no one had been able to explain to him. He termed the last legislature hostile to "school people" and called upon the association to make plans to push a substitute bill in the next legislature.

Secretary Warren's views were endorsed by the convention as its own views by a rising vote after Warren had completed speaking at the first general session.

Speaking to a group meeting of superintendents, Governor Gardner declared the legislature had accomplished by the school bill a step in the direction of actual tax reduction, harkening to an insistent demand of the people, and at the same time had given the school officials more authority than they had ever had to practice economy.

"The General Assembly, in my opinion, believed that you, gentlemen, can effect enough economies in the administration of the public schools to decrease rather substantially the total amount we are paying for schools, without any real decrease in their educational efficiency," the governor said. "Gentlemen, I believe the legislature was right about that and I believe that most of you in sober thought will agree with me."

FARM RELIEF HEARINGS TO BEGIN SOON

Leaders of Congress Look for Foundation To Base Hearings Next Week.

Washington, March 22.—(AP)—Leaders in Congress are looking for a new foundation on which to base the farm relief hearings which will begin at the capitol next week.

The foundation they have been counting on to provide a working basis for the discussions has been very definitely removed with the disclosure that President Hoover does not intend to advance a detailed program.

They are still hopeful, however, that they will be able to start with a statement of the administration's views, and have invited the new secretary of agriculture, Arthur M. Hyde, to appear before the Senate agriculture committee next week.

Whether Mr. Hyde will accept the invitation, which was addressed to him Monday by Chairman McNary of the Senate committee, has not been made known. If he should decide not to appear before the committee, it is expected to begin hearings on the basis of the twice vetoed McNary-Haugen proposal, which the equalization fee provision which the Coolidge administration persistently opposed and the revised bill introduced at the last session by Senator McNary with that point of controversy eliminated.

The McNary bill had the endorsement of William M. Jardine, secretary of agriculture in the Coolidge cabinet, but has been given little thought as a basis for the new farm aid discussion since it became known in January that President Hoover intended to call a special session of Congress to consider the problem.

Two More Deaths Occur
In Alabama Flood Area;
Alabama River Rising

Montgomery, Ala., March 22.—(AP)—Reports of two additional deaths and of a new and indefinite rise in the Alabama River and tributaries were developments in the Alabama flood situation today.

The condition of the rivers, government observers said, is very unfavorable. Sheriff R. F. Hammer at Selma was advised of the deaths of two negroes at Cahaba, the first state capital, near Selma, in backwater of the flooded Cahaba River. The situation along the Cahaba is worse than first reports indicated, the sheriff said. The deaths brought the officially reported total in the state to 19.

P. H. Smyth, government meteorologist, reported a heavy rainfall over the entire watersheds of the Coosa, Tallapoosa and Alabama rivers today. The forecast is for continued rain. Flood gates on two major hydro-electric power dams on the Coosa River have been raised above Montgomery which will materially add to the volume of water in the already swollen rivers.

The Alabama River at Montgomery was reported at a depth of 43 feet today, a fall of 1.9 feet since yesterday, although it is now rising and will continue to rise indefinitely.

Flood stage is 35 feet. The rainfall in this vicinity last night totaled 1.3 inches.

Atlanta, Ga., March 22.—(AP)—All but a few points in the flooded areas of Alabama, Florida and Georgia had returned to normal today, although rains over various sections were expected to cause

FOCH BESIDE THE UNKNOWN

Plan Under Foot To Inter Great Commander At Side Of Unknown Soldier.

Paris, March 22.—(AP)—A project was on foot today to inter the remains of Marshal Foch in a tomb beside that of the most humble of his followers, France's unknown soldier, under the Arc de Triomphe, overlooking the city he twice saved from an invader.

The plan originated with a number of deputies wounded in the war after the general plan of the obsequies, providing for burial in a Crypt beside the tomb of Napoleon under the Dome des Invalides, had been announced.

Deputy Maurice Dormann, as spokesman for the group, submitted the idea to Premier Poincare. He urged that it would be a magnificent symbol of the unity of the chief and his nameless soldier who were joined on the same day in a decree which proclaimed that they had earned the gratitude of their country.

The premier found the idea a touching one and said he would submit it to Madame Foch. He did not know if it would meet her approval but said that in any case she could not fail to appreciate the spirit in which it was put forward.

There were various objections to the project, these including necessity of changing preparations for burial elsewhere which were well under way, and the fact that the Arc de Triomphe is most in a strictly religious sense consecrated ground and therefore not in keeping with the views of the Marshal's family as a place of interment.

Whatever is finally decided there seemed little doubt that Tuesday would see the greatest funeral tribute ever witnessed in Europe. Princes and Presidents, Rich and poor, generals and humble troops alike will participate in the final ceremonies.

The very bulk of the funeral procession led the government reluctantly to abandon an original idea of conveying the soldier's remains, after lying in state at the Arc de Triomphe, down the Champs Elysees to the Cathedral of Notre Dame. Instead the body of the Marshal will start on its journey to its immortal resting place from the very heart of Paris.

The general plan of the funeral subject, however, to change, was drawn up at a meeting of a committee of 40 persons, including representatives of the Foch family and the staffs of various departments involved in the organization of the obsequies, at the Ministry of War. It was submitted to M. Poincare and to Madame Foch, both approving, there having been no mention in the Marshal's will of the disposition of his remains.

These plans called for the body to lie in state under the Arc de Triomphe all day Sunday and Sunday night, thus to enable hundreds of thousands to pay their last tribute of respect, which they could not do on a working day. On Monday the body will be taken without ceremony to Notre Dame where it will lie a day and a night until after the solemn requiem mass at 9:00 a. m., Tuesday.

Then, if the projected plan of the Deputies does not bear fruit, it will be conveyed in a solemn procession along the ways of the shrine to the Place de la Concorde, then up the Champs Elysees. At the avenue Victor Emmanuel III there will be a left turn over the Alexander Bridge and up the Avenue Gallieni to the great eulogy of the Des Invalides, there burial will take place in a Crypt beside that of Napoleon and his marshal.

