READ THIS ANNOUNCEMENT! IT MAY HELP YOUR FUTURE

We take this means of announcing to the people of the community that we have changed our form of Building and Loan from the Serial plan to the Running Share or Ohio plan. Our reason for doing this is that there are so many advantages in the Running stock plan compared to the Serial plan. We are in no degree saying the Serial stock is not good; it is good. It has been in use for about one hundred years in this state. It is not modern, however, in this age of keen financing. With the aim in view to render at all times to our shareholders the safest investment and most efficient service, we have changed to the Running shares.

The Directors of this Association have had this plan under consideration for several months. They have given it a most thorough study, under the careful guidance of Mr. O. K. LaRoque, Deputy Insurance Commissioner of North Carolina. We have adopted this plan and offer for sale the most modern, practical and flexible form of Building and Loan stock ever sold in Eastern Carolina. We take pleasure in quoting a statement of Hon. Dan C. Boney, Insurance Commissioner of North Carolina: "Running shares are issued at any time and payments are made in such amounts and at such times as may suit the convenience or pleasure of the shareholders. This class of stock is more generally known as the 'Ohio' or 'Dayton' Plan, and is by far the most modern of all the plans in use at this time. Its flexibility and clearness, as well as its simplicity of operation, will appeal both to Secretaries and Shareholders, and for this reason we have given considerable study to its practical operation, with the view to recommending its general adoption by the Associations in North Carolina."

We will now take up some of the advantages of the Ohio plan or Running share plan over the Serial plan. You may purchase stock at any time during the year. By not having to pay back to any opening date, for your convenience our stock is on sale the year through.

Should you purchase $2,000.00 stock from us you would pay this at the rate of $20.00 per month instead of $20.00 every four weeks, this is another feature for your convenience. You may run your savings along with your monthly budget system. Under the new plan you will pay twelve times a year instead of thirteen.

We have no withdrawal fees under the Running share plan, as we formerly had. You may withdraw your money at any time. Even though it has not been in the Association but four months, you may withdraw the installments paid in by you plus five per cent interest. This is a big advantage over the Serial stock. Under the Serial plan, you received no interest or profit under two years.

We have eliminated all fines on stock that may become in arrears, under the Running share plan. If for one reason or another, you become unable to pay your installments, fines will not be applied. The amount you have paid in will remain in the Association and draw five percent compounded interest semi-annually, which amounts to a good bit over six per cent that your money is drawing.

If one of our shareholders was holding one of our certificates and he had paid in $200.00 on it and it became necessary for him to have $100.00 at once, all he would have to do is to come to our office and receive the check. He would sign no note, he would pay no interest, and he can pay the money back at his pleasure.

The most interesting feature about the running share plan is the mortgage loan system. Realizing how very hard it is to pay a large amount of dues and interest every four weeks, is another reason—and the most important—why we have adopted this plan. All of our loans run for a period of eleven and one-half years. Should you wish to borrow $5,000.00 for the erection of your home, you would only pay the Association $50.00 per month, instead of $73.20 every four weeks, as is necessary to pay under the serial plan. We do not hold you to a payment of $50.00 per month until your loan is paid. You may pay $50.00, $100.00 or as much more as you wish. You can pay your loan off whenever you wish. Under this plan your interest on your loan will cost you only .033 per cent. We charge no bonus on any loans.

Another feature about payments on your loan: They are credited against your mortgage every six months, thereby reducing the principal amount of mortgage.

From the above outline you will readily see that this plan is worked out to suit the convenience of the investor as well as the borrower. We only loan money on improved real estate in Greenville on first mortgage.

We highly recommend this new form of stock. We think none safer for the investor, none cheaper for the borrower.
—THE DIRECTORS.

An Editorial Taken From Charlotte Observer Regarding Running Shares

B. & L. ADJUSTMENTS
Several months ago, The Observer noted the increasing sentiment for a longer-term building and loan series that would make the splendid services rendered by building and loan associations available to the group of would-be home-owners who are unable to make the large weekly or monthly payments that are necessary to mature building and loan stock in six and one-third years. Since that time there has been considerable agitation of the building and loan situation at other points in this state, as has also been noted in The Observer. There was quite a bit of very vigorous discussion of what is known as the Dayton plan at the annual building and loan meeting which has just been held at Wrightsville Beach.

