POLICE AGAIN IN CONTROL AT BERLIN TODAY

Total Number Of Deaths in Recent Disorders Placed at 22, With 150 Wounded.

Berlin, May 4.—(AP)—Police seemed in complete control of the Neuquoin and Wedding districts today after adopting rigorous measures usually known only to warfare to subdue a communist uprising. Fighting was renewed early in the night, but vigorous action by the constabulary repelled the workers, and the hours just before dawn were spent in comparative quiet. The total number of dead was brought to 22, with wounded exceeding 150. A British newspaper man has been identified among those killed. He is Charles Evan MacKay, 46, from Nelson, New Zealand, representative of the Waitara Daily News. The police completely turned the tables on the communists, who Wednesday and Thursday night barricaded themselves in Hermanstrasse. Neukoelln and defended their fortifications, both from behind the barricades and with effective sniping from windows. Last night and today it was the police who held the barricades and rained the housefronts, their machine guns poking ugly noses from dozens of temporary bastions to serve if further emergency should arise. The withdrawal of the communists during Thursday night gave the constabulary its chance and occupation was thorough and immediate. Barbed wire fences were erected around the affected Hermanstrasse and side street areas so that police were enabled to control the coming and going of every person within the siege area. Not so stringent precautions were adopted in the wedding district. The state of siege proclaimed yesterday was rigorously enforced. Lights went out at 9 a. m., and every one who insisted on crossing the street, though warned three times, was shot and killed. Three bodies believed to be those of communists, were brought from the area without any explanation as to how they died. Berlin police were investigating today charges of a Borough newspaper that a Russian communist leader said by three members of the Soviet Army had led the German communists in rioting of the past three days. The police were in complete charge of Neukoelln and Wedding districts where 21 persons have been killed and more than 100 injured in fighting since May Day. A state of siege probably will be maintained in the affected districts until Monday, although disturbances today seemed on the wane. Among the dead was an English newspaperman, Charles Evan MacKay, representing the Waitara Daily News of New Zealand. Police at Hermanstrasse shot him dead before dawn today when he refused to go back indoors in defiance of their orders permitting no one outside. MacKay spoke no German and his friends assumed he did not understand the commands which were shouted at him three times before the shots which killed him were fired. The police pointed out that they had forbidden newspapermen to enter the disturbed area after 9 a. m. The charges made by the Borough newspaper, the Neue Zeit of Charlottenburg, were that the Soviet communist organizer Manielski, arrived in Berlin fourteen days ago accompanied by the Cheka organizers and three members of the Red Army general staff.

Three Children Burned To Death

Newcastle, Pa., May 4.—(AP)—Three children were burned to death and their mother and another child were burned possibly fatally today in a fire which resulted from an explosion of a gasoline stove. The dead, the children of Mr. and Mrs. William Stevens were Virginia, Dorothy, 13, and William, 13. At a hospital it was said Mrs. Stevens had little chance to recover. A four-year-old daughter, Eleanor, may live, hospital attaches said. Fighters Gets Into Society New York—The spinning woodshopper, in a way, has crashed into society. America and Germany Reach Agreement On Reparation Question

Paris, May 4.—(AP)—The German and American Reparations delegations have reached a full agreement on a complete settlement of the Reparations problem. It remains however, for the Americans to win the French and Belgium delegations to their plan. Owen D. Young, chief of the American delegation, today was conferring with the delegations of the other creditor nations to the bid. The British and the Japanese delegations were stated authoritatively tentatively to have approved the settlement leaving France and Belgium particularly and possibly Italy dissenting. The final decision of course rested with France, far and away the largest creditor. If conferences today are favorable it was believed there will be a plenary session Monday, when various of the Reparations experts will have left Paris will have returned. It was said there were naturally many details to be arranged yet but the broad outline of the plan was well defined. It was far from certain the French and Belgians will accept the American proposals. The French point of view is that they present an irreducible minimum claims total, based on what they must pay to America plus only a fraction of what they have spent for reparations. Premier Poincare has declared publicly that France cannot make further sacrifices and it was com-

