TOBACCO TOWN PREPARES FOR GREAT SEASON

Greenville Tobacco Men Ready to Serve Thousands Attending Opening Sept. 3.

To serve the myriad thousands of tobacco growers in this section of the state, is the object of the Greenville tobacco market on the threshold of one of its greatest seasons.

This has always been the object of the forces behind the great industry here, but not until this season has the ambition been realized in the fullest sense of the word.

The fulfillment of this desire was made possible by improvements which have been taking place the last several years, and particularly the last two or three years.

The growth has been so steady and extensive that farmers who sell here this season will find nine mammoth warehouses, covering a total floor space of fourteen acres, ready to serve them.

These warehouses will be able to handle in the neighborhood of one million and seven hundred thousand pounds of tobacco daily.

The factories have similar capacity and farmers who sell here from day to day may rest assured of receiving the quickest service along with the highest prices paid in this territory.

Improvements in tobacco town the last year have reflected in no uncertain terms the desire of the Greenville tobaccoists to make this city one of the great leaders in the industry of the nation.

These men have argued all along that this was the logical location for one of the greatest markets because of the fact that it is situated in the largest belt of leaf tobacco producing country in the world.

This sounds like a broad statement. So it is. But when the fact is supported by statistics compiled by leading data gathering agencies in the world there is little room left for doubt. Greenville has the advantage of not only being situated in this wonderful bright leaf district, but also commands the attention of the world's largest buyers of bright leaf. These concerns have had their representatives on local warehouse floors for years, but as the market has grown and developed the last few years the number has increased until they represent a small army of workers in themselves.

Greenville tobaccoists have never made it a point to attempt to exaggerate the possibilities of this market. They have never had to do so. They have never been forced to it. Every member of the tobacco board of trade is a leader in the social, religious, educational and business life of the county and state.

They have reputations at stake, as all men of affairs have, and always make it a point to carefully weigh anything that goes before the public with their signatures attached to it. Any fact must be duly authenticated before it is released.

This is one of the main reasons for the steady and healthy growth of this market. The countless thousands who sell here from day to day throughout the year have learned through experience to place implicit confidence in the word of the Greenville tobaccoist. When they read advertisements carried in the local paper, they believe them because they know they are earnest attempts to keep the grower informed regarding constant changes in the price situation and other developments which occur from time to time.

The Greenville tobacco market believes in advertising—so does the farmer. The grower is able to keep abreast of times by reading what the warehousemen tell them thru the newspaper columns every day the market is open. It relieves the farmer of many responsibilities. When he brings his tobacco here he knows whether prices are normal or abnormal and is able to protect himself accordingly.

Column after column could be written about this market if the whole story of its activity were told. But since this is not possible in the limited space afforded from time to time, it might be well to add "finis" to this attempt by assuring the farmer that this will be the greatest year in the history of the Greenville tobacco market, and urge him to join the hosts to attend the opening here September 3rd.

Graf Zeppelin Reaches Tokyo After Long Trip Across Two Continents

Tokyo, August 19.—(AP)—With a journey of 6,880 miles across two continents officially logged to her credit, the great German airliner Graf Zeppelin was safely housed in the hangar at Kasumigaura naval air station at 8:07 p. m. Japanese time (5:07 a. m. E. S. T.) today after a run of 102 hours and 53 minutes from Friedrichshafen.

Five hundred Japanese blue jackets brought down the silver queen of the air on Kasumigaura field at 6:27 a. m. Forty minutes later they stowed her safely away until the start of her flight of 5,420 miles across the Pacific ocean to Los Angeles, next stage of her flight around the world.

The Graf will probably start for the Pacific coast of America on Thursday.

This flight over the waste stretches of the Pacific, never yet traversed by an airship, will mark the third stage of the globe-circling Graf's journey. Together with the run across the American continent from Los Angeles to Lakehurst, the Zeppelin still must fly nearly 8,000 miles to her goal.

While immense crowds of excited Japanese broke again and again through police and military cordons, Dr. Hugo Eckener and Admiral Takarabe, Japanese minister of the navy, exchanged formal congratulations, and went through a brief customs inspection and then boarded a train for Tokyo, 40 miles away.

The Japanese ceremonial meal, traditionally extended to visitors, was served by airport and government officials before they left. It consisted of dried chestnuts, dried cuttlefish and Saki, the national alcoholic beverage fermented from rice.

Ahead of the Graf Zeppelin lay two more laps before completion of its world tour, from Tokyo to Los Angeles—which as the Graf fliers should be about 5,470 miles—and from Los Angeles to Lakehurst, about 2,500 miles, or 7,970 miles total.

