

THE LUXURY HUSBAND

SYNOPSIS: Barbara decides to divorce Ray so he may be free to marry Rita. Convinced Rita and Ray are in love, and that their mutual interest in music had drawn them together, Barbara concludes the estrangement with Ray is her own fault and she intends to end their relations with the most unselfish act of her life. She writes Ray a short note, advising him of her plans. That afternoon, Ray and Rita are working on the revue score and he informs her of the impending divorce action. Realizing Rita loves him, Ray proposes that they marry as soon as he is free—a proposal which he unknowingly is moved to make more in gratitude than love.

Chapter 39 DON QUIXOTE

Ray had said, "That's settled, eh, Rita? Directly I'm free..."

To Ray it was settled, absolutely. Rita satisfied the side of his nature that craved companionship. As for the other, the part of him that would always belong to Barbara, he stifled that by indulging in an overdose of work.

There was plenty to be done in the weeks that followed. The score finished and approved, of rehearsals were now in full swing. "Those days he hadn't time for regrets. Neither had he time to spend with Rita. They were forced to postpone the supper they had enjoyed together until Ray's contract had run out at the club exactly a week before "The Knave of Jaz" opened on Broadway.

Rita, too, was busy rehearsing during the day. But nights she was free. Pete Anheim had insisted that she give up her work at the club. Otherwise, he told her, she would arrive at the opening night in a hearse.

Rita wasn't her gay sparkling self those days. During rehearsal time, or when she was with Ray, she managed to simulate a light-hearted manner. But at night she was perpetually conscious of a doubt nagging at the back of her brain.

Did Ray love her as he should love the girl he intended to make his wife? Ray's attitude was too matter of fact, too altogether sane. It lacked that breathless something which makes two people imagine they can live as cheaply as one and rushes couples to the altar when they have hardly the price of the minister's fee.

She told herself that his attitude might change after marriage. But always the fact reasserted itself that Ray was still in love with his wife.

Yet, even granting that, she saw no reason why she should give him back to his wife, presuming Barbara should want him.

Ray had asked her to marry him once he was free. Nothing short of a deliberate act on her part would make him go back on that.

Yet she could not help thinking a good deal about Ray's wife. She wondered what the girl was like and what lay behind her sudden decision to divorce Ray.

There was always the possibility of another man. Rita wished she knew for certain. Lately she had been tormented by the thought that maybe Barbara to, was in love with Ray. That perhaps they were both little more than stupid, wilful children who only needed the intercession of a third party to make them kiss and be friends. Yet she saw no earthly reason why she should be that third person—the who loved Ray herself as she had loved no other man.

Nevertheless, a few days later, she found herself making a slow and reluctant progress up Park avenue towards the stately apartment house where Barbara lived. She walked the length of the block four times before she finally rushed into the elevator. Even when she was directly before Barbara's front door she was on the point of turning back.

"You idiot," she muttered, "why are you deliberately risking your happiness?"

All the same she pressed the doorbell.

"Is Mrs. Lowther in?"

The butler inclined his head.

"Please come in. Whom shall I say wishes to see her?"

"Miss Rita Gilmore."

She found herself ushered ceremoniously into the drawing room, the door closed behind her.

On the mantelshelf was a life-like portrait of Ray. She gazed at it almost with resentment.

Her reflection was interrupted by the opening of the door. Turning quickly, she found herself staring into the face of a white, determined-looking girl, an odd, childish dignity enveloping her. As Rita looked at Ray's wife her own face blanched with dismay.

"You... You... I might have guessed it!" Rita gasped.

Barbara gazed back in amazement. The haughty words she had intended to say died on her lips.

Instead, she said wonderingly: "You know me?"

"Sure..." Rita swallowed twice.

"And I used to feel so sorry for you, each evening sitting so forlorn looking in the little booth..."

"You—you saw me at the club?"

