CHURCHES ARE ASKED TO HELP IN OBSERVANCE

Ministers Requested to Devote Few Minutes to Signing of Armistice Sunday

As a prelude to the celebration in connection with the observance of Armistice Day here next Monday, ministers of the city have been called upon to devote a few minutes of their Sunday services to the ending of the greatest conflict in the history of the world.

A committee from the local Post of the American Legion today requested pastors of the various churches to set aside a few minutes for observing the signing of the Armistice, and pastors of other churches throughout the State have been called upon to do likewise.

Plans for the general celebration here Monday continued to assume more concrete form today, and Commander Dave Moore, of the Pitt County Post, declared the observance would be the greatest since the actual signing of the armistice.

The tobacco market, banks and a majority of the business houses will be closed in order to permit employees to take part in the celebration, and it was expected that other organizations and institutions would take similar action before Monday.

The program for the celebration calls for a brilliant parade, speaking, barbecue dinner, football game and picture at White's theatre. The parade unquestionably will be one of the most colorful spectacles seen here in years, and will be headed by members of the district highway patrol, and followed by members of the police department, High school band, soldiers of all wars, the local military unit, and representatives of other organizations.

Dr. J. B. Turner, pastor of Hayes-Edison Baptist church at Raleigh, will deliver the principal address of exercises to be held at the college. He is a former veteran of the world war and commander of the Pitt County Post of the American Legion, and is expected to bring one of the most stirring speeches heard here in years.

Soldiers of all wars have been extended a cordial invitation to attend the celebration and help the Legionnaires make it truly representative of the season of rejoicing attending the ending of the World War. Members of the Legion and all former veterans of the World War have been urged to be present and take part in the exercises. Legionnaires have been asked to wear their Legion caps.

The football game at the athletic field on Saturday is expected to be one of the outstanding features of the day's events. The game will be played between Tarboro and Greenville and will be one of the real classics of the season.

Hundreds of people from all sections of the county are expected to attend the celebration and the auditorium at the college where the main exercises are to be held is expected to be crowded to capacity. The program here will be inspirational several numbers having been provided other than the principal address.

Asheboro Man Kills Himself With Shotgun

Asheboro, Nov. 8.—(AP)—Charles Reeder, 40, a life insurance agent, shot and fatally wounded himself yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Reeder, who recently had accepted work in High Point after living here five years, shot himself with a shotgun. He had gone to his garage, supposedly to go to High Point to work, when his wife heard a shot and went to the garage to find him shot just below the heart with a shotgun lying by his side. He died two hours later. He was unconscious when found and no reason for his act has been advanced by his wife or friends.

District Teachers Meet at Raleigh

Raleigh, Nov. 8.—(AP)—Between 1,500 and 2,000 teachers from all sections of the north central district of the North Carolina educational association are in Raleigh today for the annual district meeting, which started this morning and will end tonight with an address by Dr. D. W. Danie, professor of English at Clemson College, S. C. Officers will be named tonight.

W. D. Ellis, principal of the Richmond Normal school, Richmond, Va., was the principal speaker this morning. Dr. Howard Rothaler, president of Salem College, was to have spoken but was unable to attend.

This afternoon the various group meetings of the association held meetings. The meeting this morning was presided over by C. E. Teague of Sanford, chairman of the district.

Two Men Killed In Gun Battle In Oklahoma

Shawnee, Okla., Nov. 8.—(AP)—Determination of an alleged bank robber to "shoot it out" rather than face a possible death sentence in court, had resulted today in his own death and that of one of two officers with whom he waged a gun battle.

Robbery with firearms is a capital offense in Oklahoma. Courts have inflicted life terms recently for minor robberies of that character and police had heard that Owen Edwards, sought for complicity in bank holdups at Prague, Kendrick and Minco, Okla., had threatened to die shooting rather than face a trial in the electric chair.

"He won't do it," they said. "So last night when four officers surrounded a house near Harjo, Okla., where Edwards was reported hiding, James A. Kierse, 39, veteran assistant chief of police of Seminole, entered the house and ordered the fugitive to put up his hands.

Edwards replied with bullets and Kierse fell, mortally wounded. By three shots from two automatic pistols, Claude Tyler, operative of the criminal investigation and identification bureau, and Kierse were killed. He died almost immediately.

HEAVY SNOW REPORTED IN FIVE STATES

King Winter Establishes Headquarters On Kansas-Colorado Line; Much Havoc

Denver, Nov. 8.—(AP)—Snow, which yesterday laid a white blanket over five western states, ranging from three inches to two feet in depth, had stopped falling over most of the territory this morning and prospects of rising temperatures which might melt it out of the Rocky Mountains were three days off.

King Winter apparently established his headquarters near the Kansas-Colorado line and wreaked havoc with the activities of beet sugar growers, while bringing a precious gift of needed moisture to the winter wheat region.

Goodland, Kansas, reported two feet of snow today and flurries of snow still falling. Highways were blocked and livestock suffered through isolation from feed supplies. Plans for an American Legion Armistice Day celebration were cancelled because of the impossibility of pushing motor cars over drifted roads.

Although not so seriously affected, all of Colorado, New Mexico, Wyoming and Montana were mantled with the white covering. Temperatures were below normal.

Appeal To N. C. Senators To Support Investigation Of State Labor Troubles

Raleigh, Nov. 8.—(AP)—The North Carolina State Federation of Labor, following its failure to secure a state investigation of the textile industry, has appealed to United States Senators Furnifold M. Simmons and Lee S. Overman to support the Wheeler resolution for such an investigation on a national scope.

"We wish to declare our belief that Communism in North Carolina is an effect, not a cause of labor unrest," the letter to the Senators averred, after pointing out that the American Federation of Labor is in no way connected with Communists and has no sympathy for their methods.

Among the reasons stressed for considering the investigation essential are: Determination of actual conditions; distinction between the "good" and the "bad" mills; determination of the financial condition of the mills and the effect of the present system upon society and the future generations.

T. A. Wilson, of Raleigh, president of the State Federation and also a member of the State Industrial Commission, signed the letter, as did Marcus F. Sauls of Greensboro, secretary-treasurer, and the following vice-presidents: W. B. Plemons, John A. Peel, D. J. Butler, Edward J. Wicker, C. V. Weaver and C. J. Kendall.