The average speed of the Zeppelin from Friedrichshafen to Tokyo was just in excess of 64 miles an hour. This, when it is considered that three of the dirigible's five motors were kept running during most of the trip, was exceptionally good and about 15 miles per hour in excess of what Dr. Hugo Eckener, the Zeppelin's master, has estimated it would make.

Aboard the Zeppelin were 60 persons, 40 members of the crew and officers, and 20 passengers, of whom Lady Grace Drummond Hay was the only woman. With the exception of a knick-knack or two, including a bust of Baron Ehrenfried Von Heunfeld, there was no freight other than 50,000 pieces of mail, the revenue from which brought the Zeppelin nearly as many dollars.

The Zeppelin's sighting over Tokyo occurred just 45 minutes after it circled the giant Japanese hangar at Kasumigaura, the Japanese naval air station. The dirigible remained but a few moments over Kasumigaura and then headed for Tokyo, capital of the land of the rising sun, to while away the hours until evening when the expected drop in temperature would permit landing.

THIRTEEN DIE IN WRECK OF FAST TRAIN

Seven Others Injured When St. Louis-San Francisco Train Hits Open Switch.

Henryetta, Okla., Aug. 19.—(AP)—Thirteen persons were killed and seven others were injured, two dangerously, when a St. Louis-San Francisco passenger train struck an open switch on the outskirts of Henryetta yesterday.

W. A. Wolfe, engineer, and H. A. Bryan, fireman, both of Sherman, Texas, and eleven negroes riding in a chair car, were scalded to death when the boiler of the locomotive exploded as the train plunged down an embankment.

Of the injured, Mrs. D. D. Taylor of Joplin, Mo., and Ruel Renfro, baggage man of Tulsa, Okla., were in a serious condition. The other injured were negroes.

R. C. Gooch, an extra brakeman and a negro porter escaped from the chair car by breaking the glass in a window.

Approximately 500 feet to track was torn up.

Officials began an investigation today to fix responsibility for the wreck. Harry Webb, a section hand, said he had closed and locked the switch Saturday afternoon.

Michigan Man Kills Wife and Children And Then Suicides

Royal Oak, Mich., Aug. 19.—(AP)—Hans Peter Nielson, of Royal Oak, killed his wife and four children with gas fumes and took his own life with a poison after setting fire to his house here early today. Firemen who broke into the flaming house found Mrs. F. K. Gobbie Nielson, 35, and her four children, Niels Haps, nine; Bertha, eight; Paul, six; and Bodell, two, dead in the bedroom. Every gas jet in the house had been opened.

Two Copper Stills Taken in Pactolus Township Sunday

Two stills were rounded up by officers of the Pactolus community last Saturday, according to information reaching this city today. Officers participating in the raids were H. D. Gurganus and H. E. Nobles.

One of the stills was of a 60-gallon capacity and was captured back of the Dave James farm. Five hundred gallons of beer was taken with the outfit.

The other still was captured in the Langley woods. It was of a 50-gallon capacity. One thousand gallons of beer was destroyed.

Both stills were constructed of copper and of the usual type used in the manufacture of contraband whiskey in this section of the country.

Strikers Clash Today At Marion Cotton Mill; State Troops On Duty

Marion, N. C., Aug. 19.—(AP)—One man was badly beaten and several others sustained bruises when strikers at the Clinchfield Cotton Mill here early today prevented 500 non-union men from returning to work in the mill.

Superintendent Henderson of the mill was badly beaten with blackjacks and clubs used by strikers and sympathizers on picnic duty at the mill.

Sheriff Adkins of McDowell county and other officials attempted to quiet the crowd. They were hooted when they threatened to bring state troops if the crowd did not disperse peacefully and let those who wanted to work enter the mill.

"State troops will be called out if you do not disperse and maintain order" the sheriff told the crowd.

"Bring on your troops" they shouted almost in unison.

Albert Hoffman, organizer for the United Textile Workers of America, who has been counselling peace, attempted to prevent trouble but the mob was hooded down.

The strike at Marion has been on about six weeks. At first a comparatively few workers went out. Two weeks ago an attempt was made to take a number of non-union workers into the mill and a fight occurred which resulted in the arrest and fining of a dozen strikers. On last Friday deputy sheriffs attempted to evict a number of mill workers from company houses but met with resistance.

The company announced on Saturday that the mill would be opened this morning. Gov. Gardner sent N. A. Townsend to Marion to watch the situation and up to last night Mr. Townsend reported that he did not believe troops would be needed.