Kiwanis Club Entertains City Officials and Police; Mayor J. C. Lanier Speaks

Drawing a sharp contrast between the Greenville of today and the "muddy little town on Tar river," as described by George Washington upon his visit during the Colonial day period, Mayor J. C. Lanier delivered the principal talk at the regular bi-weekly meeting of the local Kiwanis club last night. The talk came in the form of a response to the reception which the Kiwanians had accorded members of the city administration and the police department in the annual program arranged for these two organizations, and sounded the keynote to the rapid progress which the city has been making during the last several years. President Ralph Deal presided. M. K. Blount introduced the visitors. B. B. Sugg, prominent Greenville tobaccoist, was in charge of the program last night. He not only extended a cordial welcome to the visiting officials and police, but later on in the evening took occasion to tell them of the important part which they are playing in behalf of the progress of the city. He said the courtesy of Greenville police was winning the admiration of the hundreds of traveling men who visit the city time and again during the year. He told of an incident which happened several days ago that showed what police courtesy actually means to a city. A traveling man came to Greenville and was treated with so much courtesy and respect by a policeman that he went considerably out of his way the next night to spend the night here. The cop, Mr. Sugg said, had told the visitor how glad the city was to have him, and then presented him with one of the courtesy cards carrying the privilege of parking for more than one hour in the most congested part of the city. "The city may have wonderful banking facilities," the speaker declared, "but the spirit of that policeman did more for Greenville in its way than all the money we can pile up." Miss Pauline Radcliffe, singer of the student body of East Carolina Teachers College, appeared in two song numbers, one a Scotch love song, and the other a catchy little French air. She was accompanied by Miss Eugenia Thomas, director of public school music of the college. Miss Edna Smith presided at the piano during the regular song program. Others making short talks were Judge W. H. Wheabee of county court, former Judge Darden and Judge C. C. Lyon, who is presiding over the special term of Pitt county Superior court. Mayor Lanier, in referring to Washington's description of the straggling town of Revolutionary war days, declared that the city had developed into one of the most thriving and prosperous in the country. This prosperity and gradual growth he attributed not so much to home people as to people moving in from other sections. These new people, he said, came to make Greenville their home and they used their vision for the improve-

SENATE STILL GRINDING ON FARM RELIEF

Washington, May 4.—(AP)—The differences of its members over the export debenture plan of farm relief deprived the Senate of part of its usual week-end recess today, while the House took another day off after its nine-minute session of yesterday. A few Senate leaders were still hopeful that their debenture vote could be made a thing of the past before adjournment tonight, but more were inclined to look to Monday to bring a settlement of the issue. The House ways and means committee Republicans, who have spent weeks on the problem of tariff revision, have sent their draft of the bill to the printer and expect to introduce it Tuesday. The House has been marking time awaiting this measure which, after introduction, must be submitted to the full committee for a report before it can be taken up on the floor. The Senate judiciary committee was regarded by many of its members as being close to a vote on the action it will take under the McKellar resolution instructing it to investigate the eligibility of Andrew W. Mellon to serve as secretary of the treasury. Colleagues of the privileges and elections committee, meanwhile, were called upon today to take action on bills submitted by William S. Vare in connection with the collection of ballots in the Pennsylvania senatorial election which was contested by William B. Wilson, former Democratic secretary of labor. A move to obtain consideration of flood control legislation at the special session has been organized by a committee of senators from Mississippi Valley states. They decided to take up the question with House leaders and later with President Hoover.

Senate Committee Votes That Mellon Is Not Disqualified

Washington, May 4.—(AP)—Eight members of the seventeen on the Senate judiciary committee voted today that Andrew W. Mellon, as a stockholder, was not disqualified from serving as secretary of the treasury, and two minority reports were sent along to the Senate. The eight senators who supported the report of Senator Stewer included Burton, Ohio; Hastings, Delaware; Waterman, Colorado; Eneen, Illinois; Gillett, Massachusetts, and Robinson, Indiana, Republicans; and Overman, North Carolina, Democrat.

