

LIGHT TOBACCO OPENING HERE TODAY

Prices During First Hour Averaged From 11 To 12 1/2 Cents

With Million and a Quarter Pounds of Leaf Here Today, Market sees Lightest Opening in Past Few Years; Prices over One Cent Lower Than Opening Day Last Season; Leaf of Inferior Grade Due to Heavy Rainfall During Summer

The gates of tobacco town swung wide open today and the booming voices of auctioneers beginning simultaneously on the floors of four different warehouses...

While it was impossible to definitely determine the price average on the estimated million and a quarter pounds which the farmers offered for sale...

While the quality of tobacco offered in an opening sale is always of a mediocre brand, that today undoubtedly surpassed anything in recent years...

There is one main reason why the tobacco today did not come up to that of recent years from the standpoint of quality...

Buyers today said that their prices were something over a cent higher than last season...

The improvements were noticeable especially to the farmers who have been coming here from year to year...

The opening this season is several thousand pounds under that of last year, but it was nothing more than a record...

It had been predicted by keen observers that an amount of $1,000,000 brought here today would not come up to the record offerings of last year...

However, the sales are expected to pick up as farmers from a long distance...

CHICAGO PLANE HOPES TO BEAT ST. LOUIS ROBIN

"Chicago-We-Will" Has Already Been In Air Over 256 Hours Early Today

Chicago, Sept. 3.—(AP)—With second honors already in their possession, Russell Mossman and C. E. Steele pilots of the refueling endurance flight plane "Chicago-We-Will"...

Mossman and Steele gave indications that, although their craft was functioning perfectly, the long grind was becoming irksome...

"Hello world," said a not which Steele dropped. "If you think 240 hours in the air isn't a long time, you're all wet."

A telegram from Dale Jackson and Forest O'Brien, who set the record of the "St. Louis Robin" recently, was received at the Sky Harbor airport...

FEAR FELT FOR SAFETY JEWS IN TIBERIAS

Tension Exists in Jerusalem Because of Moslem Protests Against Policies

Jerusalem, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Fear was felt here today for the safety of Jews in Tiberias. Telephone communications with Tiberias has been interrupted and there was no information regarding what has occurred there.

Reports from other points indicated the country generally was quiet. Tension existed in Jerusalem, however, because of reports that Moslems were arranging a meeting at the Mosque of Omar to protest against the high commissioner's policies.

At Jaffa Moslems started a protest demonstration yesterday but they were dispersed by the police.

No protest meeting had been held in Jerusalem to noon today although many Arabs from surrounding villages were present in the city.

Jewish authorities here have been informed that Moslems have resumed construction work on the walling wall, the sacred shrine of Jewry and key to the present dispute between Arabs and Jews.

Jerusalem, Sept. 3.—(AP)—British Pressive efforts have so broken up the invasion of Bedouins from Syria into Palestine that only small scattered forces were said today to be making their way across the border for participation in Arab-Jewish hostilities.

Information here was that the British military, cooperating closely with the French government of mandated Syria had the situation well in hand.

British military aircraft continued their demonstrations over the invaders, showing the restless nomadic bands of Arabs the power of the British government, which was prepared to strike hard in case further outbreaks of the peace developed.

Principal danger of recurring classes seemed to exist in the north with the vicinity of said somewhat restless. One company of the south Staffordshire regiment moved northward today to aid in keeping the peace there.

The correspondent of the Jewish telegraphic agency reported the general situation was comparatively quiet and signs were accumulating that it has improved.

Thirty five Jews were arrested in Haifa and 17 in Tel Aviv on the charges of possessing firearms for defense.

Jerusalem, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Jewish telegraphic agency—a brand of armed Moslems attacked Christian Arabs at Beisan today. The exact number of casualties is not known.

An assault on Jewish colonies at Hittin and Mizpah near Tiberias was repulsed.

Troops have been ordered to Beer-sheva owing to disquieting reports from there. It is said disturbances already have occurred.

Graf Zeppelin Racing Over Atlantic Intent On Making New Record

Friedrichshafen, Germany, Sept. 3.—(AP)—The Graf Zeppelin, fresh from circling the globe, raced toward Friedrichshafen today intent on breaking its own Atlantic crossing record and lowering its mark for a round the world trip.

The Graf, which was between Spain and the Azores this morning, presumably headed for the Spanish coast near Cape Finisterre with the intention of crossing into France from over the Bay of Biscay sometime early this afternoon...