One of the outstanding features of the building and loan meeting at Wrightsville was the recommendation of Insurance Commissioner Dan C. Boney that the associations of the State adopt the "running shares" plan of building and loan, which would give a longer period and more latitude to share subscribers and borrowers. Oscar K. LaRoque, head of the building and loan division of the State Insurance Department, predicts that at least 100 of the 232 associations in the State will be using the recommended system within a year. This plan is said to be a modification of the Dayton, or Ohio plan. It is said for this plan that it makes for simplicity, in addition to giving the borrower or investor a longer time to mature his shares. Of even more importance, however, of course, is the fact the more extended payments will enable a much larger number of people to purchase or build homes and finance them without the burdensome necessity of paying brokerage fees on first and second mortgages.

The Observer has not studied in detail the plans suggested by Commissioner Boney, nor the Dayton plan, but it has urged that Charlotte associations to bring about such adjustments in their policies and practice as will make it possible for additional hundreds and thousands of individuals in this community to purchase their homes through this mutual plan and save the high cost and more latitude entailed through most other methods. The building and loan association is generally regarded as a promoter of good citizenship, because the home-owner, in most instances, is a better citizen than the non-home owner, and there can be no question but that the building and loan associations of Charlotte, or of any other city, can tremendously increase their usefulness to the community and to their shareholders by making such adjustments as will enable them to better serve a larger number of shareholders and home purchasers. Some features of the Dayton plan may be objectionable, as has been claimed by some building and loan authorities in North Carolina. If this be true it is all the more reason why the old and established building and loan associations should adjust their plan of operation to meet present day conditions and demands. Commissioner Boney evidently has sensed the new needs and demands and his interest in the matter gives further assurance that existing or new building and loan associations will shortly provide the larger building and loan services in practically every city and section of the State.—CHARLOTTE OBSERVER.

Boney Advises New Form of Building & Loan Shares

The building and loan system based on serial shares "has proven sound and of untold value as far as it goes, but is not modern and does not meet modern conditions and modern competition," declares Dan C. Boney, State Insurance Commissioner of North Carolina, in a circular bulletin to building and loan associations throughout the State.

Mr. Boney recommends the more extensive use of a plan worked out by the insurance commission based on the "Ohio" plan, with a "few changes to meet North Carolina laws and practices."

The Ohio plan features "running" shares which are issued at any time and are made in such amounts and such times as to suit the convenience of the holder.

Research into the Ohio plan was conducted by Oscar K. LaRoque, building and loan deputy commissioner. The bulletin issued by Commissioner Boney contains many exhibits showing building and loan associations how to change their by-laws to offer the running shares.—RAELIGHTH TIMES.

Entertains At Bridge

Farmville, Sept. 16.—The home of Mrs. J. W. Joyner was the scene of a lovely party on Friday evening when she charmingly entertained forty friends at bridge. Gorgeous fall flowers were arranged to blend artistically throughout the house, and ten tables bore attractive appointments, the tables being of sampler design with appropriate motifs. Mrs. G. S. Vought, who moved from Spring Hope recently to make Farmville her home, assisted the hostess in receiving. A tinted glass sandwich plate was awarded Miss Add Bynum, as high score prize and a Japanese novelty was presented to Mrs. Frank Capps of Raleigh, an out-of-town guest. A frozen salad with olive sandwiches and a refreshing beverage was served.

Garden Club Meets.

The Garden club held its first meeting of the fall at the home of Mrs. R. C. Deal, September 11.

Mrs. J. Key Brown, Mrs. R. C. Deal and Mrs. E. W. Harvey are on the program committee for the year. Mrs. Brown read the program plan for October and November. In October we will have a dahlia exhibit and in November a chrysanthemum exhibit.