Detachments of troops and the elite of all nations with bands will march in the Cortege, 7 American soldiers being represented by the color guard of the Paris branch of the American Legion, an organization in which the dead marshal always took the liveliest and most affectionate interest.

The ceremony of interment, it was intended, shall be impressive in its simple grandeur. Just as the Marshal asked that there be no flowers heaped on his coffin, so there will be no flowers of rhetoric when he is laid in his tomb. Raymond Poincare alone will speak, bidding farewell to France's great son in the name of the country and of its people.

Dempsey Enters Agreement With N. Y. Promoter

New York, March 22.—(AP)—Jack Dempsey today entered into a two year agreement with Humbert J. Fugazy, Metropolitan rival of Madison Square Garden, for the promotion of boxing matches here and in other sections of the country. Announcement of the agreement was made by Dempsey after a series of conferences between the former heavyweight champion and Fugazy. Fugazy termed the new alliance "an international combination," indicating that bouts also might be staged abroad.

Scores Die When
Flames Destroy
Russian Theatre

Moscow, March 22.—(AP)—One hundred fourteen men, women and children were dead today after a blaze in a firetrap movie theatre in the village of Igolchino, Vladimir province, 400 kilometers northeast of Moscow. Eleven were seriously injured and six slightly hurt.

The theatre was of wooden construction and had but one exit. The film caught fire, and the flames spread rapidly through the frail structure, those inside jamming themselves in the single doorway. Some attributed the blaze to a drunken projection operator. When the fire engines arrived the building was already nearly consumed.

Because so many of the victims were parents the Department of Education has taken steps to care for their orphans. The State Department appropriated 15,000 rubles for the bereaved families and will adopt further relief. An official commission has already begun a vigorous investigation.

Hanes Declines
Appointment To Prison Board

Raleigh, March 22.—(AP)—J. G. Hanes of Winston-Salem, has notified Governor Gardner that he is unable to accept his recent appointment to the board of directors of the State Prison. Mr. Hanes is chairman of the Forsythe County Board of Commissioners, and he could not become a member of the prison board without vacating his present post.

The governor said today he regretted deeply the fact that Mr. Hanes could not serve on the board. He announced that the place had been offered to A. E. Smith, of Mt. Airy, who served on the prison board during the Bicket administration. Mr. Smith is in Florida at present, and no reply has been received from him in regard to the offer.

THREE MISSING
IN PEORIA FIRE

Two Believed to Have Been Killed In $1,000,000 Fire Early Today.

Peoria, Ill., March 22.—(AP)—Fire destroyed the Peoria market, a four story brick building in the heart of the business district, early today. Three persons were missing and at least two of them were believed to have been killed when the building collapsed. Damage was estimated at $1,000,000.

Firemen Tom O'Connor and Richard Tuel were missing and were believed to have been caught when the roof and floors collapsed. The night watchman, John Strayer, could not be found, and it was feared he had been burned to death.

The fire broke out at 3 a. m., and quickly spread to the Kuhl Department Store, which adjoins the market. The department store was saved after several fire companies in the city had been called out, but the damage to stock and furnishings was extensive.

The market was occupied by a number of retail stores and shops. The origin of the fire was not determined.

Spurred By Rescue Alive of Entombed Miner Rescue Crews Go Deeper Into Wrecked Kinloch Mine in Effort To Reach 37 Men Still Unaccounted For; Many Bodies Recovered Today.

Parnassus, Pa., March 22.—(AP)—The death toll in the Kinloch mine disaster mounted to 47 late this afternoon. Thirty bodies had been brought to the surface, and rescuers reported they had found 15 others far back in the explosion-wrecked workings. One body was known to be under eight feet of water at the bottom of the main slope. Seventeen miners were unaccounted for. The mine was free of gas and rescuers were making rapid progress in exploring the far recesses of the underground tunnels.

Parnassus, Pa., March 22.—(AP)—Spurred on by the rescue alive of a miner who had been entombed more than 24 hours, rescue crews today were pushing their way far into the explosion-wrecked Kinloch mine in an effort to reach 37 men still unaccounted for. The list of known dead stood at 36, five bodies having been recovered early today.

The fact that some of the entombed miners had erected canvas brattices in the workings in an effort to keep out the deadly gas, led rescuers to hope that some of the men were alive. While pushing through the thirteenth butt today, more than one and one-half miles from the main slope, a rescue crew came upon Lawrence Allhouse, 29, who had been listed among the missing. Allhouse was wandering about the dark underground tunnels when found. His body, the man who worked with him in the butt, lay nearby.

Allhouse married, and the father of two children, was placed on a stretcher and carried up the slope. As he came into the daylight he opened his eyes wide and gazed about. He was rushed to the nearby emergency hospital, where doctors said his condition was fair.

Engineers of the United States Bureau of Mines, as well as Dr. Thomas, deputy secretary of the State Department of Mines, said there was a possibility that at least four of the ten men listed as missing were in a section from which 15 miners escaped yesterday afternoon and it was thought that fresh air was reaching them. It was also suggested that the men might have erected brattices to protect themselves.

The entire distance of 7,000 feet from the mine mouth had been bratticed during the night and in fighting their way through piles of debris to reach the spot where it is now hoped the ten missing men will be found, rescuers came upon the bodies of the score of workers which were later brought to the surface. Some of the bodies were badly burned; others bore no marks. Apparently the men had been suffocated.

Lights were not extinguished in Kinloch homes last night as members of the miners' families and friends kept vigil a short distance from the pit mouth even after the fans were put in operation and the mine had ceased belching poisonous fumes.

Twelve miners lost their lives in an explosion in the same mine 13 months ago yesterday.

"My Thirty Years at Sea"

by CAPTAIN GEORGE FRIED

Ill-luck appears to have dogged the vessel Florida from the start of her ill-fated trip. Fried lauds the stamina and morale of the members of the rescued crew and tells of some of the hardships they endured before they were safe aboard the America.