Marion, N. C., Aug. 19.—(AP)—With the Asheville and Morganton National guard units here to keep order, the Marion strike situation was quiet today, following the unsuccessful attempt of officials of the Clinchfield Manufacturing company to open the gates of its mills early this morning.

Picket lines of strikers prevented the opening of the gates. There was fist fighting in the encounter, but no one was seriously hurt; apparently no weapons other than their fists were used by the strikers.

Immediately following the trouble, Judge N. A. Townsend, Governor Gardner's executive counsel, who has been here for the past two days, ordered the two national guard units to report here immediately.

The next test of strength was expected to come tomorrow afternoon. No further attempts will be made to open the mill gates today, Judge Townsend announced, after a conference this morning with mill men but he added that the gates would open tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock.

SENATE MEETS TODAY TO END LONG RECESS

Series of Brief Conferences to be Held Tonight while Awaiting Tariff Bill.

Washington, Aug. 19.—(AP)—The Senate reconvened at noon today after a two months' summer recess with only a few members on hand for the opening session.

The tariff bill passed in May by the House is the order of business for the Senate but as the finance committee has not completed work on the measure a series of three-day recesses were started at once. These will be continued until Sept. 4 by which time the bill is expected to be ready for consideration on the floor.

Despite the advanced notice that no attempt at work would be undertaken today, crowds filled the galleries and watched Vice-President Curtis call the chamber to order.

The Rev. George G. Culbertson, associate minister of the New York Avenue Presbyterian church, offered the opening prayer.

After being in session only three minutes, the Senate adjourned until Thursday. It was one of the briefest sessions in the body's history.

Washington, Aug. 19.—(AP)—The Senate was called into session today to end its summer recess, but it was not ready to start work and tonight will begin a series of brief recesses to await the tariff.

Only a few more than the twenty members of the finance committee who have labored throughout the summer revising the House tariff measure were on hand for the formal opening.

The gentlemen's agreement reached between the Republican and Democratic leaders whereby three-day recesses will be taken until the finance committee has the tariff bill ready for consideration was the signal keeping most of the membership at their vacation retreats.

All hands appear satisfied to confine the remaining days of the extra session to the disposition of the voting tariff bill. Consequently, little or no effort to take in other business is expected during the next two weeks.

Carrying out the gentlemen's agreement, Senator Watson of Indiana, the majority leader, will have to move for recesses every three days. The Senate cannot adjourn for longer than three days without the consent of the House, and the House won't return from its vacation until September 23.

President Hoover has some nominations to forward to the Senate for confirmation, including the members of the newly organized farm board. Whether he will send these up before September has not been decided.

The Senate is always in a talkative mood and there are prospects of some debate on several topics, including Mr. Hoover's decision to defer the laying down of cruisers provided for this year's naval building program.

WOMAN FLIERS BALK AT STOP IN CALIFORNIA

Air Race Derby Participants to be Allowed to Continue to Yuma, Ariz.

San Bernardino, Cal., Aug. 19.—(AP)—Eighteen of the nineteen fliers entered in the first women's national air derby from Santa Monica, Cal., to Cleveland, who balked at continuing the flight from here today because of their objection to landing at Calexico, Cal., won their point when race officials announced they would be permitted to pass that point without stopping.

It was announced that the fliers, instead of making a control stop at Calexico, would be permitted by the Cleveland race officials to fly sufficiently low over that airport to allow checkers to read their planes numbers. The contestants then may land at Yuma, Ariz., the change they had demanded or continue to Phoenix, the second night stop.

The women indicated the strike was made against the Calexico stop because several planes would be unable to take off from the field there due to the lack of space.

After a dinner given them by the Exchange club of San Bernardino, the contestants held a protest meeting, under the leadership of Mrs. Florence Barnes, aviatrix-wife of a San Marlow Cal. minister subsequently they issued the following statement:

"We the undersigned pilots in the women's air derby, hereby declare we will go no further than this point unless routed by or through Yuma, Ariz., instead of Calexico, Cal. Cause of this decision was the failure of Cleveland to set the route within 24 hours of the start of the race and no point located between San Bernardino and Phoenix.

After making known their strike a telephone call was put in for Floyd J. Logan, air race chairman at Cleveland, to whom they wished to assert their demand.

The fliers stated that within 24 hours previous to the start of the race at Santa Monica, Logan had issued orders for the stop at Calexico or face the penalty of being disqualified.

Some Argument

Chicago.—The round-the-world flight of the Graf Zeppelin is just further proof to Glenn Voliva, overseer of Zion City, that the earth is flat. If it were a revolving globe, he argues, Tokyo would spin when the airship tried to land there.

