GASTONIA COP TESTIFIES AT STRIKE TRIAL

Policeman Wounded In Affray Says W. M. McGinnis Fired the First Shot.

Charlotte, N. C., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Thomas Gilbert, Gastonia policeman who was wounded 17 times with a shotgun shot in the Lorry Textile strike ten colony shooting on June 7, today told the jury hearing evidence against 16 strikers and strike leaders accused of the murder of O. F. Aderholt, that W. M. McGinnis fired the first shot of the affray.

Gilbert's evidence was largely corroborative of that of A. J. Roach, a special officer at the time, who was wounded 14 times in the shooting, and Otto Mason who saw the shooting from the porch of his home.

Gilbert said that Louis McLaughlin was standing in the door of the union headquarters when the officers came up but that neither McLaughlin, Joseph Harrison nor McShuns fired the shot that killed Chief Aderholt. Like Roach and Mason Gilbert testified that the officers attempted to arrest Harrison when he pointed a shotgun at them.

The only variation between Gilbert's testimony and that of Roach was when he said he did not see a picket line of strikers and that he could not say that any of the shots that wounded Aderholt, Roach, Charles Ferguson, Harrison and himself came from knotholes in the building. Roach testified yesterday that the officers broke a picket line and that shots came from knotholes in the building. Gilbert said the shooting was done from windows of the union headquarters.

Gilbert, who with Roach is under indictment in Mecklenburg county on the charge of attacking a man the afternoon of June 7, was defenseless when he was shot. He denied that he was drunk or had had a drink but said there was some trouble with a restaurant owner at the Catawba river bridge when Roach "deviled" the man and the man started throwing bottles at them. Gilbert admitted running the man to the Catawba river.

Gilbert admitted having been fined $25 in Catawba county some years ago for a fight with a policeman.

Ad-in Hord, plain clothes man on the Gastonia police force, told of receiving the call for police to come to the union headquarters. He said that he and other officers met pickets going toward the mill and dispersed them.

Arriving at the union headquarters Hord said someone "near the union grounds" yelled "Shoot him." Hord said he gave chase to the person doing the yelling running toward Otto Mason's house.

Three men with guns met him, Hord said, and he stopped. He identified two of them as a man named Lloyd and another named Denton. Neither of these men are among the defendants in the murder case.

Returns toward the chief and the other officers, Hord said he saw the first shot fired. It came from the front of the union headquarters building, he said. The next shot came from the center of the building and the third from a tent. Hord said he saw Roach and Gilbert in the crowd, dispersing the pickets. Gilbert in his testimony had said he saw no pickets. Hord denied choking Sophie Melvin, one of the defendants or striking a man. Hord carried a riot gun when he went to the tent colony. Hord, on cross-examination, said he was indicted by King's Mountain thirty years ago for being drunk and fighting, and more recently for killing a boy and a man. He was acquitted of killing the boy and the coroner exonerated him of the man's death.

LEAF SALES SOME LARGER HERE TODAY

Market Finished Selling About 3 P. M. Price Situation about the Same

There was nearly twice as much tobacco on the Greenville tobacco market today as there was yesterday and sales were not completed until about 3 o'clock in the afternoon, it was made known in the official report of K. W. Cobb, supervisor of sales.

It was indicated that the price situation was unchanged, and that various grades were selling for about the same as yesterday.

The report showed there was 336,429 pounds of bright leaf on the floor yesterday, and that it brought the farmers a total sum of $40,088.36 at an average price of $119.19 per hundred pounds.

Warehousemen continued to urge the farmers to keep their tobacco dry and in good condition, that this should play an important part in the price situation.

Huston to Head Republican With No Opposition

Washington, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Claudius H. Huston, of Tennessee and New York, will be elected chairman of the Republican national committee without opposition, at its meeting here next Monday. Huston is the first choice of national committeemen and women from 38 of the 48 states and no opposition to him has been voiced by the party representatives of the other ten states.

While President Hoover has not given his formal endorsement it is well known that Mr. Huston is his choice.

British Forces Continue To Strike With Arabs; Pacification Difficult

Jerusalem, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Pacification of the Holy Land has become increasingly difficult for the small British expedition army forces which have been engaged in Guerilla warfare by Arabs at widely separated points in Palestine.

