FALL ASSERTS INNOCENCE IN BRIBERY CASE

Former Secretary of Interior Asks Public Not to Believe Him Guilty

Washington, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Convicted of bribery but vigorously asserting his innocence, Albert B. Fall, secretary of the interior in the Harding cabinet, today rested his hope of vindication upon an appeal to higher courts.

Beyond the supreme courts of the District of Columbia, in which he was found guilty of accepting a bribe of $100,000 from Edward L. Doheny in return for executing the famous lease on the Elks Hills naval oil reserve, lay but two tribunals—the District of Columbia court of appeals and the supreme court of the United States.

In spite of the fact that a retraction of his appeal, would bring about a suspension of the one-year jail sentence imposed upon him by Justice Hitz, together with a fine of $100,000 counsel for the former cabinet officer went purposefully forward with efforts to obtain an ultimate exoneration.

For the first time since the oil scandals came to the attention of the nation, the former secretary late yesterday issued a public statement, summing up his version of the naval petroleum reserve leases.

In this he said his "borrowing" of money from Doheny may have been unethical, that he committed an "unpardonable blunder" in writing to the senate committee that he obtained the money from E. B. McLean, and finally he entered a plea that the American people not believe him "guilty of this damnable crime" of which he protested his innocence.

The next step for the convicted former cabinet officer was the appeal to the court of appeals of the District of Columbia.

Washington, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Mrs. Albert B. Fall is going back home with her husband next week as confident in their future as she was the day they were married nearly 30 years ago.

Buoyed by a fervent belief that history will identify him as "a patriot," she said today that "the white flag of surrender shall never float over me and mine," and with eager assurance she told of plans to "work in all directions" toward his vindication.

They will return to the home in El Paso, Texas, which she owns in her own name, she said, and after a brief rest, she will go to the New Mexico ranch to manage their "whatever her husband's failing health will permit him to accomplish." The ranch will be their home until it is sold, and Edward L. Doheny is paid back the sum of about $300,000 covering his purchase of the ranch at a sheriff's sale as well as the $100,000 loan of 1921.

The ranch, Mrs. Fall is confident, will net them something over the amount they owe Doheny—something to add to her own small income, which she said is sufficient to keep the family from want.

Vehemently and with some indignation, she denied reports that Doheny has supported them since their troubles began. The family is, and has been since the crash, and will be, sustained on the returns from investments made with her own inheritance, she said.

Still maintaining Fall's innocence of bribery, she repeated with spirit: "If he were guilty, I would be too." For she had been with him step for step, she added, since he was 21, and she 18, and that was 48 years ago.

"We are going to use every means to prove our innocence," she said, using the pronoun with a casualness born of having employed it these many decades when telling of her husband's career. She smiled as she combined she always said, "and when we were on the bench," and "when we were in the senate," and "when we were in the cabinet."

One way of vindication she sees is the publication of "the whole story" of Albert B. Fall. She wants the world to have a picture of his romance from prospecting days, and hopes to see it in print before she dies. Several writers already have manifested eagerness to undertake the task, and she is planning to cooperate now.

Wrote out but still stalwart, she sat with frail shoulders straight, her lined face in repose, her blue eyes shining, as she said: "I feel as he does that it was unfortunate that he did not tell the whole story of the loan in the beginning. But if his prosecutors in the courts and politicians who have tried to show a felonious, traitorous and criminal intent in him had told as he could tell his honesty in all things, and his devotion to the public, he spent his life serving, the world would understand why we who know him best will always be proud of him."

J. W. CRAFTON FINED $1,500 IN COURT HERE

Salesman Convicted of Manslaughter to Be Released on Payment of Fine

J. W. Crafton, Greenville traveling salesman, convicted of manslaughter by a jury sitting in the criminal term of Pitt county Superior court in this city yesterday, was permitted to pay $1,500 and cost of action, in a decision handed down today by Judge Garland E. Midyette, who is presiding over this term of court. The case was completed yesterday afternoon, but Judge Midyette announced that sentence would not be pronounced until today.

The charge against Crafton grew out of an automobile wreck on the Greenville-Bethel highway last April in which Rev. J. L. Yandell, Tarboro minister, was killed. The car that ran into the machine occupied by the minister was driven by Crafton who was immediately placed under arrest and held for preliminary hearing. He was later required to give bond to await action by the criminal term of Pitt county Superior court.

The case required about one day in disposition despite the fact that a considerable amount of evidence was produced on both sides. The jury was out only a short time. Several other cases were disposed of yesterday and two or three defendants were sent to the roads. John Single, colored, charged with renting a room for the purpose of prostitution, was sentenced to the roads for eight months.

Henry Elks, appearing on a charge of possessing liquor, was sent out to the road camp for a period of six months.

David Council, colored, assault, was allowed to pay a fine of $25.00 and cost.

Ed Sutton paid a fine of $50.00 and cost and ordered not to drive again in three months, following conviction for driving while drunk.

Frank Smith, colored, was given a six months' suspended sentence to the roads on a charge of possessing whiskey.

Elijah Woodard was permitted to pay the cost on a charge of giving a worthless check.

Tariff Question Delayed As Senate Recesses Until Monday; Rates Acted Upon

Washington, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Because of the absence of many members and the unwillingness of those on hand to proceed with the tariff bill with the small attendance, the senate shortly before noon today voted itself a recess until Monday. Several rates had been acted upon in the nearly two hour session.

STOCK MARKET CLEARS AWAY BIG BUSINESS

Clerks Begin to See Their Way Out As They Labored On Books Today

New York, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Wall Street workers began to see their way out today as they labored to clear away the mass of accounting piled up in four record-breaking days in which 43,490,540 shares changed hands on the stock exchange.

Trading was suspended yesterday and today, but activity was not. Brokers and their staffs hoped to have their books straightened out and all the tangles unsmarled so that trading could be resumed Monday. There will be another holiday Tuesday—election day.