Girl Boost Taxes

Washington.—The girls seem to be responsible. Federal taxes on cigarettes have jumped $40,205,715 in a year.

FOUR BURNED TO DEATH AT LITTLE ROCK

Several Also Injured When Fire Destroys Cross Street Rooming House.

Little Rock, Ark., Aug. 19.—(AP)—Four persons were burned to death and several others injured or burned in a fire in a rooming house on Cross street near the Missouri Pacific Station early today.

Explosion of a gas cooking stove started the fire which trapped the victims in their upstairs rooms. The house was a fourteen room frame structure and the blaze spread rapidly through it. It was destroyed.

The dead: Samuel J. Archer, 17; Hiram Evans, Martin Kapp, Frank Hart; and an unidentified man.

The house consisted mostly of railroad shop employees.

The explosion occurred while the landlady Mrs. E. L. Darragh, some of the roomers were downstairs waiting for breakfast and escaped easily but of the seven or eight still in their rooms upstairs, all were burned fatally or injured by the fire and in leaps from windows.

The flames spread rapidly through the old structure, cutting off escape for those upstairs, and those burned to death did not receive sufficient warning to take advantage of the windows.

Difficulty in getting a fire alarm through by telephone was said to have delayed the fire department several minutes and prevented firemen from saving those trapped upstairs.

Tobacco Man Dies At Winston Salem

Winston-Salem, N. C., Aug. 19.—James Ballard Dyer, Sr., 59 member of the board of directors of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco company and superintendent of the leaf department of the concern, died suddenly at his home here early today.

Mr. Dyer had been slightly ill for two weeks. About two months ago he made a trip to Battle Creek, Mich., in the interest of his health.

Born near Martintown, Va., Mr. Dyer came to Winston-Salem as a young man and became connected with the R. J. Reynolds Company He had remained with the company 35 years.

He is survived by his widow, two sons and two daughters.

Whiskey Still And Two Distillers Captured In Cornfield Near Ayden

Manufacturers of contraband whiskey in Pitt county are beginning to quit hiding away to the forests and impenetrable swamp lands to carry on their industry, and have started erecting their stills in cornfields in hope that the towering corn stalks will save them from the dragnet thrown out by the law enforcement organization.

The plan, however, doesn't seem to be all effective. This was proven in the case of Willie Dennis and John Bill Cox, Ayden young men, who were captured Saturday afternoon while preparing a still for operation in a cornfield about a mile from the town of Ayden. The capture was made by members of the sheriff's department who had been tipped off concerning the cornfield scheme of manufacture.

The young men were brought to Greenville and released under bond of $500 each for their appearance at the next sitting of county court.

The still was of the copper variety and had a capacity of 75 gallons. It was of the usual type employed by small distillers in this section of the country and is considered the most valuable for the law enforcement bodies because of the amount of copper involved.

While no whiskey was found at the still the officers destroyed about six barrels of beer, which, if it had been distilled as planned, would have furnished a considerable amount of the fiery beverage for consumers in this section.

This is the first time that members of the whiskey traffic have been bold enough to bring their activities out into the open spaces in this part of the country, and officers were completely astounded at the audacity of the young operators.

The still was situated in a six-acre field of corn that had developed into giant size, and while the plant was completely concealed from the view of those passing along nearby highways, it was impossible to prevent the smoke from being seen at quite a distance, although the more professional distillers have developed the art to such a fine point that they can reduce the volume of smoke to such an extent that it is almost impossible for it to be seen except on very clear days and nights.

It is not known and probably never will be known how the sleuths of the sheriff's department got their information leading to the capture, but they are proud of the feat, and especially so, since this is the first time that the whiskey making industry has been captured from the swamps and woodlands behind the protecting ears of the sentinel-like cornstalk.

The wreck occurred when the car, occupied by Mr. and Mrs. John son, crashed into a car that had crossed the highway from a side road. The second car is said to have been occupied by people from Tarboro, and while their names could not be learned today it was understood that they were being held awaiting developments in the condition of Mrs. Johnson.

The Tarboro car is said to have entered the highway so suddenly that Johnson did not have time to stop in time to avoid the collision.

Sungod Is Headed Back To Spokane

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., Aug. 19.—The airplane, Sun God, was headed back toward Spokane today after refueling here at the eastern turning point of its trans-continental non-stop round trip flight.

The plane, piloted by B. Mamer and Art Walker arrived over this field at 3:45 p. m. Eastern Standard time yesterday, having been in the air 66 hours and 47 minutes since it left Spokane at 5:58 p. m. Pacific time, Thursday. It had covered 3,600 miles.

