To the candidate that produces the greatest number of points on "clubs" between Tuesday October 1st and the close of the campaign—Saturday, October 26th.

$200.00

To the candidate that earns the second highest number of points during this period.

The Reflector today announces a new campaign in connection with its gigantic $6,000 Gift Distribution. In addition to the four motor cars and the numerous cash prizes in the regular prize list which are awaiting the busy workers, two new prizes totalling $500 and divided into two awards of $300 and $200 will be given away as added prizes for the period of time including the second, third and last periods of the regular campaign, October 1st to October 26th, this special competition ending simultaneously with the main campaign.

It is to be noted that both old and new subscriptions will count "points" toward the special cash prizes according to the schedule of such credits on this page. The same subscriptions will be counting the regular vote value toward the automobiles and regular cash awards of the regular campaign at the same time they are crediting workers with "points" toward the special awards. Subscriptions, therefore, are counting for a double purpose during the rest of the campaign. Any candidate may win both a special cash prize and any of the regular prizes.

Every candidate, either old or new, starts from an even start in this special prize competition, nothing that has been done in the first period having any bearing upon the winning of the two special cash gifts. It is a time for golden opportunity for new entrants and late starters in the campaign. No one is behind. All are even.

HERE'S HOW!

Owner of Rain Coat Wanted
Some one of the boys who attended Camp Pitt last month left a small size rain coat which was brought back when camp closed, but not immediately advertised because it was understood to belong to one boy. However, it does not, and the owner may have it by getting in touch with Mr. Totten at the High school.

DIRECTOR OF LEGION MINISTREL ARRIVES
Miss Edna Dair, the coach for the American Legion minstrels, "The Dixie Blackbirds" arrived yesterday, and, she, together with Dr. A. M. Schultz, chairman of the show committee, will begin today to shape up things for the show.

NO SEASON TICKETS TO BE ISSUED FOR THE COLLEGE ENTERTAINMENTS
Because of the postponement of the date of the Paderewski concert until after the Christmas holidays, the season tickets including the attractions that come in the fall series have been withdrawn. After the Paderewski date is definitely settled a season ticket for the attractions coming during the winter and spring terms will be offered. Efforts are being made to transfer one of the later winter attractions to a December date, but it will take a little time to make adjustment. As the season opens within one week the entertainment committee decided it was best to omit the fall attractions from a season ticket, selling the tickets for each of these separately, not including them in any combination.

The Isadora Duncan Dancers on the evening of October 15 will open the season. There are two prices offered for this, so people have a choice of prices. The United States Army Band will give a matinee and an evening concert on November 25. Both of these are offered at popular prices, the matinee at very low prices.

The Isadora Duncan Dancers, led by Irma Duncan, one of the adopted daughters of Isadora, with the famous elf-like girl dancer, Tamara and ten other Russian girls, the very best from the Moscow School of Dancing, are giving one of the very best dance programs before the public today. Their program is largely made up of interpretations of various musical numbers and of Russia. Their interpretations of Russia are said to be marvelous. They have a group of Russian folk songs and their program ends with "The Spirit of Modern Russia." They are said to be very different from the American girls on the dance stage. They have been trained from earliest childhood in the school founded by the great Isadora herself.

RESOLUTIONS FOR A. W. HASKINS
Resolutions by the "official board" of the Eighth Street Church of Christ:
Whereas by a sad and regrettable accident the life of A. W. Haskins was suddenly and tragically taken from us, and Whereas Mr. Haskins for long years has been a loyal, devoted and consecrated member of the Christian Church, and at different times and places filling efficiently the office of elder, teacher, Bible school superintendent and in every way active in Christian service.
Be it resolved, That in the death of this good man the church loses one of its most loyal and valuable members. A man whose life was above reproach and whose character stood high in the esteem of all who knew him.
Be it further resolved, that we express our high appreciation of his worth and faithfulness as a fellow officer—always at the post of duty, genial, affable and of lovable disposition, fulfilling well the spiritual qualifications of elder; generous of his means, a liberator—giving far beyond the tenth of his income to the work of the kingdom.
Be it further resolved that we tender to his beloved family our sincere and heartfelt sympathy, but also the assurance of our profound belief that the going of so good a man is but the entrance into the larger and more beautiful life and service in the house of many mansions.

