MILL WORKERS TAKE STAND IN MOB INQUIRY

Two Employees of Loray Mills Testify in Judge Shaw's Court Today

Charlotte, Sept. 16.—(AP)—Two Loray mill employees took the witness stand today and gave testimony in an effort to establish a club for their night superintendent C. A. Jolly, one of the 14 men arrested in Judge Thomas J. Shaw's inquiry into "anti-Communist" mob violence in three counties on the night of Sept. 9. Judge Shaw's hearings were resumed today after a week-end recess.

Two witnesses, W. A. Walker and E. E. Roberts, testified during the night of the mob activities. Walker said he saw the superintendent on these occasions, several hours apart and Roberts said Jolly passed through the weaving department of the mill in which he was employed at half-hour intervals on the night in question.

Lane was sworn and said he and Goodman started early in the night to a scheduled meeting at the Pinckney mill, but that their car broke down. They were deputized, he said, by a Gaston county deputy sheriff, to assist in patrol duty at the Pinckney mill where "trouble was expected." He added that he armed himself with a pistol.

Lane testified that he did not know Lell or Wells.

"Were you acquainted with Saylor?" he was asked.

"Yes, Saylor was working for me and I fired him when we found out he was trying to organize our help," Lane replied.

Lane is an overseer in the spinning rooms in the Myers mill.

He declared that the expected "mob" did not materialize and that Mrs. Lodge's home was approximately three miles from the place where he was on duty.

Six other Loray mill employees took the witness stand in rapid succession and substantiated the testimony of Walker and Roberts regarding Jolly's whereabouts.

One of the six was a brother-in-law of Mrs. Perry Lodge, a state's witness and the woman from whose home C. D. Saylor, C. M. Lell and Ben Wells were kidnaped and the latter flogged by the mob.

Plummer Stewart, attorney for the 14 men, indicated that he would continue his practice of presenting testimony by several witnesses in behalf of each of his clients. An effort was made to establish an alibi for C. M. Ferguson, one of the accused men, at Saturday's hearing.

"Now that you have heard these men who know Jolly," Mr. Stewart said in addressing Judge Shaw, "we want to take the testimony of two more of the defendants, Horace Lane and Oscar Goodman, and two others who know about their activities on the night of Sept. 9."

Asked what he was patrolling for, Lane said that the sheriff told him he saw any violence to take charge and stop it.

He added that besides going to the Pinckney mill he went to the Weaver mill about a mile distant.

Lane said several other persons were with him and that he was discharged about 11:30 p. m. He added that he did not know of the kidnaping until he read of it the next day.

Ben Wells, British textile worker, and organized for the National Textile Workers Union, was in court today and Judge Shaw halted the defense proceedings to take his testimony.

Wells said he came to New York from England in 1926 and since that time had been a union organizer.

Turning to the night of the kidnaping Wells said that when he was at the Gastonia bus station and heard bugles blowing, he then went to the lodge home and soon afterward a number of men came to the house.

Wells did not know the names of the men, but pointed out in the court room Dewey Carver, A. G. Morehead, Smiley Lewis, John Holly, Carl Holloway and Lee Johnson as being among the crowd.

The men entered the house, he said, dragged him out and when he started speaking a man identified as Carver, told him to stop. He said they took him to the Catawba river, where they made him call up Hugo Hecher. Then they took him to Charlotte. Wells related the circumstances of the effort of the mob to get him to make an engagement with Hecher to meet them in Charlotte and how he evaded them by telling Hecher to meet him at a corner that does not exist.

Wells said he was knocked unconscious when he told one of the men not to be ridiculous and did not regain consciousness until the party was well on its way.

PRICES SHOW MORE LIFE ON LEAF MARKET

With Half Million Pounds Here Today, Sales Were Completed at 3 O'clock.

There was approximately a half million pounds of bright leaf on the floors of the nine warehouses here today, according to the report of market activities given out this morning by K. W. Cobb, supervisor of sales. It was indicated that sales would be completed about 3 o'clock.

Prices were reported somewhat higher on bodied tobacco, with bidding decidedly more lively than last week.

Factories and warehouses were able to clean up their floors over the week end and the market started off this morning with a clean slate.

Tobaccoists continued to advise farmers to market their tobacco as carefully as possible and to keep it dry and in good condition.

FOUR INJURED IN AUTO WRECK IN THIS COUNTY

Washington Man is Probably Fatally Injured in Collision Near Farmville.

Alex String, of Washington, received probably fatal injuries in an automobile accident on the Farmville-Greenville highway, about two miles from Farmville, last Saturday morning, according to information reaching this city today.

String and son, Leon, and nephew Jack Watson, occupants of the same car, were also injured.

The party was headed from Chapel Hill where Leon Watson was to have entered school when the accident occurred. The Watson car was going around a long bend in the road, skidded on the wet pavement and collided with a truck carrying a load of boddled drinks. The driver of the truck was also said to have been slightly injured.

All of the party were rushed to the Farmville clinic hospital where they received medical aid, and while it was thought at first that all injuries were of a minor nature, it was discovered later that Mr. String grandfather of Leon Watson, had been badly hurt, but physicians at the time were unable to say how seriously.

ACTION STILL CONTINUES IN LIQUOR CASES

Several Arrested in Recent Drive Given Hearing Before U. S. Commissioner

T. E. Beaman, United States commissioner, continued hearings today in the cases of several of the fifty or more members of the illicit whiskey traffic rounded up by federal and county officers here last week. The defendants in virtually all cases were bound over to federal court under bonds ranging from $500 to $1,000.