STUDENT HELD AS WITNESS IN TORCH SLAYING

White Plains, N. Y., May 4.—(AP)—Gene Bussey, student at Johns Hopkins University who told of a love affair with Mrs. Dorothy Peacock, was in jail today as a material witness in the "torch" slaying of the young woman. Bussey was arrested in a New York hotel on an order obtained by counsel for Earl F. Peacock, the husband, who has confessed he strangled his wife and set fire to the body. Bussey has been quoted as saying he indulged in "petting parties" with Mrs. Peacock and corresponded with her. He said Peacock found one of the letters and threatened to "beat the life out of him."

Genne Bussey Said To Have Held "Petting Parties" With Woman Killed by Husband

The New York American today published a letter written by the young Mrs. Peacock to her mother-in-law, giving the 30-year-old wife's reasons for leaving her husband. The letter said in part: "It didn't take us long to realize that we made a mistake. It was two months after we were married that we decided to separate. We found that our natures never could be reconciled. "We kept up the pretense of being happy, just for the old-fashioned custom of making believe that our marriage was a success. But our life was really a hell on earth. We weren't really man and wife, but just a fighting pair of foolish kids." District Attorney Frank H. Coyne said Peacock had made a new statement in which he had "talked himself out of a self-defense plea."

HOUSES SWEEP AWAY BY FLOOD IN HAMPSHIRE

Colebrook, N. H., May 4.—(AP)—The Mohawk river valley stretching from the Connecticut river eastward toward Dixville Notch presented a scene of flood wrought havoc today. Houses and bridges were swept away and highways washed out when waters rushed last night from Balsam Dam, 13 miles above the dam burst from pressure due to heavy rains. Estimates of property damage ranged as high as $100,000. Ample warnings reached the half-dozen or more families comprising the hamlet of Kidderville, nine miles east of this place. The river, ordinarily a comparatively shallow stream, rose 20 feet in a few minutes and maintained that gauge nearly half an hour. In addition to numerous wooden bridges which went out in the valley one 40-foot steel bridge was swept down the stream while the trestle of the Maine Central Railroad which spans the Mohawk close to its confluence with the Connecticut river, just below here, was carried into the larger stream. Damage here was heavy. Eight or nine houses disappeared in the river. The dam which gave way hemmed in two small artificial lakes at the Balsams, a summer hotel near Dixville Notch.

The car bore Tennessee license number 172789 which police records show was issued to C. Huff of Memphis.

Over Thousand Persons Killed By Earthquake In Persia and Turkestan

Ashabad, Russian Turkestan, May 4.—(AP)—Earthquakes which yesterday shook the vast stretches west of Samarkand, once the capital of Tamperlane's oriental empire, were believed today to have taken a heavy toll of life and property. Unconfirmed reports said 1,000 persons perished in three Persian towns alone, while 11 were killed and 40 injured hereabout four successive tremors brought down houses and buildings in many villages. One person was killed in this city and 26 injured. Ninety houses were demolished. The Russian Turkestan government, on request of Persian officials rushed aid across the border into Persia where the damage and loss of life was believed greatest. Isolation of many of the affected areas accentuated the relief problem. The summer resort of Firza reported considerable destruction. The village of Germab was nearly destroyed, and a number of villages along the Persian border suffered heavily. The shocks were accompanied by a subterranean roar.