Resolved further that we spread a copy of these resolutions on the minutes of our "board" and that copies be sent to the members of his family and given to the local press.

Greenville for the first conference game of the season. It will also signalize the opening of the new High School athletic field in Greenville Heights, and doubtless a large and enthusiastic crowd will be on hand to welcome the team and see a close contest.

Predictions are hard to make this early in the season, but it looks as though Kinston will give Greenville the hardest football battle in the history of their athletic relations; for most of the visitors' veterans have returned, and with a year more of experience and added weight will make things very interesting for team and spectators.

Kinston has won their opening conference tussle, while Greenville had to take the wrong end of a lopsided score, and lose most of the breaks as well. This is not in the least said to detract from the fame of the Hertford aggregation, a husky, rangy, well-balanced crowd of pigskin chasers, which, it is our opinion, will come close to winning a conference championship, and make all comers hustle to show their superiority. This Friday, the same Hertford team will play Wilson, with the probabilities all in favor of a guess that the winner will be headed straight towards a N. E. A. C. championship, with little beside Roanoke Rapids to halt their run.

Greenville has the lightest team in her history, but a game little bunch of players, and is running into better shape day by day. Probably no team has lost more practice days through impossible weather, but Coach Porter has been striving steadily to overcome this handicap by frequent "skull practice" sessions. The boys may spring a few surprises on Kinston this Friday, and no doubt will have the loyal backing of one of the largest crowds ever to see a Greenville High School game. The new system of pupil admissions will make the crowd still larger, and no one will want to miss this game.

An invitation is extended to all members of the King's Daughters and visitors here for the convention of the Woman's Club, the College Club, the American Association of University Women, the Daughters of the American Revolution and the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

College Methodists Entertained.
Each year it is a time of keen pleasure when the churches of the city are allowed to have the college friends for an evening's entertainment.

Quite early on Monday evening the Methodist college girls and faculty began to gather at Jarvis Memorial church. The pastor, Rev. E. L. Hillman, together with Mrs. Hillman and members of the young ladies' and young men's classes, welcomed them at the door. Soon each guest present had a personal introduction planned on, and a number of beans to barter in forfeits. Business hummed for some time, as the two hundred or more were intent on increasing their original numbers of beans.

Then followed song groups, led by Mr. Hillman, Mr. Rose, Dr. Massey and Mr. Marvin Sugg. In turn each group presented its selection in stirring melodies. Mr. Marvin Sugg's group won the vote of the judges and responded to the applause with a snappy encore.

Miss Jeanette Wedmore gave a delightful selection on the violin.

Then followed the choosing of four beauty queens from the four groups of counties in the state. After proper balloting, the following queens were brought to the stage to be crowned by Mr. Paul

STATE SHOULD TAKE IT.

At a meeting this week
the Pitt County Highway Commission adopted resolutions urging the state to take over the highway between Greenville and Fountain via hoped that the request will be granted. The taking over and completing the hard-

would mean much to the people of the Falkland and the state body will depend much upon the recommenda-

for his consideration the benefits that this highway would prove to the large number of persons residing in the Fountain-Falkland

way body render greater service with such a short stretch of road.

OLD PITCHER
COMMENTS ON WORLD SERIES

By Mordecai "Three Fingers"
Brown.
(Famous Pitcher of the Old Chicago Cubs)

Chicago, Oct. 9.—(AP)—I saw the first world's series game yesterday that I have seen since 1916, when the Athletics did to us Cubs something like they did to our successors in the opener.

