GIVES VIVID PICTURE OF GOLD STRIKE

Washington, Feb. 22.—(AP)—From the far reaches of the Yukon river where the temperature hovers around 40 below zero, the terse staccato of a telegrapher's key has brought vivid pictures of Alaska's latest gold strike.

"Richest gold strike in history since 1896—every man in whole vicinity that can get transportation of any kind going or gone—temperature forty below zero—Poorman cabin crowded the one roadhouse and store filled to capacity—all mining plants closed down—all rushed to stake ground at new discovery—panning out unusually well—valued prospect shaft—told to pan for ourselves—temperature still 40 below zero—broke piece, held pan with dirt into tub boiling water to thaw out—panned finding about two dollars ninety-six cents worth fine looking washed gold in two pans."

Thus reports to the Army Sergeant William N. Growde, signal corps operator at Ruby, Alaska, who has been bitten so hard by the gold bug that he asked and received five days leave, traveled 29 miles a day by dog team with an Indian guide to reach the discorey grounds only to find them virtually all staked.

But he went on:

"Next morning accompanied Mike Kovas, original discoverer to Butte Creek only one not yet staked. Heavy clothing and strenuous hill climbing on snowshoes somewhat painful—returned to mine camp across two divides convinced that frost must have shovled up those divides a few thousand feet higher than when we crossed them in the morning. Had fine moose steak dinner waiting. Some of party had badly frozen hands.

"Next morning went over to Diamond Creek and staked claims on ground overlooked by others. Hope it is good but don't know yet."

Sergeant Growden reported the return trip and was careful to add: "No messages on file when I returned Ruby and only one has been filed since, so no inconvenience experienced by patrons." He also added the suggestion that it "looks as though construction days at new find might require temporary station there."

He concluded with the caution, however, that the cost would be high as fighting cost five cents per pound and transportation was scarce, adding: "Will inform you progress new camp. Thanks for furrough."

Four Persons Die in Fire in California

Firemen and police were unable to determine whether others had perished, as the smoldering ruins made it impossible for them to search closely.

Kills Estranged Wife and Himself

Auburndale, Fla., Feb. 22.—(AP)—A man identified by police as M. C. Silsbee, Tampa grocer, shot his estranged wife to death in a hotel here Saturday early today and then killed himself.

He fired two bullets into her breast and one through his own temple during a quarrel that aroused guests in the hotel soon after midnight.

Boy Scout Saves Life of Youth

Mandan, N. D., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Battling the current of the Heart river, John Dewey, 11 year old Boy Scout, saved the life of Forrest Marvin, 8, after Forrest, and his father, W. P. Marvin, riding in a duck boat yesterday had been tossed into the stream when their boat overturned.

Marvin was unable to swim, and he grasped for his son but missed him. He then clung to the timber of a viaduct. Seeing the plight of Forrest, who was being swept down stream, John went to the boy's aid, holdign up the boy until the two were rescued.

RANDOLPH TO HEAD CHICAGO CRIME FIGHT

Chicago, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Colonel Robert Lisham Randolph, whose forbears were neighbors of George Washington, today took command of possibly the most elaborate and intensive mobilization ever attempted by any city to rid itself of organized crime.

A committee of 100 composed of leading business and financial figures formed his staff. From its membership will be picked a committee of 12 to direct expenditure of the millions of dollars being recruited for the crusade—a crusade which Col. Randolph hopes will scour the city clean within half a year.

A "secret" committee of six will function at the innermost unit. The identity of its members is never to be revealed, and even the members themselves will not know the identity of their fellow committeemen.

"Illicit booze is responsible for the bulk of the crime today," said Col. Randolph who is president of the Chicago Association of Commerce. "The criminal now has thousands of dollars to offer as bulwark against punishment. If it be shown that officers of the law are dealing with booze peddlers, we will go after them relentlessly."

There was no oratory and no pounding of furniture around the Col. Randolph's office today when war against the gangster and racketeer was being declared.

"There will be no sensational round-ups, and no thundering small fry," said the colonel. "But we expect to end the reign of the racketeer in Chicago within six months."

The money, which has been contributed by Chicago business interests, will be used to employ trained investigators who will work with extreme secrecy, unknown to each other, and to employ special counsel to conduct prosecutions.