The letter to Senators Simmons and Overman said in part: "Believing that the cotton mill industry of North Carolina should be made the subject of a thorough and unbiased investigation to determine the cause of labor unrest and to place the responsibility for untoward events that have occurred, we recently petitioned the governor of this state to use his good offices in bringing about such an investigation. We have been informed by the governor that such an investigation is without his province and that he has no authority in the premises.

"Having exhausted our efforts to secure such an investigation by state agency, we wish to appeal to you, as United States Senators from North Carolina, actively to support the resolution of Senator Wheeler for a senatorial investigation of the cotton industry; to work for its adoption by the Senate and its execution in a fair and impartial manner.

"We believe that there is an emergency for instituting this investigation promptly. We believe such an investigation is essential to cotton mill owners as well as to workers, for the following reasons: "To reveal the scale of wages, hours of employment, and conditions under which employees in the cotton industry are engaged.

"To discern between mills that are treating their employees with due consideration, and those that are imposing upon their employees.

"To determine whether there is a discrimination on the part of mill operators against organized employees.

"To determine the fiscal status of the cotton mill industry and ascertain what percentages of profits, or, if any, are being earned by the companies.

"To determine how the present system in the cotton mill industry is affecting society in this state; whether it is contributing to the physical and spiritual uplift, or is tending to demoralize, degrade and penalize those who work in the mills.

HUNDRED DIE IN ERUPTION BIG VOLCANO

Bodies of Scores of Victims Found in Guatemala

Guatemala City, Guatemala, Nov. 8.—(AP)—Overwhelmed by molten lava or suffocated by asphyxiating gases, scores of the 300 or more victims of Monday's eruption of Santa Maria volcano have been found in their homes or along the roads near El Palmar where they perished.

The full story of the disaster has begun reaching Guatemala City through relief workers who had brought aid to the thousands of persons in the affected region. In all eight coffee plantations were destroyed and most of their inhabitants killed.

The bodies found in ruined homes and along the roads gave mute evidence of the horror that had overtaken the population. Some of the dead had been caught in the fields by the molten stream of lava while others had been asphyxiated in their barricaded homes.

One of the most tragic spots was a grove of trees where fleeing inhabitants had sought refuge, some of them climbing into the highest branches, only to suffocate and burn.

Relief funds are being collected through the Red Cross and aid is being sent as quickly as possible to the stricken people. Numerous messages of sympathy have been received by the government.

Advices received in Havana indicate that approximately 25,000 persons were affected by the El Palmar disaster and that more than $1,000,000 damage was caused.

Estimates of the number of dead were reported as 425 while 174 persons were seriously injured and more than 300 suffered minor hurts.

Penniless Man Jumps Into East River at N. Y.

New York, Nov. 8.—(AP)—An unidentified young man jumped from the center span of the Brooklyn bridge into the East river today. His body was not recovered.

The man left behind him on the bridge a hat and an overcoat. In a pocket was found a nickel and four pennies.

Eugene Venette, a taxicab driver, and Walter C. Smith, a passenger, were traveling over the bridge as the man hurled the rail and jumped one hundred and thirty three feet into the river.

Strike Riot Inquiry Comes To Abrupt End; Fourteen Under Bond

Gastonia, Nov. 8.—(AP)—Judge P. A. McElroy's inquiry into the slaying of Mrs. Ella May Wiggins came to an abrupt close today when the prosecution closed its case and the defense announced it would offer no evidence.

Roy Carver and Howard West, two of the 16 defendants charged with murder in connection with the death, were released.

The others held in the case were ordered placed under bond for their appearance before the grand jury at the January term of Superior court. Judge McElroy fixed bond for all those held at $2,500 each except Horace Wheeler, whose bond was set at $5,000.

Those held are: Horace Wheeler, Jack Carver, W. M. Borders, Troy Jones, Fred T. Morrow, E. F. Hayes, L. M. Sossamon, Lowry Davis, O. H. Lunsford, Theodore Elms, George Fowler, W. H. Holbrook, L. H. Thompson and Yates Gamble.

Judge McElroy discharged Roy Carver and West because, he said, no evidence had been introduced to implicate them in any way with the slaying, the other defendants were named by State witnesses as members of the mob which on September 11 attacked a truck load of Union workers. The truck collided with a car on the highway and was wrecked. Mrs. Wiggins was killed by a shot fired just as the truck was wrecked.

Judge McElroy said there was very little evidence against "one or two" of those held, but that in view of the conspiracy charge against them he thought they should be held for the grand jury.

"According to the testimony given here," he said, "there was concerted action leading up to the killing. The defendants were said to be pursuing the truck and there is evidence they conspired together in such a way as to cause the killing, with grounds for probable cause of second degree murder of manslaughter."

Solicitor Carpenter closed the evidence for the State this morning without calling any new witnesses. Defense attorneys spent some time in conference and then A. L. Bulwinkle, chief of defense counsel, announced the defense had decided to offer no evidence and would move for the discharge of the prisoners.

The motion was allowed with regard to Roy Carver and West, but denied as to the others.

Members of the Gaston county grand jury were present in the court room this morning, but were not called. They were ordered yesterday to be present today after Charlie Shope, a State witness, had said one of the grand jurors "fumbled" one of the mob which attacked the union members.

Solicitor Carpenter said it had been established the grand juror Shope referred to was attending a funeral in another part of the county the afternoon that Mrs. Wiggins was shot. All the grand jurors were told they might leave.

Shope had been a witness before the grand jury which two weeks ago investigated the slaying. It failed to return true bills against any one.

LEAF MARKET TO BE CLOSED HERE MONDAY

Tobaccoists to Suspend Activities During Observance of Armistice Day

With over a million, one hundred thousand pounds of tobacco on the floors of the nine warehouses here today, tobaccoists were working feverishly to clear up the market by the late afternoon to make way for the Armistice day closing next Monday.

The Tobacco Board of Trade yesterday voted to close in observance of Armistice day, regardless of what other markets of the district did, and this means that the hundreds of employees of the market will have an opportunity of taking part in the local exercises all day long.

It was stated by officials of the Board of Trade that the public was due this show of respect to the men who crossed the ocean to fight a foreign foe, and when the matter was put to vote not a dissenting voice was registered against the closing proposal.