The eight bootleggers named in warrants issued here last Saturday had not been brought into court today, but the commissioner stated that their cases quite likely would come up for hearing during the early part of the week. Three or four bootleggers rounded up by county officers will receive hearing before Judge W. L. Whedbee in county court tomorrow.

While the major part of the campaign against the handlers of contraband whiskey has been finished, it was stated that operations would be continued from day to day until a cleanup of the entire county had been effected. Additional warrants are expected to be issued during the latter part of the week, but no information was given out concerning the extent of the arrests.

The drive is one of the most far-reaching that has been conducted in this part of the state in some time, and has resulted in the capture of men who have been engaged in the traffic for years. A considerable quantity of whiskey and three automobiles were confiscated by the officers last week, and it is expected more whiskey will feature the arrests this week.

The dragnet has penetrated to the farthest ends of the county, and officers were hopeful that they would be able to snare some of those "higher up" in the traffic. It was believed that the rum runners from other counties had been completely scared off for the time being, and this has greatly decreased the amount of whiskey handled daily by county bootleggers.

In fact, the wholesale raids has thrown terror into the camps of the traffic members and from now on whiskey is going to be harder to get than it has been before in years. Virtually all law enforcement agencies in the county are assisting the government officers in their work and this has resulted in the raid taking on a much wider scope than it would have otherwise.

State's Attorney Quits at Chicago

Chicago, Sept. 16.—(AP)—David Stansbury, special assistant state's attorney in charge of investigations into election frauds and sanitary district graft charges and the North Clark Street gang massacre has handed his resignation to State's Attorney John A. Swanson.

The reported reason assigned by Stansbury for desiring to retire was "enforced inactivity."

The three investigations which Stansbury directed involved the major matters of official inquiry in Chicago during the last year.

Several of the vote fraud cases, arising out of the 1928 primary election, have been brought to trial, most of them terminating in acquittals. The state's attorney's office has indicated that several pending vote fraud cases will be dismissed.

Three Youths Are Drowned in S. C.

Latta, S. C., Sept. 16.—(AP)—Woodrow Goodan, 13, met a hero's death yesterday.

He and his brothers, Wilbur, 9, and Atlas, 7, were boating on a lake at Oak Point, one mile from Latta, when their craft capsized. Seeing the peril of the younger boys, Woodrow tried to save them, but all found watery graves.

A little child, a short spectator of the tragedy, gave the alarm.

The victims were residents of this community. Their bodies were recovered.

Slaying Of Woman By Mob Has Complicated Charlotte Situation

Charlotte, N. C., Sept. 16.—(AP)—The slaying of a woman active in strikers' relief work during Saturday mob activities against communists and labor organizers, with the subsequent arrest of seven men, today had brought further complications to North Carolina courts which now have before them five trials and hearings growing out of mob violence in textile mill strikes.

Meanwhile, officials and workers of the communist party and the National Textile Workers Union, who stated after the mob flogging and kidnaping of some of their members that they had heard of threats against their lives from self-styled "anti-Communists," adopted a policy of shifting from hotel to hotel or else, keeping their whereabouts secret. Several attorneys active in the strike cases had moved from their homes to hotels where they were reported shifting their rooms night to night.

Considerable attention was drawn today to the announcement that the International Labor Defense would hold a mass funeral tomorrow for Mrs. Ella May Wiggins, who was shot to death during the mob frenzy Saturday. Liston M. Oak, of New York, publicity director of the organization said a sign would be placed on the house where the body lay, reading: "Ella May, slaughtered by the bosses black hounded. Martyr to the cause of organized labor."

Interest in the cases against the 47 persons under charges in connection with strike violence centered in the resumption here today of two hearings, one involving 14 alleged anti-Communists members of last Monday's mob which flogged one union man and kidnaped two others, and the other, eight communists and union members charged with conspiring to overthrow the government in North Carolina. A third hearing, involving two unionists arrested on charges of carrying concealed weapons was set in Gastonia.

The inquest into the slaying of Mrs. Wiggins, for which seven men have been arrested and placed under bond of $2,000 each on charges with manslaughter, was recessed yesterday until next Saturday. Trial of 16 men and women for the slaying of Police Chief O. F. Aderholt of Gastonia, a mistrial of which was followed immediately by the mob activities last Monday, will come up again at the next term of court here.

The seven charged with responsibility for Mrs. Wiggins' death include four men who occupied a car which forced a truck load of strikers fleeing from a mob off the Gastonia-Bessemer City highway and three who were in the truck with her.

F. T. Morrow was the driver of the car which forced the truck off the road and collided with it and his companions were Theodore M. Sims, Lowry Davis and Troy Jones. Others charged with manslaughter are George Lingerfelt, driver of the truck; L. Sossman, and Will Lunsford, employees of the Loray Mill at Gastonia.

Warrants for the seven men were issued at the request of Solicitor John G. Carpenter.

Mrs. Wiggins was shot and wounded fatally just after the truck load of Textile Union members and the automobile collided.

Cases of eight persons charged with conspiracy to overthrow the government were set for Recorder's court here today. The charges followed seizure in a house here Thursday night of a large quantity of arms and ammunition, including several riot guns.

Two of the eight so charged are C. M. Zell and C. D. Saylor, who with Ben Wells, organizers for the National Textile Workers Union, were kidnaped last Monday night by a mob of "anti-Communists." Wells was flogged but Zell and Saylor were not harmed.