The floor of the exchange yesterday presented as busy a scene as any ordinary session. About 100 brokers were on the floor most of the day closing transactions that had not been completed at the end of the three-hour session Thursday.

In the Broker's office clerks toiled over their books and adding machines and messengers dashed in and out. Although members of the exchange were forbidden to trade over the counter, there were some sales of stock in the street by non-members, who set up impromptu markets in corridors and on street corners. Such deals were for cash.

Wall Street looked toward the reopening of the exchange Monday with optimism.

The upward trend of prices two days after the tremendous slump coupled with the reduction of the Federal rediscount rate from six to five per cent and the drop in the bank of England rate from six and one-half to six per cent were taken to augur a stabilized market for the immediate future. All contraction of $1,096,000,000 in brokers' loans this week also was a favorable factor.

Poland Settles Debt Question With Germany

Warsaw, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Poland and Germany, after extensive conversations, have reached an agreement by which outstanding financial problems growing out of the war period have been settled.

The commission working in Paris on liquidation of financial problems in accordance with the Young Plan took up the problem of mutual Polish liquidation of German property, in view of the still outstanding differences the two governments decided to seek an understanding by the means of direct diplomatic negotiations. These were crowned by the signature of a final agreement on October 31 by Foreign Minister Zaleski and Herr Rouscher, German minister here.

Under the agreement Germany renounces all future reimbursement claims of state as well as personal while Poland agrees to the same renunciation on her part and consents to refrain from further liquidation of German property in Poland, at the same time various other similar questions were settled.

The Polish press looks upon the agreement as an important step in the favorable evolution of Polish and German relations with the likelihood that it may lead to a commercial treaty.

I. C. C. Hears Proposals For The Consolidation of Nation's Railway System

By JAMES P. SELVAGE Washington, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Plans for unification of railroads that would virtually make over the transportation may of the nation are under consideration by the Interstate Commerce commission.

After years of delay the first step in the proposal to increase railroad efficiency through merging various lines is expected to be taken shortly after Congress convenes in regular session with the submission by the commission of its own proposal for consolidations.

Commissioner Claud R. Porter expects this to be ready before the first of the year, and soon thereafter it is believed the commission will act upon the drafts submitted by the roads themselves for unification through stock control and leases of more than 60,000 miles of track, involving over ten billion dollars in property investment and other billions in annual revenues.

Division of the eastern section of the country into a system of major trunk lines is to be formed now, with four proposals for unifying these lines indefinitely before the commission. At the same time the proposed disposition by the commission of the eastern lines is being watched carefully in railroad circles. Consolidation has not reached so intensely into the west as yet, although the greatest unification of all is pending there—that involving the application of the Great Northern, operating more than 8,000 miles of track, for permission to buy control of the Northern Pacific's 6,682 miles and create the longest system in the country.

Rail consolidation has been active before the commission since 1920 when Congress directed it to prepare a tentative draft for mergers. This was issued, providing for nineteen systems, hearings were held upon it and the commission began drafting its final proposal—one that would be sufficiently inductive for the railroads to carry out its general provisions as the plan is not to be compulsory. Since 1925 the commission has repeatedly advised Congress that the drafting of such a plan was impossible and asked to be relieved, but without success.

Bills were introduced, however, at the last session of Congress intended to facilitate rail mergers by modifying the requirements in the present law that all unions must be consistent with the general scheme outlined by the commission.

In the meantime, the commission has gone ahead with its draft which commissioner Porter expects to be ready next month. In addition to being inviting to the lines, the commissioners must at the same time safeguard the public interest, preserve competition and maintain, insofar as possible—existing channels of trade and make possible the employment of rates producing equal rates of return on competitive traffic.

From ten to thirty systems have been proposed for the country. In the east, for the present the most vital sector, suggestions have ranged from four to six major trunk lines. The four separate applications for control of various lines already before the commission were presented by the Baltimore and Ohio, the C. & O., the Wabash and the Delaware and Hudson. The Pennsylvania and the New York Central, both dominant factors in the eastern transportation world, also are believed in railroad circles to have plans in the making, while the Lacawanna also has been suggested as the key line in another group.

The Baltimore and Ohio seeks control of 14,141 miles of track, the system's property investment would total approximately $2,192,036,000 and it would have gross revenue, based upon 1928 figures, of $556,949,116.

From the Van Sweringean's Chesapeake and Ohio came an application for control of 10,056 miles, with a property investment of $1,806,392,966, and gross revenues of $534,661,064. Control is asked of the Hocking Valley, the Pere Marquette, the Erie, the New York, Chicago and St. Louis, the Virginian, the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western, the Bessemer and Lake Erie, the Wheeling and Lake Erie, the Pittsburgh and Shawmut, the Pittsburgh, Shawmut and Northern, and the Chicago, Eastern Illinois.

From the Delaware and Hudson the most recent petition came. Operating 881 miles of track, it seeks control of a unified system, 13,553 miles in length with a property investment of $2,629,311,328, and income of $695,101,32 in 1928, including the Virginia and the Western Maryland.

There were 602 cases of scarlet fever reported in October compared to 409 in September and 558 in October 1928.

Whooping cough totalled 560 in October last year and 746 during September this year.

Measles showed a decrease with 10 in October, 12 in September and 85 in October 1928.

Cases of typhoid numbered 83 last month, 151 in September and 148 in October last year.

There were 135 cases of pellagra in October as against 54 in September, with no report for last year.

METHODISTS ON SCHEDULE AT KINSTON

Resolutions and Routine Business Hold Attention of Conference Today

Kinston, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Resolutions and routine business took up time of North Carolina Methodist Conference here today.

The Conference was "well up with schedule" it was announced.

Dr. Frank S. Hickman, Duke university, preached to another overflow congregation in Queen Street church, the Conference church, last night. In preparation for last services of meeting tomorrow amplifiers were placed in Sunday school annex adjoining edifice, and on the three floors of this more than 500 who will be unable to hear Sunday's discourses at close range will be accommodated. The Preachers will be Bishop Mouson in forenoon and Dr. Hickman at night. Other Conference leaders will occupy pulpits in Presbyterian, Baptist, and Disciple churches.