The latest disquieting development reported today was incursion of Bedouins from the Sinai Peninsula who fought British troops in the vicinity of Gaza, Southern Palestine, and at Beersheba, about 30 miles southeast of Gaza, reinforcements have been sent to the aid of the British at both points.

At the same time raiding Arabs skirmished with British troops in the vicinity of Mount Tabor, midway between the sea of Galilee and the Syrian frontier. In a skirmish at El Meshah, southeast of Nazareth, Arab looters suffered 26 casualties and a York-hire detachment of British troops, one.

Jerusalem continued orderly with considerable interest aroused by two proclamations, stating the different sides of the disorders which have taken such heavy toll of life and property during the past two weeks.

The first of these statements was from the Arab executive which met yesterday with all but six of its 48

PAY UP PERIOD TO BEGIN HERE OCTOBER 1ST

Public Urged to Settle Accounts While Annual Event is in Progress.

"Pay Up Period," to take the place of "Pay Up Week," inaugurated by the Greenville Merchants Association each year, will be conducted this year from October 1 to 15th, according to announcement made today by C. B. Rowlett, secretary of the association.

"Pay Up Week" last year was conducted during November, and resulted in hundreds of old accounts being settled to the satisfaction of the various merchants involved. It is a period set aside principally for the purpose of giving credit customers and opportunity of settling up accounts, and especially those past due, and it is hoped they will take advantage of the period this year equally as much as they did last year.

Immediately after "Pay Up Period" is over, members of the Merchants Association will begin work in connection with compiling their credit list for the following year. This list will give everybody credit for the way they pay their accounts, and credit will be extended accordingly in the future.

The Merchants Association has one of the most complete credit files of any organization in this section of the state. It is a department set aside solely for the protection of the interests of the membership. The credit rating of every person doing business with Greenville merchants is filed away and it is referred to from time to time as that person applies for credit at various stores.

Members of the Association are hopeful the public will realize the seriousness of credit protection and attend to the important matter of settling accounts while "Pay Up Period" is in progress. In this way alone will they be able to obtain the slightest recognition during the days following the pay up period.

With credit conditions being drawn more closely in all towns and cities of the country, it is incumbent upon the public to protect their credit in every way possible. An unpaid debt here will be sure to find its way from the merchants of other towns from whom the purchaser may try to obtain credit at a later date. Protect your credit by paying up all outstanding accounts while "Pay Up Period" is in progress, is the warning sent out by the association.

Man Killed In Auto Wreck Will Be Buried in Ga.

Wadesboro, Sept. 6.—(AP)—The body of W. B. Hilley, killed in an automobile accident near here yesterday, was sent today to Whitesboro, Ga., his home, for burial.

Hilley's automobile failed to take a curve on highway 20 and turned over down an embankment. He was instantly killed.

The dead man was division supervisor for the Wrought Iron Range Co., of St. Louis, with offices at Whitesboro.

The cemetery question has been hanging fire for some time, but the aldermen were unable to act with any definiteness until last night, when they decided to handle the cemetery themselves. Heretofore the cemetery had been controlled by the Woman's Club with the city paying $50.00 a month for its upkeep. In past months, it was stated, the walks and graves had not been kept clean and free from trash and the board decided that they might be able to get better results by taking over the cemetery themselves. They turned the matter over to the chairman of the cemetery committee who will hereafter have charge of the work.

It looked like something of a fight was going to develop over the post of manager of city streets, the filling of which had been continued from meeting to meeting because of the absence of different members of the board. The names of W. E. Warren, Mr. Sewell and Ernest Langley were placed in nomination against the incumbent, but when it was put to vote it was discovered that Sellars had won by a margin of 5 to 2.

Something of a fight was started by a proposal of the fire committee to purchase a new set of tires, wheels and a battery for the La-France fire truck. The board decided to make the purchase, provided they should be granted long terms, and it was at this juncture Alderman Herbert Waldrop, chairman of the finance committee and the identical gentleman who had charge of compiling the economy budget adopted at a previous meeting, came to his feet and cut loose such a mass of figures concerning the city's financial standing that the aldermen for the time being were nonplussed and could only equate at one another and wonder what "Herb" was raising so much hell about.