The old game has changed considerably, but it is still the same.
The Cubs, I think, lost because Root thought he could slip his fast one over the plate on Fox with two strikes and no balls. His guess was as good as anyone's except a second guesser, and the fact that Fox hit it over into the bleachers is all that counts. If he had shot it over and caught Fox asleep he would have been a hero.

As for fielding and inside play—all I can say is that they play the game differently now. Some fellow bunted yesterday and the crowd gasped as if they had forgotten the bunt. I liked McCarthy's general-ship, even if it lost. He first balked Ehmke a couple of times and caught near turning the ball game upside down, but Ehmke, after being fooled two times saved himself by fine pitching. He mixed up his curve which has an upward tendency, and he crossed them with a fast curve. He used a slow motion and put a lot of stuff on the ball in the pinches.

As for the players—they are two fine teams, and I think this boy Cochrane is the best catcher I have seen since Kling. They say he is better, but you'll have to show me before I'll believe that.

The fine thing to me about this world's series is to find that a lot of folks haven't forgotten me. I've been in the oil games for years, and learning to crack out a free-proof oil is simple compared with pitching. If we don't get the right mixture on the oil the first time, we can try again, but the pitcher has only one guess—and after the ball goes into the bleachers he hasn't any chance to retrieve.

The opening game was almost perfectly planned and played and I think the Athletics deserved to win because they took advantage of the chances and they were best when they were threatened. We old timers have to stick together and even if I am rooting for the Cubs I have to root for Ehmke. The old head won't let the game over the youngsters who will have their day sometime.
I haven't any criticism to offer of either team. The errors were part of the game and young English had at least one tough ball to handle because it bounded in a funny way to him. But that didn't really count—Fox's home run settled it. If Hornsby had been able to hit the ball at all in the third inning the result probably would have been different as it probably would have meant that Root would have been out for a pinch hitter and that Root would have finished the game.

The turning point of the whole game, I think, was when Ehmke outsmarted Hornsby and struck him out. Hornsby was way back of the back line of the box trying to step in and hit a curve and Ehmke shot
a fast one past him for a strike, catching him unbalanced and then "served him with a slow and then a fast curve. It was fine pitching.
In fact you can't fool a dumb batter—it is the smart ones who get fooled worst.

UMPIRES NOT TO BLAME
FOR DELAY IN OPENING

Chicago, Oct. 9.—(AP)—For once,
the umpires are not to blame, and, upon being absolved. The fifteen-minute delay in starting the first game of the world series was generally ascribed to the failure of the arbiters to appear upon the field at the appointed hour.

It develops, however, that hundreds of ticket-holders were caught in an impassable jam before grandstand turnstiles at the last moment, and that William Wriely, Jr., requested Commissioner Landis to delay the start of the game a quarter of an hour to give these clients a "break". The simplest was of preventing play was to delay the appearance of the umpires, who insist they were at the park as early as 12:30 o'clock.

THE LUXURY HUSBAND

SYNOPSIS: Ray Lowther, engaged to marry the wealthy Barbara Landon disappears when he discovers his fortune lost. Three years later they meet unexpectedly on board a ship. They still love each other but Ray refuses to marry Barbara because, he feels, her wealth and his poverty make it impossible. Barbara makes a desperate effort to convince Ray she will ruin her life unless he relents—and he does. They are married in Paris but Barbara's wealth begins immediately to mar their happiness. Ray insists he will not live in ease on her money but must earn his own living by writing jazz compositions and meanwhile continue to play in an orchestra. Barbara's tears break down his defenses, however, on one point—he agrees to complete the voyage as a passenger and not as the ship saxophonist.

Chapter 9 THE TRIP GOSSIPS

It was all over the ship the next morning that Barbara Landon had married the saxophonist in the orchestra. It began as a whispered rumor which grew in force, as the facts became known, until it dominated the conversation everywhere; on the decks, in the lounges; it even penetrated to the kitchens.