Body of Hertford Man Recovered in Perquimans River

Hertford, Feb. 22.—(AP)—The Perquimans river has given up the body of Tom McMullan, prominent Hertford man, who lost his life on a hunting trip in the wild, semi-wilderness country south of here.

McMullan set out alone in a small motor boat more than a month ago to hunt in the swampy, jungle-like territory surrounding the river. When he failed to return, hundreds of persons, aided by a score or more small river craft, searched the region for him.

Captain T. W. Perry, of the tug Carolina, found the body yesterday floating in the river. It was discovered near Crowells Point, 100 yards from where McMullan's overturned boat was located on January 23, five days after he disappeared.

The river is several miles wide at Crowells Point. Friends of McMullan believed his boat overturned near mid-stream, and the man, hampered by a heavy hunting suit he wore, was unable to reach land.

F. C. HARDING TELLS OF LIFE IN WASHINGTON

Address by Local Attorney High Light of Kiwanis Program Here Last Night

Hon. F. C. Harding was the principal speaker of a program at the Greenville Kiwanis club last night honoring the birthday anniversary of George Washington, first president of the United States and generally termed "the Father of his Country."

The speaker brought before the Kiwanians many interesting "side-lights" on the life of Washington aristocracy courting through his veins, who rose to the highest position it was in the power of his countrymen to bestow upon him.

The meeting last night was presided over by President B. E. Sugg and the program was in charge of C. W. Harvey, E. L. Hillman, pastor of Jarvis Memorial Methodist church had charge of the singing and the opening prayer was made by E. G. Flanagan.

Aside from the regular supper, the Kiwanians enjoyed several numbers furnished by a mixed orchestra from the Greenville High School under the personal direction of Eugene Roberson, director of the school music, assisted by Mrs. M. K. Blount at the piano. The youngsters were liberally applauded at the end of the program, and President Sugg paid tribute to the splendid work which Prof. Roberson is doing among the young men and women of the city.

Four new members were inducted into full-fledged membership of the club with Rev. W. A. Lillycrop, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church delivering the address of induction. They were Dave Moore, Norman Warren, Bill Bradsher and Gus Forbes.

Mr. Harding was introduced by M. K. Blount as one of the outstanding orators of the section and a member of the Pitt County Bar association.

Mr. Harding said the time allotted him did not afford an exhaustive consideration of his subject, so he confined himself entirely to side-lights on the life of Washington, not attempting to bring out points not so generally known among the public.

N. C. Sheriff Always Gets His Prisoner

Today, Baxter Fletcher is sure.

Today, Fletcher was in jail here after a 75-hour chase, with Sheriff Reynolds in the role of the hound and Fletcher in the role of the hounded.

Fletcher, charged with seduction, was apprehended in that city of crime, Chicago. Sheriff Reynolds was sent to fetch him.

At went well until Tuesday night when they reached North Wilkesboro after their lengthy trip.

After what seemed an unreasonable time for glove-getting, Reynolds investigated. Fletcher had a new pair.

But was the deputy heartened? He set to work on the prisoner's night, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday he worked. He finally got Fletcher, found him in the adjoining county.

TELLS ABOUT SHOOTING AT BELL ARTHUR

High School Principal Gives Detailed Statement About Being Fired Upon

S. B. Howell, principal of the Arthur High School, Bell Arthur, Pitt county, who was recently fired upon by unknown parties while standing on the porch of the tearage, today gave to the Reflector a detailed account of the affair.

"The idea has been advanced by some of the Arthur citizens that a certain group of people took advantage of the time when they could lay the blame on others, to avenge an old school quarrel that began before I came here," the teacher said.

"I am not anticipating any more trouble. The sheriff is working on the case, and I feel that every means possible will be used by the sheriff to see that the guilty ones are administered to them."