Over Hundred Politicians Indicted For Violation Of The Law At Chicago Today

Chicago, May 4.—(AP)—One hundred and twenty-four politicians, public officials and hoodlums today stood formally accused of law violations, the climax to persistent investigations by Federal and county grand juries. The county grand jury yesterday indicted fifteen in connection with the Chicago sanitary district graft scandal, including six trustees and the former president of the district and the former president of the Federal grand jury returned indictments against 81 persons alleged to have been members of the Chicago Heights booze ring. Several were police officers. The other 28 indicted, six of them police captains, were named earlier in the week in connection with the slot machine graft scandal. The sanitary district investigation began soon after the November election when it was disclosed that more than 2,000 persons, including several state legislators and other officials, who admitted they did little or no work, were on the payroll. Expenditure of approximately $1,000,000 for a four-mile long cinder bridge path and other alleged wasteful and illegal expenditures were revealed as the investigation progressed. Among those indicted in sanitary district probe were: Timothy J. Crowe, prominent Democratic leader and former president of the sanitary board. James M. Whalen, also a prominent Democrat who was re-elected a trustee in November. Frank J. Link, John K. Lawler, and August W. Miller, Republicans, and John J. Touhy, Democrat, trustees held over from last board. Lawrence F. King, Republican, chairman of finance committee of old board and member of new board. Martin J. O'Brien, chief clerk of district under Crowe and chairman of the managing committee of the Democratic party in Cook county. Henry E. Wallace, chief deputy clerk under Crowe. Morton Kettle, head of a printing firm said to have received $120,000 from the board for printing 700,000 copies of Crowe's annual message. The indictments included charges of conspiracy, embezzlement, and illegal diversion of public funds all the trustees and former officials being charged with all three. Some of the charges were based on allegations that the district spent more than $250,000 illegally. Bonds on each indictment were set at $10,000. The Chicago Heights liquor investigation was launched more than a year ago by Federal authorities after a reign of terror had held sway in the suburb for several years, accounting for numerous murders. So powerful was the alleged liquor syndicate that public officials were cowed and respectable citizens coerced into recognizing its "right" to operate openly without interference. "Scarface" Al Capone, gangster chieftain, was subpoenaed to appear before the grand jury and came from his winter home at Miami, Fla., to testify. Federal officials said that insufficient evidence to warrant indictment of Capone had been obtained. The syndicate was said to have furnished more than 3,000,000 gallons of contraband liquor, valued at $36,000,000, to the liquor trade since January 1, 1925. Stills were allowed to operate openly, the government charged, by the town's officials and police after the bootleggers had demonstrated by shotguns and pistols that they intended to have their way. Subsidies later were paid, it was charged, to officials. Those indicted included Barne Carlsen, former chief of police and present postmaster of Chicago Heights, and Edward Cassidy and John Catalbie, also former chiefs of police. Six Chicago police captains and several prominent politicians were named in the indictments returned against 28 men in the slot machine investigation. The slot machine syndicate was said to have been operating for more than a year with profits sometimes reaching $25,000 a day. Evidence was submitted that during one period of