By CAPT. GEORGE FRIED
(Copyright 1929, Associated Press)

CHAPTER XXII

The complete story of the rescue of the Florida cannot be concluded without paying tribute to the men who were saved from their foundering freighter. All of us realized what these Italians had suffered and everyone spoke highly of their courage, endurance and seamanship after the job was done. It was then that we got their story.

It seems that the Florida had been caught in the gale off the Atlantic coast while on her way from the Gulf of Mexico to Italy. She had rather an unfortunate start for, while in the gulf, she was badly buffeted and a member of her crew carried away. She was in the Atlantic storm for several days when rudder trouble gave Captain Favaloro considerable difficulty.

Two days before he sent out his call for help the captain endeavored to make repairs himself and, while he was engaged in this perilous job, the rudder went out of commission altogether. He stuck to the post while the seas carried away part of the bridge, smashing lifeboats and causing the cargo of lumber to shift. Suddenly the captain was thrown against the rail by a huge comber and two of his fingers were badly smashed, forcing him to quit. He returned to what was left of the bridge and discussed the situation with his officers. The chief engineer was suffering from two broken ribs as a result of being thrown about the engine room, and four other men of the crew were injured. The Florida had no doctor aboard and naturally these men were suffering agony.

Instead of abating the storm became worse. The men were in a losing fight but true to the traditions of the sea they were not ready to give up until all hope was gone. When the SOS was finally broadcast the crew was in bad shape and the ship was listing sharply. The fresh water supply was very low and that portion of the food which was still edible was being doled out in small rations. The men had been soaked to the skin for several days, and being unable to sleep under those trying conditions they were near the point of exhaustion.

While these men were despairing of hope the wireless operator stuck to his post, communicating with various ships and finally the America alone. This man, Di Ganst, deserves much of the credit for his shipmates being saved. For 36 hours—there was no other wireless operator aboard the Florida—he never left the key. If I asked a question the response was almost immediate. In addition he was sending dots and dashes which we picked up on the radio compass to guide the America toward him. It was not until we were alongside that he left his room, his radio silenced by the elements.

When the America's lifeboat was near the Florida and the rope stretched between the two to effect the rescue, many of the men had to call upon their reserve energy so that in one last desperate attempt they could work hand over hand, their way to the life boat. The injured as well as the sick—there were four who had contracted pneumonia from exposure—had to save themselves without any assistance. It was impossible for more than one man to travel along that rope at one time. It must have been very depressing to those still left aboard the freighter when the rope snapped. The gale was increasing in force and the seas getting higher. Fortunately, our men were in the best of physical condition. They maneuvered and got close enough again to throw a second rope to them and the remaining 15 Italians were able to abandon ship.

Captain Favaloro, the last to leave, told me afterward that he had two pets aboard, a canary and a dog. The dog he held under the arm with the crippled fingers until he was ready to jump into the sea. He had planned to grasp the rope with his other hand. He regretted leaving the canary, yet saving it was impossible. The dog freed himself just as the skipper was getting set to leap. For a moment he watched it struggle in the water and then was carried away. His first impulse, he said, was to follow his pet in an effort to save it. He realized, however, that this was not only dangerous but inadvisable, for the lifeboat crew was ready to start back for the America as soon as he was aboard and he did not want to jeopardize the lives of the men. So he left his pets, the greatest sacrifice a sailor can make.

As soon as the men got aboard they were given first aid, stimulants, food and dry clothing. Not one complained. They came aboard as they left their ship—in an orderly manner without any undue haste or excitement. There was no scramble at any time.

Captain Favaloro seemed depressed for a long while. He felt as any sailor feels who has lost everything. He had been to sea 13 years and was only 31 years old, but the Florida was his home and without it he was lost. He subsequently told me he was going back to sea. It had taken everything he had in the world and he almost lost his life fighting it, but as soon as he had straightened out his affairs he would sign on again.

A variety of early spring flowers are effectively used in the drawing room where seven tables were placed for bridge. At the conclusion of a number of interesting progressions, Miss Agnes Pulllove was awarded prize for high score and Miss Grace Hunter a potted plant for low score. The honor guests, Misses Montgomery and Lane, were remembered with silver bud vases.

A tempting ice course was served.

E. L. CLASS SEWS FOR FLOOD SUFFERERS. On Thursday evening the members of the E. L. class of the Episcopal Baptist Church met at the home of Mrs. C. W. Willard on Tenth street, to sew for the unfortunate refugees of the flooded region of Alabama. About fifteen ladies were present with four sewing machines and needles. Practical garments were finished and others will be added to the supply by ladies who were not present on this occasion.

Miss Clark Entertains. Miss Sibyl Clark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Clark, on Seventh street, entertained a number of her friends with a St. Patrick's party at her fourteenth birthday Tuesday afternoon, from four to six.

The home was artistically decorated with white spirea, jonquils and ferns. Bridge was played at tables. The score cards were amusements.

Miss Lucetta Rogers won high score, a bottle of green bath lotion. Miss Gretchen Willard won a score, a St. Patrick's hat full of candy.

Miss Ruth Willard won high score, a green novelty bottle. Miss Nannie Rowlette won low score, a St. Patrick's hat.

Shamrock sandwiches and Coca-Cola were served during the games. After the games green and white rock cream and white wafers with peach cherries were served. Misses Edna Jones and Blanche Clark served refreshments and furnished music.

Those present were Misses Matilda Gaylord, Laura Smith, Ruth Horne, Dorothy and Ethel Willard, Katherine Jones, Maria Garrett, Margaret Bostic, Miss McGowan, Lucetta Rogers, Margaret Perkins, Annie Lee Hooker, Edna Clark, Gretchen Willard, Nannie Rowlette, Frances Willard, Edna Tarnage, Victoria Jackson, Mary Emma Clark, Minnie Brooks, Edna Edwards, Myrtle Holliday, Edna and Edith Clark. —Reported.