In the event it probably could cover the remaining 500 miles from Bordeaux to its home port here by nightfall and land in the early evening, completing the voyage from Lakehurst, N. J. in about 55 hours, slightly less was needed for the last Atlantic voyage a few weeks ago.

The Zeppelin's position as radioed Monday was given as 86.15 North and 21.15 West, a position about 2,950 miles from Lakehurst.

From the 5 A. M. position (mid-European) time to the mainland at Cape Finisterre was about 770 miles and to Friedrichshafen about 1,800 miles, the least hazardous part of her flight from America.

The Zeppelin's route was several hundred miles to the south of the route chosen August 7 when it began its voyage around the world from Lakehurst and completed a 4200 mile crossing to Friedrichshafen in 55 hours and 24 minutes...

If the Zeppelin were to reach Friedrichshafen by 8:42 tonight (12:42 P. M. E. S. T.) it would equal its crossing record of less than a month ago.

Aboard the Graf Zeppelin in its flight are 22 passengers and a crew of 41, exclusive of Dr. Hugo Eckner the ship's master, who stayed in America and left in charge of Capt. Ernest Lehmann, his usual second in command.

Unusual preparations were made here for reception of the dirigible and those aboard it. The townspeople were excited again for the first time in several weeks.

LEAF BUYERS ENTERTAINED BY ROTARIANS

Happy Speeches and Musical Program Marked Occasion Last Night

About fifty buyers of the Greenville tobacco market were entertained by the Greenville Rotary club last night, the occasion being one of the outstanding of the year.

The tobaccoists were extended a cordial welcome by the president, F. C. Harding, but the official welcome was left to Haywood Dail, who told what Greenville thought of the tobacco buyers and what they meant to the community.

The managers of the different companies each presented his corps of buyers.

K. W. Cobb, supervisor of sales of the Greenville Tobacco Market, expressed appreciation for the spirit of co-operation and willingness to serve displayed by the buyers of the Greenville market.

The meeting was then turned over to the music committee, and delightful musical program was enjoyed.

Federal Taxes Gain $2,000,000 In North Carolina

Raleigh, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Federal tax collections in North Carolina gained over two million dollars during the first two months of the current fiscal year as compared to the same period of last fiscal year, Gilliam Grisom, United States collector of internal revenue for the state, announced today.

Collections in the state for August of this year were $22,510,859.84 as compared to $22,080,459.88 in August last year.

The total for July and August this year was $45,900,680.99 compared with $42,612,109.91 last year, or a gain of $2,288,571.08.

August this year showed a gain of $430,399.96. July this year collections totaled $22,389,821.15 compared with $20,531,650.03 last year in July.

Premier Ramsay MacDonald Holds the Stage at League of Nations Assembly

Geneva, Sept. 3.—(AP)—The British government "declined absolutely to build against the United States," declared Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald in his disarming speech before the League of Nations assembly today.

"That is not only the word of a labor government, I think I can say it is that of a conservative government."

MacDonald announced that the Anglo American naval agreement probably would contain twenty points.

"Only three of these points are outstanding," he said. The labor leader expressed belief the agreement would be completed before adjournment of the league assembly.

The British premier, a speaker before the assembly today, had the satisfaction of hearing his informal remarks to newspapermen yesterday taken as striking the theme of the entire trend of present day international relations.

Mr. MacDonald could not say at the present whether he would be able to make his proposed American trip. Much as he wanted to, he said, the delicate situation in the house of commons, where his government has not a majority, easily may prevent his going to Washington.

He then unfolded his hopes for a naval solution of the problems which up to now have defied solution. Conversations are going on between Ambassador Dawes and myself.

"We are examining every proposal which is likely to bring these conversations to a successful termination, and the result of our examination up to the moment I left London Saturday makes us believe the problems will be overcome and a solution reached."

The premier also took occasion to warn the newspapermen against mischief makes who would attempt to construe any negotiations between the two as indicating an Anglo American naval agreement to the exclusion of the other naval powers.

"The problem is not between America and ourselves," he said. "If we come to the most magnificent agreement regarding armies, navies, air forces, etc., the problem of disarmament has just been touched."

"We are not out for that—either President Hoover or myself. We are both out for an agreement that will mean as much to the rest of the world as it does to ourselves."