The detailed statement follows:

"Since reading the reports in the Greenville Reflector Wednesday and Thursday, and in the News and Observer Thursday, I wish to give the public the following facts, which may clear up a few ambiguities that I have been asked about:

"On Thursday, before the shooting took place on Tuesday night, I requested the eighth grade Algebra class to bring their Algebra answers to class and turn them in to me. My reason for that request being that the class, as a whole, had been copying the answers instead of working the problems. I had talked to the class about the use of their answers since before Christmas and had threatened taking them and keeping them until the end of the year if they did not quit abusing the use of them. On Friday morning five of the class said their parents told them to return to school but not to give me their answers. Of course, I sent these pupils back home, and told them to come back when they could abide by the rules of the school. The parents of all the children, except two, came to see me and promised to comply with my request. I had made a report to the County Welfare officer, and he came and met with these two parents and myself at noon on Tuesday, and both parents promised, before leaving this conference, that they would have their children back in school. I had been told on

"Go away," she said, "I'm here to die."

The youths, frightened, ran to police who took Mrs. Wilson to a hospital where it was said she would recover.

Steals Truck Load of Hay and Lands Behind the Bars

He had a date with his girl who lives quite a piece across town. Unfortunately, Toeke had no horse. Had he had a horse, he explained, he would have ridden it and would not have needed to take the hay.

Just as he was debating how he was going to get to see his girl, Toeke observed a truck loaded with hay.

"Hey! hey!" he said, jubilantly, driving away with the truck. "You wouldn't expect a man with a date to unload five tons of hay, would you?"

"I fear," said the turnkey, locking the cell door behind Toeke, "you have reached the hey-day of your career."

NATION PAYS TRIBUTE TO WASHINGTON

Hundred and Ninety-Eighth Birthday Anniversary Celebrated Everywhere

Washington, Feb. 22.—(AP)—The one hundred and ninety-eighth anniversary of the birth of George Washington was observed today throughout the length and breadth of the nation which he had so great a part in establishing.

The city of Washington, founded by and named for the leader of the Continental army, and Alexandria, Virginia, the home town of the Revolutionary hero, across the historic Potomac river from the capital, led the country in the celebration.

In both halls of Congress, time was set aside for tribute to the "Father of his Country," while President and Mrs. Hoover postponed pressing White House duties to join Governor Pollard of Virginia, Secretary Hurley and other high government officials, to review in Alexandria, the annual Washington birthday parade.

In army posts on the continent and in distant possessions, abroad naval vessels at anchor and at sea, in diplomatic missions on foreign shores and in the cities and rural communities, fitting ceremonies were the order of the day. Government departments closed in Washington, while patriotic societies planned elaborate demonstrations.

The Washington monument was the scene of the first event of the day in the Capital, the program for that hour including the placing of President Hoover's wreath at the base of the towering stone obelisk by his naval aid, Captain Allan Buchanan.

The sons and daughters of the American Revolution gathered for exercises in Continental Hall, while in Alexandria the graves of fellow Masons of Washington, were decorated with flowers. Boy Scouts lined up for their annual pilgrimage to Mount Vernon to place wreaths on Washington's tomb. Patriotic organizations also planned ceremonies in Arlington National cemetery and at the tomb of the unknown soldier.

At the grave of the unknown soldier of the Revolution in an old Alexandria churchyard, ceremonies were arranged by the society of the Children of Revolution. Mrs. Eleanor Washington Howard, the Great Niece of Washington, was in charge.

Mrs. Wilson, angered because her husband had refused to take her to a theatre, went to Lincoln park, swallowed poison, lighted a cigarette and awaited death on a park bench. Two young men approached and attempted to flirt with her.

"Go away," she said, "I'm here to die."

The youths, frightened, ran to police who took Mrs. Wilson to a hospital where it was said she would recover.

Murder Mystery At Montgomery

Montgomery, Ala., Feb. 22.—(AP)—The finding of the bullet-torn body of R. J. Davis, street car motorman, lying half way out of his trolley, shortly before midnight gave authorities a puzzling mystery to unravel today.

Davis' gun was found beside him with two exploded shells in its chamber. Three bullet holes were in his body, which lay with the feet inside the trolley and the shoulders on the street.

No Actual Modification Of The French Policy Is Expected at Conference

Graf Plans New Flight To America

Washington, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Another visit to America by the Graf Zeppelin is in prospect for the near future.

With the announcement here that permission had been given for the giant German airship to make use again of the landing facilities at Lakehurst, New Jersey, it was learned that Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the zeppelin is planning to study the possibilities of airship in traffic between Europe and North and South America.