Mrs. J. N. Hart told us in her pleasant way, all she knew about growing peonies. Then we had a general discussion about bulbs.

The hostess served delicious refreshments.

An Appreciation.

As superintendent of the Greenville city schools, I wish to take this opportunity to express to the mothers of the town the sincere appreciation of the teachers and officers of the Greenville city schools for the excellent manner in which the mothers responded to our request regarding visiting the schools on the opening day. We were able to organize and get going without a bit of confusion. We shall be glad to have the patrons of the schools visit us any time from now on.

Woman's Club Meeting.

Farmville, Sept. 15.—The initial Woman's Club meeting of the fall season was held Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock in Perkins Hall, and presided over by the new president Mrs. J. B. Joyner. The establishing of a public library will be the prospect for the year, and this way discussed at length, appreciation being expressed by the president for the room in the municipal building, recently offered by the town authorities for this purpose.

The Garden Club group, of which Miss Tabitha De Visconti is chairman, had charge of the splendid program. Mrs. J. M. Hobgood, second vice-president of the State Federation, was the principal speaker, her subject being "Together."

Several vocal selections were rendered by Mrs. John Dwight Holmes and Elbert Holmes. Delightful refreshments were afterwards served in the Domestic Science rooms by the Literary and Art department. Mrs. L. P. Thomas, chairman.

Mrs. Smith Hostess.

Farmville, Sept. 16.—The first large social event of the month was the delightful bridge party given by Mrs. W. Leslie Smith on Friday afternoon at her home on Church street. A profusion of early fall flowers, gracefully arranged, added color to the spacious rooms of the first floor, which were thrown en suite. After the game of progressive auction, played at nine tables, Mrs. J. L. Shackelford, winner of high score, was presented with a pair of framed silhouettes and Mrs. J. N. Gregory was given a novel bridge bell as second prize.

Invited especially for the refreshments, consisting of consealed chicken, stuffed tomatoes, pickles, Saratoga chips, hot rolls, tea, ice cream, cake and rose leaf nuts were the following additional friends: Mesdames, J. The Indian Tepee
By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

The little black clock had certainly succeeded in changing the whole scene back several hundred years.

No sooner had he told John and Peggy of his magic powers than they saw an Indian tepee. All around was a great prairie, and in the distance the children saw a fine herd of buffaloes.

The tepee had figures painted on it and all sorts of fancy pictures. Smoke was curling out of the top, and from the little opening at one side an Indian chief appeared.

How magnificent he was! How tall, how splendid, how strong! John longed to feel his muscles, but he waited to see what would happen.

"Enter," said the chief. "Boy-of-many-years-from-now; enter and be welcome."

Then at the opening of the tepee appeared an Indian squaw, and following her were several children.

"Girl-of-many-years-from-now enter! Enter and be welcome," she said to Peggy.

So Peggy and John and the little black clock entered the tepee.

There the fire was burning. The chief and squaw and the children sat around on stones in front of the fire. John and Peggy looked about at the low beds, the feathers, the pipe of the great chief and toys belonging to the children.

"Boy of the White Face, Girl with Eyes the Color of the Sky on the Noblist Days," began the chief, "we will eat of soup and corn before the clock dance begins."

The squaw saw that all had plenty to eat. Peggy saw the dolls belonging to the Indian girls, and John was most interesting in arrow-heads.

Then the chief gave a great whoop.

"We must get ready. We must put on more paint, more beads, more feathers. The dance, O Mighty Little Clock, is about to begin."

The clock clapped its hands. "This is going to be splendid. I hoped they would do this for us."

BLUE DEVILS SHOW STRONG IN PRACTICE

Durham, Sept. 17.—(AP)—A combination of seasoned veterans and ambitious sophomores are going to make Duke University's debut in the southern conference this year.

Head Coach Jimmy DeHart, the old Pittsburg line star, says he will have speed, power and punch and plenty of all three, in the 1929 edition of his Blue Devils which has just finished its first week of practice.

