DANIELS IS SPEAKER AT FARM RALLY

Says Farmers Must Organize to Get Any Attention From Government.

Rocky Mount, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Joseph Daniels, former secretary of the U. S. and publisher of the Raleigh Times and Observer, in an address today at the Upper Coastal Plantation Farm near here advised growing farmers to organize into a co-operative body and decided that North Carolina should feel the prosperity which has been felt by a few in this country in recent years.

There are only two ways for the tobacco farmer to secure better prices for his product, Mr. Daniels said. One is to quit raising tobacco, which means to cut off his nose to spite his face, and the other is to form a co-operative organization, financing all the growers of big tobacco, borrow money from Uncle Sam, agree on a price that is just and refuse to sell until those who need it are willing to pay a fair price for it. This is no easy road to fair prices, but is the only way to get aid from the new Federal Farm Board, which will deal only with co-operatives, Mr. Daniels pointed out.

Recognizing the difficulties of organizing widely separated farmers, he asserted, however, that such a method seemed to be the only way open for tobacco growers to have a voice in fixing the price of their product. The only other alternative which has appeared is that tobacco manufacturers should of their own volition divide their great property with the growers.

The prosperity that North Carolina has heard so much about but seen so little of has been monopolized by bond holders and stock speculators, Mr. Daniels said, and no prosperity is true prosperity that is confined to a few. The only prosperity is based upon such a distribution as gives just returns alike to capital invested and to labor performed.

Declaring that farm values of the country dropped twenty billion dollars during the period of 1920-27 while manufactured products were increasing by almost the same amount, Mr. Daniels said that if this prosperity had been diffused it would have meant national prosperity. He cited the government aid of the railroads, the steel companies and the Mellon Aluminum Company as examples of aid previously offered which set precedent for help for the farmers.

In pointing to need for organization of the tobacco farmers, Mr. Daniels said that the prices paid for tobacco on the opening of the eastern Carolina markets Tuesday would have been low if there had been no big increased demand for cigarettes, and yet on that same day a New York paper printed that a cigarette corporation had earned 64 per cent for its stockholders for every year the money was invested.

"Whose prosperity is it?" Mr. Daniels asked.

Certainly it has not come to the farmer and the prices on opening of tobacco markets in eastern Carolina do not indicate that tobacco growers are to get any, not to speak of their fair part, of the increased production of the weed they grow.

Attempt to Keep Alfred Smith in Political Arena

New York, Sept. 5.—(AP)—The New York World says today that a quiet movement has been started to place former Governor Alfred E. Smith in the United States Senate and thus keep him in the national political limelight for eventuality.

With this in view, says the newspaper, suggestions have been made to confidants of Mayor Walker that he should appoint United States Senator Royal S. Copeland chairman of the proposed city sanitation commission. Governor Roosevelt would then be called upon to appoint Smith to fill Copeland's unexpired term in the Senate.

The world says that Senator Copeland who is now in Europe, is anxious to retain his Senate seat but that strong pressure would be brought to bear upon him to undertake the city sanitation work as a public duty. The chairmanship of the sanitation commission is slated to receive $25,000 a year. A Senator receives $10,000. Copeland was former city health commissioner.

The bill for creation of a city sanitary commission has passed the Municipal assembly and has been signed by Mayor Walker. It will be voted on at the next municipal election.

TWO KILLED BY GANG GUNS AT CHICAGO

Bodies of Two Men Found in Shadow of Jacob Riss Park today

Chicago, Sept. 5.—(AP)—A double murder, the fifth out-break of gang wars in Chicago within a week, was committed early today in peaceful shadows of Jacob Riss Park. Fullerton and Narragansett avenues.

One of the victims was a well known west side hoodlum, bomber, terrorist and "muscle man." He was Cy Cawley the other, unknown to police, was identified after considerable confusion as Eddie Westcott.

The bodies, bearing dozens of wounds, were found on a strip of lawn bordering the park. Automatic pistols and sawed-off shot guns had been fired at close range.

Westcott was at first identified as Willie McElligott, brother of Thomas McElligott was found murdered in a West Madison street early last May 30.

Two women identified Westcott's body. One, Marie Casey, said she had known him for several years under the names of McElligott and Westcott. Led slugs were found in the bodies.

