FALL CONVICTED IN BRIBERY CASE TODAY

FOUND GUILTY OF ACCEPTING $100,000 BRIBE IN THE LEASE OF ELKS HILL OIL RESERVE

Jury of Eight Men and Four Women Ask Mercy of Court in Announcing Verdict at Washington Shortly Before Noon Hour; Wife of Former Secretary of Interior Gives Way to Tears as Decision Is Made Known; Defense Files Notice for New Trial

Washington, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Albert B. Fall, was found guilty today of accepting a $100,000 bribe from Edward L. Doherty for the lease of the Elks Hill, Calif., naval oil reserve.

The jury recommended to the court that the former interior secretary be shown mercy.

The case was the first criminal action won by the government in these growing out of the celebrated senate oil investigations.

The other charge against Fall was that of conspiring with Doherty to defraud in the Elk Hills lease.

The four women and eight men on the jury stood as they announced their verdict individually.

Mrs. Fall and her daughters, Mrs. C. C. Chase and Mrs. Jonett Elliott, wept forward in their seats and sobbed.

FIFTY-FOUR DIE IN TRAGEDY ON GREAT LAKES

Milwaukee Plunged to Bottom in Storm Tuesday Night While Trying to Make Port

Milwaukee, Oct. 25.—(AP)—A dozen bodies today marked the resting place of a Lake Michigan steamer and revealed the fate of her crew of 54.

Each encased in a life belt, they floated among wreckage from their ill-fated ship, the Grand Trunk ferry Milwaukee, on the lake 16 miles southeast of Kenosha, Wis.

The story of the actual events leading up to the sinking seemed destined to remain locked in the bosom of Lake Michigan.

Warning that 50 years would bring a peasant class unless agricultural depression was relieved, the governor urged the farmers to use pure seed that would return a greater crop yield and then organize so "the man who grows the crops will be the money."

He emphasized also the importance of growing the essential foodstuffs needed in North Carolina, much of which, he said, is now purchased from other states.

DOLLAR DAY DESCRIBED AS BIG SUCCESS

Trading Reported Heavy Here Yesterday During Special Fall Trade Event

Special "Dollar Day" conducted in Greenville yesterday was a great success, according to information issued from the office of the secretary of the Merchants Association this morning.

It was the first time that the special dollar day had been held in Greenville. Usually these events are staged twice annually, but the merchants decided to give their patrons an opportunity of obtaining more bargains this year and decided upon the special dollar day plan in order to carry out this purpose.

Dollar Days are staged under auspices of the Greenville Merchants Association, and there are always a large number of members of the organization ready to participate.

Some send to northern markets to replenish depleted stocks to take care of the bargain seekers coming to Greenville during dollar day, and that is one of the main reasons so many reasonable values are offered.

There will be no more Dollar Days until next year, but Greenville merchants will continue to offer seasonal goods at reasonable prices, members of the association said today.

Stocks to take care of the holiday shopping have already been bought in many instances, and when the festive season actually comes the stores will be packed with a collection of offerings surpassing anything in this section of the state.

Raleigh, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Seven men, including the entire highway commission of Sampson county, have been indicted as the result of the explosion and fire that destroyed a dynamite and convicted truck in Sampson county August 22, last, L. G. Whitley, State penal inspector, announced today.

Indictments against the Sampson men were returned yesterday afternoon by the Sampson county grand jury following the presentation of evidence by Solicitor J. A. Powers, acting at the request of Governor O. Max Gardner and Mrs. Kate Burr Johnson, State commissioner of Public Welfare, who asked that the Sampson officials be prosecuted.

BEGIN PROBE OF EFFORT TO KILL PRINCE

Belgian Police Begin Sweeping Investigation of Attempted Assassination

Brussels, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Sweeping investigation of the attempt yesterday against the life of Crown Prince Humbert, heir to the Italian throne, was pushed today by the Belgian police.

Meanwhile the prince celebrated with Princess Marie Jose, daughter of the Belgian monarchs, the formal announcement of their betrothal. He planned to leave for Rome this evening.

At the formal announcement dinner at Brussels palace last night King Albert rose, and without mentioning the attempt on the life of the young couple, the entire company rose and honored the toast.

At police headquarters silence was maintained as to steps taken in investigation of the attempted assassination. There were reports, unconfirmed, of direct implication of officers in the attempt. The officers were not so secretive regarding Fernando Drossa, the assassin, however, and made public his statement.

The youth, who is but 21 years old, and was badly mauled by the crowd yesterday, said he was a socialist and for that reason he had wanted to kill the crown prince.

"I regret having missed him," he added. He denied having an accomplice.

He said he had for a long time contemplated killing either Premier Mussolini or a member of the Italian royal family because they had betrayed the Italian constitution.

"I am prepared to face death," he said. "I am surprised I am still alive. I certainly thought I should be killed on the spot and had no idea of escaping unhurt."

NO WORD YET RECEIVED OF LOST AVIATOR

Name of Urban Diteman Believed Added to Roll of Those Who Tried to Fly Across the Atlantic and Failed

New York, Oct. 25.—(AP)—The name of Urban F. Diteman, Jr., generally was believed today to have been added to the roll of those who tried to fly across the Atlantic and failed.

Unheard and unreported since he headed his midget monoplane, "Golden Hind" out to sea from Harbor Grace, N. F., on Tuesday, all but the most hopeful were convinced that his adventuresome project had ended with a forced landing in a stormy sea.

Those who clung to the belief that the Montana aviator-stockman had escaped pointed out the possibility that he may have headed northward and landed on some isolated island or been picked up at sea by a ship without wireless.

One of those who refused to give up hope was his wife who yesterday at her home in Billings, Mont., received a letter he had mailed from Harbor Grace before his takeoff.

"Once in the air," he had written, "it's as good as done."