"Nobody here is thinking of a title this year," says DeHart, who is jubilant over the outlook for the first time since he took charge. "But we will all be fooled badly if this year's team does not serve warning on the field that Duke must be reckoned with in the future."

The fact that an even dozen letter men are back and hustling for all they are worth does not impress the coaches nearly so much as do the capers some of the freshmen graduates are cutting.

DeHart could put an entire team of veterans in the field if he wanted. But he has other plans cooking.

Brewer, a sophomore, already is hailed as a coming sensation. He will be the quarterback. Sam Bule, 1928 field general and a wonderful passer, has been shifted to back to make room for Brewer.

Other youngsters who can't be kept off the team, so DeHart says, are Friedman, center, and Hyatt, end.

The Mighty Jan Jankoski, big nose of the 1928 backfield, will sit on the bench this season while Beaver, a frisky sophomore does his stuff at fullback. Robeson, another Colt, is threatening to replace Murray at the other half.

Youth and speed will be Dehart's motto this year. He will use only enough veterans to balance his frisky juveniles who will be counted on to provide the pyrotechnics.

Navy and Boston college are the holdovers from the 1928 card. Villanova takes the place of Georgetown university. The University of Pittsburg is a newcomer.

Athletics Sell Out of Tickets for Big Series

Philadelphia, Sept. 17.—(AP)—It required only one short working day for the Philadelphia Athletics to dispose of all their tickets for the world series games here with the Chicago Cubs.

"We are sold out for the series; it will be impossible to consider any further applications for seats," was the word given out today by club officials.

The club had announced that beginning yesterday at 12:00 a. m. mail requests for reservations would be received. Immediately after that hour thousands of fans dropped letters into the mails. The orders were in such volume that the club engaged a clerical force of 35 men and women and rented a nearby vacant factory to handle the business. The reserved seat capacity of the park is less than 37,000. During the day it was estimated that requests were received for approximately 75,000 tickets.

PIRATES GET BACK IN RACE FOR BUNTING

By HERBERT W. BARKER (Associated Press Sports Writer)

The Pittsburgh Pirates—rather late to be sure—seem to have determined to give the Chicago Cubs absolutely no help in their chase for the National League pennant. With the Cubs needing either one victory on their own behalf or a Pittsburgh defeat to clinch the bunting, yesterday the Pirates were unfeeling enough to take two from the Phillies and thus retain their mathematical chance of nosing out the Cubs, who were held idle by rain.

Beating the Phils twice in one day may not be any great feat for other teams in the league but to the Pirates it seemed like a miracle. Before the double bill began the Phils had trounced Pittsburgh 11 times in 19 games, only the Giants having a better record against the Corsairs.

Jess Petty and Ervin Brame held the slugging Phils to five hits in each game. Petty outpitched Lester Sweetland to win the first game 3 to 2 in 10 innings. Brame had a wide margin over Smythe, Collins, Dailey and McGraw in the nightcap which also went to the Pirates, 5-2. Smythe was touched for seven hits and four runs in the first innings of this fray.

The Pirates' double victory put them four and one-half games in front of the third place Giants who lost to St. Louis 5-4 in 11 innings. Fitzsimmons lost control in the 11th forced in the tying run when he walked Wilson with the bases filled and then permitted Gelbert to single, driving home the winning tally. Mel Ott hit his 39th homer of the season, placing him in a tie with Church Klein and Hack Wilson for the league leadership.

More than 60 airplanes clear the Cleveland airport daily, carrying an average of 60 passengers and 5,500 pounds of mail.

Miller Brothers' 101 Ranch Real Wild West, the greatest of all wild west shows, past or present, and this season under the personal direction of Colonel Zack Miller, is headed this way and will exhibit for two performances, at 2 and 8 p. m., in our neighbor city, Wilson, Friday, September 27, at the Fairview avenue show grounds. Jack Hoxie, famous western film star, and his wonder horse, Scout, are an added attraction to the show.

One of the great features of the coming of the 101 Ranch will be the two-mile long street parade which will leave the lot on exhibition day at 10:30 A. M. and traverse through the main streets of the town.