Today was the traditionally quiet day before "Conference Day" reports, discussions, resolutions, etc., came before the body. Presiding Bishop uttered words of encouragement and advice to ministers and laymen.

Tomorrow, from the laymans viewpoint will be the big day of the five day session. Following Devotional Service at 11 A. M. will come the customary Love Feast and Memorial Service. Selected orators will address gathering at the later.

At night following sermon, appointments will be read. Hundreds of ministers will be informed where they are to live and serve during next 12 month, and because so many have spent four years in present pastorate and cannot under the rules stay longer, a large per cent will find themselves going to new fields. More than 1,000,000 Methodists will be interested in appointments, and many will listen in as they are read out over radio.

Noted Leader of Railway Trainmen Dies at Cleveland

Cleveland, Nov. 2.—(AP)—William G. Lee, 70, whose colorful leadership of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen brought him national prominence, died at his home in Lakewood this morning after a long battle of months against the ravages of cancer.

From the beginning of his colorful career as an official of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, William G. Lee was a leader whose open methods led him into many battles. From 1909 to 1928 he served as president of the organization, relinquishing his post, when at the age of 68, he was defeated for reelection. He was named secretary-treasurer, but because of ill health, he resigned last June 1.

In January, after having been elected president of the American Home Builders, Inc., Lee was made a defendant in a $100,000 suit charging slander. It was filed by Walter F. McCaleb, former vice president, organizer of labor banks. Among other things, McCaleb had charged Lee with mismanagement of the affairs of the Home Builders. Lee countered, accusing McCaleb with being vindictive because he had been defeated for the presidency of the organization. It was upon this accusation that the suit was filed, and is still pending.

In 1909 there was not a plant in Mississippi for the commercial utilization of milk or cream. Now there are 306.

Brookhart Ordered to Tell Senate of Whiskey Situation

Washington, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Senator Brookhart, Republican, Iowa, was under subpoena today to carry before a Federal grand jury charges he made from the floor of the Senate regarding liquor conditions in the District of Columbia.

United States Attorney Leo A. Rorer, had previously invited the Senator to appear of his own volition, but after his suggestion had been ignored, the subpoena was issued requiring Brookhart to appear next Wednesday.

In particular, Rorer wants to get before the grand jury Brookhart's story of a party which, he told the Senate, was held several years ago in honor of new members of the Congress. Liquor, he asserted, was served.

At that time, he expressed a desire for action by a grand jury, and the hope that it might take place before December, as otherwise the statute of limitations would prevent prosecution.

JIM TURNER TO SPEAK IN CITY ARMISTICE DAY

Raleigh Baptist Minister to Deliver Principal Address of Celebration

Tentative plans have been completed for observance of Armistice Day in this city, according to announcement made today by Dave Moore, commander of the Pitt County Post of the American Legion.

The celebration this year will be one of the outstanding since ending of the war, and will be featured by a parade of the men who fought in the great conflict to crush German atrocity and other organizations of the city.

The principal address of the occasion will be delivered by Rev. J. B. Turner, pastor of the Hayes-Barton Baptist church. Mr. Turner, a former pastor of the Emmanuel Baptist church of Greenville, is an ex-service man and his address is expected to be one of the most inspirational that has featured a similar celebration in years.

Aside from the parade and speaking, the program provides for the usual barbecue dinner, special picture at White's theatre, and a football game between Greenville high school and a similar aggregation from Tarboro. The game is being sponsored by the American Legion and is expected to be one of the hardest fought of the season.

Commander Moore said the post was putting the best foot forward in making this November 11 celebration one of the most prominent since the actual signing of the armistice, and that additional features would be added to the program from time to time.

The exercises will be largely attended as usual and every member of the post will cooperate in an effort to provide the best of accommodations for the hundreds expected to attend the exercises.

One Voter in District New York—If George Schrader is duly appreciative he will be sure to vote Tuesday. It will cost the city $240 to provide four election officials, a policeman, several watchers and a voting machine in the 83rd election district of the 10th assembly district. George, an engineer, who lives on West Thirty Eighth street, is the only voter registered in the district. Troops of business have high depopulated it.

PLANE TAKEN IN HOLDUP AT CAPITAL CITY

Two Men Remove Attached Plane From Raleigh Airport and Fly Away

Raleigh, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Bold removal of one of the Eastern Air Express airplanes during the early hours of this morning after the night watchman and deputized officer under Sheriff Turner of Wake county had been held up at the hangar of the airport near here, developed a controversy over the possession of two planes into a more serious case involving contempt of court, when it was discovered that the "City of Savannah," one of the attached planes, was missing.

The airplane was removed from the hangar about 3 o'clock this morning by two men and it took the air shortly afterward. Early this afternoon no reports of its whereabouts had been received.

Two airplanes used by the Eastern Air Express were attached by the United States Acceptance corporation against the Eastern Air Express and Dr. J. E. Owen, assistant chief pilot of the air express, who brought the "City of Savannah" to Raleigh from Camden, S. C., late yesterday. The two ships were the "City of Raleigh" and "City of Savannah."

The "City of Raleigh" was brought here yesterday by David S. Bechtel, representing the acceptance corporation, after he had seized it at Camden. The "City of Savannah" was not attached until late last night. The third plane of the air express, which inaugurated service through this section September 19, was the "City of Columbia" and it was seized in New York.

Clyde A. Douglass, attorney for the Eastern Air Express, said that the removal of the plane this morning was done by two men. Both attached planes, he said, had been marked with the usual attachment notices and both were partially dismantled after they were placed in the hangar.

Sheriff Turner was notified today that two men held up the watchman at the point of a pistol after calling him to the door of the hangar.

Mr. Bechtel was still in Raleigh today, undecided as to his next move and still refusing to discuss the entire matter.