Today's session of the assembly, convening at 4 p. m. is in charge of Dr. J. Gustavo Gerro, of Salvador, who was elected at yesterday's session as permanent chairman to replace Prince Foroughi, of Persia, temporary chairman.

President Hoover Returns to Capital:
Washington, Sept. 3.—(AP)—President Hoover was back in Washington today from a weekend vacation at his Blue Ridge Mountain fishing lodge with a new job—that of chairman of a National committee which is to have a start in providing educational facilities for the youthful mountaineers in the neighborhood of his camp.

The chief executive's attention was called forcibly to the prevailing illiteracy of the mountain people a few weeks ago when Ray Burraker a ragged urchin of the nearby slopes paid him an unannounced visit, presented him with an o'possum and engaged him in conversation.

SCORES HURT IN MISSOURI TRAIN WRECK

Cottonbelt Passenger Train Plows Into Freight Near Town Of Dexter

Dexter, Mo., Sept. 3.—(AP)—A score of persons were injured, two seriously, when Cottonbelt Passenger Train No. 2, southbound from St. Louis, ploughed into the rear end of a freight train about four miles north of Dexter at 4 A. M. today.

James Cox of Jonesboro, Ark., engineer of the passenger train, and his fireman, whose name was not learned, were seriously injured and were taken to a hospital in Popular Bluff. Others injured, all passengers on the passenger train, were treated for minor cuts and bruises at the office of local physicians.

The freight train, railroad men said, had been stopped by a block signal and had not had time to send a flagman to the rear end when the passenger train, traveling about fifty miles an hour, rounded a curve and crashed into the caboose.

The caboose was telescoped and several freight cars were overturned. One of the passenger cars was overturned.

REPORT NEW CHANGES IN TARIFF BILL

Revision Set Forth By Committee In Document of Eighty Printed Pages

Washington, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Detailed explanation of the changes made in the House tariff bill by Republican members of the Senate finance committee were set forth in a tentative report issued for publication today by the committee majority.

Filling eighty printed pages, the document advocated the proposed substitution of domestic for foreign values in the computation of ad valorem duties, asserted that the measure would raise the level of protection of agricultural commodities by 11 per cent and going through the bill by individual schedules, gave the committee majority reasons for the rates that it has agreed upon.

The elimination of all international difficulties in the administration of the tariff law was predicted as a result of adopting the proposed method of levying ad valorem duties. All necessary investigations, the report said, would be made within the United States, thus avoiding inquiries in other countries with their difficulties and occasional international disagreements. In addition, it was asserted that through the new method present inequalities resulting from differing production costs in various nations would be avoided.

Domestic value was defined as the equivalent of United States value under the present tariff law—the freely offered wholesale price of the imported or similar merchandise in American markets—except that there would be no deductions for transportation costs, commissions and other expenses.

The elimination of these deductions, the report said, will have the effect of greatly simplifying administration and, if properly done, will result in no change in the amount of duty collected.

Going on to agricultural commodities, the report said that changes in this schedule, as compared with the House bill, were the result of additional evidence adduced at subcommittee hearings, and consist principally of "adjustment." Substantially, the report added, the committee had agreed to "the considerable increases in rates on agricultural products provided by the House bill," entailing an estimated increase of $25,000,000 in revenue from this schedule and raising the percentage of protection from 23, under the present law to 34 under the proposed legislation.

Brock Selected to Succeed Late Senator Tyson

Nashville, Tenn., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Tennessee today had a new United States Senator and also a candidate in the field for his successor for the six year term beginning in March 1931.

Hardly was the ink dry on Governor Henry H. Horton's commission to William E. Brock, Chattanooga candy manufacturer, as the Democratic successor to the late Senator Lawrence D. Tyson before representative Cordell Hull, chairman of the Democratic National committee from 1921 to 1924 and Tennessee's "favorite son" at the Houston convention last year, announced he would seek the nomination for next fall term.

Mr. Brock will serve until the election of 1930 under the governor's appointment.

Mr. Brock was born near Farmington, N. C., 58 years ago, the son of a lieutenant in the Confederate army. His first job after leaving his farm home was clerking in a store at Winston-Salem, N. C. From that he went to a traveling salesman's job, selling chewing tobacco and receiving $30 monthly and expenses. Twenty years ago he bought a candy factory in Chattanooga.