The Miller Brothers, who own the famous 140.00 acre 101 Ranch in Oklahoma, have added to it a great many circus features and novelties hardly dreamed of in the old days. Yes, there are elephants, camels, buffalo, oxen, longhorns with the 101, and the long, orange-colored stock cars of the trains bring 600 nose bronchos, Arabian stallions, blooded jumpers, and flat racers, ring steeds, mustangs, outlaws, Chinese and Cossack cavalry mounts. Famous Indian chiefs and warriors will be found among the 200 redskins with the huge western troupe, and the cowboys and cowgirls are of champion rating in rough riding, broncho busting, roping and bulldogging. There are 1,100 people with the 101 Ranch, and the spread of canvas, including the huge rectangular big top, with its operachair grandstand and auxiliary tiers, seating 12,500 people, cover nine acres.

Death Treasure

By R. A. J. WALLING

SYNOPSIS: Fugitives from the police Tom Grenofen and Somerfield hide the case of jewels, flee to the woods and bury themselves under thick piles of leaves when they are cornered by a cordon of policemen. Closer and closer come the pursuers, capture seems inevitable but the officers finally miss their quarry. The two men hide in the woods until darkness falls and they can catch a freight train to Southampton. Here they obtained an automobile and set out for London—to find Veronica and learn the secret of Roger Pell, an escaped convict and her entanglement with both.

Chapter 32
VERONICA MISSING
The next evening Somerfield and I sat in a restaurant at Bruges, in Belgium.

The day had begun with a frantic rush about London. First to Mrs. Fairfax in Kensington. We felt rather blue when we learned that she had been asked about Veronica's possible whereabouts on the telephone from Blackwater the night before. She did not know where Veronica was, but she gave us the address in Bruges where, she had told the other inquirer, information about Veronica could probably be obtained.

Then—Dover, the 10 o'clock boat to Ostend, the train to Bruges, and here we were, having spent our first hour in the city buying bags, shirts, collars, razors, toothbrushes and pajamas. We had bathed and shaved. We had dined. We proposed to sleep and promised ourselves that not the best efforts of the carillon in the belfry of Bruges would disturb us. One the morning—

Well, on the morning we would see what the address Somerfield had obtained from Mrs. Fairfax had to reveal.

The Rue de las Grenelle proved to be a quiet street of tall houses with shutters over the windows and steep-pitched roofs. Number 33 was the end house abutting on one of the canals.

We uttered an exclamation at the same moment; on the opposite side of the canal and hanging over it was just such another tourelle as we knew on the riverside at Newport. In just another such walk, place, in just another such walk, "We're warm. That's Pell tower in Bruges."

But a surprise awaited us when we had made the concierge at No. 33 understand that we wanted to see Mademoiselle Vandenessen. We waited, and she brought to us a gray haired lady in a sober frock and a black hood on her head. "Messieurs?" she said with a little curtsy.

"Mademoiselle Vandenessen?" I inquired.

"Oh, mais non!" she answered, laughing a little.

Then it appeared that the gray-haired lady had merely come to recognize on behalf of Mile. Vandenessen—she invited us to ascend to a sitting-room where she collected our names, said something about two excitements in one day, asked us to be seated, and took herself off.

"Did you notice, Grenofen? We've got into a girl's school."

I nodded. Then a young woman came into the room and stood holding the handle of the door and looking nervously at us. She was about 30, dressed in black, dark-eyed, fresh of complexion, and at the moment breathing rapidly as if in a state of high excitement.

"Mademoiselle Vandenessen?" I said.

"Yes." She spoke in English. "I am Miss Vandenessen. You are Mr. Grenofen. This is Mr. Somerfield. We have come to ask a question about an English friend of yours."

She started back as if she would run out of the room.

"Oh, but I—I don't know you," she stammered.

"We are friends of Miss Seabroke," said I.

"Oh—Veronica!" The alarm which had come into her eyes departed. She shut the door and took a seat near it. "You are friends of Veronica?"