Norris Will Demand Vote On Resolution of Censure Of Bingham Next Monday

Washington, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Contending to defer consideration of the resolution of censure for Senator Bingham, republican, Connecticut, today, Senator Norris, of Nebraska, gave notice that he would demand a vote on it Monday.

Senator Fess, of Ohio, the republican whip, announced he would be ready for a vote on Monday and the senate is expected to go on record on the matter then. The resolution is a privileged one and can be brought up at any time.

Senator Norris informed the senate that several members were forced to be absent today and had requested that he postpone the vote. Norris has turned down suggestions so far for modification of his resolution, which would have the senate condemn Bingham for placing Charles L. Edanson, assistant to the president of the Connecticut Manufacturers' Association, upon the payroll of the senate while he was assisting Bingham on the finance committee in writing the tariff bill.

THE LUXURY HUSBAND

Admits Circulating DePriest Circulars

SYNOPSIS: Barbara, attempting to forget her loneliness for Ray in preparations for her house warming ball, suffers a breakdown and leaves final details to Henderson. A queer chance, he engages the Golden Symphony Eight, and Ray, realizing that a mask will hide his features, agrees to play with the band at the party, smiling ironically at the paradoxical turn of affairs. Rita and Ray are working feverishly on the score for Fete Anhelms' revue. The pretty dancer manages to hide her heartache, resulting from the discovery that Ray still loves his wife and seeks success only as a means of a reconciliation with her. But one night she wavers and Ray begins to comprehend what he means to the girl.

BARBARA'S HOUSE-WARMING

The night of Barbara's house-warming! Thousands of colored lights dotted the drive. Limousines were winding in a never-ending stream between the tall pine trees that stood sentinel on either side. Laughing ladies, a glimpse of some bizarre costume revealed beneath opera cloak of velvet or satin, were being asked to alight by their men, likewise fantastically garbed.

Crown costumes were favored by the men—circus riders by the women. The ball was the event of the season, every one vowed. Then, dear Barbara always had been noted for her bizarre parties in the old days—but how original to have evolved an idea such as this!

Every one was agog to see Barbara herself, who, the servants informed them, was receiving in the ball room. That was in the new wing she had added to her home especially for the occasion.

The new wing consisted of two floors, the entrance to the ballroom being a wide staircase leading directly into it from the hall below. There everything was in readiness for a continuous buffet supper, the tables literally groaning under a load of delicacies.

Up the wide staircase and into the ballroom they trooped, to stop and utter a gasp of amazement and delight. For immediately they were carried straight back to the dear exciting days of childhood on which the circus came to town!

The dancing was a gigantic circus ring. Around this, instead of chairs, were wooden benches. From the ceiling hung trapezes, tight ropes and all the indispensable trappings of the circus. Ragged urchins circled the hall, shouting in a realistic monotone, "Peanuts, pop corn and crackerjack, or 'Ice-cold pop-pop, pink lemonade.' Certainly this was a ball to be remembered!

Barbara herself, in a short circus skirt agitter of spangles, a tinsel crown encircling her copper-brown head, found herself overwhelmed with praise for her amazing ingenuity. She laughingly discounted it, passing no a little on to Henderson.

The costume he wore was that of the old-fashioned ring master, a tall black top, an ill-fitting tail coat, dress trousers and, in his hand, a whip which he cracked continuously.

Dancing was now in full swing, a mad, merry jumble on the floor. A porcupine with a kangaroo, a bear with a rabbit, a trapeze artist with a seal... she laughs they got out of it, it's fun! Never had they felt themselves freer from restraint—more determined on a recurring good time.

The very clothes they wore, circus clothes, seemed to transplant them to the care-free days of childhood—business worries, disappointing love affairs, all vanished for the time being.

During the first part of the evening the Golden Symphony Eight, was concealed behind a trellis. They were being kept in reserve for one of the specially arranged stunts planned to entertain the evening.

Henderson, dancing with Barbara was whispering:

"It's a splendid success. I'm so glad for you. You're happy, aren't you, my dear? Please tell me that you're happy."

"Yes, indeed. I'm happy. I'd be an ungrateful little pig, wouldn't I, if I weren't?"

Yes—she supposed she was happy. She liked the signs of life and excitement all around her. Only—seeing the hands of a young couple clinging together longer than was necessary at the end of a dance—then was she conscious of a sharp twinge in her heart. A sharp twinge of envy, of memory, of longing for the days when she and Ray had been so absurdly in love.

A gala entertainment was planned for the middle of the evening. To open it, Barbara, according to numerous requests, had promised to dance for her guests. In her short skirts, with her bare knees and high boots, she suited her dance to the spirit of the occasion, cracking her whip as she went through her steps, ending with a couple of somersaults that brought forth thunderous applause.

Ray, sufficiently tall to watch her over the trellis, was poignantly aware of strangely mixed feelings. The lavishness he saw around him made it seem absurd that it was his own wife who was doing it. The irony made him feel like laughing, especially when he thought of his own meagre apartment. How had he ever had the nerve to marry Barbara when their own world was so completely apart!

Still, incredible as it might be, she was still his wife. A mad notion had seized him to rush down into the circus ring, take Barbara and whip her away in his arms.

"Why not? But watching her laughing face, the impulse died. He believed in her assumed gaiety. He had no means of knowing that it was not real.

Tight-rope walkers and trapeze artists followed Barbara's turn. Then came the event of the evening—a veritable circus parade—genuine wild animals hired from a circletouring the vaudeville circuit.

The were led up the wide staircase and into the ring by their keepers. What laughter, what applause greeted them! For a number of the animals were most humorously costumed.

A great bear paraded in tartan plaid pajamas, an ostrich wore glasses and an absurd hat was stuck on her head; monkeys were festive with huge Elizabethan ruffs, and we poodles, parading on their hind legs, were dressed for all the world like perfect little ladies and gentlemen.