Judge Thomas F. Shaw of Superior court, sitting as a committing magistrate, began an inquiry into the kidnaping and flogging immediately after it was reported.

Liston M. Oak, the International Labor Defense publicity director, and A. M. Grier, state charges of carrying concealed weapons and reckless driving respectively in Gastonia Recorder's court today.

They were arrested Saturday as they approached the place in South Gastonia where a Communist rally had been advertised to take place.

Reflector Receives World News at Rate of 60 Words a Minute All Thru Day

Always endeavoring to keep in step with the latest and most modern methods of transmission of news, the Associated Press today began delivery to the Reflector of its world-wide telegraphic news report over the fastest telegraph typewriter available.

The new machines, which supercede slow-speed printers used for more than two years to deliver the report, operate at the rate of 60 words per minute, turning out copy ready for the telegraph editor to write heads over and send to the composing room.

The telegraph typewriter, or printer, came into use some years ago in answer to constantly increasing need for more complete telegraphic news reports. The old Morse system of transmission was for many years the last word in news transmission but it always was subject to the frailties of the human in that men were required both for sending and receiving the report.

The 30 word printer than came into being and delivered approximately as much copy as the Morse telegraph wire. Next came the 40 word printer then the 60 word.

The printer telegraph system is operated by one man working in the relay office. Each morning just before time for the circuit to start the power is turned on the machines in this office. Promptly at the designated hour the circuit is started and operates without break until closing time.

SEES DELAY IN 5-POWER NAVAL MEET

Stimson Says Confer- ence May Be Called in January Instead of December.

Washington, Sept. 16.—(AP)—Secretary Stimson said today recent developments might necessitate holding the proposed five power naval conference in January instead of December.

The state department head explained the necessity of thorough preparation might cause a postponement of previously announced plans.

Up to the present the thoughts of diplomatic and naval officials both here and in London have been confined to the Anglo-American negotiations to obtain a naval understanding between the United States and Great Britain.

When looked at, however, from the broadest view, the calling of a parley in which the United States, Great Britain, Japan, France and Italy would participate, it was realized that the preparations for the conference would take longer than had been expected.

The necessary interchange of messages, some of which must go by mail, and the long distance between the continents involved are factors which must be taken into consideration in determining upon a date.

Japan, the farthest away from London, which city is considered as the likely meeting place, also would have to start its delegation in advance of the convening time in order for its representatives to arrive on schedule.

The secretary also said there were difficulties presented by the possibility of a conference sitting during the Christmas holiday.

GRAND JURY TO PROBE RIOTING AT MARION, N. C.

More Than 80 Mem- bers of Textile Union Being Held Under Bond

Marion, N. C., Sept. 16.—(AP)—The McDowell county grand jury will begin its probe this week of the textile strike riot in which Sheriff Oscar Adkins and several deputies were beaten with clubs and stones by strikers from the Clinchfield and Marion manufacturing company mills.

J. W. Pless, district solicitor, has announced the cases will be given to the grand jury this week. The more than 80 members of the United Textile workers of America, including Alfred L. Hoffman, southern organizer, who are charged with rioting against the State of North Carolina, waived preliminary hearings and were released on bond.

The strikers will be defended by D. F. Giles, Marion attorney; Charles Hutchins, of Burnsville, and a New York attorney to be sent here by the American Federation of Labor.

Banker Still Held in Jail at Cheyenne

C. D. Wagoner Near- ing Final Account- ing of $500,000 Check Conspiracy

Cheyenne, Wyo., Sept. 16.—(AP)—Although he is one step closer, a final accounting for his $500,000 manipulation at the expense of six New York banks, it appeared likely today that C. D. Wagoner, president of the closed Bank of Telluride, Colo., will remain in the Larimer county jail here for perhaps a week.

Handcuffed and chained to a deputy sheriff, Wagoner was returned here yesterday from Newcastle, Wyo., where he was arrested Tuesday following the discovery of his puzzling half million dollar transaction.

Guggenheim Named Ambassador to Cuba

Washington, Sept. 16.—(AP)—Harry F. Guggenheim has been named by President Hoover as ambassador to Cuba in place of Noble Brandon Judah, of Chicago, who recently resigned.

The name of the new ambassador to the Havana post had been prominently mentioned in diplomatic circles for some time and the appointment was confirmed at the White House today.

Guggenheim has recently become one of the leading supporters of American aviation as president of the Guggenheim fund for the promotion of aeronautics. In that work he has been closely associated with Charles A. Lindbergh whom he appointed as one of the trustees of the fund.

The interest of the fund in aviation in flying started during the world war as he served in the naval aviation forces in both France and Italy. He rose to the rank of lieutenant-commander and was recommended by Admiral Sims for a citation for exceptional service. The navy department, however failed to act on the citation.

TOBACCO MAN IS KILLED IN AUTO WRECK

J. J. Gentry, Jr., Re- ceived Broken Neck in Wreck on Wash- ington Highway

J. J. Gentry, Jr., 22 years of age, son of J. J. Gentry, well known tobacco man of Greenville and Winston-Salem, was instantly killed in an automobile accident last night about 9 o'clock on the Greenville-Washington highway, about six miles from Greenville.