All these murdered men were associated, police said, in west side gang life. Clifford, Riley and Cawley were known as bombers, terrorists and slugs. "They'd do anything to get the money," as Deputy Police Commissioner Stege put it.

In the hands of the murdered today, police found a dime and a nickel—gang symbolism that the victims were "cheap."

Cy Cawley, about 25 years old, has been picked up and questioned in connection with many of Chicago's recent crimes. The gang massacre of last April, when seven men were shot down in a North Clark street garage, was one of them, but Cawley finally was released.

Cawley's forte was to "muscle" into rackets which offered easy money. He gained a powerful place in a garage owners' association recently, police said, by telling the association president to resign or be killed. The president resigned, and Cawley "muscled" in.

EIGHT KILLED IN CRASH OF BIG AIRLINER

Search under way for Wreckage of City of San Francisco Somewhere in Arizona

Los Angeles, Sept. 5.—(AP)—All the flying resources of the Western lines of the Transcontinental Air Transport were marshalled today in an effort to locate its Air Liner City of San Francisco, whose loss, together with the lives of its five passengers and three crew members, somewhere on the treacherous wastes of the Arizona-New Mexico border, was revealed in official announcements by company officials.

With communication lines disabled by the same storm which caught the air line in its grip, and with roads made more than ordinarily impassable by rain, searchers had been unable to find the wreck. Officials report, saying that the five passengers and three crew members died in the wreckage, listed in Washington, D. C., by Colonel Paul Henderson, executive vice president of the T. A. T., and made public here by H. W. Beck, western manager of the concern, indicated that the Air Liner had fallen about 23 miles south of Gallup, N. M.

Just before midnight last night, however, Beck announced that men from Winslow, Ariz., had not been able to locate the wreckage and that there was doubt as to its exact location.

"We sent men from Winslow to investigate and report as to what had happened," Beck said. "They have not yet reported. We have not yet found any wreckage, and we are in doubt as to the location of the plane at this time."

"We haven't the least idea where the plane is now," Beck continued. "We haven't found it, and we still are trying to. We are going to start again with airplanes in the morning in an attempt to locate it."

"Until we do find it, we are standing by the previous official statement. Advice from Albuquerque said an undertaker, sent from Gallup toward the reported location of the wreck, had been unable to reach it because of washouts. The undertaker reported that the location given was so difficult to reach that burros probably would have to be used.

The plane was last seen Tuesday morning while on its way over New Mexico and Arizona to Los Angeles. Reports that another plane carrying two men from Albuquerque to Los Angeles had crashed in the same general vicinity as that where the City of San Francisco was lost complicated the situation. Whether Indians who reported finding Airplane wreckage in that area yesterday had referred to the air liner or the plane carrying the two men could not be determined here.

Situation In Palestine Continues Grave Today; Boycotting In Progress

London, Sept. 5.—(AP)—The situation in Palestine continues grave in communities where no troops have been sent, according to advices received by the exchange telegraph agent in Cairo.

Airplanes have killed five and wounded 20 at Nablus. Large bodies of Nejd tribesmen are reported approaching Palestine. At Haifa Jewish shops are still closed. The situation is calm, however, and people are resuming work. Jews and Arabs are boycotting each other. The Anglo-Palestine Bank which is Jewish refuses bills of credit to Arabs while Arabs are boycotting the Rutenberg Electricity company and the Jewish bank.

Airplanes have repulsed Arab forces endeavoring to attack Luberias and Arab losses are believed heavy.

Jerusalem, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Moslem Arabs throughout the Holy Land and the bordering states are being called upon by highly inflammatory propaganda to revolt against the government of Palestine. Floods of this propaganda material were said here today to have emanated from Jaffa, Haifa, Egypt, Damascus, Beirut, and Aleppo, and have been instrumental in the smouldering of renewed disturbances.

Opportunity Days Open With Contestants Active

Subscriptions Carry Extra Vote Values for Entrants

OPPORTUNITY DAYS
Entering opportunity days The Reflector "Everybody Wins" Campaign is rapidly assuming the place of importance that it deserves and promises a most interesting event to follow. A general shifting about of contending positions among the districts and within districts reflects new activity on the part of new candidates and those who have been delayed in getting under way.