At the Navy Department a letter was made public from Dr. Eckener to Acting Secretary Jahneke in which he expressed the opinion that journeys between these three continents, requiring nearly four weeks by water could be accomplished by airship in a week or ten days.

SENATOR SEES HOPE FOR THE FARM MEASURE

Simmons Says Smith Bill Due for Consideration in the House During This Week

Expressing confidence that the bill providing $6,000,000 for the relief of distressed farms of six southern states would be taken up in the House sometime this week, Senator F. M. Simmons, writing to Judge F. M. Wooten of this city, also said he expected immediate and favorable action on the measure.

Senator Simmons said he appeared before the House Rules Committee and made quite an extended statement regarding the necessity of consideration of the relief bill, and that after the meeting and executive session was held and the request granted.

The letter in its entirety follows: "On Monday I appeared before the House Rules Committee at a hearing upon the request that the Rules Committee make a special rule providing for taking up the Smith Resolution, providing an appropriation for farm relief. I made quite an extended statement in behalf of the measure and the necessity of immediate action, and I am glad to tell you that after the hearing an executive session was held and the request granted.

"It is expected that this bill will be taken up in the House certainly some day this week and immediate favorable action is confidently expected.

"I am sorry to say that up to this time nothing definite has been arranged with reference to the suggestion of a change so as to allow the northeast section of North Carolina to apply for loans to the Richmond Intermediate Credit Bank, instead of to the one at Columbia. The Chairman of the Federal Farm Loan Board advised me that the matter has not been definitely settled in one way or the other, but will be in a very short time and that he will advise me immediately.

"It is my earnest desire to cooperate with you to the fullest extent in these matters."

Hosiery Mill At Wendell Wrecked by Flames Today

Wendell, Feb. 22.—(AP)—The Wendell hosiery mill was completely destroyed by fire about 6 o'clock this morning, with the loss estimated by officials at between $25,000 and $35,000.

The origin of the fire was believed to have been from a defective stove in which the night watchmen had just started a fire. The loss was partly covered by insurance.

The mill was constructed in 1921 by the late M. A. Griffin and J. Ashby Wall. After the death of Mr. Griffin, Mr. Wall purchased the entire interest in the mill and has operated it since that time. About 60 workmen were employed.

Naval Powers Believe, However, That Change in Cabinet May Have Certain Softening Influence; American Delegates Talk Political Pact.

Paris, Feb. 22.—(AP)—While a certain amount of softening of the French policy at the naval conference was expected in some political circles today, inquiry in authoritative quarters elicited the view that there will be no actual modification of the French attitude at the conference by the new cabinet.

Although the Socialists who control the destiny of the new ministry are in principle for the reduction of armaments, it was remarked that M. Paul Boncour, Socialist and delegate to the Geneva Disarmament parleys, is perhaps the strongest champion in France for safeguarding French national security. His influence with his party is considerable.

It is argued consequently, that the Socialists will not urge Foreign Minister Briand, new head of the French delegation, to modify the London policies.

London, Feb. 22.—(AP)—The American delegation to the five-power naval conference does not believe it within the scope of this conference to make a naval limitation agreement contingent upon any political pact or arrangement.

It was learned authoritatively that when negotiations here reopened next Wednesday or at some future date this one line of American policy will be quite definite. It was understood that British support largely will be accorded the stand.

It is the American delegation's view that if the Kellogg pact is to be expanded, or otherwise made more effective, the operation will have to be performed at some future international clinic. Unofficially it is known that it is felt that insertion of political clauses in a naval treaty might jeopardize the organ before the United States Senate.

There have been numerous reports of such political pacts or arrangements, most of them apparently based upon the French inferred demand that unless security in the Mediterranean is assured them no reduction will be possible from the 724,000 naval tons which they have set as a minimum of their requirements.

Few here would be surprised if it became necessary next Wednesday for another adjournment to be taken to allow the French political situation still further time to quiet and become settled. In fact, the general tendency was to wonder just what the end will be, since M. Chautemps admittedly may be overthrown with as much suddenness as was M. Tardieu, long before the conference has completed its work.

Paris, Feb. 22.—(AP)—In certain political quarters it was expected today that the French policy at the London naval conference would be softened as a consequence of the shift in government from a right ministry headed by Andre Tardieu to one of the left guided by M. Chautemps.