The official report of K. W. Cobb, supervisor of sales, issued today showed that the market disposed of yesterday a total of 965,752 pounds of tobacco for $229,168.32 at a general average price of $23.75 per hundred pounds.

The price situation was described as slightly higher than the preceding day, and a similar condition was reported to be in evidence today.

No Paper Monday

There will be no issue of The Reflector on Monday, November 11, Armistice Day. We are suspending publication for that day in order that our employees, many of whom are veterans of the World War, might take part in the celebration and observance of the eleventh anniversary of the signing of the armistice.

FIVE KILLED BY EXPLOSION EARLY TODAY

Workmen Blown to Pieces by Premature Dynamite Blast at Coldbrook, Mass.

Worcester, Mass., Nov. 8.—(AP)—Five workmen were blown to pieces in a premature explosion of eight pounds of dynamite in a shaft of the Metropolitan Water Development at Cold Brook, early today.

The cause of the explosion could not immediately be determined. Fellow workmen told investigators that a dynamite explosion had been set off further in the tunnel at an early hour and that the five men were on their way toward the entrance, carrying eight pounds of dynamite in one of the small cars used for transporting material. In some manner the dynamite was exploded. The men were blown to pieces and several hours later the parts of the bodies had not been recovered.

Two other workmen in the tunnel were rendered unconscious by the blast. One of them, Nicholas Laurrell, step-son of Piotti who was foreman on the job, after regaining consciousness, groped his way for a mile through the boring and ascended to the surface to bring aid.

The men were employed by the West Construction company of Worcester, holders of the contract for this section of the job. This division of the $14,000,000 water tunnel project on which the men were working was started recently, after other sections had been completed.

Thrill Slayer Again Condemned to Die

Eastland, Tex., Nov. 8.—(AP)—Clyde Thompson, youthful alleged "thrill slayer" accused of having killed Lucian Sheck and a brother, Leon Sheck, near Leray, Texas, September 7, 1928, today was given the death penalty for the second time by a jury.

The case was given the jury late yesterday. Thompson was given the death penalty in October, 1923 but was granted a new trial on appeal.

The defense attempted to save the defendant from the death penalty by introducing a deposition by his mother that he was born in Oklahoma, October 5, 1911, making him 17 years old at the time the crime was committed. The "pat," however, introduced a statement by the youth he was born in 1916.

Wendrow Davis, 13, the state's chief witness, testified that Thompson invited the Shecks to go hunting with him and as they walked ahead of him near their cabin, shot them and crushed their heads with the butt of his pistol. Thompson said he killed the youths "just to see them kick."

Aldermen Appropriate Sum To Be Used In Celebration Of Armistice Day Monday

The Board of Aldermen in regular monthly session at the City Hall last night appropriated the sum of $50.00 to the Pitt County Post of the American Legion to be used in connection with the general celebration of Armistice Day here next Monday.

W. H. Rogers, Jr., representing the local Legion organization, appeared before the board and told of plans of the Post to make this year's program one of the most outstanding in years, and asked that some sum be contributed by the city in order to enable them to more completely carry out their plans. The vote for the appropriation was almost unanimous.

In addition to this the board passed an ordinance declaring the fire zone a restricted area and prohibiting trucks and wagons from stopping over a period of five minutes for the sale of fruits or merchandise. The ordinance was declared effective immediately. The board also discussed traffic conditions in congested areas, heard a proposal for payment of taxes on the installment plan, and considered several less important matters.

The drafting of the ordinance to prohibit "hucksters" stopping in the fire zone over a period of five minutes was precipitated by complaint from business interest of the city. Mayor Lanier told the aldermen of the many complaints that had reached him recently in this connection, and declared there should be something done to improve the situation.

He called attention to the numbers of trucks and wagons parked along principal streets of the city for the purpose of selling fruits and merchandise. Such a condition is not only unfair to the merchants, the mayor said, but brought about a serious congestion of traffic on busy days and handicapped the regular flow of business.

The mayor was instructed to draft an ordinance immediately, declaring the streets within the fire zone to be congested areas and preventing trucks or wagons stopping over a period of five minutes for the sale of any kind of merchandise.

Alderman Holingsworth brought up the congestion on Sutton's Lane caused by the parking of automobiles on both sides of the street. He declared that the cars were parked so near Dickinson avenue on this street that it was almost impossible to gain entrance. The board instructed the placing of "No Parking" signs thirty feet back on Sutton Lane in the hope of clearing up the congested situation.

The discussion of the Sutton Lane matter brought on more talk about general traffic conditions in the tobacco market area, and the board instructed the mayor to have some no parking signs constructed to be placed in the most congested centers.

Alderman Boyd brought up the matter of allowing the citizens to pay their taxes on the installment plan. He said it might help solve the tax problem at this time, but the matter was left over until the next meeting in order to give the Aldermen ample time to consider the question.

John Harper, ex-soldier, deaf and partly blind, but very loquacious, appeared before the board with a request that he be permitted to sell herbs on Dickinson avenue instead of Ninth street. He made a lengthy appeal in behalf of his proposition, but the privilege of moving on Dickinson avenue was denied him.

The board recommended the acceptance of tires for a fire truck which had been bought from the Firestone Tire company through the Flanagan Buggy company.

Alderman Boyd told of the effort of the Memorial Baptist church to bring the next Baptist convention to Greenville to celebrate the organization of the convention in the local church one hundred years ago. The board instructed the mayor to write the Baptist Assembly extending them a cordial invitation to meet here.

The matter of purchasing fire hose tips and uniforms for the fire department was referred to the fire department committee.

ASK PRESIDENT TO STUDY THE MILL INDUSTRY

The Episcopal Church Calls on Chief Executive to Report the Condition to Public

Columbia, S. C., Nov. 8.—(AP)—A resolution calling upon Congress to authorize President Hoover to make a "thorough and scientific study of the textile industry, both south and north, at the earliest date and that the result be published by the government, was passed by the Synod of the Fourth Province of the Episcopal church, comprising nine southern states, here yesterday.

The action followed an address by Spencer Miller, Jr., consultant of the National Council of the Episcopal Church on industrial questions.