Opportunity days, offer an exceptional chance for others to make themselves felt in the voting. Subscriptions are carrying an extra vote value this week and it is the very last time of the entire election when any week will offer any additional vote values over the regular schedule. It is the final time when votes can be obtained at top speed. Automobile winners can be made during the next few days.

First Flurry Passed
Evidences are plain that the entrants have now passed that first flurry of excitement in the campaign and are settling down to the real business of writing subscriptions to the Reflector.

There is a feeling in some quarters perhaps, that a great proportion of the business has been obtained, but that is far from the facts in the case. As a matter of fact, only a small proportion of the available support has been claimed. More has been promised, that is true, but there are countless prospects throughout this section who have not even been seen.

Real and determined workers are going to be exerting every effort this week for more business than they have been able to get and are going to overlook no opportunity to better their vote total and chances for the biggest cars.

These are truly days for accomplishment for old candidates and are also the golden hours for those who have not started yet, nor even entered. A careful study of the standing of candidates, with their votes cast for publication, will demonstrate the possibilities of stepping up strongly into contending positions.

BRIAND GIVEN FINE OVATION BY EUROPEANS

Noted Frenchman Lauds League of Nations in Speech before body at Geneva

Geneva, Switzerland, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Premier Aristide Briand of France today received an ovation such as was due to a man of his international renown for a remarkable eulogy of the League of Nations before its tenth assembly session.

The French Premier is the greatest star in the minds of European people was evident by the immense crowd which somehow found space in the assembly hall to hear the man who inspired the Briand-Kellogg renunciation of war pact.

The premier began by saying the league's decade of life had demonstrated its active power in many domains and triumphed over the heavy difficulties which faced it at first.

"It has vanquished irony and criticism. It has the confidence of all peoples and it is a great moral force," he declared impressively.

Briand insisted that the pact signed in Paris last year was really named from the ideals of the league and announced that he had deposited a text of it with the league for registration. He saw, however, further measures to assure consolidation of the progress made toward peace.

War had been condemned as a crime, but it was now essential "not only to condemn war, but also to make war an impossibility."

"What will happen if one or more nations violate the pact? How will the signatory nations prevent it?" Briand asked.

He declared his own conviction that the League of Nations could at least guarantee that nation which dared to infringe the Paris Pact, which is now deposited in Geneva and is to have the protection of the league. His remarks of the league and the pact were punctuated throughout by tumultuous applause.

Extending his comments to the first of world affairs in general, the French Premier remarked that at the Hague reparations conference he would have been untrue to peace and concord if he had allowed "several millions of money" to prevent France from helping to liquidate the problems of the great war.

Referring to Premier Ramsay MacDonald's remarks about Great Britain's naval conversations with the United States, M. Briand called solemnly that the league covenant required the nations to reduce their armaments as a sacred obligation.

He had a firm hope that the Anglo-American conversations would succeed and that the disarmament commission of the league could convene a conference.

Getting down to what has been called the project of a "United States of Europe," M. Briand said that this idea has been qualified as a dream.

But he was convinced that there should be closer ties between the Nations of Europe which are so close together geographically, and he wanted to bring this new regime of unity into being. He appealed to all delegates to bring it to the attention of their governments and to have it studied.

Meteor Believed To Have Struck Near Gastonia

Gastonia, N. C., Sept. 5.—(AP)—Investigation by local persons interested in physical phenomena leads many to believe that a terrific explosion which occurred somewhere in this section about 2 o'clock Wednesday morning was that of a meteor which is believed to have struck the earth somewhere in the neighborhood of Crowder's Mountain a few miles west of Gastonia.

Hundreds of persons were awakened and many houses shaken. Inquiry throughout yesterday failed to reveal any explanation. It is learned this morning from residents of the Crowder's Mountain section that at the time of the explosion, the sky was brilliantly lighted. An expedition of Gastonia's plans to make an investigation today, whether admitting, in the sparsely settled section where it is believed the meteor fell.

PRICES SHOW MORE LIFE ON LEAF MARKET

Sale Continues Light and the Floors are Cleared By the Noon Hour

There was approximately 300,000 pounds of bright leaf on the Greenville tobacco market today and sales were completed by the noon hour, according to information given out by E. W. Cobb, Supervisor of sales.

With 341,948 pounds on the floors of the warehouses yesterday, sales were completed by the noon hour and the warehouses had ample time to clean up and get in readiness for today's sale. The market paid out yesterday a total sum of $41,631.00. The day's average was given at $17.17 per hundred pounds which was a shade higher than the day before.