"Saw you? I should say I did. I watched for you each evening when I came on to do my turn, hoping that night you'd be laughing and happy looking. You see I thought you so pretty. Yet you seemed sad," she broke off and added, a wry twist to her lips: "All the time I guessed you came just to get a glimpse of Ray!"

Barbara was scarlet. The situation had been taken entirely out of her hands. Somehow everything was as it shouldn't be. Not true to form at all. She found herself liking instead of hating this girl before her. She couldn't bring herself to resent her words.

Instead, the genuine sympathy in Rita's voice made tears find their way to her own eyes. For the moment she could think of nothing to say.

Rita went on speaking, as though to herself, her voice husky. "I should have known that something like this would happen... I told myself I was crazy to come here at all. But it upsets my calculations to find that the other fellow's you."

"I'm sure I don't know what you're talking about," said Barbara. "Course you don't. You'd have to be a mindreader, and, if you were you wouldn't have let Ray go in the first place!"

But at this Barbara tried to whip her pride together.

"I didn't let him go," stiffly.

"He went."

Rita shrugged wearily.

"He went because you never tried to understand him."

That Barbara felt, she couldn't stand for.

That seems to be beside the point. You know, of course, that I'm divorcing Ray. I am arranging it so that there will be little publicity and no scandal. You—you won't be brought into it at all."

Rita's big brown eyes lighted up with astonishment.

"Why, in heaven's name, should I be?"

Barbara turned a quick red. She floundered.

"But—but I should have thought... You surely know... I have a perfect right..."

In two quick strides Rita was by her side, looking down fiercely into her face.

"You think—who put that charitable thought into your head?"

"Surely you're not going to deny it..."

Rita's hands fell to her sides. She spoke coolly.

"A lie like that isn't worth denying... But I guess it's no altogether your fault. But it seems you had the whole situation doped out on too conventional lines—sad, designing cabaret dancer..."

"I didn't think that!" Barbara cried impulsively. "At least—not after I'd seen you. I thought you must be in love with one another."

Rita's face softened.

"You're not so bad. You're right about that. Ray wants to marry me."

Barbara stood very still.

"Is that what you have come here to tell me?"

"Not altogether. At least it was in the first place, but now I've a mind to tell you something else Ray is still in love with you."

A wife and the "other woman" team forces. Continue with tomorrow's installment.

Official estimates place the Hungarian corn crop at 75,000,000 bushels, 26,000,000 bushels more than in 1928.

CRISP autumn air, the thrilling tenseness of the kick-off, the roar of cheers, the hard-fought battle—and always at hand, the dependable good taste of Chesterfield.

We think we may fairly claim for Chesterfield the most steadfast army of smokers any cigarette ever had—and for the soundest of reasons: unvarying tobacco quality, mildness balanced with character, an "extra something" of aroma and good taste—

Mission Study Class Finishes Week's Session

Members of the Woman's Missionary society of Jarvis Memorial church, met each afternoon last week, beginning with Monday and lasting through Friday, from 3:30 to 5:00 o'clock in the church for the week of prayer and mission study class. The first thirty minutes of each session was devoted to the Week of prayer program. On Friday afternoon at the closing service Miss Miriam Fuller Goodwin, a returned missionary from Korea, who is at present connected with the Teachers College here, brought a most inspiring message on her experiences in Korea.

Each afternoon after the period of prayer and meditation the meeting was turned over to Mrs. E. L. Hillman, who in her most efficient manner taught the mission study class. "Roads to the City of God," by Basil Mathews, was used as the text. Mrs. Hillman having visited Jerusalem was familiar with the customs and surroundings of the Holy City and could paint most vividly before the mind's eye a wonderful picture of the meeting of the International Missionary Council which met on the Mount of Olives through Passiontide in 1928, when those outstanding Christian characters of fifty nations assembled together in fellowship and love to discuss the world's needs for promoting the Kingdom of God. This was a great lesson in sharing, and very beautifully did Mrs. Hillman in her deep spiritual realization present it as such to her class. Those who attended this class felt a much greater need and a more ringing challenge for world friendship and Christianity. The goodly number in attendance evidenced the growth in interest in missions and we feel that greater things will be done by the auxiliary as a result of this week of prayer, information, inspiration and fellowship together.