The accident occurred near the intersection of the Washington and Simpson roads as the young man was returning from Washington. There is a steep hill at this point, and the young man is said to have been coming down the hill at a fast rate of speed when he suddenly threw on his brakes to prevent hitting another car entering the Washington highway from the Simpson road. The sudden application of the brakes caused the car to leave the road and crash into a ditch and then a stump, almost completely demolishing the machine.

Young Gentry's neck was broken by the terrific impact, and a negro occupant of the car received minor injuries. The accident was said to have been unavoidable.

The body of the dead man was sent to Winston-Salem today by motor hearse where funeral services will be conducted from his late home on West Spring street Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Dr. C. C. Weaver, pastor of the Centenary Methodist church, will officiate. Burial will be made in the Winston-Salem Cemetery.

Young Gentry was a native of Winston-Salem. He had been connected with his father in the tobacco business in this city the last two years. He received his education at Augusta Military Academy, Staunton, Va., State College, Raleigh, and the Eastman Business College, at Schenectady, N. Y.

REPORT NEW OUTBREAK OF ARAB TRIBES

Sixteen Reported Killed in Engage- ment Near the Sea of Galilee.

Jerusalem, Sept. 16.—(AP)—News of a new outbreak at Hattin, near the sea of Galilee, in which raiding Bedouin tribesmen lost 16 dead and many wounded before being dispersed by British military patrols today again disturbed the peaceful atmosphere of Palestine, where no trouble between Jews and Arabs had been reported for a week.

It is hoped the incident is purely local and no fears are entertained that the affair will in any way effect the proposed visit of 200 prominent Egyptian Arabs to Palestine for the purpose of bringing about a reconciliation of the two peoples.

Reports to the Jewish telegraphic agency state that there is growing feeling among Egyptian Arabs and that the Grand Mufti of Jerusalem, recognized Moslem leader, is partly responsible for the recent troubles in the country. Dissatisfaction with the Grand Mufti is said to be partly due to his alleged failure to fully account for funds raised in Egypt for repairing the Mosque of Omar.

The first claim for loss of life in the recent riots was filed in Jerusalem yesterday by Mendel Paarmen of Chicago for the death of his son, Harry, a student at Hebron Yeshiva, where more than a dozen American students were among the fifty victims.

Generally conditions seem to be rapidly returning to normal in Palestine. Yesterday allyen road to Tel Aviv was crowded with the usual week-end promenade, and all the way to the sea holiday crowds and bathers swarmed the beach.

Begin Trial of Man Charged With Slaying His Wife

White Plains, N. Y., Sept. 16.—(AP)—Earl Francis Peacock, youthful radio mechanic, went to trial today for the killing of his pretty young wife, Dorothy, and his counsel immediately indicated that his fight against the electric chair would be predicated upon the grounds of accident and insanity.

The defense plans were disclosed in a two hour examination of eight talesmen, from whom but one juror was accepted. He is Edward C. Rossmaster of Scarsdale, New York, silk manufacturer, middle aged and the father of four children.

Rossmaster said he would not be influenced by the death penalty, the burning of the girl's body after she was strangled to death last April 21, or the 31-year-old prisoner's love affair with Frances Newman, Peacock's "alibi girl." It was Newman, Peacock said after his arrest, which he carried from the house the night of the killing, but authorities said that in his confession the radioman admitted the bundle was the corpse of his wife.

Seven other talesmen were excused because they were opposed to capital punishment.

Three Persons Drowned Sunday at Hickory, N. C.

Hickory, N. C., Sept. 16.—(AP)—Three Sunday afternoon pleasure-seekers, motor-boat on Lake Hickory, were drowned, one in an unsuccessful attempt to rescue the other two.

B. B. Hall, superintendent of the Hickory chair company, lost his life in an effort to save the lives of W. S. Robinson, register of deeds for Catawba county, and Wallace Veach, superintendent of the Statesville furniture company.

The three men were boating when Veach and Robinson, who were on top of the cabin fell off. Hall was drowned when diving to their rescue. Hall's body was recovered after a short search, but several hours of work by divers failed to recover the bodies of Robinson and Veach last night.

Begin Inquiry Into Ontario Plane Crash

St. Catharines, Ont., Sept. 16.—(AP)—A board of inquiry today sought cause of the airplane crash at Merrilton, Ont., which cost six lives last Saturday.

Frank Bradford, pilot of the airplane, was regarded as one of Canada's most experienced fliers, aviation officials said. He was a world war pilot and had nearly 3,000 flying hours to his credit.

The five passengers were taking their first plane ride from the newly opened Homer airport here.

FIGHTERS ARE PLAYING SHY OF BRITISHER

Nug, Sept. 16.—(AP)—Phil Scott, British heavyweight, will soon begin to believe that most of the leading contenders for Gene Tunney's vacated throne are afraid of him.

Max Schmeling, German star, preferred to accept suspension in this state rather than go through with a bout with Scott arranged by Schmeling's deposed manager, Arthur Buelow.

Humbert Fugazy, promoter, then arranged a match between Scott and Victorio Campolo, the giant Argentine, but has had more than a little trouble getting Campolo into the ring.

Yesterday Fugazy announced a second postponement of the bout scheduled for Wednesday night at Ebbets field. The first postponement was caused by an injury Campolo suffered to his back. Now the Argentine wants a few more days to get into condition before meeting Scott.

He wants the fight to be held a week from tonight and Fugazy announced he would ask the New York State Athletic Commission to approve the new date.

With this turn of events Philadelphia displaced New York as the week's fight center.