The supervisor of sales indicated that prices were strong on good grades of tobacco, and that the general market average was expected to show a pronounced increase when the farmers begin to offer better grades.

Warehousemen urged the farmers to grade their tobacco carefully and to see that it was brought to market dry and in good condition. This fact, it was indicated, should play an important part in the price situation.

The market was today experiencing the smallest sales in years for this season of the year due to a tendency on the part of the growers to market the crop more slowly than formerly. Sales each day have been several thousand pounds under sales for similar periods in past years, but the nation is expected to take on an entirely different aspect as prices show more strength.

While Pitt county has one of the lightest crops it has produced in many a day, there is believed to be enough tobacco scattered about in packhouses over the county to keep the market humming until Christmas. Then, too, there will be thousands of pounds coming in from a distance of many miles outside the county, and when all of this begins moving in a normal way the industry will hit its old-time stride and the market will cut loose several times the amount of money paid out the last three days.

MASON GIVES TESTIMONY AT STRIKE TRIAL

Mill Worker Tells of Events in Connection With Killing of Chief of Police

Charlotte, N. C., Sept. 5.—(AP)—Guards posted around the Lorry strikers tent colony at Gastonia were ordered to bring anyone caught entering the grounds to Fred Erwin Beal, strike leader. Otto Mason, who lives next door to the colony testified today in the trial of Beal and fifteen other strike leaders and strikers. The sixteen are on trial in Mecklenburg Superior court charged with murder of O. F. Aderholt, Gastonia police chief.

This order was given by Beal the night of June 7 when Aderholt and four other policemen went to the tent colony to investigate a alleged light and were repulsed by guards. Aderholt and three other policemen were wounded, the chief dying the next day.

Mason said he could hear speakers at a meeting of strikers that night. Beal, he said, told the strikers "Mill things and stop! Pardon has come down to raise trouble and we aren't going to have it. I want guards to look around and if they catch anyone, I want them to bring them to me. What we will do soon be good for them."

A picket line to go to the Lorry mill of the Manville Jencks company where a strike had been called two months before by the National Textile Workers Union, was then formed and Mason testified: Beal told the strikers to go the mill.

Mason said he saw two guards both armed with shotguns, but later he named in his testimony, W. M. McGinnis, George Carter of Memphis, N. J., and Joseph Harrison, Passaic, N. J., union organizers and a "one legged man" as being in guard. The two guards then mentioned, he said, were walking regular beats.

One witness testified that Mrs. Vera Buch of New York, one of the defendants, spoke to the strikers and told them to go to the mill. The real guard ordered the chief cleared and the guards to take charge. The crowd went toward the mill and Beal cut out the lights on the lot.

A few minutes later, he said, several officers rode up. He recognized Tom Gilbert, A. J. Roach and Chief Aderholt.

The chief and Roach walked toward the headquarters building on the colony lot and were met by guards.

"Boys, what's the matter?" Mason quoted the chief as saying.

"None of your—business" was the reply.

"We didn't come down here for trouble," the chief replied. Gilbert then told the guard to give him the gun and the chief came up and took hold of it. McGinnis, Mason, asserted, then drew a gun on the officers telling them to turn the guard loose.

"Shoot him. Shoot him," Mason said two persons whom he recognized as Beal and Vera Buch shouted to the guards. A moment later a shot was fired and the chief started walking toward the police car.

Immediately afterward there were two other shots but he could not see who fired them, then a volley seeming to come from the back of the lot.

Mason said he did not see any of the officers fire but went into his home. When he came out again the officers were taking Aderholt "Down the street."

Harrison, Mason said, was lying on his back on the ground. He was picked up and taken into the utility hall.

During cross-examination Mason, who said he came to Gastonia from New York nine months before the shooting said that W. M. McGinnis had fired the first shot. The statement was made in response to a question by Judge Barrhill after Mason said he did not hear George Carter or any others ask Aderholt if he had a warrant.

"I ask you if one of the officers didn't fire the first shot and McGinnis didn't fire into the ground," said Attorney Tom P. Jimison.

"No," Mason replied.

"Was the shot fired the one that hit the chief?"

"I don't know."

Mason said two more shots were fired then a pause and "the whole works turned loose."