Entertains At Woman's Club. Mrs. J. H. B. Moore was hostess Thursday at a barbecue luncheon served at the Woman's club in honor of Mrs. Thomas O'Berry, state president of the North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs, and Mrs. J. M. Hobgood, chairman of the State Public Welfare Department.

The club house, which was decorated by a special committee, was a veritable bower of spring blossoms where flowers and shrubs from the woods intermingled and vied in beauty with garden blooms.

Mrs. Moore received her guests in her own gracious manner and introduced them to the guests of honor. The two course luncheon was served in the banquet hall from a beautifully appointed table which was centered with a silver basket filled with flowers carrying out the club colors of red and white on each side of which were silver pheasants and candlesticks with red tassels. Mrs. Moore was assisted in serving by Mesdames Harvey, Williams, Ragdale, Key Brown and Miss Jessie Moyer. At the conclusion of the delicious two-course luncheon Mrs. O'Berry spoke to those present on the three ways in which North Carolina women's clubs can become members of the general Federation of Women's Clubs.

Ludlow This Evening. This is the evening, at eighty-thirty o'clock, for the concert by Godfrey Ludlow, at East Carolina Teachers College, an event long looked forward to by the music lovers of this section, especially by the radio owners. This great artist who has been called the "Idol of the Air" is as fine in concert playing as in broadcasting. He is one of the few musicians who has made great music popular without lowering his standards or cheapening his art. His audiences get his message when he plays.

He will be assisted in his concert by his accompanist, Madame Gainsburg, a pianiste of note.

At the assembly hour this morning Miss Correll, violin teacher, told the college students about the artists and gave an explanation of the program, telling the girls about the famous "Strad" and showing them the parts of the violin that were left as they were made, two hundred and twenty-six years ago, and those that were changed to meet present day requirements.

There are three familiar numbers on the program, placed there by request. Other selections requested were left for encores. It is to be hoped that these will be called for this evening, and not lost because people are in too big a hurry to leave.

Tickets will be sold at the door. Richardson Halliburton will be here three weeks from this evening, on April 12th, and this will be the fourth and last of the attractions on the season ticket.

Woman's Club Meets. A most enjoyable called meeting of the Woman's Club was held Thursday afternoon at the club building. After singing the club song and repeating the collect in unison. Mrs. Tarnage of Farmville, spoke in behalf of the officials of the Eastern Carolina Exposition, urging the co-operation of Greenville and stating that valuable prizes were offered for the best floats and also in the baby contest, the winner of the latter being determined by the greatest number of ballots received rather than for physical perfection.

It was also announced that Miss Shaffer, a demonstrator of the Denison craft paper products, will conduct classes in the club building beginning on April 2 and running for three days. These classes are open to all Pitt county women free of charge. Each woman will pay for the materials used and the finished articles will be long to her.

The speaker for the afternoon was Mrs. Thomas O'Berry, state president of the North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs. She was introduced by Mrs. Moore. Mrs. O'Berry began her talk by congratulating the Greenville club upon the acquisition of their club home, stating that it is one of the nicest in the state and well adapted to the needs of the community.

She also spoke briefly of the great benefit that will be obtained by the entire state through the results of the Pitt County Health Survey recently completed.

Her principal thought for the afternoon was the explanation of why we need the right kind of women, as legislators, basing her assertions on some of the bills that were passed in the last legislature, mainly through the combined efforts of club women. Among these bills being the Australian ballot and the marriage banns bills. Among those lost but for which women all over the state will continue to work, are the Efland school bill for colored girls and the amendment to the present child labor bill. Bills which have been passed formerly and for which women worked were those that resulted in the establishment of Samarcand for girls and the farm colony for women.

Mrs. O'Berry also spoke of the untold amount of good which has been done through the Sallie Southall Cotten loan fund.

At the conclusion of her talk delicious punch and wafers were served from a beautifully decorated table by Mesdames Hadley, Guiley, and S. T. White.

During the social hour Mrs. Tom Farrar of Tarboro, accompanied by Mrs. Ray Tyson, sang two delightful numbers.

Among the out-of-town visitors were Mrs. J. M. Hobgood, state chairman of the Public Welfare Department, and Mrs. Tarnage of Farmville. —Reported.

ATWATER, KENT
ELECTRO-DYNAMIC
RADIO

If you could listen in a studio you'd hear—this

If you could go to the broadcasting studio and listen to a fine program, you would hear exactly what you hear at home through the new Atwater Kent Electro-Dynamic. That's how natural its performance is. From the rumbling of the tuba to the highest bird-note of the violin—it's real.

Of course, such rich purity of tone isn't due to the Electro-Dynamic principle alone. It's the way it's handled in this set, and the extreme care with which the set is made. It's tested or inspected 513 times! Some operations have to be accurate to a thousandth of an inch. And the men who make it know how—they've already built 2,000,000 dependable receivers. Whether you choose your Atwater Kent in the table model, in the compact all-in-one Model 53 or in a stately wooden cabinet, you'll hear the programs as they really sound.

Model 46, the new all-electric receiver. Full-vision Dial. Uses 7 A C tubes and 1 rectifying tube, with double power tube stage. Without tubes, $83.

Model F-2 (Electro-Dynamic) speaker. True to the whole range of music and human voice. $34.

Model 155 Chest Type open

Red Lion Cabinets and Atwater Kent Radios

This latest Red Lion chest type cabinet, Model 155, is a stately model of great dignity and charm. It is equipped with five-ply, extra-heavy baffle-board especially fitted for use with the Atwater Kent Electro-Dynamic speaker. The speaker-outlet is at the ear-height of seated listeners and the dial-board properly placed for convenient operation.

This combination of a fine piece of furniture and a fine radio represents an unusual value.

"My Thirty Years at Sea"

by CAPTAIN GEORGE FRIED

Ill-luck appears to have dogged the vessel Florida from the start of her ill-fated trip. Fried lauds the stamina and morale of the members of the rescued crew and tells of some of the hardships they endured before they were safe aboard the America.