So precarious is the majority, if indeed majority exists at all, which probably will be accorded M. Chautemps Tuesday when he takes his cabinet before the chamber, that it was pointed out, he will have to adhere very closely to policies of the left, or run the risk of almost certain defections which could topple his government at the outset.

THE HAZARD OF OVER-PRODUCTION.

Rightly declaring that "Diversification must be practiced in Eastern Carolina if farmers are to be successful" the Rocky Mount Telegram says:

"The tobacco crop in Eastern Carolina this year, unless farmers have really profited from their experiences of this last season, may be larger than it was last season. And if the crop is larger if farmers hope to accumulate wealth through heavy planting, they may expect prices to remain equally as low or lower than last year. Diversification must be practiced in Eastern Carolina if the farmers are to be successful. Despite the fact that the tobacco crop in sections of this state was poorer than the crop in several years, the amount of tobacco sold this year was greater by several million pounds than the crop of the season before. And there is a danger of over-production, with dire results for the farmer.

"In Colonial days in Virginia, after over-production had reduced the price of tobacco from fifty cents a pound, as money was reckoned then, to $1.52 per hundred pounds, laws were passed allowing planters a definite number of tobacco plants. Government agents counted plants on farms, and all in excess of the prescribed number were destroyed. Thus the production was reduced.

"There is one danger to keep in mind when the 1930 crop is being planted: it is possible for the supply to exceed the demand. Should the amount of tobacco sent to the market be greater than the amount tobacco companies may use, then the farmer must either destroy a part of his crop or else sell his entire crop for a price that will enable the purchaser to destroy some of his purchases. That will mean an exceptionally low price for all tobacco.

"The ant, often cited as an example of wisdom, assures himself of one thing in the summer months: that he shall eat during the lean months of winter. He labors first to provide himself with food and he lives year after year. There will come a time when the talk of hard times and the evidence of hard times will not arouse the least bit of sympathy with persons who have neglected to provide meat and bread, the essentials of life."

Shelby, Feb. 22.—(AP)—An epidemic of cow stealing is bothering Cleveland county farmers. Four have been stolen in as many days this week.

ABOUT TOWN

The city police department poured out over one hundred gallons of whiskey yesterday and immediately cast about for new "bootleggers to conquer." In fact, it is the purpose of Chief Preston Pierce to launch a more relentless campaign than ever upon the whiskey making and whiskey selling element of the community and he promises a "hot time in the old town" for members of the traffic during coming months.

The one hundred gallons poured into the sewer yesterday represented captures over a period of several months, and it made many a man's mouth water as the booze trickled down the gutter to find its way to the muddy waters of Tar river.

That much more rum is destined to meet the same fate may be gathered from the declaration of the police department concerning the future enforcement program. It may sound like funeral music to the bootleggers and distillers but it has a tendency of bringing joy to the hearts of that great mass of people who have thrown their entire support on the side of prohibition because it is the side of law and justice.

If property was acquired by gift after December 31, 1929, the basis of determining taxable gain or deductible loss is the same as it would be in the hands of the donor, or last preceding owner by whom it was not received by gift. For example, a man in 1925 bought stock in a corporation at $100 a share, kept it until January, 1927, when it was worth $120, and then gave it to his son, who, in 1928, gave it to his wife, the stock then being worth $150 a share. If in 1929 the wife sold the stock at $200 a share, the taxable gain is not $50 a share but $100 a share, the gain over the cost to the preceding owner, who did not acquire the property by gift. If the wife sold the stock at $80 a share, the deductible loss would be $20 a share.

In computing the gain or loss from the sale or other disposition of property acquired by gift or transfer in trust or before December 31, 1929, or by bequest, devise, or inheritance the basis is the fair market value of the property at the time of acquisition. For example, a taxpayer received in 1919 a lot of real estate having a fair market value of $10,000 which he sold in 1929 for $15,000. The original cost to the donor was $12,000. The taxable gain, however, is $5,000. If sold for $8,000 the deductible loss would be $2,000.

Today is George Washington's birthday.