Then, to add just the right touch of danger to the parade, there followed an actual lioness and a jaguar. And, as a climax, as though all this wasn't enough, an elephant entered the ring and there on its back, in a basket-shaped arrangement, was the Golden Symphony Eight.

Cheers rang out! Never had such a ball been staged in the annals of society!

The elephant, vaudeville trained, commenced to jazz. Very heavily and deliberately, but jazz, nevertheless. That proved too much for the audience. They couldn't sit still! Shouting and laughing they broke through the ring, clustering around the animal.

Then it was that an extraordinary thing happened.

A strange noise like the ripping of timber was heard, growing gradually louder on the far side of the room.

Guests felt dizzy. They stared at each other stupefied, unable to comprehend what was happening.

Suddenly a shout rang out, faintly discernible above the growing din.

"Good Lord! Look out! The floor is giving away!"

A thousand guests face death in the swaying building. Continue the story Monday.

SEEN ON THE STREETS OF GREENVILLE

There was a very tall man on our streets yesterday. He first came to my notice in front of the Home Furniture Company where he had paused for the edification of such street idlers as chose to admire him, office workers and clerks came out of the stores to see this strange sight. He must have been close to a dozen feet in height. The development of this lower extremities was remarkable, yet his feet looked no larger than the ordinary ten or possibly eleven size shoe. He was dressed in the fashion of some fifty years ago, with a long coat, longer trousers and opera hat, he also carried a lengthy cane. The gentleman also wore a generous smile and smoked a big cigar. I think he must have been a candidate who fulfilled all his campaign promises, really he was so high that I couldn't quite get the low down on him. His most amazing feat or least was the most amazing one that I saw was entering the Home Furniture Company of Greenville. He came directly out and said that they did not have a bed long enough for him, however. This firm is advertising a furniture sale in "The Heart of the Season," and I presume that this sale and stills accounted for his growth, but they were exceedingly well managed.

DARTMOUTH AND PITTSBURGH FACE STRONG CONTENDERS

New York, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Dartmouth and Pittsburgh faced strong foes here today in their effort to remain in the vanguard of eastern elevens. Pittsburgh is favored over Ohio State in the battle of Pittsburgh, but Dartmouth has picked out no soft task for itself in meeting Yale and Albion Booth before a crowd of 76,000 in the Bowl.

If either Pittsburgh or Dartmouth should falter, Cornell undefeated and untied to date, hopes to dash to the head of the column through a victory over Columbia.

Couple Lick Lawyer

Dallas—As balm for a beating given him by a woman who changed her mind after starting to get a divorce, a local lawyer is to send a couple a bill. The husband was holding him and the wife walloping him with a slipper when the police came to the rescue, after a reconciliation wrath developed at allegations in the divorce petition.

MRS. GULLEY HOSTESS TO END OF CENTURY CLUB

The End of the Century Club held their regular meeting Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. O. G. Gulley, on Third street. The club was called to order by the president, Mrs. Arthur. A letter was read from the King's Daughters expressing appreciation of courtesies shown during their convention. A report of last year's activities of the club was read by the secretary. This report was to be sent to Mrs. J. M. Hobgood.

The new books for the year were distributed by Mrs. J. L. Hassell. Very interesting and instructive current events were given by each member.

At the close of the business hour the program was turned over to Mrs. L. C. Arthur, whose subject was "Outstanding Gardens."

She very vividly described three gardens from Virginia and three from North Carolina. Those from Virginia being "Westover," which is the seat of the Byrd family, Gov. Byrd of Virginia, and Commander Byrd of aviation fame, being direct descendants of the Westover family. "Shirley," the seat of the Carter family, and "Brandon," the seat of the Harrison family. These three families have been prominent in the social and political life of Virginia since the early settlement of the colony.

The North Carolina gardens mentioned were Beverly Hill, Edenton, home of the late Dr. Richard Dillard; "Airlie," the estate of Mr. and Mrs. Waters of New York. This garden lies near Wilmington on the highway to Wrightsville. The last mentioned garden was "Our Arboretum," at Chapel Hill. This contains more than 500 varieties of plant life, and is one of the most beautiful spots in this section of the country.

The wonderful description Mrs. Arthur gave of all these gardens made one feel they were in a magic emerald land and that benign summer could not be barred by bleak winter. The gardens were gay with exotic flowers, rustling palms and opalescent pools. Night in these gardens only brings new star strewn beauty. Bright moonlight sharply silhouettes the rustling palm trees into graceful fans gesturing languorously to one another as they are gently swayed by the soft southern breezes. Lights glimmer here, there and yonder, becoming you to linger in these enchanted spots. She closed with a beautiful poem a couplet of which is familiar to all of us. "Full many a flower is born to blush unseen, And waste its fragrance on the desert air."

The hostess served a delicious salad course.

Atlanta, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Dr. C. L. Poole, 64, celebrated South Carolina physician died at a local sanitarium today from injuries received last Monday as he was struck by an automobile on a downtown street. Suffering a broken leg, severe body contusions and shock, the condition of the physician, largely due to his advanced age, gradually grew more serious, and since Wednesday little hope had been held for his recovery. Mrs. Poole had telephoned her son, Dr. J. T. Poole, of Los Angeles, but he had not been able to reach Atlanta.

In addition to his wife and son, surviving are two daughters. Mrs. Ruth Poole Zachry, of Athens, Ga., and Mrs. Fred H. Sorrow, of Atlanta. Both were at the bedside.

Local Farmers Take Advantage of Cotton Loans

Since the Federal Farm Board has made the announcement that they would advance 16 cents a pound, basis 7-8 inch middling cotton, to seasonal pool members of the Cotton Co-operatives, a good many cotton farmers in this section are taking advantage of this service. Among those that have joined the association and are pooling their cotton are: J. E. Winslow, J. A. Staton, W. L. Staton, J. C. Gaskins, Stokes & Congleton, H. A. Pierce, J. B. James, J. B. Bunting, L. L. Ward, R. L. Barnhill, S. G. Bunting, H. H. Pollard, J. E. Copeland, C. P. Aycock, J. F. Bishop, A. W. Baker, T. R. Alfred, C. T. Allen, E. T. Bonner, T. M. Peel, J. Paul Fritzel, W. D. Cobb and W. Robert Everett.