But as the chairman of the finance committee continued to rattle off figures showing that they would be forced to "hew the line," and practice economy to prevent a larger deficit in the general and maintenance funds, the aldermen began to see through the maze and thought they would be able to find themselves out of the perplexing situation.

Aldermen Threaten Action Against Standard Oil Co.; Cemetery Question Settled

Echoes of the filling station controversy which has harassed members of the city administration over a period of several months, poured against the walls of the city hall last night, and the aldermen again engaged in discussion of erection of the Standard Oil Company of a filling station in front of the East Carolina Teachers College.

The board at a previous meeting had "washed its hands" of the filling station question and decided not to hear any more petitions of this kind, but somehow, two or three of the aldermen got the matter confused in mind and thought that second reading of the petition for erection of the Fifth street station was due to come up last night. This precipitated considerable talk, and the more they talked the more they were forced to talk to clarify the situation.

Mayor Lanier said he thought the question had been definitely disposed of at the last meeting, but Aldermen Waldrop and Boyd seemed to think it deserved more consideration, and especially after the Standard Oil Company had gone on with erection of the filling station without asking any advice from the street committee of the Board of Aldermen. Alderman Boyd emphatically charged the oil people with failure to conform with laws regarding the construction of buildings, and said that they had cut into the street and failed to observe the property line as provided for in the city ordinances.

Alderman Waldrop read a part of the ordinance regarding the erection of filling stations, and showed where it was necessary for the oil companies to confer with members of the street committee from the board before they should begin operations for erection of any buildings. This the Standard Oil Company failed to do and went on with building operations as nonchalantly as it is possible to proceed with building.

Naturally these incidents caused the old controversy to flame anew and before Mayor Lanier and the whole board realized the fact, they were draddled in hopeless controversy. But this situation was not permitted to continue, and the question was settled by a decision that the chairman of the street committee should investigate the Standard filling station construction work on Fifth street, and that if the street had been damaged, if action should be taken immediately.

Several other matters were taken up at last night's session, but aside from the filling station controversy the only other matters of more than usual importance pertained to the taking over of Cherry Hill cemetery by the city, and the re-election of Manly Sellars as manager of city streets.

The cemetery question has been hanging fire for some time, but the aldermen were unable to act with any definiteness until last night, when they decided to handle the cemetery themselves. Heretofore the cemetery had been controlled by the Woman's Club with the city paying $50.00 a month for its upkeep. ORDER MILL EMPLOYEES TO QUIT HOMES

Strikers at Gastonia Told to Vacate houses on or Before September, 9th.

Marion, N. C., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Three textile strikers were arrested today by Sheriff Oscar Adkins on charges of "inciting to rioting and rebellion" growing from last Friday's clash between strikers and officers. Seventy nine strikers were arrested Saturday on the same charges.

The men arrested today were Zeb Webb, Ernest Ward and Dennis Ward.

Although Judge N. A. Townsend, executive counselor to Governor O. Max Gardner and leader of previous unsuccessful arbitration negotiations, and Edward T. McGrady, vice-president of the American Federation of labor, are here, both declare that no new negotiations for a settlement are underway.

McGrady expressed belief, however, that the labor difficulties here could be adjusted easily.

Approximately 800 operatives from the Clinchfield mills and from the Marion manufacturing company mill are on strike. The Clinchfield mill is operating with a day shift, but the Marion Manufacturing company mill has been closed for nine weeks.

Marion, N. C., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Notice has been given strikers of the Clinchfield Manufacturing company to vacate company houses on or before September 9.

Serving of the notice last night was answered by strike leaders, who declared that they will carry the matter to the Supreme Court of the United States before the houses are vacated.

Citizens of McDowell county were reported to have protested the searching of all visitors to the strike zone, and warrants were expected to be asked today for the arrest of several National Guardsmen on charges of highway robbery.

Charges have been made that the taking of knives from persons entering the strike zone constituted highway robbery.

While citizens were reported to have protested such action, circulars signed "Committee of Rank and File Workers" have been circulated among the four companies of the guardsmen on duty here.

These circulars call upon the guardsmen not "to do the dirty work of the bosses." They asked the question, "Why were you sent here?" and it answered, "You were sent here to break the strike."