MRS. COTTEN PASSES AWAY EARLY TODAY

Prominent Pitt Woman Dies At Home Of Her Daughter In Winchester, Mass. Mrs. Sallie Soutball Cotten, widow of the late Colonel Robert R. Cotten, of Cottontdale, Pitt county, died this morning at the home of her daughter in Winchester, Mass. Death followed illness extending over a period of several weeks. Although complete funeral arrangements had not been announced today, it was stated that the body would be brought to her late home at Cottontdale tomorrow afternoon and that the funeral services would be conducted from St. Paul's Episcopal church in Greenville, on Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Mrs. Cotten, before her marriage, was Miss Sallie Southall of Murfreesboro. She was married to Robert Randolph Cotten of Edgecombe county, March 14, 1886, and in 1890 the couple moved to this county. Their home, Cottontdale, eight miles from this city, has since that time been one of the social centers of the county. After 66 years of happy companionship this union was broken by Col. Cotten's death last fall. Mrs. Cotten is survived by two sons, Col. Bruce Cotten of Baltimore, and Preston Cotten, of Boston; two daughters, Mrs. Russell Wiggins, of Winchester, Mass.; Mrs. Douglas B. Wesson of Springfield, Mass., and several grandchildren. Mrs. Cotten was 82 years of age at the time of her death. She was one of the state's most outstanding women and was familiarly known as the "Mother of the North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs." This title was the outgrowth of her activity in the early life of the club in this state. She was the first president of the North Carolina Federation of Clubs and until her death, was honorary president of the organization and one of its chief advisers in all activities. One of her outstanding works in this line was the Women's Clubs Student Loan Fund, which has grown in popularity and usefulness. As recognition of her services there are dormitories bearing her name at the North Carolina College for Women at Greensboro and the East Carolina Teachers College in this city. As an author Mrs. Cotten achieved notable success, especially with her history of the federation and her legend of Virginia Dare, the "White Doe." Other products of her prolific pen included negro folklore under the title of "Tales of Aunt Dorcas Told Little Elsie." At the time of her death she was devoting her literary talents to the compilation of a local history. Her love for the early North Carolina history prompted the legend of Virginia Dare and it was the result of her efforts that a sculptor was persuaded to present to the State Museum at Raleigh the statue of Virginia Dare. Prior to the Sesqui Centennial Exposition at Philadelphia, Mrs. Cotten was voted by the North Carolina Women's committee as one of the four North Carolina women honored for notable work in literature, music, art and civics. Despite her age, Mrs. Cotten continued until the time of her death to take an active part in civic and club work and was an inspiration to other women of her state. Aside from her activities of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, Mrs. Cotten was the first president of the End of the Century Club and honorary president of the Woman's Club this city. She was also president of the Pitt County Federation of clubs which established an endowment loan fund for Pitt county girls at the Eastern Carolina Teachers' College. She was a member of the Mothers' Congress. Mrs. Cotten was a member of St. Paul's Episcopal church of this city and was active not only in the social life of the community, but throughout the many sections of the state where her influence in public club work had been felt.

GREENVILLE TO GO TO POLLS NEXT MONDAY

City to Select a Mayor And Board Of Aldermen After Strenuous Campaign. After one of the most vigorous campaigns in years, Greenville people will go to the polls in the city primary next Monday and express their preference for members of the board of aldermen and a mayor. The polls will open at the court house when the sun rises at 5:56 and close at 6:49, sunset. Registration books will close this afternoon. It was stated that voting was expected to be the heaviest in years owing to the unusual activity on the part of the various candidates. Over four hundred new registrations had been recorded up to yesterday afternoon. The total voting strength of the city was given at 2,400. The main contest this time centers around the office of mayor, the present incumbent, J. C. Lanier, is opposed by W. A. Darden, former judge of Pitt county court. The political guns of these two candidates began booming two or three months ago and their reverberations have thundered against practically every home of the city. While the majority of people have been watching the mayoralty race with considerable speculation, there is also much interest connected with the aldermanic fight. The first is the only one of the five wards where there is no contest. J. H. Waldrop held supreme sway in this district today and indications were that the losing of registration books tonight would find the situation unchanged. In the first ward J. I. Smith is opposed by H. W. Renfrew. In the third ward, P. L. Goodson is opposed by T. T. Hollingsworth, a former alderman of that district. J. H. Boyd is opposed by T. R. Moore in the fourth, and Alderman Rogers is opposed by Ralph Garrett in the fifth. The greatest contest probably centers around the third and fifth wards where candidates have exhibited more than unusual interest in their success. Hollingsworth is making a strong bid against the present incumbent, P. L. Goodson in the third and it is probable the largest vote will be cast in this ward and in the fifth where Ralph Garrett is opposing the incumbent J. D. Rogers. The fact that candidates got a much earlier start in their campaigns this year good belief to the fact that the total vote would surpass all previous elections of the kind. The feminine vote, no doubt, will be greater than any other campaign, as women have become more accustomed to going to the polls and the majority are actively interested in who shall rule over the destiny of the city during the next administration.

Durham Concern Makes Greenville E. Carolina Distributing Center.