Never before in the history of this country has an agency of the government made a point blank statement that the price of the farm commodity was below its intrinsic value based upon the law of supply and demand; and, when these two statements are considered together, namely: That the price is too low and the Farm Board is willing to do its part towards correcting the situation by advancing an amount almost equal to the price at which the cotton is selling on the street, the full significance may be realized.

Since the government has come to the rescue of the cotton farmers, it looks like they should show some willingness to co-operate and help themselves.

-have you driven a Chevrolet Six?

Have you felt the thrill of its six-cylinder performance—so smooth, quiet and vibrationless that you almost forget there's a motor?

Have you known the satisfaction of its six-cylinder reserve power—ready to shoot you ahead at the traffic light, to carry you over the steepest hills, or to speed you along the highway?

And do you know that anyone who can afford any car can own a Chevrolet Six?

If you have never driven a six-cylinder car, it is impossible for you to form any idea of Chevrolet performance from your imagination alone.

Smoothness! No rumble in the body—no tremble in the steering wheel—no vibration to loosen windows and doors!

Flexibility! Power that flows in a silken stream—and never a trace of "lugging"!

Quiet! Hardly a whisper from the motor. You can drive it for hours without the slightest noise fatigue!

But why try to tell you the story when only a ride can give you the facts? Come in. There's a car waiting for you... Now!

PUBLIC RESEARCH
NEEDED

By DR. JOHN K. NORTON
(Director of Research of the National Education Association)

Research is necessary to the progress of any human endeavor. This has been explained many times in the great industries of our country which spend millions of dollars each year in this field. Every invention—the radio, the electric light, the telephone, and countless others—is the fruit of much time, labor and money spent in research.

This same principle applies to the education of children. Sufficient progress has been made in scientific research into the many phases of education to prove to the satisfaction of all that efforts instigated in this field will bring large returns.

Granting that research in education is desirable and that more and more is necessary, the question arises,
just how should this research
be organized?

There are now about four classes contributing to this work. They may be grouped approximately as follows:
educational foundations,
which are donating funds
for investigations; various universities, especially in their departments of education; also, something is being done, but relatively little, by state and local systems, and parent-teachers associations;
the research in education
done by the federal government.

Whereas private agencies
are making important contributions to educational research and should continue to do so, nevertheless, the question is being raised as to whether it is wise to leave the control of research, that plays such an important part in the development of the school systems, almost solely in the control of such private agencies. It is believed by those who have made a study of the subject that it is most desirable to have a program of educational development under public auspices.

It is in this field that the federal government can make a great contribution to education. If this contribution is to have the proper significance, it probably can be best performed by an agency having the status of a national department and consequently enjoying corresponding prestige and financial support.

The result of such a rounding out of facilities for educational research would be that in this field research would be conducted both

under private and public auspices. Each would stimulate and act as a check upon the other.

ABOUT
TOWN

"We were right proud of the record we established at the Tarboro
fair," said a member of the 4-H club of Pitt county today, speaking of the capture of first prize offered to Home Demonstration clubs.

"We had lots of stiff opposition to go up against, but we went over to the fair determined to win and we did just that.

"Interest in home demonstration
work in this county is increasing with the passing of each year, and if we continue to progress in the future—as in the past—we have lots of other honors coming our way.

"Miss Ethel Nice, director of the home demonstration work, has accomplished much through intensive organization, and the prospects for continued expansion at this time is brighter than it has been in years."

"We are planning to put on a real celebration here Armistice Day, November 11," declared a member of the Pitt County Post of the American Legion today, referring to some of the high lights of the tentative program.

"We have incurred right much difficulty getting a speaker for the event, but this matter has been definitely settled, and our people can be assured of one of the best patriotic addresses heard since actual signing of the armistice.

"As the program stands now, exercise men will parade prior to the main exercises of the day, and this pageant in itself will cause surging memories of the day word was flashed over the world that hostilities of the greatest war in history had come to an end.

"Arrange your plans to attend the exercises and help the boys who went over the ocean to crush German autocracy celebrate in a real fitting way."

"Reckless and careless driving on the public highways of North Carolina must cease and there is no better way to bring it to an end than by drastic action of the courts," believes a well known citizen of this city.

"If a man knows that he will be severely punished if found guilty of reckless or careless driving, then it is a settled fact he will be more careful in the operation of his automobile. He will not only be on the guard against himself, but he will watch the other fellow as well
in order to prevent a wreck of any kind.

"Reckless or careless drivers are a menace to the citizenship of any community and whenever they are convicted of such they should be dealt with in a way that they will not soon forget it. This is a question for the courts to handle, and the more drastic the measures the more the public will appreciate it."

"What weather for the first day of November!" exclaimed a business man yesterday as he paused in front of the postoffice to take a deep breath of the balmy air.

"This is the most fortunate section of the country. While other sections are waking up to find the countryside covered with frost every morning, we are treated to bright sunshine and a temperature
more like the balmy days of summer time. What a contrast to the icy fingers of winter, and how thankful we should be for the kindly consideration of the weather man.

"But we haven't many more days
of this kind of temperatures. Soon Jack Frost will cover the landscape, vegetation will begin to fade and then we will experience the first sensation of approaching winter.
The change, however, will be welcome to lots of people, worn out physically from the strain of hot summer days and their accompanying burdens. And in the long run, all should be benefited."

"The boys are doing splendidly,"
said a leader of the Boy Scout movement in this city, commenting on the progress which the various patrols have made the past several weeks.

"The youngsters have gone into their work with a determination to make a good showing, and their accomplishments since organization would do credit to much older patrols.

"What they need most is the hearty support of the public—of those men and women they call father and mother. Such support can bring about great things in the future and we are hopeful the parents will rally to the call.