TWO KILLED IN MEMPHIS PLANE CRASH

Miss Ruth Green and Ernest Douglas Dead Pilot Fatally Injured Also

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Miss Ruth Green, 18, Woodward, Ala., and Ernest Douglas, 17, Memphis, were killed instantly and Frank Hays, aviator, was believed fatally injured in the crash of Hays' airplane here at 10:15 a. m. today.

Miss Green was enroute to Birmingham where she is a student at Birmingham Southern College. She stopped here for a few days with the Douglass family, and she and she decided to fly over Memphis as an outing.

Something went wrong with Hays' ship over Park Field at Millington, Memphis suburb, and it dived. Miss Green and Douglas were dead when taken from the wreckage. Hospital attaches said Hays' chances of recovery were slim.

Havana—All public dance halls, some 50 in number, have been closed by the authorities. Women's clubs complained of them as dens of iniquity.

Several hundred Zuni Indians around Gallup and Zuni lent their keen eyes and desert training to the hunt.

An order from T. A. T. headquarters in St. Louis, suspended eastward service on the line but announced that a westbound plane would proceed as far as Winslow today to join two T. A. T. airplanes there.

A band of twenty cowboys added Indians, 3 Seachers aloft and on their efforts to those of the Zuni horseback were made up from the small communities along the Arizona-New Mexico border.

Greensboro, N. C., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Guilford county officers today continued on apparently fruitless search for clues to the slayer of Robert Smith, 55-year-old bachelor and retired salesman whose body with a gunshot wound in the back of the head was found late yesterday in his farmhouse near the Guilford-Randolph county line.

County Coroner W. W. Harvey issued a call for a coroner's jury to hold an inquest at a Greensboro undertaking establishment at 5 o'clock this afternoon. Sheriff D. B. Stafford is directing the investigation.

The robbery theory, advanced when Smith's watch was not found on his person, was discarded today when the valuable diamond studded timepiece was found in an upstairs room. A billfold containing three dollars was also found.

Officials expressed belief the slayer stood outside the house and fired the fatal shot through a window.

ARMY ASSISTS IN SEARCH FOR LOST AIRLINER

Several hundred Indians also search Arizona Wastes for San Francisco

Gallup, N. M., Sept. 6.—(AP)—The greatest aerial hunt in the history of American aviation was being organized today to seek the lost liner City of San Francisco, which was swallowed up somewhere in the great southwest as it flew through stormy weather from Albuquerque toward Window, Ariz., last Tuesday with eight persons aboard.

Because first reports indicated that the plane was forced down in the forbidding volcanic area south of Gallup, officials of the Transcontinental Air Transport operators of the air liner, and others chose Gallup as the central point for directing the hunt.

The aerial armada, marshaled from several states for the search, was virtually without a clue. One by one the reports of its wreckage having been sighted were run down yesterday, and each time the searchers returned and reported they had seen nothing but brownish desert and extinct, forbidding volcanic peaks.

Supplementing the aerial searchers were hundreds of wary Zuni Indians, wise to the ways of the desert and mountains, as well as uncounted automobile parties and cowboys.

The variegated expanse from Texas to Southern California was the field that had been searched. A reward of $5,000 offered by the T. A. T. spurred the searchers all the more.

Search for the missing air liner City of San Francisco today embraced the wild stretch of territory from Albuquerque, N. M., to the Imperial valley of California, with at least 70 airplanes actively engaged or under orders to proceed.

An area about 500 miles in diameter, centering at Gallup, N. M., had been covered. Additional searchers included the planes of Bryce and John Grayson in South Utah and the Grand Canyon of the Colorado river in Arizona.

All the army planes in the southwest were placed at the disposal of the searchers on orders from the war department. Thirteen navy planes and fifteen army planes at San Diego, likewise were made ready for the hunt. T. A. T. officials announced that 25 private and commercial planes would take off as Los Angeles to join the seventeen planes now in the vicinity of Gallup.

A band of twenty cowboys added Indians, 3 Seachers aloft and on their efforts to those of the Zuni horseback were made up from the small communities along the Arizona-New Mexico border.