"So important has industrialism become," he said, "that our civilization now be a 'shop' to be upon it now. The place that it occupies as evidenced by the fact that President Hoover recently appointed a commission to study industrialism in the United States. Foremost among the facts reported by this commission is the rapid growth of industrialism in the south. Factories and manufacturing communities now dot the South almost as thick as they do New England, and the tide is still flowing this way."

"This unusual acceleration of industrialism in the south involved a tremendous change in the manner of living of the people of this section. From an almost strictly agricultural people they have become by thousands and hundreds of thousands mill workers who live in communities, who must change from outdoor to indoor occupations and who have little education background to help them adjust themselves. The natural result is the big problems of an industrialized section are upon the south, though the industrial problem is not sectional but national and international.

"What is the responsibility of the church in this matter?" he asked. "Some say that the church should keep its hands off entirely, that it is a problem not in the province of the church. The church, however, as the oldest organization that concerned itself with human relations, must concern itself with industrial relations. Industrial relations in the last analysis are human relations. The machine and equipment of the plant may be scientifically and exactly planned and managed, but there is always the variable human element of workers and owners, who for the successful pursuit of an industry must be brought into co-operative relations. The church cannot and should not take sides, but can and should enunciate certain fundamental principles for the conduct of industry. First, the church stands for the human above competition; industry must be fellowship, not a fight. Love, human fellowship, is the basis of true industrial relationships.

"As keeper of the public conscience, church people can do much to help in industrial problems. They can insist upon the consideration of the human investment in labor as well as money investment in capital.

"The endeavor of the church, especially here in the south, should be so to humanize and spiritualize industrial relations that this section in its fast growing industrialism shall avoid the old and tragic mistakes made by England in dealing with the problem and repeated by New England."

LOCAL LODGE K. OF P. ENJOYS FINE BANQUET

Prominent Officials Attended Annual Affair at the Proctor Hotel Last Night

The annual banquet of Tar River Lodge, Knights of Pythias, was held at Proctor hotel last night at 8:30 o'clock, and the occasion proved to be one of the most enjoyable in years. Several Pythians, high in the official life of the organization were in attendance and delivered short addresses dealing with interesting topics. After the banquet the Pythians enjoyed a special movie program at White's theatre.

The principal address of the evening was delivered by Leonard Vyne, of North Wilkesboro. He was introduced by Sam Worthington, of Greenville, grand vice-chancellor.

Mr. Vyne told of the principles embodied in the Pythian teachings, and the necessity of cooperation to perpetuate the friendship existing between members of the organization.

F. C. Harding acted as toastmaster and Dink James delivered the address of welcome. Silas Lucas, of Wilson, delivered the response to the address of welcome, producing much merriment with his witty remarks.

The other speaker of the evening was Colonel Walker Taylor, of Wilmington, supreme representative of Pythias. He talked about the need of cooperation among fraternal organizations to perpetuate Americanism. He deplored the fact that there were people who did not give proper consideration to the flag under which they live. He paid a splendid tribute to the women of the nation, declaring that they controlled the destiny of the world. He said the influence of woman was needed more today than ever before in order to help the men keep their equilibrium.

Richard Meares, of Wilmington, supreme master of the exchange, expressed his pleasure at the privilege of attending the meeting and said he saw great things in the future for members of the organization.

A number of visitors from Washington, Rocky Mount, Wilson and Wilmington were in attendance, as were the wives and sweethearts of the members of the local lodge.

After the banquet the Pythians were guests of Mr. Klapholz at the special picture show at White's theatre. Mr. Klapholz, a member of the Liberty lodge, 261, New York City, has charge of the installation of the DeForest sound equipment at the theatre, and treated the Pythians to a production entitled, "The Love Doctor."

The annual banquet is always the outstanding social event in the life of the Tar River lodge, and it had been given more than usual publicity this year with a view of bringing about larger attendance than ever before. This ambition was realized in every sense of the word last night, and a majority of the membership enjoyed the occasion.

Uncover New Racket Game At Chicago

Chicago, Nov. 8.—(AP)—The government believed today it had uncovered a new racket under the name of the south side business men's law and order league. Among members arrested by prohibition officers yesterday were William Payne, organizer; and Mrs. Lena Wichrowe, 30-year-old widow listed as president.

Daniel Anderson, assistant United States attorney, said the league's purpose apparently was three-fold: to serve to punish those it opposed; to reward "customers"; and to collect money for law and order, using the money for the overthrow of law and order.

Anderson said the government was informed that the league sold alcohol and provided a degree of protection to its customers. The saloonkeepers who refused to buy alcohol from it, the league is alleged to have retorted with raids. An office was maintained at which subscriptions were received from persons interested in prohibition law enforcement.

Payne, known as a professional reformer, called the arrest a frame-up. "I've been fighting liquor and vice for 10 years," he said.

Mrs. Wichrowe was surprised at the charges and Federal men were convinced she was made president as a blind. She said she believed the league was all that its name implied, and told of having written many letters herself asking funds for the league's work.

Mothers to Stop Dances at 3 a. m.

New York, Nov. 8.—(AP)—A band of 60 mothers of this year's crop of debutantes is intent on a 3 A. M. curfew.

"Stop the music at three o'clock in the morning," is their slogan in the crusade to discourage dancing till dawn and later among the younger set whose parents their daughters will attend this season. The expectation is that eligible young men now can attend parties and still go to work next day.

Seating the guests promptly at the designated hour no matter what or how many are late is to be the silent rebuke for the stragglers who keep dinner waiting.

Discussion of ways and means for carrying on the campaign took place yesterday at a meeting at the home of Mrs. Seth M. Milliken in Madison avenue.

Mrs. John Henry Hammon, President of the New York Parents' league, said at the meeting:

"The movement for early hours now on trial in New York is being watched by Junior Parents' leagues all over the country. It is up to us to make it fashionable to have early hours."

Mrs. Mary DeLaford, a debutante of this season, spoke in behalf of the young people. She said:

"At first the new rules were not very popular as no one wanted to go to bed early, but now we like them because we find we can go to more parties."

Ivy From Grave of Mary Washington Planted in Raleigh

Raleigh, Nov. 8.—(AP)—Ivy from the grave of Mary Washington, mother of George Washington, was planted at the foot of the Washington monument on Capitol Square here today with appropriate exercises.