But his 70-year-old mother at Portland, Oregon, has become resigned to the belief that her son is dead. His father, also, prior to leaving for Billings to comfort his daughter-in-law and her two children, said he was convinced his son was lost.

ASK RADICAL TO FORM NEW GOVERNMENT

Paris, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Edouard Daladier, Radical leader, today accepted President Doumergue's invitation to form a new government, to succeed that of Premier Aristide Briand, who resigned Tuesday.

He expected there to consult other leaders. He promised the president to tell him Saturday at 3 P. M. whether he considered it possible to form a government.

M. Daladier has frequently held posts in cabinets during the past ten years but has never been premier. In 1924 he was minister of the colonies and in 1925 became minister of war in the Painleve cabinet. This cabinet shortly fell and he became minister of the interior in the Briand cabinet. The next year he was minister of education in the Herriot cabinet.

Three Persons Hurt in Automobile Wreck

Wilson, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Three persons were injured, one of them seriously, in a head-on collision of automobiles about a mile from Bailey early last night.

Adrian Mitchell, of Raleigh, employe of the Federal Revenue Department, was seriously hurt in the crash and examination at the Bailey hospital, where all the injured were taken, revealed that his left arm was almost severed at the elbow. It had to be amputated.

J. H. McClure, a Beaufort county deputy sheriff, and K. E. Mulder of Washington, were painfully, but not seriously injured. McClure is in the hospital, but Mulder was discharged, after being treated.

FOURTEEN MEN ARE EXECUTED BY RUSSIANS

Death Follows Charges of Maintaining Armed Revolutionary Organization

Rostov-On-Don, U. S. S. R., Oct. 25.—(AP)—Fourteen Russians, including two former high officers of the army, and three property-owners were executed today on charges of maintaining an armed monarchist counter-revolutionary organization in underground quarters in the North Caucasus mountains.

A large number of others identified with the organization were sent at the same time to concentration camps under sentences of hard labor for from five to ten years, individuals peasants who were drawn into the circle through ignorance, were liberated.

Authorities said the members formed themselves into a military Czarist organization which operated under the guise of a religious sect named "Invaslavits which purchased arms, stores ammunition, and sent emissaries and propagandists to Black Sea towns to agitate against the Red army and Soviet economic and political plans.

It was charged that Colonel Paul Grigorovich, a former Czarist officer, individual peasants who were leaders in the organization, formed a military council of twelve whose headquarters were located in a remote place called Babuk-Aul in the Sochumi district of the Caucasus range.

In a number of villages it was alleged the organization created nuclei or cells which recruited new counter-revolutionary elements consisting mainly of Kulaks of rich peasants. The organization according to the authorities was created at the beginning of the civil war in North Caucasus among united remnants of defeated white guards.

AGED MOTHER OF MRS. COOLIDGE DIED LAST NIGHT

Northampton, Mass., Oct. 25.—(AP)—A little old lady who went to the White House in 1924 to see her son-in-law inaugurated President, has found release from two years' illness. Her daughter, Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, was at the bedside when the end came early last night.

Of sturdy New England stock, Mrs. Lemira Goodhue remained intensely interested in the lives of her distinguished kinsfolk. She spent two months at the White House after the inauguration. Entering a hospital here in December 1927, after an influenza attack, she remained mentally active despite the infirmities of illness and old age. She was 80 years old.

Several times Mrs. Coolidge was summoned hurriedly from the White House to her mother's bedside. Since the Coolidges' return to Northampton she has visited the hospital daily. The former President was at the hospital yesterday.

Stock Exchange Slowly Recovering From Panic; Trading Is Still Heavy

New York, Oct. 25.—(AP)—The New York Stock Exchange appeared to have recovered its equilibrium for the moment at least, in transactions today, as trading in transactions yesterday's stampede of liquidation, which caused the most violent scenes in the exchange's history. A broad advance set indirectly after the opening, and trading was in snappy renewed volume, although many blocks 5,000 to 15,000 shares changed hands.

Canadian Pacific jumped $12.62 and A. M. Byers shot up $19. National Cash Register, American Power and Light, and Eastman Kodak mounted about $4 to $5, and such stocks as American Telephone and U. S. Steel opened about $1.00 higher. A few weak spots were uncovered, however. Fox Film dropping $6 and First National Stores $4.50.

The market opened rather calmly, with leading issues advancing $2 to $3, and a few stocks shooting up from $10 to $20. The pace of trading became increasingly feverish as the morning wore on, however, and huge buying orders were hurled into the market to absorb further nervous selling.

Several Hundred Extra Policemen On Stock Market

New York, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Four hundred extra patrolmen, 100 detectives and a large detail of mounted men were sent into Wall street district today to aid the 50 patrolmen and 60 detectives of the regular detail in maintaining order.

Although all was quiet this morning Police Commissioner A. Whelan said he would take no chances.

He also warned brokers to be particularly careful about entrusting bonds and securities to runners unless they were sure of their reliability. He said there was a danger that bond thieves, taking advantage of the situation, would attempt a coup in the district.

Known criminals are never allowed beyond a certain deadline drawn around the financial section.

BOOZE STILL AND TWO MEN TAKEN IN RAID

Two negro distillers, a still and ten gallons of whiskey were captured by Pitt county officers in a raid in the Alpine section Tuesday afternoon, according to information given out today at the sheriff's office.

The distillers were Sam Hardee and Daniel Randolph. Hardee was released under bond yesterday, but Randolph was still in jail this morning in default of bail.

The still was a steam outfit capable of producing an enormous amount of whiskey at one distillation and was one of the best plants captured by the officers in several weeks.

The distillers are said to have been connected with the illicit whiskey traffic over a period of several years, and their capture was hailed with interest by law enforcement officers who have been waging a relentless campaign against the whiskey making element the last several weeks.

Wake County Man Killed in Wreck

Raleigh, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Edward Pullen, 16, of near Raleigh, was instantly killed in an automobile accident late last night when the car in which he was riding collided with a truck at a street intersection here.