"You know Miss Seabroke very well, don't you?" I asked. "We want you to tell us, Miss Vandenessen, whether you know of her present whereabouts."

"I haven't seen Veronica for more than a year," said she. "She's living at Blackwater."

"But Miss Seabroke has left the place, and we are anxious to discover where she is now."

Something re-aroused her suspicion.

"I cannot tell you—I have not seen her."

"Of course I realize how strange this visit must seem to you, Miss Vandenessen," said I lamely.

And I went on to implore her to give us some hint that might lead us to Veronica. She insisted that she knew nothing.

"You knew of no men friends, Veronica had in Bruges?" said I. "You did not know of a Mr. Pell?"

"I never knew anybody of that name."

In less than five minutes from the time of our arrival we were out in the Rue de la Grenelle again. We had drawn blank—I remarked to Somerfield as we walked back to the Lion d'Or, our hotel.

"I think not," Somerfield answered. "I think if we keep an eye on Miss Vandenessen we shall see things. In the meantime, as a treat, we shall lunch on roast veal."

Veronica having been at school in the Rue de la Grenelle, and having kept up a correspondence with Miss Vandenessen, one of her teachers, as Mrs. Fairfax had told Somerfield through the mouth of her maid, there must be means of discovering the traces of Pell in that street where Miss Vandenessen cared to disclose them or not.

We sat in the window of the little room overlooking the square, speculating on the possibility of bribing the servants or cajoling the superior of the school. Suddenly, Somerfield grasped in yarm and pointed into the square.

"See who that is?"

A man and a woman were crossing, arms linked, towards the Town Hall, and therefore walking away from us. But the woman was turning to look up into the man's face, and talking earnestly. We recognized Miss Vandenessen.

They reached the pavement and were lost in the throng about the doors of the great building. Then we saw another man start from out side of the square and walk quickly across. Somerfield's grip on my arm tightened.

It was Laxton.

He lingered on the pavement in front of the Town Hall. He entered. In two or three minutes he came out again and stood contemplating the square. Then he walked slowly back and under the windows of the Lion d'Or we could see him no more.

Somerfield and I looked at each other in pained astonishment.

"That's torn it!" said Somerfield. "Bruges is no place for us."

Clearly, while at Laxton with a warrant for my arrest in his pocket. And yet—

"I wonder if he could do anything here," said I. "I don't know much about the law of extradition."

"It's very complicated," said a voice behind us.

We leaped round.

"How do, Mr. Grenofen? How do, Mr. Somerfield?" said Laxton. (Copyright, 1929, Wm. Morrow Co.)

Laxton—the very man from whom they were escaping. Continue the story tomorrow. Cornered—captured by the very man as they were escaping—Laxton!

Market Report Cotton--Stocks--Grain

COTTON MARKET

New York, Sept. 17.—(AP)—The cotton market opened steady today with an advance of 7 to 12 points with the active months showing net gains of 11 to 13 points during the early trading on covering promoted by relatively firm Liverpool cables and bullish private crop advices. December sold up to 18.85 and March to 19.25 but these prices seemed to attract a little more selling which came partly from the south and the market showed reactions of five or six points from the best by the end of the first half hour.

Private report said returns indicate that the condition of the crop declined 4 points during the first 11 days of September or as much as it usually does during the entire month.

Private cables reported Continental buying and covering in the Liverpool market on bullish American crop advices and said there were fair sales of cotton cloths chiefly to India.

GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Rallying power developed strongly in the wheat market today after reports of copious rains throughout the Argentine drought region had pitched prices down to the lowest level since July 13, last.

Today's bottom quotations were nearly 10c a bushel under last week's top figures. Subsequent rallies were largely owing to U. S. Department of Agriculture advices that the world's 1929 wheat yield was estimated at about 500,000,000 bushels less than last year.

Wheat closed firm 1-4 to 1 above yesterday's finish; corn 5-8 to 7-8 up; oats unchanged to 1-4 higher, and provisions were firm from 10c decline to a rise of 5c.