The ivy was presented the State of North Carolina by Mrs. Charles Taylor of Washington, D. C., on behalf of the Army and Navy Chapter, Children of the American Revolution, of Washington. It was accepted for the State by Mrs. O. Max Gardner, wife of the governor.

Others taking part in the exercises included Mrs. Josephus Daniels, representing the Navy and Mrs. John Brewer, representing the Daughters of Revolution; Mrs. Ernest Bain, for the Children of the Revolution; and Park Mathewson, for the Sons of the Revolution.

After the business routine an interesting program was given beginning with the National P. T. A. song, "Victory," followed by a short recitation by little Miss Ollie May Tyson.

Miss Siedell, the county supervisor, made an interesting talk on the best method of helping the child with his lessons at home.

Mrs. G. T. Tyson then stressed the necessity of providing good literature for the child; noting the importance of the class room library.

Mr. Howell, the principal, next told of the books, comprising the school library at present, pointing out the great need for many additional volumes before we can meet the standard required. He further suggested that friends and patrons give books.

The evening closed with a social hour, dainty refreshments being served by Mesdames Ivey Smith, L. B. Allen and Mark Smith. —Reported.

Horton Clears Up Points on Hunting

Landowners may hunt on their own property without license, but tenants can hunt only on the land they rent, M. V. Horton, county game warden said today, attempting to clear up several points which are proving confusing to a number of people.

A tenant must have a license to hunt on any other property except that which he rents, and the same is true of the landlord when hunting off his own estate. Mr. Horton said.

Hunting license and trapping license must be bought separately, he said, discussing the inability of some people to get this fact definitely fixed in mind. A man cannot trap with hunting license alone, he must get the license especially provided for trappers.

Mr. Horton said the open season on quail would begin November 29th and turkey season opens on the same date. The season for opossum, coon and mink will open November 15th.

The third victory, gained yesterday, disposes for several months of criticism of policy in India, one of the most important of the empire's problems, and leaves the Simon commission on Indian statutory reform to continue its work.

Previously this week the LeBlancs had their way in gaining tacit approval for the unemployment schemes of J. H. Thomas, lord privy seal, and in actual approval of arrangements which had been made for resumption of relations with Soviet Russia.

After a debate lasting most of yesterday, noteworthy on several points, the Commons voted with a Conservative questioning wisdom of the recent devaluation of Lord Irwin, viceroy, on eventual attainment of dominion status for India.

In the course of the debate the Commons heard Stanley Baldwin, Conservative leader, tell how he had agreed to Lord Irwin's declaration but later withdrew his approval, heard a Labor minister answer rather sharply David Lloyd George, the Liberal leader, upon whose pleasure the life of the Labor government may depend, and heard Sir John Simon, Liberal, himself plead Labor's cause.

Dr. Wooten preserved the snake's rattles and displayed them to a number of friends today.

Giant Rattlesnake Killed by Local Men

A rattlesnake six feet long was killed by Dr. W. I. Wooten and W. W. Martin while hunting in the Alpine section of Pitt county yesterday afternoon. The reptile had fourteen rattles, and estimating his age by this standard, was fourteen years old.

The snake was taking his evening nap when a couple of volleys from the guns of the two hunters sent him to his happy hunting grounds.

Cutting the reptile open at an enlarged part of the body, it was discovered that he had devoured an entire full grown squirrel, a gastronomic feat that established something of a new record for the snake kingdom, local huntsmen say.

Dr. Wooten preserved the snake's rattles and displayed them to a number of friends today.

unattended wiring, carelessly disposed of waste, cigarettes and matches "flipped" about, are hardly understood in the average American home. And because of this carelessness and ignorance every American citizen must make his annual contribution, directly or indirectly, to the fire-waste bill.

ABOUT TOWN

With the closing of the tobacco market, banks and business houses, it really looks like the celebration of Armistice Day here next Monday will be the greatest occasion of the kind since the signing of the armistice. The decision of the tobacco market to close in the face of reports of other markets remaining open, is to be congratulated. It is nothing but the duty of the American public to pause at least one day of the year to celebrate the ending of the greatest carnage in the history of the world. It is nothing but a simple show of respect for the men who did the sacrificing, these sturdy fellows who crossed the ocean and sacrificed that humanity might be saved from the ruthless heel of German autocracy. It is to be hoped the schools and public buildings will join the tobaccoists and bankers in making the day what it should be, and in that way pay tribute to the men who served in the gigantic struggle on Flanders Field that we today might enjoy greater peace and prosperity.

The sentencing of so many bootleggers to the roads ought to have a tendency of greatly reducing the illicit whiskey traffic in this community. During the session of County court Tuesday and Wednesday several members of the traffic found their way to the roads for periods of from three months to one year or more. Similar sentences were passed upon defendants in the criminal term of Superior court last week.

Some have said that for every bootlegger nabbed by the law two take his place. But this, in our opinion, is a mistaken assumption. No man violates the law when he knows he is going to pay for it by hard service on the roads, and it is at once evident that the more road sentences given by the courts the less violations of the whiskey laws will be noticed in years to come.

The traffic is also destined to suffer more acutely in the future than at present. When the time comes that the courts hold the buyer of liquor equally responsible with the seller, there is also going to be less purchasing. This will have a tendency of putting the bootlegger and the consumer upon the same plane, and giving one as much publicity as the other when they go before the courts. It will be a far step in the direction of reducing whiskey manufacture and consumption and should make this nation nearer like a desert than it has been since the day our forefathers set their feet on the Atlantic coast.

Forget-me-nots will be sold by members of the Auxiliary of the Pitt County Post of the American Legion next Saturday.

Members of the Auxiliary will go up and down the principal thoroughfares of the city and offer the tiny flowers for sale in an effort to raise funds for that great army of men who were disabled during the world war. It is a cause in which every citizen of the nation should be interested and members of the Auxiliary are hopeful of making a record sale this year.

Do not pass the salesman by without purchasing one of the tiny flowers, emblematic of the sufferings and hardships of the men who went across the ocean to fight a foreign foe without expectation of reward other than that that comes to a victorious nation. Many of them lie sick at this moment, and the

Why you spend for forget-me-nots will be used in carrying cheer and happiness to their bed-sides. The convention of the Disciples of Christ recently completed at Farmville evidently was one of the most successful in the history of the church, judging by the news stories written by Mrs. Eva Horton Shackleford, correspondent of the Daily Reflector.