The automobile in which Pullen was a passenger crashed with a truck driven by E. J. Nesbitt of Lake City, S. C.

Jimmy Aldrich, also of Raleigh, was driving the car in which Pullen was riding and both he and Nesbitt were held under $500 bond each for a coroner's hearing today.

Brokers remained generally confident during the morning that the price level could be held, despite the renewed pressure. It was believed that banking interests would make no effort to bring about a general rally in price until the market quieted down considerably, merely contenting themselves with supporting the market near the present levels.

SEVERAL HURT IN RACE CLASH IN CALIFORNIA

Fresno, Calif., Oct. 25.—(AP)—Race rioting in which about 300 white laborers and 200 Filipinos participated as the result of a stabling affray at Exeter, 60 miles south of here, started a mob of whites early today on an attempt to drive the Filipinos out of that section of the county.

At least one man was hurt and several others were believed to have been injured when stones, clubs and the like were brought into play by the Caucasians. The injured man, Adolph Borgman, 26, a truck driver, was the victim of the stabling. He was not expected to live.

Rioting occurred in two places—first at a carnival which was being attended by both whites and Filipinos—and later at the ranch of E. J. Firebaugh, on the outskirts of town.

It is believed to have existed between the white and Filipino workers broke into fury when Borgman was stabbed. Borgman said a Filipino attacked him with a bolo, a long knife much used in the Philippine Islands.

When the Filipino retreated from the carnival the whites by that time numbering about 300, moved to the Firebaugh ranch and attempted to set fire to a shed which serves as a camp for the Filipinos. Firemen interfered, however, and 50 or more Filipinos fled. The whites pursued them, hitting them with stones and branding clubs and pickaxes.

Many of the Filipinos took to the mountains to conceal themselves. Others fled in automobiles.

Upon leaving the Firebaugh ranch the whites separated into groups and headed for other ranches, determined to drive out any Filipinos remaining in the vicinity. No reports were available immediately as to their further activities.

Sheriff R. L. Hill of Visalia hastily deputized a group of men who set out in a dozen automobiles, hoping to prevent further violence. At 3 p. m., no reports had been received here of additional developments.

FATHER TO GET SON IN AUTUMN

Chicago, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Sometimes law is not merely a matter of solemn faced judges, important looking lawyers and fat bailiffs. Sometimes law is a bit of wistful poetry.

To George W. Morgan, Jr., 11 years old, it was like that. He did not see his father and mother fighting at law for possession of him. What he saw was golden sun filtering through trees in autumn; leaves turned golden; and the blue haze that sometimes veils the North Carolina mountains.

George was in court with his mother, Mrs. Lillian Morgan Pattison. They said she had kidnapped George from his father in North Carolina. And George, senior, wanted the boy returned. Judge Craig was asked yesterday to decide.

The court put the question to the boy, and the boy answered: "I want to live with my mother in Illinois—all the time but in the fall. The leaves are turning brown in North Carolina in the fall; and then I want to be with my father. It is so pretty there, in the fall."

And Judge Hood entered the order that way. George, Jr., can be with his father when the leaves are turning brown.

Seven Jailed in Kidnapping Case At Detroit, Mich.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 25.—(AP)—Seven persons were in custody today in connection with the kidnaping of 5-year-old Jackie Thompson, and police were searching the city for two others suspected of participation in the plot. The child was discovered in an East side house yesterday by police shortly after the father, Henry S. Thompson had paid a ransom reported to have been $25,000.

Those held today are James Fernando, 39; his wife Anna, 27; E. J. Soave, 23; Anthony Duganone, 28; his wife, Mary, 19; Anthony Abruzzese, 32; and Joseph de George, 42. Fernando, Soave and Duganone are charged with kidnaping.

GRID TEAMS OFF TO SCENE OF BATTLES

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 25.—A general movement of southern gridiron troops to the scenes of Saturday's football battles, which are expected to somewhat clarify the muddled conference situation, was in progress today.

Georgia Tech, a team weakened by injuries to two of its main cog-enters for New Orleans to encounter Tulane's Green Wave. Vance Maree, Giant fullback and "Stumpy" Thomason, speed merchant, accompanied the team but were not expected to play.

The Wave, bigger and stronger than last year, was quietly awaiting the contest, confident that Billy Banker, and his fleet running mates would turn back the former national championship claimants. It was indicated this battle might be won in the sky.

The Georgia Bulldogs, off to an early start, left Athens last night for Jacksonville, where they probably will get in a light workout this afternoon before taking the field tomorrow against the Florida Gators.

Armin Waugh, one of the speediest backs in the Red and Black collection, is definitely out of the game. Marion Dickens is slated to fill his halfback post.

Reports from Gainesville were that Cannonball Clyde Crabtree, Florida's all southern quarterback, might not answer the opening gong. On injury suffered at the Tech game and aggravated in practice Wednesday kept the elusive back on the sidelines yesterday.

Crabtree was only one of a half dozen or more first string players who were expected to cool their heels on the bench Saturday.

Tennessee and Washington and Lee, almost evenly matched in weight were ready for battle at Roanoke Saturday. Buddy Hackman and Gene McEyer were prepared to show the Virginia fans some plain and fancy broken field running.

With several injured regulars returned to their squads, both North Carolina and Virginia Poly were primed for their engagement at Chapel Hill. Pete Wyrick, veteran Tarheel quarterback, who has been laid off with an injury for three weeks, will call signals for Chuck Collin's team Saturday. Ritter and Gray, linemen, will bolster the dabbler forward wall, while McEyer will add some punch to the backfield.

Western Teams Have Some Big Games Ahead

Chicago, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Eight Western Conference football teams will go into battle tomorrow to preserve or wreck championship chances. But out of the running by two defeats, Michigan's only desire is to create upsets for teams in the race. With that in view the Wolverines will attempt to beat Illinois for the second consecutive year.