Quaker City fans will have an all-star card at the Phillies ball park on Wednesday night. Benny Bass, now a junior lightweight, meets Armando Santiago of Cuba, in the ten-round final. King Tut, Minneapolis, and Bruce Flowers, New Rochelle negro, lightweights, are booked for another ten round date on the card. Pete Nebo, Seminole Indian junior lightweight, meets Johnny Parr of Cleveland and Bill Wallace, Philadelphia lightweight, and Pink Kaufman, of Hartford, Conn., clash in two other ten rounds.

Tuffy Griffith, the Sioux City puncher who stopped Dr. Ludwig Stymann, German heavyweight champion here last week, tangles with George Cook of Australia, in a ten rounder at the Chicago Stadium Friday.

At Boston, Friday night, Bushy Graham, Uta, N. Y., featherweight, is booked to meet Andy Martin of Boston.

Other bouts on the national schedule include:

Tonight—At New York, Dickie Park, Jack Kid, Rex England, vs. George Balduz, Leviston, Me., welterweights, ten rounds; at Cincinnati, Harry Fierro, Chicago, vs. Tony Ceimars, Toledo, featherweights, 10 rounds.

Connie Mack Has Staged Comeback

Philadelphia, Sept. 16.—(AP)—Connie Mack, 66-year-old manager who has just guided the Philadelphia Athletics into their seventh American League pennant, is a lively refutation of the old axiom: "They never come back."

"Well I guess they have been shown," Mack said today, taking a poke at countless critics in and out of baseball who have showered criticisms on the veteran pilot since 1914.

"Too old, am I?" he grinned. "Guess they won't be saying that about me for a while again. They advised me to quit, to give up the reins of the club a dozen years ago. All along the baseball front I was told I was too old, that I should get out and give a younger man a chance."

"But I'm not ready to step down yet. When I meet the man I think knows more baseball than I feel I do, then he can have my job."

Mack's successes of the past include six league championships and three world series victories. During his slump since 1914 his team finished in the cellar position seven straight years.

Mail orders for tickets for the three series games to be played here were pouring in today. A staff of extra clerks have been allotted the task of distributing 37,000 tickets among probably 100,000 prospective purchasers. Only two tickets will be sold to one person. Requests post-marked earlier than 12:01 today are not being considered.

BILL TILDEN WINS CROWN; HARD FIGHT

New York, Sept. 16.—(AP)—Big Bill Tilden, at 36, has won his seventh national singles tennis crown but only after the hardest fight of his career.

A glance over the tall Philadelphia's six matches in the championship would indicate that several of the youngsters whom Tilden defeated should gain enough in experience to be able to turn the tables on the old master should he elect to try for the title next year.

Except for his final round rival, Frank Hunter, 35 years old, Tilden's opponents were drawn strictly from among the "younger set" of American tennis.

Against Hunter, John Doeg, of Santa Monica, Calif., John Van Ryn of East Orange, N. J., Henry Culler of Harvard, Frank Shields of New York and Donald Strachan of Philadelphia, Tilden won 18 sets and lost six, won 150 games and lost 102.

Two of his opponents, Hunter and Doeg, carried Big Bill to five sets. Against Van Ryn and Shields, Tilden was forced to play four sets. He beat Culler in straight sets, two of which were deuced. Only against Strachan did the veteran score in easy fashion.

A comparison of this record with that which Tilden compiled in winning his sixth national title in 1925 reveals just how much the Philadelphia has faded in the interim. In that year, Tilden conquered Carl Fischer, Lucien Williams, Sadakau Onida, Wallace Johnson, Vincent Richards and Little Bill Johnston with the loss of only four sets in 22. He won 175 games as compared with 86 lost against opposition that must be rated far above the six rivals Tilden played this year.

In the hunt for championship timber to follow in the footsteps of Doeg, Van Ryn, George Lot and Wilmer Allison attract most attention.

The Tobacco Market and Marketing Conditions

This space has been purchased by the firm of O. L. Joyner & Sons, proprietors of Joyner's Warehouse, for the purpose of placing before the tobacco farmers and all others interested, the facts as we understand them, about the tobacco markets and marketing conditions in Eastern North Carolina.

While our purpose in buying newspaper space is to advertise our own business, we want it distinctly understood that under no circumstances or conditions shall we publish anything in boosting our business that is not supported by facts. As an illustration of our purpose, we shall endeavor to convince everyone having tobacco to sell that Greenville is the best tobacco market in the state. This is the truth and is supported by facts and figures sworn to before a representative of the government, for government purposes as well as for the public information during the past few years in succession. On the other hand, we shall not tell you that farmers appeared pleased with the opening of the market prices anywhere in the state, and while prices on the Greenville market are, and have been just as high, and higher in some instances than any market in the eastern section, they are neither satisfying to the farmers, nor as high as most of us expected they would be. In other words, we were all disappointed at the opening prices.

But prices are advancing, and before very long we believe that they will be generally satisfactory. On all the better grades, prices are higher today than yesterday and we think will be higher next week than now, and with the elimination of the trashy, scrappy primings, the market will continue to advance until, generally speaking, satisfactory prices will prevail.

Before the market is a month older the buying interests will realize that Eastern North Carolina this year has produced the lightest crop per acre that it has produced since this section became an important tobacco producing country.