Continue Search For Murderer of Guilford Bachelor

Greensboro, N. C., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Guilford county officers today continued on apparently fruitless search for clues to the slayer of Robert Smith, 55-year-old bachelor and retired salesman whose body with a gunshot wound in the back of the head was found late yesterday in his farmhouse near the Guilford-Randolph county line.

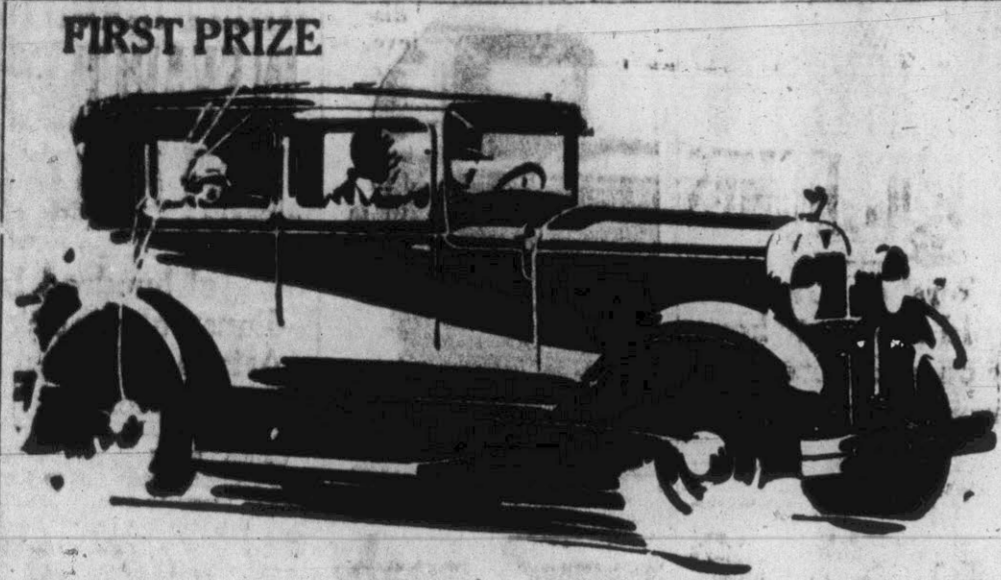

County Coroner W. W. Harvey issued a call for a coroner's jury to hold an inquest at a Greensboro undertaking establishment at 5 o'clock this afternoon. Sheriff D. B. Stafford is directing the investigation.

Officials expressed belief the slayer stood outside the house and fired the fatal shot through a window.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Joseph Sobbie, former pugilist, was shot and seriously wounded during an argument here early today. Physicians at a hospital where he was taken said Sobbie had little chance for recovery as the shot entered his stomach.

METHODIST CHURCH TROOP HAS IMPORTANT MEET

Last night the Boy Scouts of the Methodist church held one of the most important meetings of the summer. Instructions by Jake Skinner, an Eagle Scout, featured the September signifying period. Other work leading to the second class badge was explained.

On next Thursday evening the local troop will meet at the church at 5:30 and proceed to the camp grounds, where tests in signaling and cooking will be given. After supper, events especially suited to the camp fire will take place. Further information may be obtained from Scoutmaster Joe Taft.

List for cooking: Frying pan (small), eggs, bacon, bread, matches and knife. Or, the food used for cooking in passing the test may be used as the scout's supper. Those who are able should bring hot dogs, rolls and mustard. One scout may bring the dogs, another the rolls, and another the mustard, by previous agreement.

The handbook should be referred to carefully as to the manner of passing the cooking test. Each boy must have flags with him on the night of the outing. (See handbook as to making flags).

Death Treasure

By R. A. J. WALLING

SYNOPSIS: Forced to stop by the gunboat's shots, Veronica steps Fifthper to the side of the patrol. In torrential French she demands to know the reason for firing on an innocent yachtsman, insists on an apology and leaves before the chief officer has a chance to question or detain her. She turns Fifthper toward England and it is Tom Grenofen's turn to be amazed as she outlines her plan to account for their absence during the night. She intends to claim that, seeing a suspicious character steal off with Fifthper, she, her mother and Tom talked the boat in her father's car, to Silworthy Cove, where it was deserted. And Tom is further dumfounded when they land at the cove to find the car there, and in it—Mrs. Seabrook, fast asleep.