Ohio State will attempt to add another victory to its record of two straight, when it meets Indiana in Ohio Stadium, and Wisconsin and Iowa will be out to break into the victory column when they meet at Madison. Purdue and Chicago will engage in a contest for unblemished records, each having thus far scored one triumph with no defeats.

Only light workouts were on today's schedule. Iowa and Indiana left their camps last night and planned to take their last exercises on enemy fields. Michigan stopped over in Chicago and planned to work out before proceeding to Illinois. Purdue headed for Chicago this morning and was to share Stagg Field with Chicago this afternoon.

Eastern Football Faces Important Week-End Tests

New York, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Eastern football awaits the most important week-end of the season to date with its three oldest representatives embled on their home-grounds.

Yale plays Army at New Haven; Harvard meets Dartmouth at Cambridge, and Princeton takes on Navy in Palmer Stadium. The first two attractions already are sell-outs. Vacant seats will be found only at the Princeton enclosure.

The Yale-Army affair tops the card for sectional and general interest, but the meeting of Dartmouth and Harvard will command attention both because of its historic background and because the Crimson, as the last remaining undefeated member of the Big Three, will be fighting to keep its head above the water.

The Princeton-Navy game will find a twice-defeated Orange and Black eleven facing its last chance to save something from its eastern preliminary season.

Outside the Big Three, Cargenie Tech will attempt to make it three straight over a great Notre Dame eleven at Pittsburgh, with the Irish favored to break their Scotch jinx. The feeling is growing that this Notre Dame team has yet to display its full power.

North Carolina State, Duke and Mississippi will attempt to uphold the standard of the south in inter-sectional battles. The Wolfpack is enroute to East Lansing to play Michigan State, O. E. Miss invades Dallas to meet Southern Methodist, and Duke visits Philadelphia to take a crack at Villa Nova. Eight Blue Devils were injured in the Navy game last week and will not see action against the northern outfit.

Reports from Gainesville were that Cannonball Clyde Crabtree, Florida's all southern quarterback, might not answer the opening gong. On injury suffered at the Tech game and aggravated in practice Wednesday kept the elusive back on the sidelines yesterday.

With the Clemson-University of South Carolina contest out of the way, football fans of the two Carolinas turned their attention today to three contests tomorrow, which will have a bearing on state championships, one game which brings together teams from Virginia and North Carolina, and two inter-sectional clashes, with North Carolina eleven journeying to foreign fields.

University of North Carolina will have a stiff test in a powerful Virginia Tech gridiron machine, a team that battled University of Pennsylvania virtually to a standstill, only to lose by a 14 to 8 score in the late stages of the clash. The Virginians are making their second invasion of Chapel Hill in two years, last season's game renewing a rivalry which terminated in the early stages of the twentieth century.

State championship contests are to be divided, two being staged on South Carolina soil, and one in North Carolina. The Citadel and Presbyterian are to meet in Charleston, with Furman and Wofford playing in Spartanburg. Past performances give the Citadel and Furman an edge.

North Carolina's state title battle brings Davidson and Wake Forest together in the Greensboro Memorial Stadium. It will be Davidson's first contest with one of the "Big Five" of Wake Forest, North Carolina, Duke, State, and Davidson.

Wake Forest has been defeated by North Carolina and State. The game in Greensboro should be a close one.

JOHN HEYDLER DEFENDS THE NAT. LEAGUE

New York, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Coming to the defense of the National League, John A. Heydler, its president, has issued a statement denying that the American League is 20 per cent stronger, and estimated a comparative strength made by Ernest S. Barnard, president of the American League.

The National League president said also that he finds himself out of accord with President Barnard's statement that the junior league has been bringing in better players.

Mr. Heydler pointed with pride to Chuck Klein, Phillies, Melvin Ott, Giants, and Johnny Frederick, Brooklyn, as young outfielders who would be stars in the American as they are in the national.

Davis of the Phillies and Sukorf of the Reds were cited as start young catchers and a number of promising pitchers were singled out for comment. These included Hubbell and Walker of the Giants, Moss of Brooklyn, Brame of the Pirates and Sweetland of the Phils.

Two Phillie infielders, Hurst and Whitney and Gilbert of Brooklyn were held up as examples of good selection of undeveloped bases. talent.

"I know full well that the loss of 12 out of 13 games in the last three world's series is bound to give rise to the talk of all around American league superiority," said Mr. Heydler, "but impartial students of the game know there is no material difference in the playing strength of the two leagues.

"The 22-year record of the series as conducted under organized baseball rules from 1905 to 1926, shows that the Americans won 12 and we won 10; that of 133 games played the Americans won 66 and the Nationals 64 and three were tied. They made 430 runs and we made 440. They made 1,014 hits while the Nationals made 1,037.

The National league president blamed the poor showing of his league's representatives in the 1927 and 1928 series to the performance of an individual, Babe Ruth, referred to as "super batsman."

Barbara's face went hot with telling her he was leaving! At last she spoke.

"I think I'm beginning to understand. It's that rotten old pride of yours again. Anyhow you've got your independence. Aren't you working in my uncle's office?"

He threw back his head and laughed a sarcastic laugh that sounded foreign on Ray's lips.

"Independence? That's a joke. Why, the $35 I earn each week wouldn't support me a day in the style you maintain!"

She could not keep back a hurt cry.

"Ray, what's made you so bitter? Don't you care for me any more?"

He turned away from her so that she might not see the tortured look in his eyes.

"Look at me, don't you love me?" She laid a hand upon his arm.

"I do—that's the worst of it."

"Then, if you do—if you care enough..."

"Stop," he cried, suddenly angry, and he pushed her hand roughly from his arm. "I know all that you're going to say. The trouble with you, Barbara, is that you want me to sacrifice all along the line. Love isn't enough, Barbara. I've tried it and I've found that it isn't sufficient compensation for the loss of one's self-respect or for the sacrifice of one's ambition."