Death Treasure

DEATH TREASURE SYNOPSIS: Veronica Seabrooke deserts her friends! A few moments after Somerfield's exciting escape with the treasure contents of the black bag and the futile search at Woodcot by the police, Tom Grenofen receives a note from Veronica. She has left for an indefinite stay abroad. But he has little time to meditate on this fact, for Somerfield returns with news that Laxton intends to arrest both Veronica and Tom. Somerfield and Tom hide the case of jewels, and flee into the woods followed by a cordon of police officers. The fugitives are cornered but bury themselves under thick piles of leaves. The pursuing police officers reach them; Laxton stops beside Tom, finds a packet of money Tom dropped—inevitable capture ahead.

Chapter 31
GOOD-BY, LAXTON!
Laxton and Hallett were standing over me. I felt certain that I was covered by leaves piled a foot thick but some part of me must be exposed. I waited in horror.

A giant hand came down and pinned my arm to the ground. Or it seemed. But it was only a momentary sensation and fortunately I did not cry out with the pain of it. Laxton or his companion had walked over me.

"Well," said Laxton, "that's a trail! Also, our young friend will not be able to get far without his money. He can't have lugged that bag with him. The fellow who's supposed to have lugged at St. Michel had nothing with him. I suppose nobody left the house while you were there?"

"No. When we went in he was saying good-by to a young fellow. I heard him call him Somerville, or Somer-something."

"Somerfield? Was Somerfield carrying anything?"

"No luggage, but a camera and a stand."

"I wonder—A camera, you say? What sort of camera?"

"Couldn't tell, except it was a big one in a yellow leather case."

"I wonder—he might—he's sharp—but why?—However, this does in my friend Grenofen, eh? He can't make much progress without this. Go and call 'em in, Hallett. We'll see whether Mr. Grenofen can get through a net made of telephone wires. If he does my name's not Barlow."

The rustling began again. They moved away. I lay perfectly still till the wood was silent and I heard Somerfield stirring.

"All clear, Grenofen," said he. "We got up and shook ourselves. We're too near the open, Grenofen. The woods are safe now. What Veronica does let her friends in for! When he found your dollars I thought it was a wash-out. Suppose they wriggled out of your pocket?"

"No, I was holding them in my hand. I must have dropped them getting under cover."

We returned to the depths of the wood and found a secure hiding place not far from the little brake where the camera case was concealed and waited what seemed in terminable hours for darkness.

"Beginning to get the hang of it?" It was now eight o'clock—still perfectly light even in that thick wood.

"No, hanged if I am," said I. "Have you got a cue?"

"Hardly that. But perhaps a way to find one. Think it out on any line, Grenofen, and you get driven up against Pell—if we could penetrate to the personality hidden behind the name of Pell, we'd be there, Grenofen. We'd know why Pell was shot and what he had to do with that blood, and the man who snuffed it, and what both had to do with Veronica."

"That was undeniable. But Pell was dead."

"Pell was known to people before he became Pell; and among those people were the Seabrookes."

"That was equally true, but the Seabrookes were not available."

"And anyhow, Somerfield, if Miss Seabrooke hadn't wanted to keep that connection secret she'd have told me about it. Miss Seabrooke wrote me a note—I told you—which seemed to show that she had cleared out of the mess and that was that."

"Cleared out! You bet Veronica wrote that under compulsion. You heard what Pell said that afternoon in the library—about Seabrooke exploiting his daughter and breaking her heart. Well, Seabrooke's made on a marriage between Veronica and the Fotherbury cup. And Veronica isn't having any."

"How well I knew that!"

"But suppose," said Somerfield, "the old man's got some hold on her. It strikes me, Grenofen, that Veronica may be wanting help for herself before long."

"The suggestion, put everything else out of my mind."

"So," Somerfield went on, "we've got to find Veronica and Veronica's got to tell us the truth about Pell. I can't think of a way of getting at Veronica, can you?"

"If you can think of a way of getting out of Laxton's net tonight, Somerfield," said I, "I think I can find a way of getting at Veronica."

"Bully for you! But where've we got to go?"

"London, and then to Mrs. Fairfax."

"And then?"

"Mrs. Fairfax will know where the Seabrookes are likely to have gone."

To be a fugitive is unpleasant.

Unfortunately, as it seemed, this train went no further than Southampton. At three o'clock the morning we were marooned in the midst of a railway desert.

We awaited a chance of creeping unsees out of the railway yard, and found ourselves in a village called Totton, on the outskirts of Southampton. We walked towards the town. It was a long way before we found what we wanted—an all-night garage.

A car to London! The sleepy man in charge looked dubious. Probably no plea of illness would have stirred the man out of his lethargy; but when Somerfield took out his pocketbook and it bulged with notes, the effect was electrical. A chauffeur was discovered, a big car produced, the price of the trip arranged, with a tip for the janitor and a promise of one for the driver for speed.

And when we had settled in the back of the car and the lights of Southampton were left behind—"Good-by, Laxton!" (Copyright, 1929, Wm. Morrow Co.)

The two fugitives meet an acquaintance unexpectedly in tomorrow's chapter. Grenofen lay under the pile of leaves—his pursuers not a foot away.

White's Theatre Will Have New Sound Equipment

The Whites Theater is to be congratulated, and thanked for the wonderful service it will now be able to render our folks. It is to be congratulated further on the choice of the sound equipment, the DeForest Sound film, invented by the Father of the Radio and Sound movies, a device which has earned the slogan "The Best Sound in Town."