Chapter 23
A CONFIDANT

I adopted the affectation which Veronica had set up. I asked no questions and showed no surprise. I accompanied Veronica docilely to a telephone and stood by while she told her story to Royle. I went with her and her mother to the inn and bargained for breakfast.

Royle and Somerfield came not long after we had breakfasted. Somerfield readily agreed to take the boat back. He said little during the colloquy between Royle and Veronica, but looked very hard at me. I thought, We waited while he waded out, climbed on board and started the engine.

Then Royle took Veronica in his car and Mrs. Seabrook drove me home. We were in Blackwater before lunch time, though long after the arrival of Royle and Veronica.

My mother's nerve was quite equal to receiving me as if I had just gone for a stroll after breakfast and come in to lunch. But when, later on, she told me what happened the night before her face-froid appeared literally astonishing.

While Cousin John and I were in his room talking she thought she heard a sound and saw somebody moving in the garden and went out in the direction of her rose garden. While she was there the electric bell in the house rang, but she continued her walk.

Suddenly she heard thudding footsteps. Cousin John and I ran by her within a yard.

Then she guessed at an alarm. She delayed her return to the house for several minutes. Laxton was waiting for her in the drawing room.

"Sorry I wasn't in, professor," said my mother. "Tom's gone to see my Cousin Merryweather off. I don't quite know when he'll be back."

"What did he say to that?" I asked her.

"He inquired if Mr. Merryweather was returning to Blackwater."

"And you—"

"I said I rather expected him back tomorrow."

"Mother!"

"Well, Tom," said she, "so I do. I telephoned to him this morning. He'll be here this evening."

John Merryweather, her cousin, was a rather amusing bachelor, fond of her in his old-boyish way. But I should certainly never have dreamed of dragging him into this business.

"I suppose you know we're skating on thin ice," said I.

"I'm rather enjoying it," she answered. "I rely on your judgment, Tom, to justify all we've done."

But that was just the mischief I could not even rely on my own judgment; it was so hopelessly deflected by the blue eyes of Veronica.

We seemed to have covered our tracks fairly well for the time. But you could never tell. I found myself hating to go into my studio merely because behind the door of my safe there was a certain black bag.

After lunch I went to rest in a hammock in the garden and in about five minutes I was sound asleep.

I waked up hearing voices. I opened my eyes and saw my mother and Somerfield looking down on me.

"Hello," said I, "anything up?" "Nothing up," mother replied. "Mr. Somerfield called to inquire about your foot."

I had forgotten the injured foot. "Foot's almost right now," I said. "Then come and take a cup of tea, late as it is," she advised me. My mother left us over our tea.

"Well, Grenofen," said Somerfield, "isn't it time to drop the lone hand stunt?"

"If you'd be a little more explicit—"

"Last night's business," he said laconically.

"Rather, lucky for Royle—"

"Oh, come off it!" exclaimed Somerfield. "I don't know what Andy thinks. But you can't work it off men, Grenofen. Don't you think Veronica's too decent a girl to be mixed up in this?"

"Not explicit enough," I shook my head.

"Very well. You got somebody away last night across the Channel. Don't say you didn't. There were 30 gallons of gasoline in the tanks, and this morning I had just enough to get back with."

"And then?" said I, as Veronica had said to the lieutenant. "What about it? Where are we?"

"I don't know where we are. But I know where that bum professor is. He's on your trail good and close. And I'd hate to see Veronica in any nastiness."

"Laxton on my trail?"

I sat back in my chair and looked up at Somerfield, who stood hands in pockets with serious eyes fixed on me.

"Look here, Somerfield," said I, "you don't think I'm a rogue?"

"No."

"You don't think I'd let Miss Seabrook in for trouble if I could possibly keep her out of it?"

"No."

"I wonder if I could take you into my confidence? Of course, I know I could with safety. But I mean whether you'd think it proper to be juggled into a funny business?"

"What did I say just now about the lone hand?" asked Somerfield. "I'll tell you how it strikes me:

It is the most speedy remedy known you've tumbled into a place you can't get out of by yourself. Grenofen. I came over on purpose to find whether I could help you out."