Picket Lines Set Up By Strikers At Marion Mill; Situation Quiet Today

Marion, N. C., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Picket lines set up about the Marion manufacturing company mill, idle for six weeks, and efforts of union leaders to secure bail for 10 strikers still held of the 79 arrested as participants in last Friday's riot were the total of today's strike activity here.

Agreement to allow picketing at the Marion manufacturing company mill was reached at a conference yesterday of N. A. Townsend, executive counselor to Governor Gardner, National guard officers and union leaders. The strike leaders said they wished to picket the mill to prevent possible reopening. No indication has been given here that the mill will attempt to reopen in the near future. R. W. Baldwin, mill president, yesterday reiterated his previously declared intention of keeping it closed "forever" rather than meet demands of the strikers. His statement was made at a conference with Judge Townsend.

No efforts are being made to picket the Clinchfield mill which is running with a full day force. While Alfred L. Holtzman, organizer for the United Textile Workers, declares he still has hopes of winning the Clinchfield strike, the union leaders centering its efforts at the Marion manufacturing company mill. The latter mill was 90 per cent for the Clinchfield. Eleven strikers charged with rioting spent Labor day in jail.

A neighbor arranged bail for one late last night. This morning Dan Elliott and Lawrence Hogan, local union leaders, came to the jail to visit those still held and promised they would be bailed out before night. Hogan said he had been assured to funds for bail by friends of the union.

It has been repeatedly pointed out during the opening days of The Daily Reflector's Free Gift Distribution that the winning time of the election is in the present first period on account of the decreasing schedule of vote credits on subscriptions. Yet, it cannot be too forcibly impressed upon present and prospective candidates that this is no mere talk, but plain facts.

Ultimate winners of the big prizes are going to grasp the importance of the first period vote values and are going to compile the greater portion of their votes during that time. Of course, the first period is in force until September 30th, but right now is the time to work against the arrival of that date. Winners are going to be made between now and then. Study the vote possibilities under the first period schedule in the tabulation below and then go out after the business to get them. A day lost now will multiply the effort necessary to win many times over toward the last of the campaign.

PRESENT FIRST PERIOD VOTE SCHEDULE IS ALL-IMPORTANT—REALIZE THESE VALUES—

Twenty Six-Months Subscriptions	80,000	680,000
Ten One-Year Subscriptions	120,000	720,000
Five Two-Year Subscriptions	180,000	780,000
One Three-Year Subscription	90,000	270,000
Total of Such Group of Subscriptions	470,000	2,450,000

To these totals would be added the "club" vote of 100,000 for each $25.00 worth of subscriptions. If turned in in the first week of a candidate's activity, then 200,000 more votes for each group of five one-year subscriptions or the equivalent would be added. Both old and new candidates must realize the real voting power of subscriptions in this first period. There's no hope in last minute business in this campaign. Know that now and spare yourself time and effort.

erson's Dining Room. All marketers were delighted with the new market and expressed a desire to thank Greenville citizens who have cooperated in such a splendid way to obtain this market site and building.

Dr. R. L. Carr and Mrs. J. L. Baum each have spent many hours of their time in order that the market might be ready this morning. Others have helped in a splendid way and a happy climax came this morning when five men, Mr. Sam Vincent, Mr. Carl Langley, Mr. Clarence Vincent, Mr. Keel, and Mr. Barwick, volunteered to increase the present building to twice its size tomorrow morning.

In the near future a board of control will be appointed, the grounds will be further cleaned and beautified, and some demonstration meetings will be held. $102 worth of vegetables, poultry and dairy products were sold this morning by 22 sellers. Plans are being made now for the first year-round market. This will increase the sales considerably. For the present, the market will open every Tuesday and Saturday morning at 8 o'clock. You are invited to patronize the market. It is a place to have a good time as well as fresh foods.

Methodist Laymen To Meet.
Tomorrow morning at ten o'clock the Washington District laymen's meeting will be held at Jarvis Memorial Methodist church in this city. Dr. W. P. Few, Conference lay leader, will be the speaker. The laymen and laywomen are asked to attend this meeting.

Cousin John and I would have shared with laughter at a less serious moment. The idea of commandeering a complicated craft like Fittiper, slipping moorings, falling down towards the sea, and knowing that pursuit was probable, then asking that question...

Neither Cousin John nor I knew engines, but Veronica was not worried.