The postoffice and banks closed in order that their employees might have an opportunity of paying tribute to the "Father of his Country," generally considered the most able of American leaders and statesmen. The name of Washington stands out like the brightest star of the firmament of American citizens, and it will continue to hold this enviable position by reason of the high ideals which he represented while leading the Continental army to victory over the British, and his wisdom in the formation of the government after America had conquered the British hosts.

It is not so much what Washington did that causes the people to honor him upon the coming of every birthday, but for the things which he stood for in his every day life. His life was one of truth, honesty and virtue, and this alone is more responsible for what the people think of him than what he actually did.

Washington has set an example for the American people that has proved most constructive during the days since the Revolutionary war, and it is to be hoped this influence continues to live in the hearts of the American people and that it will inspire them to live and do as that peerless leader did scores of years ago.

Get the habit of boosting home enterprises and then do your best to keep at it. It is one of the best means possible for keeping alive interest in what the various business houses and industries are doing to improve the life of the community.

The booster can accomplish more in a minute than the pessimist can accomplish in an entire lifetime, and the more boosters we have the more and better will be our achievements.

Greenville has lots of things to talk about and the strong talking points should be upon the lips of our people with the dawn of each day. Think about what the city has that you are actually proud of and then begin a talking program in this connection. Your audience will listen to you much longer than it would if you were putting out a pessimistic line of talk.

WOULD FOLLOW CRAVEN'S EXAMPLE

As good Democrats, let's follow Bruce Craven's example in the News and Observer. Abolish all real estate taxes and free the farmers and land owners and tax some of the luxuries, and see good old

Eastern Carolina rise as a tower of strength and influence. This is the proper way to promote prosperity. When we do this we won't have to plant everything in a money crop. We can just plant what we need and make our living at home, and we will have real prosperity in abundance and the most prosperous section in the country. We won't hear hard times, and we will have a land of plenty and freedom of speech, better houses and farms.

Everything in general will improve. S. A. EURE, Ayden, N. C.

IMPROVED IN QUALITY ADVANCED IN VALUE

Pleasing changes will meet your eye when you examine the fine Oldsmobile which is now presented for 1930. You will note decided improvements in appearance—but you will recognize that Oldsmobile's distinguishing characteristics remain unchanged.

As you become better acquainted with Oldsmobile, you will discover new ease of handling, new comfort, and new luxury—but you will also find that these important improvements have been achieved through refinement of proved fundamentals of design, not through any radical change.

You will see an Oldsmobile improved in appearance, longer—lower—and smarter than ever.

You will find new comfort in its wider, deeper seat cushions and its more spacious interiors.

And examination of Oldsmobile's mechanical refinements will suggest to you the advanced performance made possible by more efficient carburetion, more responsive steering, and improved, fully-enclosed, mechanical four-wheel brakes.

You will be convinced, as you examine these betterments, and as you drive the car yourself, that Oldsmobile has been definitely improved... and you will find it representative of a value so marked that Oldsmobile is drawing the attention and approval of new thousands everywhere.

THREE ONE-ACT PLAYS BY CAROLINA PLAYMAKERS

Paul Green, whose play "The No 'Count Boy" will be one of the three presented by the Carolina Playmakers at East Carolina Teachers College on next Tuesday evening, Feb. 25, has a year's leave of absence which he is spending in Europe.

All three of these playwrights know well the people of the section in which their plays are placed and get their models for characters directly from life itself. The two who are actors also have the advantage of presenting their characters just as they wish them to be taken by the public. Rarely does one have a chance to see a play taken from familiar places and people, written by people who have lived in the midst of the scenes, and who themselves act the parts.

Then Miss Mary Green discussed the International Organization of the association, telling of the many countries which are a part of it and of the scope and possibilities of the work, particularly in the field of exchange teachers through which good fellowship is promoted and the nations drawn closer together.

Miss Mamie E. Jenkins and Mrs. Hillman gave very interesting reports of the state meeting which they recently attended in Charlotte. Mrs. W. I. Wooten and Mrs. E. F. Arnold were guests. The next meeting will be with Mrs. R. J. Slay on March 20.

WOMAN SLAIN AND ROBBED OF JEWELS

Salt Lake City, Feb. 22.—(AP)—The body of Mrs. Frank Moormeister, wife of a Salt Lake physician, was found today on a country road near Granger, ten miles from this city. She had been struck on the head and then apparently run over many times with an automobile.