The idea of a confidant was attractive. I should have to reveal Veronica's secret so far as I knew it; but I believed I could rely on Somerfield's honor. In 10 seconds I had taken the plunge.

"Very well," said I. "I'll be glad of your advice and to compare notes. But you understand, Somerfield, we may find ourselves up against the police—"

"May!" he exclaimed. "My dear Grenofen, we—that is, you—are hugging the police already. How ever, tell the yarn."

I told it. Everything—from the glimpse of Veronica on the morning before Pell's death to the flight across the Channel. He listened without remark.

"Can you puzzle anything out of it?" I asked him. "It beats me," he said. "Not much. But let's get what we can. That professor! He's a professor of Pinkerton's College. He's a policeman." (Copyright, 1929, Wm. Morrow Co.)

Market Report Cotton--Stocks--Grain

COTTON MARKET, N. Y. STOCK LIST

New York, Sept. 6.—(AP)—The cotton market opened steady today at an advance of 5 to 10 points, there was further selling on the Texas rain news, but it was lighter after the heavy liquidation of yesterday, and there seemed to be some trade buying which helped to steady prices right after the opening.

Covering was promoted by a crop report placing the condition of the crop at 55.8 and the indicated yield at 14,712,000 bales. Prices worked up to 19.37 for December and 19.59 for March or 13 to 16 points net higher, but demand tapered off at the advance and trading was quiet at the end of the first half hour.

Liverpool cable advices said that the market there was inactive and that trade calling had absorbed a quarter liquidation.

GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Revival of export interest and unfavorable crop comments from the southern hemisphere pulled wheat prices out of early soft spots today and the range was narrow and trading moderate. Values were firmer on the average. Short covering and strength of corn were supporting factors in the wheat pit.

Wheat finished strong 11-1/2 to 15-8 higher, and corn strong at 5-8 to 17-8 advance; Oats were 1-2 to 3-8 to 3-8 up.

Provisions closed easy, unchanged to 32 cents lower with beans suffering the big loss.

STOCK MARKET

New York, Sept. 6.—(AP)—The stock market quickly recovered today from the scare when sent prices tumbling in the last hour of yesterday's session, bounding upward in impressive fashion under the leadership of the public utility issues. Some uneasiness was apparent at the opening but the resumption of large scale buying operations by professional pools restored speculative confidence and by early afternoon nearly all of the leading groups presented several outstanding strong spots.

Opening strength and activity of the market leaders was interpreted as an indication that stocks had passed from weak to strong hands in yesterday's break. Very little distress selling came into the market and traders who sold short on the break were forced to cover at higher prices. Operators for the advance apparently were not disturbed by the prediction of a well known statistician that a drop in prices rivaling the Florida land boom collapse was coming, which caught the market off balance yesterday and was generally held responsible for the late reaction.

While it was generally agreed that the market had reached a top-heavy speculative position yesterday, speculative opinion was still widely divided as to whether the weakened position had been sufficiently corrected. Conservative commission houses again urged their clients to keep their accounts in a liquid condition while others suggested a limitation of current activities to a few of the recent leaders in which special developments are believed to be pending.

Call money dropped from 9 to 8 per cent, the first change in about a week, but time money rates held firm with business quiet. The acceptance market was more active. Publication of the terms of the government's September financing, with a coupon rate 1-4 of 1 per cent below the previous issue, was widely accepted as an indication that no credit stringency is likely although fears are still entertained for a temporary mid-month pinch.

Burns any fuel.

COLE'S ORIGINAL Cabinet Circulator

Facts You Should Consider

The patented Air-Vac tube burns all the gas from your fuel—the part that other stoves waste. This alone cuts your fuel bill at least one-third. You can save enough in one winter to buy that new Radio.

This circulator will not only give comfort and convenience, but will harmonize with the most luxurious surroundings.

Low base heat insures warm floors.

Patented anti-puffing draft prevents puffing.

Louvers on sides and front assure warm floors.

Steady, even heat, day and night, warm floors, perfect circulation—all these are essential to the health and comfort of your family.

Install a Cole's Hot Blast today—be sure that your loved ones are enjoying these vital factors and put an end to your heating problems for all times.