"I only asked," said she, "because engines are so messy. I know 'em, but I hate to touch 'em. However, here goes. I'll get ready to start up as soon as she begins to feel the Channel. No lights till we get outside."

Veronica had switched off the riding light.

And this amazing young woman got down into the cockpit.

"It might be as well to see whether there's petrol in the tank, Veronica," said Cousin John.

Approaching Sandypoint, we lost all shore lights except the red lamp of the ferry at Passage. The drifting boat began to rise, and fall on the Channel swell and appeared to lose way.

"Now then!" said Veronica. "I'll take the wheel. Tom you keep a lookout with Dick. You can only see straight ahead. But that's all you want. Nothing will hit us behind and Fittiper can make rings round anything coming up or down the Channel."

I gave up the wheel and crouched behind the wind-screen. Veronica sat in the middle with a sort of dash-board in front of her; as well as the engine instruments it had a small compass under a dash-light.

She switched in an electric starter and got the engine going with a noise which to my ears sounded as though it must be heard all over England. She let in her clutch. Fittiper trembled and moved.

Death Treasure

By R. A. J. WALLING

SYNOPSIS: Warned by Veronica's message that Cousin John is in danger, Tom Grenoffen and his furtive guest flee from Woodcot through the kitchen just as Professor Lakton arrives at the front door on an unexpected visit. Cousin John reveals a remarkable familiarity with the region and leads Tom quickly to the road along the sea. Here they meet Veronica who brings news that the police are searching for them. Cousin John's capture is imminent but Tom has a happy thought—the speed-boat Fittiper and France across the Channel. Veronica makes a hasty trip to give some message to her mother, and then the three paddle out to Royle's boat, slip the moorings and are off for a thrilling race—Cousin John's safety the prize.

Chapter 20

PURSUIT

Our craft floated rapidly with the tide. Veronica had the wheel in her hands doing her best to keep Fittiper from the shoal waters as she drifted down first stern foremost and then broadside.

"Now," said Veronica, "does anybody know anything about engines?"

Cousin John and I would have shared with laughter at a less serious moment. The idea of commandeering a complicated craft like Fittiper, slipping moorings, falling down towards the sea, and knowing that pursuit was probable, then asking that question...

Neither Cousin John nor I knew engines, but Veronica was not worried.

"I only asked," said she, "because engines are so messy. I know 'em, but I hate to touch 'em. However, here goes. I'll get ready to start up as soon as she begins to feel the Channel. No lights till we get outside."

And this amazing young woman got down into the cockpit.

"It might be as well to see whether there's petrol in the tank, Veronica," said Cousin John.

Approaching Sandypoint, we lost all shore lights except the red lamp of the ferry at Passage. The drifting boat began to rise, and fall on the Channel swell and appeared to lose way.

"Now then!" said Veronica. "I'll take the wheel. Tom you keep a lookout with Dick. You can only see straight ahead. But that's all you want. Nothing will hit us behind and Fittiper can make rings round anything coming up or down the Channel."

I gave up the wheel and crouched behind the wind-screen. Veronica sat in the middle with a sort of dash-board in front of her; as well as the engine instruments it had a small compass under a dash-light.

She switched in an electric starter and got the engine going with a noise which to my ears sounded as though it must be heard all over England. She let in her clutch. Fittiper trembled and moved.

"Southwest by west, two points

You'll be able to dry off, dress and vamoose before anybody at Saint Michel sees you."

The boat now ran westward about five miles outside the light on the Ile de Bono, one of the Seven Islands.

We had seemed to have the sea to ourselves, but I happened to look back and saw a vessel discharging a great quantity of smoke which smudged the eastern sky. I cried out.

"Andy's binoculars are in that locker," said Veronica. "Have a look at him, Dick."

Cousin John steadied himself. "I've got him," he said. "Warning of sorts—he's signaling something. What is it, Veronica?"

"International code," she said. "A-r-r-e-t-e—Stop—! Would he, by gum! Not this child! We don't see the signal."

She handed the glass back to Cousin John, took her place again, opened the throttle and let the engine right out. Fittiper skimmed past the last of the Triax rocks at the speed of an express train.

In 10 minutes Veronica swung hard over to port and Fittiper headed for a wide bay. A twisting lane of buoys marked a channel. Fittiper entered it.