The fliers, who are seeking to establish a distance record for air-re fueled flight hovered over the field two hours taking on gas, oil, food and other supplies then turned westward toward Cleveland, the next refueling point.

The pilots dropped several notes while over the field, in one of which they expressed their delight at arriving over New York and declared they were tempted to land here. They also dropped a message of greeting sent to Mayor J. Walker from Mayor James Rolph of San Francisco.

Death Treasure

SYNOPSIS
Vernon Seabrooke is galloping down the road, charging straight at Tom Grenofen. Veronica clings tenaciously to the horse's back in instant danger of falling. Grenofen catches at the horse's bridle. Veronica shoots off into Tom's arms.

There is just a moment for Grenofen to see how blue, and how beautiful are her eyes. Then he plunges headlong into the mystery of Roger Pell, for Veronica's father, Commander Seabrooke (retired), rides up, fuming, blustering and enraged. Promptly the commander voices his dislike for Pell and all connected with him.

Pell was attracted to the village of Blackwater by reports of buried treasures, reported found beneath Newplace Abbey. Immediately he became the center of hatred of all the men in the village except Bertram Fotherbury, new owner of the ancient abbey.

The source of the anti-Pell feeling in the village soon discloses himself—Marling, the parson—who comes to Grenofen with a story that Pell is an ex-convict. Grenofen refuses to believe Marling's tale and has grown friendly with Pell.

Professor Laxton, an archeologist, interests himself in the Newplace excavations, and particularly in Pell. Laxton makes a strange arrival at Grenofen's home and asks him to accompany him on a midnight visit to the diggings. They creep into the abbey ruins and observe a furtive digger in Fotherbury's excavations.

Suddenly they discover they are not alone—someone else is observing the uncanny scene. A figure darts past them in the inky darkness and a flapping skirt betrays the identity of the mysterious watcher—Marling, who always wears a cassock.

On the following day, eight men gather in the Fotherbury library to meet Laxton and hear his opinion of the discoveries. Besides Fotherbury, Grenofen, Pell Seabrooke and Marling, three others are present: Andy Royle and Martin Somerfield, two racing-boat enthusiasts, and Dr. Eastley.

The room is charged with an air of foreboding as Pell glares at his five enemies. Laxton falls to arrive and suddenly Pell leaps to the door, closes it and locks the bolts.

Six men believe Pell is a lunatic but Marling trembles frightfully when Pell threatens to produce a "ghost" for his benefit. A ghastly silence fills the room as Pell waits for the stroke of four to make his revelation.

"Four o'clock!" Pell shoots back the upper bolt, stoops to reach the lower—but never reaches it.

A deafening explosion echoes through the room. Pell falls to the floor—dead.

Chapter 7
WHO KILLED PELL?
Pell was dead . . . Seven of us stood in a semi-circle in front of the bolted door gaping at him.

Then we all perceived we were furtively looking at each other. Instinctively we drew back and spread apart.

Pell was dead . . . But how had Pell died?

At this point nobody had spoken a word. Mr. Fotherbury glanced around and, picking out Eastley, made a sign to him. The doctor bent down and placed his hand under the body which was crumpled so awkwardly. Immediately he rose and shook his head.

"He's stone dead," said he. "No—I don't propose to touch him till—"

Mr. Fotherbury brought the intolerable and seemingly interminable scene to an end. He motioned us to our chairs, went to the side of the big fireplace and we heard the cogs of the telephone whirr. Then Mr. Fotherbury said:

"Three—two." Silence again.

"Police?" he said. "This is Mr. Fotherbury speaking. Something has happened here . . . at once . . . Is that the inspector? . . . Ah, yes! Can you come yourself? . . . Very good . . . Ask to be shown in to me in the library at once . . . Thank you."

The receiver clicked on the hook. Mr. Fotherbury turned away from the wall, sank into his chair beside Marling, and sat back with a set look upon the beams in the roof.

Then followed an eternity, lasting 20 minutes. For a long time not a word broke the silence, in which Roger Pell lay on the paved floor. Not a glance fell upon him. But he divided our thoughts with one other man—the one of the seven who had killed him—and with the man in the car, coming from Hollar Bay, who was to look first at Rogel Pell and then with cold inquiring eyes at the seven men who were in the room with him and saw him die.

Seabrooke shuddered and broke the spell.

"What are you going to tell the police? Somebody shot him. Who shot him? It's bound to come out. Can't we know? What did he mean about a ghost?"

Mr. Fotherbury again had leaned back with his gaze fixed in the roof. Nobody answered Seabrooke, and his voice faltered out.