Some of the most prominent workers of the denomination in this and other parts of the country attended the sessions and added their bit in making it what officers desired it to be.

Always noted for its spirit of friendliness, Farmville proved an incomparable host to the visiting delegates to the convention and entertained them royally over the three-day period they were in town. The convention was met next at Raleigh, but it is hardly possible that even the Capital City with all its conveniences will be able to entertain the visitors in a more friendly and sociable way than did Farmville.

Distinctly a representative Pitt County town, Farmville showed the Disciples that its latchstring hangs on the outside at all times, and this impression was carried home by virtually every one of the six hundred or more delegates in attendance. It was a great convention and Greenville and Pitt County congratulate the denomination upon the evidence of progress as indicated in the reports sent out from day to day by Mrs. Shackleford.

THANKS GREENVILLE FIRE DEPARTMENT

To the Editor:
We will thank you for just a little space in your valuable paper, to thank the fire company of your city for their response to our "Emergency Call" for help last Monday night, when one of our town's tobacco warehouses and prize house was so fiercely burning, and as well as a part of our residential section was so seriously threatened. If you see fit to insert the above in your next issue, it will be greatly appreciated.

ALABAMA TO TANGLE WITH CAT

Atlanta, Nov. 7.—Two of the south's outstanding football performers will vie for honors at Montgomery Saturday as the University of Kentucky Wildcats tangle with Alabama.

If the Wildcats leap over the ever dangerous Crimson Tide a large portion of the credit for the victory probably will be attributed to "Shipwreck" Kelly, who in two months has jumped from an unknown to the second high scorer and one of the most feared ball carriers in the southland.

On the other hand, should Alabama win, Hugh Miller, Wallace Wade's sophomore discovery, more than likely will play a major role in the conquest. In addition to his running game, Miller is one of the best drop kickers in the conference.

Reports from Lexington yesterday were that four regulars, including Kelly and Captain Ed Covington, might not play. It was said that Kelly's mother was seriously ill and that there was a possibility he would be called to her bedside. However, both Kelly and Covington were members of the squad which entertained last night for the battle field.

Alabama will be strengthened by the return to form of Billy Hicks, a great back, who has been injured for the past fortnight. In addition Suther and Campbell, both fast punts, will be ready to go.

Georgia Tech, which has assumed the role of giant killer since being routed to the side lines early in the season, will attempt to erase the Vanderbilt threat from the southern horizon. With the exception of Tom Jones, veterans tend, the Techsters are in fine fettle.

Uncle Dan McGugin, restrained from scouting Tech because of an agreement between the two schools, is depending upon some new tricks he has given to his Commodores this week.

Although Jake Johnson, tackle, was injured in practice, Tennessee expects to coast through Carson Newman without his service darkened Auburn's faint hopes of halting Tulane were fainter than ever today with the announcement that Jim Crawford, its best back, would be unable to play because of injuries.

With its squad intact for the first time since the opening of the season, Duke is pointing for Louisiana State at Durham. It will be the first conference tilt for the Blue Devils. Louisiana State is undefeated within the circuit.

A lively encounter is programmed for Charlottesville where Virginia and Virginia Poly mix it. Both teams have been bolstered by the return of injured stars. Although the game has no bearing on the championship situation it will do quite a bit toward deciding the championship of the Old Dominion.

South Carolina has been working behind closed gates for its engagement with North Carolina at Columbia. As usual the wily Billy Laval, Gamecock mentor, is expected to trot out some unique gridiron maneuvers for the edification of the Tar Heels.

Clemson, badly beaten by Kentucky last week, will attempt a comeback against Virginia Military Institute and North Carolina will endeavor to pit Davidson on the spot.

Georgia's Bulldogs, waiting in New York for their debate with New York university, expect to run thru a light workout this afternoon.

Maryland and Mississippi were traveling northward for their Saturday engagements with Yale and Purdue, while Michigan State was headed for Jackson to tie up with the Mississippi Aggies.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

INVASION OF WEST HOLDS GRID STAGE

By HERBERT W. BARKER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Nov. 8.—(AP)—The second Saturday in November, tomorrow, finds a heavy schedule of climactic or semi-climactic football battles with the invasion of the west by Army and Harvard offering promise of the most "spectacular" frays of the day.

The east has plenty of football fare in its own territory but for general interest the palm must go to Army's duel with Bob Zuppke's Illinois eleven and Harvard's fray with Michigan.

Despite a disappointing season marked by a tie with Harvard and a defeat by Yale, the Army appears ready to snatch its first major victory of the year against the Illinois who were beaten by Northwestern last week. Harvard, on paper, appears much stronger than Michigan which has lost three Big Ten Conference games in a row.

At home the inter-sectional contest between Georgia and New York University will vie for interest with such purely domestic encounters as Penn State-Pennsylvania; Dartmouth-Brown, Georgetown-Navy, Colgate-Columbia, Washington and Jefferson-Pittsburgh; Boston College-Fordham; Villanova-Bucknell, Rutgers-Lafayette and among the little three, Wesleyan and Williams.

Yale, Cornell and West Virginia also are to engage inter-sectional foes but of these only West Virginia appears to be in any danger of defeat. Yale meets Maryland with full expectations of avenging the 6-0 defeat plastered on it by the Southerners last year.

Cornell should get no more than a workout against Western Reserve, but West Virginia, especially in view of its hard election day battle with Fordham, appears doomed to defeat by the heavy Detroit eleven of Gus Dorais, unbeaten over a span of 20 contests and tied only once in that time.

N. C. TEAMS ALL SET FOR BIG FIGHTS

By Associated Press
Injured football talent in the two Carolinas today appears to be at a minimum, as the Saturday clashes approach, and virtually all the "dependables" will be able to run up and down the field in signal practice this afternoon, the last time the boys will don tops before they face competitive action tomorrow.

University of North Carolina left Chapel Hill last night, and planned to stop over in Charlotte long enough to get in a good signal drill this afternoon, breaking their trip to Columbia, where they meet the University of South Carolina.

While "Chucky" Collins was leading the Tar Heels' out of Chapel Hill, Billy Laval, Gamecock mentor, was keeping his charges in Columbia, and putting them through a long three-hour grind in preparation for the Chapel Hill boys. Laval stressed defensive tactics in the workout, in the hope of stopping what he is willing to admit is a powerful offense.