By CAPT. GEORGE FRIED
(Copyright 1928, Associated Press)

CHAPTER XXII

The complete story of the rescue of the Florida cannot be concluded without paying tribute to the men who were saved from their foundering freighter. All of us realized what these Italians had suffered and everyone spoke highly of their courage, endurance and seamanship after the job was done. It was then that we got their story.

It seems that the Florida had been caught in the gale off the Atlantic coast while on her way from the Gulf of Mexico to Italy. She had rather an unfortunate start for, while in the gulf, she was badly buffeted and a member of her crew carried away. She was in the Atlantic storm for several days when rudder trouble gave Captain Favaloro considerable difficulty.

Two days before he sent out his call for help the captain endeavored to make repairs himself and, while he was engaged in this perilous job, the rudder went out of commission altogether. He stuck to the post while the seas carried away part of the bridge, smashing lifeboats and causing the cargo of lumber to shift. Suddenly the captain was thrown against the rail by a huge comber and two of his fingers were badly smashed, forcing him to quit. He returned to what was left of the bridge and discussed the situation with his officers. The chief engineer was suffering from two broken ribs as a result of being thrown about the engine room, and four other men of the crew were injured. The Florida had no doctor aboard and naturally these men were suffering agony.

Instead of abating the storm became worse. The men were in a losing fight but true to the traditions of the sea they were not ready to give up until all hope was gone. When the SOS was finally broadcast the crew was in bad shape and the ship was listing sharply. The fresh water supply was very low and the portion of the food which was still edible was being doled out in small rations. The men had been soaked to the skin for several days, and being unable to sleep under those trying conditions they were near the point of exhaustion.

While these men were despairing of hope the wireless operator stuck to his post, communicating with various ships, and finally the America alone. This man, Di Ganst, deserves much of the credit for his shipmates being saved. For 36 hours—there was no other wireless operator aboard the Florida—he never left the key. If I asked a question the response was almost immediate. In addition he was sending dots and dashes which we picked up on the radio compass to guide the America toward him. It was not until we were alongside that he left his room, his radio silenced by the elements.

When the America's lifeboat was near the Florida and the rope stretched between the two to effect the rescue, many of the men had to call upon their reserve energy so that in one last desperate attempt they could work hand over hand, their way to the life boat. The injured as well as the sick—there were four who had contracted pneumonia from exposure—had to save themselves without any assistance. It was impossible for more than one man to travel along that rope at one time. It must have been very depressing to those still left aboard the freighter when the rope snapped. The gale was increasing in force and the seas getting higher. Fortunately, our men were in the best of physical condition. They maneuvered and got close enough again to throw a second rope to them and the remaining 15 Italians were able to abandon ship.

Captain Favaloro, the last to leave, told me afterward that he had two pets aboard, a canary and a dog. The dog he held under the arm with the crippled fingers until he was ready to jump into the sea. He had planned to grasp the rope with his other hand. He regretted leaving the canary, yet saving it was impossible. The dog freed himself just as the skipper was getting set to leap. For a moment he watched it struggle in the water and then was carried away. His first impulse, he said, was to follow his pet in an effort to save it. He realized, however, that this was not only dangerous but inadvisable, for the lifeboat crew was ready to start back for the America as soon as he was aboard and he did not want to jeopardize the lives of the men. So he left his pets, the greatest sacrifice a sailor can make.

As soon as the men got aboard they were given first aid, stimulants, food and dry clothing. Not one complained. They came aboard as they left their ship—in an orderly manner without any undue haste or excitement. There was no scramble at any time.

Captain Favaloro seemed depressed for a long while. He felt as any sailor feels who he has lost everything. He had been to sea 13 years and was only 31 years old, but the Florida was his home and without it he was lost. He subsequently told me he was going back to sea. It had taken everything he had in the world and he almost lost his life fighting it, but as soon as he had straightened out his affairs he would sign on again.

Atwater Kent ELECTRO-DYNAMIC RADIO

If you could listen in a studio you'd hear—this

MODEL 46, the new all-electric receiver. Full-vision Dial. Uses 7 A. C. tubes and 1 rectifying tube, with double power tube stage. Without tubes, $43.
MODEL 47 (Electro-Dynamic) speaker. True to the whole range of music and human voice. $34.

If you could go to the broadcasting studio and listen to a fine program, you would hear exactly what you hear at home through the new Atwater Kent Electro-Dynamic. That's how natural its performance is. From the rumbling of the tube to the highest bird-note of the violin—it's real.
Of course, such rich purity of tone isn't due to the Electro-Dynamic principle alone. It's the way it's handled in this set, and the extreme care with which the set is made. It's tested or inspected 513 times! Some operations have to be accurate to a thousandth of an inch. And the men who make it know how—they've already built 2,000,000 dependable receivers. Whether you choose your Atwater Kent in the table model, in the compact all-in-one Model 53 or in a stately wooden cabinet, you'll hear the programs as they really sound.

Red Lion Cabinets and Atwater Kent Radios

This latest Red Lion chest type cabinet, Model 155, is a stately model of great dignity and charm. It is equipped with five-ply, extra-heavy baffle-board especially fitted for use with the Atwater Kent Electro-Dynamic speaker. The speaker-outlet is at the ear-height of seated listeners and the dial-board properly placed for convenient operation.
This combination of a fine piece of furniture and a fine radio represents an unusual value.

The baseball training season gets under way here next Monday. An opportunity to watch the tryouts will at least furnish a little diversion for the drug store bench warmers.

More than $19,000 worth of poultry has been shipped by Pitt County farmers since the first of January, according to announcement made today by County Agent Arnold. In addition to this amount received from poultry a considerable sum has been received from the sale of hogs, and plans are now under way for shipment of several other carloads. Surely this additional money comes in mighty handy for farmers at this time of the year and if more of our farmers would give some of their spare time to the raising of hogs and chickens for market times would not be so hard during the season that the money crops—tobacco and cotton—were being produced. A hog and hen program on every farm in the county, we believe, would mean much to our farmers.