"If you are a parent think of what the Boy Scouts are doing, of their high ideals and ambitions, and then use your influence to increase the scope of the activities."

DRY OFFICER CONVICTED IN
MURDER CASE

Jeff Harris Found
Guilty of Killing a Rum Maker in Raid
in Oklahoma

Chandler, Okla., Nov. 2.—(AP)—
Jeff D. Harris, unofficial prohibition enforcement officer, was convicted by a jury here today of first degree manslaughter for the killing of Oscar Lowery, Pottawatomie county farmer, in a liquor raid July
4. Punishment was left to the court.

The prosecution has asked that Harris be convicted of first degree murder and argued for the death penalty.

Harris also is charged with murder
in connection with the killing of James C. Harris, brother-in-law of Lowery, during the raid.

The men were shot to death on the James Harris farm near Tecumseh, Okla., when Jeff Harris, not a relative, searched the premises for liquor and found none.

Jeff Harris testified he acted in the role of a posseman in assisting W. W. (Snake) Thomason, Federal prohibition enforcement officer, who with several other deputized men went to the Harris farm. He contended he killed in self defense
after he had been struck in the face by a charge of buckshot fired from the Harris home.

Lowery, in a death bed statement,
asserted he had not known Harris was an officer. He said Harris shot him while he was unarmed.

The widow of James Harris told the jury that her husband and Lowery mistook the dry raider for a dangerous intruder. The slayer denied her statement that he had not identified himself as an officer.

Mrs. Harris said Lowery was killed as he pleaded with raised arms for his life.

Earl Harris, 7 year old son of the slain man, said Jeff Harris entered the home and fired at his father
as the farmer was stooping over a trunk. His father then fled to a ravine, where he was slain, the boy said, adding that the 65-year-old raider fired the first shot.

Thompson was in the neighborhood but was not at the scene when the shooting occurred. He faces murder charges, but his case has been transferred to the Federal court.

BURLINGTON
GIRL HURT IN PLANE CRASH

Miss Ruth Fix Suffers Broken Ribs in Wreck of Visiting
Plane

Burlington, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Miss Mary Fix of Burlington, is in a local hospital suffering from several broken ribs as a result of an airplane accident here this morning, when she and her brother J. M. Fix, Jr., were flying with J. A. La Masters, who said he was traveling from the naval air base at Anacosta, Va.,
to Atlanta, Ga., made a forced landing here last night, when he became lost in the fog.

During the night he made friends
with several people here, Miss Fix and her brother being among those who talked with the aviator. His plane undamaged, La Masters arrived at the field early today, and planned to take-off for Atlanta.

However, before going he reem-bered Fix and his sister a "short spin" and the three tumbled into the plane. The craft had reached an altitude of about a hundred feet,
when it crashed to the ground, being demolished.

Miss Fix was taken to the hospital
by Dr. George L. Carrington, who witnessed the accident. Her condition is not regarded as serious.
Fix suffered only minor cuts and bruises. La Masters wasn't hurt.

The plane was demolished, and La Masters could not be located this afternoon, newspaper men being unable to find him.

La Masters last night told acquaintances here that he was stationed at the Naval Air Station at Anacosta, Va., just outside of Washington, D. C. However, he said he was not in government service on his present trip south, saying that the plane, a "Waco 10" belonged to him.

The pilot stated that he had been flying for twelve years, and never had met with an accident, until his plane crashed this morning.

$20,000,000 Involved
in Bankrupt Company

Minneapolis, Nov. 2.—(AP)—The task of untangling the affairs of the W. B. Foshay company of Minneapolis, was started today under the direction of a receiver whose aides began an inventory of the involved properties, estimated to be worth $20,000,000.

A voluntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in Federal court yesterday against the company, which is the holder of Public Utility, Industrial, Banking and real estate properties scattered all over the North American continent.

Joseph Chapman, Minneapolis
banker and merchant, who was named receiver by the Federal court,
left late yesterday for Phoenix, Ariz., to attend the funeral of his brother. He expects to return late next week.

In the meantime, routine operations of the company will be carried on by executives at the Minneapolis headquarters under supervision of the court. Before Mr. Chapman left he organized a staff to appraise the Foshay holdings in 30 states, and in Alaska, Canada and Central America.

Nutritive values of range grasses
are being studied by the California
College of Agriculture.

Co-eds at the University of Missouri are offered a beginners' course
in golf.

Farmers Sell Your
TOBACCO IN GREENVILLE

Sales are heavier and prices continued to hold up. Last week the market paid out $1,020,413.09, averaging $23.80 per hundred pounds for the entire week's sale.

We are selling tobacco daily from practically every county in Eastern Carolina and the farmers say it is paying them to sell in Greenville, even though some of them travel at least 125 miles.

Those in position to absolutely know, say we are highest market and have keener buying competition than any market in the East.

Since Last Season—

Three of the warehouses have made large additions, which gives the market increased floor space of about two acres. Some of the factories have made enlargements to their buildings, installing additional redrying facilities and other equipment. The Greenville tobacco market is decidedly in better position to handle, daily, larger quantities of tobacco than ever before.

Tobacco Warehouses—

Greenville tobacco market has nine (9) large and modern brick warehouses with close to 14 acres floor space, sufficient to accommodate 2,225,000 lbs. of tobacco daily. These warehouses are managed by men of years of experience.

Buyers and Factories—

Greenville tobacco market has four (4) sets of buyers, representing all the important companies in the world, using bright tobacco. Nine (9) larger and modern tobacco factories are located here, additions having been made to several of them since last season, while one new plant has been built.

Roads and Locations—

Greenville tobacco market is located in the heart of Eastern North Carolina. Seven fine hard surfaced roads lead into Greenville. Tobacco growers living 125 miles from Greenville tobacco market sell their tobacco in Greenville and return home same day.