Mrs. W. E. Hooker, president of the auxiliary, is to be congratulated for her untiring efforts and support in helping to make the class possible. And the auxiliary as a whole feel deeply indebted to Mrs. Hillman for the information and inspiring messages which she brought to the class.

U. S. ARMY BAND TO APPEAR IN GREENVILLE

The United States Army Band, "Pershing's Own," has become the most popular band feature on the ether, broadcasting more frequently further, and to more millions than any other military musical organization. Many a time it has been heard as it broadcast from the steps of the capitol, or as it has been put on the air in conjunction with some great national event, as the home-coming of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh. Sometimes they have broadcast several times within one week, through nation-wide radio chains.

Now the people who have enjoyed these concerts on the air will have the opportunity both to see and to hear the band, and the sight alone is worth coming far to see, the fifty-two men in cadet grey uniform, with instruments in hand, make an impressive picture as they play under the direction of their conductor.

The concerts at East Carolina Teachers College Nov. 25, have been placed at the very lowest price possible so as to give all a chance to see and hear the band. The matinee is largely for the purpose of giving the school children a chance to hear it. The program, while of interest for everybody, has been arranged so that the children can enjoy it. The evening concert was arranged with the grown people especially in mind, though girls and boys can follow that without any trouble.

The band will appear at the concert at the Winterville high school on Friday, Nov. 15th at 7:30 o'clock. Under the auspices of the Parent-Teacher Association. Directed by Miss Mollie Davis, of the Wayne P. Sewell Co., of Atlanta, Ga. The leading characters are—Blanche Waters as "Arabella"; Ray Oglesby, Herman Nobles, some of the teachers of the school; and other striking characters. There are three peppy choruses, snappy dances and gorgeous costumes.

Hostess To Literary Club

Farmville, Nov. 13.—At her home on Church street, Mrs. G. A. Jones charmingly entertained the Farmville Literary Club and a special guest, Mrs. J. B. Joyner, on Wednesday afternoon. Autumn foliage and flowers effectively arranged in the living room.

A rather lengthy business session was held during which the club decided to pay $25 towards the General Foundation Fund and Mrs. R. A. Fields and Mrs. J. I. Morgan were appointed as a fund committee. Miss Annie Perkins reported the district meeting held at Aurora and told of the tribute paid this club by the presiding officer, who had the assemblage to rise when the Literary Club reported $100 paid to the Sallie Southall Cottes Loan Fund. For several years this club has given the same amount to the fund, and was among the three clubs of the state making a special memorial contribution this year, according to the report of Mrs. Brogren, chairman of the fund committee, which was read by Miss Tabitha De Visconti.

Under the general subject of "The Rise of Naturalism in the Drama," Mrs. J. B. Joyner read a paper on "Strindberg's Life and Works" in the absence of Mrs. Annie Lang, and Mrs. J. W. Joyner discussed his play, "The Father." A sweet course was served by the hostess at the conclusion of the program.

Resolutions of Respect. Whereas God in His infinite wisdom and love has taken from our midst our beloved Supt. A. G. Cox, who for thirty years has served so faithfully and well our Sunday School. Therefore, be it resolved:

1. That the Sunday School has lost a loyal member and a wise superintendent, whose place cannot be filled.

2. That we as a Sunday School keep alive in our memory the record of his noble and useful life, and strive to carry on the work he has left.

3. That we extend our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family, praying God's richest blessings on them in their hour of great sorrow.

4. That a copy of these resolutions be spread on the records of the Sunday School, a copy sent to the Daily Reflector, Biblical Recorder and Charity and Children, and a copy to the family.