Barbara had gone very white. She seemed to realize for the first time that she was against something serious. Presently she spoke, in a voice unusually humble for her.

"But if I were to say that I wouldn't object to your writing jazz."

"You wouldn't object?" he took her up sharply. "If I needed any further convincing that would have done it! You'd look upon my work with amused toleration. It would never enter your head, would it, to be proud of my profession?"

His tone made her angry.

"I said I wouldn't object. You can hardly expect me to go into ecstasies as though it were an eminently suitable means of livelihood for you!"

The pause was significant.

"You see, Barbara," he said lifelessly, all the fire now gone out of him, "you'll never be able to grasp my point of view. I'm sorry, it's nothing more to be said."

She turned away from him quickly. She was a fool, she told herself, but she wanted desperately to throw her arms about him and beg him to tell her that it was all a hideous nightmare. She could not understand his wanting to leave her solely for the reasons he had given.

He turned towards her with a sudden pleading gesture.

"I didn't mean for us to hurt each other as we're going, Barbara. I wanted to talk to you over sensibly and make you understand that I didn't intend my leaving you to be final."

"No."

"No, I meant it only as a temporary measure until I had made good. Subconsciously, Barbara, you'll never be able to respect me until I've proved my mettle. I hoped, later, when I'd succeeded, that you'd let me come back to you."

"And in the meantime," she interrupted, sharply. "I'm to await your lordship's pleasure? You seem to forget that there are other men in the world..."

"I don't, dear. If you find some one in the meantime that you care for, you're to consider yourself justified in divorcing me."

But this she considered the last straw! She said, with a sort of choking cry.

"Get out, Ray. Get out before you make me hate you more than I do already. You've a perfect right to leave me but you've no right to stand there torturing me as you're doing now!"

That night a distraught Ray paced up and down in his room, scene in his mind. Wretchedly he

The trouble with you, Barbara, is that you want me to sacrifice all along the line. Love isn't enough, Barbara. I've tried it and I've found that it isn't sufficient compensation for the loss of one's self-respect or for the sacrifice of one's ambition."

Barbara had gone very white. She seemed to realize for the first time that she was against something serious. Presently she spoke, in a voice unusually humble for her.

"But if I were to say that I wouldn't object to your writing jazz."

"You wouldn't object?" he took her up sharply. "If I needed any further convincing that would have done it! You'd look upon my work with amused toleration. It would never enter your head, would it, to be proud of my profession?"

His tone made her angry.

"I said I wouldn't object. You can hardly expect me to go into ecstasies as though it were an eminently suitable means of livelihood for you!"

The pause was significant.

"You see, Barbara," he said lifelessly, all the fire now gone out of him, "you'll never be able to grasp my point of view. I'm sorry, it's nothing more to be said."

She turned away from him quickly. She was a fool, she told herself, but she wanted desperately to throw her arms about him and beg him to tell her that it was all a hideous nightmare. She could not understand his wanting to leave her solely for the reasons he had given.

He turned towards her with a sudden pleading gesture.

"I didn't mean for us to hurt each other as we're going, Barbara. I wanted to talk to you over sensibly and make you understand that I didn't intend my leaving you to be final."

"No."

"No, I meant it only as a temporary measure until I had made good. Subconsciously, Barbara, you'll never be able to respect me until I've proved my mettle. I hoped, later, when I'd succeeded, that you'd let me come back to you."

"And in the meantime," she interrupted, sharply. "I'm to await your lordship's pleasure? You seem to forget that there are other men in the world..."

"I don't, dear. If you find some one in the meantime that you care for, you're to consider yourself justified in divorcing me."

But this she considered the last straw! She said, with a sort of choking cry.

"Get out, Ray. Get out before you make me hate you more than I do already. You've a perfect right to leave me but you've no right to stand there torturing me as you're doing now!"

That night a distraught Ray paced up and down in his room, scene in his mind. Wretchedly he wondered how he had managed to make such a mess of things.

... had been to discuss the whole situation sensibly. Instead he had bungled it, hopelessly, apparently, now, in all probability he had sacrificed her love, presented all possibility of a future reconciliation.

His last glimpse of Barbara tortured him. The memory of the forlorn drop of her shoulders, the littleness of her in her short white evening gown, almost miled his recollection. A dozen times he opened the door, half impelled to go down to her.

But each time he realized before he had reached the staircase that such an action would mean renouncing everything for which he fought. It would mean giving in to her entirely... all along the line. Surely, he argued, if she loved him at all, she should see the humiliation of his present position and would wait until he felt entitled to claim her.

In an endeavor to distract his mind he picked up his alto saxophone and commenced to play. For some time he was not actively conscious of what he played but, presently, a decided melody seemed to emerge from the chaos of notes. Soon he found words fitting themselves in with the tune, words that seemed to have been born in his brain without any effort on his part.

"I could not believe, That I could ever grieve But I've got those grievin' Grievin' 'cause I'm leavin' blues. I may go away, But I'll be back some day, With those grievin', leavin', grievin' blues."

"I'm singing."

"Wind, wind, Blow my grievin' blues away. Wind, wind, Blow my sweetie back today, Blow her a message, A message from me, Tell her I'm sorry as I can be, Wind stop your groanin' Wind stop your moanin' And blow my grievin' blues away."

Below in the drawing room the notes of the saxophone drifted faintly down to Barbara where she sat huddled in an armchair, too miserable to cry. She had been thinking how, at times, your very love for a person makes you more capable of misunderstanding them, of hurting them.

Suddenly she raised her head and listened incredulously. Could it be Ray playing his saxophone, playing at a time like this?

As the notes became louder, more definite, she sprang to her feet with a choked cry of heartache and rage beating a clenched fist against the palm of her hand. Of all that she had endured from him that night, this seemed the final insult! How little he must feel their parting if he could play jazz in this brazen manner right in her very home!