Presently there was a low rumble of voices; then a knock on the door.

Mr. Fotherbury advanced.

"Is that you, Mr. Wayne?" he asked. "Please send the servants away."

Mr. Fotherbury listened.

"Are they gone?" he asked. "Then Mr. Wayne, a man has been killed. His body lies at the foot of the door. It has not been moved but you cannot open the door unless it is moved. . . . No, there is no other entrance to the library."

I could just hear the inspector say:

"Move the body back far enough to open the door. Disturb it as little as possible."

Eastley glanced at Mr. Fotherbury who nodded and stooped. Together they moved Pell back into the room a few feet.

Fotherbury, pale and stern, stepped to the door, and shot back the bolt and pulled it open.

A man in uniform with a peaked cap silver-laced, saluted and came inside. Immediately behind him in the doorway stood another man in uniform with a helmet.

The inspector looked around the room, appraising us. He signed to a constable to come inside, pushed the door fast and bolted it.

"He's quite dead?" to Eastley.

Eastley nodded.

"Who is he?" to Mr. Fotherbury.

"Mr. Roger Pell, who's been helping me in the exploration of the old Abbey Church."

"When did it happen?"

"At four o'clock precisely," said Mr. Fotherbury.

"Four precisely," just as though Pell was killed by appointment.

"This man was shot dead," said the inspector. "Did he shoot himself?"

Fotherbury shook his head.

"Then who shot him?"

No one replied and the inspector continued:

"The door is barred fast. Seven people saw the man killed. I'm speaking to them now. Who shot him?"

But it was useless for the inspector to reiterate his question. Nobody answered.

"This is very foolish, gentlemen," said he. "Let's get down to brass tacks. I ask you first the direct question. Mr. Fotherbury: do you know who shot this man?"

"I do not," Mr. Fotherbury replied.

"You saw him shot?"

"I did."

"But you don't know who shot him?"

"I didn't see who fired. I was watching Pell's movement too closely to notice anything else."

The inspector went from one man to another, asking the same questions, receiving the same aggravating replies.

The situation must have been intensely trying to police temper. Here were seven men, present when a murder was committed, the door was bolted, the windows high in the walls were of a type that could not be opened, the painted glass in each was intact—one of those seven men was the murderer and yet not one of them would admit that he had shot him.

The inspector's store of patience was near exhaustion.

"Mr. Fotherbury," he said, "your friends are exceedingly foolish. I have seven gentlemen in front of me, one of whom shot the gentleman behind me, in the presence of the others. Collusion to conceal the facts is a crime. So whatever you arranged among yourselves before I came, cut it out! It won't do."

The inspector thought we had cockered up this amazing yarn of universal ignorance while we waited there for him with Pell on the floor.

Mr. Fotherbury was speaking again.

"I know it must seem very strange to you, Mr. Wayne; but hardly a word has been spoken, and certainly no arrangement has been made between us. We were all too horrified to do anything."

"All!" he exclaimed. "That's hard to believe. At least one of you was not too horrified to shoot the man. Unless—"

Wounded Convict Captured Today At Charlotte

Greensboro, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Wakened by loss of blood and severe pain caused by a pistol ball fired into his right thigh by a convict guard, Charley Johnson, negro, serving a sentence for murder in Mecklenburg county was arrested here early today. He had escaped several hours earlier from the Liberty Hill rock quarry near here.

The negro staggered into a small restaurant on Church street asking the proprietor to call for an ambulance. He said he had been held up and shot. The police were called instead.

Johnson was taken to police headquarters and later to Raleigh in custody of Capt. Barren of the Liberty Hill camp.

Johnson filed his ankle chain with a file believed to have been stolen from among quarry tools. He sealed the high wire fence around the camp just before dawn. A. S. Johnson, guard, said and fired on the negro.

Charlotte Man Dies At Ocracoke Sunday

Charlotte, Aug. 19.—(AP)—The body of Winston D. Adams, 46, who died from a heart attack in his hotel room at Ocracoke yesterday, was expected to arrive here today. Funeral services are being held in abeyance pending arrival of the body at his home here.

Mr. Adams, who was for nine years secretary of the American Cotton Manufacturers Association, had gone to Ocracoke on a fishing trip. His body was found in his hotel room yesterday morning where he apparently had fallen dead while dressing for breakfast.

A native of Florence county S. C., Mr. Adams entered newspaper work shortly after graduation from Wake Forest college in 1900 and was for several years City editor of the Charlotte Observer. He left the Observer to become commercial agent of the department of commerce in its New York office.

In 1917 he was elected secretary of the American Cotton Manufacturers' Association, a position he held until 1927.