"Don't you know Beal and Miss Buch were under a table when the shooting took place?"

"No."

Mason said Beal and Miss Buch went into the house just before the shooting. Mason said he ran into his home.

"Did you know somebody shot through the camp McGinnis was wearing?"

"No."

Efforts of the defense at quizzing Mason about a "committee of 1800" were ruled out by the judge.

"How long after the shooting?"

King's Daughters Meet

The meeting of the King's Daughters was held on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. A. H. Taft, with Mrs. F. G. James assisting hostess.

The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. Thomas McGee, with scripture reading and prayer.

The most important feature of the meeting was to appoint the delegates and committees, which will be announced later, to arrange for the state convention to be held in this city at Jarvis Memorial Methodist church October 9-10.

Mrs. J. L. Little gave a fine report of the medical aid that has been given to diseased children of school age. We wish to thank all the people who have contributed to this cause, and made it possible for us to carry on this great work.

After the business session our hostess served delicious refreshments and the meeting adjourned.—Reported.

LOCAL MOOSE HOLD INTERESTING MEETING

A most interesting meeting of Greenville lodge in particular, and because was held at their regular weekly meeting last Tuesday night and several new candidates were initiated.

Supervisor H. L. Davidson gave an interesting talk on the growth of the order in general and the Greenville lodge in particular, and bid us farewell for a period of time, as he has been assigned to work at Wilmington, where he will remove his family within the next few days.

Victor J. B. Barker, acting for the lodge, presented Brother Davidson with a loving gift in appreciation of his successful efforts in Greenville and Pitt county, and we heartily extend to him our best wishes in his new field and assure him that we will put them on the map in Mooresboro if they will co-operate with him. Brother Davidson is also a member of the Masonic and Pythian fraternities, a Methodist and a Virginia Democrat, and the organization and growth of the present Moose lodge in Greenville is evidence of his ability to build a true asset of greatest value to the city and county in which he may labor.—Reported.

Cemetery Question To Be Considered By Aldermen Tonite

At tonight's meeting of the Board of Aldermen members of the Woman's Club will appear before the board regarding giving up the supervision over the upkeep of the Cherry Hill Cemetery. For several years the upkeep of the cemetery has been handled through the Woman's Club but due to failure to receive operation from the lot owner together with a smaller appropriation from the city the board has found the same recently an impossible one and for this reason they are asking the board to relieve them of responsibility in the matter at the end of the present year. It is understood that the cemetery committee of the Aldermanic Board has already given the matter careful consideration and are working out a plan for the upkeep of the property.

WHEN CHILDREN NEEDED LAXATIVE

Oklahoma Lady Gives Interesting Account of Long Use of Theford's Black-Draught.

Sagevash, Okla.—"I have taken Black-Draught ever since I was a child," says Mrs. Cora Maberry, of this place. "My mother used it, in bringing up her family, and after I had a home of my own, I continued to use it.

"My children did not mind taking Black-Draught, and so when they got upset with stomach spells, or were constipated, I gave them Black-Draught tea.

"If I found that they were taking cold, I was quick to start giving them Black-Draught, as it helped them, to throw off the impurities.

"My children are all grown now and have homes of their own, but I still keep Black-Draught in the house and use it myself when I wake up in the morning feeling dull and 'headachey', and have a bad taste in my mouth.

"Black-Draught is a simple remedy for constipation, and I prefer it to others because it is purely vegetable. I always feel better after I have taken a course of it."

DURING this hot weather particularly, it is most important to keep all perishable foods safely cold. When the temperature in your refrigerator rises even a degree or two above 50, bacteria multiply with alarming speed. In a General Electric Refrigerator the temperature is always below 50 degrees—low enough to check germ growth.... to keep foods safe from contamination.

The General Electric gives you perfect refrigeration—quiet, worry-free and economical. It has a simple device for freezing regulation. Its mechanism, which never needs oiling, is safely enclosed in an hermetically sealed steel casing, mounted on top. As evidence of guaranteed reliability—there are now more than 300,000 users and not one has spent a single dollar for repairs!

And the cabinet of the General Electric is the first and only one built entirely of steel—as strong and warp-proof as a safe. See it for yourself.

Concrete tobacco barns reduce fire hazards

Do you entrust your valuable tobacco crop to an old-fashioned curing barn built of inflammable materials?