She conceived in that moment an intense hatred for that saxophone of his, almost as though it had been human. She longed to smash it to bits. She had a fantastic notion that it was at the root of the whole awful misunderstanding.

She stood there, straining her ears to listen, wilfully torturing herself. Each note seemed like a knife thrust, and was almost conscious of actual physical pain.

She endured it, how long she did not know, her nerves ragged, until the telephone bell rang out shrilly, momentarily drowning the jazz above her.

A telephone call definitely marks the parting for Barbara and Ray. Continue the story tomorrow.

DESTROYED DOLLARS.

Dollars, represented by property, die when fire destroys. Whether the blaze consumes a great tract of forest or a one-car garage, it means a permanent economic loss. The money invested can never again work to produce profits. It is definitely and literally dead.

This is a direct loss. The indirect loss, in waste of time and unemployment, may be even greater. The tax that would be paid on a destroyed building is reassessed against other citizens. The rates charged by insurance companies are determined by the aggregate average fire loss. Every citizen in the community pays for every fire. Something that contributed its share, large or small, to progress and social or industrial development, has been totally destroyed. Instead of an asset, it becomes an expense.

These are simple matters, but they are seldom realized. A few minutes' thought must bring home to every citizen the palling danger of our gigantic annual fire waste. Thrift, industry, saving, hope—fire destroys them in the flickering of an eye. And the bill is charged against the national pocket-book.

The sensational crash on the New York Stock Market yesterday resulted in the loss of several million dollars," observed a reader of the Reflector today.

"And as usual it was the little man that did the losing. This is always the case. Upward trend of stocks is too much for the average man to resist and he buys and holds—always a little too long, unless, perhaps, he is one of the lucky men in a thousand of losers."

"Playing the stock market is nothing but a gamble in the truest sense of the word, yet many of our best people play the game, easing their conscience with the contention that it is a business proposition. Yes, it is business—but not the kind of business the man on the safe side desires to play."

"Greenville merchants had many values to offer the trading public of this great agricultural section yesterday," declared a shopper from one of the nearby towns who had come today to attend court.

ABOUT TOWN

"The cancer clinic to be conducted at Pitt Community hospital October 30th no doubt will draw numbers of people to Greenville," said a member of the Pitt County Board of health today.

"The clinic is to be held specifically for the purpose of giving free examinations and advice to cancer suspects or those already afflicted, and in that way help decrease the awful toll of life claimed annually by the cancer. Examinations will be conducted under direction of a specialist, a member of the U. S. State Cancer Society, who understands the various forms of the growth and is able to give sound advice concerning the most important step the patient should take.

"This is the first time a clinic of this kind has been conducted in Pitt county and I am certain it will attract more than passing interest."

"We are going down to Elizabeth City today determined to bring home the bacon," confidently asserted a member of the High School team as the club prepared to leave for the aquatank city.

"We realize we have a fairly hard fight before us, but we have been through some mighty practice lately and believe the boys are in trim for battle."

"Elizabeth City, however, is just as confident of adding a scalp to their credit as we are and the engagement is going to be one of the most stubbornly contested of the season."

"The proposed full time county sanitary condition of the many towns of the county," said a citizen today, speaking of the movement on foot to provide an all time official.

"The various towns should be able to defray this expense by pooling their appropriations, and it might be the county would lend some aid in this direction."

"The need of an officer of this kind has been felt for sometime and the public will be glad to see him go to work and attempt to improve the sanitary condition of the small towns as well as the large ones."

FOUND GUILTY OF ACCEPTING $100,000 BRIBE IN LEASE OF LK HILL OIL RESERVE (Continued from page one) Mark D. Thompson, Fall's personal attorney collapsed in court a few minutes after the verdict was rendered. He has suffered from heart trouble for sometime.

Weeping, he donned his coat and slumped to the floor. Mrs. Chase cried hysterically as did Mrs. Elliott but Fall's wife, weeping pushed through to her husband's side. She sat in the big easy chair beside him and they threw their arms around each other and sobbed on each other's shoulders.

It was the first indication of any break in the iron nerve of the former cabinet officer. After a few minutes Mrs. Fall straightened her shoulders, and looked around the room.

Ten minutes after Thompson collapsed he was still lying on the floor and Fall's personal physician, Dr. H. H. Sanford, left Fall and hurried to Thompson's side to try to revive him.

Standing above Thompson's body, Hogan turned to those surrounding him and denounced the jury's action as "a rape of the constitution."

Meanwhile Mr. and Mrs. Fall made their way out of the court and were taken to their car to return to their hotel. He had nothing to say regarding the verdict.

The daughters, who still were weeping hysterically, became separated in the crowd. The foreman of the jury said that four ballots had been taken last night.

"It first showed 7 for acquittal, 3 for conviction and 2 undecided and not voting," he said. "When the fourth ballot was taken at 1 a. m., it showed 7 for conviction and 5 for acquittal."

"On the first ballot, this morning the vote was 11 for conviction and one for acquittal. "The one remaining vote for acquittal came over for conviction today."

On the first ballot yesterday, it was said, two of the women jurors were for acquittal and two did not vote while on the fourth ballot last night, two of the women jurors voted for conviction and two to free Fall.

Thompson recovered and was seen from the court room by two character witnesses for Fall. Washington, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, who led the Senate investigation into the naval oil leases, said today on hearing of Fall's conviction: "every right minded person ought to be gratified that this large measure of justice has been done."

"I can't help but feel the sympathy for Fall which is serious illness and weakened physical condition must excite in the breasts of everyone," he continued. "Nevertheless, it is gratifying that the jury did its obvious duty notwithstanding that condition."

"Senator Fomerne and Mr. Roberts are entitled to unstinted praise for the courage and persistence they have exhibited and for the high talent which they displayed in the litigation. The Senate generally, however, received the news in silence."