Two brothers, Joseph Q. Adams, of the faculty of Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., and R. W. Adams of Charlotte, survive. He was unmarried.

Now comes word that Harry F. Sinclair finds prison life does not agree with him and will endeavor to procure a pardon. We venture to say that what Sinclair is finding out thousands of other criminals have already learned, but they didn't get pardoned nor should Sinclair.

HIT-AND-RUN DRIVERS
Pitt County authorities again have a case of the hit-and-run driver on their hands, and it is to be hoped that investigations will continue until the guilty party is convicted and given punishment in keeping with his crime. Accidents, sometimes unavoidable, will happen, but when an automobile driver runs over somebody and then steps on the gas to make his getaway, it is almost positive proof that the driver is at fault. There is no greater menace than that type of automobile driver who will hit somebody and then run leaving the victim to die by the roadside.

THE UNCONCERNED CRIMINAL
Year after year, season after season, the woodland fires occur in New England—whenever there is a "dry spell" and a careless person drops a lighted match or cigaret or cigar into the midst of the tinderlike vegetation. The offender practically never pays, unless in the coin of remorse. Very likely sometimes he does not know that he is guilty. If he is a passing motorist who lights a cigaret as the machine in which he is riding is running at forty or fifty miles an hour, and if his match is thoughtlessly cast into the underbrush without being extinguished, he may never learn the consequences of his abominable recklessness. Meanwhile the inflamed woodland blazes and turns black, a charred reminder of somebody's defective sense of personal responsibility. What a fine day it will be when an offense of this sort is traced home, the offender caught red-handed, so to speak, and an object-lesson made of him for the benefit of all concerned.—Providence Journal.

ed by B. Fleming, of Belvoir township and displayed in Greenville Saturday.
"There are snakes and snakes in the world, but I do not remember ever having heard of one quite as small. I can't begin to imagine the species of the reptile, and like hundreds of others shall be glad to hear the report from the state museum.
"Stories of these kind hold more than passing interest for home folk as well as people in other sections of the country, and I am glad the Reflector always makes it a point of giving proper attention to things of the kind."
"I am having a mighty good time on my vacation, but I miss Greenville and Greenville people," said Rev. W. A. Lillycrop, pastor of St. Paul's Episcopal church, who is spending his vacation in Norfolk, Va.
"One is always glad to get away from home for a short stay during the hot summer months but as a rule he is glad to get back and settle down to business again. The vacation, however, does one good in that it enables him to recover from the strain of work and to get back in condition for the remainder of the year."
"Judging by the number of stills captured in Pitt county the last several days, it is to be presumed that whiskey making has been revived for the fall and winter season," remarked a citizen today, referring to the story carried in the columns of the Daily Reflector last Saturday afternoon.
"This is usually the case this time of the year, and from now on the capture of stills and members of the illicit whiskey traffic will occur quite frequently. By constantly keeping the dragnet working, officers are able to curtail the whiskey making business to some extent, but still, thousands of gallons of the liquid find their way from one border to another in the course of the fall and winter."
"Pitt county, like all others, has its worries in this connection and will continue to have them just as long as people continue drinking whiskey. When it becomes so that there is no demand, the traffic will cease, but until then we may expect. Greenville tobaccoists seek to see our courts congested by cases of this kind at every sitting."
"Reports from tobacco town indicating that tobaccoists are expecting a great season," mentioned a business man today, speaking of the many improvements which warehousemen have made for the season.

"Everybody always looks forward to the opening of the golden leaf season with more than ordinary interest, and this season is no exception. We are always working to upbuild the market and to increase the comforts and conveniences for their farmer friends and when the doors of the nine warehouses swing open to receive the first offerings, as many improvements as last year no doubt will greet the visitors.
"These constant improvements from year to year are doing much to give Greenville first place in the minds of the farmers, and in the course of years this should also be the home of the world's largest tobacco market as well as the center of the greatest tobacco producing section of the world.
"It takes vision to build up any great industry. Greenville tobaccoists have shown that they have that, and are using it in the interest of improving their condition and the condition of the thousands of farmers who market their crops here from year to year."
"We are all set for the campaign to raise $3,500 for advertising Greenville," declared a member of the soliciting committee of the Merchants Association, speaking of the drive to begin tomorrow morning.
"The fourteen members of the various committees honestly believe that they will be able to complete their work tomorrow. The majority of business men realize what this publicity has meant to them in past years, and not a one will fail to give generously to this great cause.
"If you haven't given the matter any consideration up to the present time, we urge you to do so at once and be able to decide what you are willing to give when the soliciting committee visits you. You could give to no greater cause than the improvement of the city in which you live, therefore, dig down in your pockets and contribute until you honestly feel that you have done your very best."
"Be, and it hereby is ordained that the Board of Aldermen, in regular session assembled, on the 8th day of August, 1929:
1st. That all the streets, avenues, etc., within the fire limits of the Town of Greenville, N. C., and within one city block of the said fire limits, are hereby declared to constitute a congested area and district.
2nd. That no person, firm, or corporation, operating any motor vehicle for the purpose of hauling passengers for hire, and operating what is commonly known as buses, and carrying passengers to and from the City of Greenville, N. C., shall receive or discharge any passenger or passengers on said streets or avenues within said congested area or district.
3rd. That this ordinance shall be in full force and effect on and after the 15th day of September, 1929.
4th. That any person, firm, or corporation violating any of the