Cora Trenton-Jones found herself the center of an eager, questioning mob who invaded her stateroom before she even had time to dress herself. All through the morning they came, in a never ending stream, Barbara herself being the first.

Mrs. Trenton-Jones had returned to the ship very late the preceding night, tired out, her head dizzy with the names of various hotels to which Henderson had dragged her. Having given her steward instructions not to call her in the morning she still was asleep when Barbara stole into her cabin and huzzed her awake.

"Twenty darling," she murmured. "I'm so happy."

Mrs. Trenton-Jones' eyelids fluttered faintly, then she tried to resume her sleep, but, presently, she raised herself.

"Is that any excuse for waking me out of a perfectly good sleep?" she demanded. Then, with the memory of yesterday unpleasantly vivid in her mind, she added crossly: "Anyhow, you've no right to be happy."

Barbara opened her eyes and purred innocently. "But why?"

And Cora Trenton-Jones launched into a graphic and realistic description of all she had suffered the previous day. Barbara was rocking herself to and fro with laughter.

The older woman regarded her in a hurt and angry silence.

"You might tell me what you were doing yesterday."

"I was getting married," Barbara announced calmly.

"Getting married? For the Lord's sake whom have you married?"

"Ray Lowther."

"Ray... whom? Never heard of him."

"You've heard him anyhow. Twenty—he's the saxophonist in the orchestra."

"The saxophonist..." weakly, "you're, you're joking, Barbara."

"Honest, I'm not—look here..." and she held out her slim platinum wedding band.

At that Cora Trenton-Jones collapsed.

"We'd have invited you to the ceremony if we'd thought you'd be so pleased about it!" Barbara murmured sweetly. "Wish me luck, old dear. I'm off now to see to my packing. We're getting off at Southampton."

She walked towards the door and, with her hand on the knob, added, "You better go on with this tour, Twenty. You're a sweet thing, but hardly necessary on a honeymoon."

And with that she was gone before Cora Trenton-Jones had recovered sufficiently to utter a word.

Ralph Henderson was the next to disturb her. He arrived simultaneously with the steward, bearing an immense box of candy. Mrs. Trenton-Jones considered that she needed it to help her withstand the shock of Barbara's announcement.

She knew that she would be blamed for Barbara's latest escapade; the girl's relatives would be furious, asking how she could have let such a thing happen under her very nose.

She felt uncomfortably aware that she should have taken more interest in Barbara's affairs, but, to do so would have necessitated energy, and energy of any kind Cora Trenton-Jones deplored. Besides, she had no thought Barbara was interested in any man on board, unless it were the Britisher.

If only it had been the Britisher, she reflected bitterly. He, at least, had a title in the offering to exchange for Barbara's wealth. They could not have blamed her so much for that—but a penniless fellow in the orchestra.

Ralph Henderson's face was a mottled red as he stood angrily chewing his under lip whilst he waited for the steward to withdraw.

"What's this I hear about Barbara having married that saxophonist?" he burst out, directly the cabin door was closed.

Mrs. Trenton-Jones sighed. She felt better after a walnut cream. "I'm afraid as true." "Great heavens!" he spluttered. "You sit there and tell me it's true. Sit there and calmly munch chocolate creams." "One must live," she told him mildly, as she put the largest she could find into her mouth. "Three hundred calories at least—but I feel the better for it," she announced to herself.

He went on needless of her interruption.

"Without doing anything to prevent it."

"What can one do now?" "Dammed if I'll believe he is a gentleman, either!" Henderson burst out.

He felt he could say no more than that.

Mrs. Trenton-Jones smiled, but it was a sickly effort.

"He may be—for all we know." "Impossible! He wouldn't be in his present position if he were."

It occurred to Cora Trenton-Jones that if this Englishman were doing something similar instead of waiting to fatten off an heiress he might be better for it. But, by nature, she was a peaceful woman, so instead she began another piece of candy. She was enjoying herself for the first time in days.