The device perfected by Dr. Lee DeForest, the most famous of America's scientists, is proclaimed wherever it has been heard as "The Best Sound Equipment, Sound on film and sound on disc."

The management of the Whites Theater took exceptional pains to be assured of the very best that the present sound devices could afford, without regard to cost or trouble. The merchants of this city, who are as interested in the entertainment welfare of its citizens feel that the utmost in entertainment will now be available to them.

Three Local Stores Stage Co-operative Selling Events

An interesting co-operative sale plan has been inaugurated by the firms of Blount-Harvey Co., McKay's and W. A. Bowen Co., and the introduction of these merchandising events appears in today's issue of The Daily Reflector. The plan is one entirely different from any ever before attempted by any merchants of Greenville, and should create considerable interest with the buying public.

The three firms participating will present cooperatively each day through the columns of this paper special feature items from the various departments of their stores. The plan is a money saving device for the shoppers, and the fact that it is being conducted by the above firms, among the largest in their respective lines in the city, the events should prove attractive to the public.

TURNING THE CLOCK
(By Mary Graham Bonner)

The little black clock with its white face and dull black hands, had stood on top of the desk in the back hall for many years, and for many years, it had not run.

The hands pointed to the fact that at a certain 7 o'clock years and years before it had stopped. But it was such a pretty quaint little clock that it was a favorite even if it couldn't keep time.

It was late one evening when

Peggy, who was 5, had gone to bed and John, her brother, three years older, was about to go to that he suddenly noticed the little black clock grinning. Its hands were stretched out. No longer did they point to 7 o'clock.

"Hello, hello, hello," came a whisper from the little black clock. John went and stood before it.

"Did you speak, by any chance?" he asked.

"I certainly did. I've been waiting for ages and ages for you to notice me at bedtime. Do you want to come with me? You may call Peggy if you like. But, mind you, no one else! No one else may share my secret."

"You have a secret?" John asked. "Then that's what makes you look so nice—why we all like you."

"Of course, I've a secret," said the little black clock. "Get Peggy first and I'll tell you."

John went and quietly woke Peggy. The rest of the family was downstairs.

"Years and years ago I decided I'd stop telling the ordinary time," the little black clock explained. "I was allowed to use some magic which lets me turn myself backward or forward to any time at all except the correct time. So for the rest of the world I seem to be 7

SCHOOL TIME AND SCHOOLS

School time is here again. The schoolhouses that have remained silent and deserted during the summer months are now teeming with life. Within the nation's most important institution, the public school, many thousands of future citizens are receiving daily instructions. Lives are being moulded, destinies shaped. For upon the training received in the schools to a large extent depends their value to the community, state and country in later life. Then, upon these three there rests an equal responsibility of seeing that everything possible is done to aid the public school in its all important task.

Further, every boy and girl should have the opportunity of an education. It is almost unthinkable, hardly believable, that in this day of prosperity, of high standards of living, of education, there are sections of the United States where there are no schools, where the children grow up in ignorance and often never learn to read or write. Not only is their value as citizens greatly decreased, because of this lack of opportunity, but they are deprived of many of the privileges of an educated person.

An example of such a community was recently revealed almost within the shadow of the nation's capital. A few weeks ago, fourteen-year-old Ray Burraker made his way unannounced into President Hoover's camp on the Rappidan River in Virginia and presented the Chief Executive with a young 'possum. During the conversation with the young mountaineer the President discovered that neither the donor nor his parents could read or write and practically the same was true of the other inhabitants in the mountain community. Mr. Hoover's sympathy and interest were aroused. He has made plans for the erection of a schoolhouse and the employment of a teacher for the community, and this deplorable condition in this one section will be remedied. But what of the many other communities where similar conditions exist? President Hoover will not have camps near them all. If he did, there would hardly be a Ray Burraker near all of them with the desire to present the President with a 'possum.

There are, too, other instances of inequality of educational opportunities in the United States. It is admitted that the schools in the cities and more prosperous rural communities, with teachers trained in the most modern methods, with steam-heated and well ventilated buildings, and large playgrounds, leave little to be desired. But the little, poorly heated, inadequately or too well ventilated, one-room country school houses with the notched, well worn, antiquated benches have not disappeared. It is in these and they are all too numerous, that all ages and classes are crowded into the one room and await their turn to recite to a young teacher who can seldom boast of more than a high school education and a license issued by a lenient county superintendent. Would the pupils of such schools have a fair chance in competition with those of the city and up-to-date rural schools? Will they not be seriously handicapped from the start in later life competition? Is such a situation just? If not, upon whom does the responsibility for its remedy rest?

If it is to be generally remedied and not in particular spots, there must be some central organization that can serve as a guiding hand for the general application of the remedy. This would be one of the functions of the Department of Education. It is hoped that, as attention is again directed to the schools by their opening, the public will demand that education be given its proper place in national affairs by the establishment of such a department; that President Hoover's interest in the condition of one schoolless community will grow to include all such communities, and that he will insist upon a Department of Education with a Secretary in the Cabinet to aid in abolishing illiteracy in all parts of the United States.—Scottish Rite News.

ABOUT TOWN

"It is gratifying to note that the farmers of this section continue to take interest in the growth and development of the local curb market," said a citizen today.

"The market has shown healthy growth the last several months and patronage has increased as the number of products have increased. There is no reason on earth why the truck farmer should not find a ready market for his crops on the curb market, and he should give this source of disposition more attention in the future.