TWO GAMES SETTLED BY S. C. TEAMS

Four collegiate football teams, all in South Carolina, met yesterday and got two football games out of the way, clearing the decks for the more important struggles that are carded for this afternoon in the two Carolinas.

Wofford and Presbyterian have settled the issue for 1929, and the Terriers are seven points better than the Blue Stockings, Wofford having won yesterday's game by a 13 to 6 score.

After waiting patiently through five games, Newberry experienced the thrill that a touchdown brings by scoring once against Erskine, however, the game little team from Newberry lost, 40 to 6, because Erskine displayed a powerful attack, with Parkinson scoring three touchdowns.

With these games out of the way, the folks can turn their attention to Chapel Hill, where University of North Carolina meets North Carolina State, in a state championship tussle. The Tar Heels are favored to win over the pack.

Davidson entertains V. M. I. at Davidson in a clash that should be a close one, while Wake Forest journeys to Greenville, S. C., to play Furman. Duke university will meet Boston college, in Boston, and Clemson college faces a test when it matches football brains and brawn against the University of Kentucky, at Louisville, Ky.

Other games today: Elon vs. Guilford, at Greensboro; Lynchburg vs. Atlantic Christian, at Wilson; Catawba vs. Bridgewater, at Bridgewater, Va., and Lenior-Rhyne vs. Mars Hill, at Hickory.

DUKE ALUMNI SECRETARY GETS TAX BOARD JOB

Mr. Thigpen received his appointment yesterday, subject to the customary confirmation, and will enter upon his new duties about December 1.

Neither Mr. Thigpen nor officials of Duke University could be reached in regard to the matter by a reporter. Mr. Thigpen announced that he had resigned sometime ago and that the resignation had been accepted.

TIGERS SURE TO BE POWER IN S. C. FOR YEARS

Durham, NOV. 2.—The great Louisiana State University team that meets Duke in the new Duke stadium here Saturday should be a power in Southern Conference football for several years to come. On the team that meets Duke Saturday are only two men playing their third year of varsity football. The others are juniors and sophomores and have considerable future. The fast running back will all be back another year.

Lincoln Was Tallest

Middletown, N. Y.—Congressman Hamilton Fish, Jr., who is quite a tall fellow himself and was adept at picking forward passes out of the air for Harvard, has set his constituents right on tall presidents. Lincoln was the tallest, 6 feet 4. Washington was 6 feet 2. Madison was the shortest, 5 feet 4. Polk the leanest, Cleveland the stoutest, Van Buren the tallest and Taylor the most careless in dress.

A Remarkable Man

Camden, N. J.—Thomas Haigh, 94 of Middletown, Pa., is a remarkable man. Judge Shay said so when Haigh was testifying in a contest over a friend's will, and Haigh admitted it was true. "I am a remarkable man," he said. "I have always tried to make myself useful and I am still able to ply my trade as a wood carver."

Pigs Run Wild

Ada-Pezar, Turkey—Thousands of pigs have run wild since Greeks and Armenians were driven from Anatolia and the district became 100 per cent Moslem. The number of animals is estimated as high as 10,000,000. M. Auguste Sabatier, the "king of butchers" of Paris, is dickering with the government in a scheme to supply France with pork.

Otto Von Porat (left), scowling Norwegian heavyweight, has signed to battle Phil Scott, British title contender, at Madison Square garden December 9.

SUNDOWN STORIES

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

A WITCHY TIME

The Little Black Clock turned the time back to the evening before and took John and Peggy to spend a witchy, goblinish time with witches and goblins.

"A witchy time," the leading witch told them, "is a time enjoyed by witches, and a goblinish time is a time enjoyed by goblins."

"Halloween is a time we love so much, but as we told you, we used to have more fun when witches and goblins were considered more important. However, we'll do our best tonight."

More and more goblins kept joining the other goblins and the witches who were seated around a great bonfire.

"Let's have broomstick races first of all," the leading witch suggested.

John and Peggy and all the others put on tall, black hats. Then they each picked out a broomstick from a great pile nearby, and up in the air they flew.

"It'll be the judge," said the Little Black Clock.

It seemed strange that it wasn't difficult to stay up in the air, and when the Little Black Clock said,

"One, two, three, GO," they all started off. Straight across the field they raced, and the most wonderful thing of all was that John, who had never ridden on a broomstick before, won!

He was very proud, but he was afraid the witches might feel bad that one of their number had not been victorious.

"Perhaps," he said after they were back on the ground again, "you're all a bit out of practice." Of course he had never had any practice, but he didn't want to say that.

"You're just a natural-born broomstick racer," the witches and goblins told him. "We'll have to give our special Halloween parade in your honor."

Goblin Parade

The witches and goblins persuaded the Little Black Clock to let John and Peggy wait and see the goblin parade.

"To you, John, winner of the broomstick race, we do honor," the witches called, and the goblins began to march. The witches sat around the bonfire, as did the Little Black Clock and John and Peggy.

Suddenly the strangest music began. It was played by the goblins' band.

There was a little goblin playing instruments that looked like those always played in a band, except they were much smaller and they were all crooked looking.

They played the queerest tunes John and Peggy had ever heard. In fact, the tunes sounded quite crooked, too.

All the goblins followed the band.

They marched while the witches sang and the bonfire sizzled and sputtered and crackled as though it had to be in the celebration, too. After the parade everyone joined in a dance.

But it was not like an ordinary dance. The chief idea seemed to be to jump they jumped (which was almost all the time) the goblins who were playing in the band blew shrieking, startling notes.

John and Peggy were completely out of breath after the dance was over. Even the fire seemed tired, for instead of bursting up into flames it was quiet and glowing.

They roasted apples, then, on the ends of long sticks. And as John and Peggy were leaving they said they had had the loveliest, wisest, most goblinish and glorious time they had ever had at a Halloween party.

Sydney, Australia—Government statistics show that Australia imported $445 worth of alcoholic liquors from the United States last year. No details, such as amount, consignors, consignees, reasons, etc., are given.