Several thousand dollars worth of jewelry which Mrs. Moormeister habitually wore had been stolen from her person, sheriff's officers reported. The woman's automobile, bloodstained, was found on a street here later. Fragments of ore found in her hat led the officers to assume that the rock was the weapon used by her assailant.

The woman's automobile, bloodstained, was found on a street here later. Fragments of ore found in her hat led the officers to assume that the rock was the weapon used by her assailant.

Officers said they were looking for a woman whom Mrs. Moormeister had arranged to meet yesterday afternoon.

Because of its brutal nature, the police believed that some other motive than robbery actuated the slaying.

A maid in the Moormeister home said Mrs. Moormeister drove away in her car at 4 p. m. yesterday, saying she was to meet a woman, but would return in time for an appointment with a masseur.

The body was discovered by Ray Peterson of South Jordan, a night employe of a smelter at Magna. He did not recognize it at first and went home and to bed. His curiosity prompted him to return later with his wife, he said, and then he notified officers.

Poisons Three Children and Then Himself

Detroit, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Unable to bear the prospect of being separated from his three granddaughters, Jesse Waite, 51, poisoned the three children and himself in his Cadillac Boulevard home late last night.

Today Alma Vernal, 4, and her sister Ruth, 6, are dead. Betty, 8, the third sister is in a critical condition. Waite also is in a critical condition, as a prisoner in receiving hospital on a charge of homicide.

The girls, children of Waite's daughter, Mrs. Julia Vernal, had been living with Mrs. Vernal and her husband Manuel, at Waite's home. Today they were to have moved without the grandfather. Yesterday Waite took the children out with him and bought them new dresses, candy, ice cream and fruit.

Waite had been unable to be persuaded with their mother to be allowed to have them sleep in his room. She consented and when they had retired Waite fed the three girls and himself pieces of an orange he had poisoned.

A note left by Waite said he had poisoned the children and himself because of the dream of separation and of living alone.

GAINES QUILTS AS PRESIDENT WAKE FOREST

Resigns Today to Become President of Washington and Lee University

Wake Forest, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Dr. Francis Pendleton Gaines, who three years ago at the age of 33 became president of Wake Forest College, prepared to resign today to become president of Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Va.

Trustees of Washington and Lee yesterday at Richmond, Va., elected Dr. Gaines president to succeed Dr. Henry Louis Smith, retired. The Wake Forest president announced last night he would accept the position. He planned to submit his resignation today to officials of the Wake Forest board of trustees.

Dr. Gaines was the second North Carolina educator in two days to receive a call from a university outside the state. Thursday, Dr. Harry W. Chase, for ten years president of the University of North Carolina, was elected president of the University of Illinois. He submitted his resignation to North Carolina officials to accept the Illinois presidency.

Dr. Smith, whom Dr. Gaines will succeed at Washington and Lee, also was called from a North Carolina school to head the Lexington University. He was president of Davidson College when elected president of Washington and Lee. The veteran educator now is making his home at Greensboro. He expressed keen satisfaction at the selection of Dr. Gaines as his successor.

Dr. Gaines, a native of Due West, S. C., is not only an educator of note but also an author and orator. A leader in the Baptist denomination, he is recognized as one of the most eloquent pulpit speakers of the denomination in the South. He also is well known in North and South Carolina as a speaker at civic and other public events.

He is author of "The Southern Plantation," a book dealing with Southern Colonial life, and has contributed to various well known publications, including the dictionary of American biography.

Dr. Gaines came to Wake Forest as a Baptist college, from Furman University, a Baptist institution of Greenville, S. C., where he was professor of English for four years. He succeeded Dr. William Louis Poteat, retired, as president of Wake Forest.

Chapel Hill, Feb. 22.—(AP)—When Dr. Harry Woodburn Chase goes to the middle-west to assume the presidency of the University of Illinois, he will receive a cordial and enthusiastic welcome, if messages which have poured in on him in the last two days may be taken as an indication.

Since Dr. Chase resigned Thursday as president of the University of North Carolina to accept the position tendered him by the trustees of the University of Illinois, messages of congratulation and greeting have come to him by the score. Some of the foremost educators of the nation have sent their regards.