While the Gamecocks and Tar Heels are clashing at Columbia, North Carolina State and Davidson will be putting on a state championship engagement at Raleigh. Coaches Tebell and Slaughter gave the Wolfpack a long hard practice session yesterday against Davidson plays, as the Pack does not regard the Wildcats lightly.

Duke University drilled against Louisiana State University formations, and then awaited the arrival of their visitors, who were due in Durham today.

Wake Forest completed training for Wofford and Furman and the Citadel primed themselves to do battle against each other, in Greenville, S. C., in another major battle on Saturday card in North and South Carolina.

THE LUXURY HUSBAND

SYNOPSIS: Barbara, determined to learn the truth of Henderson's charges, goes to the building in which Rita has her apartment. Driven by desperation she crawls up a fire-escape to a window of Rita's suite. A few minutes later, Rita comes home and with her is—Ray. Barbara is dazed by her discovery and leaves her hiding place. When she returns to her taxi however, she decides to wait in the cab, confidently expecting that Ray will soon leave the building. For two hours she keeps her lonely vigil and finally goes home in despair. Ten minutes later, Ray leaves the building, having worked longer than usual on a particularly difficult tune.

EXIT—AN ENGLISHMAN

On the drive home from the fruitlessly futile vigil before Rita Gilmore's apartment, Barbara definitely decided to marry Henderson. A sense of bitterly hurt pride drove her to this decision. She decided on telephoning him the first thing in the morning. For the remainder of the night she would try to sleep.

She did try. She tried in a persistent, determined fashion. But, in spite of that she lay awake until dawn.

Eventually, when she did sleep, a nightmare tormented her. Suddenly she opened her eyes, immediately conscious that her telephone was ringing.

She picked up the receiver. "That you, Barbara? It's your Uncle Henry. I'm coming right up to the house. Must see you immediately."

She felt more than surprised. Mr. Vandaveer Landon was an exceptionally busy man. It was most unusual for him to honor his niece by a visit during an hour usually reserved strictly for business. So intent was she upon not keeping him waiting that she completely forgot to telephone her decision to Henderson.

Mr. Landon was pacing the sitting room when she finally came down.

"Morning, Barbara. Can't say that you're looking well."

Barbara smiled wanly. "Late night," she explained.

"Been out with that fellow Henderson?"

"Yes. Why?"

Her uncle cleared his throat. Then, in characteristic manner, he came directly to the point.

"What's all this I'm hearing about you and him?"

Barbara stiffened and turned slowly to face him.

"Meaning that we've been seen about a good deal together?"

"No. I've just heard that you intend divorcing Ray in order to marry him."

Barbara's eyes widened. Mr. Landon decided that, whatever she intended doing she didn't look too happy about it.

"Who told you that?" Barbara asked wonderingly. "I only decided it myself last night."

"That so?" Mr. Landon paced the carpet once more. "Then there's been some fishy business going on my dear, and I think you'd better hear of it."

As he spoke he threw himself down into the cudy rocking-chair.

"It's like this. Yesterday a fellow name of Freeman, called into my office—he arranges loans for those in need of financial assistance. After he'd hemmed and hawed for several minutes he inquired, as discreetly as possible, what truth there was in the rumor that my niece intended to divorce her present husband to marry Ralph Henderson. Then he told me, after I had bamboozled him into it, that the fellow had been obtaining loans from him on that understanding."

"You mean—that Henty's been borrowing money on the strength of marrying me?" Barbara's voice was one gasp of amazement. Her uncle nodded.

Barbara didn't feel she could believe it at first. "Too absurd it was—ludicrous, almost. Henderson of all men! How contemptible to borrow money with the intention of eventually paying it back out of hers!"

She remembered how repeatedly he had sneered at Ray for the method he chose to make his living.

How, under the circumstances, had he dared criticize Ray? For the first time Ray's desire for independence appeared commendable instead of annoying in her eyes.

Mr. Landon awkwardly patted her shoulder.

"There, there, my dear, it must have been a nasty shock to you," his voice was purposely gruff to disguise the tenderness behind it. "Damnably unpleasant business."

"But uncle, surely they wouldn't advance money on such a flimsy proposition?"

"They seem to have. And I've no doubt he made out a good case. There are always gamblers willing to risk money on the chance of some presentable fellow carrying off some heiress with whom he is known to be frequently associated."

Her anger had passed. Her chief emotion was amazement at the effrontery of the man. Suddenly, noticing a vase of mauve orchids, she burst into a mirthless laugh.

"I suppose even those orchids were eventually to be paid for out of my money!" Then, a moment later, "Why did he do it? Ray would have died rather than have done such a thing!"

The last remark had slipped out of her unconsciously. Immediately she regretted it, hoping that her uncle would let it pass without comment. But he didn't.

"Your mention to your husband, Barbara, brings me to a point about which I have been meaning to speak to you. You've decided upon getting a divorce?"

She nodded, staring straight ahead of her down at the carpet, although there was some mystic writing on it she was trying to decipher.

"On what grounds?"

"Incompatibility, I think."

Not even to her uncle could she bring herself to tell of Ray's seeming unfaithfulness.

"Well, that's up to you, Barbara. Can't say that I thought much of Ray myself. No head at all for business and I can't see that he'll ever make much money at that composing of his. I hear he's playing in some night-club orchestra now."

As she didn't speak he brushed the tobacco ash off his waistcoat and rose to his feet.

"Sorry, my dear, but I must be going. Business, you know. Cheer up. You're young yet and remember that line out of the Mikado: 'There are lots of good fish in the sea.'—But I'd give the man Henderson a wide berth in future, if I were you."

That precisely was what Barbara did. She was not at home when he telephoned; neither was she at home when he called.

Finally, when he wrote begging an explanation, she told him candidly what she had learned from her uncle and, for further information, referred him to Mr. Landon himself.

The next she heard of Henderson's was his name on a passenger list as among those returning to England. She was surprised to find that she was only mildly interested in this item; indeed what amazed her most of the whole affair was how little the discovery of the worthlessness of Henderson had hurt her. It only showed how little she had cared for him.