Greenville has been made the distributing center of Eastern Carolina by another well known concern, it became known today. This time it is the Durham Glass Works, of Durham, N. C. GOLD BULLETS

by Charles G. Booth

By CHARLES G. BOOTH
 SYNOPSIS: The police begin to forge the chain of evidence that brands Jerry Ogden as his father's murderer. John Peebles, confident that his niece's fiancé is not the slayer, vows to clear the mystery. Ogden's angry shout—"gold bullets"—overheard a few hours before he was slain is in startling coincidence with Peebles' purchase that day of a famous revolver loaded with gold bullets once owned by Alex Peterson, gambler and overlord of the Torridity mining camp 30 years ago. Stimson, the Ogden gardener, creates a new tension by demanding a private conversation with Henry Deacon, the police chief.

Chapter 6
JERRY'S KEYS
 Deacon led Stimson through a door in the north wall of the library. This door gave entrance to a little den which Jerry Ogden

Lucy came towards her uncle and put her soft arms around his neck, has taken for his own purposes. "Where is Jerry Uncle John?" I watched Deacon shut the door behind them with deep misgivings for I suspected what Stimson was going to tell him. Heavy heart, I began to pace up and down the room. The place stifled me, the odor of death was in my nostrils. Unable to stand it any longer, I mumbled something about going out for the breath of air and made for the hall door. The crisp night air revived me, and with no definite object in view I proceeded slowly down the drive house a little while before it happened. Pull yourself together and go to your room. I'll tell you about it afterwards. I must go back now."

She clutched my hand for an instant; then she kissed me on the lips and, turning, went out of the room. Suddenly, I remembered it had been my impression that Jerry had dropped something as he fled down the drive. If my impression was correct I had better find whatever it was before Deacon or any of his men came upon it. I hurried through the window, crossed the garden, and passed into the Ogden grounds. Making my way to where I believed the object had seemed to fall, I dropped onto my knees and crept and pawed around the cinder walk. Without result, however, and I decided to risk a match.

Shielding the name, I poked into the grass at the side of the walk. My pains were rewarded by the glint of metal. I pounced upon it and found Jerry's keys. Six or eight on a ring. I had often seen them in his hands. Grunting a little for my poor knees, I got up.

"Hand it over, John." My heart stood still and my old legs trembled until I thought they were going to jackknife beneath me. The darkness did not prevent me from feeling the frigid business of Deacon's eyes.

"Hello, Henry," I said unsteadily. "I was looking for something." "You found it, too," he returned dryly. "Hand it over."

"See here, Henry!" I began indignantly. "It's no use, John." His voice was weary. "I know what you think of that boy. I like him myself, too; but I thought a good deal more of the father than I do of the son, and if Jerry killed Andrew he's going to pay for it!"

"Killed Andrew! You are crazy!" He laughed shortly. "I don't know so much about that. Stimson came out around nine-thirty. He saw Jerry rush down here in his white flannels, he heard you shout after him, he heard you shout to Jerry that he had dropped something. Jerry's car was in the garage at nine. It isn't there now. When you saw him he was on his way to the garage."

I fell back, bringing my hand forward so that I might hurl the keys far into the trees and shrubbery behind me. The unexpected happened then. As my hand shot backward five warm fingers closed upon it and the keys were whipped out of my grasp. Deacon gave a roar of anger, swept me aside, and sprang past me. Spinning around, I was just in time to see Lucy vanish into the darkness of the trees; Lucy, whom I had supposed was in bed by this!

The French window of my den slammed to and I started on again. I was just in time to bump into Deacon as he was making for the back door.

"See here, Henry." My conciliatory tone stopped him. "Well?" "Leave her alone," I pleaded. "We didn't know what we were doing. You and I have got to work together."

"Come to your senses, eh? Well, what was it you picked up?" "A bunch of keys." "Jerry's keys?" I nodded and sat down heavily upon the step.

"I must have them," Henry said, at length. But his voice was gentler. "I'll get them for you," I promised, a trifle doubtfully.