GOBLERS OUTWEIGH TAR HEEL BACKS Chapel Hill, Oct. 25.—It looks as if V. P. I.'s backs are going to outweigh the Tar Heel ball carriers by seven or more pounds to the man when the ancient rivals clash here at 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon. And it looks further, that the Tar Heel line is going to outweigh the Gobbler forward wall by the same margin. The queer division of weight raises an interesting question of where does weight count most?

Defense to Put On Witnesses in Trial of Catts

Tampa, Fla., Oct. 25.—(AP)—The defense was prepared to present its witnesses today in the trial of former governor Sidney J. Catts, charged with violation of counterfeiting laws, as the Federal court proceedings entered the fifth day.

The government, which since Monday has presented its case against the former Florida executive, concluding its major testimony yesterday by bringing to the stand Julian Diaz, head of the counterfeiting ring which Catts was alleged to have financed.

Defense attorneys marshaled their forces for what they estimated would be a day and a half of testimony toward establishing their client's innocence. After the government rests its case, the former governor's counsel will seek to have parts of the prosecution's evidence removed from the record before the first defense witness is called.

Sidney J. Catts, Jr., head of his father's legal staff, said a motion would be entered to eliminate much of the testimony of Leah Burwell, government witness, from consideration by the jury. The defense will contend, Catts said, that her version of his father's implication in the counterfeiting ring represented largely what Julian Diaz, her former employer, had told her, an consequence was inadmissible as evidence.

Miss Burwell and Diaz testified that Catts knew a $5,000 loan he made to Diaz was to be used in connection with a counterfeiting scheme.

Appearance of the former governor on the stand in his own behalf still was problematical today, his son said.

CONFEDERATE VETERAN DIES AT FUQUA SPRINGS

Raleigh, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Paschal Pool, 82, Confederate veteran, died suddenly at his home at Fuqua Springs, near here, late last night. Mr. Pool is survived by two children, Mrs. Sanford Martin of Winston-Salem and Mrs. Della Daughtry of Fuqua Springs.

MAGNOR EXPECTED TO STAR FOR TAR HEELS SATURDAY

Chapel Hill, Oct. 25.—"Ten Yard" Jim Magnor, hard driving Tar Heel halfback, will be fighting hard Saturday to maintain his great season ground-gaining record, which seems to be catapulting him straight toward an All-Southern berth. Magnor has run the ball 30 times in four games, for a net gain of 316 yards, more than 10 yards a clip. He does much of the Tar Heels' passing as well, and is also a good defensive man and interference runner.

NEW CHAIN GROCERY TO OPEN THEIR FIFTH STORE TOMORROW

The Home Grocery Stores have added still another store to their chain, which is the fifth such establishment since the organization of the company a few months ago. The new place is located in an attractive brick building on the corner of Evans and Second streets, and will be under the management of Mr. Simmons, who has had years of experience in this particular line of merchandising.

The popularity gained by this organization upon starting of their first store prompted the opening of others until now they have five in operation, which expansion is equalled by few if any chain groceries operating in any one city. The fact that this business is owned and operated by local interests has won for it a steady increased patronage and confidence of the public.

Sanitation is one of the outstanding features in the conduct of their stores, and other than handling the highest class and most desired line of groceries they have also installed up-to-date meat markets and carry a complete line of country produce.

A special invitation is extended to the public to attend the opening tomorrow of store No. 5, where they hope to have the pleasure of serving you.—(Adv.)

Farmers Sell Your TOBACCO IN GREENVILLE

Prices took another dollar advance the first of this week, reaching a new high average Monday of $26.78 for the 961,390 pounds sold.

We are selling tobacco daily from practically every county in Eastern Carolina and the farmers say it is paying them to sell in Greenville, even though some of them travel at least 125 miles.

Those in position to absolutely know, say we are highest market and have keener buying competition than any market in the East.

Since Last Season—

Three of the warehouses have made large additions, which gives the market increased floor space of about two acres. Some of the factories have made enlargements to their buildings, installing additional redrying facilities and other equipment. The Greenville tobacco market is decidedly in better position to handle, daily, larger quantities of tobacco than ever before.

Tobacco Warehouses—

Greenville tobacco market has nine (9) large and modern brick warehouses with close to 14 acres floor space, sufficient to accommodate 2,225,000 lbs. of tobacco daily. These warehouses are managed by men of years of experience.

Buyers and Factories—

Greenville tobacco market has four (4) sets of buyers, representing all the important companies in the world, using bright tobacco. Nine (9) larger and modern tobacco factories are located here, additions having been made to several of them since last season, while one new plant has been built.

Roads and Locations—

Greenville tobacco market is located in the heart of Eastern North Carolina. Seven fine hard surfaced roads lead into Greenville. Tobacco growers living 125 miles from Greenville to tobacco market sell their tobacco in Greenville and return home same day.

Stabilization of Profits Upheld
By Chas. Schwab

New York, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Stabilization of profits was upheld by Charles M. Schwab today in an address before the American Iron and Steel Institute, of which he is president.

He declared it was ethical and necessary for the steel industry to think in terms of stabilized profits as to strive for stability in other respects. "It is high time," he said, "we scrapped the idea that the steel business must either be a prince or a pauper."

He estimated production for 1929 would exceed 57,000,000 tons, ten per cent greater than in 1928, the best previous year, but said even more important than this was the degree of stability attained.

"This fundamentally sound condition," he said, "is largely responsible for the uniform prosperity which has been shared by all branches and all companies in the industry. It is significant that the industry's favorable showing has not been due to high prices."

He attributed the import earnings to three factors: greater demand for steel; enlarged output; and lower costs.

While at present, he said, there is a slight let-up in demand he declared it would be unfortunate to let any slight fluctuations in demand disturb the healthy balance that has been established. He pointed out that a falling off in demand would be bound to result in an increase in costs in which event a stabilized price structure would be needed more than ever.