"No man is worth dieting for," she thought to herself.

Aloud she said, "Knowing Barbara as I do, it can't possibly last. 'You don't think so?'"

"Of course not."

"Ah..."

He appeared to be thinking, for he sat for some minutes on the end of her bunk pulling at his mus-tacks. Presently he said, "It might be worth trying." "You see," he explained, "I'd invited Barbara on a house party and she'd accepted. When I first heard of this—this tomfoolery of hers—I thought it was all off. Now I'm not so sure that it mightn't be wise to hold her to her promise and ask the fellow to come along too. Ought to sicken her of him quicker than association with—well, with men who are gentlemen, you know. She's bound to notice the contrast." (Copyright, Dial Press)

Ralph Henderson's clever plan spells misery for Ray and unhappiness for Barbara. Continue the story tomorrow.

Intersectional Grid Begins in Earnest During This Week

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 9.—(AP)—The lid is on and intersectional football games get going in full blast this week. Southern eleven will be matched in six of them.

With two eastern elevens invading the south, the game will be two into the east, and one into the northwest.

The Yale Bulldogs, with a sweeping victory over Vermont to whet its appetite, leaves the historic eims of New Haven for the heat of Athens, Ga., to engage in a tail-twisting act with the University of Georgia Bulldogs.

This will be the high spot of the week's activities in the south.

Vanderbilt sends its Commodors to Minneapolis for a clash with the Gophers of the University of Minnesota. The southern team has a slim chance to win.

Virginia Polytechnic Institute meets Pennsylvania on Franklin Field, Philadelphia, the Gobblers improving with every game.

The University of Virginia Cavaliers entertain Swarthmore at Charlottesville, Hampden-Sidney is due at Ithaca, N. Y., to go Cornell a rehearsal and Davidson College will be at West Point, N. Y., to hear the Army guns bark.

Indianapolis—Roy Wallace, Indianapolis, stopped Young Jack Dillon, Louisville, (5).

Savannah Honors Memory of Patriot

Savannah, Ga., Oct. 9.—(AP)—On the 15th anniversary of his death, this city today honored the memory of Brigadier General Casimir Pulaski, the Polish patriot who fell at the siege of Savannah while fighting with the 13 colonies in their cause of freedom.

Representatives of Poland and France, joined Savannah in the memorial exercises, which were arranged to include a parade, a military memorial mass, unveiling of tablets and casting of a wreath upon the Atlantic in memory of Pulaski's burial at sea.

Count Crancizek Pulaski descendant of a brother of the Polish general; John B. Stetson, minister to Poland; Minister Filipowicz of Poland, and Captain Louis Stabile, naval attache to the French legation at Washington, were invited as the city's official guests for the occasion.

General Pulaski, who at the age of thirty-one was leader of cavalry in the allied American and French forces besieging the city occupied by the British under Brigadier General Provoost, fell October 9, 1779 in a desperate siege upon the British lines, riding at the head of a unit of 300 men. The young patriot died after being placed aboard the brig Wasop and was buried at sea somewhere between Savannah and Charleston.

ECONOMY DEMANDS

That every automobile owner should have the oiling, greasing, washing and polishing of his car done at the place of business of the dealer who is best qualified to render efficient service. Especially so when you know the dealer to have an efficient shop, modern equipment, and a true knowledge of the car. In our shop we have all of this combined with neatness and courtesy. It is to the especial interest of the Ford owner to bring his or her car to our shop for service for more than one reason.

FIRST: Our mechanics know the Ford car so well that in greasing it we do not overlook any of the numerous and often vital points of the car to be greased. The average greaser only greases the parts that are immediately visible.

SECOND: We know paint and what is best for it. We know how to prolong life and luster by properly washing and polishing. Our knowledge of paints and varnishes is such as is not found outside of first class body plants.