His hand fell on my shoulder. "I've got to act as I see it, Joan. It looks as if the young fellow did it. Unless he can tell a straight yarn I shall arrest him as soon as I find him." His hand tightened. "I'm sorry, John. She's a fine girl—Lucy. I'd give everything I have to make it otherwise."

I nodded for I knew he meant what he said. He left me then. Desolate of spirit I sat where I was for a little while, sorrowing for the friend who had gone. Then I got up and tried the French window.

TAKING SECOND PLACE GRACEFULLY

By The Rev. James Gordon Gilkey, D. D.
 Pastor South Church, Springfield, Mass.

1 Samuel 18:7-8—The women sang to one another: Saul has slain his thousands, and David his tens of thousands! But the saying displeased Saul and he was very angry.

Perhaps the most familiar story in the Old Testament is the story of David and Goliath. Generations of children have been brought up on it, and the details have become part of the folk-lore and the literature of our race. The sequel to that story is less familiar, but probably far more suggestive in the problems of every-day life.

When King Saul returned after the battle he expected to be received enthusiastically by his grateful subjects, but by his immense disappointment he found he was not the center of attention. The villagers were giving him credit, to be sure, for slaying thousands of Philistines. But then they were adding that David had killed 10 times as many.

So this was the reward for a lifetime of public service! Shoved unceremoniously into second place, while most of the honor and glory went to a man who, when it was said, had merely been lucky with his sling-shot. No wonder Saul was furious. No one enjoys receiving second place.

Saul was not the last man to face this situation. Sooner or later life forces all of us to take a second place. Some of us began to meet that experience when we were small children. There were other boys and girls in our home, and one day we woke up to the unpleasant fact that some of them were far more gifted than we were.

How embarrassing to discover that we were known as somebody's small brother, or somebody's less-attractive sister! In school and college the same situation persisted.

But the readjustments of middle life and old age are undoubtedly the hardest of all. Sooner or later all of us must watch some other take first place in our worlds.

PIRATES WIN CLOSE GAME FROM BANGS

Wilmington, May 4.—The Pirates returned to the home lot yesterday afternoon after a disastrous road trip and nosed out Greenville in a heavy hitting affair 14 to 13.

A desperate ninth-inning rally enabled the home club to count four runs and forge into the lead. With two men down and the bases loaded Robbins doubled to deep right center to score three runners and put the game on ice.

The heavy hitting Jones, Greenville first-sacker, who soaked the gate for three triples in five trips to the plate, and Hart who slammed the ball for a double, triple and circuit drive in four trips to the pan, featured the stick work.

Bailey, Pirate hawker, leaped upon the fence to spherer one tagged for two bases.

UHLE HURLS DETROIT TO 6 TO 1 WIN

George Uhle, Cleveland exile, had the big league spotlight all to himself yesterday as cold weather caused further devastation in the baseball schedule. He pitched Detroit to over the White Sox 6 to 1. The game was put on in the cold reaches of Comiskey Park.

Cold weather and rain swept the National League schedule clean and prevented the one other championship engagement planned in the American. The Yankees went through with their exhibition at Pittsburgh, a Pirate victory by 8 to 2 being the net result.

Games could have been played in New York and Brooklyn, among other places, but the grounds were in none too good condition, and the temperature was such that any contests outdoors would have been practically private affairs.

The growing favor in which the Cardinals are being held by National critics will focus attention of the addicts upon the Polo Grounds where Billy Southworth will parade his veteran pitching corps before the heavy maulers of the clan McGraw for the next few days. Only slight-ly less interesting will be the efforts of the Cubs to shake off their philly jinx at Baker Bowl.

The first stand of the American League clubs on the Western front will find the Athletics besting Sportsman's Park in the first crucial series, real or suspected, of the young season.

The victory of Uhle over the White Sox yesterday revealed him a his best. He gave the Sox five hits and never seemed in any danger after his mates tied the score for him in the second. The Chicago troops pushed one run across the plate in the first on a single and a pair of errors by Heinie Schulte.

The triumph was Uhle's fourth of the season. It was helped along by Charlie Gehring's home run.