"I am a firm believer," he said, "that one of the best ways of assuring progress on an even keel is to let the cost sheet be our compass. The cost sheet will tell us whether productive capacity in any branch of the business is in excess of current requirements. It will reveal uneconomic and obsolete practices. It will forestall an unsound price structure. It will discourage the attempt to produce to capacity all the time, regardless of demand."

Fifty-Hour, Five-Day Week Schedule Adopted by Mill

Spartanburg, S. C., Oct. 25.—(AP)—A fifty-hour, five-day week has been inaugurated as the operating schedule for the Avesca mills near here, mills No. 1 at Greenville and mill No. 2 at Woodruff, according to an announcement made last night by H. SUNDOWN STORIES

THE PUMPKINS

(By Mary Graham E. Jeter)

"There was a lot of excitement last night," the Little Black Clock told Peggy and John as night fell again.

"Do you want me to turn the time back so we can see what happened?"

"Of course we do!" John said.

"What did happen?" Peggy asked.

"Just a moment and you'll see," the Little Black Clock answered.

And in a flash the Little Black Clock had turned the time back and had taken the children to a huge pumpkin field.

"We'll sit nearby," the Little Black Clock said, "and listen to what is going on. If we're too near we may disturb the pumpkins at their great meeting."

So the Little Black Clock and John and Peggy sat at the edge of the field and watched and listened to the meeting of the many pumpkins gathered there.

None had come from away. It was entirely a local pumpkin meeting, but there were many, many pumpkins belonging to the field and they were all talking.

"I hope," said the first pumpkin, "that I will be used for a Jack O' Lantern. My uncle, I was told, made such a handsome one last year. He had the most enormous, grinning mouth, and the candle that was put inside simply lighted up his whole face and made him a gorgeous creature."

"I hope," said the second pumpkin, "that I will be used for a Thanksgiving pumpkin pie."

"I hope," said the third, "that I will be a Jack O' Lantern too, and will go and make many calls."

"My father said, so I am told," another pumpkin remarked, "that it was the great moment of his life when a door was opened and when he sat with grinning lighted face hoping to be spoken to very pleasantly by the lady of the house. And he was! Then he was taken on more calls—10 in all that evening!"

Market Report Cotton--Stocks--Grain

COTTON MARKET STOCK MARKET

New York, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Cotton opened steady today at a decline of 5 to 11 points with December and later deliveries selling 14 to 16 points net lower during the early trading under liquidation of buyers who seemed to be influenced by larger gaining figures than expected. Relatively easy Liverpool cables and the failure of the early weather map to show any spread of killing frosts in the south.

Southern selling was also in evidence and while the trade was credited with buying on the decline, the market was within two or three points of the lowest at the end of the first half hour. The census report showing 9,039,062 bales ginned prior to October 18th was above expectations based on the showings of recent private reports and indicated a very heavy ginning between Oct. 1st and 18th.

Liverpool cables reported that covering and trade calling there had been supplied by liquidation and hedge selling.

GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Wheat scored material advances in price late today after averaging lower most of the time and suffering a bushel break at one period. It lies in wheat values were based largely on broadening out of European demand. North American export purchases today being estimated as totaling 2,000,000 bushels, including a good-sized amount of hard winter wheat from the United States. Uncertainties of the stock market were also a major influence throughout the day.

Wheat closed unsettled 1 1/4 to 1 7/8 a bushel higher than yesterday's finish.

Corn closed at 1-8 to 7-8 advance, oats showing 7-8 to 1 rise, and provisions varying from 20c setback to the gain.

New York, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Powerful support was thrown into the stock market today, and prices developed considerable stability, despite an enormous volume of trading, again severely taxing the trading capacity, and delaying the ticker more than an hour. Trading, however, failed to approximate the fervid pace of yesterday's near-panic conditions, which resulted in the staggering record volume of nearly 13,000,000 shares.

The market opened calmly, and moved substantially higher, but considerable selling pressure appeared before mid-day. Huge buying orders were thrown into the market and the decline was checked early after noon, when a few leading shares had sold off 1 to 4 points. In the early afternoon, more than a score of issues gained from 5 to nearly 20 points.

Reassurances from leading bankers and business executives proved a stabilizing influence. It was generally reported in Wall street, although official confirmation was lacking, that as a result of bankers' conferences, a pool of more than a billion dollars had been formed to support the market, and that at mid-day it had been found necessary to use but a small fraction of that sum. Highly optimistic statements regarding the steel industry made by leading executives at the meeting of the American Iron and Steel Institute also bolstered confidence.

Call money renewed at 6 per cent, and was a little firmer, reflecting renewed buying of stocks. Bankers acceptance rates were again reduced, however, and the brokerage loan figures, showing a drop of $167,000,000, despite the fact that they failed to reflect Wednesday's and yesterday's liquidation, were gratifying.

Commission houses generally expressed the opinion that stocks had reached bottom yesterday, and many sent out buying advices. No sharp advance in prices was generally predicted; however, and many looked for a quieting down and dull trading for some time. It was pointed out that stock bought to support the market will soon find its way back into the market, which will tend to cancel any rally at this time. Traders continued rather nervous and many were glad to get rid of their stocks at today's better levels.

The early buying movement covered virtually the entire list and gains of 3 to 20 points from the previous close were recorded. A. M. Byers rose 19, Standard Gas & Electric 13, Canadian Pacific 12 5-8, Eastman Kodak 12 1-4 and Air Reduction 11. Advances of 5 to 9 points appeared in Goodyear Rubber, Bush Terminal, American Tobacco B, American-Foreign Power, Western Union, Brooklyn Union Gas, American Waterworks & Electric, National Biscuit, Johns-Manville, Republic Iron & Steel, Bendix, Calumet and Arizona, International Harvester, Houston Oil, Allis Chalmers and a few others.

Marion Kennedy, of Trowbridge, Ill., a blind telephone operator in the country, has held his post 28 years, and is a livestock dealer on the side.