A CHECK TO CRIME

The rapid increase of crime in this country is an ever growing menace to society for which some remedy should be discovered. If unchecked, the ill effects of this menace will lead to an end which is not pleasant to contemplate. Even now the dockets of our courts are overburdened. Prisons and correctional institutions are taxed to the limits of their capacity. Statistics compiled in regard to the nation's homicide record by Frederick L. Hoffman, consulting statistician for the Prudential Insurance Co., show that of the 37,000,000 residents of 136 American cities the homicide death rate was 10.2 per cent per 100,000. In three cities the rate ran over 50 per 100,000. The estimated murder roll of the nation was about 12,000. This is but one phase of the criminal field. It gives an idea how deplorably high the percentage would be if all crimes were considered in compiling the statistics.

Another alarming aspect of the situation is that young men and women commit such a large portion of these crimes. Prof. George Washington Kirchwey, dean of the Columbian University School of Law and one of the foremost criminologists in the United States, in telling of his experience as a warden of Sing Sing Penitentiary, stated that he found that 50 per cent of the men confined there during his year of study were under 25 years of age. Almost daily there are to be seen in newspapers accounts of robberies and murders committed by young people yet in their teens.

In an attempt to curb the crime waves drastic laws have been passed. Heavy sentences have been imposed by the courts, and yet, these methods are seemingly of little avail. The number of murders, robberies, and other crimes of less serious nature continue to increase. Disrespect for law and order seems to grow more prevalent. Is there something fundamentally wrong with the system of society in which such conditions exist?

In his statements Professor Kirchwey said that 80 per cent of those criminals studied had never been trained to earn a living consistently. Perhaps this furnishes a key to the problem. Apparently, there is something lacking in the training received by the youth of this country. If they receive the proper training in the public schools, if they are furnished with an education that will aid them in earning an honest living, if their characters are properly developed will they turn towards a career of crime in later life? If not, then the responsibility of checking crime rests upon the public school system.

It is in the public schools that the future citizens of this country spend the majority of their time during the years when they are most susceptible to outside influence and environment. It is there that they should be taught those principles, imbued with those ideals of citizenship which will guide their acts later in public life, and enable them to contribute to public welfare rather than form a menace to its existence.

The responsibility upon the public schools cannot be properly discharged unless these schools receive the whole-hearted support of every citizen. If they are to perform their mission, they must be given the important position in national affairs to which they are properly due.—"H." in Scottish Rite News.

ABOUT TOWN

"The residence of W. H. Dail, Jr., located on Fifth Street, is nearing completion," a citizen remarked today.

"It is an architectural gem, looming up in grace, beauty and attractiveness."

"This section of Greenville is specially noted for handsome and imposing structures. It is learned that additional ones are to be erected in the near future."

"The persons that sins against humanity always pays for this crime," declared a local law enforcement officer today.

"This was the case of Togo Pulley although it is doubtful if he paid as fully as he should for the killing of Eugene Jones, night policeman of the town of Bethel."

"The crime was one of the most brutal in the annals of the county. Pulley knew that any attempt to escape would be prevented by the officer even at the sacrifice of his life. The life was the price of the experiment. The criminal still lives, but the remorse which will most surely come to him during his long stay behind the grim walls of the penitentiary will bring more actual punishment than the death chair."

"When one sins he must pay the price. Pulley will pay the penalty."

"Educators in annual session at Raleigh will attempt to enlighten themselves upon every phase of the school measure recently passed by the legislature," declared a man today who has long been interested in the advancement of education in North Carolina.

"While the measure tends to cripple the teaching forces of the various schools, the educators no doubt will receive the dilemma in the best of spirit and attempt to work out the problems in the best interest of the public.

"State Superintendent A. T. Allen has said that the teachers would do their best to carry out the law, but that neither he or Attorney General Brummitt was able to say what effect the act would have on the future of education."

"The situation is one to be worked out in fear and trembling," but it is a foregone conclusion that North Carolina educators will not permit any single district to suffer any more than they can help. That the public will back them up in their effect to keep education up to normal, cannot be doubted, in the slightest sense of the word."

"I went out to the County Home yesterday to see how they liked the radio equipment recently installed through public subscription in this city," said a business man today, "and I found that every single inmate was more than interested in the curious device that picks sounds out of the air and then transmits them in intelligible order."

"Some of the people had never heard a radio before. They were simply astounded at the wonderful sounds daffed to them over the air and the varied programs found sympathetic listeners at all times."

"The people of Greenville should witness the genuine joy which these poor people get from the gift. They apparently are living in another world, forgetful of the fact that they are inmates of the proverbial poorhouse over the hills, the resort to which countless thousands of unfortunates find their way when all other sources fail."

"The gift was small but the genuine enjoyment it will carry to the hearts of the poor is priceless."

"It was right that the French government should bestow highest honors of the nation upon Marshal Poch, former commander of allied forces during the world war, who died Wednesday," declared a former soldier this morning.

"The marshal was not only one of the outstanding figures of France but of the whole world. As leader of the nations engaged in the world war, he rose to military heights seldom reached by men of this day. He was courageous and fearless in death as in life, and his going will be met with equal bravery by a world at large, although the peoples are bowed in grief over the magnitude of their loss."

"Great centuries have produced great warriors among all nations, but the name of Poch is as imperishable as the greatest of these immortals."

KELVINATOR
OPENS HERE

Greenville Made Distributing Center For Eastern N. C. And Part of S. C.

Greenville has been made the distributing center of another nationally known product, the Kelvinator, electric refrigeration, through the Carolina Kelvinator Company of this city, representatives of the Kelvinator Corporation of Detroit, Mich.

The company, chartered a short time ago, has as its officers and directors, E. G. Flanagan, president; W. E. Hooker, vice-president; James T. Little, secretary-treasurer; E. Graham Flanagan and John Flanagan.