"Whoever he is, he can't come in here," Veronica said, throttling down. "not by a long way. The tide runs out four miles. I can get up some distance. Dick: tide's making again now. There's a sandbank generally dry on the edge of the channel about a mile ahead. The half a mile or thereabouts from the little hollow—you see it, all trees?"

You can wade from the sandbank to that point."

"Little Veronica," said Cousin John, "you're a marvel. When I step over the side it may be goodbye—you know that?"

"Don't be so beastly sentimental, Dick," Veronica urged him. "Keep to the brass tacks. When you land beyond those houses, go back into the country till you can work round westward to St. Efflam or Plestin. There's a light railway connecting with the Ouest at Morlaix. Then you can get anywhere you like—quick, now, no time to lose."

Greenville And Kinston End The Season In Tie For Honor Of Basement

Greenville and Kinston finished the season by splitting a double bill before fairly large crowds in their respective towns yesterday. The ending of the season found the two clubs tied for honors of the basement. They will continue to share basement honors until the beginning of another season unless some agreement is reached for a game to decide which shall actually occupy the cellar.

However, the fans of both towns seem to be satisfied with the situation as it is. Both have the consolation of knowing that they are not enjoying the cellar atmosphere alone, and they feel alright about it because it is not the first time they have lived in this environment.

The games yesterday were fraught with usual interest, although neither club went on the hitting spree that have featured almost all other games in which they have participated during the season. Kinston took the opening exhibition on her home grounds by the score of 4 to 3 and Greenville won the afternoon game at home by the score of 4 to 2. Mr. Quigley was largely responsible for the Eagle victory in the morning game, in that he let the visitors down with a matter of six hits while his teammates were pounding out ten of the delivery of Ludke, who occupied the mound for Greenville. Greenville launched several dangerous offenses, but it was plainly a morning favorable to Eagle's and the birds walked off the diamond one game ahead of the Greenvies who occupied the cellar absolutely by themselves.

There was nothing for Greenville to do but win the afternoon game and they did in a way that carried joy to the hearts of fans who did not like the idea of occupying the cellar all by themselves. Kinston sent Quigley to the mound again in hope that he might pull the "iron man" stunt successfully, but the god of the diamond was against the Eagles and Greenville took the final game by a comfortable margin of two runs.

Anders did the mound work for the locals, but things looked dangerous in the last half of the ninth and Skelton was sent to his relief. With two men within scoring distance, the big heater followed Anders to the mound and blasted Kinston hopes by striking out the next batter. It was one of those half-raising finishes that set the grandstand and bleachers wild and when the final batter had been retired enthusiasm knew no bounds.

Many have proposed that Greenville and Kinston engage in a championship series for the honor of occupying the cellar, but whether this will materialize is a matter of conjecture. With both clubs badly in need of finances, it might be to their advantage to do so, but whether they will do it remains to be seen.

THREE GREAT GRID TEAMS HOLD STAGE

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 3.—(AP)—As warriors of the gridiron answered the call and powerful football machines sprung up sporadically over all Dixie today, three great teams, past and present, occupied the center of the stage.

These—and none will deny their fame in Southern Conference annals—were the none too high spirited Tornado of Georgia Tech, the challenging Crimson Tide of Alabama and the Tiger of the Village of the Plains.

Fifty young men hoping to fill the shoes of last year's claimants of the national football championship met Coach W. A. Alexander on the untamed turf of the new Rose Bowl memorial stadium at Tech yesterday and went through light drills but the Yellow Jacket mentor admitted he faced a great problem in replacing men from the great 1928 team.

At Alabama where Wallace Wade is expected to develop the outstanding conference contender, forty men went on hand for the initial workout, with most of them in good shape. One exception was Jess Eberdt, 1928 center, who is suffering a stomach ailment and will be out a few days. Many of the men had put on weight during the summer.

Auburn, the symbol of football greatness in bygone years, but down and out of recent seasons, evinced a determination to regain her lost prestige as 100 candidates reported to don the orange and blue.

While the Golden Tornado and the Tide tended to set a standard by which to measure the hopes of other conference contenders and the plainsmen promised a scrap for all foes elsewhere throughout the south, machines of which anything may be expected were being organized.

Thirty-five men seeking berths with the V. M. I. flying squadron held two short workouts yesterday on Alumni field to inaugurate the practice season which will close with the opening game with Hampden Sydney Sept. 21. About 12 other candidates were in Lexington but will not report to Coach Bill Raftery until taking academic examinations.