To do so is false economy. A modern curing barn, built of concrete tile, provides maximum insurance against fire loss. It also permits accurate control of temperature and humidity, assuring uniform quality and color in your tobacco.

A concrete tobacco barn is economical to build, and will serve you indefinitely without high maintenance and repair costs.

Death Treasure

By R. A. J. WALLING

SYNOPSIS: Victory against a gunboat and more difficulties ahead! Veronica escapes from the pursuing vessel and Cousin John lands in France—safe from the police. Veronica and Tom Grenofen put out into the Channel and again meet the late French patrol boat. Another defiance by Veronica and the race is on. Higher and higher rises Fiftiper's speed-indicator, the gunboat in pursuit, funnels belching smoke, siren shrieking. Another victory is at hand for Veronica, when a shell strikes the water in front of Fiftiper, followed by another, even closer. Fiftiper's engines lose to the long-range guns. Veronica faces a conversation with her pursuer.

Chapter 22 VERONICA TALKS

Veronica put the rudder hard over and steered for the destroyer. He reached him in three minutes. The destroyer had stopped her engines and Veronica made a detour. She came alongside, keeping a half dozen yards away from her port side. Then her clear voice rang out in French:

"What imbecile fired that shot?" The conversation so begun was laughable.

It appeared the imbecile was the lieutenant in command himself. He stood at the gangway, and when he realized that the man at Fiftiper's wheel was a lady, he saluted gallantly, and said:

"It is I, madame."

Veronica went on, in her torrential French:

"You have made a grand mistake, lieutenant. You thought you had caught a poacher or a smuggler? On the contrary you have caught two English yachtsmen who've been out in the Channel all night on account of trouble with their engines and are now on the way home. You have a telescope on board, I believe? Did you think it was a good joke to frighten a woman? Look here! I'll give you my father's name and address."

You'd better write him and apologize, or he'll come over and bite you. And I have the honor to wish you good day, sir."

"Pardon, madame—but you have seen our signals."

"Pardon, monsieur, but we have not seen any signals at all."

"You have heard our siren?"

"We have, but we did not know you were talking to us."

"You have put in to the Bay of St. Michel."

"And then?"

"We have seen a man walking ashore near Pont-ar-Var. One has told us by wireless that he has apparently landed from your boat."

"One has told you a fib. How could a man land from a boat which has not gone near the shore? Your intelligence bureau doesn't function well. Again, I wish you good day, sir. And I counsel you to be more economical of your powder. Adieu!"

Whereupon, Veronica switched in her starter, and Fiftiper moved away, leaving the excellent lieutenant gaping. In a quarter of an hour he was hull down. In another 10 minutes we had the Channel to ourselves.

We talked of anything but the questions that afflicted my conscience. At last I said:

"When we get back—"

"Andy and Martin you're thinking of?"

"Hardly so much of them as of other curious folk," said I.

"I know. Up to us to get their curiosity, isn't it? I've got a mother and solve you—both understanding persons. Leave it to them."

And beyond that Veronica would not go. I persuaded her to let me take the wheel while she lay down to rest with one of the rugs around her. I meditated on the night's work.

I had joined in a grotesque escapade which might have alarming results. I had possibly been privy to a crime—an accessory after the fact to a flight from justice. And all because the blue eyes of Veronica had hypnotized me. I literally feigned to come out of my trance. With her in this vessel, the muddied ugliness of the things at Blackwater seemed remote.

But we were nearing it again with every revolution of the engine.

"You're a good pal, Tom," Veronica said suddenly.

She threw off the rug, and looked through the screen.

"Lugger," said Veronica. "We shall soon raise land—A very good pal."

We did raise land within a quarter of an hour. I carried on at the wheel until we were close enough to identify landmarks. Then Veronica took charge. She seemed to steer straight for a range of cliffs, far higher than the little ones near Blackwater.

"So we aren't going straight home," I remarked.

"Not yet. We've a call to make."

"Where are we calling? I asked."

"Silworthy Cove. I'll tell you why. It's possible we shall find there a fast motor boat which was stolen from Blackwater Creek. I happened to see a doubtful-looking person get on board her last night and drift with her down stream with the tide and go round Sandypoint."

I think my mouth was hanging open by this time.