Once the ideal for girls was that they be able to do beautiful needlework at home. Now they are doing things. They are clerks in stores. Some are typists and stenographers. Some are bankers. They play the organ or piano or other musical instruments. Some are becoming movie artists or actresses. Some are lawyers and judges and doctors, are teachers and kindergarteners. They even become soldiers and sometimes they become Generals' secretaries! Women also become street-corner politicians and scream the Revolutionary platitudes such as, "Down with imperialism," "Give the people freedom," to beat the most zealous men Revolutionaries. Rarely do you see meetings for propaganda or riots without seeing girls or women taking active part in them, urging on the riots. I am glad to say that some few of them are taking part in the Red Cross work in relieving that suffering of those wounded in battle. Women, too, occupy places of influence in the government in banking. Once women's faces lacked all hope and ambition, and there are still great hosts of women who are the same drudges at home or worse—in great factories. But among the younger generation they have ambition—ambition that carries them to extremes.
I'm glad to say that there are many modest, motherly women who have gone thro our mission schools who are making nice, clean, beautiful Christian homes where the children are brought up well and taught to be good useful members of society, children of whom they and missions can be proud and thankful. One can not expect great things from a nation in which the people have been brought up for ages in filth, physical and normal; but a new generation is coming on, born anew in the church of Christ and in these clean Christian homes. We are expecting much for China from such.
Things are out of joint in China; but we hope and pray that the common sense of better Chinese and the deeply planted power of the Gospel will gradually overcome the criminal influences and that China will find peace, prosperity, and a place among the great nations of the world.
Yours in Christ's glad service, (Rev.) H. G. C. HALLOCK.

BUGS SWEEP SERIES WITH THE GREENS

Goldsboro swept the series with Greenville Saturday by taking a thrilling game, which started out to be a very one-sided affair, by a 7 to 6 count.

The Bugs took the lead in the first frame, counting three runs and added two more in the third never to be headed. The locals scored three in the fourth and three in the seventh to come within one run of a tie.

Anders started for the Greens but was relieved in the second inning by Skelton, who was very effective in all but the third inning. Three Greenville errors in the fifth gave the visitors their two final runs. Coltrain pitched five innings before he was relieved by Wickers, who only lasted 1 1/3 innings and retired in favor of Heller, Bug ace, who held the locals hitless.

CUBS DEFEAT GIANT OUTFIT

(By The Associated Press) Shadows of another baseball era were called back to the Polo grounds yesterday by the finesse of two of the younger set with a lively ball, sniping at batters from a distance of 60 feet and six inches. It will be many an afternoon before major league fans see a better pitched game than the one Perce Lay Malone and the Cubs won from Larry Benton and the Giants by a margin of 1 to 0.

The Chicago speed-baller held command of his game at all times and after he finally received the support of one run in the seventh, he actually seemed to have an impregnable lead. Malone gave up five hits to only four by Benton, but only once were the Giants able to put two of them together in any one inning. This was in the third when Roush and Terry singled, but Malone got Ott on a fly to Stephen for the final out.

Malone paced only one man and struck out seven. Only one runner got as far as third base on him, and two were out at the time.

The Cubs gave him his winning margin in the seventh when Cuyler led off with a double and scampered the rest of the way around on successive outfield sacrifices by the Messers, Stephenson and Heathcote. As the Pirates were idly bruins extend their lead to eight full games. Brooklyn entertained Flatbush with a 3 to 2 victory over the fallen Cardinals and the Braves just outlasted the Reds to win by a 10 to 9 at Boston.

The Athletics will have to do with a 13 game lead over the Yankees for at least another day. Two home runs and a double by Jimmy Foxx failed to save Moose Grove in a pitcher's battle against Sammy Gray at St. Louis, and the Browns won by 4 to 3.