Resolutions of Respect

Whereas God in His infinite wisdom and love has taken from our midst our beloved Supt. A. G. Cox, who for thirty years has served so faithfully and well our Sunday School. Therefore, be it resolved:

1. That the Sunday School has lost a loyal member and a wise superintendent, whose place cannot be filled.

2. That we as a Sunday School keep alive in our memory the record of his noble and useful life, and strive to carry on the work he has left.

3. That we extend our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family, praying God's richest blessings on them in their hour of great sorrow.

4. That a copy of these resolutions be spread on the records of the Sunday School, a copy sent to the Daily Reflector, Biblical Recorder and Charity and Children, and a copy to the family.

Next Monday marks the beginning of the annual Red Cross drive in our county, and it is to be hoped that the response to the call will be a generous one. Everyone is familiar with the great work the organization is doing and the support it deserves from the nation at large. In view of this we hope that Pitt County will over-subscribe its quota.

MUCH BETTER NOW.

In times past since the advent of the talking pictures we have found occasion in this column to refer to them as the "Squawkies" because of the poor qualities of the reproduction of the human voice in our local theatre. Since we feel free to criticise when things are not what we think they should be, we are equally glad to praise when conditions justify it, and we now extend our congratulations to the management of White's Theatre for the wonderful improvement in the rendition of its programs since the installation of its new equipment about a week ago. There is no comparison in the quality of sound reproduction, for the once "squawkies" are now really "talkies" with human qualities. We congratulate the theatre management on this progressive step.

WE CAN HAVE IT IF WE WANT IT.

Whether he be a farmer or other business man, everyone in our community is vitally interested in the future prosperity of our section, and as we see it, a well defined and carried out program of dairying in our county is one of the best ways to assure more prosperous times. There has never been a better time to start such a program in our county than now, and it is to be hoped that we will see some real action instead of just a lot of talk and then a natural death to the movement. Pitt County needs the dairying industry but it is going to take some real co-operative effort on the part of all our people to put the movement across. It can be done. Let's do it.

ABOUT TOWN

The plan under way to interest J. C. Penny in the establishment of a branch dairy in this county should be followed up until something definite has been accomplished. Pitt county offers untold opportunities for dairying and with proper encouragement should become one of the greatest centers in this line of industry. Mr. Penny is planning to establish two big dairies in North Carolina, the first to be opened at Charlotte Thursday of this week, and he is casting about now in an effort to find the most desirable locality for the second. With its vast resources Pitt county offers splendid opportunity in this connection, and it is hoped the various organizations of the town will get together and attempt to impress the chain store magnate with the possibilities of the locality.

This is what we need to make the section what it should be. The more industries we have the more chance we have of realizing the ambition of becoming truly one of the leading agricultural and industrial communities of the nation.

The Pitt County Department of Agriculture has taken a step in the right direction in mapping out plans for farm activities during the coming year.

If such a plan had been adopted years ago, it is at once evident, this section would be in much better condition than it is today. Nothing can take the place of intelligent planning, it matters not to what branch of industry it may be confined, and the time for putting more method in farming was never more necessary than at present.

The program should provide some definite way of enabling our farmers to grow more of the things they consume at home. Without it the future can hold little more than the past. By raising more of the things he uses at the home the average farmer should be able to pass over dull seasons of the year in much better way than formerly. In other words, he should be able to live comfortably despite the market trend for his principal crops.

This fact should be impressed upon the minds of every grower until he realizes the necessity of it, and it is almost certain his future will be more secure than the past, harassed as he has been by fluctuating markets and inability to combat the situation.

The annual Red Cross Roll call will get under way in Pitt county next Monday, November 18.

As is customary on an occasion of this kind, the Pitt county chapter will begin an intensive drive for new members, and the signing up of old ones.

The public is urged to join the Red Cross while the campaign is in progress and in this way show their appreciation of the splendid work which the organization has accomplished in past years. It is unnecessary to mention any of the achievements of this Good Samaritan, this hand of mercy that reaches out to heal the wounds of civilization in times of disaster. Everybody knows what the organization has accomplished—during the war and since then—and should stand ready to support it in its annual drive for members.