THIRD: The oils and greases that we use are of the very best. We challenge anyone to prove the contrary.

FOURTH: A visit to our garage will readily show that for neatness and modern mechanical equipment we are unexcelled. There is nothing that could happen to any automobile that we cannot repair.

FIFTH: Our charges are reasonable. We will wash your car for $1.00, oil and grease with genuine Alemite for $1.00. All other work is priced accordingly.

It belongs to Police Captain P. C. Horne, Sr., of Washington, D. C. It has gone 96,000 miles without replacement of rings or wrist pins or tightening of bearings, and the motor still runs like new. From the very beginning it has been lubricated with "Standard" Motor Oil.

THIS is one of the outstanding performance records which are being made every year by this remarkable motor oil.

"Standard" Motor Oil is an oil-in-oil, made from carefully selected crudes and specially processed. It clings to metal surfaces, resists friction and penetrates more quickly to all moving parts.

This means less wear, less carbon and better power. Ask for "Standard" Motor Oil at your dealer's. Fill your crankcase with this rich-bodied, oilier oil. Get added miles of service from your car without extra cost.

THERE isn't much that Captain P. C. Horne, Sr., of Washington, D. C., doesn't know about automobiles and motors. When he bought his Columbia-6 back in September, 1923, he decided to give it the best of treatment. He chose "Standard" Motor Oil. Today, after 96,000 miles, he says, "The good service I have obtained from my car is largely due to the quality of "Standard" Motor Oil."

We told the tobacco farmers a short time ago to watch this space for more interesting news about the tobacco market and marketing conditions. WELL, HERE IT IS. All grades of tobacco have advanced sharply and the market is strong. We have believed since the market opened that prices would go very much higher and we still believe it, because there is no good reason why it should sell below the cost of production. We sold Monday nearly two hundred thousand pounds and so far as we have heard not a dissatisfied customer. Sell your tobacco where they know tobacco and know how to sell it. There is a lot in this:

(Continued from page one) pleasure being present. She is one of the most beloved and honored women of the entire state and a pioneer in this work of the King's Daughters. The keynote of the meeting and the main objective being stressed is the building of a new and larger chapel at the Jackson Training School and Mrs. Burwyn lets no opportunity pass without a word in its behalf.

The attendance is not as large as was anticipated due to high waters, washouts and other state organizations now convening. However, about a hundred loyal Daughters and Sons, wearing the silver Maltese cross, bearing the letters, "I. H. N., the word, "Seal" on one side and the date 1886 on the other, answered at roll call.

One is struck by the names selected by the different bands: "Burdens Bearer," "Sheltering Home," "Patient Circle," "Lootout," "Lead a Hand," "Doing for Others," "Silver Cross," "Sunshine," "Relief," "In His Name," "Endeavor," "What So Ever," all signifying ministry and service to others and are with themselves a challenge to right endeavor. The Order congratulated on having no mysterious significance and on being inter-denominational. The meetings are not held behind closed doors. There are no secret ceremonies, no glittering ceremonies, nor glittering badges. Only the little silver Maltese cross with the letters, "I. H. N.," engraved on it as a watchword known as a symbol of service and showing in whose Name the service is rendered.

Among the honor guests present, who were not seated on the platform was Mrs. J. B. Cherry, of Greenville who also is a charter member of the Patient Circle, joined the Order in June 1886, just five months after it was founded in New York City. She served as state president from 1895-1896 and has held nearly all of the offices in the local organization.

The appointments committee announced at this time, has Mrs. T. R. Member of Rosemary as chairman.

Reports of the various committees were read and accepted in the regular routine of the morning session.

Then came the State President's message of opening day, and Mrs. Moye, with her gracious and charming manner was equal to the occasion. She began by saying: "Another year of service in the Master's Vineyard has drawn to a close. It has been a year of duty, privilege, pleasure and many blessings—and, as we have come from all parts of our Old North State to this our Fortieth convention I pray that we have come, praising God, taking courage to look ahead, and go forward with renewed zeal and great activity." She gave much information and proposed new plans for the development of the Order and pleaded the cause of the State organ, "The Silver Cross."