She was beginning to recognize that her liking for him had been little more than the gratification of her own vanity. Slowly she was becoming, in some measure, to realize the colossal selfishness of her outlook in the past—and the guilty thought occurred to her. Might Ray have been justified in leaving her as he had?

Some weeks later, upon idly turning the pages of the London Sketch, she came upon Henderson's photo with that of the fat and smiling Miss Maidstone.

"Miss Cora Maidstone," she read, "only daughter of Colonel Robert Maidstone of Morningside Park, Surrey, whose marriage to Ralph Townsend Henderson, Esq., nephew and heir apparent of the Duke of Townsend, will be celebrated in September."

She put the magazine down with a quiet smile. Remembering Miss Maidstone, she was suddenly a little sorry for Henderson.

Woman Guilty of Killing Husband

Greenville, S. C., Nov. 8.—(AP)—Mrs. Mamie Cothart was found guilty of murder with recommendation to mercy, in criminal court here yesterday for shooting to death her husband, Heyward Cothart, in the early morning of July 22.

CAPITALIST GAINS HEALTH WITH SAGON

The following enthusiastic statement was made by John C. Spencer, 468 Sixty-Third Avenue, West Allis, Milwaukee, who for thirty years was actively engaged in the commercial and civic life of that city, but who recently retired from active business to devote more time to his real estate holdings in West Allis, Wis., and Florida. Mr. Spencer has lived in Milwaukee forty-five years, is well-known and highly esteemed. He said:

"I am leaving for Florida in a few days and will take four bottles of Sargon with me. I don't intend to be without this wonderful medicine.

For the past year I have been in wretched health, and suffering from rheumatism and other troubles on account of an inactive liver principally. I lost weight rapidly and my strength was ebbing away. I was constantly troubled with indigestion and constipation.

"I felt a marked improvement after my first few doses of Sargon. Three bottles put me in wonderful condition. My appetite is splendid now, my digestion is sound. I have gained ten pounds and my strength has returned in proportion. I'm going to continue the treatment of course, for I wouldn't be without Sargon."

Mr. Spencer may be obtained in Greenville from the Warren Drug Store.

COTTON MARKET

New York, Nov. 8.—(AP)—Cotton opened steady at an advance of 1/8 to 27 points today on further covering and buying stimulated by relatively steady Liverpool cables. Washington advices quoting the head of the Federal Farm Board with reference to cotton and wheat values also came in for bullish comment, but the advance met considerable realizing and some southern selling, and after selling up to 17.51 for January, at the opening, the price receded to 17.41.

Offerings were not heavy, however, and the demand continued in sufficient volume to steady prices and hold the market about 15 to 20 points above yesterday's closing quotations at the end of the first half hour.

Much of the trading was attributed to evening-up commitments in preparation for the government report at 11 o'clock.

GRAIN MARKET

By JOHN P. BOUGHAN
Associated Press Market Editor
Chicago, Nov. 8.—In the face of $16,000,000 additional loan of government funds to the Montana Wheat Association today, wheat prices lurched heavily downward. A break of more than 5 cents a bushel in the value of rye did much to pull down the wheat market. And so did unexpected downturns in the wheat quotations at Liverpool. The collapse of the rye market was due to apparent complete fading away of export prospects for the 1929 American crop of rye.

Wheat closed nervous 2 3/8 to 3c a bushel under yesterday's finish, rye 3 1/2c to 3 7/8c down, corn 3 1/4c to 11-8c off, oats at 5-8c to 7-8c decline, and provisions varying from 7c setback to a rise of 10c.

STOCK MARKET

New York, Nov. 8.—(AP)—Stock prices rallied briskly at the opening of today's market and then fell back sharply on what appeared to be the sale of support stock purchased yesterday and profit taking by professional traders who were disinclined to stay long of the market over the two-day holiday. Trading was back to a normal volume, although the exchange was again opened only for three hours.

Early gains in the leaders ran from 1 to 10 points, with a few specialties showing larger advances, on buying influenced by the sustained recovery in yesterday's session, and the unexpectedly large drop of $656,000,000 in Federal Reserve Bankers' loans. The demand quickly tapered off, however, and prices began to recede around the end of the first hour, many of the early gains being cancelled, and a number converted into losses of 1 to 5 points.

Call money renewed unchanged at 6 per cent, with the demand moderate, and the time money was in

SUNDOWN STORIES

THE SNOW FLURRY

(By Mary Graham Bonner)
"My dears," said the Little Black Clock, "we have an invitation for this evening, and as I had the chance to talk to you before bedtime I took the liberty of accepting without asking either of you about it."

"I guess we'll want to go, all right," John said.

"You know what we like," Peggy added.

The Little Black Clock grinned. His face was really and truly all smiles. He did so want to be liked by the children. And he had his wish, for John and Peggy thought the world and all of him.

"It was not a very usual invitation," the Little Black Clock said, waving one hand as he spoke. "But it did sound interesting."

The Little Black Clock took Peggy by one hand and John by the other. He seemed to have plenty of the magic, for how quickly the scene could change, and how quickly they found themselves away from their own house!

"Heigh-ho, heigh-ho, the wind will blow."

"We'll have some snow, heigh-ho, heigh-ho!"

"Did I hear someone singing?" Peggy asked.

"Yes, you heard our host. We're almost there! Ah, here he comes!"

He looked rather blown in appearance and his dark suit was trimmed with white.

"I'll have to introduce you," the Little Black Clock said.

"John and Peggy, this is Sir Snow Flurry."

And before they had a chance to speak Sir Snow Flurry gave a long whistle, and then he sang the little long they had heard a few minutes before.

Tomorrow—"Snow Flurry's Scattered Thoughts."

Two Fatally Shot In Ky. Gun Fight

Winchester, Ky., Nov. 8.—(AP)—A gun fight between three members of the Winchester Police Department and a man whom they had been called to arrest resulted in the fatal shooting of two men here late yesterday.

The fight, in which nearly a score of bullets were fired, followed an automobile chase. The officers were called to a pool room, where it was reported Willis had been causing a disturbance. He had driven away when they arrived.

Near the city limits the officers overtook Willis, who leaped out of his car as the police machine drew alongside, and with an oath and the exclamation, "You've followed me far enough," opened fire, killing two patrolmen.

The dividend check will total approximately $25,000 and will be mailed from Raleigh Monday, it is planned.