"Don't look so flabbergasted! You remember that I met you and told you about it. We drove down the coast, keeping the boat in view as closely as possible. My mother came with us as a chaperone."

I rasped and Veronica went on.

"The point is that the suspicious person couldn't manage a racing motor-boat, and when he put into Silworthy Cove and tried to land he ran her on to the beach on a falling tide. When we had driven to the nearest point and climbed down, however, we found the boat high and dry and the suspicious person gone. It was then long past midnight."

"You had strained your ankle coming down the cliff and could not climb up again. Not knowing the country, we decided to hang till it was light. This morning, having bandaged your foot, we climbed painfully back to the car, drove to the nearest telephone, and communicated with Mr. Andrew Royle and asked him to come and take his boat home."

My capacity for thought was exhausted.

"If you can get away with th-

I began. "But Mrs. Seabroke?"

"We shall find mother in the old bus, I know where. The only question is whether any interfering person will be out so early at Silworthy Cove."

Our adventure came to an end in the placid waters of that extraordinary little notch in the coast known as Silworthy Cove, an almost landlocked pool surrounded by high cliffs with beaches of reddish yellow sand at their foot.

Fiftiper went in slowly and almost noiselessly. We looked around. No interfering person spoiled our success. We ran as near a beach as we could with safety. I took Veronica on my shoulder to land. We stopped to tie a handkerchief round my ankle.

We climbed by a steep path to the top and walked a few hundred yards to a road, where we found the commander's car, and inside it was Mrs. Seabroke—fast asleep! (Copyright, 1929, Wm. Morrow Co.)

Tom Grenofen is due for several shocks and surprises in tomorrow's chapter.

The gunboat officer gaped in amazement at Veronica's demands.

CUBS GAIN MORE LEAD IN NATIONAL

By WILLIAM J. CHIPMAN
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Even though the Cubs won only one of their games against the Cardinals at St. Louis yesterday, Joseph McCarthy advanced his not-yet-named figurative stranglehold upon the National League championship. The Pirates were considered enough to contain the Cubs to avert-off with a 3-2 decision at Cincinnati, where the Cubs won 9-1. The Cubs should sweep the rest of the schedule.

The Athletics and the Yankees enjoyed a day of rest, precluding any change in the American League where the Reds need seven triumphs in twenty-three engagements.

The Cubs missed a chance to score a double victory in St. Louis only through a six-run explosion by the Cardinals in the eighth inning. The Cubs were leading 4-3 when the Cardinals scored six runs in the eighth to win 10-4. The Cubs won the first game by a 3-2 decision. The Cubs won the first game by a 3-2 decision.

Home runs were plentiful in the double clash between the two champions and the old. Hack Wilson hit his 36th, keeping pace with Ott, who, with Wilson, moved to within one of Klein, the leader, and Hornby trailed his 33rd. Stephenson, Leitch, Scutiger and Bottomley rounded out the four-base club.

The immediate designs of the Phillies against fifth place were frustrated by the Robins who made off with both decisions in a double-header at Baker Bowl by scores of 4 to 3 and 9 to 7, the second a ten-inning contest.

Dazy Vance outpointed Harry Smith in the opener, giving the Asheville southsaw his first defeat after three straight victories.

Smith also finished the second game after it already had been lost. Don Hurst for the Phils, and Val Picinich for the Robins hit home runs. The double triumph gave the Robins a lead of two and one-half games over the Phils for the top place in the second division.

Larry Benton's pass to George Sisler with the bases full of Braves in the tenth gave the Bostonians an 8 to 7 decision over the Giants at the Polo Grounds after Melvin Ott's homer and tied the score in the ninth. Phil Veple, a Pennsylvania semi-pro, inside his major league debut with the Braves, and hit a triple and a single. Judge Fuchs didn't know the recruit's name when the lineup was announced, but only one of several Giant pitchers could have informed him a few minutes later. Veple's blows drove in two runs.

Ray Kelp rushed to the aid of Eppa Rixey in the Pirate game at Cincinnati and got credit for the victory. Rixey had not pitched the requisite number of innings—which is five in the National League—to win the game. Meine went the route for the Pirates, pitching five ball after yielding five runs in the third.

The race for third place in the American League remained close, with Cleveland a game and a half ahead of St. Louis. Wesley Ferrell pitched the Indians to a 7 to 2 victory over the White Sox by the same score. It was Ferrell's 11th victory.