Mrs. J. L. Hassell is county chairman of the Red Cross and has already appealed to the public to support the roll call and in that way show their appreciation of the work which the local chapter and national organization are doing.

If you are not a member, why not go down into your pocket during the campaign, bring forth the sum of one dollar, and let the local workers know you are with them in their effort to provide for those in need of aid.

Annual Thanksgiving services of all churches will be held at the Eighth Street Church of Christ Thursday morning, November 28. It will be featured by the usual sermon, musical program, and a general spirit of rejoicing because of the manifold blessing which the community has received during the past year.

Pitt county has many things to be thankful for this year. It is possible our crops have not been as good as last year, but we have not been visited by any disaster, any catastrophe claiming human life and property and leaving its mark upon us.

While other sections within a few hundred miles have suffered untold damage from floods and storms, we have prospered despite a heavy rainfall and damage to our own crops, and there is no reason in the world why we should not rejoice in our good fortune—return thanks for the bountiful blessings.

The Pilgrim fathers knew what they were doing when they inaugurated the Thanksgiving service over three hundred years ago. They felt a keen appreciation for the protecting hand of Providence, when dangers threatened them upon all sides, and we should be just as grateful today after the human hand has blazed its way from coast to coast and transformed this land of ours into the greatest civilization on earth today.

Remember these services on Thanksgiving Day this year, and be one of the countless number to attend and in that way testify to all the world that you are really thankful for what life has given to you.

Farmers Sell Your TOBACCO IN GREENVILLE

Sales continue heavy with prices holding up well. Last week over four million pounds were sold for an average price of $23.40 per hundred.

We are selling tobacco daily from practically every county in Eastern Carolina and the farmers say it is paying them to sell in Greenville, even though some of them travel at least 125 miles.

Those in position to absolutely know, say we are highest market and have keener buying competition than any market in the East.

Since Last Season—

Three of the warehouses have made large additions, which gives the market increased floor space of about two acres. Some of the factories have made enlargements to their buildings, installing additional redrying facilities and other equipment. The Greenville tobacco market is decidedly in better position to handle, daily, larger quantities of tobacco than ever before.

Tobacco Warehouses—

Greenville tobacco market has nine (9) large and modern brick warehouses with close to 14 acres floor space, sufficient to accommodate 2,225,000 lbs. of tobacco daily. These warehouses are managed by men of years of experience.

Buyers and Factories—

Greenville tobacco market has four (4) sets of buyers, representing all the important companies in the world, using bright tobacco. Nine (9) larger and modern tobacco factories are located here, additions having been made to several of them since last season, while one new plant has been built.

Roads and Locations—

Greenville tobacco market is located in the heart of Eastern North Carolina. Seven fine hard surfaced roads lead into Greenville. Tobacco growers living 125 miles from Greenville tobacco market sell their tobacco in Greenville and return home same day.

Ayden and Smithfield To Play For Right To Meet Oxford's Outfit

Withdrawal of the Dunn high eleven from the strong Oxford club a bye this week as the survivors of play in the east, enter the next to final round of sectional play. Ayden and Smithfield will play Monday at Ayden for the right to meet Coach Kirkland's high-powered Oxford crew for eastern honors.

Announcement of Dunn's withdrawal and pairing of Smithfield and Ayden for semi-final play was made at a meeting here last night of representatives of surviving schools with E. R. Rankin, secretary of the North Carolina High School Athletic association, sponsors of the elimination series.

In western circles, semi-final games will be played Thursday and Saturday. Forest City and Concord play at Forest City on Thursday, while Reidsville and Mount Airy meet in Winston-Salem Saturday, the winners to clash for the western Class B title.