The new concern are distributors for Kelvinator and Kelvinator products for the entire eastern counties of North Carolina, and many counties in South Carolina. Already more than a score of associate dealers have become connected with the new firm and numbers of others will be added just as fast as possible.

The offices and showrooms of the concern are located in the new building recently completed on the corner of Third and Colach streets. The home of the company is modern in every respect and the showroom presents an attractive display of Kelvinators to meet the needs and tastes of any family.

Throughout the entire week a service school with three factory experts as instructors, has been in progress here. Yesterday and today were taken up with the sales school. These classes of instruction are carried on with the view of putting the dealers in possession of complete knowledge of their product and furnishing efficient service men in order that the purchasers interest might be taken care of at all times.

Tonight at the Woman's club, the representatives from the various towns in attendance at the school will be given a banquet and plans dealing with Kelvinator distribution will be discussed.

COUNTY COUNCIL OF HOME
DEMONSTRATION CLUB MEETS

The Pitt County Council of the Home Demonstration Club held its regular quarterly meeting on Wednesday afternoon, March 20, at 2:30 o'clock in the new home of the Greenville Woman's Club.

The meeting was presided over by Miss Nice, our efficient home demonstrator, this because the president, Mrs. J. H. Randolph, was unavoidably kept away until such a late hour. "America the Beautiful" was sung, with Miss Alma Stokes of the Pierce Club, at the piano, this being followed by the club prayer. At the request of Miss Nice each member rose and introduced herself giving her name, the club she represented, and the office held. The minutes of last meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. H. D. Gurganus of Stokes.

The reports of committees were called for and reports given. The secretary, or some official of each club, gave a report of the number of meetings held, number members present, and work accomplished for the first quarter of the year. These reports were worth while, as well as interesting; they proved that the clubs are wide-awake and really doing things. The vice-president then gave a report of members enrolled, and discussed plans for increasing this number.

Miss Nice led a discussion on the part of the demonstration clubs in the next Pitt County Fair. She presented plans and made suggestions. A strong appeal was made that every club should begin now in preparing to make a showing that the county will be proud to claim.

At this time Mrs. J. H. B. Moore, president of the Greenville Woman's Club, came in and expressed great pleasure in having the council meet in the club house. She announced that Mrs. Thomas O'Berry, president of the N. C. Federation of Women's Clubs, and three of the state chairmen would be guests of the club on Thursday, and that Mrs. O'Berry would address them at 3:30 p. m. She extended a very cordial invitation to all the members of the demonstration clubs to be present and hear this splendid address. She also stated that on April 2, 3, 4, Miss Shaffer, the factory demonstrator for Dennison's crepe paper, will give a helpful demonstration in the club building. She said this course would be free and she hoped the women would take advantage of the opportunity.

A motion was made and carried that the council entertain the Pitt County Board of Commissioners and the County Board of Education at a dinner. The date and plans for this will be decided later by a committee composed of the following members: Miss Alma Stokes of Pierce; Mrs. Fleming of Stokes, and Mrs. Mack Smith of Arthur.

Quite a lengthy discussion was given on the county short course which will be given in June; also on the state short course in July. Miss Nice reminded us of our club motto: "Make half the income go the work of the whole," telling us a number of ways in which we can help to make this possible.

At the close of the business session, Miss Nice, assisted by Mrs. D. M. Clark, served delightful refreshments and a pleasant social period was enjoyed.

This was altogether a splendid meeting with every club—eight of them—represented, Stokes having a hundred per cent of her council members present.

CANTATA IS RENDERED AT CHURCH HERE

Man of Nazareth Given by Tarboro Singers at Methodist Church Last Night.

At the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church last night, the Vested Choir of Calvary Church Tarboro presented the Lenten Cantata "The Man of Nazareth" to a large, reverent and thrilled congregation.

Promptly at 8:15 the vested choir marched in procession down the aisle of the church. The processional hymn was "Ride on! Ride on! in Majesty!" The choir was led by the Crucifer of St. Paul's church, P. T. Anthony, Jr. And the procession made a very deep impression as they passed down the aisle singing the solemn words descriptive of the triumphal entry of Jesus into Jerusalem.

When the choir had finished the processional the Rev. W. A. Lillycrop, pastor of St. Paul's Episcopal church, thanked the pastor and members of the Jarvis Memorial church for the courtesy of the use of their church; thanked the choir from Tarboro for coming to Greenville for this third annual Cantata; then proceeded to give a brief synopsis of the four scenes depicted by the Cantata.

Immediately after this the Cantata presented the first scene: "The Last Supper." This scene related the institution of the last Supper by our Lord. It was brief with a fore-shadowing of tragedy which was expected more in the music than in the actual words. Mr. Robeson and Mr. Darrow, the tenors, most feelingly conveyed the sacredness of the event.

The accompaniment of the organ then more vividly than words could have done, suggested the withdrawal of Christ with his disciples into the Garden of Gethsemane.

Then followed the second scene: "The Garden."

Mrs. Farrar, Contralto, opened the scene with a description sung in such a quiet and lovely tone that the spirit of prayer was suggested. Mr. Darrow with feeling and understanding expression presented the agony of Jesus, His loneliness as His disciples slept, His sorrow through his betrayal, desertion, and arrest. The actual betrayal was described by the choir in chorus in words and music that stirred the listeners to pity the master as he was betrayed with the kiss.

The organ then alone carried the movement into the Judgment Hall of Pilate.

There followed the third scene: "The Judgment Hall."

It is difficult for words to describe the vividness of the whole scene. Mr. Robeson opened the scene with the words of Pilate: "Art thou the King of the Jews?" In a tone of majestic dignity Mr. Darrow sang the response of Christ: "Thou sayest." And though out the remaining scene the contrast of this one, quiet reply stood out above the noise, babble and confusion made by the intolerant mob as they mocked justice in the Judgment Hall of Pilate. The organist made this scene live with her expert handling of startling contrasts of sound. While the work of the whole choir was never better than their portrayal of the mob scene and the cry of hatred: "Crucify him," away with this man! "Crucify him," and the closing of the scene with St. Bernard's ancient hymn: "O Sacred Head surrounded by Crown of piercing thorn" followed by the slow and mournful music and the words from E. Moore's story of the Cross: "O whether wandering"

Bear they that tree? He who first carries it, Who is he? Follow to Calvary Tread where He trod He who forever was Son of God.