"If you are a farmer, why not get busy and bring some of your products to market here? You will be gratified at the sales and the splendid spirit of co-operation existing among those in charge of sales.

"Don't forget the Window Trimming contest to be conducted by the Merchants Association Tuesday evening," said a member of that organization today.

"This will be one of the most outstanding events in several months and all merchants who are members of the Merchants Association are urged to participate and see what they can offer.

"Two prizes of $10 and $5 each will be offered to the winners. Of course, this isn't any big thing, but it will mean much to the winner in that it will give him much prestige in the matter of window dressing.

"The prize will be awarded to the man responsible for the window dressing and not to the store. This should produce a spirit of competition that ought to result in many splendid looking windows."

"Who thought there were that many bootleggers in Pitt county?" queried a citizen today, referring to the capture of 53 members of the illicit whiskey traffic here last week.

"I knew there was lots of whiskey being sold but I had no idea in the world the officers would be able to round up such a great number of men in such a short time. It was a monumental task and one that deserves the commendation of that temperate set of men and women who have no sympathy for the liquor making element.

"With such drastic action in effect, life is going to be rather hard for the whiskey element in the future. In fact, it is going to be more difficult to obtain liquor than ever before, because one never knows when Uncle Sam's officers are going to swoop down and demand settlement for this crime against humanity."

"Have you renewed your subscription to the Reflector?" inquired the manager of circulation of this paper today.

"If not, why not? You can't afford to miss all of the big news to come over the wires during the fall and winter months. They will be interesting stories dealing with the happenings in this and other states and if you miss them you will not be keeping tab on the trend of time.

"Let us have that renewal at once and in that way assure yourself of getting the paper right along without the slightest break."

"Greenville merchants have thousands of splendid bargains to offer the people of this great trade territory," said a business man today.

"These goods represent the very best on the market and are offered at prices in keeping with stores of the larger cities.

"If you haven't done your fall and winter shopping, why not come to Greenville and inspect the stocks of the local merchants before doing your purchasing. You will find splendid values, and you will also receive the best of service.

"Think the suggestion over before you do your shopping and rest assured of obtaining the best to be had at similar prices."

"Don't forget Pay Up Period to be held in Greenville from the 1st to the 15th of October," reminded members of the Greenville Merchants Association today.

"This will be the only event of the kind conducted here since Pay Up Week last year. It will give everybody an opportunity of adjusting accounts before the names of all credit customers are entered on the lists to be compiled by the association.

"See that you have a clear rating so that you will be able to obtain credit with reputable firms during the remainder of the year."

COTTON MARKET

New York, Sept. 16.—(AP)—The cotton market opened steady today with an advance of 3 to 11 points and an active month sold about 12 to 15 points net higher during the early trading on covering by some Saturday sellers, combined with some trade and local buying. The demand seemed to be promoted by prospects for showery weather in the south and while there was some southern selling at the start, it was not active enough to weigh on the market. December sold up to 18.97 and March to 18.25. But met a little more cotton at these figures and prices were 3 or 4 points off from the best at the end of the first half hour.

Liverpool cables said there had been hedge selling and liquidation in that market and that Manchester was unsettled with cloth demand less insistent.

GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Sept. 16.—Fresh piling up of domestic supplies, together with persistent slackness of export demand for North American wheat contributed today to a general wheat market that the United States wheat values sharply downward. It was stock of wheat in the last week and was now almost double the total of this time last year.

Wheat closed nervous 2 5-8c to 3 down, oats 1-2c to 7-8c off, and 7-8c a bushel below Saturday's finish. Corn closed 1-2c to 1-3c provisions varying from 10c decline to a rise of 15c.

STOCK MARKET

By STANLEY W. FRENCH, Associated Press Financial Editor New York, Sept. 16.—The stock market began the new week today with such nervousness as characterized trading last week; still in evidence at times, but the list generally displayed a firmer undertone and operators for the advance were able to move a fairly large assortment of utilities, rails and specialties substantially higher.

The credit outlook was regarded as rather troublesome. Call money renewed a little firmer at 7 1/2 per cent, and was in limited supply at that figure. Bankers generally predicted firm money during the next few days, as the full effect of the quarterly income tax payments and the treasury refinancing are felt.

The day's business and industrial news was meagre and generally not of a character to influence the market. The California Crude Oil production figures for the last week were somewhat disappointing, showing a fairly substantial increase, despite expectations of satisfactory results from the gas conservation law, which became effective the first of the month. The week-end business reports from various sections of the country revealed little change in the generally satisfactory conditions.

A few volatile issues made wide gains. Commercial Solvents, which is to be split 10-for-1, made an extreme gain of 29 points, recording a new peak at 559, and National Lead and J. I. Case surged up about 12 and 17 points to new tops.

Columbia Gas was a strong feature, rising more than 6 points to a record price at 102 1/2, then slipping back a little in realizing.

General American Tank, Weston Instrument, Louisville and Nashville, Bangor and Aroostook, Royal Dutch, and Timken Roller Bearing were other stocks reaching new high ground. Standard of New Jersey rose a couple of points in heavy buying, and National American, New York Central, Woolworth, DuPont, Delaware and Hudson, and Columbian Carbon were among issues in good demand.

JOYNER'S AVERAGES

15 CENTS POUND The market showed much strength today with all grades of tobacco stronger than at any time this season. Joyner's Warehouse averaged 15 cents for the entire week. We look for a stronger market from now on. Bring your tobacco to Joyner's.—(Adv.)