Two dozen teams, equally divided between the east and west, began eliminations in Class B play. Regardless of the outcome of the Smithfield-Ayden clash this week, the eastern finals will be played at Oxford on Friday, November 22. The Oxford team is favored to survive among the eastern entrants in view of its fine record hung up in season's play by the Cranville team Coach Kirkland's club has not been scored on this season and has shown steady improvement.

The western finals will be played either at Concord or Forest City, depending on which of those teams survive semi-final play. The western titular battle also will be played November 22.

The State championship game for Class B honors, with eastern and western champions battling, will be run off at Chapel Hill November 29. The Class A state title battle will be played the next day, both games to be staged in Kenan Stadium.

The outcome of eastern Class A play will be decided in large measure this week by the Wilmington-Goldsboro battle in the seaport city. Goldsboro is leading the eastern conference with two wins and no losses while the Wilcats of Wilmington have two victories and one defeat.

There is a strong outlook for a tie for leadership in the final standing of Class A teams. Goldsboro must dispose of both Wilmington and Raleigh, providing Raleigh wins from Durham, to avoid a tie for the top.

In the other class A game scheduled this week the Raleigh and Durham elevens will clash here Friday. Raleigh must win to stay in the running, while Durham's two defeats in previous games have already eliminated the Bulls. Fayetteville, with losses to Wilmington and Goldsboro, has also been eliminated from a chance at the top rung. Fayetteville is not carried in the conference this week.

Forbids Service at N. Y. Church

New York, Nov. 12.—(AP)—Bishop William T. Manning, of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of New York, in a letter published today forbade a communion service in St. George's Episcopal church at which the Rev. Dr. James Sloan Coffin, President of Union Theological Seminary, was to have officiated.

The service was arranged for the close of the New York Conference of the Christian Unity League which opens today. The Rev. Dr. Karl Beiland, rector of St. George's, loaned the use of his church to the Unity League and invited Dr. Coffin to officiate at the communion service next Friday night.

In his letter addressed to Dr. Beiland, the warden and vestryman of St. George's church, Bishop Manning cited the Canons of the Episcopal church and the book of common prayer as forbidding any other than Episcopally-ordained ministers from officiating at services in Episcopal churches. Dr. Coffin is a Presbyterian.

Dr. Coffin made public a letter addressed to Dr. Beiland in which he said he had offered the use of his chapel of the Union Theological Seminary for the services to the Rev. Dr. Peter Ainslee, of Baltimore, President of the Christian Unity League.

Bishop Manning in forbidding his letter forbidding the service in St. George's said:

"The members of the Christian Unity League will not aid the cause of unity by trying to override and break down the laws of the churches to which they belong."

BOOTLEG FOOTBALL

New York, Nov. 13.—(AP)—The bootleg football, bans of the life of gridiron officials the latter part of last season, apparently is a thing of the past. E. K. Hall, chairman of the National Football Rules committee, said today.

"Not a single instance of use of the ball has come to my attention this year", Hall, who in addition to heading the football law-making body is a vice-president of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, told the Associated Press. "A few months ago we warned all the manufacturers against putting out such a ball and then made specifications for the official ball more definite. Since then we have had no complaint."

The illegal balls made their appearance late last season. They were designed primarily to aid in passing and accordingly were made with a pronounced "snout" on which the passer could get a grip.

CALIFORNIA PLAN TO STOP NOTRE DAME

By ALAN J. GOULD (Associated Press Sports Editor)

New York, Nov. 13.—(AP)—On the already well established theory that they do come back even if it takes a trip of 2,000 miles for the purpose, Southern California's Trojans figure to be the team to stop Notre Dame's rush this Saturday before some 120,000 spectators at Scudder Field, Chicago.

On the also well established fact that Notre Dame even with Knute Rockne able to direct them only on a part time basis, has turned out the greatest Hoosier army since the "Four Horsemen", the unbeaten South Bend cyclone figures to sweep over the Trojans and on toward a national championship.

It is an argument that depends on the point of view. It won't be settled probably until the dusk settles along the shore of Lake Michigan, but if this intersectional battle doesn't turn out to be one of the greatest of the season, it will not be for the lack of spectacular elements.