Following this the organ made a brilliant transition from the Justice of the Cross to Calvary, through the actual nailing of Christ upon the Cross. Words could not express what the music made the congregation feel at this point.

The closing scene then followed: "Calvary."

In this scene the choir as a whole did beautiful work as well as the individual soloists. The most realistic mocking of Christ upon the Cross was thoroughly effective. The tenderest part of the scene perhaps was the "Stabat Mater Dolorosa." Certainly the words:

Who on Christ's dear Mother gazing Pierced by anguish so amazing Born of woman, would not Weep?

Were descriptive of the feelings of the congregation during the beautiful singing of this portion of the scene. Mrs. Berthram Brown, Mrs. Gardner and Miss Bessie Brown as sopranos did very commendable work throughout the Cantata.

Messrs. Darrow, Robeson, McCure, Williams and Carlyle carried the congregation magnificently through the last words from the Cross.

And when the choir, with brilliant accompaniment from the organ, sang the closing descriptions of the earthquake, the congregation felt with the Centurion: "Truly, this was the Son of God." And the congregation which had been privileged to hear the Cantata felt that the closing words of the Cantata should have been, as they were, an Alleluia to the Triumphant Lord whose work is Done.

POETRY IS DISCUSSED AT PEPTIMIST MEET

Greensboro, March 8.—North Carolina poetry was charmingly discussed by Mrs. Kenneth Brim at the luncheon meeting of the Peptimist club yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Brim was introduced by Miss Lena Strawbridge, who had charge of yesterday's program.

Guests at yesterday's meeting which was held in the club rooms of the Y. W. C. A., in addition to Mrs. Brim were Misses Margaret Carey and Beth Watkins.

Miss Margaret Handy will have charge of a program on prominent early North Carolina women at the meeting next Friday afternoon.

In the brief business session, final announcements were made regarding the club's annual birthday banquet, which will be held in the King Cotton hotel at 7:30 o'clock Saturday night. Miss Margaret Aman, president of the club, will preside. The program is being kept a secret by the entertainment committee, of which Miss Etha Williams is chairman.

In her talk yesterday, Mrs. Brim said that it is true that North Carolina does not have a Longfellow, a Whitier, nor a Lowell nor a modern Amy Lowell. She believed that scattered here and there the state has had a few poems to equal the works of those northern and New England poets. Outstanding among these poets of the state was John Charles MacNeill.

In the early poetry, she considered "Alamance" and "The Marriage of the Sun and Moon" outstanding. The state song by Judge William Gaston, was written before the civil war and is outstanding among state songs. The civil war produced a volume of poetry of particular interest at that time.

Mrs. Brim paid especial attention to Sallie Southall Cotten's epic poem, "The White Doe," the lost colony and the verse closely resembles that of Longfellow in "The Song of Hiawatha."

The speaker said that some of the prose of Isaac Irvin Avery, once on the Charlotte Observer staff, is poetry for her. She read a charming passage from his introduction to "Idle Comments." Plato Durham's work was mentioned. Brim most of the speaker's attention was given to MacNeill, who was also a member of the staff of the Charlotte Observer. Mrs. Brim read several of his short poems.

Mrs. Brim was formerly Miss Doris Overton of this city.

MEXICAN REBELS MUST NOT BRING GOLD OR SILVER TO AMERICA

Washington, March 22.—(AP)—Having decided to grant asylum to Mexican rebels who seek safety in this country, the American government has moved to see to it that they do not bring any gold or silver with them.

Export of these metals is forbidden by Mexican law, and although their import into this country is not illegal, the Treasury Department has instructed its customs collectors at El Paso, Texas, and Nogales, and Douglas, Arizona, to examine all individuals coming over the border and to notify the Mexican government if any is found in their possession.

Poultry Shipments From Pitt County Double In A Year

Over 80,000 pounds of poultry has been sold by Pitt county farmers since the beginning of co-operative sales in January, according to information given out today by E. F. Arnold, director of the Pitt County Farm department.

These sales netted poultry raisers over $19,200. This was nearly twice the amount of last year's sales and there are two or three more shipments yet to be made from this county.

About 11,000 pounds of poultry was shipped from the Ayden and Greenville communities yesterday.

Market Report

Cotton--Stocks--Grain

COTTON MARKET

New York, March 22.—(AP)—Cotton opened steady today at unchanged prices to an advance of 14 points in commission and commission houses buying, stimulated by reports of rain in the South and relatively firm Liverpool cables.

Active months sold 13 to 16 points net higher right after the opening, out the advance brought in a good deal of realizing. There was also considerable near-month liquidation and prices soon turned easier. By the end of the first half hour, March had sold off from 21.25 to 21.09, or back to yesterday's closing quotations. Later months had reached some 10 or 12 points from the early advance.

Private cables said Liverpool had advanced on covering and general buying on the Southern rain news.

GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, March 22.—(AP)—Sharp breaks in the price of wheat today resulted largely from selling out on the part of holders and from absence of adequate buying support.

Wheat closed heavy 2 1/2 to 3 1/2 net lower; corn 1 1/8 to 1 3/8 down, oats unchanged to 1 off and provisions varying from 20 decline to a rise of 2.

STOCK MARKET

New York, March 22.—(AP)—A sweeping reaction in stock prices today reflected Wall Street's growing uneasiness over the credit situation. "Bull" traders succeeded in bringing out an early rally on the strength of no chance being made in the New York Federal Reserve rediscunt rate, but Chicago dispatches indicating the possibility of an increase in that city, coupled with reports that the Federal Reserve board was in session in Washington, finally brought a large volume of selling into the market, checking the advance and sending scores of issues 2 to 7 points below yesterday's final quotations.