The Red Sox closed their season at home against Washington with a 5 to 1 victory.

BIG GUNS OF GRID PREPARE FOR BATTLE

The big guns of southern football were finding their range today preparing against the day some three weeks hence when they will be rolled up to the firing front for their initial tests.

As the gridiron began to weigh its expectations, none among the Southern Conference contenders occupied a more prominent place in the talk than the University of Georgia at Athens, where coach Mehre unobtrusively went about putting into shape a firing piece which October 12 will be called upon to repel the invasion of Yale.

Twenty thousand tickets already have been sold for the Yale-Georgia clash which will mark officially the opening of the University Stadium, a structure eventually to accommodate 40,000. The game also will be Yale's first campaign south of the Mason and Dixon line.

Another machine which followers of the gridiron are hesitant to compare with such formidable outfits as are expected from Georgia Tech, Alabama and probably Georgia is the Blue Devil at Duke, the newcomer in the conference. Official practices will not begin at Durham until next Monday, and nothing of what "we might or might not," has emanated from the team's coaches. But if Duke puts up the front with the Pigskin such as she did with basketball and baseball after entering the conference late in last season, 1929 on the southern gridiron will have occasion for raddled song and story.

Whether the Georgia Tech tornado is to twist inexorably across the south, leveling the hopes of all contenders in a squal of last season's Devason's devastating performance, still was problematical and was expected to remain so until the first shots are fired against conference foes. Yesterday coach Alexander spent most of the time experimenting with prospective quarterbacks, and trying out men to fill the shoes of those of the team who made football history last season, but are lost to this year's outfit.

Coach Wallace Wade at Alabama quietly went about his drills in fundamentals saying nothing of what he expects of the late season battle with Tech which some say will decide the conference title: The University of each of the two Carolinas reported arrival of additional potential stars who immediately were started upon the long practice

SOCIETY ATTENDS BELMONT PARK RACE OPENING

Tennessee and Florida, which stirred up so much fuss last year, each are evincing anticipation of even greater prestige than they enjoyed last season. Coach Bob Neyland is schooling forty men at Tennessee. The Gators at Gainesville were idle today, the eye of their trip to St. Augustine, where a ten-day training camp will be set up.

Beyond the Carolinas up the Seaboard, University of Virginia and Virginia Poly worked in excessive heat, putting into shape teams to defend the good name of the Old Dominion State. Regular workouts were in order while additional candidates for the teams were arriving.

Columbia Active On The Gridiron

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Coaching staff assembled from the east, middle west and Pacific coast went into a profound huddle today in an effort to think Columbia University into something approaching championship honors during the coming football season.

Head coach Charley Crowley, back after a summer passed in the braiding breezes of Cape Cod, met his new corps of assistants preparatory to putting a squad of some 37 men through their first drill of the season at Baker Field.

Given the man-power, Columbia hopes for something of a gridiron renaissance this year as no effort has been spared to give the team the benefit of experienced and competent master-minding. Since last year Ed Walker of Stanford has been obtained to imbue the line with some of the mobility and power that characterizes the forward walls of the old fox, "Pop" Warner, while Mike Hanley has been brought from Northwestern to take charge of the backfield men.

In addition to these worthy representatives of far western and middle western football thought, Crowley has Bliss Price, Columbia tackle of about four years ago, to help Walker with the linemen, and Ray Wagner, another former star at Columbia, specialize in coaching the ends. Crowley himself will have a lot to do with producing capable wingmen as this was the position he used to play at Harvard and later at Notre Dame, where his running mate was none other than Knute Rockne.

Headed by the promising sophomore triple threat, Ralph Hewitt, some first class material is starting the long grind of two-a-day drills. With Hewitt at halfback, Charley Joyce of Buffalo, N. Y., another sophomore, at halfback and two Varsity Veterans, Scott, halfback and Stanczyk, fullback, Crowley has a potential first string backfield which he hopes will fare with any in the east.

Crowley and his aids foresee plenty of need for all their reserve material in view of the schedule mapped out for the Lions. After the early games with Middlebury, union and Wesleyan, Columbia is to tackle Dartmouth, Williams, Cornell, Colgate, Pennsylvania and Syracuse, the hardest set of opponents encountered by a morningside eleven in 20 years.