Those who like the chances of Southern California see the Trojans bounding across the country to stone for their unexpected setback at the hands of California, U. S. C., has finished his big game schedule on the coast and can "shoot the works" against Notre Dame, where as the Hoosiers still have northwestern and the Army to worry about.

Notre Dame, on the other hand, has taken its last two games "in stride" to be at the peak for Southern California. For the first time since beating Carnegie, Rockne himself will be on the sideline, even though his ailing leg will keep him in a wheel chair. The psychology of this alone will be a big stimulant to the Hoosiers.

Old Order Changes In Boxing Kingdom

New York, Nov. 13.—(AP)—The old order changed, giving place to the new in such striking fashion that the late Tex Rickard, if he could ever visit again the boxing scenes he once dominated, would hardly know them.

Humbert J. Fugazy once was Rickard's business enemy, but in the end Tex conquered him and drove him to Brooklyn to promote his summer shows. In doing so he lifted Madison Square Garden to such successful heights that Fugazy could never procure the necessary backing for an indoor arena.

Today Fugazy is the toast of the "600 millionaires" of whom Rickard was so proud. Through his pleasant associations with Bill Carey, successor to the presidency of the Garden, and Frank Bruen, the general manager, Humbert came to dictating over to them two of the most precious cauliflower chateaus in the heavyweight stock market.

For a sum generally estimated at $65,000, Fugazy sold to the Garden with the Garden and ended by turning the one contract for Max Schmeling's services recognized by the New York State Athletic commission as taking precedent over all others. He further gave up his contracts with Victorio Campolo, the giant gauchito of the Argentine, and bought off the three year contract of Gustave Leneve, the manager whose squabbles with his charge sent Victorio limping back to South America, determined never to come north again.

The deal not only gave the garden a monopoly of the major heavyweights but indicated that Fugazy himself has come to the end of his bitter, single-handed struggle to get somewhere in the fight business. Indications are more than strong that some new reorganization of the garden personnel will ultimately dislodge Humbert in the driver's seat that once was Rickard's. Bruen is expected to become president of the organization with Carey stepping back to the chairmanship of the board of directors.

SUNDOWN STORIES

UPSIDE DOWN

(By Mary Graham Bonner)

"We'll stop in here for some refreshments," the Little Black Clock told the children.

"What a very queer house," Peggy remarked.

"Just an idea of the owner," the Little Black Clock said. "The owner decided that so many more of his friends came from the air and landed their planes on his roof that he would have his front door steps up there."

"That's why you see he has the chimneys 'down' where the cellar used to be."

"There's an opening down here so we can get in from the ground," Cur taxi driver went a little beyond, or rather a little below, the place he should have gone. He could have left us on the roof.

"Then we could have gone in the front door."

"What a very, very funny idea," Peggy laughed.

"They went inside and it was just the strangest place they had ever seen."

"The owner did not seem to be around. At any rate, they wandered about."

"At the top of the house was the front hall, and the living room was there, too."

"The bedrooms were all down-stairs. Peggy particularly enjoyed wandering about. She adored houses and keeping house and playing house and everything that had to do with such places."

"The refreshments they had were quite delicious, but they got them in such an odd fashion. The Little Black Clock pressed bells here and there and food on plates came right out of openings in the walls."

"The owner said we must make ourselves at home," he explained.

Tomorrow—"The Owner's Name."

Market Report Cotton--Stocks--Grain

COTTON MARKET. N. Y. STOCK LIST.

New York, Nov. 13.—(AP)—The cotton market opened steady at a decline of 7 to 15 points but active months sold 14 to 22 points net lower under selling pressure inspired by weakness in Liverpool and the action of yesterday's market. The selling seemed to represent further liquidation together with some southern and local selling but the initial offerings were absorbed by an increased trade demand around 16.76 for January and prices later became steadier. The Liverpool market steadied up after the local opening while reports of a steadier tone in the stock market were probably a factor locally. January rallied to 16.85 and a good part of the early losses were recovered with active months holding steady at net declines of 5 to 7 points at the end of the first half hour.

GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Grain prices averaged higher today, notwithstanding that at times wheat, rye, corn, oats and provisions all tumbled to new low price records for the season. Stock market uncertainty was the main depressing factor. On the other hand, active demand for wheat to be shipped overseas counted as a decided stimulating influence regarding grain. Wheat closed firm 1-4 to 1-7-8 higher than yesterday's finish; rye closed at 1-4 to 1-8 net advance; corn showing 5-8 to 1-1-4 gain; oats 7-8 to 1-6 up and provisions unchanged to 27 down.

STOCK MARKET

By STANLEY W. FRENOSIL
levels for the SHRD MF FW YYY
New York, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Further distress selling came into the stock market today and prices of leading issues crumbled to new low levels for the year. Net declines ranged from one to 18 points. Trading was again in enormous volume, the ticker running an hour behind the market in the last hour. No adverse business of financial development appeared to explain the renewal of selling pressure. Considerable mystery also surrounded the source of the forced liquidation, but the weakness of high grade industrial and railroad issues lead to a wide-spread belief that some of the selling probably represented the liquidation of stocks held in bank loans. Directors of the Sinclair consolidated Oil Corp. omitted the usual extra dividend of 25 cents on the common stock, but authorized the regular payment of 50 cents. No explanation was given, although Wall Street presumed it was for the purpose of conserving cash resources until the effect on business of the recent break in stock prices could be determined. Credit conditions were noticeably easier and Wall Street looked for another huge reduction in Federal Reserve Bankers loans tomorrow. Call money renewed unchanged at 6 per cent, but that figure was reported to have been shaded in the outside market. Time money was available in moderate amounts as low as 53-4 per cent and the rate on Bankers Acceptances was cut 1-6 to 1 per cent over night. U. S. Steel common was again the pivot on which the market swung, opening 21-2 points higher at 156, the stock quickly climbed to 159 3-4 in a brief mid-session rally, and then broke to 150 1-4. American Machinery and Foundry 161-2, General Elec. 143-4, International Silver 111-2, and U. S. Industrial Alcohol, Pere Marquette, Sears Roebuck, Kennecott, Anaconda, American Can, Atchison, and National Biscuit, sold 5 to 10 points lower.

One Death Caused By Heavy Snow In Rocky Mountains

Denver, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Extreme cold and heavy snows in the last few days in the Rocky Mountain region caused one death, aroused fears for safety of several persons and gave rise to apprehension for the sugar beet harvest. The lowest temperature reported was in Gallatin Canyon near Dozeman, Mont., where the thermometer registered 20 degrees below zero. A five-inch snow fall accompanied the cold. Temperatures generally in Colorado, Wyoming and Montana were only slightly above zero. Alfred Salazar, 17, was the only victim of the storm in the Sangre De Cristo Range, southwest of Pueblo, Colo. A sudden snow storm caused their team of horses to break away, leaving the youths to walk their way to shelter. Salazar died in the arms of one of his companions.

Heflin Resolution for Probe of Cotton Exchanges Deferred

Washington, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Senator Heflin, Democrat, Alabama, today deferred an attempt to obtain immediate adoption of his resolution to investigate the New York, Chicago and New Orleans cotton exchanges on assurances that the resolution would be reported from committee for action tomorrow. He told the Senate yesterday he would move today for discharge of the audit committee from further consideration of the resolution and that he would ask immediate action by the Senate. Off the floor today the Alabamian said he had been assured the committee would report the resolution tomorrow after it had heard other Senators who had asked to appear. He added, however, that if the resolution is not reported, he would ask the Senate to take action without a report from the committee. The investigation would determine whether the cotton exchanges have had a depressing influence on the price of cotton and what effect transactions on the New York stock exchange have had on cotton trading.