She brought a thought to our women of over organized towns, when she said: "Everybody should belong to everything to put it over. This is the small-community idea. If we measure our standard by that method we will be abolished. The influence of the woman of our land is greater than ever before. We should not lose sight of the fact that increased power has brought greater responsibility. Valuable results can be obtained only by earnest, faithful effort, and often self-sacrifice of those who are charged with responsible duties." In stressing the Junior work she said: "Daughters, give of your time and talent—some may have ten or more—it was only he that hid his talent who received condemnation and was deprived of the one he did have. A leader must be a lover of children, organize them early, and they will grow up in their work just as we have done. The very life of our Order is at stake. If we neglect the young today, we can never interest them later on in life, this is the crucial time of our Order. Open your hearts and homes to the young, teach them obedience to God's law, and you need have no fear that they will break man's law. President Coolidge says: 'What the youth of the country needs is not public control through governmental action, but more home control through parental action.'" And closed with an appeal for the new chapel. "As the years have passed, implicitly by itself on having no mysterious significance and on being inter-denominational. The meetings are not held behind closed doors. There are no secret ceremonies, no glittering ceremonies, nor glittering badges. Only the little silver Maltese cross with the letters, "I. H. N.," engraved on it as a watchword known as a symbol of service and showing in whose Name the service is rendered.

A very appropriate sermon in Song "Come Ye Blessed" was given.

by Mrs. J. H. Waldrop. This solo was a story of God's children and the inheritance of the Blessed who do His will. The sweet soprano singer was accompanied by Mrs. Ray Tyson.

The Senior reports proved very interesting and showed gain in members and achievements.

A stormy session, held in the modern language, added to the meeting as viewed from the standpoint of a mere spectator. Some large and high Circle work in its resignation from the State Branch and was discussed and a resolution resigned for a time. Some recently compiled historical record does not give a certain leader in the Jackson Training School foundation due recognition according to the Circle claims and this old trouble was threatened out to some extent at this time. The act of resignation seems unprecedented according to the National President, and she arose to pour oil on the troubled waters, by saying that misunderstandings will arise in every organization and even occurred among the disciples of Christ. "Both are right, each has a right to his hurt feelings, but we must pray earnestly and rise above these things."

Action on the question of accepting the resignation was left to the executive committee.

Miss Easdale Shaw, of Rockingham, who compiled the record in question, spoke in defense of the "History of the North Carolina Branch," which had received much favorable comment and praise during the morning, saying that this was not a matter of opinion but of records preserved for years, and that while the Daughters did not claim to establish the School alone or unaided the data assembled proved certainly to her own satisfaction and to a large number present that facts presented and set down regarding this were correct. Due respect and recognition of the valuable services of others were acknowledged and the Order seems to have a proper appreciation of their efforts. A reconciliation is hoped for and will probably be the result of tactful arbitration.

Announcement were made of the luncheon at one o'clock and of the program for the afternoon which includes a drive and a tea for the delegates and visitors.

The evening program is as follows: At eight o'clock in the Methodist church Mrs. M. W. Leibert, international president of the organization, will address the convention and a musical program rendered by the city chorus club. An informal reception will then be held in the church parlors honoring Mrs. Leibert.

Tomorrow's sessions will be featured by reports of the Central Council by Mrs. Z. A. Rochelle and Mrs. Hortense F. Moye, discussion of the Building Report, a formal ballot and an address by Mrs. L. P. Russell, a memorial service in the afternoon followed by an address by Mrs. H. P. Brantjes, a dinner at 6:30, when the convention will be guests of the Eastern Carolina Teachers College, a message from Stonewall Jackson Training School by Supt. C. E. Boger and a message from the college by Dr. Robert H. Wright.