"I rejoice in your selection and greet you cordially as my successor," Dr. David Glinley wired.

L. D. Coffman, president of the University of Minnesota, wired Dr. Chase:

"Please accept my sincere congratulations and all good wishes. I think the best of you and hope you will make a great record."

BAD SYMPTOMS LEAVE QUICKLY

Burke, Texas.—Mrs. Orea Crawford, of this place, tells of her use of Theford's Black-Draught which she says covers a period of "a good many years."

"We use Black-Draught as a regular family medicine for constipation, and I try always to keep it in the house."

"I have found it a reliable medicine to give the children when they get upset from over-eating, or have colds for after taking Black-Draught they get all right in a little while."

"I use Black-Draught for bilious, sick, headache. I have found that a dose or two, taken at night, will give quick relief for constipation and the complications, which follow when that condition runs on."

"A bad taste in the mouth in the morning, dizziness and a dull headache, all leave quickly after a few doses of Black-Draught. I find it is not safe to let such things run on. I try to head off the danger by taking Black-Draught in time. It is a dependable medicine."

(Continued from page one) an athlete, expert horseman, who had learned to shoot straight and to tell the truth under all circumstances, and these helped to prepare him for the high responsibilities which rested upon him during his later life. He declared that Washington was not a soldier in the generally accepted sense of the word, but that he was a prince of advisors, sturdy, strong and true at all times.

Discussing the reason why Washington was chosen to lead the armies during the stirring young days of America's life, he said this came about largely through the influence of Masonry. He said the Masons were responsible for the prominence which Washington gained in public life, and he cited the names of several generals of the Revolution and leading statesmen who were Masons and who served under Washington.

He paid tribute to Washington's ability to recognize the necessity of the separation of church and state, and urged that this influence alone continue to live and that the banner of the church might still wield power in the life of the nation.

Monday that the complainers were having a meeting and that I would be given a certain length of time to get out of town. Some teachers, with myself, had been to a friend's house on Tuesday night and it was about eleven o'clock when we returned. I put the teachers out at the front door and went on around the coal house to put my car in the garage. As I passed the house I thought I saw two objects move around the corner. I thought of both, the threat to run me away and also the stealing of gas, as I had run people away from the gas tanks on previous nights. I put my car up and returned to my room, armed myself and listened. In a few minutes I heard talking and went out of the back door, when I was fired upon. I returned the shots as two people ran from the side of the coal house. I returned to the inside of the house, obtained another gun, and returned to the back yard, when I was again fired upon. I then phoned Sheriff Sam Whitehurst and decided to wait in a bunch of bushes about 20 yards from the house. I had reached the bushes and was in the act of sitting down when another volley of two bullets came in my direction, and I think it was one of these that went through my coat sleeve.

I emptied my revolver in the direction from which the firing took place and then took refuge in the house next to the teacher's.

"I am not sure as to the exact number of persons in the dark but I could definitely see two, and some of the teachers thought they saw as many as three through the upstairs window, after they had fired the second time and were running almost directly across the school campus.

The most influential people of the section have expressed their regret that such a thing should have taken place. From the co-operation I have had in trying to trash the matter out, and judging from the cases reported to have attended the meeting held by the complainers on that same night that the shooting occurred, and from the persons making the speaking at this particular meeting, I feel that the attack was made by some who belong to a certain class that you find a few in every community.

The idea has been advanced by some Arthur citizens that a certain group of people took advantage of the time when they could lay the blame on others, to avenge an old school quarrel that began before I came here.

"I am not anticipating any more trouble. Sheriff Sam Whitehurst and others are working on the case and I feel that every means possible will be used by our sheriff to see that the guilty ones have justice administered to them.

Flashlight beamed, and Westmore hurried down the steps, leaping up on the back of the news photographer, who had taken to his heels. The camera was knocked to the ground, and an unidentified man removed the plate while bystanders pinioned Westmore's arms.

Officers escorted the photographer to the police station, but no charges were placed against him and he was released, minus his picture and with a broken camera. He announced he would ask Westmore's arrest for assault and battery and destruction of property.

As Westmore came out of the door, his seven-year-old daughter by his first marriage called to him. He turned to speak to the child, and the process server clipped the document into his hand.