In Tennessee gridiron fans held their hands and said nothing as Tennessee and Vandy got down to business. No one knows what to expect of these teams. Vandy the consistent conference title threat and Tennessee the flash of last season.

Also in Florida there was a question mark hovering over the Gators, high scorers for the nation last year. There were rumblings of confidence among team followers despite a hard luck story given out by the coach who expects to be lucky if he wins half his games.

At the University of Virginia, Archie Hahn, former Princeton trainer, spent more time conditioning the Cavaliers than was put into football fundamentals on the opening day practice by Earl Abell, late Colgate head coach, who succeeded Earl Neale as mentor.

Twenty-nine gridlers, 11 veterans and 18 from the 1928 freshman squad, reported to Head Coach Hurler Byrd at the University of Maryland. Indications were that the team will be fast though light.

Clemson had 55 candidates on hand and Josh Cody put them through morning and afternoon practice. The number of gridlers was expected to increase to 75 today.

ATHLETICS TAKE TWO LABOR DAY

By HERBERT W. BARKER (Associated Press Sports Writer) If there existed any reasonable doubts about either major league pennant race, the Labor Day double header baseball feast seems to have dispelled them.

Victory in both ends of yesterday's double bill with the Yankees enabled the Philadelphia Athletics to lengthen their American league advantage to 13 1-2 games. Simultaneously the Chicago Cubs widened the gap separating them from second place Pittsburgh to 12 1-2 games by trouncing St. Louis twice.

The A's beat the Yanks by 10 to 3 and 6 to 5. Old Jack Quinn kept 11 Yankee hits well scattered in the opener, while the league leaders were driving George Pigra to the showers with a six-run rally in the third inning. Home runs by Simmons and Dykes helped roll up the top-heavy score. The Yankees appeared to have the second rally won, 5-4, until the ninth when three hits and Larry's error gave the A's two runs and the game. Previously Ruth and Company had shelved Rube Walberg from the box with four runs in the sixth but they could do nothing with Howard Ehmke.

The Cleveland Indians moved into third place by downing the previous holders, St. Louis 2 to 1 and 9 to 5. Walter Miller gave up only seven hits in outpitching Sammy Gray in the opener. Willis Hudlin was less ineffective than Alvin Crowder and Dick Coffman in the nightcap and never really was in trouble after the Indians had gained him a 8-2 lead at the end of the first six innings.

Six runs in the last two innings gave Detroit a 10-8 victory over Chicago in the first game of a double bill but the White Sox easily took the nightcap 8 to 2, behind Ted Lyon's fine pitching.

The Washington Senators and Boston Red Sox split even, Washington taking the first game, 10 to 7, and Boston the second, 7 to 2. Joe Cronin, Senator shortstop, hit a single, two doubles, a triple and a home run in five trips to the plate in the first game. Gaston held the Senators to seven hits in the afternoon.

The Cubs won two slugging affairs with the Cardinals 11-7 and 12-10. All told the Cubs pounded five Card pitchers for 37 hits including eight doubles and three home runs. The Cards were not far behind with 32 hits off three Cub pitchers, including eight doubles, one triple and two home runs. Rogers Hornsby hit for the circuit in each game to bring his season's total to 32. Hack Wilson got his 35th homer in the opener.

Pittsburgh dropped the first game to Cincinnati 7 to 5, but won the second in 13 innings 9 to 8. The first game saw the Reds outslug the Corsairs in the first six innings, Jackie May relieving Luque in the fifth, holding the Pirates helpless the rest of the way. In the nightcap, Sewtonic's single, a sacrifice by Bartell, and Lloyd Waner's single gave the Pirates the winning run in the 13th inning.

The New York Giants swamped the Phillies 11 to 4 in the first game, but were nosed out 4 to 3 in the nightcap. The first game was decided as early as the fourth inning when the Giants drove Claude Willoughby out of the box with a seven run rally. In the second game, Don Hurst's single in the 12th sent Klein home with the winning run. Mel Ott hit his 34th and 35th homers of the year during the day and Klein made it No. 37 in the first game.

Ray Moss and William Watson Clark gave the Boston Braves only ten hits in two games and Brooklyn took both ends of a bargain bill, 6 to 2 and 10-0. Moss, allowing eight hits, outpitched Ed Brandt in the opener and was aided by some timely Robin hitting. Clark gave up only
